Isaac Williams had nine children, of whom four are now living. One son, Vincent, lives in Madison county. The others are not in the vicinity. Two live in Illinois.

Jacob Widener came from Virginia in 1802, and first settled below Chillicothe. In 1807 he moved to this township, and bought five hundred acres of land of the Williams brothers, which he improved and cleared. A part of the house now occupied by his daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Engle, about a mile north of the Bloomfield pike, was built by him. Soon after his purchase he sold two hundred and fifty acres to Mr. Rollins. Two children were born to him—Elizabeth and Rebecca. Elizabeth died in Illinois in 1878. Rebecca married Jacob Engle, who died in 1835. She still occupies the old homestead. Jacob Widener died in 1835.

The Choates were early settlers along the river—about 1808. One was a justice of the peace during his residence here. None of the family now remain.

Mr. Goreley came to Scioto about 1808, and settled on Edward Williams' place. A ford near where he lived is called Goreley's ford. Land was leased by him, but he did more toward keeping the early settlers shod than he did toward farming. He was the first shoemaker in the township. None of his name now reside here, although he raised quite a family.

James Johnson came to Ohio, from Virginia, in 1808, and settled on Darby creek, in the west part of the township. For many years he rented land, but before he died he bought a part of the farm now owned by Nelson Rush.

Two of his daughters are still living on portions of the farm he left.

Francis Rush came from Hampshire county, Virginia, in 1808. He married Nancy Greenwade, of Virginia, by whom he had six children, all of whom are still living, and five of them in this township. They are Jacob, John, Francis, Nelson, and William, all of whom own farms in Scioto, and Mrs. Sarah Sharp, who lives in Cowles county, Illinois. Mr. Rush was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was obliged to leave his family in the woods, surrounded by howling wolves, while he fought the Indians and the British soldiers. When he came to this country they had but one child, which was brought on horseback, over the tedious road from Virginia. John Rush, his son, owns a large farm of over seven hundred acres, in the northwest part of the township, three miles from Harrisburg. William owns the home farm, on Darby creek -five hundred and fifty-nine acres. Francis lives on an adjoining farm of over six hundred acres. Jacob has a large farm in Scioto and Darby townships. Nelson has a farm of over two hundred acres, northeast of the home farm.

Lemuel Sayres came from the State of Pennsylvania to Ross county, where he married. He settled permanently one and one-half miles north of Geneva, in 1808, and raised a family of eight children, all girls. At his death, the large farm owned by him was divided among his children, but one of whom now lives in Scioto—Adaline, who remains single. The others live in other parts of the country. None of his estate is now owned by his children.

John, Hugh and Andrew Shaw settled in the north part of the township about 1809. John and Hugh purchased land and improved it. Andrew was a wheelwright, and made it his business to keep thrifty housewives provided with spinning-wheels, reels, and such other articles as came in his line. Some of their descendants live in the township at this time.

James Miller came from Butler county, Pennsylvania, in 1808 or 1809. At first he rented the place now owned by George Dennis. In 1811 he bought the place now owned by William Gibson, where he lived twenty years. Afterwards, he lived in Bloomfield and Marysville several years, when he went to Iowa. He died in Missouri, on April 22, 1878, aged ninety-one and one-half years. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. Nine children were born to him, six of whom came to maturity. Two of his children live in this township: James Miller and Mrs. George Dennis.

John Sample was a resident of Pennsylvania, and came to Ohio in 1809, settling three miles below Genoa, where he built a stillhouse, which he run a number of years. He bought a farm of two or three hundred acres, and raised a large family, all of whom are now dead or moved away. Mr. Sample was a justice of the peace in about 1816.

Daniel Harper came in about 1810, and leased land, but was never a freeholder. None of his descendants remain.

Joseph Reed came from Ireland to Pennsylvania, where he married. In 1810 he moved to Ohio and bought one hundred acres of the Donaldson and one hundred acres of the McMahon survey. There was a small improvement when he came, and he cleared the land. His family comprised nine children—Elizabeth, William, James, Eleazur M., Margaret, Joseph, John, Martha Ann, and George. Eleazur is living in Darby township. Joseph died on the old homestead, April 12, 1879, aged sixty-one years. Joseph Reed, sr., died in 1856, aged eighty-two years, and his wife died in 1834, aged nearly forty-six years.

John Nevins came to Pickaway county about 1810, and settled on the place now owned by James Walker, where he died in 1819 or 1820. He raised a family of three sons and two daughters. One daughter married Richard Carson, who was a step-son of Major John Thompson. Mr. Carson was a very strong and active man, but injured his health by showing his activity, and died from the effects of a strain. Another daughter married Nathan Denny; and another, Joseph Hollenback. The sons went to Iowa and other parts of the West.

Charles Williams emigrated from Delaware in 1805, and came to Pickaway Plains, where he remained one winter, after which he moved to the north fork of Paint creek, at Frankfort. There he lived until 1811, when he moved to Scioto township, and settled half a mile north of Genoa, where he remained a few years. In 1814 he moved to Harrisburg, remaining one year, when he returned to near Genoa. After this time he rented a number of different farms, the last one being the Peter Dechert place, where he died in 1839, aged ninety-two years. He raised nine children, but one of whom is now living—John Williams, or "Little John," as he is called. In 1833 he bought one hundred and twenty-four acres of land, which he gave to his sons John and James. James sold out and moved to Indiana. John sold his farm and owns no property now. The elder Williams always bore the reputation of a Tory, and for many years would buy no land, saying the king would yet own the country.

Joshua Williams came to Ohio in 1811. His business was that of weaving cloth. He married and raised a large family. A son—Noah—lives about two miles north of Genoa, on a farm.

Andrew Jordan, from Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, came to Ohio in 1811, and located on the Delano farm, where he lived until his death. He was an industrious man, and husked corn on the day of his death. He raised a family of five daughters, all of whom are now living. One of them—Mrs. Fisher—lives in the south part of this township.

John Stinson, or "Jack," as he was called, settled in Soioto in 1812, in which year he taught school on the Ballard farm. He published a small book called "Jack's Complete Constable," describing the duties of constables. He was a son-in-law of William Ballard. He was many times in trouble with the settlers, and was several times bound over to keep the peace.

John R. Davis settled in Deer Creek township in 1816, coming from Worcester county, Maryland. He lived in Deer Creek township five years, and then in Jackson five was born in Scotland. He immigrated to the United States when he was twenty years of age, and settled in Virginia. A few years later he married Miss Jannett McIntosh, by whom he had four children, two of whom —John David and Walter McIntosh—were born in Virginia, and two—James Grieve and Emily Thompson—were born in Ohio. He came to Ohio, with his family, in 1833, and purchased seven hundred acres of forest, a portion of which is still owned and occupied by his daughter. At the time of this settlement, it was almost an unbroken wilderness from the Scioto river to the head waters of the Big Darby. Of the seven hundred acres purchased by Mr. Mundell, seven acres were indifferently cleared, but no buildings of any kind had been erected. With that enegy and determination which characterized his life, he went resolutely to work and subdued the forest, erected suitable buildings for his family, which, at the time of his settlement, consisted of his wife, two sons —already mentioned—and a niece, Miss Jannett Filcomb, who still remains with the younger member of the family. Her quiet, consistent, christian life, entitles her to prominent mention with this family.

JOHN MUNDELL

MRS. JOHN MUNDELL.

Our subject, John Mundell, donated the ground, hewed the logs, and helped to erect the First Presbyterian church then west of the Scioto river. He was one of its first members, and was a ruling elder from that time until his death. He was a fearless advocate of the right, and as fearlessly denounced wrong. He was a kind and indulgent father, and lived to see the fruition of his life—an educated family, and all members of the Presbyterian church. In early life he was a Whig, but was identified with the Republican party from its organization. His motto was "equal rights and universal education." He died in 1870, of heart disease, in the seventy-ninth year of his age.

Mrs. Mundell was also born of Scotch parents, though a native of Virginia. Her mother, Mrs. Margaret Shannon, came to Ohio with the Mundell family, and a few years since died, at the age of one hundred and four years. Mrs. Mundell died in the year 1875, at the age of seventy-four years. While both Mr. and Mrs. Mundell lived to a good old age, yet it is quite evident that the labor and hardships, incident to new-country life, materially shortened the life of each.

Their first-born, John David, has been twice married. Miss Mary A. May, of Kingston, Ross county, Ohio, was his first wife, and Miss Matty Maxwell, his second and present wife, also of Kingston, where they now reside. Walter McIntosh enlisted in the three months' service, and served in the One Hundred and Fourteenth Ohio. He was never married. He gave his life to his country. After the expiration of the term of his first enlistment, he re-enlisted for the war. His health finally gave way, and he lived but a few months after reaching home. James Grieve married Mary W. Renick, and lives in Kansas. Emily Thompson, the youngest of the family, is unmarried, and occupies the old homestead, and, to all appearances, manages all the details of farming with good judgment.

years. In 1834 he bought one hundred acres of land of the Mayfield survey, in Scioto. He was married while in Clarksburg, Ross county, and raised nine children, six of whom are still living—two in this township. Mr. Davis is now in his eightieth year and very feeble, and his wife is in her eighty-fourth year.

James Redmon came from near Winchester, Virginia, to Station Prairie, in Ross county, in 1802. His father came from Ireland, and served throughout the Revolutionary war. James Redmon remained in Ross county some twelve years, and, in 1816, removed to Jackson township, Pickaway county. In 1818 he moved to Harrison, where he remained until 1833, when he moved to Darby. In 1834 he settled in Scioto, and located on a part of the Reuben Long survey. He died in 1844, aged seventy-six years. He raised a family of fourteen children. Elizabeth married John Yoakum, Susan remained single, and John married Hannah Sage. James Redmon's wife lived to be one hundred years and four months old. John Redmon was a great hunter, and has killed many deer, but did not neglect his work to hunt. He killed the last deer seen in this vicinity.

Martin Boots came to Scioto at an early day, and cleared land. He afterwards moved farther west.

Enoch Henry lived on the Delano tract quite early, and made a clearing, but soon left.

Andrew Galbreath came from Pittsburgh, about 1811, and bought land on the old Federal road. He owned two or three hundred acres near Robtown, which he improved, and where he raised a family of children. At his death, the family returned to Pennsylvania.

Alexander Laferty located on a part of the Williams' tract, near the Scioto river, soon after Edward Williams came. He made a clearing, and, afterwards, moved away.

A man named Grove also settled on the Williams' tract, where he died.

Robert Ross settled on a vacant piece of land, west of Genoa, as early as 1822, and cleared about twenty acres. The land was purchased by James Johnson, and Ross moved to Indiana.

Peter Dechert came from Virginia to Ohio about 1820. His wife had the misfortune to break her leg while on the journey, or about the time they arrived, and remained at the house of William Miller, in the northwest part of the township, until a comfortable home could be built. They settled half a mile west of Genoa. The only remaining member of the family, in Scioto, is Mrs. Esther Coontz, who still lives at the old homestead.

Anthony Coontz came from Virginia to Ohio, where, in 1827, he married Rebecca Dechert, daughter of Peter Dechert, settled on land given his wife by her father, and made a home and improved the farm. They had nine children: Margaret, Jesse, William, Peter, Solomon, Elizabeth, Rachel, and Anthony P. Margaret married James A. Beckett, and lives at Commercial Point. She is the only surviving member of the family in Scioto.

Jacob Yoakum, from Hardy county, Virginia, came to Ohio, in 1818, and remained in Piketon, Pike county, three years. In 1822, he removed to Scioto, and bought one hundred and fifty-one acres of the Judge Seymour tract, on Darby creek, a part of which lies in Muhlenberg. He served a short time as a soldier, in the war of 1812, going from Virginia. The family came to Ohio with a five-horse team, over terrible roads. At his death, January 8, 1878, he was ninety-seven; his widow survives him. Five of their children now live here: Abel R., on the old Wilson place; Robert, Henry, and Mary, on the old homestead, and Mrs. Anna Parkinson, who married Robert Parkinson, and lives on the adjoining farm.

Isaac Robison was a native of Pennsylvania, but was raised in Pike county, Ohio, where he married and had three children, Margaret, Jane, and Elizabeth. In 1822, he moved to Scioto, where Sarah, James, John, Ann, David, Samuel, William, Joseph, Matilda, Caroline, Martha, and Almira were born—in all, fifteen. Thirteen are now living, five in Scioto, and all on farms: Mrs. Sarah Hall, Mrs. Matilda Hott, Mrs. Almira Hott, and Mrs. Ann Hoover.

Michael Robison, the father of Isaac Robison, came with his family to Pike county, in 1819. In 1822 he moved to Pickaway county, and bought two hundred and fifty acres of land, which he gave to his children, of whom he had six. He died in 1851, aged eighty years. The Robisons settled in the south part of the township, and their settlement is known as Robtown.

James Welsh settled near Chillicothe, when he first came to Ohio, in 1813. In 1825, he removed, with his family, to Scioto, and located in Genoa, where he died in 1826. His family remained here three or four years, when they moved about two miles northwest of Genoa, where his son, James, lived until August 4, 1879, when he died. He married Margaret Thompson, a daughter of Thomas Thompson, who came to Pickaway county in 1800, or 1802. They have three children: Jesse Thompson, John, and Ann E., who married J. C. Clemens, and died July 25, 1879, aged thirty-eight. Mr. Clemens was a soldier in the First regiment of Ohio volunteer cavalry, and served his State and country from September, 1861, till February, 1863, when he was discharged for disability. Afterwards, he served during the hundred days' service, in the One Hundred and Thirty-third Ohio infantry. He has two daughters. Mr. Clemens rents land, and carries on the business of farming.

Joseph Gochenour came to Ohio in 1826 or 1827. He exchanged property in Virginia for one thousand acres of wild land in the General Porterfield survey, west of Genoa. He made no improvements the first year after his purchase, but went to the Miami river country and remained there one year, after which he returned and began his improvement. Ten children were born to him in Virginia, before he emigrated, and one born after his settlement. The family came to Ohio in wagons, and on their arrival on the west side of the Scioto river, had to cut a road through the forest to his purchase, some four miles. In 1830 or 1831, he started a tannery, which he afterwards sold to Robert Gibson.

Isaac Smith came from Maryland, in 1815, and at first settled near Chillicothe, where he lived several years, moving to Scioto in 1826 or 1827. He bought land on Darby creek, which he cleared, and where he made a home. Twelve children were raised by him.

George Gochenour came with his parents about 1826 or 1827. On the death of his father he inherited a part of his estate—one hundred and two acres—which he improved, and on which he lived, and where he died, June 6, 1872. He married Maria Smith, who survives him. Their children were: Joseph (who died when an infant), Isaac, Barbara (Mrs. Michael Burke), Elzy, Sarah A., Littleton, and Henry. The latter lives in Missouri; the others in this township. Littleton married Margaret Beavers, and owns a farm of one hundred and fifty-four acres, two miles southwest of Commercial Point.

Griffith Justice settled on the east side of Scioto river, about 1815. In 1827 he removed to Scioto township, and in 1832 or 1833 he bought a farm; a part of survey number six thousand, eight hundred and thirty, now owned by Alexander Colwell. Here he lived until 1856, when he died of cholera. He raised a family of ten children, two of whom are now living: one in Columbus, and one in Decatur, Illinois.

Rufus Dennis came to Ohio in 1827, from Maryland, and worked a year for Judge Florence, in Muhlenberg. In 1828 he came to Scioto, where he has since lived. Much hard work has been done by him in helping others to clear land and improve farms, but he was never a land owner. He is now nearly seventy-two years old.

William Harler came from Virginia in 1829, and settled on the McMeekin survey. This property he afterwards sold, and now owns fifty acres, a mile and a half south of Genoa. The trade he follows is brick-laying, and he has helped build most of the brick-work in this township. Nine children were raised by him, six of whom are now living.

John Frietwell came with William Harler, in 1829, and settled near the location of the cemetery. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. He was a brick-layer by trade, and worked with William Harler many years.

John W. Lane came from Albemarle county, Virginia, to Ohio, in 1831, and bought a farm a mile and a half north of Genoa, which he cleared, and where he still lives, aged nearly eighty-five years. Mrs. Lane is seventy-three. They raised seven children, four of whom are now living: David is a farmer, and lives in this township; Mrs. Lucy Ann Corry, lives in Franklin county; Sarah V. Shaw lives in Christian county, Illinois; James lives south of his father, and owns a farm of four hundred acres. In his early manhood he married, and commenced farming, but, his health breaking down, he was obliged to give it up, and began dealing in stock, at which he has made a good property. In the community where he lives he is a prominent man, and bears an enviable reputation.

Robert Gibson emigrated from Pennsylvania to Ohio, in 1816. In 1818 he was married, in Preble county, to Ruhamah Williamson, and, after marriage, they settled in Dayton. In 1825 he opened a tannery, which he conducted until 1829, when he moved to Scioto. Two years later he bought the Williamson homestead, and in 1839, bought the tannery started by Joseph Gochenour. This he conducted until 1852, when he closed it. Previous to his emigration to Ohio he served six months in the war of 1812. Following are the names of his children: Eleazer W., James A., Martha A., Mary J., Rebecca, and Sarah. Martha married George W. Scholey, and lives in Kansas City, Missouri. Rebecca married Garrett E. Conover, and lives in Kansas. Sarah married Luther Lerch, and lives on the homestead. Mary J. lives with them. James A. married Hester A. Crabb, and owns a farm of one hundred and seventy-five acres, a mile and a quarter southwest of Commercial Point. E. W. married Louisa Walker and lives a mile and a half southeast of Commercial Point, where he owns and manages a farm of about one hundred and seventy-four acres.

Robert Wilson was born in Ireland, and came to this country with his parents when an infant, and spent his early life in Virginia. He was married in Zanesville. In 1828 he settled on the barrens, in Darby township, and in 1832 came to Scioto and bought land on the west side of the pike, southwest of Commercial Point. He raised a family of eleven children.

John Mundell was born in Scotland in 1794, and emigrated to the United States in 1820. He settled in Virginia, where he married, and had two children. In 1833 he came to Scioto, and bought about seven hundred acres of land, being a part of the Taggart and McLaughlin survey, and a part of the John Kerr survey, a short distance from Commercial Point. They raised five children, three of whom are now living: one in Kingston, Ross county; one in Garnet, Kansas; and a third, Emma, on the old homestead.

James H. Burnley came from Albemarle county, Virginia, to Ohio, in 1832, arriving on Deer creek before Christmas day. He bought three hundred and eleven acres of land on a part of which the village of Commercial Point now stands. A cabin was already built on the land, and into this he moved in February, 1833. He laid off half of the village, on the east, and called it Rome. Wiley Beckett had already laid out the west half, and called it Genoa. A narrow grove was left on the south, which extended into the village, but was not included in the plat. This is now owned by John C. Burnley and M. V. Beavers. James H. Burnley was a justice of the peace a number of years. His wife was Ann Burnley. They raised a family of nine children, among whom his property was divided. Two children are now living here, John C., who lives on the homstead, and Mrs. M. C. Roland.

Moses Rawlins came from Maryland as early as 1808, and took a fifteen years' lease of a part of Edward Williams' place, opposite the farm now owned by Philomel Gray. He raised twelve children, five of whom are still living. A son, Ezekiel, married twice. He settled in Scioto, and had twenty-six children, seven by his first wife and nineteen by his second, who survives him.

Joshua Williams came to Pickaway plains from Delaware, in 1805, where he remained seven years. In 1812 he moved to Scioto, and settled on a part of the Daniel Morgan survey, a mile from the line of Franklin county, and north of Commercial Point. He had eight children, was the only child of Jacob Stiverson and Hannah (Howe) Stiverson. His father was born in York, Pennsylvania, February 24, 1792. In his early life he emigrated to Scott county, Kentucky, where he spent a few years, and then emigrated to Ohio, and settled in Jackson township, in Pickaway county, in 1815. His wife was also a native of Pennsylvania, and was born January 28, 1794. Jacob Stiverson died August 29, 1816. His wife survived him until September 19, 1876. During all this period she remained single.

JACOB W. STIVERSON

MRS. J. W. STIVERSON.

Jacob West Stiverson, the subject of this sketch, was born in Jackson township, a few months after the death of his father, December 31, 1816. He married Miss Margaret West, of Scioto township, Pickaway county, in 1842. She was born November 10, 1820, in the house where the Stiverson family now live, and where they have resided a large share of the time since their marriage, Mr. Stiverson becoming the purchaser of the same, in the meantime. Seven children were born of this union: Martha Virginia, who lives with her parents; Arthur Elmore, who is deceased; Cornelia Missouri, now Mrs. A. J. Gusman, and resides at South Bloomfield, this county —she has one child; Alice Elizabeth, who is deceased; George West, who lives at home with the family; Charles William, who is deceased; and Hannah Caroline, who is at home. The gratitude and filial affection of this family of children most richly deserve a notice in this biography. Children who were raised under such influences and teachings as might be expected to flow from pious and sensible parents, uniformly produce men and women of this sort, and without which the world would retrograde.

The subject of our sketch is and ever has been a quiet, unobtrusive man, thoroughly domestic in his tastes and life. His education was obtained in the schools of his neighborhood, and at his own fireside. He never studied grammar, and during his few school days never saw but one copy—Kirkum's—which was brought to school by one of the scholars, and used as a reading book, the teacher having no conception of its real use or design. Mr. Stiverson is not a general reader, but a critical and discriminating reader of books and subjects which have especially attracted his attention. He once served as trustee of his township for a term of two years, but official prominence being so distasteful to him, he has uniformly peremptorily declined nominations to township and county offices since the expiration of his trusteeship. He is a Republican, and has been since the organization of that party. Before that time he was a Whig, of the Clay school, hence his Republicanism came easily, naturally, and from principle, and not from any feeling of partisanship. His opinions are based upon his own investigations and reason, and of course his exercise of the rights and duties of citizenship is in the light of intelligence and good morals. After giving the matter special attention, we are delighted to say he is held in the highest esteem by his neighbors and long-time acquaintances, and their confidence in his integrity and character is universal. He is a member of the United Brethren church, as are some of his family, and has held the office of steward and class leader several times. His life is consistent, uniform, and in keeping with his profession and an exalted patriotism. His material prosperity has been slow, but thoroughly in keeping with his sense of honor, and an unbending integrity. He and his faithful wife have toiled side by side during the years of their married life, and by their industry and economy have not only accumulated a competence for their declining years, but they have provided their children with an education—a solid wealth which no misfortune can destroy.

Mrs. Stiverson was the sixth and youngest child of Peter West and Elizabeth Bartly. Her father was a native of Virginia, and was born February 8, 1782. Her mother was a native of Pennsylvania, and was born September 12, 1778. Her parents came to Ohio in 1804, and settled on the Scioto River, where the Stiverson family now resides. Her father built and operated a large ferry boat, for several years, and Miss Margaret West—now Mrs. Stiverson—was his only helper much of the time, and she soon understood the management of the awkward craft as well as her father. Her early, as well as her later life, has been one of activity and usefulness, and she has instructed her daughters in all the accomplishments and mysteries of housekeeping, and reared them to be industrious, with a full appreciation of the worth of character. She is a member of the Christian church, yet no conflicts of opinion mar the happiness of this family on account of religious differences. The christian character of Mr. and Mrs. Stiverson meets with abundant proof in the almost universal testimony of neighbors and long-time acquaintances.

all of whom settled near him. A son, Henry, was killed at the battle of Murfreesborough. Noah lives on a part of the homestead. Mr. Williams died in 1869. His wife died in 1865.

John Martin settled on the east side of the Scioto river, about 1801. In 1816 he came to Scioto, with his brother James. Their father gave each one hundred and fifty acres of land, about two miles east of Commercial Point. John Martin raised ten children, and died in 1860, aged sixty-seven. His wife died in 1870, aged seventy-five. His son, William, owns a farm of eighty-three acres, a mile south of Commercial Point.

Thomas Strain settled in Scioto about 1833, or 1834, purchasing the farm now owned by William Scholey, to to whom he sold in 1835, and moved to the west. A son lives in Harrisburg, Franklin county.

Mason Cleveland settled in Scioto in 1832. He is a native of Connecticut; a millwright and miller by trade, and has helped build many saw-mills, two grist-mills, and two distilleries in Pickaway county. By his first wife he had two children. For his second wife he married Sarah, daughter of Peter West, by whom he had no children. He is now eighty years old, and a hale and hearty man. He has a farm a short distance southeast of Commercial Point.

John Walker emigrated from Albemarle county, Virginia, with a family, consisting of a wife and ten children, in 1834. He settled a mile and one-half southeast of Commercial Point, where he bought one hundred and eight acres of land. He added to this until his death, in November, 1861, when he owned four hundred acres. His widow survives him, and now lives with her son, B. F. Walker, near Salina, Kansas, in the eighty-first year of her age. Mr. Walker lived to be seventy-seven. Two daughters, Mrs. E. W. Gibson and Mrs. Edward Thomas, and one son, James Walker, now live in Scioto. The old homestead belongs to B. F. Walker, of Salina, Kansas.

James Walker came with his father in 1834, being then sixteen years of age. He owns a farm of two hundred acres, a mile and a half southeast of Commercial Point, which he purchased in 1864. He makes a specialty of fine sheep, and owns a flock of one hundred and forty Merinos. He married Sarah A. Fretwell in 1843, and has now four children. He served as justice of the peace many years. Was postmaster from 1858 until 1864.

J. W. Durrett came from Albemarle county, Virginia, in 1835, and settled in Scioto, where he bought one hundred acres of land the year after his arrival. In 1837 he married Jane Martin, by whom he had five children. She died April 17, 1851, and August 18, 1851, he married Louisa Innis, by whow he also had five children. He ownes a farm of one hundred and ninety acres, a mile and a half east of Commercial Point, where he lives. He is a prominent man in the township, and has the respect and confidence of the community. He has been three times elected justice of the peace. His children are: Sarah A., John M., William W., Thomas H., and Emily, by his first wife; and Isabel, Viola, Minnie, James M., and Anna W., by his second wife.

Jacob W. Stiverson was born in Jackson township, Pickaway county, December 31, 1816. His mother was a daughter of Abraham Howe, who settled in Jackson in 1809. She married Jacob Stiverson, and with him settled on land now owned by Jonathan W. Huston, in Jackson. Jacob W. Stiverson married, in 1842, Margaret West, daughter of Peter West, who settled in Scioto in 1804. They own the Peter West homestead, and have had a family of seven children, four of whom are now living. Their names are: Martha V., Arthur E., Cornelia M., George W., Alice E., Charles W., and H. Caroline V. Cornelia is married, and lives in Bloomfield. Mr. Stiverson has a fine farm of one hundred and sixty-three acres, situated on the bank of the Scioto river, in the southeast corner of Scioto township.

Luke Wilkins was born in Maryland, and came to Ross county when an infant, in 1814, with his parents. In 1840 he came to Scioto, and remained for a time, when he returned to Ross county, and worked at carpentering. In 1841 he again came to Scioto, and worked at his trade. In 1843 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Peter West. He bought one hundred and twenty-one acres of land, the share of his wife in her father's estate being used in payment. They have eight children—Mary R., Almira J., Caroline M., Ann Eliza, Harvey T., William W., Sarah M., and Hannah M. Three are maried and live near home, and one is in Kansas.

Wiley H. Beckett came from eastern Virginia, in 1829, and settled west of the present village of Commercial Point, where he purchased two hundred and thirty-eight acres of land. His wife was Magdalena Akerley, to whom he was married in 1815. They had eleven children, ten of whom are now living: Cynthia A; John H., who died when seventeen years of age; James A., who married Margaret Coontz in 1846; Sarah J.; Alexander F.; Sidney A.; Isabel M.; Caroline V.; Thomas J.; and Susan M. Two of these live in Indiana, one in Missouri, and the others live in and near Scioto. Mr. Beckett and his son, J. A., started the first store in Scioto, at Genoa, in 1844. In 1852 James A. took the store, and has since continued it, a part of the time alone, and a part of the time in a partnership business. It is now conducted under the firm name of J. A. Beckett & Co., the partners being J. A. Beckett, J. O. Beckett, and W. H. Magley. Mr. J. A. Beckett has four children: Ellen G., who married W. H. Magley; Cornelia A., who married T. H. Durrett; John O., unmarried; and Clara R., who married John Peters.

Daniel Pursell came ftom New Jersey with his family, and located on the Williams farm, near Scioto river, where he arrived in July, 1838. He had twelve children, six of whom are living. George lives in Illinois; Eli, in Missouri; Sarah (Mrs. William Martin), in Scioto township; Cyrus married Elizabeth Hobbs, of Ross county, and lives here; Jacob also lives here; and J. T. lives in Garnet, Kansas. Jacob, Cyrus, and J. T. were in the army during the Rebellion, and served nearly three years. Cyrus has six children, and is engaged in blacksmithing. He first opened a shop at Commercial Point, in 1853. His shop was burned in May, of the same year, but with the assistance of his neighbors, it was rebuilt. An attempt was afterwards made to burn his house, by some person who held a spite against him.

Joshua Hill came from Maryland, with his family, and located in Harrison township. In 1824, he moved to Scioto, where two of his sons, William and Hiram, now live. William owns a farm.

James Meeker came from Franklin county to Scioto, in 1845. He now owns one hundred acres of land two miles southwest of Commercial Point. He helped build flatboats, for use in carrying produce down the Ohio river, at an early day. When a young man, and living in Franklin county, he worked in the construction of the Ohio canal.

Jonathan E. Trimmer came from New Jersey, in 1841, and bought a farm on part of the McMeekin survey, a mile south of Commercial Point. His family consisted of Aaron, Elijah, Sarah A., and Martha. He died March 7, 1879, aged seventy-four; his widow survives him aged seventy-three. Three of his children are married, and live on and near the homestead. Aaron married Susan O'Hara; Sarah married James Huston, who died in 1873; Martha married Conrad Bohnert.

George Hott moved to Scioto township, from Walnut, in 1847, and located in Robtown, where he lived about twenty years, when he went to Darbyville for two years. In 1867 he moved to Fayette county, where he now lives. He raised seven children, four of whom live in Scioto: Jackson, William, Mrs. Mary A. Clark, and George. George married Matilda Robison, in 1857, and has two children, both at home. Flora C., is the wife of James Welsh. Mr. Hott owns a farm of one hundred and seventy acres, and carries on a general farming business, just north of Robtown, at which place he resides.

Jacob Grabil came to Ross county in 1804, from Virginia. He moved into Pickaway county, and leased and rented farms in different localities until, in 1841, he purchased a farm in Scioto. He died in 1852, aged seventy-one years. His wife died in 1853, aged sixty-eight years. Three children are now living—a daughter, in Indiana, a son, William, in Williamsport, and Josiah, on the home farm, four miles southwest of Commercial Point. Jacob Grabil served six months during the war of 1812.

Absalom Vanvickle came from Virginia with his parents about 1806. They settled in Jackson township. He served as a soldier during the war of 1812. In 1819 he married Elizabeth Dulgar, by whom he had two children. He bought one hundred and twenty-five acres of land three miles west of Commercial Point, in 1832. This he cleared by his own labor. He died in 1863, at the age of seventy-five. His wife died in 1873, aged eighty-two. His daughter, Mrs. William Dechert, now owns the property.

William Boyd came from Pennsylvania in 1844, and settled in Scioto, where he purchased a small farm. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was on Commodore Perry's fleet during the battle of Lake Erie. His age at his death was eighty-three.

James M. Johnson, originally from Maryland, came to Ohio with his parents when seven years of age. They settled in Marion county. In the fall of 1839 he removed to Franklin county, and the next spring moved to Jackson township, Pickaway county, subsequently locating in Muhlenberg. In the fall of 1842 he settled in Darby township, which was afterwards incorporated within the boundaries of Scioto. Here he has since resided.

POST-OFFICE.

The first post-office in Scioto township was opened at Beckett's store, which was the name of the office, in 1845. Wiley Beckett was first postmaster. He was followed by J. A. Beckett, H. P. Bunch, James Walker, John D. Mundell, and the present incumbent, Eli Harsh, who was appointed in 1865. The first mail carrier was James A. Beckett. He rode horseback to the crossing of the Scioto river, above Bloomfield bridge, crossed in a canoe, and walked to the Bloomfield office, where he left the mail from this office, and returned to the river again, crossing in the canoe, and home again with the mail for Scioto. Before this office was established, people went to the most convenient place for their mail, as many do to this day, some going to Bloomfield, some to Darbyville, some to Harrisburg, and some to Shadeville, Franklin county.

GENOA—COMMERCIAL POINT.

In 1841, Wiley H. Beckett laid out a parcel of land in the northeastern part of his possessions, for the purpose of forming a town, which he named Genoa. Two years later, Squire James H. Burnley laid off a similar parcel of his land on the southwest corner of his farm, and called it Rome. He left a gore containing not half an acre, on the corner of his land, which was not included in his village lots, and when the village was incorporated this gore was not included as a part of the town, though the land on the east and west side of it was so included. This gore has been called various names, one of them being "The Devil's Half Acre." It is owned by J. C. Burnley and M. H. Beavers. Burnley has a blacksmith and wagon shop, Beavers a grocery, dwelling, and other buildings.

CORPORATION.

Genoa was incorporated by special act of the legislature, March 21, 1851. The first election was held March 8, 1852, there being eleven electors in the village who voted. The following officers were elected: H. P. Bunch, mayor; A. F. Beckett, recorder; J. M. Anderson, E. Smith, J. L. Martin, L. Dennis, and James Risk, councilmen. The first meeting of the council was held at the school-house, at which meeting Hiram Anderson was appointed marshal, and George Van Houten, treasurer. The next meeting was held a few days later, and six ordinances were passed for the governance of the town. At the third meeting of the council, March 15th, a petition was presented, signed by eleven persons, "praying for a law to appoint some vigilant boy, whose duty it shall be to chase the game out of the corporation limits." The petition was thrown under the table, notwithstanding it was signed by as many persons as participated in the election. Some time during the year 1872, the name of the village was changed from Genoa to Commercial Point, to conform to the name of the post-office, which had been changed from Beckett's store, which had been its name for many years. The officers of the village for 1879, are: Thomas Beavers, mayor; Cyrus Pursell, treasurer; W. H. Magley, clerk; Eli Harsh, Mathias Hott, William A. Smith, Dr. S. M. Seeds, and Dr. S. C. Helmick, council; John Satterfield, marshal. In 1871, the corporation and township built a town house, of brick, the upper story being built by the members of the Masonic fraternity, as a lodge room. The hall is used for general township and corporation purposes, and is rented by the Good Templars' organization for the purpose of holding their meetings.

CHURCHES.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Circuit preaching was had in 1829, by Revs. Mssrs. Austin and Phillips. Rev. John McKinley, a local preacher, also held meetings. The church was organized between 1829 and 1834, at which time a log church was built near the present residence of James Durrett, and called Point Pleasant church. It was in Franklin circuit before this time, and has since been divided and subdivided several times. It is now in the Harrisburg circuit. The original circuit extended to Thompson's mills, near Circleville on the south, and above Columbus on the north. About 1854 a small brick church was erected in the village of Commercial Point. A portion of the walls and roof were blown down in 1873, and a new and larger building erected in its place. It now has some seventy-five members, and a Sabbath-school of one hundred and ten members, under the superintendence of E. Harsh. Rev. Mr. Callahan is the preacher.

UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH.

A church of the United Brethren was organized about 1843, in Robtown. Meetings of a practical character were held by Rev. George Hathaway, in the old log school-house east of Robtown, in 1843. Previous to this time, meetings had been held in private houses. Jesse Bright and Mr. Jones were early preachers here. About 1822 a log school-house was built near the present residence of Luke Wilkins. This was afterwards moved to Robtown, and was occupied as a church until 1875, when the society built a neat and substantial framed church. Rev. Daniel Bonebrake is the pastor. The membership is about thirty-five. A Sunday-school of thirty scholars is conducted under the superintendence of Frank Rowe.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The regular Baptist society was organized about 1827, at Darbyville. In 1874 the organization was removed to Scioto township, about two miles west of Commercial Point, where a church building was erected, at a cost of six hundred dollars. The church has a membership of twenty-three. Regular services are held monthly by Rev. Jason Peters.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Presbyterian church was organized about 1827, at the house of James Miller, a mile north of Commercial Point. Preaching had been held in private houses, occasionally, previous to that time. The first settled minister was Rev. Calvin Ransom. Rev. William Jones preached in the neighborhood, and at Bloomfield before the church was organized. A log church was built on the lot now used as a cemetery, about 1835. This was used until 1857, when the building now occupied was erected, at a cost of seventeen hundred dollars. The church now has a membership of forty-two. Rev. E. Thompson is the pastor. A Sunday-school is held regularly under the superintendence of John C. Hillery.

CEMETERIES.

The first burial ground was on Thompson's hill, and the first person buried there was, probably, Mrs. Welsh, mother of James Welsh, who died quite early, but the date of whose death is not known. The first marked grave is that of William Mires, who died September 22, 1819. Burial grounds were afterwards started on many farms for members of the family, but were subsequently used by others. Hardly a large survey but has its burial ground. The first cemetery lot deeded for that purpose was opened in 1835, by John and Janet Mundell. This lot contained two acres, and was deeded for the use of the Presbyterian church, of which they were members. The log church was erected on this ground, which is situated three-fourths of a mile south of Commercial Point. The first log church was located near the junction of the Genoa and Columbus pikes, two miles east of Commercial Point. The first burial in this ground was that of Thomas Fullerton, in 1835. The oldest person buried here is Mrs. Margaret Shannon, who was aged one hundred and three years. She was born in Scotland, and felt proud of the fact that the last person she danced with, before leaving Scotland, was Robert Burns.

SOCIETIES.

BATTIN LODGE, F. AND A. M.

In 1874 a petition from the Masons of Scioto was presented to the grand lodge asking for a dispensation under which they could organize a lodge. Previous to this move, the Masons in this vicinity had belonged to lodges at Lockbourne, Mt. Sterling, and other more distant points. A dispensation was granted May 25, 1874. October 21st, of the same year, a charter was granted, under the name of Battin Lodge, No. 487, Free and Accepted Masons. The charter members were: R. G. McLean, James K. P. Mitchell, Daniel B. Dechert, S. M. Seeds, John C. Burnley, Thomas Harlor, Charles F. Mitchell, Oren S. Martin, W. A. Harrington, J. G. Mundell, T. J. Beckett, A. C. Rush, William Rush, and W. B. Beavers. The officers appointed were: R. G. McLean, W. M.; James K. P. Mitchell, S. W.; Daniel B. Dechert, J. W. In 1871, before application was made for a charter, the friends of the order raised funds to build a second story to the town hall, then in process of construction, and at the organization had a good hall of their own for the use of the lodge. At the present time the lodge numbers thirty-two members. The officers for 1879 are: T. J. Beckett, W. M.; William Rush, S. W.; J. T. Welsh, J. W.; J. W. Neely, treasurer; S. M. Seeds, secretary; J. C. Hillery, S. D.; Thomas Burkhead, J. D.; J. Q. Hewitt, tyler.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF GOOD TEMPLARS.

A lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars, No. 554, was organized by charter in 1874. A charter of Degree Temple was granted March 4, 1878. The town hall is rented for the use of the society, which now numbers forty-five members in good standing. The present officers are: Thomas Beavers, W. C. T.; Christine Mundell, W. V. T.; H. B. O'Hara, L. D.; Stephen Boyd, P. W. C.; G. S. Preston, R. S.; Priscilla Boyd, I. S.; George Henry, O. S.; George Carfrey, F. S.; Dr. S. Helmick, treasurer; H. B. O'Hara, chaplain. The lodge is in good condition, financially, and has money in the treasury.

CELEBRATION.

The first celebration of Independence Day occurred July 4, 1842. Preparations were made on a large scale, for a comparatively new country, and due notice was given throughout the township. It was decided to have a barbecue, and the pit was dug in a ravine situated in the north part of the present village of Commercial Point. Turkeys and chickens were prepared for the roast, and a party was sent out to shoot a deer. Quite late the deer was brought in and placed over the glowing coals. The town was pretty much covered with heavy timber at that time, and no difficulty was experienced in finding a comfortable shade for the exercises. The opening prayer was made by John Thompson. The Declaration of Independence was read by 'Squire Burnley, and an address delivered by Col. Cradlebaugh, then a young man. Joseph McGhee superintended the roast. The day was one long to be remembered by the early settlers, and was full of hilarity, a part of which may have been caused by the free use of unadulterated liquids.

A similar celebration was held a few years later, but is not remembered with as much distinctness as the earlier one.

BUSINESS HOUSES AND PHYSICIANS.

Wiley H. Beckett opened the first store in Scioto, at Genoa, in 1844. He continued the business until 1852, when his son, James A., took charge of it, and has, since that time, been connected with it, a portion of the time alone, and again with a partner. It is now operated under the firm name of J. A. Beckett & Co., the firm being J. A. Beckett, J. O. Beckett, and William H. Magley.

George Van Houten built a store on a part of the Burnley tract, some time after Mr. Beckett started. This he conducted for a time, and then sold out to James Walker, and he to Eli Harsh, in 1863. Mr. Harsh was at that time a resident of Harrisburg, and the year after his purchase he moved his family to Genoa, where he has since lived and conducted the business, thereby securing a comfortable competence. In 1865 he was commissioned postmaster, and has continued as such to the present time. The post-office occupies one corner of his store, and is administered to the perfect satisfaction of its patrons. In 1871 he built a fine brick dwelling on the lot adjoining his store, and has one of the finest residences in the town, a representation of which appears in this volume.

The present business houses of Scioto are: J. A. Beckett & Co., general merchandise; Eli Harsh, general merchandise; M. V. Beavers, grocery; Cyrus Pursell and J. C. Burnley, blacksmiths; James Shade and Thomas Healey, shoemakers; William Marsh, harness maker.

The physicians are Drs. S. M. Seeds and S. C. Helmick. Their predecessors were Drs. Revnaugh, Jaynes, Martin, French, Sholl, and Kingery. Dr. Gardner was there for a short time.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

THE LANE FAMILY.

John W. Lane, with his wife and three small children, emigrated from Albemarle county, Virginia, to Ohio, in 1831. The only start Mr. Lane had in the new country was the team and wagon which constituted the moving outfit, and about ninety dollars in money. They came to Scioto township, Pickaway county, and settled on land belonging to Mr. Shaw. Mr. Lane worked Shaw's land two years, and then bought of him a tract of ninety acres, a mile north of his first location. This land he cleared and improved, and now occupies. Four children were born to them after their settlement, making a family of seven children, as follows: William F., Sarah V., John Monroe, Lucy Ann, James, David A., and one who died in infancy. Mr. Lane was so unfortunate as to contract the small-pox, in Columbus. The disease was brought home by him, and every member of the family contracted it. He recovered, but his son, John Monroe, and an infant child, died.

William F., the oldest of the family, is now dead. Sarah V. married Samuel Shaw, and now lives in Christian county, Illinois. Lucy Ann married Harrison Haywood; he died, and, after remaining a widow ten years, she married James Corey, and now lives in Franklin county. James married Lucinda Wheeler, in 1858, by whom he had six children. She died in May, 1870, leaving him with a family of small children, and no one to care for them but himself. In December, 1870, he married Martha A. Wheeler, a sister of his deceased wife, by whom he has one child. When he was first married, in 1858, he settled on a part of his father's farm, where he cleared forty-five acres. He remained there some seven years, but worked at farming only about four years, when his health became poor, and he was obliged to give up hard labor. He then commenced dealing in horses, buying and selling, for use in the army. He continued at this about a year, and accumulated a little property, which he invested in hogs and cattle. He has continued in that business since that time 1863. In 1865, when the price of almost every article declined, and a general panic came on, he lost a large amount of money. During the months of November and December, 1865, and January, 1866, he lost ten thousand dollars. For a few months he was much discouraged, but, finally, he found he had many friends, who would stand by him in his adversity, and his courage revived. He again engaged in the stock business, with greater energy than ever before. In eighteen months after he started in business a second time, he had paid all his liabilities, and was again on his feet. Since that time he has sometimes lost money, but in the main has gained. In March, 1865, he bought his present farm, of eighty-five acres, a half mile north of Commercial Point, to which he has added, from time to time, until he now has three hundred and eighty-seven acres. When he purchased the land, a part of his present frame house stood on it. He enlarged and built to it until now he has a pleasant home. He has provided convenient and ample barns and out buildings for his business, and his fences and all his surroundings reflect credit on a farmer who makes a specialty of keeping everything in order. An engraving representing his premises, accompanies this sketch. The children of James Lane are: Benjamin F., John W., Emma J., James Edwin, William A., Horatio N., and Harry H.

David A., a son of John Lane lives half a mile west of Commrecial Point.

John Lane, when a young man, and living in Virginia, served eight or nine months in the army, during the war of 1812. He is the only survivor of the war of 1812 now living [1879] in Scioto township.

RESIDENCE OF J. M. LANE, SCIOTO TP., PICKAWAY CO., O.

MUHLENBERG.

This, the next smallest township in Pickaway county, was formed from portions of Jackson township on the south and east, Scioto on the north and east, Darby on the north and west, and Monroe on the west and south. It extends in a direction from northwest to southeast, on both sides of Darby creek, which flows its entire length through very nearly the center of the township. Muhlenberg township was erected December 8, 1830, beginning one mile east of Judge Seymour's place, near the State road; thence west, parallel with said road, to the crossing of Dry run, so as to include Seymour and Bell; thence a straight line to the south end of George Rowe's farm, to include said farm; thence southeast in a straight line to two white oaks from one root, on the corner of Hance Baker's survey of land, now owned by William Florence; thence in a parallel line with the first run line of said township, until it intersects the road up Darby creek on the east side; thence to the beginning, including about six by four miles. No order was issued for an election of township officers. A change was made in the boundary of Muhlenberg, March 10, 1851, as follows: Beginning at the southeast corner of said surveyed township, below George Rowe's; thence easterly (so as to leave the widow VanMeter in Jackson township) in a straight line to intersect the section line of said township of Muhlenberg.

There are on the tax-list thirteen thousand six hundred and sixty-nine acres of land. The territory embraces twenty-three square miles. The population, in 1840, was six hundred and fifty-three; in 1870, nine hundred and fifty-seven.

It was for many years a stock-raising country, but is now devoted more to the raising of grain. In early days stock was bought in the adjacent country, and even in Kentucky, and fattened here, after which it was driven to New York and Philadelphia markets, some drovers sending three and four droves across the mountains in a single season. Until a recent date the land has been mostly owned by a few persons, and even now there are many large farms. Some of the large tracts have been divided among the heirs of some owners who are now deceased, and there are some small farms that have been sold from the large tracts. This will account for its tardy settlement.

ORGANIZATION.

The first records of the organization of Muhlenberg township have been mislaid, or lost, and it is impossible to obtain any definite information as to the precise date of the first election. It is known that the township was erected December 8, 1830, being taken from Jackson, Scioto, Darby, and Monroe. It is probable that the first election took place in the spring of 1831. William Hill, sr., was the first justice of the peace. There was no townhouse until 1875, when a neat building was erected on the main street, in Darbyville, at a cost of twelve hundred dollars. The lower story was built by the township and corporation, and the upper story jointly by the Good Templars' organization, and Good Samaritan Grange. The basement contains a good corporation jail, of two cells. The officers of the township for 1879, are J. T. Kirkendall and J. W. McCallister, justices of the peace; T. L. Graham, Robert Galbreath, and James Trego, trustees; G. W. Miller, clerk; B. C. Carpenter, treasurer; R. C. Hill, assessor; J. I. Radcliff, and P. C. Swank, constables.

ORIGINAL OWNERS.

At the time of the cession of this portion of Ohio to the general government, by Virginia, the lands west of the Scioto river were reserved as Virginia military lands, and were given to her soldiers in the Revolutionary war, as a reward for their faithful services in securing freedom from the yoke of bondage imposed by an English king. Of the first proprietors of this part of the military lands, General Peter Muhlenberg owned some seventeen hundred acres; Henry Baldwin, twelve hundred; Henry Massey, twelve hundred; Carter, Copeland, and others, large tracts. This was surveyed about 1796, or, perhaps, a few years earlier.

General Peter Muhlenberg was a minister of the Episcopal church, and it is related of him, that seeing the need of soldiers to carry on the war, he became one himself. One bright Sabbath day he came into the pulpit, dressed in his ministerial robes, and preached an effective farewell sermon to his congregation; then, throwing off the robes of peace, he appeared clothed in the full uniform of a colonel in the continental army, and calling on the men of his congregation to fight the battles of their country, he proceeded to enlist his regiment for the war.

NAME.

The name of Muhlenberg was given to this township in honor of Francis Muhlenberg, the youngest son of General Peter Muhlenberg, who settled in the country in 1820, where he lived a number of years, and finally married. He died two years after his marriage, leaving no children to carry his name down to posterity.

STREAMS.

But one stream of any size is found in Muhlenberg township. This is Darby creek, which is large enough, and of enough importance to the township, to be designated as a river, instead of by the insignificant name of creek. Darby creek rises near the head-waters of the Scioto river, and runs in a course nearly parallel with that stream, into which it empties near Circleville, some eight miles below Muhlenberg township. This stream has been the means, in remote ages, of enriching a large portion of the township, flowing, as it does, near the center, its entire length, from north to south, and having a valley half a mile broad. It runs over a clean gravelly bottom, and during high water floods a large area of bottom land where it is not protected by levees. The name of Darby creek was given it after an old Indian chief, who lived on its banks at an early day. Besides this water course, there is also Dry run, which extends just within the border of the township, nearly its entire length, on the west; and George's run, which follows a tortuous course of a mile or more in the northwest part of the township.

PRAIRIES.

When the first settlers came on the ground there were places of a few acres in extent, in the west part of the township, and in the adjoining townships, that were called prairies, as no timber grew on them, and they were covered with a luxuriant growth of wild grass, that would sometimes reach to the height of a man's shoulders when mounted on horseback. The surface of these prairies was covered with a heavy mat of moss, on which the numerous herds of deer fed in some seasons of the year. This heavy growth of moss would lead to the inference that these places, denuded of timber, were originally peat bogs, that had become covered up and filled by the constantly-encroaching moss, and the accumulation of decaying vegetable matter.

ANCIENT WORKS.

Although Pickaway county is rich in ancient works of the race known as the Mound Builders, this township has but few of their works within its borders, although there is a large mound in the adjoining township of Jackson. In this township there are two small mounds that have come under the observation of the writer; both in the northern part of the township: one on the east and one on the west side of Darby creek, and a mile or more from each other. They are not more than thirty feet in diameter, and twelve feet high, and are quite small when compared with those found in other parts of the county.

TIMBER.

When the white settlers first came to this country, the face of the land was covered with a heavy growth of timber, such as walnut, maple, ash, elm, honey locust, and sycamore, on the bottoms, besides much oak on the uplands. As the land along the water-courses was the best adapted to the needs of the inhabitants at that time, it was first cleared, and an immense amount of the very best timber the country produced was sacrificed. The land was cleared in the quickest manner possible: by felling the trees, and rolling the great logs into heaps, where they were burned, or by girdling, and thus destroying them. Some of the better timber was split into rails, with which to fence the clearings, the walnut being the most durable timber used. Most of the best timber has been cut down, and, in later days, utilized in various ways, until very little timber, suitable for first-class lumber, is left. There are still, however, many good sized oak trees standing on the uplands, and a great deal of land is now covered with undergrowth and timber that, in a few years, will be cleared away, and the country they now cover made into productive farms.

SOIL.

The soil is, for the most part, a black loam, mixed with some gravel, and is very productive, raising large crops of corn and wheat. On the hills, and back from the creeks, are to be found areas of clay soil. This is so situated as to be easily drained, and is very nearly as productive as the black soil, though in some seasons it requires more labor to prepare and raise a crop than on the bottom lands. Much of the land along the bottom, and bordering the creek, has to be protected from the washing of floods, by means of levees, that have been built at considerable expense by the owners of these lands. It is not an unfrequent thing to see fields of one hundred and fifty acres of corn in a single tract, while the average area planted by each farmer would be from forty to eighty acres.

INDIANS.

This country was the home of the Shawnee Indians, and small bands of them lived in various portions of the town at the time of its early settlement. For a number of years after the country was settled, the Indians returned annually, early in the spring, for the purpose of making maple sugar, and remained until October, when they moved toward the Sandusky river and bay. A large burying ground was located in the rear of their old camp, a short distance above the village of Darbyville, and on the opposite side of the creek. This was the camp and burial place of the band to which the chief, Darby, belonged. There was another camp, not far from the toll-gate, south of Darbyville, a short distance. Still another camp was located farther down the creek, and not far from the township line.

INDIAN DUEL.

An Indian duel took place just below Darbyville, where there was an Indian camp, at an early day, between an Indian known as "Old Pounder," and another Indian, whose name is unknown. Some trouble ensued between them, and the Indians' code of honor admitted of no other way of settling an injury than by blood. "Pounder" had a presentiment that he should be killed, and obtained a promise that he should buried. He then fought the other Indian, knives being the weapons used, and was soon killed. This affair happened in 1805. "Pounder" was buried not far from the banks of the creek. The next winter, or spring, Colonel Elias Florence, then a boy, in company with a young companion, were hunting rabbits in that vicinity, and, happening near the grave, saw the remains of "Old Pounder" on the ground. They were frightened at the sight, and informed Judge Florence, who, with a man and the two boys, went to the spot and again buried the remains.

EARLY EVENTS.

For the following facts pertaining to the early events, and settlement of Muhlenberg, we are indebted to Col. Elias Florence:

The early pioneers desired that their children should obtain the rudiments of an education, and as soon as possible arranged for schools. Judge Florence was the first person to establish a school, which he did in a log cabin on his place, in 1807. The first school-teacher was Brice Howard, who was hired and paid by Judge Florence. Sylvester Tipton taught school in the same cabin, after Howard. Horatio Keys also taught about the same time. Mr. Tipton came from Virginia to Ohio, about 1796. Rev. George Ambrose came about 1820, and taught a school on the west side of Darby creek, near Darbyville. He was a Baptist preacher, and preached in the adjacent country, and at an early date. Mr. Abbott taught school about 1816, or 1818. James Rice taught school on the Muhlenberg farm about 1817, in the fall. It is not known who was the first white person born in the township. It is believed there were births in the families of some of the squatters before actual settlers came in and took possession of the land. The first death that occurred in the neighborhood, was a child of Jonathan Renick, named Seymour. This death occurred in 1805. An infant daughter of Judge Florence's died in November, 1806, the fall after the family came to the new country, and was the first person buried in the Florence burial ground. The first physician employed in the township was Dr. Scott, of Chillicothe. This was previous to 1810. Drs. Turney, Webb, and Luckey, came to Circleville about 1810. Dr. Rafe, a Frenchman, came to the township and settled in Darbyville about 1826 or 1827. The first marriage, that can be recalled, in the neighborhood, was that of Anthony Hall and Polly Wood, in 1806. Early settlers obtained flour and meal from a mill on Darby creek, in Jackson township, and about seven miles from the present town of Darbyville, or from a mill on the upper part of the same stream, in Franklin county. The first of these mills was built about 1802 or 1803. The other a little later. The first orchard planted in Muhlenberg township, was on the place of Van Meter. This was set out in about 1808. Eleazer Smith had a blacksmith shop on Darby creek, below Darbyville, about 1808. The first shop in the town of Darbyville, was erected about 1826. A store for the sale of general merchandise was opened by Samuel Scott, in Darbyville, about 1826 or 1827. A grocery store was opened, about 1827 or 1828, by George Hill and J. P. Hill. A blacksmith shop was run in Darbyville, in 1826, by Charles McFeters, a mulatto. The first post-office was kept in Darbyville in 1827. Rev. George Ambrose was the first postmaster. The present postmaster is James D. Miller. Before this post-office was opened mail was sent to Circleville, and obtained from that office. The first survey for a township was made by Judge Florence, in 1826 or 1827. It was afterwards again surveyed by Mr. Nesbeth, of Ross county. The first justice of the peace in Muhlenberg township, was William Hill, sr., who came, in 1815, from Virginia. The first election for township officers was probably held, in 1830 or 1831, soon after the formation of the township. The earlier records are lost, and it is impossible to obtain positive proof of the date of this election. A tannery was started by John Shepard about 1819, which he kept in operation until his death, some years later. His son, Abram Shepard, continued it until about 1838, when it was abandoned. James Magill started a tannery about 1834, which he run for some twenty years, until he became very dissipated, and allowed a large number of hides to spoil, since which time it has not been in operation. A saw-mill was built on the farm of Francis Hill, a little below Darbyville, about 1820. In 1831 a run of stone was put in for grinding purposes. Mr. Hill died, and, in 1835, Jonathan Blue rented the property and put in a wool-carding machine. It was afterwards rented by others, and was finally sold, about 1844, to Jacob Measy. This mill has been in operation for many years, and was torn down on the completion of the mill in Darbyville, in 1877.

SETTLEMENT.

The names and the dates of arrival of many of the settlers in this then new country, have been lost in oblivion. No record of their heroic self-sacrifices has been kept, and most of those who came into the western wilds have passed away. The oldest of the early settlers now living is Col. Elias Florence, now in his eighty-fourth year, but with a mind still active, and stored with memories of those early days when, a boy, he frolicked with the Indian boys, practiced at shooting with their bows and arrows, and assisted in the sterner duties of redeeming a fertile soil from the dense growth of forest covering it. To his recollection of early events we rely for much of the history of the early settlement of Muhlenberg township. It is more the history of a neighborhood than of a township, as until 1830 it was not known as a township, but was included in the limits of Jackson, Scioto, Darby, and Monroe townships.

Isaac Van Meter came to the "Old Station," near Chillicothe, about 1806, and from thence to this township in 1807, where he purchased twelve hundred acres of land, a part of which is now occupied by Col. Elias Florence, and a part is owned by Philip Renick. Mr. Van Meter married a daughter of John Renick. But few of his descendants live in this vicinity at present. He died in 1820, and was buried in a neighboring burying-ground, a short distance west of Col. Florence's, and on a hill overlooking the creek bottoms.

John and David Martin had a cabin on the creek at a very early date. They owned no land, and lived much as the Indians did—from hand to mouth. They did not remain long.

Widow Burgett, with a son, Daniel, and four daughters, lived on Darby creek for a number of years, when they left for some other location.

John, Cornelius, and William Poulson, and another brother, settled in Darby township at an early day.

Mr. Galbreath came to the township as early as 1806, and settled on the old Federal road, east of Darbyville. His son Robert lives on the Galbreath road at this time.

Mr. Swank came from Germany to Maryland, where he remained some time, coming to Ohio in 1806. He never owned much property here. He was always ready for a frolic or merry-making. He had four sons—Peter, Adam, David, and William. John Swank, a descendant of his, now lives in this township.

John Rush and family, consisting of wife and several children, owned fifty acres of land on Darby creek, about 1805. They remained three or four years, when they moved to Darke county.

John Studebaker and wife came about 1806, and settled on the creek. He was quite a hunter, and never owned any land. About Christmas time, one season, he found eighteen bee-trees in one day. He remained four or five years, when the roving disposition again seized him, and he moved elsewhere.

Edward Pritchard settled on Dry run about 1806, where he owned or occupied two hundred acres of land, and made some improvements, but obtained no title to the land. He also bought about one hundred and fifty acres additional. He died about 1820. His family were rather a bad lot, and left the country soon after his death.

Judge William Florence came from Virginia to Ohio, arriving here April 9, 1806. He was detained east of the Scioto river a few days by high water. He occupied a cabin on John Renick's place for a short time, when he bought a part of the Muhlenberg tract, about one hundred acres, of a Mr. Wilson, who then owned it. He afterwards purchased more land, until he owned some seventeen or eighteen hundred acres. Judge Florence, Jonathan Holmes, and Daniel Ludwick, were the first county commissioners of Pickaway county. He was twice elected to the legislature, in 1816 and 1817, serving the first year the legislature met at Columbus. He was elected associate judge by the legislature, in 1828, and served two terms. He died in 1870, aged ninety-six. His children were Elias, Robinson, William, Nancy, Sally, Betsey, Mary, and Kittie, who died when an infant.

John and David Shepard came to this township from Chillicothe, about 1807. David Shepard was at one time sheriff of Ross county, but unfortunate investments had taken all his property. Colonel Langham, a friend of his, gave him three hundred acres of land, which was deeded to his son, John B. Shepard. Colonel Florence afterwards bought this property.

John Shepard came about 1807. He married a daughter of Isaac Van Meter, and with her received three hundred acres of land. He lived near the sawmill, just below Darbyville, where his wife died, after which he moved to Illinois, and died there.

Parnick George came from Virginia about the same time as Isaac Van Meter, in 1807, and bought land above Darbyville. He married Catharine Van Meter. He was justice of the peace two terms.

Judge William Seymour came from Ross county, about 1808. He was once the owner of considerable property there, but lost most of it during the great flood of 1804. He settled in the north part of Muhlenberg township, on Darby creek. He was one of the early associate judges of the common pleas court, to which office he was elected by the legislature, about 1810. His children were: Catharine, Elizabeth, Margaret, Minerva, Hannah, Polly, Richard, Abel, Adam, and Jonathan. Margaret is still living, and is the wife of Dr. Hill, of Terre Haute, Indiana; Polly married Gustavus Perrel, of Madison township, this county, where she still lives.

George Rowe came into the country before 1812. In 1813 or 1814, he bought land on Dry run, the title to which proved defective, and he came near losing it. He finally compromised with the legal owner, and retained the property, on which he resided until his death.

William Hill came from Hampshire county, Virginia, in 1815, with his family, consisting of wife and eight children, four boys, and four girls. Of these, five are now living. They fitted up a small cabin, about twelve by fourteen feet in size, east of Darby creek, in which they laid a rough floor. Three of the older boys fixed up a shelter which had been used as a sheep pen, and occupied it for a time, without a floor. They then built a house about eighteen by twenty feet, and had it ready to occupy about Christmas. There was a saw-mill on the creek, at which they procured boards for the floor of the new cabin. The next spring they had about five acres cleared, and rented besides this about twelve acres on the Muhlenberg farm, across the creek. Their corn was almost ruined by worms some seasons. Mr. Hill died April 25, 1849, aged seventy-three years. His wife was Margaret Florence, of Fauquier county, Virginia. Of their children, William, Thomas, and Robert, live in Muhlenberg township, and are now aged men; Mrs. Kinnear lives in Columbus; and Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton, in Circleville.

William Hill, jr., son of the above-mentioned William Hill, came with his father's family in 1815. At the time of their arrival, there was some land cleared along the creek bottoms, but none between Darby creek and the Scioto river. Wolves and deer were plenty. As many as three deer were killed by his father in one morning. There was a large pond above Darbyville, where the deer went to eat moss and to drink. They were sometimes hunted by placing a candle in the bow of a canoe, with a board, or piece of bark, behind it to avoid showing the hunter, when they could be approached very closely, and shot. Mr. Hill married Susan Gilliland, in Darby township, in 1833. They had four sons and five daughters, as follows: Albert, Sarah, Catharine, Coleman, Henry C., Ann, Elizabeth, Frank, and Margaret. Coleman died April 13, 1864, while a soldier in the war of the Rebellion. Albert and Henry each served three years as soldiers in the war. Of the nine children, eight are now living: three, Henry, Margaret, and Ann, on the old homestead in the east part of the township. Mr. Hill is now seventy-nine years of age.

Leroy Hill, a brother of William Hill, sr., came with his wife, at the same time, in 1815, and bought something over two hundred acres of land. In this party of new settlers there were twenty-five persons, including children, who emigrated from Virginia. All settled in this neighborhood. Leroy Hill afterwards moved to Clark county with his family, where he died in 1819.

Robert Hill, another brother, with a wife and two children, came at the same time. With his two brothers, he bought five hundred acres of land, on which he remained eight or nine years, when he sold to William and removed to the Little Miami country, where he died some time after 1836.

Thomas Hill, a son of William Hill, sr., came with his father's family in 1815. May 18, 1845, he was married to Julia Sharp, who came from New York State to Ohio. They have a good farm of two hundred and twelve acres in the eastern part of the town, and are comfortably situated in their old age. They did their part in clearing the country of the heavy timber with which it was covered, and now have their reward, cheered by the love and care of their children, of whom they have had nine. Two remain at home, and one is married and lives near home.

Francis Hill came at the same time as the rest of the family, in 1815, and, at his father's death, inherited a part of his estate. He married, and raised seven children—five girls and two boys. Of these, three girls live in the county: Sarah, who married Robert Galbreath, and lives on the Galbreath road, east of Darbyville; Ann, who married Mr. Montgomery, and lives in Jackson township; and Matilda, who married Jonathan Blue, and now lives in Bloomfield, Harrison township.

INDIAN INCIDENTS.

One day an Indian came to the school-house, near the creek, where William Hill was working, to see what the white children were doing. As he entered he handed his knife and tomahawk to Mr. Rice, who laid them on the desk. The children were very much frightened, and ran out of doors to hide. William Hill, with his two oldest boys, were husking corn near the school-house, and seeing that the children were much frightened, inquired the cause. They imagined the Indian had killed the teacher, and, in a few minutes, two or three of the neighbors arrived, armed with axes, and one with a gun. By this time the Indian had come out where Mr. Hill was, and was looking at the horses. The man with the gun presented it at the Indian's head, and would have shot him, had not Mr. Hill thrown the weapon aside. He was determined to kill the Indian, until Mr. Hill suggested, in a forcible manner, that they find out whether the teacher was killed, before murdering the Indian. On arriving at the school-house, the matter was explained by Mr. Rice, the teacher. It was a narrow escape for the Indian, and had he been killed, would have resulted disastrously for the whites.

After this affair was over, the Indian told Mr. Hill that seven Indians had gone to his house. Mr. Hill was considerably frightened as nearly all his family were sick, and he did not know what the Indians might do. He hastened home, where he found things all quiet. Mr. Hill's sister was baking bread, his eldest daughter assisting her. The Indian asked for bread, and was given a loaf, fresh from the oven, and smoking hot, which he wrapped in his blanket. He was then asked if he wanted meat, when he replied, "No hog, no hog," and departed.

Francis Muhlenberg, a younger son of General Peter Muhlenberg, came to Ohio about the year 1820. For a number of years he lived in the family of Judge Florence. He came into possession of about sixteen hundred acres of land owned by his father, and married Mary Denny, with whom he lived about two years, when he died, childless. In politics he was a Democrat, but being a man much respected, he was elected to the legislature on the Whig ticket, in 1823. In 1825 or 1826, he was elected to congress, and served one year, declining to serve the second year of his term. The township of Muhlenberg, in which he lived, was so named in honor of him.

Major Muhlenberg, brother of Francis, and an officer in the regular army, lost his wife in the east, and came to Ohio, remaining in the family of Judge Florence until the marriage of his brother, after which he lived with him until his death, when he returned to Reading, Pennsylvania, where he died.

Arthur Whiteside taught school many years in this neighborhood, and, being a frugal man, saved money until he was able to buy three hundred acres of land in Darbyville, where he afterwards resided. His widow lives with a daughter in New Holland, this county. A daughter, Mrs. Girton, now lives with her husband in Darbyville. Mr. Whiteside's father, Andrew Whiteside, came, originally, from Ireland, and bought land in Jackson township, about 1824, where he died.

Alexander McKinley came to this township about the year 1825. John McKinley and Jacob Yoakum came about the same time. They bought a part of the tract of land owned by Judge Seymour.

Jacob Yoakum served in the war of 1812. He settled on land in the north part of Muhlenberg, and the south part of Darby townships, which he cleared, and where he died, in 1878, at an advanced age. His widow now lives on the same property.

Charles Bell settled in the northwest part of the township in about 1825. He built the house, or a portion of it, that is now owned by Thomas Darst, and situated on Darby creek.

Henry Darst came from Maryland to Ohio in 1805, and settled in Lancaster, Fairfield county, where he remained for a time, when he removed to Perry county, and from there to Muskingum county. In 1835 or '36, he came to Pickaway county, and located in Circleville, where he kept hotel three years. He then purchased five hundred acres of land in the northwest part of Muhlenberg township, on which he remained until his death. The farm he then bought is now occupied by his sons, Gideon and William. Another brother, Thomas, lives in the north part of the township, on the creek, and Ira Darst lives on a farm half a mile above Darbyville, on the pike.

William Fullen came from Rockbridge county, Virginia, with his father, who settled on Deer creek, about ten miles from Chillicothe. He came to Pickaway county in 1827, where he bought land, about 1834, near Darbyville. He owned several hundred acres of land, and now lives with his children on a farm of two hundred and seventy acres. He has been twice married, and has raised eleven children. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. Only two of his children by his first wife are now living—James, who lives on a part of his farm near Darbyville, and Jackson, who lives in Darby township. Of his second wife's children: Mary married James Brown; Lucy married Ezra Stonerock; Richard lives at home, in Darbyville, where he keeps a livery stable, and the younger children also live at home. Mr. Fullen made money handling stock. He would sometimes take three droves of cattle and one of hogs across the mountains in a single season; and though he has lost considerable money by signing notes as security, he still has a good property.

Abel Seymour came to Ohio and settled, in 1827, on a part of Judge Seymour's tract. He was married near Baltimore, Maryland, in that year, and both he and his wife came from that place to Ohio on horseback. Before his marriage he was a drover. He was a son of Judge Seymour, and inherited a part of his property. He died in 1872, aged nearly seventy-five years. His widow, Mrs. Mary A. Seymour, lives on the farm he left, which contains over two hundred acres. They had no children, and a nephew—Seymour Gulick—whom they brought up, lives with her and manages the farm. Mrs. Seymour, now sixty-nine years of age, has crossed the mountains on horseback five times. She is a member of the Methodist church at Darbyville. At an early day she used to attend preaching services and class-meetings at John McKinley's, near the north line of the township, once in two weeks. For several years before the church was built at Darbyville the school-house at that place was used as a place of worship. Mrs. Seymour is still able to use the old-fashioned spinning-wheel occasionally.

Jacob Thorn came to Ross county about 1808. He moved to this township about 1834, living on rented farms for many years before buying. He finally bought a farm in the east part of the township, about two miles from Darbyville. He married while in Ross county, and had eight children, six of whom lived to maturity. Three—John, Frederick, and William D.—are now residents of this township, Frederick occupying the old homestead. The original farm was two hundred and sixty acres, mostly covered with heavy timber; now there are only about twenty acres in timber. Jacob Thorn was an abolitionist, but did not keep a station on the underground railroad. He died in 1870, aged eighty-one years. His wife died in 1867, aged seventy-four years.

John McKinley came from Virginia about 1819, and settled about three miles above Darbyville, in the northwest part of the township, where he bought a farm. In 1849 he moved about half a mile above Darbyville, where he died in April, 1876, aged seventy-nine years. At his death he owned about seven hundred acres of land. His widow now occupies the farm, which is worked by his nephews.

George W. Bolin came from Berkeley county, Virginia, to Ohio, in 1835. For some years after coming to this State he remained in Circleville, working at his trade, which was that of a carpenter. In 1841 he bought the farm he now lives on, in the northwest part of the township. When he purchased it there was no clearing, but the hard labor of his own hands, with the help of his sons, has cleared the land, and he now has a good home. His wife was Mrs. McIlvaine, to whom he was married in 1834. They have four sons and one daughter.

Isaac Seymour came to this township in 1835, and bought one hundred and two acres in the north part of the township, east of Darby creek. It was mostly in timber when he purchased it, but is now a fine farm. He has raised seven children, of whom six are now living.

Baldwin Clifton Carpenter came from Fleming county, Kentucky, in 1837, bringing with him a small herd of cattle. In the spring of 1838 he engaged in the general mercantile business in Darbyville, at which he continued for a few years at a time, until about 1857. During this time he was in partnership with several different persons, and a part of the time was out of business, and dealt in cattle. He now owns some thirteen hundred acres of land. He was married in 1829, and has had nine children, one of whom died quite young; two are married; the rest live at home in Darbyville.

Alexander McKinley came to this township in 1839 or 1840. He bought eight hundred acres of land in the northwest corner of the township. He was married in 1849, and raised twelve children. He died in 1873. Mrs. McKinley manages the farm with the help of her sons, and has now five hundred acres of land.

William Avery Miller came to Darbyville in 1840, and engaged in the tinning business. In 1855 he engaged in a general mercantile business with his brother-in-law, Samuel H. Thompson. Mr. Thompson went west in 1860, and Mr. Miller continued the business until his death, when he was succeeded by his son, James D. Miller, who still conducts the business, in connection with the post-office.

Mr. Joseph A. Pritchard came to Muhlenberg with his wife, in 1844. He bought nearly three hundred acres of land on the Columbus pike, in the northeast part of the township. He was a local Methodist preacher, and held meetings in the country, and assisted at protracted meetings. They had eleven children, all of whom now lie in the cemetery. Two sons and one adopted son died in the army, and one son died while attending school at Delaware. Mr. Pritchard died February 16, 1863, aged fifiy-four years. Mrs. Matilda Pritchard, his wife, now lives in Darbyville, saddened by the great losses she has sustained, but cheered by the blessed hope of meeting her loved ones in a better land.

LOST.

It was no very unusual thing for the new settlers in a wilderness of timber to become somewhat dazed and lost when they had occasion to traverse the timber out of some path or well known course. Where the settlements were several miles distant from each other, and the interval a dense and almost impenetrable forest, this is not to be wondered at. On one occasion, Mr. Isaac Van Meter, then well along in years, mounted his horse and rode into the woods to gather in some of his hogs that had been fattening on "shack," as acorns and beechnuts were called. He was gone much longer than was expected, and his family became alarmed and instituted a search for him. The neighbors were called on, and after some time found him about three miles from home, near what is now known as Robtown. He had dis-

JOHN McKINLEY.

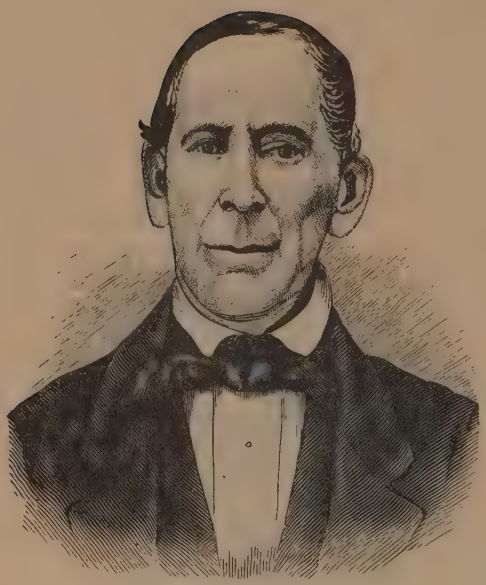
MRS. SOPHIA McKINLEY.

John McKinley was born in Hardy county, Virginia, in the year 1797. He was three times married. His first wife was a native of Hardy county, Virginia, where she spent a portion of her married life; but she died in Darby township, Pickaway county, Ohio. Nine children were born of this union, five of whom are now living—Harriet, Mary, Abel Seymour, Joseph Hill, and John Wesley.

Margaret Millar was the second wife of John McKinley. Of this union were born three children—Russell B., William H., and Sarah Jane.

His third wife was Sophia Williamson, of Portsmouth, Ohio, who still survives him. No children were born of this union.

Mr. McKinley died in April, 1876, leaving a large property to his legal representatives. The kindness of his heart is exhibited in becoming surety for so many of his neighbors and friends, which resulted very disastrously, and gave him much trouble and anxiety, and is said to have had much to do with hastening his demise. Mr. McKinley, though a business man, was also a local Methodist preacher, and perhaps is more widely known as such than as a dealer in stock. He was regarded by his neighbors as an honest man, a good citizen, a faithful christian, and an exemplary member of society. He was not educated in the schools, but possessed a fair business education, and was a successful business man and an influential preacher.



ALEXANDER McKINLEY

MRS. MARY ANN McKINLEY.

was born in Hardy county, Virginia, March 10, 1800. He spent his childhood in his native county, and obtained such an education as the condition of the country could afford, which was exceedingly limited. Indeed, he may be called a self-made man, acquiring his education in business in that valuable but expensive school—experience.

His native ability will be readily seen from his success in the accumulation of a large landed property, and in handling stock. It is said of him that his judgment of the value of stock was almost unerring.

In 1821 he came to Ohio, purchased and cleared his farm, and, with his faithful wife, bore the trials and hardships incident to, and inseparable from, a pioneer life. He married Miss Mary Ann Williamson, of this State, in 1830, by whom he had thirteen children, only eight of whom are now living—Samuel, Robert, Joseph, Cornelius, James, Alexander, Stephen, and Marcus.

Samuel married Ellen Balan, and lives on a portion of the homestead. Robert married Susan Thomas, and lives on the farm also. Joseph married Miss Lizzie Wilcoxson, and lives in Indiana. James married Mary E. Davis, who is deceased.

Alexander McKinley died in August, 1873, leaving his afflicted and faithful helper a large property and family to manage. Her sons now prove earnest and faithful men, on whom she can rely in the management of all her business interests.

It would be unjust to close this brief biography of this family without a mention of a brilliant and dutiful son, who, only one year since, was summoned to join his father, brother, and sisters, who had preceded him. We refer to John. This has proved a severe stroke to his mother. No mere word of the writer can properly picture the hardships and trials of a woman who has faced the realities of a new-country life on a farm, nor can any mere words paint the glories in store for such a mother.

Mrs. McKinley is now sixty-six years old, but is, to all appearance, in good health; and, for the sake of her children, it is to be hoped she may survive yet these many years.

mounted and tied his horse to a bush, and was engaged in whipping a pole-cat around with a little switch. When asked what he was doing that for, he replied that "he became so very cold in riding that he had to do something to keep warm, and it occurred to him that if he whipped that pole-cat about for a while he would get warmed up." The general verdict of the searching party was that he had become pretty well "warmed up," as they returned home, carefully keeping the windward side of him.

ENCOUNTERS WITH BEARS.

For a number of years after the early settlement of the country many wild animals remained, including bears, wolves, foxes, deer, and smaller animals. Bears were not very plentiful, but were occasionally met with. Miss Ellen Hill, a sister of William and Thomas Hill (who are now residents of this township), when a young girl, was sent into the field to pick corn and beans for dinner. While engaged in this work she heard a noise near her, and looking around discovered a large bear sitting up on his haunches but a few feet from her. Her screams of terror put him to flight and called the family to the field, where were to be seen the large tracks he made in the moist earth.

Thomas Roberts was a settler on the upper Darby, in 1836. He lived near Georgesville, Franklin county. On one occasion he was riding his horse across the prairie, below the Darst farm, in Muhlenberg township, when he came across a large bear. He had no weapon but a tomahawk and knife, but concluded to have some sport; so he chased the bear through the tall grass until it was nearly tired out, and he found that by heading it off occasionally he could drive it where he wished. He accordingly headed it toward home, and when near enough to be heard, called his large bear dog, which came and furiously attacked the bear. Mr. Roberts could not remain quiet and see his dog torn in pieces by the bear, which had seized it in its strong embrace. He jumped from his horse, and struck at the bear with his tomahawk, which was knocked out of his hand, and the huge animal came to close quarters, and would have soon torn him in pieces had not a fortunate thrust of his knife pierced his heart and terminated the fight. His dog was seriously injured in the first attack, but was cared for as such a faithful creature should be, and recovered.

MEDICAL.

For a number of years after the first settlement was made there was no physician nearer than Chillicothe. When the services of a physician were required, as was frequently the case in the new country, a message was despatched to Dr. Scott, of that place, until so late as 1810. In that year Drs. Turney, Webb, and Luckey, settled in Circleville, and being good physicians, and more convenient of access, they were employed. In 1826 Dr. Rafe, a Frenchman, settled at Darbyville, where he remained some years, until his death. He was a weak little man of no great force, and very slack in collecting his bills, and just as slack in paying his debts. It was equently the case that a creditor, to secure his debt, would attach the doctor's faithful horse, "Botherum." When this happened he would call on Colonel Florence, and with a lugubrous countenance, say "I'm ruined." His creditors had taken "Botherum" again. Colonel Florence helped him out of this trouble many times.

Dr. Noble and Dr. Wilson came later, and for some years dealt out calomel, jalap, aloes, and the nauseating drugs so extensively used in those days, as the needs of their patients required.

Dr. James Allen settled in Darbyville about 1833. He was born in Pennsylvania about 1803, and came down the Ohio river with his father in 1812, settling in Fayette county, where his father bought a small farm. About 1824, Dr. Allen read medicine with Dr. Toland, of London, Madison county. He was examined by the president and members of the eighth radical district of Ohio, in 1827, and granted a diploma, after which he practiced for a time in Frankfort, Ross county. In 1833 he moved to Darbyville, where he continued his practice for twenty-two years. He accumulated considerable property by careful, straightforward, economical habits, and bought nine hundred acres of land in Muhlenberg and Darby townships. He moved to his farm in 1853, and remained there a year, when he again moved to London, Madison county, where he died, July 8, 1867. His son, James Allen, now lives on a part of his estate, and owns a fine stud of young horses, which he has in training for the turf.

Dr. Richard H. Tipton began the study of medicine with Dr. Sisson, of Columbus, in 1841, and attended lectures in Cincinnati one year, when he went to Philadelphia, where he graduated, in 1850. He began the practice of medicine in Darbyville, in 1846, before graduating, and after receiving his diploma returned. He has since remained in Darbyville, except during the war, when he entered the service as surgeon of the Ninetieth Ohio infantry, serving in all the campaigns in which the regiment participated, and was in charge of the field hospital of the first division of the Fourth army corps one and one-half years. At the close of the war he resumed his practice in Darbyville, where he has since remained.

Dr. F. M. Black began the study of medicine with Dr. P. K. Hull, of Circleville, in 1849, and graduated from Starling medical college, at Columbus, in 1852. He first began practice in Williamsport, but came to Darbyville in 1853, and entered into partnership with Dr. James Allen. He owns a large farm in the north part of the township, and is an extensive stock raiser, having a fine herd of short-horn cattle, which he bought in Kentucky, in 1875. He entered the army as captain of company A, Ninetieth regiment Ohio volunteer infantry, in July, 1862, and served until December, of the same year, when he resigned. Dr. Black has a very lucrative practice, and has accumulated a good property.

DARBYVILLE.

The corporation of Darbyville was platted July 27, 1826. It was laid out on land formerly entered, surveyed, and patented by Cornelius Baldwin, on the west side of Darby creek, and near the center of the present township of Muhlenberg. The plat was surveyed for George Hill, who owned the land east of Main street, and David Thomas, who owned the land on the west side of said street. The surveyor was Joel Walker. We are unable to ascertain the names of the first officers. The present officers are: R. H. Tipton, mayor; T. H. Carpenter, clerk; I. W. McCallister, treasurer; H. C. Plummer, Jacob Miller, W. H. Kirkendall, councilmen; Felix Radcliff, marshal and street commissioner.

The business of the village is represented by the following persons: J. D. Miller, general merchandise; W. H. Kirkendall, general merchandise; James A. Clay, general merchandise; Henry C. Plummer and Thomas J. Miller, blacksmiths; David Dornsifer and C. A. Buzzy, wagon-makers; S. W. Brown and J. A. Pickerieng, harness-makers; Jacob Miller, hotel; R. H. Tipton, F. M. Black, and J. T. Kirkendall, physicians; Richard Fullen, livery; Brooks & Girton, saw and grist mill; George Wehe and W. H. Burchnell, shoemakers.

CEMETERIES.

The first ground used for this purpose was on the farm of Judge William Florence, on the south side of the creek, below Darbyville. An infant daughter of Judge Florence was buried here in 1806. One was afterwards made on the Van Meter place, west of Colonel Florence's present residence, and another on Judge Seymour's place, near where Joseph Wright now lives. Several others were used in various parts of the township, and at the present time there are no less than eight burial places to be found. In 1875, the corporation of Darbyville bought five acres of ground, just below the town, on the pike, and opened a general township cemetery. This lot cost them seven hundred and fifty dollars, and, in time, will be made a beautiful ground. At present, it is in a crude condition.

CHURCHES.

The Baptist church was established about 1820 or 1825, by Adam Miller, who came from Fairfield county. Meetings were at first held in the house of George Hill, until the school-house was built, soon after, when an addition was built to it and used for divine service by the Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians. This church finally went to decay, and of the members who were left, some went into Scioto township, and joined a church that was formed at a later date. Rev. George Ambrose preached in the school-house about 1830. He went south for a time, and on his return, was seized with the cholera, and died.

A branch of the Presbyterian church was organized about 1825. Service was held at different houses in the neighborhood, during the winter season, and in the summer a pleasant grove was selected, and logs were rolled together for seats for the congregation. The Darbyville school-house was used, after its completion, for some years. In 1842, a church was erected near the line, in Jackson township, and the people have since attended service at that house.

Occasional services, by laymen, of the Methodist denomination, were held at an early day, in some parts of the town. Preaching service was had at Mr. McKinley's as early as 1826, and afterwards at the school-house in Darbyville. The exact date of the church organization can not now be ascertained. It was first called London circuit, then Franklin, and then Darbyville. It has now four appointments: Commercial Point, Renick chapel, Concord, and Darbyville. The church in the latter place was begun in 1842, and completed in 1844, since which time it has been used for worship. The preacher for 1879 is Rev. R. Callahan.

In the spring of 1878, a branch organization of the African Methodist Episcopal church was perfected at Darbyville. For a number of years services have been held at the school-house in the village, by John Dickinson. Some of the persons interested in the formation of this church assisted at the building of the school-house, with the understanding that it should be used by them as a church. The first quarterly meeting was held there soon after its organization. It is expected that it will be made a mission and supplied from Circleville, at the next session of conference. The present minister is Rev. R. H. Morris, of Circleville.

SCHOOLS.

This township is well provided with schools, and has been from a comparatively early date. In 1855 a union school district was set off in the village of Darbyville, and has, since that time been maintained. It was organized April 9, 1853, by the election of three trustees: Rev. John McKinley, for three years; David Yates, two years, and Isaac George, one year, with S. H. Thompson, clerk. Four hundred dollars were appropriated for a building fund—three hundred and fifty for tuition, and fifty for incidental expenses. A school building was erected the same year, at a cost of fifteen hundred dollars. In 1867 a second story was added to the building, to be used as a school hall, at an expense of four hundred dollars. The school is under the superintendence of I. W. McCallister, who has been in charge two years, as well as three years about 1869 to 1872. Mrs. Pickering is his assistant, and has been employed three years. The school has an average attendance of about ninety, during the summer, and one hundred, during the winter.

A school is kept up in Darbyville, by the township, for the education of the colored children and youth. The building was erected in 1872, at a cost of six hundred and thirty-two dollars. The school is taught by John R. Gibson, who has been a student at Wilberforce university, Xenia. At the present time, twenty-six names are enrolled, with an average attendance of about sixteen.

SOCIETIES.

There are but two societies in the township, both located in Darbyville.

GRANGE.

Good Samaritan Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, was organized in Monroe township, in 1874, but was afterwards changed to Darbyville. Its sessions were first held in the school hall, but, in 1875, the funds in the treasury, and such as were raised by means of festivals, were combined with such as were furnished by the Good Templars' organization, and appropriated to the erection of a hall over the town house. This hall has since been used when the society has held meetings. For some time past no regular meetings have been held, and but little interest in the society is manifest.

Elias Florence

GOOD TEMPLARS.

A lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars, No. 494, was organized under a charter issued in 1875. The charter members were: W. H. Kirkendall, Rev. W. W. Cherrington and wife, H. H. Radcliff and wife, James A. Miller, David Dornsifer, John Wehe and wife, Lou J. Pickering, Roswell Moore and wife, Ann Brown, Cora Seymour, Seymour Radcliff, Emma Miller, Catharine Beathard, Effie Pritchard, Matilda Pritchard, Robert Galbreath, Charles Wehe. The present officers are: Alfred Brooks, W. C.; Lou J. Pickering, W. V.; W. H. Kirkendall, P. W. C.; Simon Carpenter, R. S.; Ed. Murphy, F. S.; Emma Pickering, W. T.; John White; W. M.; Katy Fissel, D. M.; Effie Girton, I. G.; W. L. Willey, O. G.; Mrs. Beathard, R. H. S.; Lucy Brown, L. H. S.; Cora Seymour, W. C. This society owns a half interest in the hall over the town house, and is in a flourishing condition. It has now fifty-one members.

GENERAL.

A company was organized in 1832, for the purpose of importing blooded cattle, and thereby improving the stock of the country. Colonel Elias Florence was one of the stockholders interested. The existence of the corporation was to terminate in five years. Two men, of good judgment, were selected to go to England and purchase such stock as was required, which, in due time, arrived. It comprised some sixteen bulls and twenty cows, and through them a great improvement was made in the stock raised and shipped to the east. On the expiration of the time for which the corporation was organized, the stock was bought by Colonel Florence, and others, and descendants of that herd were to be found on many farms in this vicinity in later years.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

COLONEL ELIAS FLORENCE.

Elias Florence was born in Fauquier county, Virginia, February 15, 1797. His father was William Florence, and his mother Fanny (Robinson) Florence, both born and raised in Virginia. In 1806 William Florence emigrated, with his family, to Ohio, arriving in Muhlenberg township April 9th, of that year. He located on a part of the original tract owned by General Peter Muhlenberg, of Revolutionary fame, and purchased one hundred acres of land of Mr. Wilson, who then owned a part of this tract. He afterwards added to his original purchase, until he owned some seventeen hundred acres. He was one of the first three county commissioners of Pickaway county, and was twice elected to the State legislature, in 1816 and 1817, serving the first term that the old Columbus State-house was used. In 1828 he was elected as associate judge, by the legislature, and served two terms. His death occurred in 1870, at his residence on the west side of Darby creek, aged ninety-six years. His children were Elias, Robinson, William, Nancy, Sally, Betsey, Mary, and Kittie, who died when an infant.

Colonel Elias Florence obtained a common-school education, such as the schools of that early day furnished, the first of which, in the township, was established by his father, on his farm, at his own expense. His boyhood was spent at the usual work of those early days: in clearing the land, and roughing it in a new country. Among his early playmates were the Indian boys of the bands that camped and roamed along Darby creek. As he advanced in years and experience, he became a stock dealer, and in that business, visited Kentucky and purchased stock, which he drove to this township and fattened, after which he drove them across the mountains to Philadelphia and New York.

He was married March 26, 1818, to Elizabeth Radcliffe, of Kentucky. They had eight children: Ezra, George, Gustavus, William, Mary, Chrissie, Fanny, and Isabel. Ezra lived to maturity, and married Sarah Renick. He died of consumption, leaving three sons and one daughter. The other boys died young. Mary married William Scott, by whom she had two sons, the first of whom was Elias F., who was commissioned first lieutenant of Company A, Forty-fifth Ohio volunteer infantry, in May, 1862, and promoted to captain in December, of the same year; was wounded at the battle of Resaca, Georgia, May 14, 1864, and died two days afterwards. Her second son was William, who now lives on a farm of three hundred acres, near Darbyville. Chrissie, the next daughter of Col. Florence, married John Williams, and died in Madison county. Fanny married William Cochran, and died many years ago. Isabel married Rev. Owen Simpson, and died in Circleville.

Colonel Elias Florence was elected to the State legislature, in 1829 and 1830, in a Democratic district, although belonging to the Whig party, receiving every vote cast in his own township. He was again elected in 1834, and again in 1840, to the legislature, and in 1835, to the State senate. He served four years in the house and two in the senate. In 1843, he was elected to congress, and served two years. In 1850, he was a member of the constitutional convention.

He enlisted in a light horse company during the war of 1812, but peace being declared, the company was not called into actual service. He was elected colonel of a regiment of Ohio militia and served as such from 1820 until 1837 or 1838.

From the time he first engaged in business until within a few years, he accumulated much property, owning, at one time, about five thousand five hundred acres of land and a large amount of live stock. His home was always a most hospitable one, and the occasions were rare when it was free from visitors. The spirit of old Virginian hospitality pervaded the entire family, and does to this day. His friends are many, and are not confined to the limits of the township in which he lives.

Col. Florence has always been regarded as a man of excellent business qualifications, exhibiting a remarkably sound judgment and a commendable prudence in all of his dealings and business transactions. These qualities, however, were combined with an unusual generosity of nature, which, in the later years of his life, brought about his financial embarrassment. His first impulse, on seeing a person in need of aid, especially of a pecuniary nature, was to render him all the assistance in his power to grant. This led him into the generally baleful practice of endorsing the notes of others, by which he was eventually financially ruined. He gave up every dollar of his property to his creditors, not reserving even a homestead. The farm on which he now resides, comprising some two hundred acres, was purchased for his use during the remainder of his life, by a number of his friends, who were unwilling that one whose life had been so useful, whose conduct under adverse circumstances had been so noble, and whom they so much esteemed and loved, should be without a comfortable home in his declining years.

Col. Florence possesses a vivid recollection of early events in the settlement and development of the county, and an inexhaustible fund of anecdote apropos of pioneer times, and the writer of this has drawn upon him freely, as a source of information, in the preparation of the history of various townships. Col. Florence is now in the eighty-third year of his age. His brother, William Florence; his daughter, Mrs. Scott; and his niece, Matilda Radcliffe, reside with him.

HARRISON.

This township was erected June 15, 1810, being taken from Madison and Walnut. It was surveyed, beginning at the Scioto river at the north boundary of the county, thence along the county line east to the twenty-first range line; thence south by the same to Walnut creek; thence down the course of said creek to the Scioto river; thence up said river to the place of said beginning.

An election was ordered at the house of Hugh Creighton, Saturday, June 23, 1810.

The township varies from two to four miles in width, from east to west, and is upwards of eight miles in length. The population in 1830 was seven hundred and seventy-three; and in 1840, was one thousand one hundred and forty-nine.

Among the first justices of the peace in Harrison, were Hugh Creighton, and James Denny. It is not known who was the first justice elected, but it was probably James Denny. For many years the trustees of the township met in the justice's office, but at this time no names of early officers can be found, as the earlier township records are lost or destroyed.

In 1861 the trustees bought a wooden building on Main street, for use as a town house. This was sold about 1870, and a room in the hotel was rented until 1878, when the trustees bought the small store room on the opposite side of the street from the hotel, for use as a town house.

NATURAL FEATURES—SOIL.

Harrison is a comparatively level township, with sufficient incline generally, to carry off surplus water. Along the river and creeks there are hills, but none of great elevation. The country along the bottoms and about Bloomfield, has always been accounted the best in the township, and undoubtedly this is true. The land about Bloomfield, north and south, was what is known as plain land, being entirely free from timber, and ready for immediate cultivation. The soil back from the river is mostly clay; that along the streams is loam, with a mixture of sand and gravel in places. Heavy timber covered the greater portion of the township; in fact, all except the plain in the south and west, about Bloomfield. This plain land was the first to be settled, as it was ready for immediate cultivation.

STREAMS.

On the west, Harrison is bounded by the Scioto river, and on the south by Walnut creek. Big Walnut runs across the northwest corner of the township, and two or three small runs carry off the water from the central part of the township. The Scioto river and Walnut creeks teemed with myriads of fish when the first white settlers arrived. They were captured in great numbers by means of seines, made of grape-vines and brush, and almost incredible numbers were caught in this manner.

In 1805 a great flood occurred on the Scioto river, the water being so high as to flow across the country below Bloomfield, to Walnut creek. Jacob Widener and another man came across the river in a canoe, and took in a barrel of whiskey, from a distillery which stood on the east side of the pike, during the flood.

Great damage is often caused to fences along the river bottoms, even now, in seasons of flood. Fences are washed away, and great holes are sometimes dug in the ground by the action of the water. Extensive levees, or breakwaters, are used to break the force of the current, or turn it aside from its course of destruction. Mr. Adam Millar has such a breakwater on his farm, that cost not far from three thousand dollars.

During the great flood of 1814, Jabez Hedges and Thomas Parsels rowed a canoe through the windows of the mill, on the Scioto river, built by Simon Headley.

TIMBER.

The timber in Harrison was oak, hickory, ash, elm, and honey locust. On the banks of Scioto river and Walnut creeks, along the bottoms, were many black walnut and maple trees. Timber that would, at this day, be worth more than the land on which it stood, was then cut down and split into rails, or rolled together into log-heaps and burned, that the land they covered might be cultivated.

SETTLEMENT.

The early settlers of Harrison township located on Walnut plains, in the southwest part of the township, where they found large tracts of the best land in the State, free of timber, with the exception of small groves, and all ready for tilling. They thus had a great advantage over those who came later, and were obliged to take up with timber land, which had to be cleared before it could be cultivated. The lands east of the Scioto river were not put into the market until 1801, but as early as 1798 or '99, a few squatters located on the most desirable tracts, where they made improvements, thus entitling them to the first choice at the government sales.

James Short and his son, Stephen, were the first arrivals, coming from Delaware, in 1798. They squatted on Walnut plains, a short distance below the present town of South Bloomfield, where they began improvements, and planted the first crops raised in the township. James Short sowed the first field of wheat, in 1799, on land now owned by Adam Millar. No fence was built about the field, as there was no domestic stock to do it injury. When it ripened, the neighbors, who had, in

DR. J. C. THOMPSON.

MRS. EMILY THOMPSON.

The parents of Dr. J. C. Thompson were of Scotch-Irish extraction, and were natives of Franklin county, Massachusetts. Jesse C. Thompson was born in Heath, in the same county, January 9, 1811. His father owned a farm, on which Dr Thompson passed his boyhood, following the usual avocations of a farmer; but he had in him a spirit that would not allow him to be content with heing simply a cultivator of the soil. He aspired to something requiring more mental exertion. After obtaining a common school education in the district schools of his native town, he attended the Northfield academy two terms. This was the extent of his school education. With the knowledge he had now acquired, he applied for the position of teacher in a district school, which he obtained readily. He followed teaching during the winter months for several seasons; laboring on his father's farm during that part of the year when he was not confined in the school-room, making the most of such opportunities for study as presented themselves.

He had mapped out for himself the study and practice of medicine as a life work, and in the summer of 1834, when twenty-three years of age, he commenced reading medical works in the office of Drs. Bates and Fitch, at Charlemont, near his home. He continued his studies under their instruction nearly three years, teaching during the winter, and attended his first course of lectures, at Berkshire Medical college, Pittsfield, Massachusetts, in the fall of 1834. In the fall of 1835 he attended lectures at Dartmouth college, and continued his studies with Drs. Bates and Fitch during the winter of 1835–36. In the fall of 1836, he again attended lectures at Berkshire Medical college. At the close of this term he took a high stand among the successful candidates for graduation, and was offered the position of demonstrator of anatomy—which he declined.

In the winter of 1837 he formed a partnership with Dr. Wayne Griswold (late of Circleville), pnrchasing the property and practice of Dr. Horace Smith, in Whitingham, Windom county, Vermont. In April, of the same year, he sold his interest to Dr. Griswold, and came to Ohio in search of a place of permanent location, and finally settled at South Bloomfield, Pickaway county. Here he has remained during a period of forty-two years.

His professional life has been eminently successful, and he ranks as the peer of the first physician and surgeon of central Ohio. With indomitable energy he has successfully managed a practice extending into three or four counties, and, with rare industry, kept pace with all modern medical science and practice. A keen observer and close student, his many years' experience has given him a prominent place in the counsels of all neighboring practitioners, who regard his advice and opinion with great respect. In surgery he ranks as a wise, careful, and successful operator, and in the course of his professional career has performed some of the most difficult and dangerous operations. He has the honor of having performed the only Cæsarian operation recorded in the State, where both mother and child survived. He has also successfully performed the operation of exsecting of the head of the humerus, leaving the patient—a young laboring man—with a useful hand and arm; besides many others demanding the greatest skill and surgical knowledge. It is his pride and profound satisfaction that in a career so long and practice so varied, he has left no cripples behind. And whatsoever success Dr. Thompson has gained, has been the result of his own unaided effort, and under circumstances demanding the truest manhood; a brave spirit and iron will. At five years of age he became a cripple by an injury to his right knee joint, and until twelve years old walked only by the aid of crutches. Since then, with an impaired limb, he has been compelled to rely upon a cane for the support of his right side. Yet, with this impediment, he has braved and overcome all the formidable obstacles of a frontier practice, suffering by accident upon the railways, and by spirited horses, such as his fearless spirit was alone content to drive, two severe fractures, one of the thigh—surely he has been made of true grit.

Dr. Thompson, in his long career, has been one of the truest of neighbors, and the friend and benefactor of every applicant of high or low degree. No patient, however poor, was ever turned away, or suffered neglect at his hands. Never was night so dark, or storm so violent, or stream to be forded so swollen, that he would hesitate to respond to the calls of suffering and disease, from the poorest tenant or penniless laborer.

Politically, his fortunes have been cast with: first, the Whigs, and subsequently the Republicans; his ardent zeal ever keeping him in the leadership in his neighborhood. Though naturally of a retiring disposition, he has, on several occasions, been compelled, by the call of his party friends, to stand for political place, as candidate for local positions, or district representation in the senate branch of the legislature—facing cheerfully, in the latter case, inevitable defeat, because of the overwhelming majority of the opposition in the county. But in the race for posts of trust in his immediate locality, he always secured the election by the united vote of both parties.

June 6, 1838, Dr. Thompson was married to Emily Sage. They have been the parents of five children—but one of whom now remains to comfort them.

the meantime, settled in the vicinity, came with sickles, and assisted in the harvest. The most of this crop was saved as seed, by the early settlers, a number of whom were successful in raising crops the next season. At the sales of land in Chillicothe, in 1801, James Short bought section number fifteen, and fractional section number sixteen, in Harrison, the most of which was plain land. His home was made on the lower part of section fifteen, near the old Indian trail, which ran almost on the line now covered by the Columbus and Chillicothe pike. Mr. Short died, August 12, 1816, aged seventy-three. At the present time two large elm trees, standing in the center of the pike, a short distance south of South Bloomfield, are pointed out as the place where, in his old age, he passed much of his time in the contemplation of the past, and in observing the improvements made in sixteen years. On the building of the road, it was stipulated that these trees should be allowed to remain as a monument to the first settler, and the first owner of this tract.

John Robinson came at the same time, and married one of Mr. Short's daughters. He had children before his settlement. He owned land north of Bloomfield, where he died.

Jonathan Holmes came to Ohio, as early as 1798, and bought land in section twenty-two. He married a daughter of James Short, and had by her a daughter, who was raised by George Renick, of Chillicothe. Mr. Holmes died soon after 1804, and his widow married Samuel Denny. Three daughters of Jonathan Holmes are now living: Julia, widow of Daniel Spangler, near South Bloomfield; Jane, widow of Richard Myers, with George Williams, in Franklin county, and Mary, widow of William Laycock, in Columbus. His son, Isaac, married, September 6, 1827, Maria Morehead, daughter of Ferguson Morehead, one of the early pioneers of Hamilton township, Franklin county. Mrs. Holmes is still living, and, with her son, Isaac, a resident of the township just named. Her husband died in 1847. She is aged seventy-two.

Joshua Burget and his sons, Joshua, Joseph, and George, came to Ohio, before 1804, and located on section twenty-four, in the northeast part of the township.

William Bennett came about the same time, and settled on the adjoining section. He was an early justice of the peace.

The next settler after James Short, was William Millar. He came from Virginia in 1798, but returned the same year. In 1799 he again came to Ohio, and located in the south part of the present township of Harrison, near the junction of the Scioto river and Walnut creek, where he made an improvement and settled his family. He boarded for a time with Joathan Holmes. His wife was Mary Sudth, of Virginia. On the sale of the land at Chillicothe, he purchased section twenty-three, lying partly in Walnut and partly in Harrison, and fractional section twenty-two, in Harrison. In 1816 he built the first brick building in Harrison, which is now occupied by his grandson, Z. T. Millar. The children of William Millar were Elizabeth, George, Isaac, Adam, Sarah Ann, Lucinda, William, and Mary Catharine. William Millar died in 1863, aged eighty-six. Mrs. Millar died in 1860, aged seventy-six. Two of their children are now living, Mrs. Sarah Ann Millar and Adam Millar. Mrs. Millar lives south of Bloomfield, and owns nearly one thousand acres of land. Adam Millar lives a short distance south of Bloomfield, and owns three thousand acres of land. He married Nancy Howe, whose parents came from Delaware and settled in Franklin county. They have had ten children: William, Mary and George (twins), Michael, Taylor, Tecumseh, Fillmore, Adam, Lucinda, and Hattie. Michael lives just below Bloomfield; Taylor lives on the old homestead of William Millar; Tecumseh lives in Walnut township; Adam died July 20, 1879; Hattie is at home.

George Renick came to Chillicothe in 1798. In 1801 he entered land in Harrison township, in partnership with his two brothers, William and Thomas. The land he entered for himself and Thomas, included section fifteen, fractional sections sixteen and twenty-one, and a part of sectiont wenty-two. When the property was divided, George's share was the south part. With his brother William he entered section number three, and fractional section number four, and parts of sections nine and ten. On the division of this property William chose the southern part. George Renick never lived here, but located in Ross county.

William Renick came from Virginia in 1803, and settled on the land entered by his brother George. He was married, in Virginia, to Margaret O'Banion, by whom he had nine children: Seymour G., Joseph, Martha, Margaret, Felix, Hiram, William, Eliza, and Ellen. Joseph lives in Columbus; Hiram, in Bainbridge, Ross county; Eliza (Mrs. Adams), in Circleville; Ellen (Mrs. Patterson), in Hillsboro; Martha married Wesley Hurst, by whom she had several children, all of whom died. Her husband also died, and she married Governor Whitcomb, of Indiana, by whom she had one child. Margaret married Renick Seymour, of Bainbridge, and is childless; Seymour married Nancy Crouse, of Ross county, and has several children; Felix, also, married and raised a family. William Renick cleared ten acres of land, in 1804, on the river bottom, and planted it with corn, in 1805. Late in the season, of 1805, the great flood occurred, and every hill of his corn, and the soil in which it grew, was washed out. He was much discouraged and offered to sell the land at the government price, and take his pay in horses, but no one would buy. In the fall he plowed twenty acres of plain-land and sowed wheat, fencing it during the winter. In the spring he bought a drove of hogs and drove them to Virginia, where he sold them at a large profit. He then returned to look at his wheat, which turned out well, and he became convinced that the plains were good land. It had all the time been the ambition of the Virginians to buy river bottoms, but for about twenty-five years he neglected them and cultivated the plains. His death took place in 1844. His wife died about 1869. The farm he owned is now occupied by W. B. Renick, his grandson.

David Denny bought section number ten, and fractional section number nine, in 1800. He was a Virginian, as was his wife. This purchase was a part of the plains, which was covered with a growth of columbo, as high as a man's head. This was a feeding place for the numerous herds of deer that were to be found at an early day throughout this country. The children of David were David, John, Margaret, and Margery. David Denny, jr., married Margaret Denny, his cousin, by whom he had two children—David and Jane. He went as a soldier in the war of 1812, and died of camp fever, at River Raisin, in Michigan. David, his son, married Elizabeth Clark, by whom he had two children. She died, and for his second wife he married a daughter of John Sample, an early settler in Scioto. He afterwards sold his part of his father's estate, and moved to Illinois, where he died. His sister, Jane, married Abram Holmes, who was a cattle dealer. During one of his frequent absences from home, she died. John Denny, son of David Denny, sr., married Letitia Rollins, by whom he had one son, Nathan, who died in Circleville, in 1878. The sisters of David and John Denny, Margaret and Margery, went to Indiana, where they died.

James Denny emigrated from Chester county, Pennsylvania, in 1806. His wife was Ann Green. They settled on land owned by David Denny. Mr. Denny died in 1811. They had four children—David, Nancy, John, and Elizabeth. David went west, and engaged in boat-building. Subsequently he became captain of a river packet, and died in New Orleans, of yellow fever. Nancy married James R. Hudson, who died in 1835. She still lives in South Bloomfield, aged seventy-nine years. Elizabeth died when a child. John died in Circleville. Mrs. Hudson is the only surviving member of the family.

Thomas Renick was married in Virginia, to Miss Rankin, and came to Ohio, with his brother, William, in 1803. He settled on the land entered by his brother, George, in section fifteen. Both he and his wife died in August, 1804, about a year after their settlement. Both died the same day. They left a child a week old, who was raised by Felix Renick, in Ross county. She died in December, 1865, in Circleville.

A brother of James and David Denny came at the same time, and located on sections nine and ten. He had one child—Nathan—who inherited his property. The land is now owned by Mr. Midleoof.

Daniel Vansickle was a miller by occupation, and came from Berks county, Pennsylvania, in 1800. He worked in Stephen Short's mill, near Ashville, and was married there in 1811. His wife was from Loudoun county, Virginia. He worked in Short's mill five or six years, and for a short time after the mill was sold. Then he worked in Foresman's mill, on Big Walnut, and died in the year 1834, aged sixty. Four children were born to him: Mrs. Mary Ann Abbot; Martha Vansickle, who died when about twenty-one; Elizabeth Vansickle, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Abbott; and Daniel, who owns a farm of sixty acres, on section one. Mr. Vansickle, sr., was twice in the war of 1812.

James Neville was an early settler. His place of nativity was in Ireland. He came to Ohio about 1800, and at the first sale of land in Chilicothe purchased the north half of section twenty-seven and fractional section twenty-eight. He settled on this property, but what became of him and his family is unknown. His property is now owned by Williams and others.

Joseph Mackey came about the same time as Neville, and bought the south half of section twenty-seven. It is probable that he bought the fractional section twenty-eight of Neville, as the ford across the Scioto river from this land has long been known as Mackey's ford. It has also been known as Goreley's ford, so called from a man who settled opposite Mackey, on the west bank of the river. Mackey raised a family, one of whom, John, went farther west many years ago.

Philip Swisher bought the north half of section thirty-four, where he lived until his death. His family married and removed to other parts.

Charles McDaniel bought the west half of section thirty-five. He sold out and moved away with his family more than thirty years ago. It is not now known where they settled after removing.

John Martin came from Virginia in 1801, and settled on section twenty-two, the north half of which he bought. He gave each of his sons, John and James, one hundred acres of land in Scioto, on which they moved in 1816, and where they died. He had a still-house in 1805 or 1806 on his place.

Joseph Bogert came from Virginia about 1800. He lived a number of years in Bloomfield, but never owned much property in Harrison.

Joshua Hedges came from Virginia in 1804, and bought a quarter section of land on the west side of Walnut creek, on section five. He married Mary Miller in Virginia, before coming to Ohio. By her he raised a family, all of whom are now dead, with the exception of a daughter, Mrs. Jerome Wolfley, of Circleville.

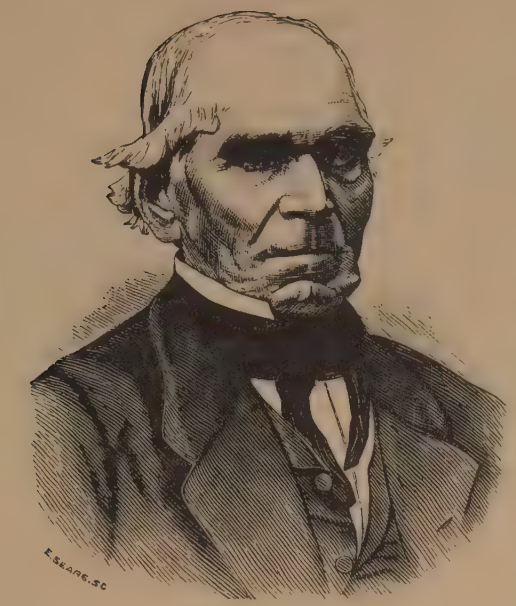
Benjamin Duvall came from Bedford county, Pennsylvania, in 1804. He settled in Bloomfield, and bought and sold several times. He then rented in Franklin county, about twenty years, after which he bought one hundred and sixty acres of land in Harrison, on section twenty-five, which he improved. He was married in 1806 to Nancy Reed, by whom he had thirteen children, three of whom now live in this county—Mrs. Sarah Long, William, and Benjamin Duvall. William owns a farm of one hundred and forty acres, in section twenty-five. Benjamin owns a farm of one hundred and sixty acres in section twenty-four. Their father, Benjamin Duvall, sr., died in 1864, aged eighty-four years. His wife died in 1866, aged eighty-six years.

Philip Cherry settled on section thirty-four, with his brother James, in 1804. None of the family now remain in this vicinity.

Elijah Wright owned property on section twelve, north of Ashville, in 1806 or 1808.

William Ront came from Virginia in 1804, and bought on Walnut creek, above Millport. His purchase was a part of section seven. He had a family of three daughters and one son, none of whom are now residing here.

Dr. Burrell came from Pennsylvania soon after 1812. His wife owned eighty-six acres of land south of Bloom-



John Cochran

Col. John Cochran first set foot on the soil of Ohio in 1807, when he shipped as a hand on a keel-boat at Pittsburgh, bound for Chillicothe, Ohio. Both the Ohio and Scioto rivers were high, and the boat lay at Portsmouth five days before the main channel of the Scioto river could be found. There were five boats in company, and each became fast on the shoals in ascending the river. They arrived at Chillicothe, in the month of May, 1807. He soon returned to his home, in Mercer county, Pennsylvania, where he remained until in the month of May, 1812, when he received from Hon. William Eustis, then secretary of war, notice of his appointment as ensign in the Nineteenth regiment of infantry. He was ordered to report for duty to Brig. Gen. Joseph Bloomfield, of Carlisle, Pennsylvania. In the early part of July he left home, and reported to Major McClung, of Pittsburgh, by order of the general commanding. Here he remained a short time, until he became familiar with his duties, when the command was ordered to Carlisle, and thence to the frontier. There were five supernumerary officers, of whom John Cochran was one, who were ordered to report to Col. John Miller at Chillicothe. Three of them came through, Cochran working his fare, as nearly all were without money, or means of transportation. Sixteen days were consumed in traveling from Pittsburgh to Portsmouth. They walked from Portsmouth to Chillicothe, and after resting a few days, Ensign Cochran was ordered to Dayton, to which place he walked alone. Here he remained a short time, when he was ordered to Franklinton, on recruiting service. He was very successful as a recruiting officer, and was kept at this duty for some time. In July, 1814, the regiment broke camp at Chillicothe and started for Malden, Canada, guarding a detachment of British prisoners. Before reaching Malden, Ensign Cochran was ordered on detached service, and did not rejoin his regiment until fall, when they erected winter quarters at the head of Niagara river. In the latter part of November they were ordered to Erie, Pennsylvania. In 1815 he received his commission promoting him to a lieutenantcy. The captain of his company was ordered on detached service, and Lieutenant Cochran became its commanding officer. His company had an enviable reputation in the regiment for its efficiency in camp and on the field. The declaration of peace, in 1815, withdrew many of the inducements for following the life of a soldier, as there would now be no opportunity for winning distinction on the field, and receiving deserved promotion.

Lieutenant Cochran withdrew from the service soon after the close of the war, and returned to Ohio, where he had formed the acquaintance of Miss Mary O'Hara while on the recruiting service. He soon made her his wife and settled near South Bloomfield, where he made a purchase of land, which he improved. For a time he engaged in business at the village of South Bloomfield. During the enforcement of the militia law of Ohio he was made colonel of a regiment, which office he held for a number of years. Col. Cochran was a man who read and thought a great deal, and one who had a widespread influence. He so far enjoyed the esteem and confidence of the people of the county in which he lived as to be elected to the State legislature, in which he served during the years 1818, 1831, 1832, 1835, 1836, and 1850. In his political opinions he was a Whig.

His wife proved a careful, prudent, and loving companion, and a judicious mother in her management of the nine children born to them. She departed this life in 1875, at the age of seventy-five years.

During the later years of his life Col. Cochran wrote a series of articles, reminiscences of the early life in this country, and of the war of 1812, through which he served. These were published at the time in the Herald and Union, at Circleville, and were read with interest. He died in 1878, at the age of eighty-eight years, and was sincerely mourned by friends throughout the county in which he had lived so long, and where his worth was so well known and appreciated.

field. She was a daughter of James Short. Dr. Burrell practiced medicine here for a time, and in 1836 removed with his family to Illinois.

Isaac Snyder bought over a quarter of section fourteen, about 1804. He sold thirty acres of this property to Henry Bettis. He owned a saw-mill on Walnut creek, below Millport, at an early date. A small run coursed through this property, north and south. Mr. Snyder died on his property. His daughter, Ruth, married Conrad Piper, who lived in the township. He was an early comer, but never owned land in Harrison. His death occurred in 1848.

Enos Cutler emigrated from England to Virginia, in 1809, and from there to Ohio. He bought a portion of section twenty-five, which he improved. Asbury chapel and cemetery are located on land he purchased. His sons were James, John, and Enos. There were also four daughters, none of whom now live in the vicinity.

Mrs. Lucinda Pratt came to Ohio in 1809, with a family of four children—Elias, Lucinda, William, and Elizabeth. Her husband died in Virginia. Elias married Elizabeth Widener, and died in Scioto; Lucinda died young; William died in Illinois; Elizabeth married Thomas Williamson, who died and left her with a little girl, who also died. Mrs. Lucinda Pratt married for her second husband, Harleigh Sage, and had two children: Emily married Dr. J. C. Thompson, and lives in Bloomfield; Mrs. Elizabeth Williamson lives with them.

John Champ came from Virginia in 1809, with his family of five children—Nathaniel, William, Ellen, Amelia, and Polly. They leased land of Isaac Miller. Nathaniel went with Hull's army in the war of 1812, and afterwards bought land in Michigan, where he settled; William married and moved to Illinois; Ellen married Mr. Hartman, and lives in Groveport, Franklin county; Polly married Mr. Keyes; Amelia remained single.

John Fisher was a native of Virginia, where he married, in 1808. In 1810 he came with his wife to Ohio, and settled in Madison, where he died, aged sixty-three. His wife died in in 1876, aged seventy-three. They had eleven children, four of whom are now living—Hiram lives in Walnut; Mrs. Ann Hedges, in Walnut; David owns seventy-two acres of land in section twenty-six; and Conrad owns eighty acres in section thirty-six, both in Harrison.

John Byerly came from Pennsylvania, about 1811, and leased land of John Martin, on section twenty-two, in the north part of the township, where he died. He had a family of twelve children, but two of whom are living.

Jacob Hott was born in Berkeley county, Virginia, and emigrated to Ohio in 1810. His wife was Catharine Coon, by whom he had six children. He bought a part of section seven, and improved it. In the war of 1812, he served for a time as a soldier, going as far as Sandusky. In 1835 his wife died. For his second wife he married Julia Burwell, by whom he had two children. When he came to Ohio he was accompanied by his brothers—Henry, Peter, and George—all of whom bought land, but afterwards sold to him and moved away. They have since died. The only child of Jacob Hott now in this county is William, who owns one hundred acres of land in section eight, and carries on a general farming business. Mr. Hott moved to Circleville, after improving his land, which he then sold. In 1865, he died, at the age of seventy-two.

David Adkins emigrated from Maryland, in 1826, and settled on section thirty-six, and afterwards bought in section twenty-five. His wife was Christena Hott, whom he married in Harrison. They raised twelve children, ten of whom are now living. William, David, Mrs. Melissa Brinttinger, and Mrs. Eliza Jane Whitehead, live in this county. David has the homestead, and William lives in Ashville.

George Hoover came from Pendleton county, Virginia, in 1811, and settled in Walnut township, where he died, in 1866. His wife was Magdalena Simmons, by whom he had eleven children, six of whom are now living. A son, Jackson Hoover, married Elizabeth Scothern, in 1843. They had seven children, four of whom are still living: L. C., Monroe, F. W., and Mrs. Nannie E. Whitehead. In 1849, Mr. Hoover bought sixty-eight acres of land in Harrison, on section eighteen. Afterwards he bought land in section seven, and now owns, in all, three hundred and eighty-seven acres. Mrs. Whitehead, his daughter, lives in the adjoining township of Walnut, and his three sons at home. Township and county offices have been held by him, a number of terms, and he is now one of the county commissioners.

Colonel John Cochran came to Pickaway county, in 1812, as a recruiting officer for the army. He had a commission as ensign in the Nineteenth regiment of infantry, and had his recruiting office at Franklinton. He served as ensign until the close of the war, and in 1815 was commissioned second lieutenant of the Seventeenth regiment. At the close of the war he bought land in Harrison, and, soon after his return, married Mary O'Hara, by whom he had nine children, three of whom are now living. Their names were, Nancy, Priscilla, Frank, Elizabeth, Findly, William, Gustavus, Sarah, and Mary. Nancy married William Foresman, who died in 1850. Robert, her son, lives with her in Bloomfield. Frank married Ann Morgan, and owns a farn near Bloomfield. William married Fanny Florence, daughter of Colonel Elias Florence. She died, and he married Mary Claypool, and now lives in Kansas. Colonel Cochran was commander of a regiment of militia for a number of years. He was an intelligent man, who read a great deal, and his influence was felt in the community in which he lived. He served in the State legislature in 1818, 1831, 1832, 1835, 1836, and 1850. In politics he was a Whig. His death occurred in 1878, at the age of eighty-eight, and that of his wife in 1875, aged seventy-four.

Philip Gatewood, from Virginia, settled in Bloomfield, about 1812, and bought property in the village. Here he married Mrs. Letitia Denny, widow of John Denny, after which he moved to Illinois.

Aaron Dean settled on Walnut creek, about 1810. Afterwards he moved a little west of Ashville, where he built a block-house. He was a lover of fast horses, and withal a rather reckless individual, who took delight in provoking a disturbance of some kind, after which he would mount his horse, and distance all pursuers.

William Evans came to Ohio about 1812, and married a daughter of Stephen Short. She received one hundred acres of land from her father, on which they settled, and where Mr. Evans died. They had seven children, six of whom died of consumption. One went to California, about 1848, and it is not known if he is now living.

Joseph O'Hara settled in Franklinton, where he kept tavern, in 1812. After the war, he moved to Harrison, and settled on section twenty-seven. Mary, his daughter, married Colonel John Cochran. His children were: Priscilla, Joseph, Jacob, Benjamin, and Mary. Benjamin O'Hara now lives at Lockbourne, Franklin county.

Mr. Van Grundy bought Simon Headley's mill, on the Scioto river, about 1812. He raised a large family, nearly all of whom went west. David Van Grundy and David Denny took charge of a flat-boat load of pork, from below Chillicothe, to New Orleans. Both remained in the South and West, and never returned to Ohio.

Thomas Vause emigrated from Virginia, about 1814, and first settled in Champaign county. About 1823, he bought land in Franklin and Pickaway counties, and settled in Lockbourne, where he died, in 1852. His wife was Elizabeth Decker. They had seven children, three of whom are now living: John D., on section fourteen, in Harrison, and James I., on sections two and thirty-five. James I. Vause married Eliza Wright, by whom he had five children, three of whom are now living, all at home. Mrs. Vause died, June 25, 1878, aged fifty-one. Mr. Vause came to Harrison in 1858. A brother, Thomas, lives near Camp Chase, Columbus.

Jacob Mangus was, originally, from Lancaster county, Pennsylvania; he moved to Fairfield county, Ohio, in 1822, and remained there until 1859, when he removed to Circleville, where he died in 1866. Emanuel, his son, is engaged in the shoemaking business at Ashville.

Jacob Stage came from Virginia, about 1827, raised a large family of children, and died here. The family are all gone.

Abner Briggs was raised in Pickaway township, this county. He came with his parents, from Pennsylvania, in 1810. They settled near Westfall. He married Martha E. Hellenback, in Circleville. After marriage, he came to South Bloomfield, and opened the first harness shop, which he has since carried on. They have had five children, but two of whom are now living. Two of his sons were in the war of the rebellion, in the Nintieth Ohio infantry. Joseph died, from disease, in the service. Ashton served through the war, and is now living near Circleville. Mrs. Briggs died in 1876.

Dill Wiegand was born in Germany, in 1828, and emigrated to Ohio in 1842. He made a business of stock-dealing, and has accumulated a good property. In 1866 he bought a farm formerly owned by Edward Williams, in section thirty-four. He has a fine residence on the Columbus and Chillicothe pike, and owns six hundred acres of land.

Benjamin Whitehead emigrated from Virginia to Ohio about 1826, in which year he rented a part of Luke Decker's farm. After working this for a time, he bought eighty acres in section one, now owned by his son, W. V. Whitehead. He raised four children—two sons and two daughters. The only member of his family now living is W. V. Whitehead, who married Elizabeth Wilson. He owns two hundred and seventy-seven acres of land in Harrison. The land first purchased by Benjamin Whitehead was entered by a man named Friatt.

Dr. J. C. Thompson came from Massachusetts to South Bloomfield in 1837, where he commenced the practice of medicine, which he has continued for forty-two years. He had a very large ride for many years, until the country became more thickly settled and physicians located at other points. During his practice he has had all he could attend to, and has, to this day. He has accumulated a good property, and owns a fine dwelling in South Bloomfield, besides farming lands in other sections. Dr. Thompson was married to Emily Sage, by whom he had five children, only one of whom is now living—a daughter.

Jonathan Blue was raised in Franklin county. In 1837 he went to Muhlenberg, where he married Matilda Hill. He bought a flour and saw-mill on Darby creek, and built, in addition to it, a woolen mill. He remained in Muhlenberg five years, when he moved to Franklin county, and engaged in stock dealing. In 1856 he came to Harrison and settled in South Bloomfield, where he now lives with his wife. Mr. Blue was for a time engaged in mercantile business, after removing here, which resulted disastrously to him.

Stephen Simmons came to Ohio in 1819, and located in Cadiz. There he remained until 1832, when he removed to Madison, Pickaway county, and in 1834 came to Harrison and settled on section twenty-four, where he died in 1856, aged seventy-two years. His wife died in 1844. They raised ten children, of whom one—Mrs. Jeremiah Duvall—lives in South Bloomfield.

B. G. Pontious bought land of David Reisman, about 1840. He owned about three hundred acres. His death occurred in 1878. The property was divided among his children. The home farm was sold to Mr. Greenfield.

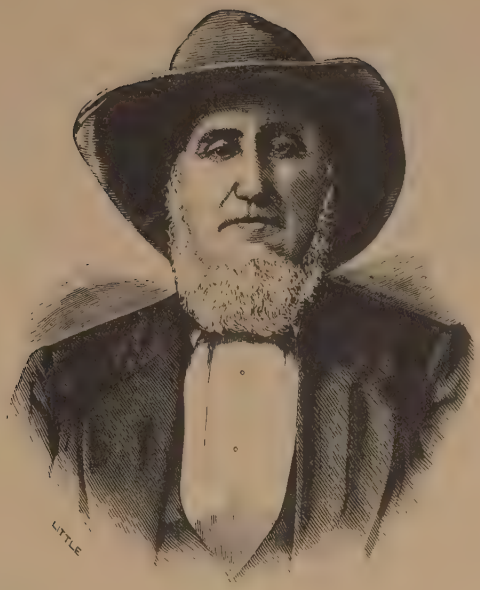
EARLY EVENTS.

James Short raised the first field of wheat, in 1800, on the eastern part of section sixteen, and on land now owned by Adam Millar. The crop was secured by his neighbors, who came with sickles and reaped it. The most of it was saved for seed another year. The first orchard was also planted by James Short, in 1799 or 1800, soon after his settlement. William Millar built the first brick house, in 1816, on the north part of section twenty-two. This is now owned by Adam Millar, and is occupied by his son, Z. T. Millar. The nails used in the interior of this house were made by a blacksmith named Bill.

A visit to the cemetery south of Bloomfield, shows many very old gravestones, some of which are so badly defaced by time as to be illegible. The one bearing the oldest date is that of Sarah, a daughter of Jonathan and Rachel Holmes, who died in October, 1801, aged two

MRS. NANCY I. MILLAR.

Photos. by Spencer, Circleville, O.



ADAM MILLAR.

RESIDENCE OF THE LATE WM. MILLAR, PROPERTY OF ADAM MILLAR, HARRISON TP PICKAWAY CO O.

years and five months. This is presumably the first grave in the settlement. The first log school-house was built in 1808, in the east part of the town of South Bloomfield. In one end of the building was the door, and in the other was the massive fire-place, which extended from side to side of the room, and was fed with large logs, which were rolled in by means of handspikes, or drawn in by a horse. A log was cut out from each side of the building, and strips of wood were tacked across the space. Over these oiled paper was placed, which furnished the light by which the children were enabled to con their lessons. The first teacher in this primitive school-house was Dr. Samuel Taylor. Mr. Williams, who lived on Darby creek, was the second teacher. The first frame school-house was built on land owned by Adam Millar, in 1817, by William Millar, William Renick, and Stephen Short. Joseph Olds was the teacher. This school was supported by subscription. James Bradon, an Irishman, opened the first tan-yard in the east part of the township. The first marriage that can be recalled, was that of John Lewin and Salome Clutter, both of whom came from Virginia with William Renick. They were married in 1810, by Squire Denny, who was one of the first justices of the peace. The first frame house was built by James Short, about 1812. He owned a saw-mill and grist-mill on Walnut creek, near Ashville, about 1809. Mr. Shafer built a corn-mill in the east part of the township, about 1809. He also operated a tan-yard on his property. Both are long since gone. The mill was run by horse power. A distillery was built by William Stage, near Ashville, in 1812. Richard Stage had a distillery near him, about the same time. He afterwards moved to Iowa, where he died. Jonathan Holmes opened a tavern about three miles above Bloomfield, in 1803 or 1804. It was called the Half Way house, and was located about half way between Chillicothe and Franklinton, now a part of Columbus. Philip Cherry had a blacksmith shop a mile and a half above Bloomfield, about 1806. Michael Miller, of Harrison, and John Davis, from near Columbus, took a boat load of pork, from below Chillicothe, to New Orleans, by river, returning on horseback, sometime during the year 1807. George Donaldson was the first blacksmith in Bloomfield, about 1806. Hugh Creighton kept a tavern at Bloomfield as early as 1804. He disposed of it a few years later, and built a corn-mill in Walnut township. Simon Headley built a grist-mill near the site of Bloomfield bridge, about 1803. He sold to Mr. Van Gundy, who continued it some years. It afterwards went to decay. At the time it was running, a ferry was established above the mill dam, by which people on the west bank of the river could cross to the mill with their corn or wheat, and return with the flour it produced. William Barr was the first shoemaker. He moved into the house left vacant by William Millar, when he first occupied his brick house, in 1816.

The first store in Harrison was opened by Hugh Creighton, at South Bloomfield, soon after 1804. He was also an early justice of the peace. The second store was started in Bloomfield, by William and John Bradshaw, who kept a large and well assorted stock of goods for that early day. The first post-office was located in Bradshaw's store, at quite an early day, probably as early as 1810, though there is no record to be found giving the date or name of a postmaster. Rev. William Jones was the first preacher. He was a Presbyterian minister, and organized a church of that denomination. He preached in about 1812. The church was organized in the school-house, about 1814. Mr. Jones preached a few years and moved away. After he left, the organization dwindled away, and finally died out. James Short furnished the first ground for burial purposes, south of Bloomfield. In 1850 William Millar added two acres to the lot. Henry Neville, an Irishman, started a branch store in Bloomfield at an early date. He carried on an extensive business at Jefferson, on Pickaway plains. Bloomfield was platted in 1804. Soon after that date a race-track was made, a mile in length, and encircling most of the town. Turfmen brought their horses from all the surrounding country to the Bloomfield races. George Deal built a circular barrack, which he thatched with rye straw. This shelter was used by the early settlers as a threshing floor, at an early day. Col. John Cochran built a store in South Bloomfield after the war of 1812, about 1815. This he continued for many years. John Motherspaw was an early blacksmith in Bloomfield. He moved to Macon county, Illinois. James Short built a still-house in 1804, on the east side of the pike, and but a short distance below South Bloomfield. During the flood of 1805, the water coursed across the road and reached up to the distillery. It can not now be ascertained at what date the first mail route was established through Bloomfield, but it was previous to 1812. Mail was at first carried by post-boys, who made the trip from Chillicothe to Franklinton on horseback. After the establishment of the stage-coach line, the mail was carried by the stages.

SOUTH BLOOMFIELD.

The village of South Bloomfield was laid out by David Denny, in 1804, who employed General James Denny, later of Circleville, to make the survey. This was done on a part of Walnut plains, in the southeast part of section ten. The plat embraced forty acres of land, and was divided into eighty lots. These were laid off in blocks of four lots, with a street, or alley, on two sides of each lot. The lots were numbered, consecutively, to twenty-three and twenty-four, which were left vacant for township purposes, and the numbers carried to the next lots. Two lots, sixty and seventy, were omitted, so that the last lot could be numbered eighty. The two lots reserved for township property were afterwards sold and numbered eighty-one and eighty-two. The property has in some cases, changed hands several times, and the deeds have not been properly made out, so that there are now several persons living in the village who have imperfect titles to their homes.

This town was laid out for the county seat, six years before Circleville was platted, but it so happened that the hopes of its founder were not realized. At one time Bloomfield was quite an important town. The regular line of stage coaches, from Chillicothe to Franklinton and Columbus, made it assume some importance, as it was not far from the central point on this line; but the completion of the Ohio canal, a mile east, and the building of a railroad to Columbus, caused the withdrawal of the coaches, and the town has long since subsided into a quiet, steady-going pace, with few hopes of bettering its condition. Its brightest days are not of the present, nor of the future, but of the past.

CORPORATION.

The town of South Bloomfield was incorporated by special act of the legislature, in 1833. Its first officers were: Thomas Burrell, president; John Cochran, treasurer; Henry N. Hedges, clerk; Samuel Goreley, marshal. The next mayor, or president, after Burrell, was A. C. Stiles; then George R. Piper, in 1841; Nathaniel Wilkins, in 1844; Abner Briggs, 1849; Dr. T. W. Jones, 1851. The present officers are: John Arebaugh, mayor; A. J. Goosman, clerk; Dr. J. C. Thompson, treasurer; Daniel Dunn, John C. Griggs, Dr. H. B. Smith, J. C. Smith, Robert Hughes, and G. W. Rector, councilmen; J. H. Roese, marshal; Wesley O. Day, street commissioner.

BUSINESS OF HARRISON.

The present business in South Bloomfield is conducted by the following persons: J. C. Smith, general dealer; A. G. Jones, grocery, and post-office. A. J. Goosman, T. J. Goosman, Peter Rush, blacksmiths; Charles Loux, Benira Barnes, wagon shops; J. W. Burke, hotel; Griggs & Galloway, sewing machines; Abner Briggs, harness maker; W. E. Peter, cabinet shop.

The business houses in Ashville are: George Morrison, general dealer, postmaster, and express agent; Edward Soper, general dealer; E. Mangus, boots and shoes; Henry Crumley, boarding house and livery; Mrs. E. M. Jones, millinery; Mrs. Swayer, dress-maker; Robert Hughes, elevator; Joseph Hedges, lumber yard; John Messick, William Ward, Peter Arnold, blacksmiths; Ezra Shoemaker, tinner; Z. T. Baker, harness-maker.

In Millport are Michael Selig, grocery; Huffman & Delaplane, elevator.

The physicians are Drs. J. C. Thompson, H. B. Smith, and A. C. Kinnear, in Bloomfield, and Dr. Charles Stewart, at Ashville.

The American house, the present hotel at South Bloomfield, was built by John Ruth, in 1847. He kept hotel here until 1856, when he sold to Noah Runkle, and moved across the river to Scioto, where he owned a farm. There he engaged in the manufacture of drain tile, and runs the only works of that kind in that township. Noah Runkle sold the hotel to Vicker & Burger, and they to F. J. Waddell. Waddell sold to J. W. Burke, January 1, 1879, who now continues the house. A room in the lower part has several times been used as a general store by different persons.

Roland Stebbins built a store on Walnut street, about 1845. This he conducted about fifteen years. J. Darst aucceeded him. The store is now owned by J. C. Smith, who purchased it in 1877.

MILLPORT.

The little hamlet of Millport was laid out into lots by Richard Stage, about 1837. Previous to this time, and as early as 1810, Stephen Short started a distillery and a mill at this place. After laying out town lots Mr. Stage erected a number of dwellings, and built a pork packing house, in which he carried on an extensive business for a number of years. He also furnished capital and started his son-in-law, Francis S. Burt, in merchandising. This business was not continued many years. In about 1850 a warehouse was built near the canal, for the purpose of receiving and storing grain. A small grocery was established in the building to furnish stores for canal men and boats. Mr. Kilso managed this warehouse from 1860 until 1870, when he failed.

In 1868 or 1869 Obed Hedges built an elevator at Ashville. This he leased to Mr. Weaver and to Robert Hughes. Blue & Julian then took it, but finally gave it up, though doing a large business. It is now owned by Heffner & Delaplane, and does an extensive business.

William Foresman built a grist-mill at Millport in 1833, which he continued many years. In 1879 it was sold to Samuel Campbell, who now runs it.

ASHVILLE.

The land upon which Ashville is located was, at an early day, the property of Richard Stage, who started a small distillery here, which he operated for many years. About 1837 he sold to Mahlon Ashbrook. Mr. Ashbrook increased the capacity of the distillery, and did a very large business. In connection with it, he built a grist-mill on Walnut creek, about 1845, and owned a large store, for such a town. At one time he was reputed quite wealthy, but finally he failed in business. James Smart, o Circleville, went into business with him, but finally sold out. The store was closed up about 1855, but the distillery was run by other parties for a few years, when it, too, was closed. Mr. Ashbrook went to the north part of the State, and from there to Missouri. Mr. Works run the distillery for a time, as also did Mr. Briggs, before it was closed. From the time of the closing of the distillery, in 1855, until about 1874, very little business was done in Ashville. In 1874, the building of the Scioto Valley railroad through the length of Harrison township, gave a new impetus to business. The depot of the railroad was located at Ashland in 1875, as was also the post-office. During tbe same year William Morris and Mr. Keyes built an elevator near the railroad. This is run by means of a steam engine. They sold it to Ezra Hedges, and he to Robert Hughes, who now conducts the business. Corn and wheat are bought by him in large quantities.

POST-OFFICES.

The first post-office in Harrison township was opened previous to 1810, in the store of William and John Bradshaw, at South Bloomfield. It is believed that William Bradshaw was the first postmaster. This office has been continued under different officials, and is at present administered by A. G. Jones.

On the completion of the railroad through Ashville, in MRS. JAMES I. VAUSE.

JAMES I. VAUSE.

RESIDENCE OF J. I. VAUSE, HARRISON TP., PICKAWAY CO., OHIO.

1875, a post-office was established at that point. George Morrison was the first postmaster, and continues to administer the office.

CHURCHES.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Meetings of people of the Methodist denomination were held at the house of Daniel Millar, on the site of the present hotel at South Bloomfield, soon after 1833, by traveling preachers. At the time of its organization, about 1835, there were some ten members living here. There were the family of Daniel Millar, Mrs. Sage, Mr. Donaldson, and Mrs. Denny, and possibly others. The organization was effected in the frame school-house, on the lot now owned by George Rector. Revs. Messrs. Hamilton and Poe were early preachers. They were the first circuit preachers. The next were Revs. Messrs. White and Stephenson. Jacob Young was presiding elder. The circuit was at first called Pickaway circuit, and afterwards Franklinton circuit. The first church building was erected in 1837, on lots given for the purpose by William Renick. A brick church was built at a cost of one thousand five hundred dollars, but in after years it proved to be too small and inconvenient, and was torn down in 1877, and a new edifice erected at a cost of about three thousand five hundred dollars. The funds for building were raised by a subscription. The present membership of this church is about seventy-five. A Sunday-school of about sixty members is maintained, under the superintendence of Dr. H. B. Smith. The pastor of the church, for 1879, is Rev. J. M. Rife.

ASBURY CHAPEL,

of the Methodist Episcopel church, was organized in a school-house, in the eastern part of Harrison, about 1835. Preaching was had at private houses previous to this time. Stephen Simmons, who lived in this neighborhood, was an active churchman, and was instrumental in the organization of this church, and was the first class leader. The log school-house in which the first church services were held, was built about a mile north of the present location of the chapel, and was built about 1835. Jacob Young and John Lewis were the first preachers. The school-house was used for services until 1851, when a frame edifice was erected. This was dedicated to Asbury chapel, in 1852. In 1875 a coummodious and neat brick church was built on the same lot, in the south part of section twenty-five. This building cost about three thousand dollars, and was dedicated in the spring of 1876. When built, the church was under the ministration of Rev. H. B. Westervelt. Both these churches were dedicated by Rev. Lovett Taft. The land on which they stand was given for the purpose by Enos Cutler. A large Sunday-school is maintained. The church is under the ministration of Rev. James Rife

UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH.

A church of this denomination was organized in the east part of Harrison, about 1840. Meetings were first held in the school-house, until sufficient interest and attendance were had to justify the formation of a church. The first class leader was Luke McDevitt. One of the first preachers was William Davis. Bishop Edwards was also one of the first to preach here. The present pastor is Rev. Daniel Bonebrake. On its organization, the church was named Rehoboth church, which name it now bears. A chuch edifice was erected on section six soon after 1850. This building is still standing, and is used for church purposes. The society now numbers about fifty persons, and has a Sunday-school of some forty members, under the superintendence of Mr. Christy.

IMPORTANT WORKS.

The Ohio canal, from Cleveland to the Ohio river, was built through Harrison township during 1825 and 1832. This gave employment to a large number of men, and very many of the people at that date inhabiting the township, assisted in its construction. Col. John Cochran had a contract for work on the canal during these years. This canal afforded an outlet for the produce raised in the country, and was of great benefit to the inhabitants for a long distance on either side of it.

The Scioto Valley railroad was the next great improvement. This was completed in 1875, since which time it has been in operation, and affords a better outlet for the large quantities of corn and wheat now raised in this country than did the canal.

Since the network of railroads that now treverse the State of Ohio was completed, the canal has almost fallen into disuse. Very little business is now done over it, though some grain is shipped from Millport, and coal received through it.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

THE VAUSE FAMILY.

Thomas Vause came from Hampshire county, Virginia, to Ohio, in 1810, and settled in Clark county, near Springfield, where he purchased a small farm with some improvements. He further improved his land and engaged in grain and stock raising. During the war of 1812 he, with others, went to the defense of the frontier settlements against the British and Indians. He held the rank of captain in the light-horse, and commanded his company while in the service, to which they were called on an emergency, and when they were on duty but a short time.

In 1817 he married Elizabeth Decker. In 1823 he sold his property in Clark county and bought land in Franklin and Pickaway counties, building his home in Franklin county, near Lockbourne, where he resided with his wife and family until their death, which occurred in 1852. His age was sixty-six. His wife's age was about sixty.

He began life with a small capital, which, by careful management, steadily increased, until at his death he owned six hundred acres of land, and a comfortable home.

The children of Thomas Vause were: John D., William, Rachel, Luke D., James I., Hannah, and Thomas B. John D. married Mary Perrill, and now lives in the north part of Harrison township, near the Franklin county line. William married Mary Stimmel, and died in 1852. Rachel married Thornton Decker, and died, leaving a family of six children. Luke died in 1848. Hannah was killed by a vicious cow, when about ten years of age. Thomas B. married Missouri Moore, and lives at Camp Chase, west of Columbus.

James I. Vause was born in 1827, in Franklin county, where he lived until 1858, working at farming with his father, and obtaining a common school education at the schools there taught. November 7, 1854, he was married to Eliza Wright, of Madison township. In 1857 he bought his present farm of four hundred and eighty-two acres, in sections two and thirty-five, in Harrison township. In 1873 he built a substantial brick dwelling on his farm, and moved out of the log house they had occupied since his purchase of the farm. They had five children, three of whom are now living.

Mrs. Vause died June 25, 1878, after a short illness. Her age was fifty-one years, two months and eight days.

Mrs. Vause was a member of the Ohio Annual Missionary society, and a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal church. She died in the full hope of and belief in a blessed immortality.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Vause were members of Asbury Chapel Methodist Episcopal church.

In connection with this sketch of the Vause family appears a representation of the house of James I. Vause, accompanied by portraits of himself and wife.

MADISON.

This is township ten, range twenty-one, and is in the extreme northeast corner of Pickaway county. It comprises Mathew's survey, and contains twenty-four sections, beginning with section thirteen in the northeast corner, and including section thirty-six, in the southeast corner of the township. Of these, two sections were reserved for school lands, namely: sections sixteen and twenty-one.

Walnut creek runs through the western half of the township, from north to south, the lands on its bottom being very rich and productive. Slate run empties into Walnut creek, near the northeast corner of section twenty, and comprises several branches, spreading from the southeast to the northeast corner of the township, and furnishing excellent drainage for the entire eastern part thereof. At some points, the banks of this run are high and unfit for cultivation, and are still covered with forest, while many springs of pure water are to be found, some at quite an elevation above the bed of the run. Walnut creek is a very muddy stream, seldom becoming clear, showing the result of the washing from clay soil.

The soil of Madison is uniformly good, consisting of a black loam and gravel on the lower lands, and clay on the hills, with many excellent beds of gravel. The eastern part of the township rises into quite large hills, with, generally, a long slope to the lowlands, which were originally swamps, and, at the time of the settlement of the county, abounded in wild ducks and geese, which were readily shot by hunters.

Game was plenty at an early day. The forests were the home of the deer and turkey, and bear were occasionally seen, as they made their way through the country to their haunts in the lower part of the Hocking valley. Wild ducks were plenty, and the smaller game, such as pheasants, rabbits, and squirrels, inhabited every part of the underbrush and forest.

Ancient remains of the extinct race of Mound Builders were to be found in the shape of small mounds, in different parts of the township, many of which are now almost obliterated, by the successive plowing of the land upon which they were located. Some relics are to be seen, that have been dug from these mounds. Hon. A. L. Perrill has in his possession a small piece of copper taken from one of these mounds, which bears resemblance to a chisel.

The gigantic mastodon, at some remote period, roamed through this country. The writer was shown a tooth of one of these extinct animals, by the above-named gentleman, that is a fine specimen. It was obtained while building a road in the swamp, and is some seven inches in length, and weighs five pounds.

Implements belonging to the later race of Indians are frequently found, and consist of stone hammers, or tomahawks, spear- and arrow-heads, fleshers, for removing the skins of wild animals, flints, used for cutting the skins, and pestles, for pounding corn and preparing it for use. Many of the present owners of the soil have small collections of this kind, and, at this late day, are making efforts to increase their stock of these relics, that in time will be valuable.

BOUNDARY AND ERECTION.

Madison is bounded on the north by Madison township, in Franklin county; on the east by Bloom township, in Fairfield county; on the south by Walnut, and on the west by Harrison townships, in Pickaway county.

This township was established June 5, 1810, by the county commissioners, who ordered that all that part of Madison and Walnut Creek townships be erected into a separate township, beginning at the north boundary line of the county at the twenty-second range line; thence extending with the county line eastward to the northeast corner of the county; thence extending along the county line south to the southeast corner of lot or section number one, of township number nine, in range number twenty-one (Mathews' survey); then extending west to the southwest corner of section number six, in said township number nine; thence extending along the twenty-second range line north to the place of beginning. The said township to be known by the name of Madison township. The place of holding election to be the house of Luke Decker, on Saturday, June 23, 1810.

SETTLEMENT.

Benjamin Duvall came from Bedford county, Pennsylvania, about 1798, when nineteen years of age. He worked for James and Stephen Short, in Harrison, for several years, until his marriage, after which, he settled near South Bloomfield, in the same township. He was in the war of 1812, for a time, and on his return settled on section thirty. Here he lived some thirty years, when he sold out and moved to the Sloan place, in Harrison, where they remained five years, when they moved to Shadeville, Franklin county, where both died. Their children were: Sarah, who lives a widow, in Harrison; George is in Illinois; Jeremiah died in Harrison; Catharine married, and moved to Franklin county, where she died; Robert is in Illinois; William lives in Harrison; Andrew R., lives on section thirty-two, in Madison, where he has a farm of one hundred and thirty acres; he married Cynthia Love, and has four children; she died, and he married Sarah Burget, his present wife; Benjamin lives in Harrison; Thomas lives in Auglaize county; Margaret lived single, and died about 1871.

John Ritter came from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, about 1804 or 1805, and settled on the northwest corner of section twenty-four. His wife was Mary Glick. They suffered the usual hardships of the early frontier settlers, denying themselves the comforts of life in order to carve out a home and raise the family of children who came after marriage. They were: Betsey, Hannah, Henry, Joseph, John, Peter, Mary, and Lydia. Betsey married Mr. Neville, and moved away; Peter lives in Henry county; the others are dead. Mr. Ritter also owned part of section twenty-three, now occupied by Daniel Glick.

Henry Hall came from Pennsylvania, with his wife and three or four children, about 1804 or 1805, and settled on section thirteen, where he bought a tract of land, and erected a home. He raised fourteen children, all of whom lived to raise families. Their names were: David, Henry, Louis, Isaac, Christian, Samuel, Philip, Susannah, Margaret, Martha, Christine, Polly, Mary, and Hannah. All married, and most went to the west. Susannah married Henry Northstine, and lives in Madison; David married Mrs. Betsey Kistler, and located in Walnut township. His son, Peter, lives on the old homestead, near the county line.

George Reed came from near Cumberland, Maryland, to Ohio, in 1804, and made a settlement on section thirty. The parents died there. The children were: Robert, George, John, Andrew, Victor, Margaret, Nancy, and Catharine. All died after marriage except Catharine, who is the widow of Thomas Hamilton, and lives in Franklin county, aged nearly eighty-one years. All lived on the land purchased by their father.

Robert Reed came from County Tyrone, Ireland, to the United States, in 1793 or 1795. He came to Ohio and settled on section thirty, where he died in 1818. His children were: John, George, James, Robert, Nelson, Victor, and Andrew, besides several daughters.

George Gibson came from Virginia about 1804. His father, Col. Thomas Gibson, came with him. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war. They settled on section thirty-two. The children of George Gibson were: Dr. Thomas Gibson, who went to Circleville, and George, a child by a second wife, who died when a child. George Gibson died September 26, 1843. His father died in 1814.

Isaac Millar was born in Virginia, from whence he came to Ohio in 1806, and settled on a section of land in Madison township, Pickaway county. This land was entered by William Millar. Isaac Millar accumulated considerable property, and at one time owned eighteen hundred acres of land in Madison and Harrison townships. He married Susan Decker in 1812, and had nine children, five of whom died, and one lives in Pennsylvania. Ann Elizabeth married Jesse Musselman, in 1860, and cares for her aged father, now in his ninety-third year. The sons were: Michael, John, Jacob, and Franklin. John and Franklin are deceased. Michael and Jacob live on property given them by their father. Mr. Millar built and operated a small distillery and corn-mill in Madison, in 1815. He brought the first threshing machine and the first reaper into Madison township, where he has lived most of his life.

Joseph Hoffhine came from Maryland in 1806, and settled on the north half of section thirty. His children were: Adam, Elizabeth, George, Susannah, Isaac, Sarah, Mary, William, and Jacob. Adam married and moved away. George married and lived in Walnut township, where he died. Susannah married William L. Peters, and lives on section thirty-three.

Luke Decker came to Madison township in 1806, from Hampshire county, Virginia, now West Virginia. He remained two years, when he returned home, where he married Iva Fox, and brought his bride to begin a home in the western woods. He entered section twenty, when he first came, and was accompanied by Ezekiel Groom and family, who soon after moved to Franklin county. Mr. Decker's children were: John, who died March 21, 1878; William T., who now lives in Groveport, Franklin county; Vause, who lives in the north half of section twenty, and Hannah, who married Andrew Platter. She died March 20, 1879. Mr. Decker was a commissary to General Harrison, in the war of 1812. At the time of his settlement, there was a camp of Indians near a spring, now owned by Vause Decker. They were peaceable, and went away soon after his settlement. Mr. Decker died September 2, 1838, aged fifty-seven. His wife made three visits to her native county, on horseback, during her life. She died March 22, 1872, aged eighty-five years.

George Coon came from Virginia, in 1806. In 1811, he was married to Sarah Cutler, by whom he had seven children. In 1812 he, with his neighbors, was called on to defend the frontier against the British and Indians, but was not required to serve long, and returned to his home. His children were: Julia Ann, who married, and moved to Franklin county, where she died; George married Sarah Ann Wilson, and lives on section thirty-two, in Madison township; Emily married, and died in Monroe township; John died when young; Luke lives in Illinois; Enos married, enlisted in the war of the Rebellion, and died in the service; Franklin married, and died in the war from wounds received in battle.

Edward Cutler came from Virginia, in 1806, and settled in this township. His children were: James, who was killed in Columbus; Enos married, raised a family, and died in Harrison (a daughter of his married Mr. Burget, and still lives in Harrison); John married, and raised several children, none of whom now live in this vicinity; Rachel died of cholera, when it first appeared; Sarah married George Coon, and lived and died in Madison; Nancy married Thomas Burton and raised a family; Susan married Henry Carder, and lived in Franklin county.

In 1808, Louis Fridley and his wife, Susannah, emigrated from Virginia, and settled in Madison, and began the work of hewing a home out of the virgin forest. They raised a family of nine children, who were a great help to them in their pioneer work. They were: George, who lives in Shelby county; Jacob lives in Missouri; John in Shelby county; Polly married John Wilson, and is now deceased; Diana married Dimick Cole; Catharine married Perry Hedges; Phebe married Silas Allen; Joshua married Sally Clore, and lives on the southwest corner of section thirty-five. She died, and he married Julia Ann Hott. He had, by his first wife, Peter, Louis, and Iva; by his second wife, George, Joanna, Clinton, Stephen, and Charles.

Joshua Fridley has always been a great hunter, when a boy bringing in a great deal of small game. At one time he run a deer down, with two dogs, the larger of which brought the animal to bay, and seized it by the throat, killing it. In his late years he has been a great marksman, and has won many deer, and quarters of beef, at shooting matches. He now has in his possession a target-gun, the barrel of which is about four feet in length, and weighs thirty-one pounds. At his present age, sixty-eight, he is not afraid to shoot against the improved globe-sighted guns with his old weapon.

John Smith emigrated from Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, with his family, in 1808, and settled on the south half of section thirteen, building a log cabin for an immediate home near a fine spring of water. He was a hard worker, and with his sons began the work of clearing land for cultivation. His children were: John, Henry, Jacob, Magdalene, Catharine, and Christine. John and Henry afterwards moved to near Winchester, where they died. Jacob remained at home and married Christine Hall, by whom he had fourteen children: Samuel, Susannah, Henry, Moses, Reuben, Christine, Jacob, John, Manesseh, Emanuel, Jonathan, Anna, Sarah, David, and Elizabeth. David married Eliza Fellows, and lives on the old homestead; Reuben married Eliza Glick, and lives on section thirty-seven; Christine married John Blackwood, and lives in the adjoining township of Madison, in Franklin county; Samuel married Mary Fellows, and lived on the adjoining farm, where he died in 1878; Susannah married Solomon Loffer, and moved to Logan county; Henry lived and died near Lithopolis; Moses is in Logan county; Jacob died in Missouri; John Manasseh lives in Logan county; Emanuel in Logansport, Indiana; Anna in Franklin county, Ohio; and Sarah in Howard county, Indiana. John Smith, sr., was a weaver, and was very expert with the loom, weaving twenty yards of cloth in a day. He once wove sixteen yards and mowed one acre of clover in a day. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was a true patriot.

J. C. Peters came from Berkeley county, Virginia, near Winchester, in 1808, and settled in Walnut township. He was twice married, and had fourteen children by his first wife, and two by his second. In 1825 he moved to Madison township, and settled on section twenty-three. His son, William L. Peters, still lives on the southeast quarter of the same section. He married Susannah Hoffhine, by whom he has six children. He was previously married and had one child, but both wife and child died. His children are: John N., Harriet A., George S., Francis J., Edward A., and James P. Three of these live on the home farm.

Valentine Sparr came to Ohio very early. He never owned land in this section, but rented, or leased, a part of Daniel Teegardin's land. His children were Jacob, George, Peter, John, and, perhaps, others. All went to Illinois, or the west.

Benjamin Howell was from New Jersey, where he had owned a ferry, which he sold, and bought land in section eighteen. He was unable to obtain payment for his ferry, which so preyed on his mind, that he made way with his life. Benjamin, his son, inherited his property. He also had daughters, who married, but none now reside in this part of the country.

John Fisher came from Virginia, in 1809, and settled on the northeast corner of section thirty-three. Before coming to the new country he was married to Elizabeth Decker, and brought with him two children—Ann and Hiram. Ann lives, a widow, in Walnut; Hiram lives on section thirty-one. After coming to Ohio they had Coonrod, Mary, Gabriel, David, John, George, Elizabeth, Luke, and Iva. Coonrod owned one hundred acres in section thirty-three, which he sold, and moved to Harrison, where he now lives. John J., his son, lives on section thirty-four, owned by John Noacker.

Jacob Spangler settled in Washington township, in 1810, with his family, consisting of four daughters and two sons. His daughter, Esther, married Jacob Hines, and moved to Madison, in 1831, locating on section twenty-seven. They had nine children, one of whom died when an infant. They were Mary, Eli, Jacob, Betsey, Catharine, Enoch, Sarah, Delilah, and I. Marion. Mary lives at home, a widow; Eli is in Iowa; Jacob is in Walnut township; Betsey is in Illinois, a widow; Catharine died an infant; Enoch lives on the old homestead; Sarah is in Circleville; Delilah died in 1872; Isaac Marion lives in St. Paul, and is a shoemaker.

Peter Kroninger came from Pennsylvania in, or about, 1810. He had three sons and four daughters: Daniel, Peter, Jacob, Mary, Betsey, Catharine, and Maria. Maria lived in section thirty-four; Daniel married and lived near home; Peter is in Illinois; Jacob died on the homestead; Mary died in Indiana; Betsey married Jacob Runkle, and lived in Madison; Catharine married John Noacker, and lives in Madison; Maria married Henry Noacker, and died in 1878.

John Nothstine came from Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, in 1810, with his wife and one child. He made a settlement and cleared a farm on section thirteen, owned by John Smith, his father-in-law. Mr. Smith bought four hundred acres of land, and gave eighty acres to each of his six children: John; Catharine, who married John Fellows; Henry; Magdalena, who lived at home, single, until the death of her parents, when she went to live on her eighty acres; Gertrude married John Nothstine, and settled on her lot. Their children were: Daniel, who died in Madison; Henry W. married Susannah Hall, and now lives on section fourteen; Jonathan was killed by a falling tree a few weeks before the time set for his marriage; Peter married Susannah Slusher, and settled on section thirteen; Joseph married Caroline Plinesmith, and lives in sections thirteen and fourteen; Mary married Daniel Glick, now deceased; Tina died single, when a young woman, Susan died young, as did Jacob; Eli died an infant. Henry owns one hundred and fifty-eight acres of land in section fourteen, and his children are: Absalom, Joseph, Anna, John, Eliza, Jacob, Christine, Mary R.; Dadvid died an infant; Frank died when a young man; and Louis Lafayette.

Daniel Rainier came from Virginia about 1810, and settled on the northwest corner of section fourteen, where he raised a family of children, consisting of: Isaac, Abraham, Daniel, and several daughters, none of whom now live in this part of the country. His son Isaac lived and died on the home farm. His children were: Isaac, Sarah, Hester, John, and Mary. John now owns the old homestead.

John Souser came from Pennsylvania about 1828, and worked the place owned by Mrs. King, on section thirty-five. He afterwards married her, and died on the place. She is still living.

William Teegardin came from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, in 1810, and settled on the southwest quarter of section twenty-three. He was twenty-three years of age when he came to Madison, and had three children. His father, Aaron Teegardin, came in the following year, and settled on the southeast quarter of section twenty-two, now owned by Solomon Teegardin. They came in a wagon, in which they lived some four weeks. The wolves were troublesome, and often fought the dogs under the wagon, until driven away by Mr. Teegardin. The nearest neighbor lived eight miles distant, and not a stick of timber was cut in that distance. His wife was crippled by rheumatism; and he raised twelve children, besides clearing his land. The family consisted of seven boys and five girls. Of these, Margaret married Jackson Millar, Catharine married Harrison Darst, Susannah married John Rockey, Huldah married Elias Hardsock, Elizabeth married Elisha Decker. All the husbands are now dead except John Rockey. Susannah and Elizabeth are also dead. Of the sons, John, Joseph, and Henry are dead. Aaron and Daniel are in Steuben county, Indiana; Abraham and Peter live in the township. William Teegardin died in 1871, aged eighty-four. During the war of 1812, he went to Sandusky and served as a soldier.

Jacob McLane came to Pickaway county, from Virginia, in 1810, bringing with him his family, and located on the south side of the creek, near where the iron bridge now spans the stream, and both he and his wife died on the place. There children were: Zachariah, George, Jacob, Nancy, Elizabeth, and Mary. Zachariah married Susan Spaur, and afterwards lived on the Fellers farm. A son, Washington, now resides in Jackson township, where he has operated a grist- and saw-mill for many years. George moved to Franklin county, and afterwards to Putnam county, where he died; Jacob settled in Johnstown, Licking county; Nancy married Philip Young, and resided in Madison until 1828, when she removed to Shelby county, Ohio; Elizabeth became the wife of Jacob Ice, and resided for a number of years on the homestead, when they moved to Allen county; Mary married her cousin, John McLane, and lived in Pickaway connty until her death.

George P. Shork emigrated from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, with his wife and several children, about 1812, or, perhaps, earlier, and settled on section twenty-one. They had twelve children, and bore all the hardships of early pioneer life in the new country. The children were: Elizabeth, who married William Teegardin; John; Susan, who married John Loffer; Margaret, who married Jacob Teegardin, and is the only member of the family now living; Jacob; Joseph; Sarah, who married Christian Baum; Philip; Catharine, who remained in Pennsylvania; Mary, who married Henry Ritter, and settled in the southwest part of the county; Abraham; and Isaac who moved to Putnam county, where he died.

Christian Loffer came from Pennsylvania, in 1812. He was married, and had three children: Jacob, John, and Susannah, who became Mrs. Felger. His wife died, and he married Elizabeth Teegardin, by whom he had: Christian, Henry, Daniel, Solomon, Simon P., Ellen, and Sarah. He located on section twenty-three, and cleared a farm. Henry, his son, the only one of the family now living in the township, owns a farm on section twenty-six; Ellen married Samuel Hunt, and lived in Franklin county; Sarah married John Crossley, and died in Logan county.

James Lambert came from Pennsylvania, about 1812, and bought a tract of land on section fourteen. He lived a bachelor many years, and married Mrs. Anna Conklin. They had no children, but she had three by her first husband. William F. Conklin, her son, who owns the old farm, has been a prominent man in the township, and has served in the State legislature.

William Woolweaver and his wife, Hannah, came from Virginia, about 1817, and bought fifty acres in section fourteen—the south part. His children were: John, Asa, Eliza, Mary, and Nathaniel. He remained here some thirty years, and all the family, but one, died. Mary lives, a widow, at Lithopolis.

Aaron Teegardin came from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, with his wife and children, in 1811. He had previously visited the county, and made a selection of land. On his arrival, he purchased three-fourths of a section of land of John Ritter, and made a settlement, giving each of his children, of whom he had seven, one hundred and sixty acres. His children were George, William, Elizabeth, Jacob, Daniel, Solomon, and Annie. The two elder children had families when they came to this county. George, William, and Elizabeth settled on section twenty-three, and Daniel on section fifteen. Elizabeth married Christian Loffer; Annie married Daniel Canouse; Solomon married Hannah Cupp; Jacob married Margaret Shook. Annie is the only one of Aaron Teegardin's family now living, her home being in Putnam county. Aaron Teegardin, jr., the son of George Teegardin, became old enough to do some work soon after they came to Ohio, and was often sent to mill on horseback. On one occasion, as he was riding along, he heard a noise in the underbrush, along the path, and presently three black animals, that he thought to be wolves, crossed a short distance ahead of him. He ran his horse after them, and over the two smaller ones, which took to a tree, while the old one reared on her hind parts and showed fight. He hurried forward to a settlement, near by, and said there were wolves in the timber. The men ran out to head them off, but did not, at once, find them. They finally followed the trail and killed them. They proved to be an old bear and two cubs.

Henry Regal came from Pennsylvania, as early as 1812, and made a settlement on section twenty-six. His family are now scattered, none living in this vicinity.

David Flenner was an early settler in the same neighborhood. He was a tailor, and did such work as came to his hand in the new country. All his family are also gone.

Christian Baum came from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, about 1815, and bought one hundred and sixty acres of land in section twenty-one, located in the northwest corner of the section. Some time after, he bought the same number of acres in section twenty-nine, and one hundred and sixty-three in section twenty-one. He also purchased two hundred acres of land in Ross county. In 1818 he married Sarah Shook, by whom he had seven children, as follows: Joseph, who lives in Ross county; George, in Ross county; Lewis, on section twenty-one, Madison, married Elizabeth Roof, and had seven children; Elizabeth, married William T. Conklin, who has twice been elected to the legislature, and lives on section twenty-nine; John, lives in Ross county, as does Mary, who married Samuel Posey; Jacob married Eliza Cromley, and died at the old homestead. The old log house, occupied by the Baum family when clearing the farm, stands on the farm of Lewis Baum, where it was moved. Christian Baum walked over the mountains to Ohio, when he first came here, carrying his rifle on his shoulder. At the beginning, he had but little property, but by hard labor he secured a home and a competence. In 1862, he died, aged about seventy-two. There was a small clearing on his place when he bought it.

Solomon Glick came in 1814 or 1815, and settled on section twenty-seven. His children were: Delilah, Lucinda, Jemima, Enos, Mary, and Maria; the latter of whom died in infancy. Eliza married Reuben Smith, and lives in Madison; Solomon is in Indiana; Monroe is not in this vicinity; Lucinda died in Indiana; Jemima died in Indiana; Enos is in Kansas; Delilah in Columbus; and Jesse lives with Reuben Smith.

Nathan Perrill came from Frederick county, Virginia, in 1816, arriving May 5th, of that year. He was married in Hardy county, Virginia, before emigrating. He settled on the southwest quarter of section fifteen, which he purchased from William Teegardin, who bought it from the government for eight hundred dollars. His journey was made with a four-horse team, over the mountains. His wife sometimes rode horseback, and sometimes walked. They crossed the Ohio river at Marietta. Greencastle, Fairfield county, seven miles distant, was the nearest post-office. Three children were born before emigrating, namely: Augustus L., Zebulon H., and Catharine, who became Mrs. John B. Moore. After settlement came Fraces S., who married Adam Dyer (both deceased), and Mary E., wife of John D. Vause. Nathan Perrill died March 25, 1843, aged sixty-eight years, and his wife, Christina, died January 27, 1875, aged nearly ninety-one — probably the oldest woman in the township when she died. Mr. Perrill served as a second lieutenant during the war of 1812, and was stationed at Norfolk, Virginia, most of the time. He was justice of the peace several years in Madison. His second son, Zebulon H., owns the old homestead and lives on the adjoining farm. He has been justice of the peace several times, and has also served as township trustee.

John Woodruff came about 1810 or 1812, and settled on section nineteen. His children were: Adam, William, Elijah, Mary Ann, and another daughter. All moved to the northwestern part of the State.

There were other settlers in this part of the township, but their names are not to be obtained.

Joseph Kelly came before 1810; he made a settlement in the south part of the township, and raised a family, consisting of: John, William, Joseph, and Hannah. He lost his first wife, and married a Miss Shafer. He was an early justice of the peace. Hannah married James Reed. The sons died.

Andrew Dildine came to Madison about 1810, locating on section fourteen. His children were: John, Nancy, and Elizabeth. John moved to the north part of the State. Nancy and Elizabeth married Reeds; but all are now dead.

John Albright settled near Dildine, about 1810 or 1812. He had a family, but none remain in the vicinity.

John Funkhouser came very early, and settled on section twenty-one, but returned to Virginia before 1816. He was located on school lands, and sold his lease to William Bowen.

Truman Bowen had a lease on section sixteen, about the same time.

John Colburn lived on section twenty-one, near Bowen. He raised a family, but did not make a purchase, and all are now gone.

David Morris lived on section sixteen, near Truman Bowen, previous to 1816. His children were: Elisha, Hannah, David, Samuel, and Daniel. The latter was drowned in Slate run, when an infant. The family afterwards moved away.

William Bishop, James McClish, Daniel Hankison, and John Childs, were also leasers on section sixteen. None are now living here, nor are their descendants.

Noah Groom and John Guiberson were also leasers on the same section, which was reserved for school purposes.

Henry Crossley settled on section four, the south part, before 1816, where he raised a family. His children were: Isaac, John, Henry, Joseph, and several daughters, one of whom married Thomas Peyton, and one married William McGarrity. There were other children, but their names cannot be obtained.

Jacob Ice settled on section twenty-nine before 1816. His sons were George, Jacob, and Samuel, none of whom remained in the county.

George Hensel came about the same time, and settled on section twenty-five, in the eastern part of the township, where he still lives, with his family.

Jacob Noyer came from Pennsylvania before 1816, and settled in the southwest part of section twenty-four. His children were John, Benjamin, Samuel, Rachel, Catharine, and another daughter. His farm is partly owned by Aaron Teegardin. Mr. Noyer died, and his family scattered and moved to other parts.

Jacob and Isaac Schleick settled in the southeast corner of the township, near the county line, soon after 1816. Their descendants still occupy the land.

Samuel Hunt was an early settler in section eighteen, arriving some time before 1816. He had a family, but none are now residents in this vicinity.

Matthias Case came about the same time as Hunt, and settled on the same section. None of his family now remain.

Joshua Benton settled on section seventeen very early. His children were John, Joshua, Basil, and Walter, besides several daughters. He and several of his children died here, and the rest moved away.

Augustus L. Perrill came with his father's family from Hardy county, Virginia, in 1816. His father settled on section fifteen, until 1840, where he lived. In that year he moved to his present home, on section twenty-one. In 1832 he was elected sheriff of the county, and served until and during 1836. In 1839 and 1840, he was in the State legislature. In 1844 he was elected to congress, and served two years. In 1858 he was again elected to the State legislature, and served six years. In 1862 he was a third time elected to the same office.

Joseph Wright was born in county Down, Ireland, in 1793. He emigrated to the United State in 1816, and located at Sinking Springs, Highland county, for four years. In 1820, he married Sarah Platter, whose parents came from Kentucky to Ross county, in 1801. After marriage, in 1820, they moved to Madison, Pickaway county, where he bought three hundred and twenty acres of land, on the second bottom of Walnut creek. He was a hard worker, and his health gave way about 1846. They had eight children—Mary Ann, Sarah Jane, Eliza, William, Joseph P., Andrew, David, and John C. For some years after his settlement, he lost cattle from murrain. Wild animals, squirrels, and turkeys, eat the corn in the fields. In politics, Mr. Wright was a Republican; in religion, a Presbyterian. He assisted in forming the church at Lithopolis. His death occurred in 1871, aged seventy-eight years. His wife died in 1864, aged sixty-nine. John C. lives on the old homestead; William lives on the adjoining farm.

Daniel Wilson emigrated from Delaware to Ohio in 1806. He became a soldier in the war of 1812. After his return he married Sarah Gordy, and settled near Circleville. In 1818 he moved to Harrison, and in 1820 to Madison, where he bought one hundred and sixty acres of land from Obediah Allen, in the southeast corner of section thirty-one. He raised ten children; of whom William, lives in Delaware county; Mary died when a young woman; Jane married John A. Peters, and lives on the same section on which her father lived; Elizabeth married William Whitehead, and lives in Harrison; Sarah married George Coon, and lives in Madison; Rachel married George Cummings, and lives in Franklin county; John lives on the home farm; Daniel and George live in Franklin county; and Thomas in Shelbyville, Illinois.

Michael Millar is the son of Isaac Millar, who came to the country in 1806. He was born in March, 1820, and has done his part in subduing the wilderness. He married Margaret Reed in 1845, and has had six children: Mellissa, George, Alice, Kate, and Mattie; one died in infancy. He lives on a farm given him by his father, in section thirty-two. Near his house stands a log cabin used by the Reed family, as a house, in 1805. It was originally built with a chimney at each end, and a door on each side, where immense back-logs were drawn in, by a horse, to feed the roaring fire-places.

Isaac Bean came from Frederick county, Virginia, in 1825 or 1830, with his family. Before coming to Ohio he served in the war of 1812. His family consisted of his wife and five children; Isaac Newton; James; Zebulon Perry; Mordecai: and Dabney. Isaac Newton lives in Harrison, and his father resides with him; James, Mordecai, and Dabney have been editors of papers, and James was at one time a member of congress.

Jesse Spangler settled in the eastern part of the township in 1829. He afterwards moved to Henry county.

Henry Culp came to Madison about 1829, and settled on section thirty-four. His children were: Levi, Lewis, Amos, Leah, Harriet, Lucinda, Mahala, Catharine, Naomi, Lorene; Minerva, who died an infant; Levi, who is in Indiana; Lewis, deceased; Amos, in Franklin county; Leah married David Brobst, and is deceased; Harriet married George Cromley, and lives in Columbus; Lucinda married John Sawyer; Mahala married Joseph Miller; Catharine married Mr. Hickle; Naomi married Mr. Bradley, and lives in Indiana; Lorene married Benjamin Brobst, and lives in London, Madison county.

Jacob Brobst and family came from Berks county, Pennsylvania, in 1806, and located in Bloom township, Fairfield county. His children were: Jacob, Peter, John, David, Mary, and Salome. Jacob married Phebe Hoover, and settled in Madison township, on section twenty-five, where he died; his widow lives on his farm. Peter married Elizabeth Fuller, and lives on the north half of section five, in this township. They had nine children, but two of whom now live in the township—Monroe on a part of the home farm, and Joseph at the old homestead with his father.

John Noacker emigrated from Pennsylvania to Madison in 1832. For a few years before coming here he worked at his trade, that of a tinner, in Columbus. He married Catharine Kroninger, and located on a farm of one hundred and sixty acres, belonging to his wife, in 1838. His children were: Henry, Peter, Phebe, Diana, William, Mary, Sophronia, Catharine, and Clarissa. All but one live at home.

EARLY INDUSTRIES.

An oil-mill was erected by Jacob Shook on the southwest quarter of section fifteen. Its purpose was to make oil from flax-seed. This business was carried on some eight or ten years. Afterwards the site was used on which to build a saw-mill, by the same owner.

A copper still was built on section sixteen, about 1820 or 1822, by William Bishop. It was run for a number of years. Another copper still was erected on the southeast quarter of section sixteen, by Jesse and John Reed, in 1825. Still another was located on land owned by John Decker. This was owned and operated by Enoch Henry, and was on the east side of Walnut creek.

The first grist-mill was built and owned by Luke Decker, father of Vause and John Decker, in 1816 or 1817. Nathan Perrill and H. H. Sage assisted in the construction, of the mill. Business was conducted there for over twenty-five years.

Isaac Millar run a small still soon after his settlement, in 1806. He also introduced the first threshing-machine and the first reaper in the township. A copper still and mill was run by Wiliam Teegardin at the time of the building of the Ohio canal, in 1825–30.

Jacob Shafer moved from Harrison to Madison, soon after 1810, and established a small tannery; he also had a small mill, for grinding, in connection with this. It was run by horse power. Luke Decker had a mill on Walnut creek, about 1815. It was located on section twenty.

Stone quarries have been opened in the township, for local use, but the quaility of the stone is not very good, and no quarries are worked, except as the inhabitants need stone for foundations to buildings and for cellars.

EARLY SCHOOLS, ETC.

Among the early school teachers was Travis Red, who taught in what is now known as district one, on land owned by Aaron Teegardin. The school was conducted in the usual style of those days. He was succeeded by David Ammon, who lived among the settlers, wrote deeds, and was a favorite. Many old deeds, in his handwriting, may be seen in the township. He afterwards became editor of the Castigator, at Ripley, Brown county. Another prominent teacher was William McArthur, who taught a number of terms. Afterwards, he was county auditor and treasurer, and died in Circleville. Other teachers of early times were: John Wright, Alexander Cameron, Truman Bowen, David Daugherty, and John Miller. At this time there are five district schools in the township.

The first fine house in the township was built by John Ritter, but at what date cannot now be ascertained. It was weather-boarded, and was painted red. It was a notable house in its day.

Among the early justices of the peace were: Joseph Kelly, George Reed, George Gibson, and Nathan Perrill.

BUSINESS.

The local business in Madison is very limited, consisting of that done at Teegardin's store, one wagon and blacksmith shop, and three boot and shoe makers. Most of the repairing and building of wagons is done in some of the adjoining towns. The first blacksmith in the township was John Ritter, who came to Madison in 1804 or 1806. In 1866 G. A. Knepper and John Teegardin built a store, and opened a stock of goods at St. Paul. They continued in partnership one year, When Knepper sold out. It was then run a year by Teegardin & Julian, when Teegardin became sole proprietor, and conducted the business five years, when he associated with himself his brother, Philip. It was again run five years in partnership. At the end of that time John Teegardin bought his brother's interest, and has since conducted the business alone.

INDIANS.

When the country was first settled, bands of the Shawnee Indians hunted in the forests of Madison, and in the spring made sugar in the maple groves, but did not make it a regular camping ground. Some remained here for several years, until game became scarce, when they wandered away, in search of new hunting grounds. They were uniformly civil, and seldom, if ever, caused any uneasiness among the settlers.

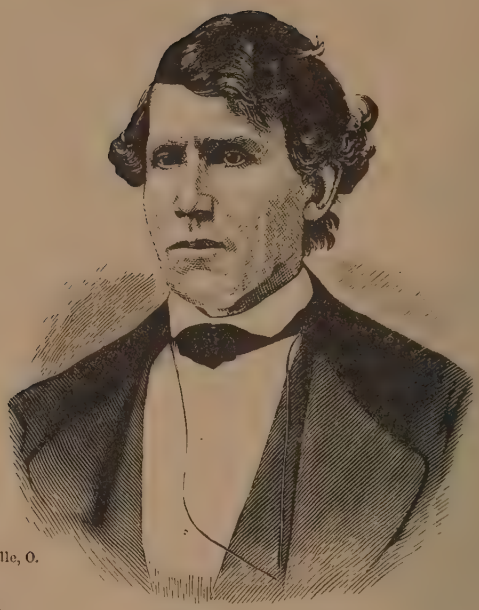
SOCIETY.

The only society in the township is a Grange, which was started in 1875. Prominent among the members are John Cromley, Aaron Teegardin, Philip Teegardin, V. S. Decker, Philip Pontious, Hugh Traverse, Nathan Perrill, Nathan and Augustus Moore. Meetings were held in Perrill's school-house, on the northeast corner of section twenty-one. These were continued some three years, but at present little interest is taken in the Grange.

POST-OFFICE.

Madison township had no post-office until quite late—just before the war of the rebellion. Previous to that time, all mail was obtained at the nearest post-office—some going to South Bloomfield, some to Franklinton, Lancaster, or Lithopolis. Each neighborhood would get its mail by some one person, who went to the post-office once or twice a week, so that all were not obliged to go after mail each week. In 1859 or 1860, an office was established at St. Paul's which was, at that time, called Teegardin's. Rev. J. A. Roof was appointed first postmaster, and administered the office at his residence. No provision was made for carrying the mails, and for several

Photos by Spencer, Circleville, O.



MRS. JACOB MILLAR.

JACOB MILLAR.

RESIDENCE OF JACOB MILLAR, MADISON TP., PICKAWAY CO., O.

years it was done by private enterprise, no bond being given, and persons in the neighborhood alternating in bringing mail. Finally, a private subscription was raised, and George Coon carried it for two years—during 1868 and 1869. Andrew H. Duvall succeeded him, and carried it for several years, until a regular route was established between South Bloomfield and Marcy, on the line in Fairfield county. The name was changed to St. Paul's. The second postmaster was Louis Rhodes. John Teegardin has been postmaster for the past ten years, and keeps the office in his store.

CHURCHES.

ST. PAUL EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH

was organized in 1834. The members of this denomination in Madison, finding it too far to attend services in the adjoining county of Fairfield, petitioned the synod of Ohio, at Miamisburg, for a minister and a separate organization, in this year. Their petition was granted, and the Rev. Joseph A. Roof was licensed as a preacher to minister to them. The first service was held at the house of Mrs. Mary Magdalene Hoover, June 29, 1834. On August 3d the congregation assembled and organized as a church, electing Solomon Teegardin and John Brentlinger as elders; Elias Hoover and Jacob Lilly as deacons. They were installed into the duties of their respective offices the same day. Preaching was for a time held in school-houses. December 3, 1834, a meeting was held to consider the propriety of purchasing a lot and building a church. A subscription was raised and a lot purchased on section twenty-three, on which a church-building was erected the following year. By the terms of the subscription, this church was to be the joint property of the Evangelical Lutheran church and the German Reformed church. The building was not completed until 1838, though it had been occupied since 1835. Mr. Roof continued as pastor until 1855, when he resigned. He was again called to the pastorate in 1860. In 1863 it was determined to build a new church, which was done, at a cost of four thousand dollars. In 1869 Rev. E. T. S. Tressel was called to the pastorate, and became their minister. In 1872 a parsonage was built, of brick, at a cost of fifteen hundred dollars. The present membership is one hundred and twenty-five. A Sabbath-school is conducted by the members, with a good attendance. The superintendent is Esther Brown; assistant, David Adkins. The new church was built, and is entirely owned by the Evangelical Lutheran church.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH

was organized in 1856. The first minister employed was Rev. Peter Eirich. In 1856 the congregation raised means, by subscription, for the purpose of building a church, and in the same year a frame church was erected on the southeast corner of section twenty-five, on land given for the object by Jacob Brobst. The first members were: Peter Brobst and family, Jacob Brobst and family, David Brobst and family, Conrad Salt and family, Samuel Smith and family, David Hall and family, Reuben Smith and family, and others. Reuben Smith was greatly instrumental in forming the church. The present minister is Rev. Joseph Beck. A Sunday-school of about one hundred members is maintained, under the superintendence of Monroe Brobst. The church numbers some eighty communicants, with a good attendance and no debt.

A METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

was organized in Madison about 1844, by Isaac Hunter, who was a circuit preacher about that time. It was called Pleasant Grove church, and was included in the Lithopolis circuit. A church-building was erected in 1850, and services were continued here until 1869 or 1870, when the building was sold to the township trustees for use as a school-house. No services of this denomination are now held in the township, the congregation going to churches in the adjoining townships—to Winchester, Lithopolis, and to Hopewell church, on the Franklin county line, near Walnut creek. Isaac Rainier and Thomas Shawhan were among the early members of Pleasant Grove church.

CEMETERIES.

The first cemetery in the township was located on land now owned by Vause Decker, northwest of the school-house, in the center of section seventeen. The land was owned at the time by a non-resident, Jacob Behenstaugh by name. A number of burials were made there, but the place is now neglected, and no marks are left.

A cemetery was opened by Z. H. Perrill, on the old Perrill place, in 1843. Nathan Perrill was the first person interred there.

At the present day there are cemeteries at the Lutheran church, on the northwest quarter of section thirty-three; on the northwest quarter of section twenty-two; on the northeast quarter of section thirty-four; on the northwest quarter of section twenty-three; and on the southeast quarter of section twenty-five.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JACOB MILLAR.

The subject of this sketch is a native of Madison township, having been born there November 5, 1817. His father was Isaac Millar, and his mother, Susan Decker, to whom he was married in Hampshire county, Virginia, in 1811 or 1812, in which year he brought her to Ohio to begin a pioneer's life. He first came to Ohio in 1806. He bought three hundred and twenty acres of land in section twenty-eight, Madison township, on which he built a log cabin, and made a clearing of twenty or thirty acres. The first year of his arrival he spent with his brother, William Millar, in Harrison township, by whom his land in Madison was first entered. The cabin in which he lived after marriage, and in which Jacob Millar was born, was built of logs, with puncheon floor. The logs of which the old cabin was built are still in use in a smaller cabin on a part of the old farm.

The first child born to Isaac Millar and his wife, was Rebecca, in 1813. She married William Short, and moved to Illinois, where she died. John D. was the second child. He married Ann Amelia Jones, and died in Harrison. The following named children came after: Jacob, Michael, Susan, Sarah, Franklin—the three latter being deceased; Hannah became the wife of George W. Brown, of Pennsylvania, and Elizabeth married Jesse Musselman, and lives in Harrison township.

Jacob Millar, from his earliest boyhood, worked at the hard work of clearing the land, and raising crops among the stumps in the new country. His father was always a hard worker, and the sons were not behind him. The assistance given by the boys from the time they could do the smallest chores, was not to be despised. His opportunities for obtaining an education at school, were very limited, and generally consisted of two or three months' attendance at such schools as were then taught, during the winter months, for a few years. Since his manhood he has made good use of the opportunities he has had, and is one of the substantial men of his township. He remained at his father's house until his marriage.

He was married, November 12, 1854, to Miss Florentine Kauffman, of Bloom township, Fairfield county. They immediately began housekeeping on the farm they now occupy, though not in the same house. His father and mother remained in the same house until the death of the latter, June 13, 1858. After the death of his mother, his father gave each of his children a share of property, the sons receiving land and the daughters a money share. Jacob Millar received two hundred and sixty eight acres in Madison, and one hundred acres in Harrison township. He has since bought an additional forty acres in Harrison. In 1867 they built their present beautiful and commodious brick residence, on the bank of Walnut creek.

During their married life there have been born to them seven children: Susan Elizabeth, who married Edwin A. Peters, and lives in Franklin county; De Witt Clinton, Mary Frances, Hannah Rebecca, Cora Bell, Lucretia, and John Decker. All, with the exception of Elizabeth, remain at home. Mr. Millar and his wife have always been hard workers, and their home, with its many comforts and conveniences, is a constant reminder of the toil during the past. Their children are growing up around them, a comfort to them in their later life, while plenty surrounds them.

AARON TEEGARDIN.

The subject of this sketch, Aaron Teegardin, was born in Franklin township, Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, February 23, 1810. When about one year of age, his father emigrated, with his family, to Ohio, arriving in Madison township, in April, of that year. His father was George Teegardin, and his mother Christine Brobst Teegardin. On their arrival, Mr. Teegardin located his family on one hundred and sixty acres of land, in section twenty-three. The children of George Teegardin were Barbara, John, Ann, Aaron, and Mary.

Aaron Teegardin, when a boy, attended such schools as the country then afforded, they being sustained by private subscription. His school education was necessarily very limited, and was mostly confined to a few months during the winter, after he became of an age when his help in the necessary work of the farm was valuable. He worked hard, as did even the boys, in those days, at log-rollings, raisings, clearing the forest, and raising the necessary food for subsistence, his only recreation being fox hunting, in the winter, and such gatherings of the young people of the neighborhood as took place.

In March, 1833, he was married to Sarah Hoy. After marriage they moved into a hewed-log house, which still stands near their present residence. Here they lived, and here were their children born, who were as follows: Ephraim, who was born December 27, 1834, and was married to Nancy Sharp, and now lives in Miami county, Indiana; Mahala remains at home; Henry was born April 16, 1841, and died in August, 1863, at Boise City, on the western slope of the Rocky mountains, where he had gone in search of his fortune in the gold mines; John married Harriet Hoffhine, and lives on section thirty-one; Mary lives at home; Augustus owns property in section seventeen, but lives at home; George Philip married Amelia Hoffhine, and lives on the home farm; Levi married Rosetta Phleeger, and lives on the home farm; one child, the second, died in infancy.

In 1850 they built their present substantial farm dwelling, near the log house that had so long been their home. A representation of their home, together with portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Teegardin, appear in connection with this sketch.

Mr. Teegardin was, for more than twenty years, a trustee of his township. During the time the old State militia law was in force, he held the offices of lieutenant, captain, and major, in that organization, serving in these different offices some eight or ten years. He also held the office of justice of the peace from 1844 to 1847.

He has filled a father's place in his care for the orphaned children of his brothers and sisters, all of whom are now grown to manhood and womanhood.

MRS. AARON TEEGARDIN.

AARON TEEGARDIN.

RESIDENCE OF AARON TEEGARDIN, MADISON TP, PICKAWAY CO. O.

HISTORY OF FRANKLIN COUNTY.

TOWNSHIPS AND VILLAGES.

FRANKLIN.

Immediately after the formation of Franklin county, in 1803, the territory embraced within its limits was divided into four nearly equal parts, or townships. The southwest quarter, then nearly double the size of the present entire county, was designated as Franklin township, a name which a part of the original territory still retains. It is the only township in the county that bears its original name. It was reduced to its present limits by the erection of Prairie township, in 1819. It is bounded on the north by the townships of Norwich and Montgomery, south by Jackson, east by Montgomery and Hamilton, and west by Prairie. In this township transpired many early events of importance. Here was begun the settlement of this now populous and wealthy county. Here, in August, 1797, was laid out the pioneer village in the county, Franklinton, now annexed to the city of Columbus.

It will be our province, in the following sketch, to treat upon those matters pertaining to the township of Franklin as at present organized.

The surface features are generally level, the only exceptions being along the course of the streams, where it is rolling.

STREAMS.

The principal water course in the township is the Scioto river, which enters the north part of the township, flows in a southeast course for perhaps one mile, then changing to a nearly due east direction, cuts off a portion of the northeast corner of the township. Reaching the eastern boundary of the township it turns southward, coursing along this boundary line, which it forms. This stream is of some importance as furnishing water-power advantages. The Olentangy river, next in size, flows from the north, discharging its waters into the Scioto at or near the point where it turns southward on the east line of the township. Flowing from the west, across the south part of the township, is Scioto Big run, which, with its tributaries, completes the water courses of the township.

INDIANS.

The red men of the forest were more numerous in the early settlement of the township. They were principally of the Wyandot tribe, though there were scattering members of the Delawares and Mingoes. An extensive encampment was situated on the west bank of the Scioto river, not far from where now stands the Harrisburg bridge. For several years previous to the settlement, the Indians raised corn, on what came to be known in later years as Sullivant's prairie. The venerable Nelson Foos, to whom the writer is indebted for many facts in this history, says that the Indians were peacable and friendly towards the settlers, and that, although when under the influence of whiskey, they fought savagely among themselves, rarely, if ever, did they molest the whites. Jacob Fisher relates that on the general exodus of the Indians, one remained, a harmless old fellow, who subsisted on game, with an occasional donation from the settlers. He was eventually shot by a hunter named Daniel Harrington.

SETTLEMENT.

Early in the year 1797, Lucas Sullivant came to Ohio, and with a corps of chain-carriers, markers, etc., engaged in surveying land and locating warrants, in the Virginia military district, west of the Scioto. The subsequent fall, the village of Franklinton was laid out by him, and to facilitate settlement, the lots bordering a certain street were donated to such as would become actual settlers thereon. The name "Gift street" was given the thoroughfare passing between these lots. That this inducement to settlement was successful, is clearly attested by the immediate and constant growth of the primitive town. We learn that during the first years of the settlement, the great amount of sickness in the vicinity retarded, to a considerable degree, rapid immigration. The diseases being malarial were more annoying than dangerous, and the natural advantages of the country—fertile soil, abundant range for cattle, and game of all kinds in unlimited quantity, were features too important to be overlooked; and gradually the colony increased until the war of 1812 came on, during which period, Franklinton is said to have reached the zenith of its prosperity.

W. T. Martin says, upon the authority of A. McElvain, who came from Kentucky to Chillicothe with his parents, in the spring of 1797, and subsequently settled in Franklinton, that the "first white family who settled in Franklinton, then called the Forks of the Scioto, was Joseph Dixon." This was during the fall or winter of 1797–98. Mr. Martin gives the names of the following first settlers: George Skidmore, Robert and Jeremiah Armstrong, William Domigan, James Marshall, John Brickell, John Lisle and family, William Fleming, Jacob Grubb, Jacob Overdier, John Blair, John Dill, Arthur O'Harra, the Deardurfs, and the Sells.

For a sketch of Lucas Sullivant, the reader is referred to the history of Columbus.

Joseph Foos, who was a native of Ohio, removed to Harrison county, Kentucky, where he married Lydia Nelson. Late in the fall of 1798 he came to Ohio, making settlement in Franklin township. His log cabin was constructed upon the farm now owned by the Osborn heirs, on the Harrisburg pike. In 1803 he built a brick house in Franklinton and engaged in hotel-keeping.

This building was considered a monster affair for the period. His son says it would hardly make a respectable kitchen for the hotel of to-day. Mr. Foos continued in the hotel business until 1818, the greater portion of the time. Being an energetic public man, he was early elected to the legislature, and served, with scarcely an interval, twenty years. He did a few months' service in the war of 1812, ranking as brigadier-general, and afterwards with the militia he rose to the rank of major-general. He devoted considerable time, and expended some money, in the interest of a canal across the Isthmus of Darien, now being built. Mrs. Foos died as early, perhaps, as 1809. The children by this marriage were: Nelson, who married Jane Price and lives in Columbus; Frank, who married Mrs. Amelia Ray and lives in Illinois; and Eliza and Ellen, who are deceased. Mr. Foos married a second time, the fruits of this union being: William, John, Lewis, Gustavus and Joseph (twins), and Clara, all living in Ohio except Joseph, who is deceased.

William Domigan, sr., was among the first settlers in Franklinton. He came from Maryland, and, in 1803, opened a hotel, which he kept until his death, in 1831. The court records of August 8, 1803, show that "a license be granted William Domigan, sr., to keep tavern in his own house in Franklinton, until the next court of common pleas for Franklin county, and afterward, until he can renew his license." The children of William Domigan and wife are: Enoch, Abijah, William, Eden, (another son, who went to sea and was not heard from afterwards), and a daughter, Marib, who became the wife of Thomas Riddle and died in Franklinton in 1843 or 1844. All the children are now deceased; Enoch, the last, having died recently in Galena, Delaware county. William was drowned in the Scioto river. Eden was killed at the raising of Sullivant's (now Rickley's) mill. Abijah lived and died in Franklinton, dying in 1841. His son William, now living in Clinton township, was born in 1812. He was elected sheriff of Franklin county in 1841, and also in 1863, serving four years from each election.

Michael Fisher, who was a native of Virginia, removed with his family, then consisting of a wife and one child, to Ohio, locating in Franklinton, in its infancy. After some years' residence here, they removed to Hamilton township, and there died.

John Huffman, who was born in Maryland, removed, when a child, with his parents to Washington county, Pennsylvania, and there grew to manhood. He became a captain under Lord Dunmore, and while encamped at Chillicothe, he made a reconnoissance as far north as the fork of the Scioto. Here, near where is now Franklinton, he found a body of Indians with whom he engaged, and who finally swam the river and escaped. He then returned to Chillicothe, and eventually to his home in Pennsylvania, where he married and reared a numerous family. During his stay in Ohio he was so well pleased with the country, that he resolved to return. An opportunity did not occur until the spring of the year 1800, when he came out and made purchase of three hundred and eighty acres of land in Franklinton township, a portion of which is now occupied by a grandson, George W. Four years later he permanently located on his purchase, building his log cabin upon the west bank of the Scioto river. The year following his settlement he erected a distillery near his dwelling, and this he operated for several years. He, for a time, run a flatboat on the Scioto, as far south as Portsmouth, for trading purposes. In after years he purchased four thousand acres of land in Plain township, paying for the same one gallon of whiskey per acre. Mr. Huffman died in 1826, and his wife some years previous. The children were: Henry, Elizabeth, John, Barbara, Priscilla, Catharine, Jacob, Peter, and Mary. Two only of these located in Franklin township: Jacob, who married Rebecca White, and passed his days on lands now occupied by his son, George W.; and Mary, who became the wife of Abram Scott, and died a few years since in Columbus. The remainder of the family settled in Plain township, and are now deceased.

Jacob Walcutt and Mary Macy Walcutt, his wife, from whom have descended the numerous people of this name who are now residents of Franklin county, were natives of Loudoun county, Virginia. The date of their location in Franklin county was in the year 1815. His wife died four days subsequent to their arrival. Mr. Walcutt's death occurred in 1832. The children were: Mary, who died while en route for Ohio; James, who married Mary Legg, and Jacob, who married Elizabeth Riley, settled in Franklin township; John, who married Marilla Brodrick, and located in Columbus; and Robert, whose wife was Susan Legg, and who found a home in Perry township. None are now living. James settled on the Scioto river, in this township, in 1828, and died there in July, 1876, at the age of over eighty-six years. His wife, Mary, died in 1861. They raised a family of ten children, eight of whom are now living: Melinda, wife of Eli K. Williams, in Mifflin; Huldah, widow of Richard Walcutt, in Norwich; Jane, wife of James Ruby, on a part of the homestead; Eliza, wife of Eri Douglas, in Norwich; Susannah, wife of Samuel Sandusky, in Truro; Rhoda, wife of Bartley O'Harra, in Prairie township; Laura, wife of Thomas Kramer, in Madison county; and James, on the homestead. John Walcutt's children are: Ann, David B., Virginia, and Charles C., who all reside in Columbus.

The family of Robert Walcutt, all of whom reside in the county, consist of seven children, namely: James, Absalom, John, Louisa, Millie, Robert, and William.

Samuel Sandusky, sr., from Kentucky, was among the pioneers of Franklinton. He married, subsequently, Polly Perrin, who died in 1825, and the year following he removed to Madison county, where he afterwards lived. He was married a second time, and was the father of five children, four by his first wife, two of whom are now living, namely: Rebecca, wife of Tracy Wilcox, living in Delaware county; and Samuel Sandusky, jr., resident of Truro township, this county. He married Susannah, daughter of James Walcutt, previously mentioned. Samuel Sandusky, sr., was a gunsmith by trade, and was one of the most expert hunters in the county.

Samuel White was prominent in the pioneer settlement of Franklin township. He was a soldier in the Revolution, and served nearly seven years during that determined struggle to throw off the galling yoke of British oppression. It is said, by descendants of the family, that Mr. White, at the battle of Stoney Point, was scalped by the Indians, and left on the field of battle. At the close of the war he returned to his home, and married Jane Stewart, with whom he emigrated, from Hardy county, Virginia, to Ohio. The date was 1805. A settlement was made on the bank of Scioto run, in Franklin township, on the farm now occupied by A. H. Shade. Mr. White not being possessed of health sufficient to do farm labor, passed many years of his life in teaching school. His death resulted from injuries received from a runaway horse, in October, 1841. Mrs. White deceased in January, 1839. The children are: James S., John M., Samuel, Sarah and Elizabeth (twins), Alexander, William, Rebecca, Jacob, and George, all of whom are deceased except the latter, who married Mary A. Baltimore, and lives in Franklin township.

John Goetchius was one of the pioneer settlers, but of him, or family, the writer has no record.

Ralph Osborn, who located in Franklinton, in 1806, was a native of Waterbury, Connecticut. He was an attorney-at-law. In 1808 he was appointed the first prosecuting attorney for Franklin county. In 1810 he moved to Pickaway county. In 1815 he was elected State senitor, and served some eighteen years. In 1833 he was elected senator, and died in Columbus, December 30, 1835. Doubtless an extended sketch of this gentleman will be given in another department of this work.

Isaac Miner (afterwards Judge Miner) came from the State of New York, to Franklinton, in 1806 or 1807. A brother, Jeremiah, came on the following year, and perhaps two years later, they removed to Madison county.

William Harrison was a native of New Jersey. His wife was Helen Sisco. He was, for years, superintendent of the Longwood iron works. In 1807 he removed to Ohio, and purchased a farm in Franklin township, and engaged in farming, which avocation he pursued during life. He died October 24, 1824, and his wife died in January, 1830. There were six children in the family: James, Martha, Sarah, Charles, Anna, and William. All are deceased except the last-named, who resides in Columbus.

R. W. McCoy, who was a native of Franklin county, Pennsylvania, came to Franklinton, in 1811, and engaged in merchandising. Five years later he removed to Columbus, where he engaged in the same avocation, which he prosecuted until his death, January 16, 1856.

William Miller and his wife, Christina Fisher, were natives of Virginia. The period of their location in Franklin township was early in the present century. A grandson (William), now occupies the original homestead. Mr. Miller was a farmer, and in time brought his broad acres of dense woodland to a profitable state of cultivation. He died November 1, 1850; his widow survived him many years, her death occurring August 15, 1875. They had but one child, Adam, who married Mary Wolf, and has left numerous descendants in the county. Of these, William, Jacob, and Fisher, live in Franklin township, and Margaret (Mrs. J. McDonald), and George reside in Jackson township.

Orris Parish, who was a lawyer, came from the State of New York to Franklinton, early in the settlement. In 1816, he was elected president judge of the court of common pleas, for this district. He became eminent as an attorney, and died in Columbus in 1837.

Without doubt, there are many other persons who located in Franklin township in its early settlement, who are entitled to a place in this history. The indifference manifested by those having the ability to furnish facts, has greatly retarded the writer, and is his only apology that this department is meagre.

Jacob Stimmel came from Virginia to Ohio in about 1820. He married Mary E. Landis, and, in 1828, located in Franklin township. He was a farmer, and died early in September, 1853; his wife died in April, previous. Two of the children live in Franklin township: Samuel, who married Mary E. Holten, and John, whose present wife was Mary E. Miller; Mary (Mrs. William Vance), and Sarah (Mrs. John Holton), live in Columbus, and Eliza J. (Mrs. W. T. Reese), lives in Hamilton township.

John Holton and family located in this county in 1834.

Emanuel Alkire came from Lewis county, Virginia, to Franklin township, in 1828. His wife was Sarah White. He located on the farm now occupied by N. Gantz, where he died, September 20, 1849; his wife died January 5, 1839. Of the twelve children belonging to this family, the following are now living: Jesse, Eliza (Mrs. Jacob White), William, Joseph, James, and Nancy.

Capt. Adin G. Hibbs came from Pennsylvania in 1832, He had previously married Pamelia Shade. He lived for a time in Columbus, and subsequenty laid out the village of Shadeville, where he lived a few years. He now lives in Franklin township, and has amassed great wealth. But one child has blessed this couple, born prior to coming to Ohio. It died in infancy.

Conrad Clime, whose life-work has been that of a farmer, married Rebecca Heaton, and, in 1833, removed from Bucks county, Pennsylvania, to Ohio. He lived for perhaps one year in Columbus, then purchasing land in Franklin township he removed thereto, and there he still resides. His wife died August 9, 1841. The children were: Mary J. (Mrs. C. White), Anna E. (Mrs. R. Vanderburg), and William F., who married Mary L. Briggs, and lives on the old homestead.

Jacob Shade removed from near Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, to Jackson township in 1835. He now lives in Franklin township. His wife died in 1842. The children living are: Adin H., who married Ann White, lives in Franklin township; Ann E. (Mrs. H. Bailey), lives in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and Aadline (Mrs. R. Finney), lives in North Wales, Pennsylvania.

Joseph Cromwell, who was a direct descendant of the renowned OliverCromwell, married Mary Ann Hull, and in 1835 came from Frederick county, Maryland, to Franklin county. After several removals he located permanently on a tract of land in Franklin township, which he purchased from Capt. George Skidmore, a pioneer in the county, and here they yet reside. The children are: Emeline, who lives at home; John S., who married Eliza J. Anderson, lives in Franklin township; Josephine (Mrs. J. Legg); Charlotte (Mrs. L. E. Green), Sarah lives at home; and Frances V. (Mrs. S. J. Woolley), lives in Brown. township.

Thomas Deems, who was a native of Pennsylvania, married Mary Sims, of Muskingum county, Ohio, and in the spring of 1841, located upon the farm he still occupies, in Franklin township. His wife died November 12, 1870. Mr. Deems has worked at blacksmithing during his life. His children are: Melissa (Mrs. James Kennard), Gilbert C., Stephen F., Jerusha (Mrs. C. Wagner), Sarah (Mrs. David Smiley), and Lavina, who died in infancy.

Joseph O. B. Renick, a son of William Renick, sr., who was of the family so prominent in Pickaway county, was born in Harrison township, of that county, in 1810. He married Julia McNeal, of Hardy county, Virginia, and in 1855 removed to Franklin township, locating upon the farm he still occupies. Mrs. Renick deceased December 15, 1844, and in 1851 he married Rebecca Adams, of Chillicothe. By the first marriage, the following children were born: William, Daniel, McNeal, Felix, Juliet E., and two who died in infancy. One child was born of the present marriage, also deceased. Mr. Rennick was engaged in merchandising, in Circleville, some years, and brought the first stock of goods to that place over the Ohio canal. He is now extensively engaged in the raising of short-horn Durham cattle. He has for some years paid considerable attention to the growing of blooded horses.

FIRST EVENTS.

In 1803, Joseph Foos opened a hotel in Franklinton, and about the same time William Domigan announced entertainment for man and beast. The last named hostelry was of logs, but large and commodious. These were the first taverns in Franklin county. The first merchandizing was by Robert Russell, and the date as early as 1803. The stock, which consisted of but an armful or two of general merchandise, was displayed on shelves placed around the sides of a small building designed for a "smoke house;" a small table in the center served the double purpose of counter, and a seat for the proprietor, who could readily reach the goods on the shelves from his seat on the counter. Several "pack-horse traders" were engaged in business here, from time to time. The goods were transported on horseback from Pittsburgh and Detroit, and consisted mainly of iron, salt, and whiskey. The first store of respectable proportions was built by James Scott, in 1806. The first brick house in the township, was, doubtless, erected by Lucas Sullivant. A post-office was established in Franklinton in 1805, and discontinued in about 1835. Following is the first and successive postmasters: Adam Hosack, Henry Brown, Joseph Grate, James B. Gardiner, Jacob Kellar, Joseph McDowell, William Lusk, and W. Risley. At this time there are two post-offices in the township -Camp Chase, which was established on November 10, 1873, with George W. Scott as postmaster, and is located at the point where the C. S. & C. railroad crosses the National road, and another on the same railroad, near the terminus of the avenue, established in February, 1874; Henry Hains, postmaster. At this time there is but one hotel in the township—the "Four Mile House," which has become one of the ancient landmarks. It is situated on the National road, and has been in operation under different owners for many years. Mrs. Harriet Bigelow is the present proprietor. The first burying-ground in the township, is the one situated on the bank of the Scioto river, and north of the former village of Franklinton. In this yard were buried the remains of Lucas Sullivant and wife, General Joseph Foos and wife, Lyne Starling, and a host of those hardy pioneers who helped to subdue the wilderness; but since the establishment of Green Lawn cemetery, the beautiful, silent "city of the dead," many removals have taken place, and the village cemetery appears neglected and forgotten.

ORGANIZATION.

As previously stated, the organization of Franklin township was nearly contemporaneous with the erection of the county. Seventy-six years have elapsed since the first township election. The township records, imperfectly kept at best, are now nowhere to be found, and we must be content to commence with the officers for 1879, who are as follows: William House, John S. Cromwell, and James R. Walcutt, trustees; J. J. Eakin, clerk; Clark White, treasurer; G. M. Walcutt, assessor; Joseph McNinch and G. M. Walcutt, constables; and twelve supervisors of highways.

Following is a list of the persons who have served as justices of the peace for Franklin township from its organization to the present: 1803, ZachariahStephen, James Marshall; 1806, Arthur O'Harra; 1808, Samuel White; 1812, Joseph Grate; 1814, Nicholas Goeches, Joseph Gorton, Jacob Kellar; 1820, Robert W. Riley, Jacob Grubb; 1822, Joseph Badger; 1825, Reuben Golliday; 1826, Stewart White; 1828, William Lusk; 1832, James Graham; 1837, Samuel Deardurf; 1838, Jacob Fisher; 1840, William Caldwell, Adam Alkire; 1841, William Henderson; 1846, Lemuel Frizzell, Jacob White; 1847, Bartley Boyd; 1849, Robert King, Benjamin Overmire; 1854, Bazil Riddell; 1855, Jesse Alkire; 1856, John A. Kellar; 1857, W. B. Preston; 1864, Philip Shafter; 1872, James Tippin; 1875, William Walter, present incumbent; 1878, N. P. Mix, present incumbent.

CHURCHES.

Among the early religious gatherings in Franklin township, outside of Franklinton, were a series of meetings held at the house of Henry Goetschius, by the Revs. Messrs. Austin and Sims, of the Methodist Episcopal church. The date the writer cannot give, but he is informed that it was prior to 1828. The result was the formation of a pioneer class in Methodism, consisting of: John and Nancy Goetschius, Henry and Elizabeth Goetschius, Richard and Sarah House, Elisha and Elizabeth Chambers, Giliom and Leah Demosert, Jacob and Elizabeth White, and a few others, whose names are forgotten. Soon after this class was formed, a log meeting-house was built on Scioto Big run. This was a small affair, and rude in its appointments; yet, for as many as ten years, did this devout band of christians hold frequent meetings within its bark-covered walls. Its successor was the brick edifice known as the Union church, occupying the site of the first church. This charge was formerly attached to Darby circuit, and subsequently to Harrisburg. For a list of the ministers who have presided over this congregation, see the history of the Methodist Episcopal church at Grove City, in another part of this volume. The Union church has now a large membership, and in connection, a flourishing Sabbath-school.

The Friends' church, at Camp Chase, was formed in the spring of 1876, previous to which the members of this sect attended the church at Columbus. The constituent members of the church at Camp Chase were as follows: William and David Binns and families, Lewis and Joseph Ong and families, John Cowgill and family, and John Hussy and family. During the summer subsequent to the formation of the church, a substantial brick meeting-house was erected, at a cost of one thousand three hundred dollars. Its location is on the National road, at the crossing of the Cincinnati, Springfield & Columbus railroad. The present church officers are: William Binns and wife, elders; and John Cowgill, overseer. The present membership of this church numbers fifty persons.

SCHOOL.

Mr. Foos remembers a school which was taught in a little log building standing on Gift street, in Franklinton, as early as 1805. He was one of the scholars. The teacher was an Irishman, of good educational attainments, but who was cursed with an inordinate appetite for whiskey, and when under its influence (which was the greater part of the time) he was cruel and tyrannical. A favorite method of punishment was to compel the victim to place his hands, palms down, upon the desk, in front of the teacher, when he, the inhuman, drunken fiend, would draw the keen blade of his knife across the fingers, making deep gashes. This, finally, coming to the parents, the noble representative of a down-trodden nationality was summarily kicked from the "temple of learning," and it is to be hoped, from the sight of civilized humanity.

SOCIETIES.

At this time these are confined to the order known as Patrons of Husbandry, or Grangers, a society formerly enjoying great popularity among farmers; but of late, we learn, the order has declined materially, and has lost much of its former prestige. In this, history but repeats itself, and if there be real merit in the order, time will weed out the drones, and a safe foundation be established.

Camp Chase Grange, No. 528, was organized February 11, 1874. Its sessions were begun, and are still held, in the school-house, in sub-district number three. The charter members were: J. M. Dunlap and wife, N. P. and Emmett Mix and wives, J. W. Ames and wife, C. Holt and wife, M. Williams and wife, James Fippin and wife, R. Demorest and wife, John H. Bell and wife, W. S. Postle, C. W. and F. Haldy, E. Witson, F. Wilson, J. and J. A. Tom, J. S. Cromwell, W. McGrew, Smith Postle, A. Watts, I. Zellers, and W. Clime. The officers on organization were: J. M. Dunlap, M.; E. Mix, O.; N. A. Mix, lecturer; W. S. Postle, steward; C. Haldy, assistant steward; J. S. Cromwell, chaplain; William McGrew, secretary; and S. Postle, treasurer. The regular meetings occur on the first Monday before the full moon, and two weeks thereafter. The membership is now (August, 1879) fifty. Following are the officers for 1879: William Clime, M.; Frank Sperry, O.; G. Weatherell, lecturer; E. G. Neff, steward; A. Fippin, assistant steward; S. Fippin, chaplain; Charles Haldy, secretary; E. Mix, treasurer; Anna Clime, lady assistant steward; Mary Kaderley, ceres; Mary Jenney, pomona; and Louisa Haldy, flora.

Franklin Grange, No. 632, was organized March 4, 1874, with charter members as follows: Hon. Clark White and wife, J. M. Briggs and wife, J. K. Lowe and wife, Henry Briggs and wife, J. E. Chambers and wife, J. J. Eakin and wife, Jacob Early and wife, William House and wife, Theodore Hart and wife, Harvey Peters and wife, Miss Lucinda Bailey, Lottie and Lizzie Chambers, Henry and Samuel Bitler. The society was organized at the Briggs school-house, by J. H. Hess, deputy grand master, who installed the following officers: Clark White, M.; J. K. Lowe, O.; J. M. Briggs, lecturer; Jacob Early, steward; Theodore Hart, treasurer; J. J. Eakin, secretary. During the season of 1878 the Grange built, in connection with sub-district number five, a substantial brick building, in size, thirty-two by forty-eight feet, the second story of which is occupied for a grange hall. The total cost of this building was two thousand, two hundred dollars. The Grange meets on the first and third Saturday evenings of each month; has a membership of thirty-two, and is one of the most prosperous organizations in the country. The officers for 1879 are: J. M. Briggs, M.; J. J. Eakin, O.; Trevitt Hoover, lecturer; Adin H. Shade, steward; L. W. Campbell, assistant steward; Wright Peters, G. K.; Mrs. William Towns, lady assistant steward; Miss Lottie Chambers, ceres; Miss Eliza Johnson, flora; Mrs. Trevitt Hoover, pomona.

It is highly probable that societies in the interest of temperance have had an existence in the township, but of this the writer has no positive knowledge.

PHYSICIANS.

Without doubt, the pioneer physician in Franklin township was L. Goodale, who located in Franklinton village, in 1805. [He subsequently removed to Columbus city, which see for further particulars of his life]. Dr. S. Parsons, who was a native of Reading, Connecticut, located in Franklinton, January 16, 1811. Some five years later, he removed to Columbus, where he became prominent as a physician, and highly respected as a citizen. In 1843 he was elected to the State legislature, and for many years he was president of the Franklin branch of the State bank of Ohio. Doubtless other physicians have had an abiding place in this township, whose names are worthy of recognition. At this time but one doctor lives in the township, W. D. Crumley, who located on the Harrisburgh pike, in 1846. He is a graduate of the Cincinnati Eclectic college, class of 1848–9, and of the Starling medical college, class of 1862–3. Dr. Crumley has an extensive and quite lucrative practice.

INDUSTRIAL PURSUITS.

For several years there was no mill nearer than Chillicothe. In Franklinton a hand-mill was constructed, which would grind corn, but it was not of sufficient capacity to accommodate the whole colony, and the stump mortar was resorted to by some, while others reduced the corn to a proper condition for bread-making by grating it. The dwellers of to-day, upon this goodly land, can have but a faint conception of the inconvenience caused by the absence of flouring mills. About the year 1800, a small mill was erected, and, about the same time, John D. Rush built another, on the Scioto, a short distance above Franklinton. Both soon fell into disuse, and in time went to decay. After this, mills propelled by horse-power came into use, but they were rude and imperfect in their mechanism. The first grist-mill of any considerable importance in the township, was built by Lucas Sullivant, as early as 1820. This property is now owned by S. S. Rickley, but has been greatly improved. Franklin township has been abundantly blessed with saw-mills, the government, during the early years of the settlement, making donations of land to any person who would construct a mill. Parties would put up a mill, saw lumber enough to get a title to their land, and let the mill go to decay. This, Mr. Foos informs us, was often the case.

CAMP CHASE.

This once famous rendezvous was situated on the south side of the National road, and some four miles west of Columbus. Here thousands of Ohio's loyal sons learned the dread art of war, and went forth to do battle for the flag. Many, very many, never returned; their lives went out as a sacrifice, and beneath the skies of the sunny South, where the orange and the magnolia wave a ceaseless perfume, the spot perhaps unmarked, they sleep the sleep that knows no waking. May traitor footsteps never tread the herbage o'er their graves. The lands formerly embraced within the enclosure of the camps are now divided into lots, and where was once the spacious parade ground, now stand the dwellings of the peaceful citizens. Nothing is left to remind the writer of the days of "lang syne," except, perhaps, that now rapidly decaying hostlery, know as the Four Mile house. It seems little changed, except by time. To the south of the camp, and adjacent to Sullivant avenue, is the Rebel grave-yard, containing the remains of some thousands of Confederate soldiers, who died in the prison at the camp. It is, perhaps, needless to state that these men died of disase or wounds; they were not starved to death by order of the President, as were too many of our brave boys at Andersonville, and other "Courts of Death," under control of the southern chivalry.

THE STATE QUARRY.

The lands embraced in this tract were purchased on April 11, 1845, from William S. Sullivant. They embrace fifty acres, and are situated in Franklin township, on the bank of the Scioto river. The rock is of secondary formations, of different forms and colors, giving to the block an appearance like clouded marble. The strata are from five inches to five feet in thickness, and afford the finest building stone in central Ohio. The stone used in the construction of the state house was taken from this quarry, as was also that used in the construction of the penitentiary and other State institutions.

THE COLUMBUS ASYLUM FOR THE INSANE.

This institution had its inception on January 5, 1835, at which time the State medical convention adopted and sent to the legislative bodies, then in session, a memorial, asking "for the erection of an asylum for the insane, adapted, in all respects, for the relief of mental derangement, etc." Immediately subsequent, an act was passed, establishing a lunatic asylum for the State of Ohio, and the following directors were appointed to purchase a site and attend to the erection of suitable buildings: Dr. Samuel Parsons and Dr. William M. Awl, of Columbus, and General Samuel F. McCracken, of Lancaster. In July following, lands were purchased for a site, situated in the northeast corner of the then corporate limits of the city of Columbus. These were added to until, in 1845, the grounds comprised a trifle over sixty-four acres, and cost six thousand, three hundred and five dollars and thirty-five cents. Subsequently [May 7, 1869], seven and one-half acres of land were added to the asylum grounds, at a cost of fifteen thousand dollars.

N. B. Kelley was appointed architect in July, 1835. Plans were drawn; the necessary appropriation was made by the legislature, and, on April 20, 1837, the corner stone of the building was laid, when there were present Samuel Parsons, William M. Awl, N. B. Kelley (superintendent of construction), William McIlvain, and Isaac Coul. The main building was completed November 10, 1839; the west wing in 1845; the east wing in 1846, and the center wing in 1847. This completed the edifice. Its cost was one hundred and fifty-three thousand, eight hundred and twenty-one dollars and eighty-four cents. About one-third of the labor was performed by convicts from the Ohio penitentiary. The building was quadrangular in form, being three hundred and seventy feet front by two hundred and eighteen feet deep, and covering an acre of ground. It was divided into four hundred and forty rooms, exclusive of the basement. This building was destroyed by fire on the night of November 18, 1868, and of the three hundred and twenty patients, all were rescued except six females, who were suffocated by the intense smoke in ward six. This fire was, without doubt, incendiary.

April 23, 1869, the legislature passed an act for the erection of a new building, to cost not more than four hundred thousand dollars. Ground was broken the following October, but we do not learn that anything further was accomplished.

On April 18, 1870, an act was passed authorizing the sale of the old asylum grounds, for a sum not less than two hundred thousand dollars, and the purchase of suitable grounds elsewhere, in the vicinity of Columbus, at a price not to exceed one hundred thousand dollars. The consummation of this act was the purchase of the grounds upon which now stands the finest building of its kind, perhaps, in the whole world, its erection, prompted by the finer feelings of humanity. It stands to-day a monument of which the whole people of the great commonwealth of the State of Ohio should justly be proud.

The lands, which were purchased of William S. Sullivant, consist of three hundred acres, situated in the township of Franklin, and bounded as follows: on the east by a line commencing at the second mile-stone west of Columbus, on the National Road, and extending north to the Little Miami railroad; north by said railroad; south by the National road, and on the west by a line parallel to the first-named line. The location is upon a hill, overlooking the city of Columbus and the surrounding country, and is designated by the name of Glenwood, which title was given it by the former matron, Mrs. L. W. Peck, as "appropriate to the wild beauty of its surroundings." The directors came into possession of the grounds on the fifth of May, 1870, and the following day the work of excavation for the new structure was commenced. The foundation was commenced on the twenty-third day of the same month, and on the fourth of July, following, the corner-stone was laid by the grand lodge of Masons of the State of Ohio, Governor Rutherford B. Hayes, presiding. There were present many State officers, the Masonic bodies of Columbus, and a large concourse of citizens. William L. Peck, M. D., was chosen resident architect and superintendent of construction, a position which he filled to the full satisfaction of the board. Following are the names of the trustees at this time: S. M. Smith, William B. Thrall, John Hunter, Henry B. Curtis, W. Fullerton, M. D., P. M. Wagenhals, M. D. The building was pronounced complete in the spring of the year 1877, but is was not formally opened for patients until August 13, following.

The following description of this immense structure is from the report of the skillful and experienced architect, T. R. Tinsley:

"The present new structure has an eastern frontage of about eleven hundred feet, and is composed of eight wings for patients, four on each side of the center building, receding from the same. The central part has a depth of five hundred and sixty feet. The patients' wings are constructed with a corridor or promenading court, or day-room, fifteen feet by one hundred and eighty-five feet in the center, with patients' rooms opening on each side, thus forming a ward. These wings average about one hundred and eighty-five feet long, and are connected together by receding wings, wherein are located the dining-rooms, water-closets, baths, and lavatories. Patients' wings are three and four stories high, and contain thirty-two wards, said wards having an average capacity of about thirty patients each. Each ward is supplied with its respective patients' parlor, dining, and attendants' rooms, water-closets, baths, lavatories, drying-room, dead-lifts, dumb-waiters, etc. The front portion of the center building is the administration building, containing the officers', business, and living rooms. The middle part of the center building contains the theater or amusement hall, chapel, etc., the rear end of the center building being devoted to mechanical and domestic purposes—as kitchen, laundry, oven, machinery, boilers for heating and power, engines, etc., these buildings being four stories high.

"The structure presents an imposing and impressive view from the city. It is embellished with numerous towers, spires, and turrets of various designs, which lend quite a picturesque tone to it. It is, withal, a grand structure for a most noble purpose, and reflects credit on the munificence of the State, and honor to its designer Levi T. Scofield, esq., architect, of Cleveland, Ohio.

"The general materials used in the construction of the structure are brick, stone, and iron, the building being made as near fire-proof as possible and practicable for its purpose.

"The consumption of materials, of course, was enormous, approximating thirty-five millions of bricks, the circumference of the edifice being about one and one-eighth miles. There were also four million two hundred thousand pounds of iron-work, comprising, among other things, four thousand five hundred feet lineal of iron stairways, almost seven-eighths of a mile. The steam-heating, ventilating, and water-supply apparatus, plumbing and gas-piping, sewer pipes, foul air ducts, cistern connections, and other like works, have consumed almost one hundred miles of pipes of various sizes and materials.

"There are about ten acres of floor area; this includes wood and artificial stone; more than four and one-half acres of slate and iron roofing; nearly forty acres of plastering.

"The structure has something more than three thousand two hundred windows, and fully one thousand rooms, corridors, and passages, not including the basement compartments, which are wholly dedicated to ventilation by steam fans, steam and other pipes, and railroad track for delivery of food, etc., to the respective dining-rooms. The total number of cubic feet of air space heated is three million three hundred and forty-five thousand. The above quantities give a general idea of the magnitude of the building."

Its entire cost, as shown by the report of the trustees, for the year 1877, was one million, five hundred and twenty-six thousand, two hundred and twenty-six dollars and forty-five cents.

The following are the trustees for the year 1877: George W. Manypenny, president; James Buckingham, Joseph K. Secor, George Mitchell, M. D.; E. J. Blount, board of trustees. The resident officers are: Richard Gundry, medical superintendent; D. A. Morse, H. B. Nunemaker, H. A. Tobey, C. D. Carpenter, assistant physicians; George S. Bell, steward; Mrs. M. M. Gundry, matron. Dr. Gundry served as superintendent until May 15, 1878.

The present officials are: E. J. Blount, president; David W. Brooks, secretary; George W. Morgan, Benjamin Myers, and Joseph P. Smith, board of trustees. The resident officers are: L. Firestone, medical superintendent; H. A. Tobey, C. W. King, Thomas Sparrow, G. P. Follett, assistant physicians; Isaac Anderson, steward; Mrs. L. Firestone, matron. The medical superintendent's report for the year ending November 16, 1878, shows that there were under treatment, during the year, five hundred and eighty-eight male, and six hundred and thirty-eight female patients, making a grand total of twelve hundred and twenty-six.

THE OHIO INSTITUTION FOR THE EDUCATION OF IDIOTIC AND IMBECILE YOUTH.*

The first legislative action having in view the establishment of an institution for the improvement of idiots, was in March, 1850, when a resolution, introduced by Hon. Pinckney Lewis, was passed, appointing the superintendent of the Ohio lunatic asylum, Dr. Hanbury Smith, to report at the next session of the General assembly, upon idiocy and idiot instruction, as follows:

"First, to make inquiry into the expediency of making provisions, on the part of the State, for the support of the idiotic and imbecile portion of our population; particularly it shall be his duty to report the results of experiments already made, and now being made, in the education of the idiotic; also, the number of this class of population in Ohio; and finally, into the economy of supporting and educating this class of our population in institutions adapted to their use, as compared with their support as at present provided."

* By Dr. G. A. Doren.

In January, 1852, Governor Wood, in his annual message, directed the attention of the general assembly to the duty of providing for the care, protection, and improvement of the imbecile and idiotic. Governor Wood's efforts were earnestly seconded by his successor, Governor Merrill, who, in his annual message to the general assembly in January, 1854, recommended that that unfortunate class be embraced within the range or beneficial operation of our benevolent institutions.

In March, 1854, Dr. N. S. Townshend (a trustee of this institution from the date of its organization up to May, 1878), then a member of the senate, to whom was referred so much of the governor's annual message as related to the subject of idiocy, made to the senate a most interesting and able report, which was laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

During the year 1856, public attention was called, through newspaper articles, to the number of idiots in the State, their condition, and their capabilities for improvement, by Dr. R. J. Patterson, who had, for many years, devoted himself to the treatment of insanity and mental diseases. A bill to establish an asylum for idiots was introduced in the house of representatives by Hon. Ralph Plumb, but was presented so near the close of the session that it was laid over for want of time to properly consider and act upon it.

In January, 1857, Hon. Herman Canfield, of the senate, introduced a bill to establish an asylum for the education of idiotic and imbecile youth. This bill became a law April 17, 1857.

The institution was organized by the appointment of Hon. William Dennison, Hon. N. S. Townshend, and Hon. Asher Cook, as trustees. R. J. Patterson, M. D., was elected superintendent. A large dwelling house, opposite the institution for the blind, was rented, and the first pupil was admitted August 3, 1857. Sixteen pupils were admitted the first year. During the three succeeding years the average number of pupils was thirty.

Hon. William Dennison having been elected governor, resigned his position on the board of trustees, and was succeeded by Hon. Herman Canfield, November 15, 1859. Dr. R. J. Patterson resigned the place of superintendent, November 15, 1860, and was succeeded by Dr. G. A. Doren, the present superintendent.

The accommodations of the institution were increased to fifty pupils during the year 1861, which was the average number under care until the occupancy of the new building, in July, 1868.

During the year 1862, Hon. Herman Canfield, who was killed at the battle of Pittsburg Landing, was succeeded upon the board of trustees by Hon. Peter Hitchcock, and Hon. Asher Cook by J. A. Lutz, Esq.

In 1864, the legislature passed an act to permanently establish the asylum for idiots, and appropriated money for the purchase of a site, and the construction of permanent buildings. Work upon the buildings was not commenced, however, until the autumn of 1865. The new buildings were occupied in July, 1868, and were opened with one hundred and five children. The number was increased to one hundred and fifty in 1869; to one hundred and seventy in 1870, and to two hundred and fifty, the capacity of the institution, in 1871. The buildings were then enlarged. In 1872 three hundred pupils were accommodated. Additions were again provided for. During the year 1873, three hundred and ten children were cared for; in 1874, three hundred and fifty-one; in 1875, three hundred and ninety-three. The number of children accommodated each year since 1875 has been over four hundred and fifty. The number now cared for is four hundred and seventy-five. Two new wings are, at this writing, being completed, and, when finished, the number of inmates will be increased.

The present officers of the institution are as follows, viz.: Hon. John A. Shank of Cincinnati, J. M. Montgomery, esq., of Columbus, Hon. J. K. Rukenbrod of Salem, trustees; Gustavus A. Doren, M. D., superintendent; A. P. Bateham, clerk; Miss Harriet F. Purple, matron; Mrs. Sarah Lawrence, assistant matron; Miss Sarah Husted, housekeeper; Mrs. L. N. Doren, Miss M. E. Clift, Miss Lucretia Lockwood, Miss L. R. Seymour, Miss F. Ruggles, Miss J. B. Bateham, Miss P. K. Ayres, Miss J. Zurmehly, Miss Mary Wicks, Miss Annie L. McGrew, Miss J. W. Ricks, Miss Annie M. Clark, Miss M. D. Clark, Miss E. L. Clark, Miss E. V. Thompson, Miss I. H. Breckenridge, Miss F. E. Wright, Miss Mattie Wright, Miss Anna L. Brown, teachers.

WASHINGTON.

This township was set off and organized by its present name, in 1809, at that time including all of its present territory, as well as that of Perry and Norwich, and a portion of Brown township. It was comprised of parts of the original townships of Liberty, Franklin, and Darby. In 1820 it was established, with its present boundaries, a large portion on the east being taken in the formation of Perry.

The earlier settlements were made along the Scioto river, the first being on the site of the present town of Dublin. The territory, at a little distance back from the river, with the exception of that bordering on the runs and small brooks, was late in its settlement. Especially was this the case in the northern part of the township, where the Duns, of Chillicothe, and others, owned large tracts of land, which were not placed on the market until a comparatively recent date.

NATURAL FEATURES.

The eastern portion of the township, where it borders on the Scioto river, has high hills and bluffs, which extend up the valley of Indian run for some distance, and for a short distance up nearly, if not all, the small runs that empty into the Scioto. The main road, extending from north to south, through the township, follows the river bank, in many places, for a long distance, over the out-cropping limestone rock, making a solid and permanent road-bed, though not always as smooth as could be desired.

The timber was originally beech, maple, hickory, elm, ash, walnut, on the bottoms, and buckeye, oak, and other varieties, in a small way. Most of the valuable timber has been cut off and utilized, by being sawed into lumber, though vast quantities were deadened and burned in early days.

The soil is mostly clay, and is capable of producing large crops when properly cultivated.

The streams are: Indian run, which empties into the Scioto river, just above Dublin, and Hayden run, on the south border of the township. There are also numerous small runs, or brooklets, that help to drain the surface of the township. At the point where these runs descend the hills and bluffs, to reach the river, is some very rugged and romantic scenery. In places, the water has a perpendicular descent of from ten to twenty feet, and in the distance of one or two hundred feet, falling sixty or seventy feet. The falls on Hayden run have been, for some years, a favorite resort for picnic parties.

SETTLEMENT.

Among the first settlers of Washington were Ludwick Sells and his sons. Samuel, Peter, Benjamin, and William, from Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania. John Sells, an elder brother of Ludwick Sells, also came into the same neighborhood, in the fall of 1808. Two of the brothers, Peter and Benjamin, came to Ohio first of all, and purchased four hundred acres of land, where the town of Dublin now stands, for their brother John; one hundred acres below this, for their father, and three hundred for themselves, north of Dublin. They afterwards sold one hundred acres of their purchase to their brother, Samuel. They made a large camp, near the spring at Dublin bridge, where they lived some weeks, until cabins could be built. Their settlement was made along the river bank, below the present site of the bridge, and high enough from the bed of the river to be safe from floods. The street on which they settled is now called River street.

George Ebey came with his wife and family soon after the Sells. He, with John Sells, erected a flouring-mill in 1812. A daughter of his married Amaziah Hutchinson, and now lives with her daughters, two of whom married brothers, John and Daniel Thomas, who live in Perry township.

Alexander Bassett came about the same time, and settled a mile southwest of Dublin, where he bought and cleared land. This he sold to Mr. Tuttle, and with his family went farther west.

The next settler below Ludwick Sells was Augustus Miller, who came into the country about 1804.

James Hoey came in 1815, and settled a mile and a half up Indian run, on the north fork, where he made a home.

Joab Hayden, an eccentric genius, settled, very early, in the extreme southern part of the present township, on a run which still bears the name of Hayden's run. He was a very foolhardy man, and would attempt the most dangerous feats, at which he always succeeded in coming off safely. He once went to the Kanawha salt works for salt, and, in a spirit of boasting, said he would climb a very high tree and stand on his head on a limb, nearly a hundred feet from the ground, for a barrel of salt. His offer was accepted, and he proceeded to execute his proposition. After climbing to the designated limb he was offered a barrel of salt to desist from his purpose, but he swore he would stand on his head, and he did, although those present expected to see him fall and meet certain death. He then offered to fall into the river, for another barrel of salt, but no one would make him the offer.

Samuel Sells, a son of Ludwick Sells, settled in Franklinton in 1802. In 1809 he moved to Washington township, and settled a mile west of the present village of Dublin, on Indian run. A large body of Indians, numbering about one hundred and fifty, were encamped on his land, it being a favorite ground for them. Some of them enlisted under General Harrison, among them a noted warrior called Captain Turtle, who participated in the battle of Tippecanoe.

The following were also early settlers: John Wyandt settled three-fourths of a mile west of Samuel Sells; James Slosson, also west of Sells, on Indian run; McCune and Jacob King near by; and Jacob Sladle also on Indian run.

George Ebey came from Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania, to Ohio, in 1805. He settled, for one year, in Franklinton, until he could find a location to suit him. At the end of a year, he removed, with his family, to Washington township, and settled half a mile west of Dublin. He was a miller by occupation, and brought with him a silk bolting cloth, and, soon after his arrival, dressed some small stone, and built a primitive mill for the use of his family, in his own kitchen. Here they ground their own corn and wheat, and always had the wherewithal for good bread and light biscuit, two articles that were considered luxuries among very many of the pioneers. He and George Sells soon built the first mill in Washington township, on the banks of the Scioto river, where it is continued to this day, and is now owned by Joseph Corbin. Mr. Ebey came, with his wife and family of six children, over the mountains in a large Pennsylvania wagon, drawn by five horses, over almost impassable roads through the forest. In their new home they raised ten children, four being born after their settlement. The names of the children were Jacob, Henry, John, George, Betsey, Mary, Barbara, Susan, Sally, and Rose Ann.

Charles Mitchell, accompanied by his wife and family, consisting of six boys and three girls, came from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, in 1815. He came in a large boat from Robstown, on the Yonghighany river, to the Ohio, from there to the Scioto, and up that to Columbus. Some of his boys came on this trip with him. The cargo of the boat consisted of a greater variety of household goods than was generally brought by the early pioneers, including three barrels of rye whiskey, which was made into bitters and taken by the family, none of whom were sick with malarial diseases while that lasted, which was some ten years. The rest of the family came overland from Pennsylvania in a four-horse wagon. Their cows and other stock were driven along at the same time. The family consisted of John, Charles, William, Hugh, Thomas, David, Elizabeth, Jane, and Sarah. Mr. Mitchell bought one thousand and seventy acres o land from Walter Dun, of Chillicothe. This land lies one half mile north of Dublin, and adjoined that purchased by the Sells brothers. A home was made near the bank of the river, where Mr. Mitchell died in 1823. At his death the property was divided among the children, all of whom settled on their land, which they cleared and improved. Charles Mitchell, jr., bought the land owned by three of his brothers, and built a house one half a mile from Dublin, where he now lives. He married Eliza D. Reed, in 1835, and has raised seven children, all of whom are married and live near home. He was agent for the sale of the Dun land some twelve or fourteen years. William Mitchell and Hugh married sisters of Charles Mitchell's wife. Hugh died on his property, near Dublin, which is now owned by his heirs. William lives in Fairburg, Illinois, as does Thomas. A daughter of Charles Mitchell, jr., Annie, married Harlan F. Johnson, and lives a mile north of her father's.

Mr. Horsey was an early settler in Washington, near Dublin. He afterwards sold his land to John Sells.

Elisha Hays came soon after the Mitchells, and settled west of them, on Indian run. Several of the family came at the same time, and their descendants are now living in the township.

Mr. Rogers was the first settler back from the river on the level land. He came about 1825, and located about three miles southwest from Dublin, where he bought land and made a farm. He afterwards sold, and none of the family now remain, with the exception of a widowed daughter, Mrs. Turner.

Mr. Babcock came with Mr. Rogers, and settled immediately north of him.

Messrs. Hunter and Wilcox setted north of Babcock, at a still later date.

Jeremiah Dominy came from Beekmantown, New York, in 1812, in a wagon, with his father-in-law, James Norton. They settled on Sugar run, in Madison county, where he died in 1868. He was twice married, and raised twenty children. His son, Henry, bought two hundred and twenty acres of land of Barney Elrich and Amos Kidwell, in the south part of Washington township, in 1864. He married Harriet Barlow, in 1834, and has nine children, all but one of whom are married.

Henry Coffman came to Ohio in about 1810. He established a hat shop in Ripley, Brown county, where he lived some ten years. His wife was Margaret Sells, whom he married, in Washington township, before coming here to live. He came here about 1820, and moved on the land of Ludwick Sells. He worked some years in the hat shop of Eliud and Charles Sells, in Dublin, and then bought a farm west of the town, where his son, Fletcher, now lives.

James Ewing Donaldson came to Ohio with his father, in 1798, when six years old. They settled in Union county, where his father died early. He was raised by his grandmother and his uncle, James Ewing, and in 1816 married Cynthia Dodge. In 1832 he moved to the northwest corner of Washington township, where he bought two hundred and thirty-two acres of land. At the time of his purchase there was no clearing, and no road in this vicinity. He built a hickory-slab shanty to live in during the summer, and in the fall completed a hewed log house, which he partially built before settling with his family. His children who lived, were James, J. Werden D., Israel C., and David M. James lives on a part of the home farm, on the west side of the road; and his brother, J. W. D., lives on the east side of the same road, near by. Their mother lives with her son James. The land which Mr. Donaldson purchased is in the Means survey, number five thousand one hundred and sixty-two.

E. M. PINNEY.

THE PINNEY FAMILY.

Abner Putnam Pinney was born in Connecticut, February 28, 1779. He, with several of the family, and others, to the number of forty families, were members of the Scioto company, which was organized in Connecticut and Massachusetts, in 1802, for the purpose of founding a colony in Ohio. They chose Colonel James Kilbourne as agent, to examine lands and make a suitable purchase for the members of the colony. A location was made at the present village of Worthington, in the vicinity of which a large tract of land was secured. In the summer of 1803, the following persons came to Ohio, in advance of the colony, for the purpose of building cabins and making some preparations for the accommodation of the families who should follow them: Lemuel Kilbourne and family, Levi Pinney, Alexander Morrison, jr., Abner P. Pinney, William Morrison, Adna Bristol, E. C. Brown, and Israel P. Case. They were followed, in the fall of the same year, by the other members of the colony, who settled on the lands purchased by their agent.

The first marriage in the colony took place on the tenth day of February, 1804, the ceremony being performed by Thomas Stevens, esq., of Franklinton, in the log school-house at Worthington. The persons united in wedlock were Abner P. Pinney to Miss Polly Morrison, and Levi Pinney to Miss Charlotte Beach. Every person then living in the settlement was supposed to be present, and the most that could be was made of this most interesting occasion. Soon after their marriage, Abner P. Pinney and his wife settled in Middleburg, Liberty township, Delaware county, where eight children were born to them, as follows: Mary, born October 23, 1807, died August 6, 1825; Lovisa, born October 19, 1809, died in May, 1855; William Chester, born October 15, 1811, died September 17, 1873; Lyman Gillett, born July 28, 1815, died October 6, 1843; Eli Morrison, born September 27, 1817; Florina Lodamia, born January 29, 1820 (now Mrs. Brooks), lives in Columbus; Betsey Mehetabel, born April 16, 1828, died November 11, 1846. Of these eight children, but two are now living. Mrs. Pinney died, March 19, 1865; Mr. Pinney died in Dublin, at the residence of his son, Dr. E. M. Pinney, in 1869. After remaining in Delaware county until about 1829, Mr. Pinney, with his family, returned to Worthington, where they remained a few years, when they again removed, to Columbus.

Eli Morrison Pinney was born September 27, 1817, in Middleburg, Delaware county. After the family removed to Worthington, he attended school at the academy at that place, where he remained when the family removed to Columbus. When he had become sufficiently familiar with the common branches of education at the academy, he entered upon a course of study in the Reformed Medical college, of Worthington, from which he graduated, in 1838. Immediately after completing his medical studies, he went to Lexington, the county seat of Scott county, Indiana, where he engaged in practice, and were he remained until February, 1842, when he came to Dublin, Franklin county. Here he has since remained, and here he has built up a good practice, and won the esteem and confidence of the community in which he resides. He was married, November 6, 1843, in Dublin, to Marilla Sells, a daughter of Charles Sells, who came with his father, John Sells, to this place, in 1808. From this union, nine children have been born: Charles Lyman, graduated from Starling Medical college, of Columbus, in the class of 1877, after having spent some time at Kenyon college, and is now engaged in practice, with his father, in Dublin. Eli Morrison Pinney, jr., also graduated from Starling Medical college; he was engaged in the practice of his profession at Kenton, Hardin county, where he had built up an extensive practice, at one time having charge of the medical department of the county infirmary. He was killed by the cars, February 19, 1877. The next child was Wilbur, who is engaged in farming, in Delaware county. Glendora Cameron Pinney, the fourth child, married Charles Lander, who is official stenographer of the supreme court, and lives at Columbus. Holmes Sells Pinney is engaged in the drug business, at Dublin. Anna Amanda Pinney married Charles House, and lives on a farm near Dublin. Frank Davis Pinney is at home. Abner Henry is in Missouri, and Marilla Antoinette remains at home. Mrs. Marilla Sells Pinney died at the home of her husband, in Dublin, April 5, 1865, at the age of forty-one years. By her death, her children lost a kind and indulgent mother, her husband a true and faithful wife, and the community in which she lived a loved and sympathizing friend.

Iden Bishop settled on the land south of Donaldson, and previous to his settlement, about 1826. His brother, Finley, bought his land in about 1828.

Richard Hays settled on the run south of Donaldson's, about 1828.

Below Hays, on land now owned by Frank Goble, a man named Lawyer, settled about 1830. He was killed by a falling limb from a tree, in 1832.

The next lot south was owned by a man named Cole, who came about 1828 or 1830.

Joseph Filler came from Frederick county, Maryland, in 1837, and bought fifty acres in the Gilliam survey. The land was originally owned by Dun, and afterwards by Hays, who made a clearing. The north fork of Indian run passes through it. Mr. Filler was twice married, and had six children, all of whom are now dead. His son, Frederick E., died on the place, in January, 1879, leaving a wife and two children.

Adam H. Price came to Franklin county about 1832, when eight years of age. In 1844 he bought land in the north part of Washington township, a short distance east of Donaldson's. He married Phebe Huston, in 1845, and settled on his purchase, where was a clearing, made by previous owners. Since his settlement he has engaged in farming and broom-making. They had ten sons, nine of whom are now living, all but one near home.

Joseph Cosgray came from Pennsylvania to Perry county, where he first settled. While living there he married Elizabeth Gordon, and has raised seven children, one of whom died when twenty-one years of age. In about 1837 he moved to Washington and bought one hundred acres of land in the west part of the township. His children are all married, with the exception of his eldest son, and all live near him.

Hugh Huston came from Pennsylvania in 1826, and settled two miles west of Dublin, on the post road, on a farm owned by the Demar family. He remained here about eight years, and in 1834, moved to the farm owned by Frank Goble, where he remained until his children grew up, when he removed to McLean county, Illinois.

Basil Brown came from Maryland to Delaware county in 1818. In 1821 he settled in Perry township, Franklin county, and in 1826 moved to Dublin, where he worked at his trade, that of shoemaking, until his death, in 1834. His son, James Brown, lives a mile west of Dublin; another son in Norwich township, and a daughter at Hilliard. When he first came to the West he, with his wife and three children, had two horses as a means of conveyance. He walked most of the way, letting his family ride the horses.

Benjamin Sells, son of Peter Sells, who settled near Dublin in 1802, was born in 1813. In 1834 he married Elizabeth Davis, and in August, 1835, settled on his present farm, in the south part of Washington township, on the north side of Hayden run. He bought his land of Allen Latham, who was an heir of the original proprietor, Anderson. Mr. Sells has cleared and improved his farm, and has a comfortable home. They have four children, two of whom live in Hilliard and two in Missouri.

EARLY EVENTS.

The first settlement in Washington township was made at the present village of Dublin, in 1801 or 1802, by Ludwick Sells and his sons, Samuel, Peter, William, and Benjamin. Another son, John, came in the fall of 1808. The first child born in the township was Fletcher Sells, son of John Sells and wife, in March, 1809. Another child, Otis Millington, was born the same night, in what is now Perry township, at that time included in Washington. The first orchard was planted by Ludwick Sells, about 1806. The nearest mill the early settlers could reach was at Old Town, now Frankfort, Ross county. A mill was built at Franklinton, soon afterwards, and a little later, about 1812, one was built at Dublin, by John Sells and George Ebey. A saw-mill was built in connection with it. This mill was built on the site of the stone mill, in Dublin, now owned by Joseph Corban, who rebuilt it, after many years. The old saw-mill was discontinued about 1869. John Sells also built a saw-mill on Indian run, soon after 1812. This was used until the timber supply was well nigh exhausted, and the water drained away so that it could be run but a limited time each season. He then built a mill at another point on the same run, which was in operation many years, and was finally torn down, about 1850. Mr. Sells sawed lumber for his neighbors on shares, as well as sawing his own logs. The lumber he rafted down the river, to Franklinton and Columbus, finding a ready sale there for all he could produce. An oil-mill was erected in Dublin, about 1820, by Daniel Wright, who run it about ten years, when it was abandoned. William Kilbourne introduced a carding machine, about the same time, which was located in the oil-mill. The motive power of both was obtained by means of a horse tread-mill. A distillery was started by John Sells, near the present Dublin bridge, about 1812. It was in operation but about two years. John Sells also started a hat factory, under the hill, near the distillery, where he carried on the business of manufacturing hats a number of years. His sons, Charles and Eliud, learned the business of him, and afterwards built a shop on the hill, where they continued the business some years. The first settled physician in Dublin was Dr. Albert Chapman, who read medicine in Worthington with his uncle, Dr. Upson, and commenced practice there in 1821. During his practice in Worthington, he answered many calls in Dublin, and, in 1830, he located here permanently, and continued in practice until about 1870, though, since 1840, he has not depended on his profession for the means of living.

Dr. Chapman opened the first regular store in Dublin, in about 1832. He continued in business until 1840. At one time, Orange Davis was associated with him in business. Dr. Chapman sold out his mercantile business about 1840, and dealt in land, besides loaning money. At one time he owned one thousand acres of land. Dr. E. M. Pinney commenced practice in Dublin in 1842. He first studied in Worthington, at the botanic school, where he graduated in 1837. He then commenced practice in Indiana, where he remained until 1842, and has now been in continuous practice forty-two years. Dr. J.

R. Marshall came in 1858, after Dr. Pinney, and has been in continuous practice here since that time, with the exception of a term in the legislature. He was a soldier in the Mexican war. Holcomb Tuller came to Dublin, and commenced the mercantile business about 1832. He was born in Perry township, near Worthington, where his father settled in 1806. He married before engaging in business, and at his death was succeeded by his son, E. W. Tuller, who is at present engaged in business at the same stand. Another son, Woodruff, is also engaged in the mercantile business in Dublin. A man from Virginia opened a store in Dublin, after Mr. Tuller commenced business, but did not remain long. The first school in Dublin was taught, about 1820, by F. Henry. The first tavern in Dublin was kept by John Sells, as early as 1809 or 1810. His sign was the black horse—a large picture that would attract the eye of the weary traveler. His son, Eliud, kept the next tavern. The first death in the settlement was that of Mrs. Polly King, in January, 1815. The next was Mrs. George Ebey, in March, 1815. John Christie died soon after, and was followed by others. For several years, about this time, it was very sickly, fever and ague predominating. The first burial ground was located at Dublin. It was used almost exclusively until 1858, at which time the Odd Fellows' cemetery was opened for burials. Some interments were made in the old ground until about 1870, and some have, occasionally, been made since in private grounds. In 1823, Charles Mitchell, jr., and his brother, William, had a flat-boat made, a few miles up the river. They loaded it with flour, pork, potatoes, etc., which they conveyed to New Orleans, where they sold it for enough to about pay their expenses. Quite early in the history of the country, Charles Mitchell slaughtered two thousand, two hundred hogs, in one season, for Mr. Dun. The pork made was shipped to Liverpool. When the country was first settled, salt was obtained from Chillicothe, the price paid being six dollars per bushel.

John Swain bought a mill-site on the Scioto river, just below Dublin, of William Sells, in 1832. He built an oil-mill and put in a carding machine, and afterwards a cloth-fulling machine. These were run quite a number of years, and, in 1855, he sold out to Lorenzo Holcomb, who built a flouring mill on the same site, and discontinued the oil and carding business. After two or three years he sold the property to Holcomb Tuller, who continued the business until his death. In the division of his property, this part fell to his son, E. W. Tuller, who run the mill a few years and then discontinued it. The frame of the building was torn down in 1877, and he built of it a warehouse at Elmwood station, in Perry township.

Holcomb Tuller started an ashery in Dublin, north of the bridge, in 1840. There he made black salts, some four or five years, when he commenced the manufacture of saleratus. He carried on the business ten or twelwe years, and made a good start in business, selling his goods in Cincinnati. A part of the time Isaac N. Wells was a partner in the business. Edward Eberly was the first blacksmith in Dublin, about 1810. He continued at the business until his death. Joab Hayden was a black smith at an early day. He was apt at anything. He hunted wild bees a great deal, and always had a quantity of honey in the house. John Ashbaugh started a pottery in Dublin about 1813 or 1814, and made earthen dishes and porringers. The Indians were good customers of his, often coming, to the number of thirty or forty, to buy his wares. He remained but a few years, being of a roving disposition and wanting to change. Henry Shout built a saw-mill on Indian run, near the present residence of Fletcher Sells, as early as 1818. His mill was run by an overshot wheel. Lumber in large quantities was sawed and floated down to Franklinton and Columbus, where it was sold. The first plows used were made with a wooden mold-board, and a share fashioned by the deft hand of a country blacksmith. These were superseded by the Bull plow, and then by Wood's patent, at that time thought as near perfection as it was possible to attain.

John Sells took the first boat down the Scioto river in the spring of 1821. It was flat-bottomed, and fifteen or sixteen feet wide, by sixty feet in length, and was built during the winter. He secured a load of five hundred barrels of flour, and a quantity of bacon, which he intended to take to New Orleans. He waited until the March freshet to be sure and have enough water on the rapids. Enoch Evans went as pilot, Abraham Sells as cook, John Sells and Moses Davis, as hands. Fletcher Sells also accompanied the expedition. It was prophesied, by many, that the boat would not pass the mill-dams in safety, and Mr. Sells was naturally somewhat anxious as to the result. The dam at Marble Cliff mills was a low one, and was readily passed, but one, some seven feet in height, at or near Franklinton, was dreaded. A large crowd, for those days, was gathered at Franklinton to see the boat pass over the dam. The pilot sent all hands to the stern of the boat, and when the bow struck the water below the fall, it rose slowly from the water and floated on in safety, while loud cheering from both banks testified to the feelings of all on shore. Mr. Sells sold his load at Maysville, Kentucky, and returned to Dublin. Several boats were sent down by other persons at a later date.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

The successive justices of the peace in Washington township, from its organization in 1809, are as follows: 1809, Benjamin Sells and Daniel M. Brown; 1811, Daniel Bruck and Robert Justice; 1812, Justice Miller and Simeon Wilcox; 1815, George Robert and Tracy Wilcox; 1817, John Sells and Patrick Conner; 1818, David Smith, and Chandler Rogers in place of Tracy Wilcox; 1820, Peter Sells and Alexander Bassett; 1822, William Kilbourne, in place of Bassett, resigned; 1824, Charles Sells and Brice Hays; 1827, Charles Sells, re-elected, and James Howard, in place of Hays; 1828, David Bailey, in place of Howard; 1830, Charles Sells, re-elected, and Henry Coffman, and Jacob Pawpaw in place of Bailey, deceased; 1831, John Eberly, elected in place of Pawpaw; 1835, Henry Coffmam, re-elected, and John Uffner; 1834, John Eberly, re-elected; 1836, Daniel

Charles Mitchell

Eliza P. Mitchell

Charles Mitchell was born in Pennsylvania, February 26, 1797. His father was Charles Mitchell, and his mother, Jane (Robinson) Mitchell. Charles Mitchell, senior, was twice married, and had, by his first wife, three children: Jane, Elizabeth and Andrew. The latter went to New Orleans when a young man, and the last intelligence from him was that he had joined the army under General Jackson. The children by the second wife were John, Sarah, Charles, William, Hugh, Thomas and David. In 1815 Charles Mitchell and his family emigrated to Ohio, and settled where his son, Charles, now lives, a half mile north of Dublin, in Washington township, where he bought a large tract of land. He died in March, 1823, and by will devised his property to his wife and children, giving each one hundred and fifty acres of land, with the exception of his wife and his sons, Charles and William, to whom he gave three hundred acres of land, on condition that they pay his debts, which amounted to a considerable sum. A very short time after his death, his sons, Charles and William, started down the Scioto river with a boat load of flour, pork, potatoes and other produce, their destination being New Orleans. On their arrival at that city, they found the market supplied with produce, and in consequence they received but about enough to clear the expense they had been at in the trip. (Other incidents connected with the early settlement of this family will be found in the history of Washington township).

On the first day of September, 1835, Charles Mitchell was united in marriage to Eliza Reed, a daughter of Samuel Reed, who was an early settler on Darby creek, near Milford, Union county. The result of this union was seven children, all of whom are living within a short distance of their aged parents, whom they can see every day. The children were: Martha J., who married Asher Brand; Calvin married Sophia Ashbaugh; Anna E. married Harlan F. Johnston; Olive H. married Joseph Thompson; Mary E. married Frank Goble; Charles W. married Malvina McCauley; Luther R. married Julia Armistead, and remains at the old homestead

The present home of Charles Mitchell was built by his father in 1822, and has since been continuously occupied. It is a strongly constructed frame building, and from appearances, will stand another half century.

Charles Mitchell and his wife were early members, and among the founders of the Presbyterian church at Dublin, the first service of this church in the towhship being held in his father's house. They have been consistent members of the church of their choice for more than forty years, and for several years Mr. Mitchell has been an elder. Five of their children have followed in their footsteps, and joined the same church, as have the wives of each of their sons.

As the result of a hard and laborious life Mr. Mitchell has accumulated a good property, and in his declining years he can sit by his fireside, cheered by the company of his wife, who has been a life-time companion to him, and blessed with the company of his dutiful children and grandchildren.

Wright and James Howard; 1838, John Eberly, re-elected, and William Harris, in place of Howard; 1839, Zenas Hutchison, in place of Daniel Wright, and George Churchman, elected; 1841, John Eberly, re-elected; 1842, Henry Coffman and Z. Hutchison; 1844, John Eberly, re-elected; 1845, George W. Evans, in place of Hutchison; 1848, John Eberly, re-elected, and William Graham; 1848, George W. Evans, re-elected; 1850, John Eberly and William Graham, re-elected; 1851, George W. Evans, re-elected; 1853, John Eberly and William Graham, re-elected; 1854, Eri Douglass in place of Evans—Douglass resigned in 1856, and his place was not filled; 1856, John Eberly and William Graham, re-elected; 1859, William Graham and John Eberly; 1862, John Eberly, A. Thompson and Noah Orr; 1863, J. R. Marshall; 1868, James E. Wright; 1869, G. D. Wilcox; 1872, J. R. Marshall and Samuel Powers; 1872, L. B. Cook; 1875, E. W. Tuller and A. Thomas; 1877, W. J. Shriver; 1878, E. W. Tuller and J. R. Marshall

SCHOOLS.

The first schools in the township were held in Dublin, where was the first settlement, and where the schools have been improving year by year. In 1870 the township built a large hall in connection with a school-house containing three rooms, two of which are now in use. Washington has the usual complement of district schools, most, if not all, of which are supplied with substantial brick buildings, and are provided with good teachers during the spring, fall and winter.

DUBLIN.

The village of Dublin was laid out by John Sells in 1818, and it soon grew to be a place of considerable business, with several stores, taverns, mechanics, and a good flouring-mill on the Scioto river. In 1855 the village was incorporated, and the following officers elected: Z. Hutchinson, mayor; and William Graham, recorder. The municipal organization did not become popular, and after a year's trial it was given up. The village was platted by John Shields, an Irishman, and a good surveyor. He asked the privilege of naming the town, which was granted him, and he said he would name it after the city in Ireland, in which he was born, Dublin.

POST-OFFICE.

There is but one post-office in the township, that of Dublin, which was establised in 1820. The first postmaster was Daniel Wright, who administered theoffice until 1820, when he was succeeded by Moses Davis, who served until about 1827. Isaac N. Walters succeeded him from 1828 till 1831, when John Eberly was appointed. He served until his death in 1864. His son, Thomas Eberly, was then appointed, and has since administered the office.

CHURCHES.

CHRISTIE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURH, was organized about 1807 or 1808, at the house of George Ebey, near Dublin. After the death of Mrs. Ebey, in 1815, meetings were held at the house of Ludwick Sells. Among the early members were: Benjamin Grace and his wife, Catharine; Daniel Brunk and Peggy, his wife; Mr. Sherlock and wife; Mrs. Peter Millington; Benjamin Britton and wife; Isaac Grace and wife; Robert Boyd and wife, besides others whose names cannot now be recalled. Benjamin Grace and Daniel Brunk were early local preachers. The first church edifice was built of stone, on the site of the present church. The ground on which it was erected was given for the purpose by Mr. Christie, after whom the church was named. This was erected about 1837 or 1838. It was torn down and the present building erected in 1868. Rev. Mr. Fisher was an early circuit rider in 1815. Rev. Mr. Farnham was on the circuit in 1817.

Another Methodist church was organized in March, 1879, in the west part of the township. The trustees are D. A. Cosgray, Z. Amlin, John Cramer, John Westwiller, and James Milligan. The class now consists of about forty members. Preaching was held in the brick school-house, adjoining the present church lot, for a time, until about the middle of August, 1879, when a windstorm demolished the building. A neat frame church was erected next the school-house, in the fall of 1879, at a cost of thirteen hundred and seventy-five dollars. A Sunday-school has been sustained at the school house for many years.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

was organized by John Shields, an Irishman, about 1810 or 1811. Among the first members were: Daniel Brunk and wife, who were members of the Methodist church, previously, Benjamin Britton and wife, John Sells and wife, Jacob Pawpaw and wife, and others. Benjamin Britton was a preacher in the church. Meetings were held, for many years, in private houses, the first church, a hewn log structure, being erected on the place of Daniel Brunk, about 1821. Some ten years later, a stone church was built in Dublin, on the corner of the street, west of the bridge that crosses the Scioto river. This building was afterwards sold, and was, for a number of years, used as a wagon shop, until its destruction, by fire, in 1860. A new stone church was commenced, near the present town hall, in 1844, and was completed in 1845. This building was in use until 1877, when the present brick church, of the Christian denomination was erected, adjoining the Odd Fellows' cemetery, at a cost of four thousand dollars. The present pastor of the church is Rev. L. C. Winget. The members have sustained a Sabbath-school for more than twenty years, the present membership of which is about sixty. The superintendent is Isaac Morgan.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The first sermon in Dublin, preached by a Presbyterian divine, was by Rev. James Hoag, in 1817. A small number of christians, and others, met at a cabin, occupied by Charles Mitchell, and enjoyed a discourse by a member of the church they favored. No organization was had until about 1829, when a church was formed, some of the early members being: Mr. O'Hara, William Mitchell (both of whom were early elders), Charles Mitchell, the Donaldsons, Johnsons, Isenbergs, and others. Charles Mitchell was afterwards an elder. A frame church was erected in the north part of town, about 1830, the present membership of which is about fifty-six. The minister, during 1879, is Rev. J. L. Gage, of Worthington. A Sunday-school, of about forty members, is sustained, under the superintendence of Harlan Johnson.

THE UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH

was organized in the Christian church, in 1849, by Rev. Mr. Babcock. Among the first members were John Huston and wife, Daniel Matheny and wife, Bendigo Matics and wife, Nancy Hays, James Penn and wife, John Penn, Mrs. Catharine Williams, and Abraham Williams. A frame church was built north of the present town-hall site, in 1853 or 1854. This was used until 1867, when the church was given up, many of the members uniting with the Methodists, Christians, and Presbyterians. Since the church organization was given up, the building has been suffered to go to decay, and is almost torn in pieces at the present time.

Another United Brethren church was built in the north part of the township, near the Delaware county line, about 1846. At first logs were hewed, with the intention of erecting a log house, but this plan was changed and the logs sold. A frame building was then put up. William Warner was an active member in the organization of the church and in erecting the building. Preaching had been held in the neighborhood several years previous to the building of a house of worship. Other members were: Cyrus Ashbaugh and wife, and Henry Karrher and wife. The organization was given up some years since, and the members now attend church at Powell, in Delaware county. A Sabbath-school is sustained at the church-building during all the seasons except the winter.

SOCIETIES.

EVENING STAR LODGE, INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS, was chartered by the grand lodge of Ohio, in January, 1848. The charter members were: Moses Davis, Dr. E. M. Pinney, Alexander Thompson, Zenas Hutchinson, Holmes Sells, George P. Deardorff, Giles Weaver, and J. K. Thomas. The lodge was instituted March 1, 1848. Meetings were for some time held in a house on the corner of Bridge and High streets, until the fraternity bought a hall in the second story of a building erected by Dr. Pinney and Holmes Sells. This building was of stone, the lower story being used for business purposes. It finally became unsafe, and, in 1872, when the town hall was built, the Odd Fellows added a third story to the main building and furnished it for a lodge-hall. The first records of the lodge were burned in the store of E. W. Tuller, in April, 1876, and the names of the first officers cannot be obtained. The present officers are: A. S. Belsford, N. G.; H. S. Belsford, V. G.; T. J. Thomas, R. S.; T. J. Stinebaugh, P. S.; H. T. Eberly, treasurer; E. Brittingham, W.; H. S. Judson, C.; Henry Karrer, I. G.; H. S. Judson, O. G.; H. G. Eberly, R. S. N. G.; W. A. Doughty, L. S. N. G.; A. Smith, R. S. V. G.; E. G. Thomas, L. S. V. G.; E. W. Tuller, R. S. S.; Lyman Smith, L. S. S.

JOHANAH ENCAMPMENT, NO. 57, INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS, was chartered July 22, 1853, the charter members being: James K. Thomas, Ansel Mattoon, Alexander Thompson, Miles Pinney, Holcomb Tuller, Samuel Stout, and Jonathan T. Gardner. Meetings are held at Odd Fellows' hall.

ODD FELLOWS' CEMETERY.

Some ten years after the organization of the Odd Fellows lodge in Dublin, and the members began to fall away in death, the subject of a cemetery, for members of the fraternity, was discussed. It was at first proposed by some of the members to procure a private burying-ground, and, at a meeting of the lodge, April 21, 1858, it was resolved that a committee be appointed to procure such a ground. This was found to be impracticable, and it was finally decided to form a cemetery association under the general laws of the State, and to extend its benefits to all. On the twelfth day of May, 1858, a committee consisting of William B. Hays, Moses Davis, and Zenas Hutchinson, reported to the lodge that they had purchased of E. M. Pinney and H. Sells, six and seven-tenths acres of land, immediately west of Dublin, for seventy-five dollars an acre. The same month, the grounds were platted by James E. Wright, esq. An organization was effected July 21, 1858, under the name of the Odd Fellows' cemetery association, of Dublin. The officers elected were: Moses Davis, Andrew Lytle, Holcomb Tuller, C. Bacon, C. Foglesang, James E. Wright, and Fletcher Coffman, trustees; William B. Hays, clerk, and Moses Davis, president, of the board. The first burial in the new ground was Mary Elizabeth Graham, wife of William Graham, esq., on November 4, 1858. The ground is under the control of the members of the Odd Fellows fraternity, none others having a voice in the conduct of its affairs. Any person, association, corporation, or eleemosynary institution, can purchase and own one or more lots in the cemetery.

Samuel S. Davis erected, at his own expense, a substantial stone-arched vault, in 1876. This vault is used for temporary purposes of security, by any person desiring so to use it.

The record of interments has been destroyed, so that it is impossible to give the number now interred, but this is the only ground in general use in the township at present.

INDIANS.

Members of the Wyandot tribe of Indians often encamped on Indian run, which flows into the Scioto just north of the town of Dublin. A camp, under the chief, Billy Wyandot, made their abiding place here a great portion of the season for several years after the early settlers came to the country, and parties from Upper Sandusky often traveled over the Indian trace to Franklinton, laden, in the spring, with furs, the result of the winter's trapping, and with maple sugar, which they traded with a Frenchman, who kept a trading post at Franklinton. There they procured guns, ammunition, and blankets, besides trinkets for their squaws, and themselves.

Alarms that the Indians were on the war path, and were butchering the families of the settlers, sometimes caused the latter to retreat from their homes to some common point, where defense could be made, but no Indian massacre ever occurred here. About the time of the war of 1812, an alarm was circulated that the Indians were coming. It was caused by a young woman, Susan Sells, who was staying at Mr. King's, on Indian run. She asked Jacob Ebey to load a gun for her, as she wished to learn to shoot. It was near evening, and Mrs. Samuel Sells heard the report of a gun, and was sure the Indians were murdering King's people. She sent her step-son, Daniel Sells, to spread the alarm, while she hurried her family toward a place of safety. The alarm spread rapidly, and the settlers started toward Franklinton. Jacob Ebey soon came from King's, with the team he had been using in plowing, and explained the cause of the alarm, and, as soon as possible, dissipated the fears of the settlers, and induced them to return to their homes.

PERRY.

This township is composed of two fractionally surveyed townships, in range nineteen, and is bounded on the west by the Scioto river, and on the east by Sharon township. It is ten miles in length from north to south, and from one to three miles in width, varying with the course of the river. It was originally a part of Liberty township; afterwards a part of Washington; then a portion of it was attached to Norwich. It was organized with its present boundaries in 1820, and received the name Perry. There is no village in the township, and there was no post-office until after the completion of the Toledo and Columbus railroad. In 1878 a post-office was established at Olentangy station, and called Olentangy post-office. Previous to this time, the inhabitants procured their mail from the most convenient post-office, some going to Columbus, others to Worthington, and still others to Dublin.

In 1808 a tract of five hundred acres of land in the north part of this township was given by the government to Thaddeus Kosciusko, in consideration for his services to the colonies during the Revolutionary war. He attempted to assign the patent to the land, to parties who desired to obtain it, but was unable to convey a good title, and the lands were afterwards claimed by his heirs.

The first section, in the northeastern part of the township, was for many years owned, in whole or in part, by parties in Baltimore, Maryland, and very little of it was settled until after 1830. This section was first run off by Mr. Schenck, who reserved three hundred acres in the eastern part of the section, for his services in surveying, but never occupied the land himself. The portion belonging to the Baltimore parties was placed in the hands of Flavel and Homer Tuller, as agents. They surveyed it into one hundred acre lots and sold to settlers. There was also a tract of land in the south part of the township, near the present property of James Kenney, and known as the Dunn tract, that was for many years unsettled.

About 1813 and 1814, Thomas Backus erected flouring-mills on the Scioto river, which proved of great benefit to the inhabitants of the vicinity. These mills were long known by his name. They finally passed out of his hands, and were many years known as McCoy's mills. They were still later known as Matere's mills, and Marble Cliff mills.

The township received its name at the hands of John Davis, Chandler Rogers, Benjamin Gale, Mr. Tuller, and Uriah Clark. It was named Perry in honor of Commodore Oliver H. Perry, at the time it was organized as an independent township, in 1820.

For many years elections were held alternately at school-houses number two and number five. In 1854, the township erected a small building for election purposes, and such other uses as the township needed, on a lot leased from Joseph Henderson, near the center of the township.

SCHOOLS.

Perry is a township about ten miles long, and has a large territory for schools, of which there are eleven. A part of them are used by both Sharon and Perry townships, as at some seasons it is impossible for scholars to cross the Olentangy river to attend school, and the territory belonging to Sharon, west of the river, is not large enough to sustain independent schools. Early schools were started in a few places along the river, but no definite dates can be obtained.

SETTLEMENT.

The first settlement of Perry township began on the eastern side, which had an attraction to the early comers, from the fact that a community of a good class had early settled at Worthington, in the adjoining township of Sharon. Following closely on this was the settlement on the Scioto river, near the present town of Dublin. The first settlers on the east were Ezekiel and Morris

Brown, who located near the present Elmwood station. They made improvements on the land, and in 1806, Ezekiel sold his land to Bela M. Tuller, who occupied it, and made his home there in 1807. He was located on the main road leading from Franklinton to the army headquarters, near Urbanna, and during the war of 1812, he found a ready sale for a large amount of stock and provisions for the use of the troops, and of travelers along the road. Morris Brown sold his property some years later to Chandler Rogers.

Robert Boyd came to Perry about 1804, and settled on fractional section fifteen, which he bought with a tax title. He improved the land, and, in 1834, sold it and moved to Winchester, Illinois, where he died. His first wife was a Kepler, the daughter of an early settler in Delaware county; his second wife was Electa Beal. After her death, he married a Miss Kilpatrick.

Peter Millington came from New York, in 1804, and settled on lot fourteen, in the fourth quarter. He cleared the land, and raised a family there.

Paul Dearduff settled in Perry township, very early, and bought lots one, two, eleven, and thirteen, making his home on lot eleven. He had a family, consisting of: Peter, Anthony, Isaac, Susan, and Amy. He died before 1816.

Samuel S. Shattuc came from Groton, Massachusetts, to Ohio, in 1811, and first settled in Columbus, where he worked at the carpenter trade two years. In 1813 he came to Perry, and bought two hundred acres in section four of township one, half a mile below the present location of Olentangy station. He first built a cabin in the woods, and commenced improving and clearing his land. In a short time he built a frame house, where he died, in 1875. He was the father of ten children, all but four of whom died young. But two of the children are now living, Rebecca and Harriet. Rebecca married Jonathan Tipton, and, with her husband and mother, occupies the old homestead. Harriet married B. F. Jaquith.

Harding Pearse came about the same time as Mr. Shattuc, and bought fifty acres, adjoining. Together, they sold some land for village lots, but were never able to build up a village. The balance of his land, he sold to J. S. Fogle. Pearse was a carpenter by trade, and while living here married and raised a family. His wife died, and a short time after he died at James Kenney's.

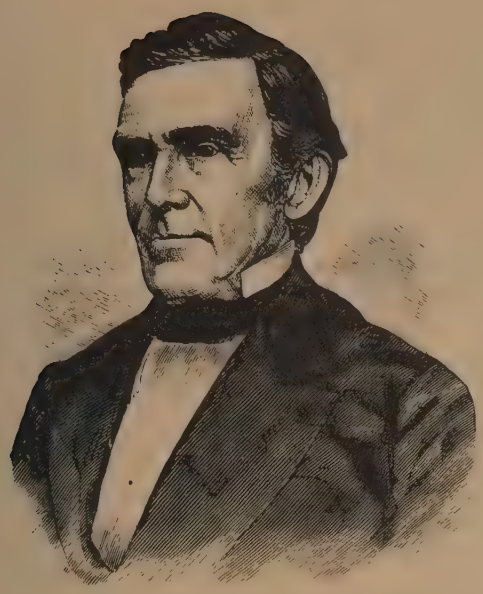
Amaziah Hutchison came from New York to Ohio, in 1812, and remained at Marietta one year after his arrival. In 1813 he came up to Perry township, where, with his brother, Daniel, he purchased one hundred acres of land, two and a half miles below Dublin bridge. There was a small cabin on the land, but no clearing. In 1818 he married Mary Ebey, who came with her father's family to Washington township, in 1806. He cleared his farm, and among the first things he did was to plant an orchard. They raised eight children, and lost one when three years of age. Of their children, Laura married Daniel W. Thomas; Almira married John M. Thomas, who lives a mile south of the Dublin and Worthington pike, where he has a farm of two hundred acres; Betsey Ann married Jacob H. Withey, and lives in Illinois; Mary Jane married Peyton Hoard; Susan Ruth married Daniel Matheny. The sons were O. S., Charles A., and George M.

William Walcott came from Virginia to Ohio in 1814, accompanied by his son, Robert. He was a Revolutionary soldier, and served throughout the war. By trade he was a shoemaker, and after his settlement he followed that business. Their journey through the woods was made on horseback, but to an old soldier this was but pastime. They settled below Columbus, where they remained several years. In 1819 Robert Walcott married Susan Legg, and in 1828 moved to Perry township with his father and his wife, and bought two hundred and ten acres of land in the same tract as that of Thomas Legg. Here William Walcott died in 1835. Robert Walcott and his wife raised a family of eleven children in their new home. He improved and cleared his land, and left a good property. Several of their children are deceased. Those now living are: Absalom, John, James, Robert, William, Tabitha, and Amelia. One lives in Delaware county, and the others in this vicinity. The home farm is now owned by Robert Walcott.

John Davis came to Ohio in 1816, from Montgomery county, Maryland, and remained in Delaware county two years. In 1818 he settled in what is now Perry township, on lot thirteen, in the third quarter. The land was surveyed in 1807, by a man named Spencer, who laid it off into lots of one hundred acres each. When Mr. Davis came, there was no improvement of any kind. As soon as possible after his arrival he built a hewn log house, before bringing on his family. His wife was Ann Simpson, who was a cousin of the mother of General Grant. They raised eight children to maturity, as follows: Ann, William, John, Nancy, Joshua, Samuel, Joseph, and Elizabeth. A son died when quite small. Three of the family are now living. John Davis, sr., was a soldier of the Revolutionary war. His son, John, died in 1878, aged nearly ninety. Elizabeth lives in Shelbyville, Illinois; Samuel S. married Mrs. Matilda Sells Kilbourn, and lives on the north half of lot thirteen; Joshua married Edith A. DeFord, and died, leaving four children—Mary Ann, John W., William, and Joshua E. She then married Joseph Davis, a brother of her first husband. They raised six children, the youngest of whom lives on the old homestead and cares for his father in his declining years. Mrs. Davis died in 1874. Francis Davis, the oldest son of Joseph Davis, raised a company in Iowa during the war, and served with it nearly through the war, until his health failed and he was obliged to resign. The other children were: Martha Jane, Lucinda, Jacob, Elizabeth, and Joseph W., the latter of whom remains at home.

Uriah Clark came about 1816, and bought the Dearduff land. He had a family and lived there some years, until his death. Three of his sons lived near there, and a daughter lives in Dublin.

Chandler Rogers settled near the Dublin and Worthington pike, where Elmwood station is now located, when the country was a wilderness. He owned two hundred acres or more, which he cleared and improved, and where



Samuel S. Davis

Matilda Davis

John Davis and wife, with their children, William, Samuel S., Joshua, and Joseph, emigrated from Montgomery county, Maryland, and settled in Ohio, in 1816. While on their journey, and after they had arrived at Zanesville, they met Joseph Eaton, who had control of a large tract of land in Delaware county, and were persuaded by him to go to his home, in Berlin township, that county, and settle on his land. They accordingly proceeded there, where they remained two years, but did not like the location, and made no purchase. In 1817, Samuel and Joseph came to Perry township, Franklin county, where they built a hewed log house, into which the family moved in 1819. Mr. Davis bought four hundred acres here, in the survey known as township two, the third quarter. Here John Davis died, in 1832, at the age of seventy-one years; his wife died in 1851, aged eighty-six years.

Samuel S. Davis was born in Montgomery county, Maryland, September 13, 1798, and settled in Perry township, in 1818, where he made a home on his father's land. June 16, 1825, he married Matilda Sells, a daughter of John Sells, who settled in Dublin, on the west bank of the Scioto river, in 1808. Mrs. Matilda Davis was born in Kentucky, June 11, 1799. Before his marriage, Mr. Davis built a frame house on land he had bought from his father, by the hard labor of his own hands. Into this home he brought his bride, and here they entered upon the stern duties of life. To Samuel S. Davis and his wife were born eight children, but three of whom lived to maturity. With the joys they found in a home of their own, they also found sorrows in the loss of their children. Those who survived were: Charles, Matilda, and Marilla. Charles, the eldest, married Catharine Davis, and lives on the east part of the home farm. Matilda married Abraham Arts, and lives in Dublin. Marilla remains at home, and cares for her aged father. Mrs. Matilda Davis, the wife of S. S. Davis, and mother of his children, died March 8, 1869, aged sixty-nine years. Samuel S. Davis was elected as justice of the peace, in Perry township, in the spring of 1825, and served in this capacity twelve years. In 1841, and again in 1844, he was elected county commissioner, and, with the other commissioners, had charge of the funds of the county received from the general government, which amounted to a considerable sum. The control of this fund was afterwards taken in charge by the State. The house now occupied by Mr. Davis and his family, was built in 1825, and has since been in constant use. It is located on the east bank of the Scioto river, about a mile south of Dublin bridge, and is a well-preserved and commodious home. Mr. Davis is now in the eighty-second year of his age, and is able to attend to all matters connected with his property, of which he has amassed a comfortable competence.

he died. His family are all dead or removed to other parts.

John Bickett came from Pennsylvania in 1819. He bought one hundred and sixty acres of land in township one, section one, range nineteen, and afterwards bought an additional one hundred and thirty acres. When he came he was accompanied by his wife. He improved the land and built a frame house. His wife died and he remarried, but had no children. He died in 1866, leaving no will, and his wife inherited the property, which she rents, making her home in North Columbus.

A man named Lord owned a large tract of land near where the Backus mill was built. He died on this land before 1816. One of his daughters married Thomas Backus.

Benjamin Gale came to Perry township very early, some time before 1816. He settled on section four, in township two, in the north part of the section. He was a prominent man, and an early trustee of the township. After remaining here for a number of years, he sold his land, and with one of his sons moved to Missouri, where he died. Another of his sons was the first settler in White Pigeon, Michigan. He also sold out, and moved to Missouri.

Frederick Wiser came from Pennsylvania in 1812, and bought one hundred acres of land a little south of Olentangy station. He had a wife, but never had a family. He died about 1857, and his wife died in 1878. The property was willed to John Barnett, a nephew.

Mr. Morris settled on the fractional section south of John Davis, very early. This fractional section is very small, containing not more than one hundred acres, and lies along the bank of the Scioto river. His children were Stanton, William, Benjamin, John, Sally, Bethuel, Ellery, Hannah, and Lucinda. All went farther west many years ago. The land is now owned by George Mathews.

Captain Daniel Mickey came from Kentucky, in 1801, and settled a mile and a half below Dublin bridge, on the fourth quarter of the township, lot ten, in 1804. He was a soldier during the Revolutionary war, and served six years. His eldest son, Thomas, was a captain in the war of 1812. He was killed by a fall from a bridge near his home. Captain Daniel Mickey had several sons and daughters. They were named Thomas, Daniel, John, William, Betsey, Anna, Nancy, Polly, and Sally. Daniel died when about twenty years of age; John never married—was crippled in one leg, caused by a white swelling; William married, and went to Illinois, where he died; Betsey died in Illinois; Anna married, raised a family, and died in Washington township; Nancy married, and moved to Mechanicsburg, where she died; Polly married John Thomas, and lived in Perry township many years; they finally went to Illinois, and from there to St. Joseph, Missouri, where both died; Sally married Griffith Thomas, and settled in Perry township. He died in 1859. They raised four children—Daniel, James, John, and Eliza. Mrs. Thomas lives with her son, James, on the pike, east of Dublin; her son, Daniel, lives near Dublin bridge, and John lives south of Dublin tollgate; Eliza married James Jimison, and lives on the Dublin and Worthington pike.

John Shepard came from Washington county, Maryland, in 1816, and located, with his family, consisting of a wife and two children, in Perry township, where he bought one hundred acres of land, in fractional section number one, of township one, and range nineteen. This was located near the Scioto river, on the upland, and five miles south of Dublin bridge. There was a cabin on the premises when he purchased, that had been built by Jacob Gray, a Canadian, who left his home there, on the breaking out of the war of 1812, preferring to cast his lot on the side of freedom. He had purchased three hundred acres of this tract, and had partly girdled the timber on the bottoms, and cut away the pawpaw and thorn bushes. After selling, he moved to Madison county, where he died. Mr. Shepard improved and cleared the land, and built a frame house above a spring of excellent water. They had two children, when they first settled, and two more were born in their new home. Mr. Shepard was thrown from his horse, in 1826, and in the fall struck against a log, instantly killing him. His wife died in 1868. Their children were: Alexander, who married Elizabeth Adams, in Hamilton township, and now resides at the old homestead; Sarah, his sister, who remains single, and lives with him; Ruhamah, who married Nathan House, of Licking county, and, while visiting her brother, in 1869, died suddenly; Jane, the third child, lives single, in Dublin.

Anthony Courtright settled on the Kosciusko lands in 1819. He bought a tract of this land at the tax sales, and cleared and improved it. There was no timber cut when he came on the land. He raised a family here.

Joseph Smith emigrated from Ovid, Seneca county, New York, in 1816, with his wife and seven children. They journeyed by the way of Marietta, coming from that place through Columbus by wagons. He bought a tract of three hundred acres of land from John Sells. There was a small log cabin on the land, but no clearing. He improved the land, with the help of his children, and after a time bought five hundred acres in the Kosciusko tract, at tax sale. The purchasers of this tract had to stand a great deal of litigation, as parties claiming to be heirs to the land presented their claims to it, but were eventually unable to establish a title. The land is now owned under tax deeds which is considered a good title. Mr. Smith sold his purchase after owning it a short time.

David Smith came to Perry about 1816, and located east of the Scioto river, and about a mile north of Dublin, where he improved a farm. He had four sons and four daughters. One daughter, Mrs. Matilda Bethard, still lives in the township.

Eleazur Piper settled on lot eight, in 1818. He also owned lot nine, but did not clear it. The lot on which he lived, he cleared and improved, and there he died about 1832. Mr. Piper was a good scholar and a surveyor. The property was bought, about 1843, by three brothers, named Mathews.

Daniel Bowers came to Ohio, from New York State, in 1816, and first settled on the Pickaway plains, where he remained about eleven years. In 1827, he moved to Perry township, with his family, and settled nor far from the present location of Olentangy station. His children were: Daniel, Allen, Wheeler, Eleazur, Lyman, Clark, William, Polly, Julia, and Philena. All are now dead.

The early settlers on the Kosciusko tract were the Marshs, Smiths, and Courtrights, all of whom bought the land at tax sale.

Benjamin Marsh came from the east, and settled at Marietta, at an early day. From that place he moved to Franklinton, and then to the Kosciusko lands, where he settled before 1816. He brought a family of four sons and four daughters. They were: Josiah, Joel, Esther, Patsy, Lucinda, and three others. None of the family are living in this county. Josiah lives in Union county.

John Smith, son of Joseph Smith, settled on lot four, near the Scioto river, in the north part of the township. He improved this land, which he then sold, and settled on a part of his father's farm. He again sold, and this time moved to Allen county, where he died.

Robert McCoy came from Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, in 1815, accompanied by his wife and five children, and first settled above Columbus, where he remained three years. In 1818, he removed to Perry, where he bought one hundred acres of land, on the hills above the Scioto river, and some five miles below Dublin bridge. He afterward added one hundred acres to his original purchase. The land was originally owned by Dr. Ball, of Franklinton. John Hiner had a lease on the tract, and sold to Samuel James; he selling to McCoy. Hiner had a cabin and small clearing when McCoy came. There were many hogs running wild in the woods, fattening on mast and turkey peas, a root which was abundant in the forest. On his arrival, Mr. McCoy planted a field of corn, and was successful in raising enough to supply the needs of his family for the first season. He cleared and improved his land, and here two of his children were born, the names of all being: James, Hugh P., Mary Ann, Nancy, Eliza, Rebecca, and Sally. James married Zippora Richards, and lives with his children, on the home farm. None of his brothers or sisters live in the State. Some emigrated to Indiana, while that State was yet a territory, and have since died there.

Abraham Preston came from Otsego county, New York, in 1817, and settled, for a year, in Columbus. He then lived two years in Mifflin township. In 1823 he moved to Perry township and bought a small tract of land near Olentangy station, where he built a cabin and made an improvement. He had four children—Lora M., Lovisa, Ira A., and Mary Ann. Laura M. married Allen Bowers, who died in 1868, and she lives near Olentangy station; Ira lives in Iowa; Lovisa married a brother of Allen Bowers, and lives in Clinton; Mary Ann married Hiram Case, and lives in Perry.

Joseph Ferris came to Ohio in May, 1818, when a young man, and stayed a few weeks in Chillicothe, where he worked at his trade, that of a carpenter. From there he came on to Circleville, and worked about six months. He then came to Perry township, where he married Sarah Smith, in May, 1819, and settled on a part of her father's farm, about a mile north of Dublin, where they now live. He has always worked at his trade, and never farmed but little. They had four children—Sherman, Leroy, Catharine, and Joseph. Sherman died in New Orleans; Leroy lives in McLean county, Illinois; Joseph is dead; and Catharine married Edward Wright, and lives near her parents, and farther up the river. When a young man, Mr. Ferris helped make a corduroy road between Dublin and Worthington, his pay being eighteen cents a rod. These corduroy roads were made by laying logs and brush across the track and covering with dirt.

John Kenney came from Mifflin county, Pennsylvania, to Ohio, in 1819, arriving in October of that year. He settled in township one, section four, now included in Perry township, the southern part. There he bought three hundred and thirty acres of land in the Johnson tract, which he cleared and improved, and where he eventually built a fine brick house. With him came his wife and two children. Two more children were born after their settlement. Their names are: Benjamin Chriswell, James, Hannah, and Eliza Jane. James is the only one of the family now living, and occupies and owns the old homestead; Hannah married William Fairfield, and went with him to Illinois, where she died; Eliza Jane died of lung disease when twenty-four years of age.

Samuel Harper came to Ohio about 1819, and settled on section one township one, northwest from the farm of John Kenney. He cleared and improved this land, after which he sold it, and moved to Illinois, where he died.

Reuben Skeels came to Ohio about 1820, and settled on the Thomas Johnson tract of land, where he purchased seventy-five acres of John Kenney. This he partially cleared, and sold back to Kenney. He then moved, with his family, to Illinois, where he died, and where, also, most of his family have died. None now live in this vicinity. They went west at the same time as did Samuel Harper and family.

Elijah Legg emigrated to Ohio in 1815, coming over the mountains with a large wagon, drawn by a five-horse team, and settled, with his family, near Chillicothe, on the north fork of Paint creek, where he remained some four years, and then removed to Highland county. After living there three years, he again moved, in 1822, this time locating in Perry township, where he bought fifty acres of land in township one, section one, and erected a log cabin, with shingle roof. When he purchased the land, not a stick of timber had been cut. He cleared and improved the land, and died in 1852; his wife died in 1847. The place is now owned by James Walcott.

Thomas Legg came at the same time as his father, with whom he remained several years, then living on the north fork of Paint creek, about eleven miles distant from Chillicothe, and near Old Town, or Frankfort. While living there, in 1820, he married Amelia Lane. They raised three sons and five daughters. In 1828 they moved on the McCoy farm, near the mill in Perry township, and on the Scioto river. There they remained one year, when they moved to the place he now owns. He bought land, and commenced the hard work of hewing a home out of the forest. Not a stick of timber had been cut. The first work was to provide a shelter for the wife and five children. A place had first to be cleared on which to erect a cabin, which was done as quickly as possible. The nearest neighbors were more than a mile distant, and when informed of his determination to make a home in that location, they discouraged him as much as they could, by saying that he and his family would starve before he could provide food for them there. He was possessed of an indomitable energy, and was determined to succeed. The prospect certainly looked dark to a most sanguine temperament, as he had no money, and was two hundred dollars in debt for his land. But perseverance and hard work conquered every obstacle. The first year he cleared and deadened ten acres, which he planted in corn. The work of clearing was continued until late in the night, and often twelve o'clock saw him busy, burning brush and log heaps. The second year he had twenty acres under cultivation, and the very neighbors who had told him he would starve, were glad to come to him for a portion of the grain he had raised. Thus he continued at his work, until he has secured a good home and many broad acres. As his children grew, they were of great assistance to him in his labors; and now, that he is unable to do hard labor, he has the satisfaction of having secured a competence, and the right to a quiet old age. He has provided homes for several of his children, and still has a good farm, on which he resides. The wife of his younger days gave him eight children, and then passed away, August 15, 1852. In 1854, he married Hannah Wetherbee, his present wife. All of his children were by his first wife, and are as follows: Nancy, Elizabeth, John Lucinda, Elias, Louis, Amelia, Ann, and Minerva. All but one are married, and all live so near him that he can visit them in one day. He is now in the eighty-fourth year of his age.

Jacob Slyh came from Virginia to Franklin county, Ohio, in 1828, and bought one hundred and fifty acres of land from B. Hess, paying therefor one thousand dollars. There was a good house and an orchard on the place when he bought it. He had eight children, five of whom are now living. D. M. married Roselpha Griswold, and lives in Perry township, where he has a farm and a stone quarry; Jacob E. married Louisa Walcott, and lives in Clinton; Mrs. Rebecca I. Walcott, a daughter, lives, a widow, in Franklin township; Mary E. married E. M. Walcott, and lives in Perry township, near Olentangy station.

Samuel Billingsly came from Maryland to Ohio, in 1830, and purchased ninety-two and one-half acres of land on what is called the saw-mill road, in the north part of the township. There was a cabin on the land, which had been built by a man named Thorp, but there was no clearing. He improved the land, and died at this place in 1864. Two sons and one daughter live in the county.

Jacob Pawpaw owned the adjoining land. He came some years previous to Billingsly, and had quite a clearing in 1830. He remained there quite a number of years and further improved the land, which he afterwards sold. After disposing of his land he moved to Delaware county, where he died. None of his descendants now remain in this vicinity.

Pleasant Litchford came to Ohio from Virginia in 1831. He was formerly a slave, and bought his freedom from his master, who was also his father, by money he saved from extra work, paying therefor fourteen hundred dollars. He then worked until he had obtained the means to purchase the freedom of his mother, an old woman, for whom he paid five hundred and fifty dollars. When he came to Ohio he bought two hundred and twenty-six acres of land, on which he built a cabin. He brought his wife and children with him, and raised them on free soil, his own land. He cleared and improved his place, and died there in 1879, leaving eight children, who now occupy the property.

J. S. Fogle came from Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in 1836, with his family, consisting of a wife and three children. He bought sixty-eight acres of land a short distance south of the present Olentangy station, on which was a small frame building and a clearing of fifteen acres. In 1859 he built a substantial brick house, and has his farm well cleared and improved. Three children were born before their settlement, and three since, who are living. Their names are: Savina, Leah, Rebecca, Sarah Jane, John Adam, and Rachel. All are married, and three live in the township.

R. H. Armstrong moved into Franklin county in 1856, and settled in Brown township, wher he remained twenty-three years. He now lives in the north part of Perry township, near the Scioto river.

Thomas Johnston came from Virginia to Ohio in 1805, and settled about five miles below Columbus, in Hamilton township, where he brought a large tract of land. His wife also had a tract of six hundred acres in Perry township, which was divided between two sons, Edwin and Thomas. In 1837, both settled on their land, which they cleared and improved. A small clearing had been made when they came on the land. Thomas Johnston married Eliza Brobeck, and died in Perry township. His widow lives with her daughter on the property. A son, H. F. Johnston, lives in the north part of Washington township.

James Bickett settled in Perry in 1832 or 1833. He bought a piece of land just north of Kenney's, which he improved. He died on the place. His wife and daughter reside in Delaware, and a son, Dr. W. W. Bickett, practices medicine at Worthington.

Rudolph Pheneger and wife came from Pennsylvania to Ohio in 1837. He bought land in the south part of Perry township, about two years after he came to Ohio. When he bought the land there was no clearing, and no road. The two years following his arrival he lived in Mr. Bickett's house, who boarded him, working a part of the time on Bickett's farm. He was a carpenter by trade, and followed that business until his health was such that he was obliged to give it up. He cleared and cultivated his land, and has had a good farm and home. He was married in 1836 to Elizabeth Galbraith, and has six children. The oldest son is in Kansas; one is in California; two live in the north part of Perry township, and two are at home.

Samuel Galbraith came from Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in 1838. Immediately after his arrival, he and Rudolph Pheneger bought a small tract of land, which, at that time, had no improvement on it. He built a cabin, and cleared and improved the land. When he came he brought his wife and family of ten children, most of whom are now living in the county. One is in California, and one in Indiana. The old home is occupied by Samuel Galbraith, jr. William, another son, read medicine with Dr. Goble, of Worthington, and graduated from the Columbus medical college. He is now practicing in Perry township, and lives north of the old home. He married Georgiana Umbaugh, by whom he has two children living.

John and Ezekiel Wilson, brothers, together bought one hundred acres of land in the Linn tract, which is located in the north part of the township, about 1838. They cleared the land, or a portion of it, and sold it. One of the brothers went to Iowa, where he now lives. The whereabouts of the other is not known. The land has since changed owners many times.

Henry Armstrong bought one hundred acres near the Wilson settlement, in 1847. No clearing had been made on this lot. He built a cabin and improved the land, and now has a comfortable home.

Joseph Wethrill settled on the east line of the township, and well toward the southern part, near the present Union church, which is located in Clinton township, in 1840. He made a clearing there, and afterwards sold his farm, and moved, with his family, to Putnam county.

George Umbaugh came from Pennsylvania, in 1840, and bought a tract of land owned by Samuel Harper, on which a clearing had been made and building erected. He still owns this property, which he has further improved. Georgiana, his daughter, married Dr. William Galbraith, and lives near by.

John K. Dęlashmutt came from Frederick county, Maryland, to Ohio, in 1802, when a young man. He married Sarah Worthington, in Hamilton township, and after marriage, established a hat shop in Franklinton, where he continued in business until 1812, when he went on a farm in Madison county, where he died in about 1824. His wife died about the same time. They had seven children, three of whom died in infancy. The four who survived were: William, Harriet C., Porter B., and Van B. William married Lois Smith, and farmed in Hamilton township two years. In 1844 they moved to Perry, and bought wild land, to which he was obliged to cut a road that he might reach it. As soon as possible, he built a small framed house, and commenced clearing his land. From time to time he made additions to his house, until he now has a comfortable home, and a good farm of seventy-five acres. They have raised four children, and lost one in infancy. All but one of the children are married. One lives in Auglaize county; the others are near home.

John Stewart settled in Franklinton very early. He entered section number one, township one, on an officer's warrant, that he had purchased, but never lived on the land. After his death, which occurred about 1812, the property was apportioned among his children. One daughter, Mary, married Robert C. Henderson, and settled in Hamilton township, in 1819, where she died. She inherited five hundred and forty acres of land, in Perry, from her father's estate, and, on her death, the property in Perry fell to her two sons, Joseph and John S. Joseph settled on the east half of the land, in 1851. It was all a forest of heavy timber at that time. John S. had the west half of the land. Both improved and cleared, and, in 1859, Joseph Henderson built a fine brick dwelling on his land. He married Martha S. Robertson, and has ten children. John S. married Mary, E. Johnson, and has two children living.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

The following is a list of the justices of the peace in Perry township from the date of the first election held as an independent township, in 1820: 1820, Asaph Allen, elected; 1821, Chandler Rogers and Uriah Clark, elected; 1822, Robert Boyd, in place of Allen; 1824, Chandler Rogers, re-elected; 1825, Amaziah Hutchison and Samuel S. Davis, in place of Clark and Boyd; 1827, Chandler Rogers, re-elected; 1828, Amaziah Hutchison, re-elected, and Daniel Beard in place of Davis; 1830, Jacob Leaf, in place of Rogers; 1831, Amaziah Hutchison, re-elected, and Samuel S. Davis in place of Beard; 1832, Richard Gale, jr., in place of Hutchison, who neglected to qualify; 1833, John Hutchison, in place of Leaf; 1834, Samuel S. Davis, re-elected; 1835, Chandler Rogers, in place of Gale; 1836, Amaziah Hutchison, elected; 1837, Daniel Beard in place of Davis; 1838, William Mitchell, elected, and C. Rogers, re-elected; 1839, Allen Bowers, elected; 1841, C. Rogers and John Swisher; 1842, William Mitchell and Allen Bowers; 1844, C. Rogers and John Swisher, re-elected; 1845, William Mitchell, re-elected; 1846, Jacob Popaw, in place of Mitchell; 1847, John Swisher and David Rogers; 1849, Jacob Popaw, re-elected; 1850, John Swisher and David Rogers, re-elected; 1852, Jacob Popaw, re-elected; 1853, John Swisher and David Rogers, re-elected; 1855, Barzillia Billingsly, in place of Popaw; 1856, John Swisher and David Rogers, re-elected; 1858, Isaac Davidson, in place of Billingsly; 1859, John L. Walcott and David Rogers; 1861, W. B. Hays, elected; 1862, Jacob Miller, elected; 1865, Jacob Miller, re-elected; 1867, John L. Walcott, elected; 1868, John Starrett, elected; 1871, John Starrett, re-elected; 1873, H. C. Tipton, elected; 1874, John Starrett, re-elected, and C. R. Seeley, elected; 1878, Hiram J. Cox and J. W. Davis, elected; 1879 Wilmer Wolcott and H. C. Tipton, elected.

BUSINESS ENTERPRISES.

A brewery was started half a mile below the present Olentangy station, soon after 1830, by John McCoy, who run it several years. The building was afterward fitted up and used as a dwelling-house, and finally caught fire and was burned to the ground.

A distillery was started near the brewery about the same time, by Simon Shattuck. The works were in a log building, but it was not continued in operation very long. The still was removed, and the building was afterwards used, for a time, as a place of meeting by a Methodist class. It was finally torn down, and the timber used in building a barn.

A mill was built on the Scioto river about 1813 or 1814, by Thomas Backus, which has always borne a good reputation for general and custom work. It was long known as Backus' mills, afterward as McCoy's mills, then as Matere's mills, and later, as Marble Cliff mills. This mill is well toward the southern extremity of the township.

Another mill was built a mile above Dublin bridge, about 1850, and is run at present by Norris Corbin.

A man named Brubeck started a distillery a little above Marble Cliff mills, at an early day. It was an old building in 1832, and has long since been torn down.

Below Marble Cliff mills is a large stone quarry, which has been worked for many years. The cliffs along the river at this point abounded in rattlesnakes at an early day, they finding a refuge in the seams of the rocks. One of their dens was closed by some of the early settlers, and many years later, when the stone was removed, a large number of bones of the reptiles were found. They have been long since entirely exterminated.

About 1850 Simon Shattuck laid off a part of his farm into small lots, and brought a number of families into close proximity. The place has since been known as Shattucksburg, though it has never been called a town, nor was it intended as such.

In 1878, after the Columbus and Toledo railroad was built through the township north and south, a station was built two miles west of Worthington, and called Elmwood. A small grocery is kept at this place. A station was also built two miles or more south of this, and called Olentangy. A post-office was established here the same year, and a small grocery. The first postmaster was Jerry O. Jewett. The present postmaster is George Runner.

CHURCHES.

ASBURY CHURCH.

A Methodist class was formed near Marble Cliff mills at some time previous to 1840. It met for time in a log cabin, until 1840, when Rev. Uriah Heath organized a church, and proceeded to build the present stone edifice, near the mill, on the bank of the Scioto river. Some of the early members were Louis Lane and wife, and James Adams and wife. Services are kept up at the church, but the membership is small. A Sabbath-school is also maintained by the congregation.

FLETCHER CHURCH

was also organized by Rev. Uriah Heath, about the same time as Asbury church. A class had been organized some years previously, and meetings were held in an old school-house. A Sunday-school was first started at this place, by members of the Presbyterian society. The early members of the church were: Mary Wright and two daughters, Mary Mathews, Mr. Toy and wife, John Mathews, wife and two daughters, William Gray and wife, Amos Belford and wife, and others. A stone church was built about 1848, near the residence of Mr. Wright, on the Scioto river.

BETHEL METHODIST CHURCH

was organized about 1840, by Rev. Uriah Heath, in the east part of Perry township, and near the present location of Olentangy station. The church was first organized as a Methodist class, at Simon Shattuck's, half a mile south of its present site. Meetings were for a time held in a building that was formerly used as a distillery. The present church is a frame building, and was erected about 1848. Regular services are held here, and a Sunday-school is sustained.

A PREDESTINARIAN BAPTIST CHURCH

was organized in Perry township, a little south of Olentangy station, in June, 1827, by Elder Adam Miller. The first members were: Adam Miller and wife, Abraham Preston and wife, Aaron Bowers and wife, Daniel Heath and wife, Alpheus Toll and wife, and several others. Services were held in a school-house, which is now used as a dwelling house. Elder Miller preached here some four years, and was succeeded by Elder Mahlon Peters. A few years later the organization was given up, a part of the members joining the Methodist church.

ANCIENT WORKS.

On the banks of the Scioto river, in Perry township, are remains of ancient works, which have the appearance of fortifications, and were undoubtedly used as such by some earlier inhabitants of this country, of whom all trace, further than these forts and mounds, is lost. On the farm of Joseph Ferris, a mile north of Dublin bridge, are to be seen, in a good state of preservation, the outlines and embankments of three forts. One of these is within a few feet of his house, and is, perhaps, eighty feet in diameter inside, with an entrance at the east side. The ditch and embankment are well defined. A short distance northeast of this spot, and within arrow shot of it, is a larger fort, in a square form, and enclosing nearly or quite half an acre of ground. Although the tramping of cattle for many years has worn down the embankments, they are several feet high, and the ditch, which is inside the works, is now some six feet deep. When the country was first settled, this ditch was filled with water, and was a bed of mire, a pole thrust into the ground to a depth of ten feet finding no solid ground beneath. This would tend to show that originally this was a strong place, and that the ditch was quite deep. Time has filled it with dead leaves, and refuse matter has assisted in obliterating this work. It is situated on a hill that commands a view of the country for a considerable distance in either direction. At a little lower point, and nearer the river, is a small mound. There was also a small mound in the center of the larger fort, which was opened many years since, and found to contain the bones of a large man. These crumbled in pieces soon after being exposed to the air. It is possible that by uncovering the ditch of this fort, some relics of the extinct race that built these works might be obtained. Search of this kind has generally been turned toward the mounds, instead of the inner ditches of the fort, where probably was the habitation of the builders. A short distance from this larger fort is a smaller one than that first described. There have been several old works of this kind along the bank of the river, between these works and Columbus, but they are mostly obliterated by the cultivation of the land on which they stood.

GENERAL.

The north part of Perry township, as well as several large tracts of land in other parts, was not settled until within the past twenty or thirty years, the land being owned mostly by non-residents and their heirs, who did not see fit to place it on the market until quite recently. The timber was white oak, burr oak, elm, beech, maple, ash, hickory, and walnut, along the river and runs.

There has never been a regular cemetery in Perry, although there are many private burial grounds.

PRAIRIE.

This township presents, to stranger eyes, few distinctive features. Its surface is level, its soil varied, and generally well adapted to the growing of wheat and corn. Its streams are: Darby creek, which, flows along a portion of the western boundary; Darby run, flowing from north to south, in nearly a direct course, about central in the township, and Scioto run, which rises in the eastern portion of the township, and flows eastward to the Scioto river, into which its waters are discharged. None of these streams are now of much importance, so far as concerns water power, they being dry, or nearly so, during the summer months. The geographical situation of Prairie township is as follows: Bounded on the north by Brown and Norwich townships; south by Pleasant township; east by Franklin and Jackson townships, and west by the township of Jefferson, Madison county.

SETTLEMENT.

The writer has been unable to ascertain to whom belongs the honor of having been the first settler in Prairie township.

William T. Martin says, in his history of Franklin county: "Amongst the early settlers in this township were: Samuel Higgins and family, Shadrick Postle and family, and William Mannon and family." Numerous representatives of the Postle family are still residents of the township, and are an industrious and thrifty family.

The Clover family, who were conspicuous among the early settlers, were natives of Virginia. The parents were Henry and Catharine Clover. Early in the present century, they settled in Ross county. A family, numbering twelve came with them. In 1813, they located in Prairie, in the northern portion of the township, forming the nucleus of what is still known as the "Clover settlement." The parents died there, though not until they had seen the happy fruition of their labors and hardships, for, indeed, had they made their wilderness home to "blossom as the rose." Of the children—whose names were: Peter, Joshua, Jacob, Solomon, Henry, Samuel, Philip, John William, Aaron, and two sisters—Margaret, who married Joshua Cole, and now resides at Fort Wayne, Indiana, is the only one now living, though numerous descendants yet reside in Franklin county. It is said of Solomon, that he was a great hunter, and killed more wolves, bears, and deer, with which the country then abounded, than any of his competitors. Samuel was also proficient in hunting.

Joseph Hickman, a native of Virginia, and a soldier of the Revolution, came to Ohio in the year 1806. His wife was Jane Butcher, by whom eight children were born prior to removing to Ohio. The place of his settlement was Franklinton, now a part of the city of Columbus, and here America, relict of Christopher Davis, who now lives in Prairie township, was born, November 25, 1807. To this lady the writer is indebted for many items of interest in this history. Mr. Hickman, who was a farmer, died in about 1821, and his wife some three years later. The children, who are all deceased except Mr. Davis, were: Tacey, Townsend, Effie, John, Sarah Ann, Elan, Susannah, and Joseph Shelton.

James Gardner came from Harper's Ferry, Virginia, to Ross county, Ohio, at the beginning of the present century, and, for a few years, lived on the north fork of Paint creek. Eventually, he located at Georgesville, Pleasant township, where he became prominently connected with the industries of that place. The first business he engaged in was milling, erecting the first gristmill of anything like respectable proportions at that point. He also built a distillery. These flourished for a time, but eventually they went to decay, and now no trace of these pioneer improvements remains. Mr. Gardner's first wife was a Miss Oldham, who died after giving birth to three children. Of these, but one is living: William, who married Miss Merritt, and resides in Fairfield township. Nathaniel, now deceased, married Mahala Walker. A son of Joseph C. lives in Prairie township. James Gardner contracted a second marriage, the fruits of which were six children, the following of whom are living: Michael; James, who married Susan Martin; Joseph, who married Catharine Melvin; Mary, wife of Dr. Martin; Nancy, now Mrs. Samuel Bradfield. Nearly all these live in the State of Illinois. James Gardner died in about 1857, and his wife some years previous.

Cade Young located in Franklin county, quite early in its settlement, with a family consisting of a wife and three children. Two of these now live in Prairie township: DeWitt Clinton, who married Mary Clover, and Jasper, who married Mary Elliott. Both have fine farms on or near the National road.

Thomas Graham, who married Jemima Cockrell, lived in Loudoun county, Virginia, and came to Franklinton in 1827. Two years later he located in Prairie township, where he died. There were eight children in the family, only two of whom live in Prairie: Thomas and Sarah (Mrs. William Clover). John lives in Columbus, and has been quite prominent in the public affairs of the county.

Daniel Harrington, of Kentucky, located in Franklinton in its infancy, and, it is said, helped to build some of the first log cabins in that village. He married Catharine Stiarwalt, and, in 1818, located in Jackson township, and lived there until 1824, when he settled in Prairie township, on a farm now comprised in the Gatton estate. He died about 1847, and his widow removed to Kansas, where she died, in 1865. Of the five children comprising this family, but two are now alive: Peter, who married Mary Ann Robinson, is the village shoemaker at Alton, and Nicholas, who married Delilah Winecoop, lives in Kansas. The father, mother, brothers, and sisters of Daniel Harrington were butchered, upon the "dark and bloody ground" of Kentucky, by the Indians.

William D. Mason emigrated from Scotland to America, in about 1845, going direct to Cincinnati, where he soon after married Isabelle Neave, also a native of Scotland, and, four years later, removed to Franklin county, locating on the farm now occupied by the family, who have now over three hundred acres of land. Mr. Mason died August 19, 1866. Of the seven children who were the fruits of this union, five are now living: Lizzie, William D., and Lucretia, live at home; Mary, who married R. F. Elliott, lives in the county, and Belle, who married A. J. Snow, lives in Collinwood, Cuyahoga county, Ohio.

Among other early settlers, we have the names of S. S. Hunter, Edward Hopper, James Daugherty, and there are doubtless many others who might be, with equal propriety, mentioned in this connection.

ORGANIZATION.

Prairie township was erected as such in 1819. It was formed from Franklin, and included much of the territory now known as Brown township. An election for township officers was held soon after, but the writer is unable to give the first officers. The present (1879) township officers are: Benjamin Elliott, Zadoc Postle, and James Cummins, trustees; Coonrad Grainer, clerk; Franklin Postle, treasurer; George Postle, assessor; Henry Alton and William Sparksman, constables. There are nine supervisors of roads. Following is a list of those who have served as justices of the peace for Prairie township, from its formation to the present time: 1820, Peter Clover, Francis Downing; 1823, James Boyd; 1826, Israel P. Brown, William Stiarwalt; 1829, Peter Clover; 1832, George Richey, John G. Neff; 1835, William Stiarwalt, Russell N. Grinold; 1837, Reuben Golliday; 1839, Thomas O'Harra, David Howard; 1845, Thomas J. Moorman; 1848, John Gantz; 1851, David P. Cole, Samuel Kell; 1857, Andrew W. Shearer, Smith Postle; 1860, Samuel Kell, A. W. Shearer; 1872, Horton Howard, J. F. Colburn; 1875, F. A. McCormick; 1878, T. B. Norris and J. F. Colburn, who are the present incumbents.

EARLY EVENTS.

The first post-office in the township was established in the summer of 1836, and John Graham was commissioned postmaster. Following is the succession to this office until the present: Mervin Stiarwalt, David P. Cole, Solomon Putman, Goodhue McGill, A. W. Shearer, Peter Harrington, William Brentlinger, and William Lambert, who is the present incumbent. The office is now located at the railroad station. Another post-office was established at Galloway station, a few years since. Milton Demorest is postmaster.

The first physician to locate in Prairie township was George Richey. This was early in the settlement—perhaps 1820. Dr. Richey was a skillful practitioner, and a valuable man in the community. He practiced many years. The present medical staff of the township is composed of L. Woodruff, T. B. Norris (who located at Alton in 1871), and William Pinkerton, all of good ability, we learn.

A hotel was opened in Alton, soon after that hamlet came into being. The Alton house, at this point, is now under the management of Thomas Thompson.

SCHOOLS.

The first school in Prairie township was taught by Peter Clover in a little log building standing on his farm. The date was early, perhaps in 1817 or 1818. Catharine, Betsey, and several of the Clover family, America Hickman (Mrs. Davis), and other children, to the number of twenty, composed the school. A log house was next built, near where Benjamin Elliot now lives. This was occupied for both school and church purposes for many years.

CHURCHES.

The first meetings in the township were held at the house of Henry Clover, early in the settlement, by ministers of the Methodist faith. Revs. John Solomon and George Nealy are remembered as among the first preachers. Soon after religious services were held at the house of Shadrack Postle, and at both these points classes were formed, which in time grew to be flourishing congregations, with substantial church edifices, Sabbath-schools, etc. Another class was formed and a meeting-house erected on the Harrisburg and Galloway turnpike, near the southern line of the township.

VILLAGES.

After the constuction of the National road, in the spring of 1836, the town of Alton was laid out. This was by Thomas Graham. At this point there is now a church, school, drug-store and grocery, and a tavern. About the same date, James Bryden and Adam Brotherlin surveyed another town, on the pike, something over two miles east of Alton; this they named Rome. Its classic name did not, however, draw any considerable number to dwell therein, and whatever glory may have gathered about this point has assuredly departed from it. Job Postle laid out another town which he named Lafayetteville. It was a nice town, on paper, but never existed in fact. At Galloway station quite a flourishing village is being built. There is a goodly degree of thrift manifested here, and several fine buildings, a store for general merchandise, blacksmith and wagon shops, etc. This point has excellent prospects, and maythe future historian, who seeks for data, from which to prepare a history of Prairie township and its improvements, meet with better success than has this writer.

JACKSON.

The surface of this township presents an almost perfectly level appearance. The settlement advanced slowly, owing to the general wet nature of the soil. In fact, the only lands really considered available for culture, were those skirting the Scioto river; but, by a judicious system of under-draining, the greater part of the farm lands have been rendered arable, and now compare favorably with the sister townships in Franklin county, for productiveness.

Jackson township is situated in the extreme southern part of the county, adjoining Pickaway county. It is bounded on the north by Franklin township; east, by Hamilton; west, by Pleasant and Prairie townships, and south by Scioto township, in the above county.

The streams found within the limits of this township are all tributary to the Scioto river, which flows from north to south along the eastern line of the township. Commencing on the south we find, first, Turkey, and immediately north, Plum run, flowing eastward, and forming a junction a short distance from the river. Grant run comes next, northward, so named from the fact that, in the winter of 1806 and 1807, the father of Hugh Grant was killed while engaged in cutting a bee-tree, standing on its bank. The next stream, to the northward, is Republican run, and north of this, near the township line, is Brown's run, so named, doubtless, in honor of a family by that name, who early located on its bank, and whose descendants yet live along its course. Wild game of all kinds abounded in great plenty in Jackson township at the time its wooded fastnesses were first invaded by the sturdy backwoodsmen. Indians were also numerous. They were not, however, usually troublesome, and had it not been for the constant fear their presence engendered, would not have been disagreeable neighbors.

SETTLEMENT.

Hugh Grant, who was a native of Maryland, removed to Pittsburgh, and there married Catharine Barr. In 1804, he came with his family, then numbering five, to Ohio, locating first in Ross county. While there he purchased some four hundred and fifty acres of land, in Jackson township, and, in the spring of 1805, he removed to this township, but, not knowing the exact location of his purchase, he "squatted" on land near the river, where he was killed not long afterwards, and his widow eventually located on the land above mentioned, where she passed the remainder of her life, dying August 17, 1836. Mr. Grant was a great hunter, and it is said that he killed eighty-two deer during one fall. The children were: Alexander, who married Lucy Parish, and eventually located in Hancock county, Ohio, where he died; Jacob, who became a soldier in the war of 1812, contracted a disease, then known as the "cold plague," came home, and died; Isabella, who became the wife of Benjamin Wood, lived the greater part of her life in Jackson township, and is now deceased; Nancy, who remained single, and died in Jackson township a few years since; Mary, who was twice married, and died in Kansas, and Hugh, who was the youngest child (born June 30, 1807), and the only one now living, still lives upon the farm; he has been twice married—first to Leah Diemer, by whom he had eleven children; next to Mary J. Scott, by whom he had three children. Mr. Grant is, without doubt, the oldest person now living in the township, who was born here.

Jonas Orders was, by birth, a Virginian. He was one of General Wayne's Indian fighters, and, receiving his discharge at Detroit, was on his way home, when, reaching Franklinton, then but a small collection of log huts, he was taken sick. While here, he became acquainted ABSALOM BORROR, SR.

RES. OF JOHN HAINS, JACKSON TP. RES. OF HIRAM MALOTT, JACKSON TP.

MRS. ABSALOM BORROR.

RES. OF HIRAM BORROR, JACKSON TP.

RESIDENCE OF ABSALOM BORROR, JACKSON TP.

RES OF JOHN S. BORROR.

RES. OF MRS. LEWIS BORROR, JACKSON TP.

RES. OF MRS. EPHRAIM BORROR, JACKSON TP.

with Sarah Ford, whom he subsequently married. For a time he lived on what is now the Fullerton farm, in Jackson township. In 1829 or 1830, he bought the farm now owned by his son, Michael, where he died in January, 1863; his wife died many years previous. Of the sixteen children composing this family, but three are now living: Allen, who married Mary Gallion; Michael, who married Phebe Lowe, and Joshua, who married Fanny O'Neal. They are all prominent farmers, and live in Jackson township.

John Curry, who was of English extraction, first saw the light of day upon the broad bosom of the Atlantic ocean, while his parents were en route for America. His mother dying before reaching land, the child was adopted by an aunt (Mrs. McGath), and came to live in Deer Creek township, Pickaway county, in about 1801. There he grew to manhood, and married Sarah Smith, with whom he eventually settled in Brown township. Both he and his wife are now dead. The children were: Aaron, who lives in Indiana; James, who married Catharine Shultz, and lives in Jackson township, the owner of nearly nine hundred acres of land; Owen T., and Elizabeth, who are dead; Amos, who married Elizabeth Studebaker, and lives in Wells county, Indiana; and John, who married Nancy Ballard, and lives near Harrisburg, in this township.

Samuel Breckenridge came from the State of Pennsylvania to Franklin county, in about 1800. His wife was Margaret Starrett. The family settled in Hamilton township, and there the parents died. The children were: Robert, Alexander, Samuel, John, William, Elizabeth, Mary, and Nancy, none of whom are now living.

Percival Adams, also a native of Pennsylvania, settled in Hamilton township, about 1800. His wife was Margaret Breckenridge. The date of his death was September, 1865. One of his sons, Thomas, settled in Jackson township, and married Elizabeth Barbee. He died August 7, 1872, and his wife March 30, 1866. Of his children, T. J. Adams, esq., is the only one living in the township. Franklin B., another son, was a member of company B, Fifty-fourth regiment Ohio volunteer infantry, and was killed at Pittsburg Landing, April 6, 1862.

William C. Duff was a native of the Emerald Isle, from whence he emigrated, to this land of freedom, in the year 1800. In Pennsylvania he married Catharine Dungan, who lived at Norristown, and, in 1806, he reached Ohio, locating on the farm now owned by John Brown, in Jackson township. He was a wheelright by occupation. He died in 1827, and his widow became the wife of Dennis Queen, and died in 1851. The children numbered six, only two of whom now live in their native township: William B., whose present wife was Mrs. Jane Lazalier, and Margaret, now the wife of W. Preston. Two others, John and Nancy (Mrs. M. Parish), live in Indiana.

James Seeds, having purchased one thousand acres of land in Daniel Morgan's survey, number one thousand, two hundred and ninety six, moved thereon with nearly his entire family, at an early date. The children were: Robert, who married Catharine Hornbaker; James, who married a lady in Fairfield county; Aaron, who married a Miss Miller; John, who married Elizabeth Roler; William, who married Margaret Hoover; Moses, who moved to St. Louis, when single, and married there. Robert, John, William, and Aaron settled on the old homestead, and are deceased, as are the entire family of children. James Seeds was a sort of "stand by" in the settlement, and for years furnished the pioneer families with salt, which he brought, by aid of pack-horses, along a blazed path, from Zanesville. In the general exodus of the family to Ohio, we learn, a daughter, Martha, who had become the wife of William Seeds, remained in Pennsylvania. In the spring of 1820, this family arrived in Jackson township, and made settlement also on the old homestead. The children of this couple were: James, John, Elizabeth, William W., Robert, Henry, Isabella, Harvey, Samuel, Mary A., and Cyrus. Two of these now live in Jackson township: William W., who married Mary Seeds, and Cyrus, who married Isabella M. Beckett. Harvey, who married Mary A. Hatton, lives in Iowa.

John Hoover, a native of Pennsylvania, and a soldier of the Revolution, married Margaret Smith, who lived near Hummilstown, and removed to Kentucky prior to the admission of that State into the Union. In that State he remained until the legalizing, by the constitution, of human slavery. This measure being contrary to his convictions, he emigrated to a free State—Ohio—arriving in March, 1807. He purchased some two hundred acres of land in Jackson township, and here, in the improvement of his wilderness home, he passed the remnant of his days. In 1840, he died, aged nearly one hundred years. His wife died in, perhaps, 1833. There were nine children in the family, only one of whom now lives in the township: Margaret, widow of William Seeds. The remainder of the family were: Elizabeth, Catharine, Peter (who was a soldier in the war of 1812, and died at Franklinton, soon after the close of the war, of disease contracted in the service), Polly, Abraham, Nicholas, and George. The last named married Catharine Kious, and died on the old farm, March 17, 1872. His wife died June 29, 1875. Three children yet live in the township: George W., Polly (Mrs. Wm. Neiswender), and Margaret (Mrs. J. Smith).

William Brown and wife, Harriet (Thomas) Brown, were natives of Ireland, he having been born there in 1732. Early in the present century they emigrated to America, and for a time lived at Clillicothe. In 1809, the family located in the northern part of Jackson township, on the stream now known as Brown's run. The brick house built by Mr. Brown is now occupied by a son. In the war of 1812, Mr. Brown became a soldier for a short time. He died on September 27, 1830. Mrs. Brown survived him many years, dying April 5, 1876. The children were: Mary Ann, who married Jesse Courtright, and who now lives in Prairie township; William C., who married Rachel Holton, lives in Indiana; John, who has been twice married—his present wife was Elizabeth Ricketts—occupies part of the old homestead; Martha J., who married D. L. Holton; and Samuel, who married Margaret J. Holton, lives in the house where he was born. He has in his possession a double gun, which his father brought with him from the land of his birth.

In the year 1810, William Miller, Joseph Bennett, and John Keyes, came with their families, from Hardy county, Virginia, and made a settlement in the southeastern portion of Jackson township. None of the Bennett family now live in the township, and but two of the Millers, who are grandchildren—Wesley P., and Mary F. (Mrs. T. J. Adams). John Keyes, jr., lives on Holton run, in this township, and is among the prominent farmers in the township.

Jacob and Magdalene Borror, of Hardy county, Virginia, were the parents of the following children: Martin, Jacob, Solomon, Isaac, Absalom, Christina, and Myomi. In 1804 the father died, and seven years later, his widow came, with her entire family, to Ohio, and made a settlement in Jackson township. A rude log cabin was rolled up in the dense wood, and at no great distance from where now stands the substantial brick mansion now owned by Absalom, the last survivor of the children. At this time all was a wild wilderness for miles around, there being but one log cabin nearer than Franklinton, nearly ten miles away. But strong arms and determined hearts were equal to the occasion; little by little the forest disappeared, until now in its stead are farms, whose broad acres, with their wealth of waving wheat or rustling corn, bear witness to the success of those hardy pioneer sons of toil. The mother lived to see this happy consummation. The children settled as follows: Martin, who married Anna Bennett, located in southern Indiana; Jacob, who married Catharine Coonrod, died near where the family first began improvements—his son, Jacob, occupies the old homestead; Solomon, who married Catharine Clark, also located near the old homestead—this farm is occupied by a son, Ichabod; Isaac, who married Olive Babcock, occupied the farm now owned by Jonathan Swagler, and many of his descendants still live in the township; Absalom, who has been twice married, lives on the home farm. His present wife was Margaret Badger. The writer would express his thanks to this gentleman for many items of interest. Christina, who married P. Morris; and Myomi, who became the wife of S. Brunk, located in the west.

Henry Baumgartner came from Virginia to Jackson township, early in its settlement. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. Here he married Hannah Haughn. His farm is now occupied by Jackson Hardy. He died December 24, 1868. His wife died March 27, 1877. There were nine children in the family, three only are now living and these all reside in their native township: Catharine, who married J. Borror; Levi, whose present wife was Elizabeth McGroom; and Henry, who married Christina Miller.

John G. Neff was among the early settlers in Prairie township. He was twice married. He amassed a great amount of real estate. Eventually, he lived in Jackson township, where he died, and where his numerous offspring still reside, among whom are: Scott, John, Leonard, McDowell, a daughter, Elizabeth (Mrs. S. Kell), who lives in Prairie township, and another, Clarissa, who lives in Illinois.

John Mitchell was also an early settler in Jackson township. His wife was Elizabeth Brubaker. He purchased a piece of wild land, which he improved; this is now owned by Solomon Swagler. Of his children but one, Joseph B., now lives in the township.

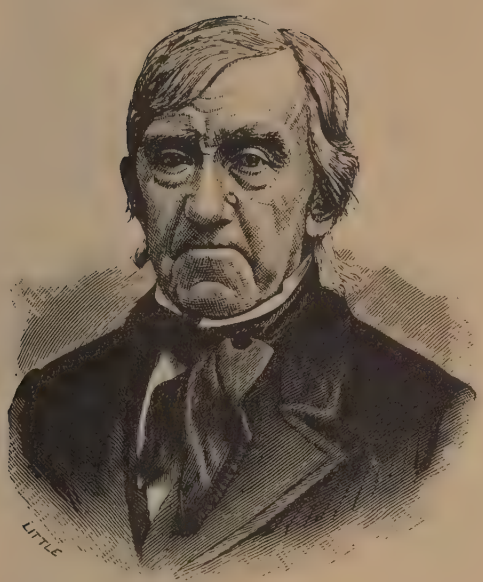
Hawes Barbee was married in Virginia, and in 1818 removed to Ohio. He lived for a time near Shadeville, in Hamilton township, and after a few years removed to Jackson township, locating permanently on the farm now owned by Augustus Bear, and here he died. One child, William, lives in Jackson, and another, Hawes, resides in Columbus.

Valentine F. Shover and Elizabeth, his wife, were natives of Virginia. They came to Ohio in 1820, but did not locate in Jackson township until 1844. The lands he purchased at that time are still occupied by the heirs. Mr. Shover died in May, 1847, and his aged widow still lives in the township. Three of the children also live here; they are: Henry, who married Caroline Miller; Harriet (Mrs. Abraham Miller); and George W., who married Jane Forst. The remainder of the family are: John, who lives in Indiana; Sidner J., who lives in Chicago, Illinois; Ashford and Eli, who live in Ohio.

Abraham Miller and his wife, Sarah, were natives of Virginia. They came to Ohio in about 1811, locating in Madison county. In 1828 a permanent settlement was made in Jackson township. Mr. Miller died April 20, 1844. His wife survived him several years. Of the ten children who composed the family only three are now living; they are: Cynthia A. (Mrs. J. B. Mitchell); Abraham, who married Harriet Shover, and lives in Jackson township upon the old homestead; Catharine, who became the wife of William C. Mitchell, and lives in Illinois.

In 1830, Andrew Gantz, a native of the State of Pennsylvania, purchased a tract of land in Jackson township, and about one year later, two sons, Adam and John, settled thereon. A few years subsequently, another son, Jonathan, arrived, who yet lives on the pike west of Grove City. Adam, who married Catharine Pinnex, died in Jackson township in December, 1877; his wife died in May, 1875. The children of this couple numbered fourteen. Six now live in the township: Elizabeth G. (Mrs. W. P. White), Lydia (Mrs. J. W. Welch), Nancy, (Mrs. William Watts), George W., Adeline (Mrs. T. Barbee), and Albert, who lives on the home farm. Others of the children live in the county. John Gantz, who married Mahala Shafer, now lives in Iowa. His settlement in Jackson, above referred to, was of short duration.

John Haines, a native of Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, married Susan Jarvis, and, in the spring of 1831 located in Jackson township. He was a farmer, and improved the farm now owned by Messrs. Miller & Shover. After some years' residence here, he removed to Allen county, Ohio, where he died, April 18, 1864. His wife died many years previous, and he remarried. The children by the first wife were: Amos, William, John, Robert, Levi, Joel, Joseph, Samuel, and Jacob, one only of whom now lives in Jackson township—Robert, who married Nancy Mills, and now resides near the old homestead, in the south part of the township.



ZACHARIAH H. MARSH.

The subject of this sketch was born in Baltimore, Maryland, on the seventeenth day of August 1788, and in 1815 came to Belmont county, Ohio, accompanied by his father and mother, John and Catharine Marsh. His parents remained in Belmont county until their death. On the fourth day of June, 1817, Zachariah H. Marsh was married, in Belmont county, to Rachel Miller, daughter of George and Hannah Miller, who settled in that county in 1812 or 1813. They remained there twenty-two years, and there were born to them seven children—one son and six daughters. In 1839 they removed to Ohio, where Mr. Marsh bought a farm in the north part of Jackson township, Franklin county, and where the family has since resided. Mrs. Marsh died in 1853, at the age of about sixty-two years. He still lives on the place, a hale and hearty man of ninety-one years. In his early life he was a hard worker, but in life's declining day he lives in quietude, cared for by the loving hands of his children. Of these, four are married and three remain single. All are living near home.

RESIDENCE OF LOUIS BUNN, JACKSON TP., FRANKLIN CO., OHIO.

Wesley Preston, whose father was a pioneer in Washington county, Ohio, married Margaret C. Duff, and, in the spring of 1832, came to Franklin county, locating temporarily on Big run, in Franklin township. Nine years later, he purchased the land, upon which he still resides, near the center of Jackson township. The children are: James H., whose present wife was Rosanna Smith; Catharine A. (Mrs. John S. Moler), who lives in Iowa; William H. (deceased); John D., who lives in Illinois, and has been twice married; Ezra C., who married Mattie Adams; Solomon C., who married Clara Reynolds, and lives in Illinois; David L.; George W., who married Jennie E. Swisher, and lives on the home farm; Martin L. (deceased), and Wesley H., by profession a teacher, who yet remains at home.

John Martino came from the State of New York, at an early period, and remained for a time in Pickaway county. There he married Catharine Woolery, and, in 1833, removed to Jackson township, locating on the farm now owned by Scott Neff. Here he died, September 23, 1869. His wife died January 4, 1856. The children were nine in number, several of whom live in the county. We have the record of only one—Joseph—who married Margaret Peoples. He located on the farm still occupied by his heirs. His death occurred November 26, 1871.

John Houghn came from near Winchester, Virginia, in 1838. He reached Jackson township on January 2d of that year. His lands were situated in the west central portion of the township, and were in a perfect state of nature—low and wet. They are now as productive as any in the township. John Houghn and wife, who was Rachel Clippert, have been dead many years, he dying first. Five of the twelve children composing this family now live in the township: Henry, who married Abigail Holmes; Elizabeth (Mrs. F. Shover); Abraham, who married Margaret Borrer; Philip, who married Elizabeth Coonrod; and Frances (Mrs. I. Miller).

Zachariah Marsh, who is the oldest man in the township, was born in the city of Baltimore, in the year 1787. During the war of 1812 he came to Belmont county Ohio. There he married Rachel Miller. He located in Jackson township in 1838. His wife died September 11, 1853. His children are: Catharine, Rebecca, Hannah, John, Drusella, and Elizabeth.

EARLY EVENTS.

The first white child born in the northwest part of the township was Nancy, a child of William C. and Catharine Duff, born in 1806. She eventually became the wife of M. Parish, and now lives in Indiana. Hugh Grant was the first child born near the vicinity of Grove City, the date being June 30, 1807. He is yet living there, hale and hearty. Among the first adult deaths in the township was that of Hugh Grant, sr., already referred to.

The first brick house in the township was erected by William Brown, as early as 1814. It is now occupied by a son, Samuel. The first and only post-office in Jackson township was at Grove City, some twenty-five years since. William F. Breck was the first postmaster, and the office was located at his store. The present postmaster is A. G. Grant, the office being kept at the store of R. D. Grant, who is deputy postmaster.

The pioneer mercantile establishment in the township was opened at Grove City, by William F. Breck, about 1852. Mr. Breck showed a fair stock of general merchandise. The present stores at this point are: R. D. Grant and Hiram V. Malott, who each keep a general stock. At Borrer's corners there is a grocery, and these comprise the mercantile interests in the township.

The pioneer hotel was established at Grove City, by a man named Blackburn. The same building is at present occupied for a like purpose by William Voelkel.

INDUSTRIAL PURSUITS.

The first saw-mill in the township, now remembered, was built by Robert Seeds, on Turkey run, some forty years since. This was carried away by the floods some three years later. He afterwards built one on Grant's run.

In about 1850, William F. Breck erected a steam saw-mill at Grove City. Stone, for grinding purposes, were subsequently added. This mill is now being torn down, and near it George H. Grant has in process of erection a brick building, to be occupied for a grist-mill. This will be propelled by steam, and is to be a first-class mill in every respect.

There are a wagon manufactory and several blacksmith-shops at Grove City; also, two of the last-named at Borror's Corners. George Vanceiver, S. J. Hughes, and E. E. Miller, have drain tile manufactories in the township. The first-named is near Grove City.

ORGANIZATION.

Jackson township, which was originally a part of Franklin, was organized under its present name in the year 1815, but no records are now extant showing who were first elected its township officials. Following is a list of justices of the peace, as given in Martin's History of Franklin county, with additions by T. J. Adams, esq.: 1815, William Brown, William Badger, Woolery Coonrod, William C. Duff, William Seeds, Jacob B. Deimer, John Gantz, Joshua Glanville, Robert Seeds, Isaac Miller, H. S. Mitchell, Isaac White, E. C. Brett, Henry Andrews, A. C. Borror, G. W. Hoover, W. P. White, J. B. Mitchell, H. C. Darnell, J. White, sr., and T. J. Adams and John S. Borror, who are the present incumbents. The township officers for 1879 are: H. Patzer, J. C. White, R. C. Alkire, trustees; T. J. Adams, clerk; Levi Baumgartner, treasurer; J. E. Goldsmith, assessor; J. T. Brink, S. P. Houghn, constables. There are nine supervisors of highways. The board of education are: James Crabb (president), I. B. Borror, John Keys, G. W. Huffman, George H. Gantz, Hiram Borror, J. C. White, George H. Allen, John Linebaugh, and J. W. Woolum.

GROVE CITY.

The lands comprised in this hamlet, as originally laid out, were owned by John Smith. In the summer of 1852, a son-in-law, William F. Breck, caused the lands to be platted, and to this embryo village he gave the name it now bears. Its growth, for years, was a slow one, but recently a new interest has sprung up, and substantial buildings are now in process of erection. It is pleasantly situated on the Harrisburgh pike, and seven miles from Columbus. The first election under the act of corporation, was held on May 10, 1866, at which time the following persons were elected: Dr. Joseph Bullen, mayor; R. Higgy, recorder; William Sibray, Anton Pilger, jr., H. Anderson, J. L. Smith, L. Buckhaltz, trustees. Following are the names of the mayors to the present: 1869, W. P. Mench; 1870, William Nichols; 1872, Joseph Pence; 1874, William Sibray; 1878, M. L. Harst, who still retains the office. The remaining officers are: Dr. L. S. Hoover, treasurer; Thomas Sample, clerk; Dr. Francis Hoy, Henry Funk, and William Bodel, coulcilmen.

CHURCHES.

The following sketches of churches are prepared from data collected by personal interviews with members of the different organizations represented:

SCIOTO CHAPEL.

The denomination who worship here are of the Christian faith. As early as 1812, meetings were held at the house of William Miller, by ministers of this faith, and some two years later a church organization was effected, composed, in part, of the following persons: William Miller and wife, Joseph Bennett and wife, Jacob Strader and wife, Martin Boots and wife, James Seeds and wife, Robert Seeds and wife, and Mrs. Magdalena Miller. Jacob Strader and William Miller were elected deacons. A few years later, a log meeting house was erected upon land of Christopher Strader, and this was occupied until the church grew to be a strong organization. In about 1850, the present church edifice was built. This stands on land donated for the purpose by Absalom Borror. The trustees were: Solomon, Levi, Hiram, and Absalom Borror, and Robert Seeds. The present church membership is sixty. Rev. Samson M. Stone is the present minister.

JACKSON CHAPEL.

Early in the settlement, meetings were held at the house of William Breckenridge, by Rev. James Rose, of the Methodist faith, and soon a class was formed. It was composed of the following: Rev. John Solomon and wife, William Breckenridge and wife, James Butler and wife, Jacob Diemer and wife, ——— Fortune and wife, and, possibly, a few others, whose names are forgotten. Meetings were held at the house of Mr. Breckenridge until the erection of the school-house in district number three (Hopewell), when they were transferred there. In about 1859, the neat church building, known as "Jackson chapel," was erected. This stands upon land donated for the purpose by William Breckenridge. Its cost was one thousand dollars. The trustees, at its building, were: Andrew Dimpsey, Isaiah Price, John Huffman, Henry King, and William Breckenridge. Among early ministers, the names of Hathaway, Lewis, and Doughty are remembered. The pastor is Rev. Stephen Frampton, who lives at Grove City. George W. Huffman is the present class leader. The trustees are: Isaac Breckenridge, George W. Huffman, J. B. Mitchell, John Polling, and Henry Smith. A Sunday-school was formed early, and is now in a flourishing condition. I. Breckenridge is its present superintendent.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH AT GROVE CITY.

The first meetings at or near Grove City, were held in about 1844, and this year a log meeting-house was erected. It was on the union plan—all the settlers in the vicinity contributing toward its erection. The plan was not a success. The first sermon delivered within its walls was by Rev. R. K. Davis, of the Protestant Methodist church, and a church organization was soon after effected. This was a feeble affair, and was only in being some five years. Divers denominations were accommodated within the rough hewn walls of this primitive house of God, which is now converted into a barn, and is owned by A. G. Grant.

In 1859, a small class of the Methodist Episcopal church was formed, and shortly after, the church edifice at Grove City, at present occupied by this denomination, was erected. Its cost was one thousand five hundred dollars. The membership of this church now numbers about forty. Charles Harper and Cornelius Harst are the leaders; Hugh Grant, Emanuel M. White, W. R. Mench, George Allen, and Charles Harper, are the trustees. A Sabbath-school was early organized, and has grown to goodly proportions. Dr. Myers is the superintendent. The attendance averages one hundred.

CONCORD CHAPEL.

As early as 1847, a class was formed at this point, composed of Isaac Miller, wife, and daughter, Amanda; Mrs. Sarah Miller, Jacob Spillman and wife, William C. Duff and wife, and Jacob Dove and wife. No other names are remembered. Meetings were held at this time at the house of Absalom Miller, and subsequently in the school-house, in the Houghn settlement, known as the Hickory seminary. Among the early ministers were Revs. William Sutton, John W. White, now of Worthington, and David Smith. In 1847, a log meeting-house was erected near the site of the present chapel, and in this services were held until, perhaps, 1859, when Concord chapel was erected. Its cost was one thousand eight hundred dollars. The trustees were: John and Henry Linebaugh, Isaac Miller, Solomon Swigler, Abraham Miller, Jacob Spillman, and William C. Duff. The present membership is seventy-five. The class leaders were E. E. Miller, Solomon Swigler, and G. W. Shover. A Sabbath-school was formed soon after the church organization was effected. It has an attendance of sixty-five. E. E. Miller is its present superintendent. Rev. Mr. Callahan, of Darbyville, is the present pastor, the church being attached to that circuit.

SALEM METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH,

which is situated on the line between this township and Pleasant, was formed about the same time as that at Concord chapel. It is attached to Harrisburgh circuit. Its membership is large, and in connection, there is a flourishing Sabbath-school.

RESIDENCE OF JOHN LINEBAUGH, JACKSON TP. FRANKLIN CO. OHIO.

THE GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH

was formed at Grove City, as early as 1855, and soon after occurred the erection of their first meeting-house—a large log building. This was occupied for a few years, when the congregation became so large that greater accommodations were needed, and the present frame building was erected. This church has the largest membership of any at Grove City, and the writer regrets that he was unable to secure data sufficient for a full history of it.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

at Grove City was formed in about 1861, or at least permanently organized at that time. The meeting-house, the construction of which is largely due to the efforts of William F. Breck, was built the same year, and cost one thousand dollars. Among the constituent members of this church were: Daniel Smith and wife, Adam Gantz and wife, George Weggandt, wife and family, Mrs. William F. Breck, and perhaps a few others, whose names are not remembered. This church has quite a numerous membership. It has also a flourishing Sabbath-school in connection, of which Michael Smith is the present superintendent. The present pastor is Rev. Samuel D. Smith, whose residence is at Reynoldsburgh.

ZION CHAPEL.

This organization is composed of members from Scioto chapel, who, in the year 1869, erected the present substantial brick church edifice, which cost three thousand five hundred dollars. In about 1872, the following were formally organized as a church: G. W. Gordon and wife, Henry Clark and wife, J. Smith and wife, Mrs. Rachel Adams, James, William, George and Henry Houghn and their wives, and L. A. Lewis and wife. The officers on organization were: G. W. Gordon and Henry Clark, deacons; George and James Houghn and W. P. White, trustees, who remain the same at present. A Sabbath-school was formed at the same date with the church. Henry Clark is its present superintendent. The average attendance of children is fifty-two. The present church membership numbers seventy. Rev. Samson M. Stone, who assumed charge of the circuit in 1870, is its pastor. The writer desires to thank this gentleman for data furnished, relating to church matters.

SCHOOLS.

The first school of which the writer has any data was held in the Borror settlement, as early as 1815. A little log school-house was erected on the corner of Solomon Borror's farm, and in this building, during the winter of 1815, Asa Davis taught a term of school. This was supported by subscription, and the greater part of the children composing it were from the families of the Borrors, Millers, Seeds, Fishels, and Fitzgeralds, and numbered, perhaps, twenty. Schools were taught in this building until the erection of a brick school-house, in the same locality. In 1840, the old log building in the Houghn settlement, afterward christened the "Hickory seminary," was erected. This did duty for many years, as a school-house, and also as a place for religious worship, but it is now going to decay. The first school-house at Grove City is of recent date. It was a framed building, and stood on the site of the present school-building. There are now ten school-houses in the township.

PHYSICIANS.

The first of these valued members of every community who located permanently in the township, was Dr. Joseph Bullen. The date of his arrival was about 1852. Dr. Bullen was a successful and popular practitioner, and he soon acquired an immense practice, by which he amassed a fine competence. He died on December 17, 1878. Other members of the medical profession have made short stays in the township, but they always sought "new fields and pastures rare," after a brief sojourn here. The present medical staff numbers five, and they are all, it is said, having a fair practice. Their names are: L. S. Hoover, Francis Hoy, T. W. Taylor, Charles McGiven, and — Myers. Their history is left for a future historian to record. May it be a successful and honorable one.

Of societies, the writer finds nothing to record, save that the farmer's order, the Patrons of Husbandry, once flourished in the towhship, as have, also, temperance societies. Neither are now in operation.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JOHN LINEBAUGH.

The father and mother of the subject of this sketch, Abraham Linebaugh and Elizabeth Wickel, were born in York county, Pennsylvania, where they were married in 1805. Immediately after marriage they removed to Union county, Pennsylvania, where they lived until his death, in 1823. His widow, with her children, consisting of six sons and one daughter, then returned to York county, where she died in 1862. The children were: Mary, Daniel, Abraham, Jesse, John, William, and Henry. Abraham died in 1877, at the age of sixty-six. The others are all living, and all but two in Pennsylvania. John and Henry live in Jackson township, Franklin county.

John Linebaugh was born in Union county, Pennsylvania, August 26, 1815. He obtained a limited education in the subscription schools of the day, and when nineteen years of age, apprenticed himself to learn the trade of a carpenter, at which he served two years. By the terms of his contract, he was to receive his board and a pair of shoes worth one dollar and twenty-five cents, instead of serving three years, with a little larger pay. After faithfully serving his time, he was able to obtain but seven dollars a month besides his expenses, and little work to do at any price. He then came to Ohio, arriving in Columbus May 10, 1837, where he found employment, and worked at his trade until 1864. Being economical and saving, he was able to accumulate considerable property, and some time before giving up working at his trade, he was able to purchase a good farm in the southwest part of Jackson township, where he now lives. He owns six hundred and ninety-five acres of land, the result of his own unaided efforts, and is comfortably situated in life. From choice, he has always remained single, and at present boards in his own house, with his nephew, Abraham L. Linebaugh, who manages his farm.

Mr. Linebaugh has never worked much at farming, and is possessed of a sufficiency of this world's goods to allow him a comfortable livelihood without having recourse to hard labor.

THE BORROR FAMILY.

The members of the Borror family, consisting of Mrs. Magdalene Borror and seven children, emigrated from Virginia, in 1809, and settled in the south part of Jackson township, Franklin county, on a tract of two hundred and fifty acres of land, given Mrs. Borror by her father, Christopher Strader, who had been a soldier in the Revolutionary war, from Virginia. Her husband, Jacob Borror, also served as a soldier in the war for independence, and in the faithful discharge of his duties to his country, suffered untold hardships, which undermined a naturally strong constitution, and planted the seeds of disease which caused his death, in 1804. The members of the family were: the mother, Mrs. Magdalene Borror, and her children—Martin, Christine, Jacob, Solomon, Isaac, Myomi, and Absalom. The settlement and marriage of each will be found in the history of Jackson township.

Absalom Borror was the youngest of seven children, and was born in Hardy county, Virginia, December 21, 1804. Some years after their settlement in Ohio, he married Elizabeth Seeds, by whom he had six children: Hiram, Louis, John S., Harriet, Ephraim, and Elizabeth. Mrs. Borror died in about 1833, and, in February, 1834, he married Margaret Badger, who was born December 27, 1814. They have had four children: William Martin, Catharine, Martha Jane, and Christine. Hiram, the eldest child of Absalom Borror, married Harriet Brunk, and lives on the farm adjoining, on the southeast; Louis married Elizabeth Watts, and died at Borror's corners, where his widow now lives; John married Angeline Seeds, and lives at Borror's corners, where he has a farm; he also owns a store building on his land; Harriet died, when a young woman; Ephraim married Susan Beckett, and died on his farm, north of the "corners," where his widow now lives; Elizabeth married A. E. Brown, and lives west of Commercial Point, in Pickaway county; William Martin died in infancy; Catharine married Jonathan Swagler, and died at his home, north of the "corner;" Martha Jane married Hiram V. Malott, and lives in Grove City; Christine married John Haines, and lives on the home farm.

In this connection appears views of the residences of Absalom Borror, John Haines, John S. Borror, Ephraim Borror, Louis Borror, Hiram Borror and H. V. Malott, the latter of Grove City.

HAMILTON.

Hamilton township is within the, so-called, Congress lands, and is bounded on the north by Marion township, on the south by Pickaway county, and on the west by the Scioto river. In the original division of Franklin county into townships, Hamilton was embraced in Liberty and Harrison townships. The township was organized under its present name in 1807. It then contained within its limits the territory now constituting Madison township. In the formation of the township of Marion in 1873, the two northern tiers of sections in Hamilton were detached and included in the new township.

SURFACE, SOIL AND STREAMS.

The township, for the most part, is quite level, the most rolling land lying in the western part, along the Chillicothe pike. In the quality of its soil, the township is probably not equaled by any other in the county, the soil being largely of a limestone nature, except in the vicinity of the Scioto river, where there is bottom land.

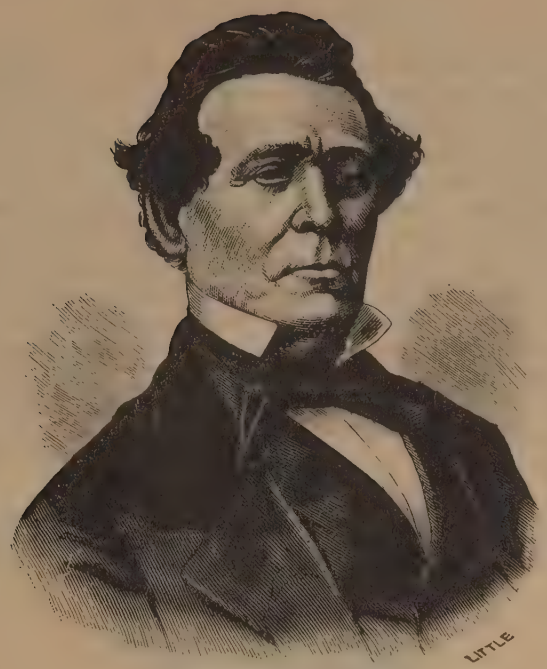
The principal and only stream, worthy of description, within the township, is the Gahanna river, commonly called Big Walnut creek, a large eastern branch of the Scioto. It rises in the northeastern part of Delaware county, and after running a southern course for about forty miles, into the southeast part of Franklin county, receives a stream from the east called Black lick, and just below Alum creek from the west. It enters Hamilton and Madison townships, in section twenty-four, flows a very tortuous course through the township, leaving it in the southwest corner.

ANCIENT REMAINS.

The township contains a number of mounds, or earthworks—the only records of the existence of a former race. On the west bank of Gahanna river, in section thirty-four, on an elevated piece of land, are the remains of an ancient fort, or ditch, which has been almost completely obliterated by the cultivation of the soil. Nearly a mile east of this, on the farm of Thomas M. Clark, are two mounds, situated about a quarter of a mile apart, the larger of which is round in shape, and the smaller oblong. These mounds have been dug into to some extent, and implements and human bones were found. There are several other mounds, in different portions of the township, but they do not essentially differ from those already mentioned.

A BEAR HUNT.

All kinds of wild animals were very plentiful in the early settlement of the township, although bears may be said to have been scarce; sufficiently so to make their hunt exciting. About the year 1818, an old bear was seen, by Jacob Hamler, preparing to make a meal of one of George Rohr's hogs, a short distance from his house. Hamler ran over to Mr. Rohr's, where there were several men at the time, and informed him of the circumstance. Armed with guns and axes, and accompanied by a couple of dogs, the men started in pursuit of the animal, which the dogs soon overtook, and a running fight ensued, for about a mile, when old bruin ran up a large black oak tree. By the time the men arrived it had become too dark to shoot accurately, and, at length, a bonfire was built up, by the light of which the hunters poured a volley of bullets into the animal. The tree was cut down, after firing a number of times, when the bear was found to be dead, having lodged in the fork of the tree, with sixteen bullet holes in his body. He was taken home, and a barbecue made of him the next day.



DR. JEREMIAH CLARK.

Hamilton received a valuable accession to its settlement, in 1826, in the arrival of its pioneer physician, Dr. Jeremiah Clark. Dr. Clark was the son of John and Mary Clark, and was born in Waterbury, Connecticut, on the fourth day of June, 1804. When he was fourteen years of age his parents removed to Ohio, and settled in Medina county, where some of the family had located before them, and in a local history of that county we find the following reference to their arrival:

"In April, 1818, Dr. Bela B. Clark, a brother of Ransom and John L. Clark, arrived and informed them that their father, John Clark, was coming, and they left their chopping and cut the logs for a shanty for the family, and had got it up and three-fourths of the roof on when their father's team appeared in sight. They soon finished the roof, and the family crossed the river on flood-wood (the stream being so high they could not then cross with their teams), and carried their bedsticks—filled with straw and leaves—and such other articles as they could, lodged in their cabin in real pioneer style, and like others of their neighbors before them, fared as best they could. They were forty days on their journey from Bridgewater, Connecticut."

While yet a young man, Dr. Clark was offered, by his father, a farm in Wakeman, Huron county, Ohio, where he had two brothers then living, if he would locate on the land and clear it up. The offer was promptly accepted, but the young man soon became convinced that the occupation of a farmer was one for which he was not adapted, and in which he would never achieve success. He gave up the farm and decided to study medicine, and it is a somewhat singular fact that no less than five sons of this family were members of the medical profession. His brother, Harmon M. Clark, was an early and well-known physician in Huron county, Ohio, and we find him prominently mentioned in a history of that county. In 1824, the subject of our notice commenced the study of medicine with his brother, Dr. Bela B. Clark, of Medina county, and subsequently attended lectures at the Medical Society of the Nineteenth Medical District of the State of Ohio, located at Cleveland, where he graduated October 25, 1825. He first settled in Green Castle, Fairfield county, but only remained a short time, when he came to Franklin county and established himself in practice in Hamilton township.

October 4, 1826, he was married to Jane C., daughter of Thomas Morris, who was one of the earliest, as he was one of the most prominent, of the pioneers of Hamilton township. After his marriage Dr. Clark located on the farm of his father-in-law, and with his practice combined agricultural pursuits. His wife died February 8, 1831, at the age of twenty-eight years, six months and nine days. September 3, 1833, he was again married, to Julia Ann Fox, of Madison township, Pickaway county, Ohio, originally from Hampshire county, Virginia, where she was born, July 29, 1805.

Dr. Clark continued in the active discharge of his professional duties until 1846, at which time his health had become somewhat impaired, and he thereafter led a more retired life. In the fall of 1845 he was elected to the legislature, as a Whig, from Franklin county, and served for one year—the period for which members of that body were chosen under the old State constitution.

Dr. Clark was a man of many admirable traits of character, of unassailable integrity, liberal and kind hearted. He was for years one of the leadlng members of the Walnut Hill Methodist Episcopal church, and contributed most liberally to its support. He was a man of strong convictions and when his judgment was once formed it could not be easily shaken. But he was not hasty in his conclusions and, as a consequence, was generally in the right. In his manner he was dignified, yet courteous and affable to all.

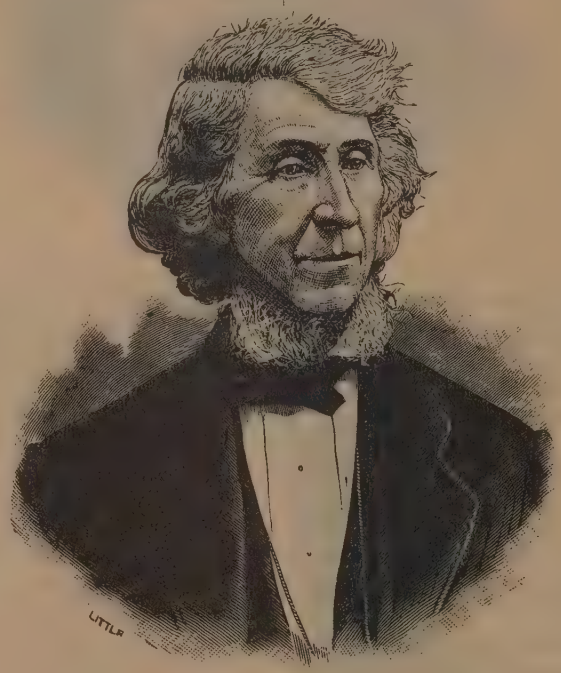
After a life of great activity and usefulness he died, at his residence, in Hamilton, on the fifth day of March, 1865, leaving to his family the priceless inheritance of a good name.

Dr. Clark was the father of nine children, born of his second wife, as follows: Ann Eliza, born June 20, 1834, and died in September of the same year; Mary Munson, born August 10, 1835, and married John C. Platter, August 28, 1860; Thomas M., born March 9, 1837, and married December 11, 1860, Sarah Jane Frank, who died September 16, 1867; married, second, Ellen Hickman, October 24, 1877; John D., born December 27, 1838, and died July 6, 1842; William F., born August 26, 1840, and married, March 15, 1866, Malinda N. German; Henry G., born October 8, 1842, and married Anna H. Millar, September 26, 1867; Herman J., born September 27, 1844, died February 26, 1865; John F., born December 16, 1846, and married Eliza Elliott, in February, 1868; Sarah Ann, born February 16, 1849, and became the wife of Frank B. Herr, December 12, 1867.

Mrs. Clark, who is still living, and is now in her seventy-fifth year, resides on the homestead with her daughter, Mrs. Herr.

WILLIAM ROHR.

Among the few pioneers of Franklin county who still remain to enjoy the fruits of their early toil, privations and hardships is the subject of this sketch, William Rohr. Born in Haycock township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, September 20, 1810, he emigrated, when six years of age (in 1816), with his parents to Ohio. On the 5th day of July, of that year, a little company consisting of seventeen persons, and facetiously called Rohr's emigration company, started on their journey to the west. The emigrants were Michael Rohr and wife; George Rohr, his wife and two sons, John and William; John Rohr, wife and sons, Jacob and Charles; John Smith, wife and daughter; Thomas Rathmell, wife and infant daughter, and a man by the name of Peter Wisel. After a journey of six weeks made with three wagons, one four-horse wagon and two two-horse wagons, and the most of the way over mountains and hills, the travelers arrived in Madison township, Franklin county, Ohio, on the sixteenth day of August. Michael Rohr purchased section number six, in Madison township, on which a small clearing had been made by Henry Bunn, and resided upon it until his death. He was born in 1756, and died in 1818. His son, George Rohr, the father of the subject of this sketch, was a native of Bucks county, Pennsylvania, and was born in 1785. He married Elizabeth Catharine Funk, who was born in Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, in 1784. He died on the homestead, in Madison township, —, 1862, and she, January 14, 1854. They were the parents of four children, two of whom died when young. John is still living in Madison township, aged about seventy-one.



William Rohr was married, in 1831, to Elizabeth Wolf, daughter of Matthias Wolf, an early settler in Madison township, afterward in the east part of Hamilton. She was born in Pendleton county, Virginia, June 21, 1811, and was about a year old when her father emigrated to Ohio. After his marriage Mr. Rohr remained for over a year in the house of his father-in-law, and they together put up a saw-mill on Big Walnut creek, not far from where the residence of W. T. Rees now is. In 1833 he located on the opposite side of the road from his present residence, and subsequently purchased and settled on the farm on which he now lives. For about twelve years Mr. Rohr followed the trade of wagon-making, which he had learned from his father, and carried on the business in the little shop which is still standing near his residence. His principal occupation, during his life, however, has been that of farming, in which he has been more successful than falls to the lot of the majority of agriculturists. In former years Mr. Rohr was extremely fond of the sport of fishing. The streams abounded in salmon, pike, white perch and other varieties, now nearly extinct, and no one in the settlement was a more enthusiastic and successful angler than he. His wife died February 8, 1868, and some three or four years afterward he made a division of his property, consisting of eight hundred acres of land, among his children, retaining a life lease upon the whole.

Mr. Rohr has been a member of the Lutheran church in Hamilton, for upwards of fifty years, and has filled the various offices in its gift. In politics he is a Republican.

Mr. Rohr is the father of eleven children, as follows: George, born March 7, 1832, and died August 7, 1833; Matthias, born November 4, 1833, and died January 30, 1835; Mary Ann, born November 6, 1835, now wife of Joseph Shoaf, and resides in Hamilton; Eliza Jane, born December 7, 1837, now widow of John B. Young, and lives in Hamilton; Absalom, born January 19, 1838, now a resident of Madison township; Lewis, born August 28, 1841, and died July 27, 1842; William Henry, born April 24, 1844, and resides on the home place with his father; Sarah Elizabeth, born August 21, 1846, was the wife of Dimmick Harris, and died November 30, 1876; Rachel Catharine, born February 2, 1849, is now the wife of William Strickler, and occupies the old Matthias Wolf farm; Louisa Ellen, born July 29, 1851, wife of Peter N. Hudson, and lives south of the home farm in Hamilton; and an unnamed child, born December 1, 1853, who died the twelfth of the same month.

A man by the name of Gordon killed, just over the river, in Jackson township, three bears in one day—an old she bear and two cubs.

SETTLEMENT.

The first settler was, probably, John Dill, who came from York county, Pennsylvania, about the year 1800, and entered twelve hundred acres of land in the northwest part of the township, residing first in Franklinton, where he was one of the first settlers. He soon afterwards sold the half of the tract to Michael Fisher. He lived on the bank of the river, and his old log house is yet standing, and is now occupied by Edward Fisher. Dill was an early justice of the township. His life was cut short by accident. While riding, in company with Judge Flannagan, he was thrown from his horse by a mis-step of the animal, and sustained an injury to his head, which caused his death a few hours after. His wife survived him. They were both buried in the old Franklinton graveyard, but there is nothing to mark their resting place. They had no children.

Michael Fisher settled in the same vicinity soon after John Dill. He was a native of Hardy county, Virginia, and was born September 15, 1767. After his marriage to Sarah Petty, he resided in Kentucky one year, when he moved to Ohio, some time prior to 1800. He purchased a military claim of about eight hundred acres, just west of the river, in Franklin and Jackson townships, and located in the bend of the river. He lived there a year or two, and then sold a part of his land, and bought six hundred acres of John Dill, and moved into this township. He built on the bank of the river, on the Chillicothe road, as it then run. He had a saw-mill there at an early day, which was demolished when the canal was built. Mr. Fisher was also an early justice of the peace in Hamilton. He died in this township, January 15, 1824, and his wife January 2, 1843.

Thomas Morris settled in Hamilton, in 1803 or 1804. He had been in this section with a surveying party, in 1799. He was a native of New York city, and was born September 1, 1767. At the age of nineteen he went to Kentucky, and in the fall of 1802 came to Ohio, and with others located on the Scioto river, at what was called "high banks," south of Chillicothe. A year or two afterwards he removed to this township, and entered section twenty-seven, than which there is no better section of land in Franklin county. The old patent, therefor, issued October 23, 1805, and signed by Thomas Jefferson, president, and James Madison, secretary of State, is now in possession of Thomas M. Clark. Mr. Morris located where widow Clark now lives, and resided there until his death, July 16, 1853. He was a man of energy, of character, and of strict integrity, and every object looking to the moral well-being of society, found in him a warm supporter. He was largely instrumental in the establishment of the Walnut hill church, formerly called the Morris church, to which he made a donation of land, and at his death bequeathed the income of one thousand dollars for its support, and that of the burying-ground located there. He, too, served as a justice of the peace in an early day, in this township. He was married twice, and had two daughters, one of whom (Jane) was the first wife of Dr. Jeremiah Clark.

A family by the name Stewart were early settlers in Hamilton, just south of where the starch factory now stands. A son, William, married Betsey Fisher, and occupied the place after his father's death.

John Stambaugh and family, consisting of his wife and four children, moved in from Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in 1804. He lived where the widow of his son, Frederick, now resides (now Marion township), taking up the west half of section three. He had two sons and four daughters, all now dead but one daughter—Mrs. David Mooberry, who lives in Illinois. Frederick, who occupied the homestead up to the day of his death, in 1861, was born there, in 1811; he married Elizabeth Baylor, who is still living on the same property.

Percival Adams, about this time, settled on a part of the southwest quarter of section twenty-seven.

David Spangler, one of the earliest settlers of the township, emigrated, with his family, from Rockingham county, Virginia, and settled where his grandson, W. T. Spangler, now lives. He built the old brick house there, about sixty-five years ago. He had a large family, but only two sons are living—one in the northern part of the State, and the other in Illinois. David, his son (now deceased), married Julia Holmes, who is still living, near South Bloomfield, Pickaway county. David Spangler, sr., died July 26, 1841, aged nearly seventy-six.

The Ramseys—Samuel, James, and Robert—were among the early pioneers of the county. Samuel and James settling in the west part of Madison township, and Robert in this, on the east line of the township, on Big Walnut, where the bridge now is. His sons run a ferry across the creek as early as 1814 or 1815. Their boat was flat-bottomed and was capable of carrying a loaded wagon and team of six horses at a single time, and frequently ferried across wagons loaded with merchandise from the east.

Ferguson Morehead, originally from Pennsylvania, came to Ohio from Kentucky with his mother and a brother. In 1806 he married Jane Williams, and settled on the Scioto river south of David Spangler's. He died there about the year 1846, and his wife in 1825. Mrs. Maria Holmes, now living in this township with her son, Isaac Holmes, was their oldest child. She was born October 1, 1807, in the cabin on the bank of the river, and was rocked in a sap-trough for a cradle. She married Isaac Holmes September 6, 1827, and spent her married life in Harrison township, Pickaway county.

George W. Williams came from Maryland in the spring of 1805, and located in Franklinton. A year afterward he moved into Hamilton, and settled where his son, David, now lives, section eleven, now Marion township. He opened a tavern on the Groveport road, in 1812, which at the time was the principal stopping place between Middletown, now Oregon, in Madison township, and Franklinton. Mr. Williams kept tavern there until his death, in 1829. His wife survived him many years, and died at the age of over eighty. They were the parents of twelve children, four of whom survive, viz.:

George W. Williams, living in this township; Eli, in Mifflin; Mrs. Mary Earhart, in Columbus; and David, in Marion township. The first named was born in Hamilton, in 1809, and is, without doubt, the oldest inhabitant of Hamilton, who was born in the township. He married Laura Ann Moore, whose father, Simeon Moore, jr., was an early pioneer of Blendon township.

John Weatherington came into the township in 1805, with his son-in-law, George W. Williams. He entered a part of section seventeen, and resided there until his death. His sons, Isaac, John, and William, all settled in the township. His daughter, Rebecca, was the wife of Mr. Williams, and two other daughters—Margaret and Comfort, married, respectively, John and Josiah Williams, brothers of George W., sr.

James and Andrew Culbertson joined the settlement about this time; also, Robert Shannon, and his sons, Samuel, Hugh, James, John, Joseph, and William.

John Huff came in with Emmer Cox (who settled in Madison township), in the year 1807. He settled where Amos Culp now lives, in section twelve, and died on that place at an advanced age. He was a Revolutionary soldier.

Henry Hornbaker was an early settler, in the southeast quarter of section thirty-six, and Thomas Swan, in the northeast quarter of the same section. Swan sold out, in 1818, to Mathias Wolf, and went west.

The Sullivants—Thomas, William, and James—settled, at an early day, on a portion of section thirty-six. They bought no land, but took a lease, at the expiration of which, they moved out of the county.

Zebulon Gray came from Maryland, at an early day, and a family, by the name of German, came at the same time. Gray and George German moved to Indiana. Jesse German was a resident of Hamilton until his death, and some of his children now reside here.

William Thomas was an early occupant of section thirty-six, not far from where William Rohr now lives. He removed to Indiana, and died there.

The Lamberts settled, quite early, on the farm now owned and occupied by Thomas M. Clark, the northwest quarter of section thirty-five. The father and mother both died there. Two of the sons moved west.

Jacob Wolf was an early settler on the farm now occupied by his son-in-law, Timothy Sherman, and died, only a few years since, at the age of nearly ninety.

George Hays located, at an early date, in section twenty-four, and occupied, as a renter, the farm now owned by Harvey Lisle.

Levi Shinn was an early pioneer of Hamilton, and settled in section thirty-four.

In 1809, Samuel Pursel came to Ohio, from near Brownsville, Pennsylvania, a town on the Monongahela river. Shortly after coming, he was married to Nancy O'Harra, whose parents were pioneers of the old town of Franklinton, and located in Hamilton, a short distance south of where Rees' station now is. Subsequently, he settled in the west part of the township, on the Chillicothe road, where he lived until his death, which occurred in the year 1844. Mr. Pursel was a volunteer in the war of 1812, and assisted in building the blockhouses at Upper Sandusky. He was an expert hunter, and, during the early years of his settlement, killed a great many deer, wild turkeys, and smaller game, which, as was the custom among the pioneers, he divided with his neighbors. Ten children were born to him. Mrs. Harriet Stimmel, now residing in this township, was the eldest, and was born in this township, in March, 1811. She became the wife of Yost Stimmel (now deceased), son of Michael Stimmel. Mrs. Stimmel has three children: Mrs. John R. Cook, in Columbus; John, in this township, and Smith Stimmel, an attorney-at-law in Cincinnati. She has buried four.

Asa Dunn, from New Jersey, was an early settler near where Shadville now stands, on the bank of the river. He had a distillery and a small corn-mill on the river.

Michael Stimmel, with his wife and two children, came from Hampshire county, Virginia, in 1810. They made the journey on horseback, the father carrying one of the children and the mother the other, who was then about a year old. Mr. Stimmel located first on the farm of William Renick, in Pickaway county, where he remained for a year or two, when he came to Franklin county, and settled in this township, on the farm now owned by the family of Thomas Johnson, jr. He was a blacksmith by trade, and kept a shop there. This farm he occupied about seven years, and then purchased and settled on the farm now owned and occupied by John Stimmel, his son, where he spent the remainder of his life, dying there in the spring of 1859. Peter, Daniel, and Jacob, brothers of Michael Stimmel, came out afterward, and married and settled in this county—Peter and Daniel in Hamilton, and Jacob in Franklin township. They are all now deceased.

John Shoaf, and family, consisting of his wife and ten children: John Plum, wife, and daughter, and Samuel Riley, moved in together from Hardy county, Virginia, on the south branch of the Potomac river, in the fall of 1812. Henry and Jacob Plum had arrived some time before this. Shoaf and family spent the following winter in a cabin of Andrew Culbertson, and in the spring located near the present site of Lockbourne. Some eighteen months afterward, he made a trip to Virginia, during which he contracted a cold, and died soon after returning to Ohio, in the spring of 1814. Of this large family, John, living in Hamilton, is the only survivor.

John Plum settled where William Riley now resides, in section fifteen. He purchased there two hundred acres of land, and also a farm in the vicinity of Lockbourne. He lived but a few years after his settlement, but his wife lived until the age of ninety-five.

Samuel Riley was single when he came to Ohio, but afterwards he married Susan, daughter of John Plum, and occupied the place on which her parents settled.

David Williams came from near Morefield, Hardy county, Virginia, and in connection with his brother, Abraham, who lived in Chillicothe, located some seven hundred acres of land in the southwest part of the township. April 23, 1811, he married Margaret Kerns, and settled on the land he had purchased, first occupying a RESIDENCE OF JACOB STOUTZENBARGER, HAMILTON TP., FRANKLIN CO., OHIO.

Jacob Stoutzenbarger

JACOB STOUTZENBARGER,

one of Hamilton's substantial farmers, is the eldest of two children of John and Hannah (Rowe) Stoutzenbarger, and was born in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, December 26, 1810. His father died when he was three years of age, and when he was ten years old his mother also died. After her death he worked out for a living, and when he was fifteen years of age, hired to a farmer for four dollars per month. He was economical with his small earnings, and at the end of the year had saved twelve dollars. In this saving he laid the foundation of his successful business life. When his year on the farm expired, he learned the carpenter's trade, serving an apprenticeship of three years and a half, and subsequently worked at the trade, on his own account, for about three years. Having by this time accumulated a capital of about a thousand dollars, he opened a store in a small country town in Pennsylvania, called New Providence. He conducted the little store for six years, when he sold out for six thousand dollars. Having a capital to invest, he was induced by his friend, Amor Rees, to come to Hamilton, and with him purchase a saw-mill. They afterwards built a distillery on Big Walnut creek, a short distance above the present residence of W. T. Rees. This they operated about four years, when Mr. Stoutzenbarger, sold his interest to his partner, the business not proving as profitable as he desired. He then went to Marion county, and erected a distillery at Caledonia, which he carried on some seven years, with success. He then disposed of the still, and concluding to engage at farming, he returned to Franklin county, and purchased the one hundred and sixty acres on which he now lives. He has since, at different times, added to his original purchase, until he now owns nearly one thousand acres in this county, besides a considerable landed interest in the west. Mr. Stoutzenbarger's extraordinary success in the accumulation of property, having never received any assistance whatever, has been due to his prudence and industry, combined with a large degree of sagacity. Unlike many whose success in this direction is the result of questionable methods, Mr. Stoutzenbarger's honesty and integrity were never doubted, and he enjoys the confidence and respect of all who know him.

Mr. Stoutzenbarger was married March, 1843, to Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob and Julia Ann Frank (afterwards wife of Amor Rees), who was born in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in the year 1823. She became the mother of four children, and died in 1848. Three of the children died in infancy; the other, Susan, born June 28, 1844, married C. S. Herr, December 21, 1864, and resides with her husband on a farm of her father's, near Shadeville.

cabin a short distance south of Mrs. Catharine Williams' present residence. He afterwards built a brick house on the same location. The frame house now occupied by Mrs. Williams, he erected fifty-four years ago, and occupied it until his death, in 1834. His wife died in May, 1840. They had nine children—Abraham, Mary, Abner K., David, Rebecca H., William, Benjamin, Isaac, and Sarah E., all now deceased, except Mary, wife of Felix Renick, of Pickaway county, and Rebecca, who married P. L. Howlett, and is now living near Springfield, Illinois. Abner K. lived in this township, where his son, David, now lives; and David, near Lockbourne, on the place occupied now by his family; William married Mrs. Nancy McKinley, and after her death, Mary Williams, widow of his brother, Abner K.; she now lives in Shadeville; Benjamin was married to Catharine Wright, of Missouri—she still occupies the old homestead of David Williams, sr.; Sarah E. was the wife of Seymour Renick.

Mathias Wolf and family moved into the township in 1812. He settled in section twenty-six, and lived there until his death, in March, 1849, aged fifty years. His wife survived him ten years. They had but one child —a daughter, who became the wife of William Rohr.

Frederick Stombaugh, with his wife and six children, came from Pennsylvania during the war of 1812. He settled on the place now occupied by Dr. Blish, on the Lancaster pike, and died there about 1849 or 1850. His wife died previous to that date. They raised a family of six children, of whom there are living: Samuel, who lives in Iowa; Frederick, who lives north of Columbus; and Elizabeth, widow of George W. McCloud, who lives in Marion township. Mrs. McCloud is now seventy years of age.

Jacob Shook came from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, with his father, Philip Shook, in 1812. His father, with his family, settled in Madison township, Pickaway county, where Abraham Shook now lives, and resided there until his death. Jacob Shook, in 1817, married Judeth Glick, who came to Fairfield county with her parents in 1808. Mr. Shook settled about a mile north of his father, on forty acres of land, on the south part of the tract now owned by Z. H. Perrill. In 1822 he came into this township, but remained only two years, when he returned to his former place of residence, in Pickaway county. In 1828 he erected a saw-mill on Slate run, in Madison township, Pickaway county, the race for which he was five years in completing. In the spring of 1849, he removed to this township, and located on the southeast quarter of section twelve, which had previously been purchased by his sons, Elias and Jeremiah. He died there in 1860, at the age of seventy years. His wife died in March, 1879, at the residence of her son, Elias Shook, at the age of nearly eighty-one. They had six children, of whom Elias is the only survivor. In 1859, the latter married Rebecca, daughter of Henry Allspaugh, and occupied the place on which his father had resided until about eighteen years ago, when he moved to the farm on which he now resides, at Lockbourne.

George Klickenger came from New Jersey about 1820. He stopped in Franklinton for about six months, when he purchased eighty acres in the northeast quarter of section eleven. He died there some twenty years ago. He had nine children, all of whom were born in New Jersey, but the youngest, John B., living on the old homestead, and Mrs. Jasper Berger, in Iowa, are the only surviving members of the family.

Aldridge Watkins, a native of Massachusetts, came to Ohio from Ontario county, New York, arriving in this township July 4, 1822. He first located in section two, but subsequently moved to section twelve, where he lived for some time; finally settling where his son Q. A. now resides. He died in March, 1849. Much of his life was spent in work at jobs on the roads, on the canal, and the streets of Columbus. He was the father of seven children, four of whom are now living, viz: Philo B. and Quincey A. who are among the substantial farmers of Marion township; Madaline, widow of Capt. Morrison, in Columbus, and Emeline, wife of Philomel M. Gray, in Scioto township, Pickaway county. The mother, now in the seventy-eighth year of her age, lives with her son, Quincey A.

Alexander Harrison, then a boy twelve years of age, came with his parents to Ohio from near Winchester, Virginia, in 1802. They settled at Lancaster, Fairfield county, where, January 6, 1813, he married Nancy Strode who came to the same vicinity from Berkeley county, Virginia, in 1806. Mr. Harrison came to Hamilton in 1829, and settled in the southwest quarter of section one. He was a carpenter by trade, and worked on the canal, in the construction of locks, for about three years. He died in this township December 6, 1853, aged eighty-three. His wife died November 24, 1857. There were three children: William H., the only one now living, married in 1846, Mary Kiger, who died about two years after marriage. Mr. Harrison has resided in the section where he now lives continuously since 1829. March 4, 1852, he married Susannah Gushart, with whom he now lives.

Alexander Harrison, sr., was a Revolutionary soldier, serving through almost the entire war, and was in several important engagements. He was a guard at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, when the Declaration of Independence was read.

Samuel Ranck has been a resident of this township about forty years. He was born in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in 1811, and emigrated to Ross county, Ohio, in 1834. The next year he came to Franklin county, and resided in Madison township nearly five years, when he moved to Hamilton.

Joshua Betts settled, where Shadeville now stands, in February, 1834. He married, in the spring of 1835, Catharine Lilley, and kept, for several years, a boarding house in a cabin that stood on the site of the present residence of Mrs. Seeds. He located, where he now lives, in 1844.

EARLY EVENTS.

The first birth in the township was that of Maximilla Fisher, daughter of Michael and Sarah Fisher, who was born September 20, 1800. When this event occurred, the parents were residing on the banks of the Scioto. Miss Fisher became the wife of Arthur O'Harra. There were some very early burials in the Walnut Hill burying-ground, but the graves have now no mark to designate their location. The oldest inscription in the graveyard is that on the tombstone of John Hornbaker, who was buried there in February, 1811. In July, of the same year, his son, Henry, was also buried there. The same year, also, the wife of William Thomas was deposited there. The first road laid out in the township was the old Franklin and Chillicothe road, which then run a different course from that which the pike now does. On the old road, on the farm now occupied by Timothy Sherman, the first tavern in the township was kept by James Culbertson. The next tavern was that of George W. Williams, previously mentioned.

EARLY SCHOOLS.

The earliest schools were kept in private cabins, and were supported by subscription. The first school was kept in an unoccupied log cabin, on the farm of Thomas Johnson. John Lusk and Samuel Clark were among the earliest teachers. The first school-house in the township was erected in the Stombaugh neighborhood, on the back part of the Stewart farm. One of the first teachers here was a man by the name of Goodnough. Andrew Armstrong and Ellen Toppin were also early teachers. A school-house was built, at an early date, on the John Thompson farm. The first school-house at Lockbourne was a log building, and stood at the upper end of the town, nearly opposite the residence of William Manypenny. The first school in the vicinity of Shadeville was taught in a log school-house, near the present bridge at the intersection of the pike and canal.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES.

THE LUTHERAN CHURCH.

In the year 1812, Rev. M. Foster, a minister of the Evangelical Lutheran denomination, was invited by members of the Reformed and Lutheran denomination, residing in Hamilton, to come and preach to them, which request was complied with, and Mr. Foster continued to preach for them for two years, holding meetings generally in dwelling houses. An organization was formed with the following membership: Philip Helsel, G. Kissinger, John Sharp, Jacob Plum, Michael Stimmel, Nicholas Young, Frederick Stombaugh, and others. Philip Helsel and G. Kissinger were chosen elders, and Michael Stimmel and Nicholas Young, wardens. The second minister was Charles Henkel, who began his labors in 1819, and remained six or seven years. In 1821 a log meeting-house was built, and the society incorporated under the name of "The German Lutheran and Reformed congregation of the township of Hamilton." Prof. William Smith, of the Columbus Lutheran seminary, succeeded Mr. Henkel, commencing in 1831, and continuing four years. Rev. Mr. Pence was the next pastor, and remained until the spring of 1842. He was followed by Philip Gast, under whom, in 1844, a new brick church was built. The successive pastors since Mr. Gast, are as follows: Rev. Mr. Speilman, Rev. Daniel Worley, Rev. Mr. Shultze, and Rev. E. Schmid, who is still in charge, having been pastor since 1863. The new church building was erected in 1873, costing about nine thousand dollars, and was dedicated June 7th, of the following year. The church consists of two divisions, constituting one congregation. The society is large and prosperous, the actual membership being three hundred in the English division, and seventy in the German. The pastor preaches one Sunday in English, and the other in German.

WALNUT HILL METHODIST CHURCH.

In 1804 the pioneer circuit rider, Rev. James Quinn, was appointed to the Hockhocking circuit. Soon after he made his way from Toby Town, near where Royalton now is, which was one of his regular appointments, to the cabin of William Harper, near where Lockbourne now stands, with Ezekiel Groom as his pilot through the wilderness. At Mr. Harper's was organized the first society on the waters of Walnut creek. The members of the class were: William and Anna Harper, Noah and Thankful Bishop, Ezekiel and Rhoda Groom. The class was afterward removed to widow Lambert's, and later to Walnut Hill. A frame meeting-house was built there in 1833, the Presbyterians assisting in its erection. Thomas Morris donated two acres of land for the church and graveyard, and at his death left the society one thousand dollars, the interest on which he directed in his will to be used in keeping up the church and burying-ground. The brick church was erected in 1869, at a cost of six thousand four hundred dollars. The membership is now about eighty. The class in Lockbourne held their earliest meetings in a log school-house, in the upper end of town. After the erection of the United Brethren church they held their services in that until 1850, when their present brick church was built. Among the membership composing the class at the time of its organization were: Josiah Hulva and wife, Thomas Bennett, and J. M. Bennett. The first preacher for the society was a Rev. Mr. Martin. The membership of this church is now about forty-seven.

The Sunday-school of this church was organized in 1848, by Josiah Hulva and wife, assisted by William T. Smith, Abraham Smith, Samuel Rank, and others. The school was, at first, held in the United Brethren church, but, in 1851, was removed to the Methodist Episcopal church. Josiah Hulva was the first superintendent, and held that position until 1857, when he was succeeded by Wm. T. Smith. After Mr. Smith, the superintendents were, successively: Dr. J. N. Robinson, Joseph Brantner, John Stimmel, and John Rathmell.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

at Shadeville was organized in 1856, by Rev. Mr. Hooper. The members were Joshua Betts and wife, and Alban Kaylor and wife. A frame meeting-house was erected the same year, and occupied about ten years, when it fell down. The present brick church was built some six or seven years ago.

ST. MATTHEW'S CHURCH (EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN), at Lockbourne, was erected in 1875, and the society was formed about the same time. The church cost some-

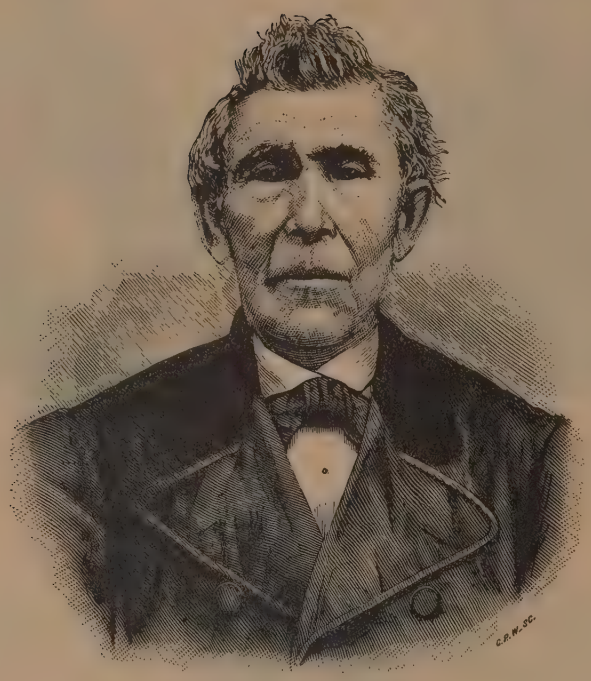
MRS. JOHN LISLE.

JOHN LISLE.

RESIDENCE OF JNO. LISLE, HAMILTON TP., FRANKLIN CO., O.



ARTHUR O'HARRA.

The subject of this notice was of Scotch ancestry; his parents, Hugh and Mary O'Harra, were natives of Virginia, whence they emigrated to Ross county (now Pickaway), in 1800. There Arthur was born, February 6, 1801. He grew up to boyhood on the farm of his father, and, about 1819, came from Marion county (where his parents had previously removed), to Franklin county, and for a time worked at brick-making in Columbus. Subsequently, he engaged in agricultural pursuits, in which he continued during his life; he was an intelligent tiller of the soil, with advanced views of agriculture. In 1826, he was united in marriage, by the Rev. Dr. Hoge, to Miss Maxamillia Fisher, daughter of Michael and Sarah Fisher, who were among the earliest settlers in the county. Mrs. O'Harra was born September 20, 1800, and the event is believed to have been the first of the kind in Hamilton township. Colonel O'Harra, as he was familiarly called, was a man of large stature, being six feet in height and possessing corresponding physical strength; he also possessed a naturally vigorous mind, and exerted a potent influence over those with whom he mingled. It was his custom to enforce upon his children a strict compliance with his serious religious views, and all his conduct was regulated from a christian standpoint. He was a prominent member of the Presbyterian church, and was an elder in the church for thirty-five years. Colonel O'Harra possessed, in an eminent degree, those sterling characteristics of the race of which he was a worthy descendant. He was frugal, industrious, persevering, thoroughly honorable and honest, and enjoyed the respect of all who knew him. He died in Hamilton township, Franklin county, March 6, 1875. Mrs. O'Harra died in 1864. They raised a family of eight children, seven of whom are now living. At the time of his death, Colonel O'Harra had, besides his children, ten grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

thing over three thousand dollars, and is not yet fully completed. It is a neat and commodious structure, and well furnished. The present pastor is William H. Brown, resident at St. Paul, Pickaway county.

HAMILTON PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This society was organized, at an early date, by Rev. Dr. Hoge, of Columbus. They aided the Methodists in the erection of the church building at Walnut Hill, and held their meetings therein until the erection of the brick church south of Mr. Shoaf's. This church was built about 1841 or 1842. The organization has run down, and no meetings have been held for several years. The church is now used by the grange.

The United Brethren had a church organization at Lockbourne for many years until within the last few years. The class was formed at the former dwelling of Samuel Ranck, about the year 1842, by William K. McCabe, the first circuit preacher. There has been, prior to this time, local preaching in the neighborhood by Rev. Louis Kramer and others of the denomination, for several years. Preaching was held at Mr. Ranck's on the Dresbach place, in Madison township, this county, as early as 1837. The earliest members of the class were Samuel Ranck and wife, Daniel Dresbach and wife, Henry Hammond and wife, and H. P. Jeffers and wife. Meetings were held regularly at Mr. Ranck's every two weeks, until the building of the frame meeting house in Lockbourne, which was commenced in 1843, and completed and occupied in 1844. Local preaching had been held before this in the school house in Lockbourne. The society in its infancy met with opposition, and even persecution, from a class of individuals who had no regard for religious teaching, and the school house was finally locked against them. The church of the society was open to all orthodox denominations, and the Methodists and the Lutherans also occupied it for a time. The church numbered at one time about fifty members, but it was substantially broken up a number of years ago, and no meetings have been held at the church for three years; and a year ago it was sold to the village of Lockbourne for a town hall.

Mr. Ranck was the leader of the class, and the leading member of the church for many years.

MILLS.

The date of the construction of several mills in the township, that have long since gone down, we are unable to give. The first mill was probably the saw-mill of Michael Fisher, before mentioned. It was erected on the Scioto river, in the northwest part of the township, and was in operation until the canal was built, when it was torn down. Joseph Murray and Isaac Weatherington erected a saw-mill at an early date on Gahanna river, on the land now owned by W. T. Rees. John Herr and Francis Johnston had a saw-mill and grist-mill, and also a distillery, on the same stream, about a mile east of Shadeville. Oliver Hartwell erected a mill at the four-mile locks, soon after the completion of the canal. After running a number of years; it was burned down. A saw-mill was built at Shadeville, by John and Cornelius McCarthy, in 1834. They run it until 1837, when they sold out to James and John Dalzell, who subsequently took A. G. Hibbs in as partner.

THE COTTAGE MILLS,

located at Shadeville, were erected by James and John Dalzell and A. G. Hibbs, in the year 1841. They operated them some ten years, when the Dalzells sold their interest to Hibbs, who made some additions to the building. The mill is now owned by C. & J. W. Seeds.

PHYSICIANS.

The first physician who settled in the township was Dr. Jeremiah Clark. Graduating at Cleveland in 1825, he soon after came to Hamilton, where he practiced medicine up to 1846. He resided on the farm still occupied by his widow, and died in 1865. Dr. Holbrook is said to have been the earliest physician at Lockbourne. About 1833, he came there from New York; remained a few years, and then moved to Allen county, Ohio. Dr. A. N. Boales settled there soon after Dr. Holbrook, removing from Circleville, where he had been a former student of the well-known Dr. Luckey. He continued in practice in Lockbourne until his death. Dr. Carl located in Lockbourne about the year 1846, but remained only two or three years. Dr. Marshall, now of Blendon township, was a physician of Lockbourne a number of years, and was afterwards a representative in the legislature. Dr. H. L. Cheney, now of Groveport, practiced medicine in Lockbourne eleven months, leaving in 1848. Dr. Carney was there at the same time. The latter afterwards went to New Mexico. Dr. R. G. McLane located at Lockbourne soon after Dr. Carney left, and practiced a number of years, when he sold out to Dr. I. N. Robinson and removed to Michigan. He returned a year or two afterward, and, buying Robinson out, continued in practice for three or four years, when he discontinued it, to accept an appointment as supervisor at the distillery. He died at Lockbourne. The present physicians there are Dr. H. C. Blake and Dr. M. A. Boner. The former obtained his medical education at the Columbus medical college, Columbus, Ohio, where he graduated in March, 1876. In April, of the same year, he commenced practice at Lockbourne, where he has since continued with success, Dr. Boner is a physician of the eclectic school, and began practice in Lockbourne in February, 1879.

Dr. Davis was the first physician in Shadeville, where he settled about 1850 or 1851. He was a student of Dr. Guard, of Harrison township, Pickaway county. After remaining about two years, he sold to William Williams the property now occupied by his widow, and removed to Indian Territory. Before Dr. Davis left, Dr. W. J. Scott came in, and located where Dr. Blake now lives. Dr. Scott remained a number of years, and was a successful practitioner. He removed to Cleveland, and is now professor of theory and practice in the medical department of Wooster university, in that city. Dr. O. P. Brinker derived his medical education at Ohio medical college, Cincinnati, where he graduated, in 1864. He began practice in South Bloomfield, Pickaway county, in the spring of that year, and the next fall came to Shade-ville, where he has since practiced, with the exception of one year, in Circleville. Dr. M. M. Stimmel resided in Shadeville for a year or two, engaged in the practice of his profession, a part of the time in partnership with Dr. Brinker. He removed from there to Kenton, Ohio. Dr. W. H. Blake, of Shadeville, settled there in 1870, and has since built up a fine practice. He is a graduate of Starling medical college, Columbus, receiving his diploma in the spring of 1870.

GRANGE SOCIETIES.

Hamilton Grange, No. 436, was chartered in 1874, the applicants for the charter being Eli Shook, Christian Kortzholtz, T. M. Huddle, J. C. Platter, Job Rohr, J. J. Rohr, Rebecca Shook, G. L. Thompson, Elizabeth Thompson, R. M. Williams, A. C. Finks and others. The first officers were Eli Shook, M.; Christian Kortzholtz, O.; T. M. Huddle, chaplain; A. P. Sawyer, L.; J. C. Platter, secretary. The grange was organized in the school-house at Lockbourne, where a few of the first meetings were held. It then met for a short time at the house of Eli Shook, after which the lower hall in the masonic building was rented, and since May, 1874, has been used as a grange hall. The officers for 1879 are Eli Shook, M.; R. M. Williams, O.; W. H. Roberts, L.; Joseph Bradner, chaplain; Absalom Rohr, secretary. The present membership is about thirty.

HAMILTON CHURCH GRANGE, NO. 557, was organized February 16, 1874, with the following officers: H. C. Jones, master; John Stimmel, overseer; Jacob Reab, secretary; John Helsel, lecturer; Jacob H. Evans, chaplain; John R. Shoaf, steward; H. G. Clark, assistant steward; William Williams, treasurer; F. M. Stimmel, gate-keeper; Mrs. L. W. Simpson, ceres; Mrs. Mary Stimmel, flora; Mrs. Mary Reab, pomono; Mrs. Lizzie Stimmel, lady assistant steward.

The present officers are as follows: John Stimmel, master; H. G. Clark, overseer; Mary Reab, secretary; Mrs. M. J. Stimmel, lecturer; Lemon Meeker, chaplain; G. W. Shoaf, steward; H. E. Jones, assistant steward; John Lisle, treasurer; John Strickler, gate-keeper; Emma Shoaf, ceres; Ida Lisle, flora; Mattie Boalse, pomono; Anna Clark, lady assistant stewart.

MASONIC SOCIETY.

The Lockbourne Lodge, No. 232, F. and A. M., was organized November 18, 1852, with the following officers: Dr. A. N. Boalse, W. M.; R. G. McLean, S. W.; Josiah Hulva, J. W.; Harvey Gould, S. D.; Jacob Louis, J. D.; P. Adams, secretary; A. G. Hibbs, treasurer; John M. Yates, tyler.

Upon the death of W. M. Boalse in 1853, the G. M. appointed as officer the following named: R. G. McLean, W. M.; Josiah Hulva, S. W.; Jasper Berger, J. W.

The society was granted a charter October 20, 1853. At the first election under the charter the following officers were chosen: R. G. McLean, W. M.; O. B. Keene, S. W.; Joseph Loehr, J. W.; J. N. Kocher, secretary; J. A. Sarber, treasurer; Joseph Brantner, S. D.; J. B. Walford, J. D., and O. Caldwell, tyler. At the present writing the following are the officers: M. D. Brantner, W. M.; William Wright, S. W.; H. C. Blake, J. W.; Joseph Brantner, treasurer; Lewis R. Young, secretary; Absalom Rohr, S D.; Charles S. Walford, J. D.; T. M, Clark and W. H. Blake, stewards; J. H. Haire, tyler.

There are two small villages in Hamilton, namely: Lockbourne, and Shadeville. The former, situated in the south part of the township, on Gahanna river, was laid out in the fall of 1831, by Colonel Kilbourne, as agent for Joel Buttles, Demas Adams, and others. The first syllable of the name of the village is derived from the circumstance of a number of locks in the canal at that point, to which the proprietor added the last syllable of his own name.

The first store in the village was kept by George Reed, in a frame building which stood near the present site of William Manypenny's residence. About three years before the town was laid out, however, the Granville company, who constructed the canal through Lockbourne, established a store there, principally for their own convenience in the construction of the canal, and that of the men in their employ. They erected the building in which Reed afterwards opened, and continued in trade until the completion of the canal. Two brothers, by the name of Coats, had, at the same time, a store at the lower end of town. John H. Stage started a store after that of Reed, in a part of the old warehouse, on the canal. He afterward built and occupied the building now occupied by Peter Palmer. Stage finally removed to Columbus, where he continued in trade. Other stores have been established at Lockbourne, too numerous to specify.

A post-office was established at Lockbourne, in 1837, with Nathan G. Smith as postmaster. His successors have been: Zebulon Marcy, appointed in 1838; John H. Stage, in 1839; C. M. Porter, in 1849; Dr. A. N. Boalse, in 1851; Dr. J. R. Marshall, in 1853: John A Sarber, in 1854; John H. Haire, in 1856; Peter Palmer, the present incumbent, in April, 1875.

The distillery of William Manypenny was established by Daniel Kellogg, in 1839. The original building was a frame, and stood a short distance below the present one. The brick building was destroyed by fire in 1853, and was rebuilt by A. H. Elliott.

Lockbourne now contains about three hundred inhabitants, two stores, two churches, a post-office, a school-house, two or three mechanic shops, one distillery, two saloons, and two physicians.

Shadeville, situated on the Chillicothe pike, two miles north of the south line of the township, was laid out, by A. G. Hibbs, in the spring of 1853, and named for his wife, whose maiden name was Shade. Joshua Betts sold the first goods in Shadeville, about the year 1838. He kept his store in a part of Hibbs' saw-mill, just below the present grist-mill. A few months afterward, he erected a building just south of the grist-mill, in which he kept store for some four years, when, deciding to discontinue business, he removed the goods to his dwelling, and closed them out. The next store was started by Huffman & Dresbach, in the building which they also erected, now occupied by D. S. Evans. They continued several years, and then sold to James Cory, who, two years after-

W. H. BLAKE, M. D.

WILLIAM H. BLAKE, M. D.

Samuel L. Blake, the grandfather of the subject of this sketch, emigrated to Ohio from Middletown, Connecticut, in the year 1816, and settled in Alexander township, Athens county. He was born in 1777, and died in 1859. His son, Samuel B., born in Alexander township in 1817, and married in 1845, Polly Camp, who was born in the same township January 15, 1825. Polly Camp was a daughter of John Camp, and Lois French who were early settlers in the township before mentioned, removing also from Connecticut.

The parents of the subject of this biography are still living in their native township, and have a family of six children, as follows: William H., born February 23, 1846; Henry C., born October 23, 1847, a practicing physician in Lockbourne, Franklin county, Ohio, and married January 1, 1879, Miss Fannie P. Vause; Hattie, who married Clark A. Potter, of Athens, and now living in Texas, born October 6, 1850; Mary E., who married in 1877, Charles F. Tedrow, was born August 20, 1855, and now living in Athens county; John C., born September 30, 1862, and Charles F., born December 13, 1865, living at home.

Dr. Blake read medicine with Drs. Earhart and McClure, of Albany, Athens county, Ohio, and was graduated at Starling Medical college, Columbus, Ohio, in the spring of 1870. Between his two terms at college, he practiced in Doddridge county, Virginia, and after receiving his diploma, he established himself at the little village of Shadeville, Franklin county, Ohio, which he found a favorable location for a physician, possessing the requisite energy and qualifications for success. Dr. Blake soon built up a fine business, and now has a large and lucrative practice, his field comprising this township and adjacent territory within the county and the northern part of Pickaway county. Having a larger practice than he could attend to, he induced his brother, Dr. H. C. Blake, to locate in Lockbourne in the spring of 1876, to whom he resigned his practice in that vicinity.

Dr. Blake was married November 28, 1873, to Ellen, daughter of David and Charlotte (Dulen) Williams, of Lockbourne, born October 28, 1855. Two children are the result of this union—Ola, born August 31, 1874, and Samuel D., born September 16, 1877.

Dr. Blake has two honorable discharges from the late war, having served six months as a member of the Fourth Independent battalion, Ohio volunteer cavalry, and afterwards in the One Hundred and Eighty-first regiment, Ohio volunteer infantry, from the date of its organization until the close of the war.

Dr. Blake, ever since he entered his profession, has given to the practice and study of medicine his whole attention and energy, refusing to accept positions of official trust, but seeking to attain the highest rank as a skilful physician and surgeon, following in the footsteps of his illustrious great grandfather (Jesse Camp) who settled in Athens county, Ohio, in 1814, from New Haven county, Connecticut, and was a noted surgeon in his day.

REV. ELIAS GOODRICH

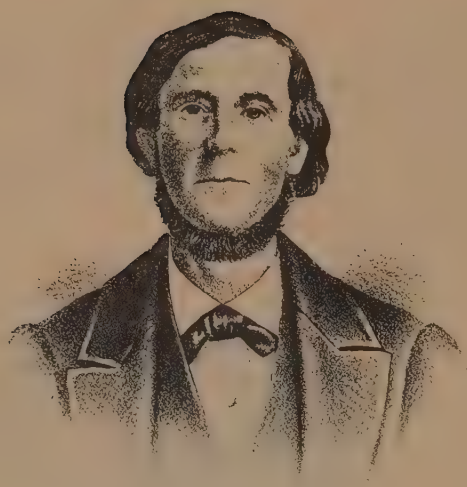
who was born in Berlin, Connecticut, in 1767, was married to Hannah Baily, and to them were born three children: Horace, Sarah and Hannah. Horace Goodrich was born at Berlin, Connecticut, June 13, 1791, and was married to Martha Winchell, daughter of Salmon Winchell, March 10, 1814. He resided in Berlin until 1838, when he moved to Tuscarawas county, Ohio. To them were born two children: Emerson and Lucy H. Emerson married Mary, daughter of Aaron and Susan Schenk, at New Comerstown, Ohio, February 28, 1841, by whom he has had four children: Lucy, Jane, Corella and Aaron; (Lucy and Aaron died in infancy). Emerson's wife died May 22, 1849, and he married for his second wife, Mary Winchell, daughter of Hezekiah and Nancy Winchell, of New Haven, Connecticut, July 10, 1851. They have one daughter, Ida May.

E. Goodrich received an academical education, and in 1835 engaged in the mercantile business at the south. He was obliged to leave in the fall of 1837, on account of ill health, when he moved to Tuscarawas county, Ohio, and engaged in manufacturing. In 1852 he was elected clerk of the common pleas and district court of said county, in which position he served three years. In 1855 he became one-third owner of the New Philadelphia machine works, to which business he devoted his whole time until the breaking out of the Rebellion in 1861, when he accepted a commission as captain in the Eightieth Ohio volunteer infantry, and served until 1863, since which time he has held a position in the war department at Washington.

Lucy H. Goodrich was born at Berlin, Connecticut, September 12, 1823, and was married to George R. Little, esq., October 23, 1842, at New Comerstown, Ohio, since which time Mr. Little has been extensively engaged in manufacturing and mercantile pursuits.

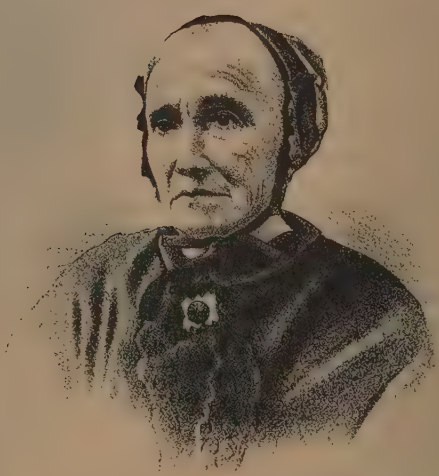
Jane, daughter of Emerson Goodrich, was married to Major Charles E. Mitchener, editor and publisher of the Guernsey Jeffersonian, Cambridge, Ohio. They are the parents of three children: Mary, Martha and Jennie.

Corella Goodrich was born October 27, 1846, and was married to J. P. Arnold September 3, 1869. They have two children.



FRED.K STOMBAUGH.

ALLEN ORDERS.



MRS. ALLEN ORDERS.

PHOTOS. BY ELLIOTT & ARMSTEAD, COLUMBUS.

ward, sold to Simpson & Stimmel. They continued in business about two years, when they were succeeded by D. S. & C. W. Evans. The latter withdrew from the firm in 1876, and since then the business has been carried on by D. S. Evans. The Shadeville house was erected by A. G. Hibbs, in 1850 or 1851, and was first kept by Jonathan Hibbs. It has since been kept, successively, by A. G. Hibbs, Joshua Hertzell, and Jacob Reab, the present proprietor, who purchased the property in 1868. A post-office was established at Shadeville, in 1853. A. G. Hibbs was the first postmaster, and served until 1858, when Joshua Hertzell was appointed. He kept the office some ten years, until his death, when his widow was appointed, and served one year. She was succeeded, in 1869, by Jacob Reab, the present incumbent.

Shadeville now contains some twenty-five or thirty families, a post-office, a store, a hotel and saloon, a grist-mill, a shop or two, a church, a school-house, and two physicians. These villages are not thriving.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

THE LISLE FAMILY.

of which John Lisle, of Hamilton township, is the oldest living representative, was among the first that settled in Franklin county. The grandfather, John Lisle, was a native of Ireland, but when a young man, emigrated to the United States with an older brother. He married, in Pennsylvania, Rachel Irwin, and remained in that State a few years, when he removed to Kentucky. He purchased there a military claim, but subsequently lost it, the title proving invalid. In 1798 he emigrated, with his family, consisting of his wife and eight children, to Ohio, and settled in Franklinton. He remained there about a year, during which he cultivated a piece of land belonging to Lucas Sullivant, when he removed three miles farther north, and settled in Clinton township, taking up two hundred acres, and making his location on the place now owned by J. O. Lisle. He died there in 1810. His wife survived him a number of years, and died at Lancaster. The children of John and Rachel Lisle were: Robert, Margaret, Elizabeth, James, Rebecca, Jane, John, and Rachel, all now deceased. Margaret was the wife of James McElvain, one of the early pioneers of Franklin county, but finally removing with his family to Indiana; Elizabeth was the wife of Luther Powers, and also removed to Indiana; James married Mary Golliford, and was a resident of Hamilton township until his death; Rebecca married Joseph Young, and resided in Fairfield county; Jane became the wife of Samuel Maynard, lived in Clinton a number of years, and then removed to Sandusky; John married Thankful Maynard, and soon afterward removed to Indiana; Rachel married William Sackett, first settled in Fairfield county, but eventually moved to Putnam county.

Robert, the oldest of the family, and the father of John Lisle, whose portrait appears on another page, was born September 18, 1785; married in Fairfield county, in 1810, Abigail McIntyre, and settled in Clinton township, where he lived four years; then moved into Hamilton, and located on the farm now occupied by his son, Harvey. He died March 31, 1862, and his wife April 17th, of the same year. They were the parents of twelve children, of whom John was the oldest. He was born in Clinton township, Franklin county, Ohio, December 19, 1810. He remained at home, at work upon the farm of his father, until twenty-three years of age, when he was married, on the anniversary of his birth—December 19, 1833—to Eliza Breckenridge, daughter of Robert and Lucy Breckenridge, who was born in Franklinton, July 23, 1810. Her father was a native of Pennsylvania, and her mother (Lucy Foley) of Virginia. They both came to Franklin county, Ohio, with their respective parents, when children, and were married in 1808 or 1809. They resided for many years in Hamilton township, but finally moved into Franklin township, locating on the river, where Mr. Breckenridge died a few years afterwards. Mrs. Breckenridge survived her husband several years, and died in Columbus. Mrs. Lisle is the oldest of eleven children, of whom, besides herself, one son and four daughters are living. After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Lisle remained on his father's farm, in Clinton, some seven or eight years, when they removed to Hamilton, and settled on the farm on which they now live. They are the parents of four children, as follows: Robert B., born January 30, 1835, died June 18, 1860; Samuel Harvey, born November 15, 1836, married Eliza Jane Johnston (who is now deceased), and died July 9, 1868; George W., born October 21, 1838, married Demeris Helsel, and now resides in Madison township; and Louisa Jane, born October 29, 1842.

Mr. Lisle has always been engaged in farming; has given strict attention to his chosen occupation; and has lived a quiet, unostentatious, but useful life. He has held various official trusts in his township, and for three years was director of the county infirmary. He has one sister and one brother now living, namely: Rachel, now Mrs. Jacob Low, residing in Union county, Ohio; and Harvey, on the homestead in Hamilton. He married Priscilla Moore.

THE STOMBAUGH FAMILY.

John and Elizabeth (Baker) Stombaugh were natives of York county, Pennsylvania, where they resided until the year 1808, when they removed, with their family, to Ohio. Mr. Stombaugh, the year previous, had visited Ohio—then the "far West"—and had entered the west half of section number three, of township number four, in range twenty-two (Hamilton), and on this piece of land the family commenced pioneer life in the western wilderness. The patent for this land is still in possession of the family, and shows the purchase price to have been two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

Mrs. Stombaugh died in the early years of their settlement, and Mr. Stombaugh subsequently married again, his second wife being Susan Lindsey, of Hamilton. He was the father of six children, all by his first wife. Mary, the eldest, was the wife of John Shannon, and resided in Hamilton several years, when she removed to Peoria, Illinois, where she afterwards died; Margaret is the wife of David Mooberry, and is now living in Peoria, Illinois; Ann and Catharine (now deceased) both lived in Peoria, Ann being unmarried, and Catharine being the wife of David Martin; John Stombaugh married Nancy Adams, daughter of Percival Adams, one of the pioneers of Hamilton, and died in Woodford county, Illinois.

Frederick Stombaugh, whose portrait appears in connection with this sketch, was the youngest of the family. He was born on the homestead, in Hamilton, on the first day of June, 1811. On January 11, 1838, he was united in marriage to Elizabeth, daughter of John and Catharine Baylor (born July 28, 1817), who came to this county from York county, Pennsylvania, in 1825, and settled on the Lancaster road, not far from where the toll gate now is. The father died at the age of forty, and the mother some three years since, at the age of eighty-three.

Mr. Stombaugh resided on the farm on which he was born, until the day of his death—September 22, 1861. He was a man of much energy and activity; industrious, prudent, and successful, leaving to his family, as a result of his labor and foresight, a fine property. The children of Frederick and Elizabeth Stombaugh (who is still living on the homestead) are as follows: Eveline, born December 29, 1839, is unmarried; Mary C., born October 14, 1840, was married, April 12, 1866, to Jacob Wright, of Logan county, Ohio, who died August 31, 1868, and Mrs. Wright now lives on the farm with her mother; Elizabeth, born January 15, 1843, married, April 4, 1865, S. K. Jones, and lives on a portion of the homestead; John, born January 28, 1847, married, October 19, 1870, Louisa Jane Klickenger, and also occupies a portion of the home farm; Caroline, born May 11, 1850, married, October 20, 1870, Cyrucus Wolfel, and resides in Columbus; Sarah, born February 25, 1853, is unmarried; and Martha, born May 11, 1857, married T. J. Moore, December 12, 1873, and is now living in Marion township.

JEFFERSON.

Jefferson township was originally known as township number one, in range sixteen, of the United States military lands. It is just five miles square, and is bounded upon the north by Plain township, east by Licking county, south by Truro, and west by Mifflin. Its surface is, for the most part, level, being broken only by the streams Black lick and Rocky fork, which flow through it. The soil is, in some places, clay, and in others sandy, and very rich on the bottoms. The only physical features that are particularly noticable are the outcroppings of sandstone, and the occurrence of a fine sulphur spring, which is an object of much interest to the people of the vicinity and to strangers. It is upon the lands of A. Souder, upon Rocky fork. The water is said, by competent judges, to be as valuable, medicinally, as that of the famous Delaware springs.

PIONEERS AND PROMINENT SETTLERS.

Jefferson was largely settled by pioneers from New Jersey, a portion of the lands being bought in a body by a citizen of that State. The first settlers came into the township as early as 1802, or the following year, and located along Black lick. Among the first were: Daniel Dagoe, Moses Ogden, Peter Francisco, William Headley, Michael and Abraham Stagg, Jacob Tharp, Jacob and John H. Smith, Jonathan Whitehead, and Isaac Baldwin. Later than these pioneers, but still at an early date, arrived Joseph Edgar, Michael Neiswender, Shuah Maun, John Kelso, Richard Rhodes, Isaac Painter, John Inks, Joseph Compton, John Davenport, William Havens, William Armstrong, and others.

The township contained, by the time of the war of 1812, about twenty settlers, some of whom, however, remained but a short time. Comparatively few of the early pioneers are represented by descendants at present in the township, and those who do remain, as the descendants of the first settlers, are able to give but little definite information in regard to them. Of those who came prior to 1812, Jacob Tharp was one of the most active, useful, and prominent. He and his wife, Nancy Havens, settled where D. Headley now lives, in section one. He built the first mill on Black lick, and operated it for several years, in addition to performing the various labors of a pioneer life. Mr. Tharp was from New Jersey, and ultimately returned to that State, having become a preacher, of the Baptist denomination.

Peter Francisco settled, also, in the first section, on the Black Lick road, and remained in the township until his death.

Abraham Stagg and his nephew, Michael, came in from New Jersey, and settled where George and David, the sons of the former, now reside, in section two, near the Black lick road.

Henry Huffman and his wife, Susan Dague, settled near the north line of the township in 1807 or 1808. They came from Washington county, Pennsylvania.

John and Esther Edgar, originally from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, came into the township prior to 1812, and settled upon ninety acres of land, where J. C. Lennox now lives, near the southern line of the township, and near the west line of section four. They removed to the township, directly, from Fairfield county, where they were pioneers as early as 1798. Their descendants were: Joseph, James, William, John, Silas, Jeannette, Margaret, and Esther. Of this large family, all are dead, except the eldest, Joseph, and he is still a resident of the township. He married Abigail, daughter of Moses Ogden, by whom he had a large family of children, viz.: Louis and Calvin, deceased; Margaret Lunn, George, William, Joseph (deceased), Albert (deceased), Harvey, Frank (deceased), and Martha. Margaret, George, William, and Harvey, are residents of Jefferson. Joseph Edgar has been bed-ridden for several years, but retains his faculties in a remarkable degree. He has been a resident of the township all his life, and has seen it developed from an almost uninhabited wilderness to its present state. An evidence of the high estimation in which he has been held, is afforded by the fact that he has been, for more than thirty-five consecutive years, elected township trustee.

Isaac Baldwin, of New Jersey, came in prior to (or in) the year 1812, and settled just east of Havens' corners. Richard Rhoads came about the same time. Richard and Philip, his sons, now live in Reynoldsburg, and Lambert in Truro township.

William Armstrong, who was one of the first settlers in Franklinton, and originally of New York State, came into Jefferson with his wife, Elvira Dean, in 1812, and remained there until his death. His wife is still living. They had a family of six children: S. R., who married Alice Kidd, and resides upon the old homestead; J. S. in Prairie-du-Chien, Wisconsin; S. L., who lives in Kansas; Sarah, who resides in Perry township; Isabella, who now lives in Licking county, Ohio; and Mary, deceased.

William Headley came to Jefferson, soon after 1812, and settled at the locality now known as Headley's corners. He married Mary Havens, and lived in the township until his death, in a late year. William and David, his sons, are residents in the township.

John Davenport, as was also Mr. Headley, was a New-Jersey emigrant. In 1813, he settled upon the place adjoining William Havens. A son, Louis, now lives in the township, and is the only representative of the family remaining.

Christian Strait came from New Jersey about the same time as Davenport.

John H., and his son, Jacob Smith, came from New Jersey, in 1813, and settled on the Black Lick road, in section one. Jacob Smith still lives in the township, but his father, who married Susan Havens, died many years ago.

John Kelso came in 1814, and from that time until his death, was a resident of Jefferson. He rented various pieces of property, but never purchased.

In the same year came Isaac Painter, John Inks, and Joseph Compton, all of them from Lancaster county, Pennsylvania. Isaac Painter located at the crossing of the Black Lick road and Broadway pike, where J. Milburn now lives. A son, Lewis Painter, is in the township, and is one of its large farmers, and representative men.

Also, in 1814, came Jonathan Whitehead, who located on what is now the B. Sanger farm, in section two. He was a tanner by trade, and the first who practiced that industry in the township.

Daniel Dague came in about this time, and settled near the north line of the township, in section two. He was from Berkshire or Lancaster county, Pennsylvania.

William and Elizabeth Havens, of New Jersey, arrived in the fall of 1815, and located on section one, where their son, William, now resides, and where they owned one hundred and fifty acres of land. Mr. Havens had but little experience of pioneer life, dying in 1820, five years after his settlement. His wife survived him many years. They were the parents of eight children, viz.: Mary Headley, and Susan Smith, both now deceased; Thomas, who located in Illinois; John, Martha Fancher, and Henry, deceased; Sarah Fancher, in Illinois; and William, who married for his first wife Rhoda Ann Alberry, and resides upon the old place. His present wife is Sarah J.; was originally a Doren.

Moses Ogden, of New Jersey, settled where William Havens, jr., resides, and was one of the best men the township numbered among its early residents. He built the first frame house in the township, and it is still standing.

Among the settlers who followed closely those already mentioned, were Michael Neiswender, Andrew Allison, George Beals, A. Favel, and others.

Michael and Barbara Neiswender came in 1818, from Berks county, Pennsylvania. Their sons, Samuel, and Godfrey, still live in the township.

Still later, came Jesse and Margaret Lunn, who settled in Truro township, in 1832, but soon after removed to Jefferson, where they both died, in 1856. They were from Berks county, Pennsylvania. The place of their habitation in the township, was the farm just south of Black Lick station, where their son, Josiah C., now lives. The other children of this couple are located as follows: John, William, and Elizabeth, in Truro township; Joseph, Sarah Wolf, and Rachel Coonze, in Iowa; and Mary Krumm, in Mifflin.

Stephen and Sarah Stoel (or Stowel) came from Essex county, New York, in 1834, having purchased a piece of land from Peter Mills, the owner of a large tract, and settled on what is now the Noah Geiger farm. Stephen Stoel died in 1870, and his wife is still living in the township, as are also their children—Burnham, Sally Sandford, and Mary Compton.

Shuah Mann came in 1835, from New Jersey, and remained all his life in the township. His son, by the same name, is now a resident. About the same time, came John and Lucinda Rochelle, also from New Jersey. Mr. Rochelle died in 1876, and Mrs. Rochelle is still living. There are six children living of this family, viz: Scott, in Jefferson township; William, in Cincinnati; Martin, in Kansas; Susan Chrysler and Phebe Alberry, in Gahanna; and Mary Ann Hickman, in Reynoldsburgh.

Brace Woodruff came to Ohio in 1822, from Vermont, located in Fairfield county, and in 1838, removed to Jefferson township, and took up the farm upon which he at present resides in section four, and which has been almost entirely cleared by himself. He is the father of nine children, four of whom are living in the township, viz: Hiram, Norman, Lina Whitehead and Emily Donovan.

Edward Ricketts, the son of Jeremiah and Elizabeth Ricketts, pioneers of the year 1800, from Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania, to Fairfield county, Ohio, came into Jefferson in 1852, and purchased the property, where he now lives. He married his first wife, Catharine Phillips, in Fairfield county, and his present, Salina Bell, in this township.

John Morrison and family may, perhaps, be called the representative Irish family of the township. They came to this country in 1849, from the north of Ireland, and settled in Knox county, where they remained until they sought their present location, in 1853. The children are: Andrew, Samuel, Isabella (Bean), William, Ann, and Jane. The two oldest sons, as well as the father, have each good farms in the township, the results of their own industry, and are among the substantial men of the township.

Abram Sagar, a resident of section one, came into the township in 1850, and is a representative man among the German citizens. He is the son of John and Christina Sagar, who settled in Plain township in 1830, and later, moved into Blendon.

ORGANIZATION.

Jefferson, which had originally been a portion of the township of Liberty, and afterwards attached, for civil purposes, to Plain, in common with Blendon and Mifflin, was established and organized under its present boundaries, on the sixth of September, 1816. Unfortunately, the early records have not been preserved, and hence we are unable to give the list of first officers. Jacob Smith and William Dean were elected justices of the peace in 1817, and Henderson Crabb the same year, John Inks in 1818, Jacob Smith in 1820, Isaac Painter in 1821, Smith re-elected in 1823, and Andrew Allison in 1824. The present township officers are: S. H. Kidd, E. Ricketts, George Shanks, trustees; F. B. Stowell, clerk; Louis Painter, treasurer; F. B. Stowell, John Sager, justices of the peace; D. F. Linck, George Stagg, constables; S. H. Kidd, Z. McGuire, R. D. Jones, Peter Geiger, O. A. Mann, F. B. Stowell, John Ryan, J. B. Roberts, G. W. Stagg, E. Compton, J. H. Souder, board of education.

EARLY SCHOOLS.

Joseph Edgar taught school in Truro township, before moving into Jefferson, and immediately after taught a few pupils in this township, probably as early as 1816. He taught at home, and his pupils were from the families of the Staggs, Ducks, and Rhoads. Peter Wills taught school a little later, in a small log school-house, which stood on what is now the H. G. Black farm, just south of Black Lick station. Worthy Mitchem was the most noted, and the most valuable, teacher in the township. She did much good in the township, and served the people in the capacity of instructor for their children for over a quarter of a century, beginning as early as 1824. The school was upon the land of Frederick Neiswender. A term of three months was taught, for two dollars per pupil, and the instruction being thorough, parents sent their children from a considerable distance to attend. Many came from Mifflin and Plain townships, as well as from the small settlements in Jefferson. There are still a few old men residing in these townships we have named who recall, with pleasure and satisfaction, the days they spent in the small, quaintly furnished, log school-house, where Worthy Mitchem held the spelling-book and birch. The benches where huge slabs, supported on pins driven into them at each end, and the desks were inclined shelves, which rested on stout arms fastended in the chinks of the log walls.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. Ezekiel Whitehead, of New Jersey, was the first physician in the township, and practiced there for many years, being as successful as could be expected in so small a population, and with the competition of other physicians in the adjoining townships. He removed to Jersey village, over the line, in Licking county, where he now resides, and was followed in Jefferson by Doctors J. Schaffer and David Kemble, who each remained several years. There is now no physician resident in the township.

MILLS.

As early as 1809 or 1810, Jacob Tharp erected a grist-mill on Black lick, near William Headley's residence. There was a saw-mill in connection with the grist-mill, and both were used for a number of years. It was sold by Tharp to the Headley family. The next mill was built by James Alexander and Andrew Allison, on Rocky fork. Mr. Somerville succeeded them as the owner, and he sold the mill to Peter Early. This mill is now run by Kitzmiller & Benedict. Not long after the saw-mill just spoken of, and generally known as the Early mill, was built, Isaac Baldwin put one in operation on Black lick, near the center of the township; and still later, John Havens built one on black lick, just east of the locality now known as Havens' corners. This was burned. The only permanent mill in the township, at present, besides Kitzmiller & Benedict's is one on the road west of Havens' corners, owned by Isaac Souder, and built by him in 1874.

STONE QUARRY.

There is a fine stone quarry on the property of Mr. S. R. Armstrong, just east of Black Lick station. After the building of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, Mr. Armstrong, who had previously taken some stone from this quarry, began to do an extensive business. His sales ran as high as three thousand dollars per year. The material is a good article of sandstone, and has been largely used in Columbus and other places. The Blind Asylum shows, perhaps, as much of it as any one building, but it has also been used for the foundations of the Union depot; the Pan Handle round house, and several other large buildings were built of this stone. It is also extensively used for window cappings and sills, and there is scarcely a street in Columbus where it is not to be seen in some form.

THE TAYLOR STATION METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Preaching by the Methodists was commenced at Taylor's station, soon after the village was laid out. In 1853 a class was organized, consisting of the following members: Michael A. Ebright and wife, Elijah Fishpan and wife, Mordacai Fishpan and wife, John Leckrone and wife, William Hughes and wife, David Ortman and wife, Alonzo Sherman and wife, J. P. Gordon and wife, and Alexander Cook and wife. The class was organized by the Rev. Richard Pitser and Jacob Young. Michael A. Ebright was the first class leader. In 1858 a lot was bought by John Leckrone, of David Taylor, and by the latter deeded to the following trustees for the church: William Hughes, Charles Buckingham, Alonzo Sherman, David Ortman, John Leckrone, Michael A. Ebright, Elijah Fishpan. Upon this lot a frame building was erected, at a cost of six hundred dollars. The present pastor of the Taylor's Station Methodist Episcopal church is the Rev. J. R. Kemper; class leaders, James More, —— Fultz; stewards, S. J. Mason, A. Morrison.

THE CHRISTIAN UNION CHURCH

was built at Havens' corners, in 1871, at a cost of about nine hundred dollars, though the society was organized prior to that time. It consisted, in 1868, of the following members: Shuah, Lucy, Austin A., George M., Kelton S., Manning F., Nancy, Amba, Permelia, Kesiah, and Cordon Mann; Abram, Catharine, Ephraim, Henry, John, and Sophroma Sager; John, Christina, Rebecca, David P., and Frank M. Lytle; David C., and Amanda Runnell; E. W., Elizabeth, and Mary Ayres; Joseph, Mary, and Mary, jr., Sherman; Rebecca Smith, Margaret E., and Mary Havens; Nancy, Allen, C. H., Peter, and George W. Cline; Henry Busey, Rufus Putnam, Theodore Heischmann, Elizabeth Kitzmiller, J. S. Hook, Martha E. Hook, Elizabeth Cisco, Sarah A. Decker, Jasper Cheney, and Daniel DeWitt. The first pastor and organizer of the church was the Rev. R. M. Demham. The present pastor is the Rev. George Stevenson, and the elders of the church are Abram Sager, Shuah Mann, and Martin Welch. The church has between forty-five and fifty members, and is in a prosperous condition.

VILLAGES.

The village of Smithville, now called Black Lick station, is a small cluster of houses upon the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, near the southern boundary line of the township. It was laid out in the year 1852, by William A. Smith.

Grahamsville, or, as it is now universally called, Taylorstown, or Taylor's station, is upon the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, about two miles west of Black Lick, and south of the center of section three. The section was held by the heirs of L. Brien until 1850, when it was conveyed by them to David Taylor, esq., at ten dollars per acre. He laid out the village which now bears his name, in 1853; built there a warehouse and saw-mill, and caused to be erected several houses. The place had a small growth during the first few years after its establishment, but has not increased in the same proportion during later years, and is only a very small hamlet.

POST-OFFICES.

The first post office established in the township was Ovid, at Headley's corners, in 1832. Dr. Ezekiel Whitehead was the first postmaster. William Headley succeeded him after a few years, and held the position for a long period. The office was discontinued in 1875.

Black Lick post-office was established at the station in 1852, and Thomas McCollum was the first postmaster commissioned. He was succeeded by C. S. Morris, and he by Ezekiel Compton, who is the present incumbent. An office was established in June, 1879, at Havens' corners, with R. J. Rhoads as postmaster.

CLINTON.

Clinton—township number one, range number eighteen, United States military lands—consists of just one of the original surveyed townships, of five miles square. It was subdivided into four quarters, or sections, the original owners of which were the following named gentlemen: Jonathan Dayton, the first and third sections; John Rathbone, the second section; and George Stephenson, the fourth section. The date of their entries, was March 12, 1800.

The township is level, east of the river almost perfectly so. Its principal stream is the Olentangy river—formerly called Whetstone creek—which flows south through the western portion of the township, uniting its waters with those of the Scioto river, at Columbus.

INDIANS,

of the Wyandot, and other tribes, remained in the township, and region, for a number of years after the white settlers took possession of the soil. Intercourse between them and the whites was of a friendly nature, and only during the year of 1812, after the surrender of General Hull, by which the whole northwest was exposed to the ravages of the enemy, were there any anticipations of difficulty by the inhabitants. One evening, shortly after that unfortunate event, the settlers on the river were greatly alarmed by a report that the Indians were over-running the northern part of the State, and massacreing the inhabitants, and settlers in Clinton fled in terror to Franklinton, and a few went to Zanesville, for protection. Andrew Wilson says the report reached his father's house after nightfall, and that he, though but six years of age, distinctly remembers the excitement that ensued. After a night of dismal forebodings, in Franklinton, the refugees returned to their homes, and soon afterwards learned of the falsity of the alarm.

On the west bank of the Olentangy, on the farm of James H. Hess, was a burying-ground of a former race—probably Indians—which was opened in the summer of 1879, and from twelve to fifteen skeletons exhumed. They were in two parallel trenches, which were about twelve feet apart, and some three and a half feet deep. A large number of arrows, tomahawks and other rude implements of war, had previously been found, indicating that a battle had once been fought there.

WILD GAME.

The country, in its native state, and for many years after its first settlement, abounded in game of all kinds—deer, wild turkeys, and some smaller game being particularly numerous. There were not a great many bears in the township, or vicinity, but they would frequently pass through it, and a number have been killed within its bounds. Deer were more plenty than cattle are now, and venison was a common article of food. It was not an unusual circumstance for a settler to bring down a fine buck with his rifle, from his cabin door. One of the most successful hunters among the pioneers was David Beers, jr., who had a cabin on what is now 'Squire Peggs' farm, which he made his headquarters while he pursued his favorite sport. He began to hunt when a boy of fourteen, and did nothing else for seven years. He used to say that he had hunted in every county in the State, and that the first eighty acres of land that he bought he paid for with the products of his gun. In one day, in this township, he killed one bear and five deer. The last deer killed in this township were, probably, those shot by W. S. Shrum and John Fleniken, about the year 1840. They shot them (four in number) on the Morse farm, in the east part of the township. Wolves were plenty, and were, perhaps, more dreaded than any other of the beasts of the forest. They would come up to the cabin doors of the settlers, often protected only by a blanket, or quilt, and rendered night anything but pleasant with their piercing howls. Sheep were not safe from them, unless shut up in pens, and the pioneers suffered considerable loss from their ravages. Wild turkeys were caught by means of a rail pen, which was built over the end of a ditch dug in the ground, and covered over. The birds were decoyed into the inclosure with corn, scattered in the ditch. When once within the pen, they were safely imprisoned, for they would never go down into the ditch to get out, invariably seeking a means of egress above. And squirrels were exceedingly plentiful. They were so numerous, and destructive to the crops of the settlers, as to be regarded only as pests, and various means were resorted to to rid the country of them. Large hunting parties were organized, and thousands were destroyed in that way. Mr. Shrum states that in a few moments one morning, before breakfast, he, and a brother, killed thirty-two of them, without the use of a gun.

SETTLEMENT.

The first settlement of the territory now constituting the township of Clinton, was commenced as early as 1800, along the Olentangy, on the west side. Among the first families that arrived, were those of Balser Hess, John Lisle, and a family by the name of Henderson. Balser Hess came from Bedford county, Pennsylvania, with a family, consisting of his wife and eight children. He stopped in Ross county (as now constituted) a couple of years, and then came to this township, and located where his grandson, James H. Hess, now lives, subsequently taking up three hundred and twenty acres of land there. It is thought that this family made the first improvement in the township, for they cut their way into the woods of Clinton, the son, Daniel, going ahead of the team, and with his axe preparing the way for the slowly moving train. The first house erected by the pioneer, Hess, was a double log structure, which, although not a tavern, was a common stopping place with travelers. Mr. Hess' occupation in Pennsylvania, was that of a shoemaker and tanner of leather, and he followed the same trade after his settlement here, tanning the first leather and making the first shoes in the township. People came from Chillicothe to get their boots and shoes made by Mr. Hess, and his pay very seldom consisted of legal tender. One of the first pioneers in the township, Mr. Hess was also one of the first of their number who died, his death occurring in December, 1806. He was the first adult person buried in Union cemetery. His wife's experience of pioneer life was in strange contrast to his, surviving him nearly half a century. She died in 1855, at an advanced age, having raised nine children, all now dead but one. The youngest, at the time of his death, was fifty-seven years of age. The names of the children, were: Daniel, Mary, Eve, Polly, Balser, Catharine, Betsey, Susan, Sarah, and Moses; Susan—now Mrs. Israel Carpenter, and living in Illinois—is the only survivor. Daniel and Moses lived and died in this township, the former a short distance west of his father, and the latter on the homestead. Daniel Hess was one of the first justices of the peace in the township, being elected soon after its organization, in 1812.

John Lisle, a native of Ireland, emigrated to Ohio, from Kentucky, in 1798, and first located in Franklinton, his family being among the first inhabitants of that old town. In 1799, or 1800, he moved into Clinton, and settled where J. O. Lisle now lives, and subsequently died there, his wife, Rachel, surviving him. Their children, all of whom are now deceased, were: Robert, Margaret, Elizabeth, James, Rebecca, Jane, John, and Rachel. Robert married Abigail McIntyre, of Fairfield county, and resided in Clinton until 1817, when he removed to Hamilton township, and settled where his son, Harvey, now resides; Margaret became the wife of James McElvain, an early resident of this county, but later of Indiana. Elizabeth married Luther Powers, and moved to the same State; James, who lived in Hamilton township, married Mary Golliford; Rebecca was the wife of Joseph Young, of Fairfield county, and Jane, of Samuel Maynard, who lived in Clinton, for several years, when he moved to Sandusky county; John married Thankful Maynard, and removed, soon afterwards, to Indiana; Rachel was the wife of William Sackett, and first settled in Fairfield, and afterward in Putnam county.

The Henderson family located on land now owned by Thomas Hess. There were three sons in the family—Alexander, Samuel, and Adam—all now supposed to be dead.

Hugh and Elijah Fulton, brothers, were among the first settlers of the township. Hugh lived where the family of Henry Slyh now does, west of the river. He had four sons, who finally sold to Jacob Slyh, and moved to Michigan. Elijah Fulton settled just north of the Hesses, and died there at an early date.

Samuel McElvain and family located, soon after 1800, on the farm just north of where W. S. Shrum now lives. They subsequently moved to Columbus.

John Hunter, the first settler on the east side of the river, in this township, occupied the south part of the land now constituting the college grounds. Above him, in successive order, were two families by the name of Vance, and Herdoff, Droddy, Smart, Simmons, and others hereafter mentioned.

A CENTENARIAN.

David Beers, sr., one of the oldest, and most active, pioneers of Clinton, was a resident of the township from 1804 until 1850, when he died at the great age, it is said (his exact age not being known), of one hundred and four years. He was a native of New Jersey, and when seven years of age, with a little two-year-old sister, was stolen by the Indians. The two children, and their widowed mother, were going on a journey on horse-back when all three were captured by the savages. The children were separated from the mother (whom they never saw again, and who was undoubtedly killed), and taken over into Canada. David was kept in captivity for seven years, when, by some exchange of prisoners between the whites and Indians, he was released. His sister, however, was taken to the region of upper Sandusky, and remained there among the Indians during her life. She became the wife, successively, of three Indian chiefs, her last husband being the well-known Wyandot, Between-the-Logs. Some years after his settlement in Clinton, Mr. Beers heard of a white woman living with the Indians at Upper Sandusky, and he made a visit to the tribe, where he found his long lost sister, contented and happy in her savage life. David Beers removed, with his family, from Pennsylvania to Ohio in 1802. He remained in Fairfield county two years, when he moved to this township and located just north of the college grounds. In 1809 he settled where North Columbus now is. The old hewed log house, in which he lived, is still standing. He died there, May 16th, of the same year above stated. He was the father of nine children, they are: Conrad, David, Elizabeth (who became the wife of Ransom Coe), Moses, Peter, Catharine, Solomon, Rachel, and George W. Five are yet living; they are: Moses and Catharine, (wife o D. P. Wilcox), who live in Missouri; Peter, who lives in Iowa; Rachel (Mrs. Wheaton), and George W., who live in Clinton. Conrad died in North Columbus. His son, Moses, and a daughter, Mrs. Spencer, reside in this township. Three other sons live in the west, and a daughter in Lorain county. David Beers, jr., some of whose hunting exploits are briefly mentioned elsewhere, settled in Clinton, where he remained until 1831, when he moved to Mifflin, and settled on Alum creek, and resided there until his death. He was justice of the peace of that township for thirty years, when he was succeeded by his son, David, who still retains the office, having served twenty-one years. He was twice married, and was the father of ten children, three of whom are deceased; of the remainder, Washington, David, Daniel, and Gertrude reside in Mifflin township, Ellen in Clinton, Mrs. Elizabeth Holden in Champaign county, and Mrs. Eliza Spangler in Columbus.

John Wilson, in 1797, married Rachel Cresswell, in Mifflin county, Pennsylvania, and immediately after started, with his bride, for the far west. They traveled on pack-horses, as far as Pittsburgh or Wheeling, carrying with them a few articles of household necessity, and then put their horses on a flat-boat, on which they, also, came down the Ohio river to the mouth of the Scioto, thence up to Chillicothe, on their horses. They lived on the Kinnickinnick, in Ross county, till 1804, when they came to what is now Clinton township, and settled upon fifty acres, now occupied by their son, Andrew Wilson. The father died here, October 2, 1879, at the age of over eighty-one years; his wife survived him about three years, and was about the same age at the time of her death. They had a family of three sons and two daughters. One of the daughters is now living in Fremont, Ohio, and the other in Iowa. Andrew Wilson, the only surviving son, was born in Clinton, February 16, 1806, and is the oldest man in the township, who was born in it; his wife was Chloe, daughter of Jason Bull.

Denman Coe, of Connecticut, emigrated to Wayne county, Pennsylvania, where he remained a year or two, and then, in 1807, came to Ohio. After remaining a short time in Worthington, he located in Clinton, on the Harbor road, on the Henry Innis farm. He lived there some five or six years, and then returned to Pennsylvania, where he subsequently died. Dudley and Ransom, his sons, received the homestead, on which Dudley resided until his death. He was married, at the age of fifty, to Sarah Hoskins, of Holmes county, by whom he had four sons and two daughters, all now living. Ransom Coe, in 1815, purchased, of Caleb Rice, a hundred acres of land, now owned by his son, A. F. Coe, which he cleared up, and on which he lived until his death, in October, 1855. At the time of his death, he owned over five hundred acres of land. His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of David Beers, sr. She survived her husband some thirteen years. They had a family of six children, two of whom are deceased—Henry, who died, unmarried, in Clinton, and Mrs. Salinda Stewart, the eldest daughter, who died in Burlington, Iowa. Three of the surviving children reside in this township—Mrs. Lovilla Ackerman, Alvin, and A. F. Coe; Mrs. Rachel Stone lives in Delaware county.

Harvey Coe, a younger brother of Ransom, settled in Mifflin township, where his widow and son, James H. Coe, now live.

In 1809, or 1810, Joseph Shrum bought, and settled upon, eighty-eight acres in this township, where W. S. Shrum, his son, now lives. He was a native of Germany, and in 1800, when eighteen or nineteen years of age, he emigrated to this country. For a year or two, he lived in Little York, Pennsylvania, and then came to Franklin county, and located in Hamilton township, where he had a distillery, for a couple of years, on the Shoaf farm, on the Chillicothe road. Afterwards, he bought one hundred and sixty acres in the same township, now the Klickinger farm, which he lost on account of imperfect title, when he came into this township and settled, as already stated. Soon after his settlement, he built a distillery on the west bank of the Olentangy, just south of his residence. The still was burned down in 1824, or 1825, but he rebuilt it the same year, but on the east side of the river, and carried on distilling until 1837, when he retired from active business. January 1, 1809, he was married to Elizabeth McGranahan, by whom he had seven children. She died in 1823, and he was married twice afterwards, but had no children by these subsequent marriages. Mr. Shrum was killed, in September, 1859, by a train of cars on the Piqua road, while driving over the long crossing, west of Jones mill, living forty-eight hours after the accident. At the time of his death, he was over eighty-eight years of age. Although owning and operating a distillery, he was a strictly temperate man in his habits. For thirty years he was a member of the Franklinton dragoons. A son and two daughters are now living: W. S. Shrum, born in this township, in 1814, and now residing on the homestead; Mrs. Elizabeth Reams, in Michigan, and Mrs. Lucy Gillen, in the State of Illinois.

At an early date, quite a number of New England people came into the township, and settled mostly along the Columbus and Worthington road, which originally run a somewhat different course from what it now does. One of the first was Abraham Ingham, who came from Barkhampstead, Connecticut with his family, then [1808] consisting of his wife and three children. The year before, he had made a trip to this western wilderness, to take a look at the country, walking the whole distance both ways, and averaging over fifty miles a day the round trip, and some days traveled sixty-five miles. The family settled on the David Bristol property, a mile and a half south of Worthington, where they lived until 1812, at which time Mr. Ingham purchased of Daniel Case the farm now occupied by his son, George W. Ingham. At the time he erected his cabin here, on this now thickly settled road, the nearest neighbor was half a mile away, and only woods in every direction. Mr. Ingham, after a useful life, died in this township, in 1840, his wife surviving him thirty years. They raised a family of six children, four of whom are yet living, viz.: Mrs. Arnold, in Delaware county, aged over eighty; A. C. Ingham, in the town of Delaware, aged seventy-nine; George W. who lives in this township, on the old homestead, and a daughter -Mrs. Wilcox—in Iowa City, Iowa. George W. was born in this township in 1816.

At the same time, Jordan Ingham, an older brother of Abraham, moved out with his family, and settled on the farm adjoining his brother on the south. He died about the year 1843, and his wife previously. The only member of the family now living resides in Iowa.

Daniel Case came from Hartford county, Connecticut, in 1811, and settled on the farm, a part of which is now owned by his son, William Case. His dwelling stood on the bank of the river, near where the mill now does. Mr. Case died in 1817. Of his five children, two only are now living—William, as above mentioned, and Rodney, in Kentucky.

Prominent among the pioneers of this township were Thomas Bull and family, who arrived in Worthington, in the fall of 1812, removing from the State of New York. They remained the first winter in Worthington, and in the spring came to this township, Mr. Bull having purchased in the Rathbone section, lots eight, nine and ten, comprising something over six hundred acres. He settled upon lot eight. Thomas Bull was a native of Vermont, born November, 1762, and died in Clinton, October, 1823. His wife Sylvia (Benedict), was a native of Connecticut, born in 1766, and died here at the age of about eighty years. They raised a family of four sons and two daughters—Chloe, Jason, Nathan T., Alonson, Hiram and Edith. They all came to Ohio with their parents, except Chloe, who came subsequently with her husband. Isaac Brevoort, who was drowned a short time afterward which crossing the Olentangy river. Jason Bull lived on the farm just north of his son-in-law, Andrew Wilson, and died there, February, 1861. He was a local Methodist preacher. Alonson died in Columbus; Hiram, on the Mississippi, below New Orleans, where he had settled; Edith became the wife of a Dr. Beach, and resided in Marion county, Ohio.

Dr. Nathan T. Bull, the only survivor of the family, and now residing in this township, was born in Clinton county, New York, September 29, 1795; married, January, 1820, Fidelia, daughter of Eber and Rebecca Wilson, who removed from Washington county, New York, to this township, with his family, in 1818. Mr. Wilson resided on the farm now occupied by Mr. Fuller, for two years, when he removed to Lower Sandusky (now Fremont), and shortly afterward to the Maumee river, where he settled near Perrysburg. Mrs. Bull was born August 23, 1798. With the exception of her hearing, which has become of late years considerably impaired, Mrs. Bull still retains her faculties in an excellent state of preservation. Dr. and Mrs. Bull have lived together as man and wife, for the unusual period of three score years, and have, now living, seven children, twenty-two grandchildren, and sixteen great-grandchildren.

John Smith came from Francestown, New Hampshire, in 1812. He worked for Squire Samuel Wilson above Worthington, about a year when he married his employer's eldest daughter, Olive. In 1814 he purchased of Thomas Bull, lot number nine, in Clinton township, now owned and occupied by Mrs. Catharine Smith. Mr. Smith was a zealous christian man, and was actively engaged, during most of his life, in religious and reformatory work. He was in Minnesota, as a sort of missionary among the Ojibway Indians, for several years. He was the first president of the first temperance society, and of the first anti-slavery society in Franklin county. He organized the first Sunday-school in this township, and was its superintendent for about thirty years. He died April, 1865, his wife surviving him a few months. They raised a family of six children: Rev. Samuel D. Smith, now pastor of the Presbyterian church in Reynoldsburg, this county; Elizabeth C., now widow of William F. Breck, and residing in Parker City, Pennsylvania; John A., Jeremiah B. and Joseph, all deceased, and Mary M., who married William L. Starr, and lives in Nebraska. Joseph Smith, above mentioned, was the husband of Catharine Piatt who is still living in Clinton, on the old homestead. Mrs. Smith is a sister of John J. Piatt, the poet.

Roswell Wilcox and family came to this county from Simsbury, Connecticut, in 1805. The journey which was made by wagon, consumed three weeks, and from Granville to Worthington they traveled by blazed trees—the country was then almost a complete wilderness. They located, for a short time, in Franklinton, when they moved about two miles above Worthington, in the Wilson neighborhood, where they lived some eight years. In 1814 Wilcox moved with his family to this township, and settled where Joseph Guitner now lives, having erected a saw-mill, where the Hess mill now stands, in 1810. He resided there until his death. His wife survived him, and died in Delaware county. They had a family of eight children, of whom D. P. Wilcox now living in Missouri, is the only survivor. A daughter, Emily, was the wife of Apollos Maynard.

Philologus Webster and family, and his sons, Peter, John, and Harvey, and their families, moved into the township during the war of 1812. They came from Connecticut—John, and family, from Hartford, and the rest from Simsbury. They came by wagon, and were three months making the journey. The father settled where the aged widow of Elihu now lives, and died there a few years afterward. Peter also settled on a portion of the old homestead. John located in Columbus, where he lived some ten years, when he settled in Clinton, on the farm now owned by Mr. Little, but lived on the east side of the road; his son, Amason Webster, born in Columbus, in 1815, is still a resident of this township. Harvey died in this township, though he made no actual settlement; he was the father of Lewis H. Webster, a member of the bar of Columbus. Elihu married Mary Anderson, who still survives him, at the age of over eighty years. Rhoda, who became the wife of Farin Olmstead, and lived in Blendon township, subsequently removed to Madison county, and, finally, to Iowa, where she died. Levi died in Clinton, at the age of eighteen.

Roswell Cook and family moved in from Connecticut, in the winter of 1815, and at the same time came his sons, Rodney and Chauncey, with their wives. The father bought and settled upon the farm now occupied by Rodney's son, Clement Cook. After his death, which took place in Delaware county, the elder son had the home place, and Chauncey lived on a portion of the farm south of his brother.

Edward Stanley, sr., from Connecticut, arrived about the same time as the Cooks, and located where Erskine A. Fuller now lives; he died there, and his son, Edward, afterward occupied the place.

Ezekiel Tuller, also from Connecticut, came to Ohio in 1814, and after living a few years in Sharon township, settled in Clinton, where James Wetmore now resides. None of the family are now left.

John Buck came out with the Cook family. He was then single, but afterward married Diadamia Cowles, and settled on the place now occupied by his son, William. The father and mother both resided here until their death.

Sadosa Bacon, from Connecticut, purchased in 1813, the farm now occupied by his son, John. In 1817 he married Anna Case, and lived upon his farm until his death in 1822. He was a traveling Methodist preacher.

Philip Zinn settled in Columbus in 1813; afterwards bought and located on the north part of what is now the college grounds. He was an early mail-carrier from Columbus to Chillicothe, and from Columbus to Delaware. He was also much engaged in transporting goods by wagon from the east to Columbus. He died in Pennsylvania while on such a trip. His children, Adam Zinn and Mrs. John Garner, live in this township, and Peter, a lawyer, below Cincinnati.

In 1819 Alexander Shattuck, born in Groton, Massachusetts, September 9, 1797, came to this county with his brother, Simon, and wife, Sarah Simpson, who settled in Perry township. He was a carpenter, and worked at his trade for some time after his arrival. His first purchase of land was ninety acres, still occupied by his widow. It was then uncleared except a few acres, and contained a log cabin. He was married in Worthington, February 17, 1830, to Flora Andrews who came with her parents to Ohio from Connecticut, when six years of age. She was born July 24, 1808. To them have been born two sons and ten daughters, all now living but one son. William Shattuck who lives on the farm next south of his mother's, is one of the leading farmers in the township. Alexander Shattuck died October 23, 1870.

Henry Innis, of Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, married, in Harrison county, Ohio, Isabella Clifford Pegg, and in 1817, came to Franklin county. He located in Franklinton, where he kept a tavern some four years, when he moved to Clinton, and settled on the farm now occupied by Abraham Carl. He erected the brick house now occupied by the family of A. R. Innis, his youngest son, in 1840. He resided there until his death, April 13, 1865, aged seventy-three. His widow, born July 30, 1793, is still living. They raised a family of nine children, four of whom survive—Colonel Gustavus S. Innis, manager of the State Reform farm, at Lancaster; William H., one of the substantial farmers of Clinton; Mrs. James Durrett, in Scioto township, Pickaway county; and Adam R., also in Clinton. Elizabeth was the wife of Frederick Roder, formerly of Clinton, now of Delaware county; Mary married Mr. Jimeson, of Blendon township; Minerva was the wife of Joseph Mock, of Clinton, and died June, 1879; Isabella C., was the wife of Silas Wilcox; and Elias P., died at the age of twenty-one.

The Maynards—two families—the most of whom settled in Sharon township, came, with some others, from Massachusetts, to this county, in the year 1806. In Connecticut, the emigrants were arrested for traveling on the Sabbath, in violation of the old blue laws of that State. Two men of the party went back with the officer to the magistrate, who had caused their arrest, and succeeded in getting off in some way without suffering the penalty to which they had made themselves liable. Moses Maynard settled in Worthington, and, Stephen, his brother, west of the river, in the same township. Apollos Maynard, son of Moses, born September 12, 1796, married, in 1820, Emily Wilcox, daughter of Roswell Wilcox and Dorcas Pinney, and subsequently, in 1832, purchased, for one thousand dollars, seventy-seven acres in Clinton, where North Columbus now stands. On the place west of High street, was a cabin built by Jacob Loy, and this Mr. Maynard moved to the east side of the street, and occupied. He subsequently erected the brick house occupying the same site, or nearly so. He died, March 24, 1868. Mrs. Maynard died December 20, 1857. Two children were born to them—George Clinton, who died August 2, 1860; and Laura Maynard, now living in North Columbus.

Samuel G. Flenniken emigrated from Pennsylvania in 1798, settling at first on the Lancaster road, below Columbus. He was born in North Carolina, and raised in Pennsylvania. He married Elizabeth Morehead, in Chillicothe, in 1798. About 1820 he moved, with his family, to Clinton township, where he bought the land on which the county infirmary was to be located. His purchase was made from the McIlvaine heirs. He was elected associate judge in 1817, and served until his death, in 1845, a period of twenty-eight years. He raised nine children, seven sons and two daughters. His son, Samuel W. Flenniken, lives in Brown township, on Little Darby creek. Eliza S. married Joseph R. Anderson, and lives near Columbus, on the Dublin pike. Dorcas J. married Daniel Lakin, and settled in the southwest corner of Clinton township. Two of her sons live in Perry township—George W., on the bank of the Scioto river, and Samuel W., near the Clinton township line. Sarah Flenniken remained single and lives with her sister, Mrs. Anderson, near Columbus. The remainder of the children of Judge Flenniken went to the west, where they died.

Casper Kiner came to this county from Pennsylvania in 1824. He lived a couple of years south of Columbus, and then located where the college grounds are, in Clinton township, where he remained for a year. He then moved to Coshocton county, where he resided seven years, when he moved back to Clinton. He settled on the farm, a portion of which is now occupied by his son, Jacob, and lived there the balance of his life. He raised a family of ten children, of whom three sons and a daughter are now living, viz: Jacob, Henry, and John, in this township, and Mrs. Nathaniel Smith, near Georgesville.

Walter Fields moved into this township in 1824, from Athens county, Ohio, where he had lived six years. He located on one hundred acres of land, now owned by L. L. Pegg, just east of his son, Albert Fields' farm. In 1867 he moved to the farm now occupied by his son, where he died ten years afterwards. His father, John Fields, and his family, came from Athens county in 1828, and settled upon the same lot. He died in 1864, at the age of one month and a few days over one hundred years.

Jacob Slyh came from Jefferson county, Virginia, in October, 1828, his wife and father coming out with him. They remained in Columbus through the winter, and then came to Clinton and settled a mile south of where he now lives. At this writing he is aged eighty-one, and his wife seventy-eight. They have five surviving children, all of whom are married. William occupies the homestead.

Frederick Weber emigrated to the United States, from Germany, in the spring of 1830, and lived one year in York county, Pennsylvania, and three years in Stark county, Ohio, when, in 1834, he moved to this township, and settled where he now lives. This place, which he purchased of Thomas Johnson, consisted of sixty-eight acres, on which there was a log cabin, and only five acres cleared. This part of the township was then very new, wet, and heavily timbered. Mr. Weber has now three hundred and ten acres. In Stark county he married his first wife, who died in 1851, and who was the mother of his ten children, seven of whom are now living. In 1862 he married his present wife, Mrs. Amelia Schwartz, of Columbus.

Windsor Atcheson, who resides in the southeast part of the township, at the age of seventy-seven, has been a resident of Franklin county since 1828. In 1813, he came from Center county, Pennsylvania, to Ohio, with his parents, who settled in Stark county. In 1828, he came to Lockbourne, and worked on the canal two or three years, when he went to Columbus. In 1842, he located in Montgomery (now Marion) township, west of where the round house now is, and in 1846, moved into Clinton. For many years he has been engaged in the manufacture of brick. July 29, 1852, he was married to Maria Kiser, and has a family of five children.

Robert Innis, a brother of Henry, before mentioned, moved into the township, from Harrison county, Ohio, in 1834, and settled on the farm now occupied by his widow, Mary Innis, now aged nearly seventy-one. Mr. Innis died August 19, 1879, aged nearly seventy-five. There are eight children of Robert Innis, all married and settled in life.

Joseph Pegg, who settled in Clinton in 1833, came from Philadelphia, with his father, Elias Pegg, who was among the early settlers in the old town of Franklinton. Elias Pegg, his son, now lives there, and his daughter, Mrs. Henry Innis, now in her eighty-seventh year, resides in this township, and Mrs. Samuel Fisher, another daughter, at Hilliard. Joseph Pegg was married in Franklinton, to Matilda Crawford, and, the year above stated, purchased of Henry Innis, a farm of sixty-eight acres, on which he resided until his death, in 1854. His wife died a few years since. They had eleven children, all of whom are living, with the exception of a daughter, who was killed in childhood, by a tree, cut down by the hired man, falling upon her. Elias W. Pegg, son of Joseph Pegg, is justice of the peace of Clinton, a position he has filled with credit many years.

J. P. Little and wife came to Ohio from Washington county, Pennsylvania, in 1833. They lived in Licking county about three years, when they moved to this township, and purchased of John Webster, sr., the farm they still occupy. Mr. Little was born February 13, 1802, in Greene county, Pennsylvania. His wife (Anna Beck) whom he married in 1830, was a native of Washington county, same State, and is now aged sixty-six. They have raised six children, and all of them are now living.

PIONEER SCHOOLS.

The first school in Clinton, according to Andrew Wilson and others, was kept by Miss Griswold, in an old log cabin on the Lisle farm, in the summer of 1809 or 1810. The house had only part of a puncheon floor, and greased paper for windows. The children who lived east of the river, of whom John Wilson sent four, had to wade the stream to get to the school.

In 1812 Michael M. Baker, an Irishman, opened a school in a log house on the Maynard farm, north of the college grounds, then owned by Joseph Smart. Jonas B. Ward and Roswell Fisk were early teachers in the same house.

A school was kept by Miss Becky Gordon in a vacant log dwelling on the Hess farm, as early as 1817.

The first school in the Cook neighborhood was taught by Diadamia Cowles, afterwards wife of John Buck, in the summer of 1816. The school was kept in a log structure, previously used as a stable by Roswell Cook. The first school-house was built in 1815, on Webster's run, on the top of the hill, northeast of the late Edward Stanley's residence. The first pedagogue was Timothy Sedgwick, of Connecticut, who taught a winter school. The first summer school was kept by Miss Rachel Cook, whose tuition was partly paid in grain.

In the fall of 1819, or following winter, a small log school-house was erected nearly opposite where the present Methodist Episcopal church now stands, in which James Ferson kept the first school. He was a man of excellent character and qualifications, as a teacher, and taught a large and successful school.

A hewed log house was built a few years afterward, just north of the old school-house which has also long since disappeared. The now venerable Dr. Bull was one of the earliest teachers in this house, teaching two winters.

The township is, at present, divided into eight school districts outside of the city limits, and each district contains a good brick school-house.

CHURCHES.

CLINTON CHAPEL.

Meetings by the Methodists in Clinton were commenced, in 1819, at the log house of Eber Wilson, on the farm now owned by Mr. Fuller. The first circuit preachers were John Tivis and Leroy Swomstedt, who preached, alternately, once in two weeks. A class was formed, with the following members: Thomas Bull and wife, Nathan T. Bull, Alonson Bull, Edith Bull, Fidelia Wilson, Abel Tinckum and wife, Louis Gay and wife, Eber Wilson and wife, Jason Bull and wife, and widow Delano. Meetings were held at Eber Wilson's house about two years, and, after that, at the dwelling of Thomas Bull, until his death, some eighteen months. Subsequent to this, and until the erection of the church, they were held at the old school-house, which stood just west of where the church now stands. The church was built about the year 1838, and was the first meeting-house in the township. The ground for the church and graveyard was set apart, for the purpose, in the will of Thomas Bull, one of the society's most zealous members. The church has been fairly prosperous, and meetings have continued, without interruption, up to the present time. Andrew Wilson and Amoson Webster are the present class-leaders. A Sabbath-school has been in existence, in connection with this church, for over forty-five years, and is now flourishing. It contains a good library. Amoson Webster is the superintendent.

THE M'KENDREE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, in the eastern part of the township, was organized at the dwelling of John Baker, in 1852. Rev. Urich Heath, who was then on the circuit, officiated in its organization. The constituent members were twelve in number, as follows: Henry Innis and wife, Robert Innis and wife, David Canfield and wife, Mrs. John Baker, and Mrs. Cornelius Sharp. The church, a small frame house, was erected the same year the society was organized.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH,

west of the river, called the Clinton Predestinarian Baptist church, was organized at the Union church, by Elder Samuel Carpenter, of Lancaster, and Elder Hiram Hendren, of Canal Winchester, in August, 1860. The members composing the organization, were: Rev. Daniel Hess and wife, Josiah Kinnear and wife, Sarah Hess, Aaron Hard, Jemima Hard, Melissa Hard, Ansel Hard, Myron Hard, and Robert Walcott. Aaron Hard was elected the first deacon. The first meetings of the society were held irregularly at the Union church, and subsequently, in the Walcott school-house, in Perry township. The church, a neat brick structure, was built in 1870. The first pastor was Rev. Hiram Hendren, who preached one year, when he was succeeded by Rev. Daniel Hess, who continued as pastor until October, 1877, when he resigned. Since then Rev. George Tussing, of Columbus, has officiated as pastor. William Winegardner is the present church clerk.

THE UNION CHURCH,

near the west line of the township, was erected by the Episcopalians of Clinton, and a German Reformed society, in Perry township, in the fall of 1852. The lot, of one-half acre, was donated by Jacob Slyh.

The German Reformed society was organized by Rev. Jacob Weaver, at the Kenny log school-house, on the twenty-second of June, 1851. The original members of the society were: Jacob Fogle and wife (Mary Ann), John Kenny and wife (Nancy), Rodolfus Phinegar and wife (Elizabeth), Mathias G. Slough and wife (Lydia), Frederick Wiser, and Mary Whip. The first officers chosen by the church were: Jacob Fogle, and Rodolfus Phinegar, elders; John Kenny, and Mathias G. Slough, deacons. The successive pastors of the Reformed church have been as follows: Jacob Weaver, George W. Willard, Henry Willard, and Joseph Heffley. Subsequent to Henry Willard, the Rev. John Voght preached for some time as a supply. The society, at the present time, numbers about twenty-six members. The elders are Jacob Fogle and James Kenny, and R. Phinegar, deacon.

The Protestant Episcopal society, with which the German Reformed united in the erection of the church previously mentioned, was organized at the time the church was built, in 1852. The membership consisted of Jacob Slyh and wife (Emeline), Daniel Lakin, Washington Lakin and wife (Rebecca), and Elizabeth Lisle. Jacob Slyh was elected senior Warden, and Daniel Lakin, junior warden. There are now about twenty-one members. Rev. Messrs. Roberts, Richards, Ross, Ruth, Nash, Jones, and Young (the present minister), have been the successive pastors of the church.

The Winebrenarians ("Church of God") had an organization in this township for a number of years, and in 1852 erected a brick church in Clintonville, which is now used for a dwelling.

FIRST SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

The first Sabbath-school in the township was organized by John Smith, at his house, in 1832 He had charge of the school for a number of years, keeping it for three or four years in his own house, and afterwards in a log school-house west of the site of the Methodist Episcopal church.

MILLS AND OTHER INTERESTS.

In the first settlement of the county the pioneers were compelled to make extended journeys to get their grain ground into flour. To go thirty or forty miles to mill—to Chillicothe, as the first settlers did—and through unbroken forests, was no small undertaking. The grist was ground in the order of its reception at the mill, and the few mills then in existence were so overcrowded with business that several days would be required some times to get the grist through the mill. A man who has had some experience says "one in going to mill could eat his grist while waiting for it." Frequently, the mortar-and pestle was brought into use. A cavity burnt into the top of a stump, or block, a spring-pole, or sapling, with a pestle attached by means of bark—these were the sum total of the parts and mechanism of the mortar and pestle-mill. With this the people pounded their corn. Frequently, they had "jointed" corn—corn cut from the cob with a joiner's plane. The first grist-mills of any considerable advantage to the county were those of Colonel Kilbourne and Samuel Dyer, the former near Worthington, and the latter on Darby creek, where Georgesville now stands. These were erected about the year 1805. The first grist-mill in the township was erected by David Beers, sr., in 1810. The mill is now owned by the Messrs. Hess. Mr. Beers sold the mill, in 1816, to his son-in-law, D. P. Wilcox, who operated it until 1839, or 1840, when he sold it to James Mateer. Mr. Mateer subsequently sold it to John B. Piatt, who was succeeded by the Messrs. Hess.

The grist-mill farther up the river, now owned by Jacob Weisenhammer, was originally built on the Olentangy, in Sharon township, by Stephen Maynard, about the year 1813, and was afterwards moved to its present location. It is the same mill, just as the boy's jack-knife was the same, which had had three new handles and two new blades. George Whip owned this mill for some thirty years, and it is known as Whip's mill. Roswell Wilcox, in 1810, erected the first saw-mill in the township, just below the Beers grist-mill. The two mills were run by the same flume, which caused some trouble and litigation between the owners. A saw-mill was built about the year 1814, near Whip's mill, by Dan Case and Belias H. Skeels. The saw-mill in the eastern part of the township, was moved in and put up by Messrs. Jennings and Jeffries, about two years ago. A saw-mill had previously been erected there by William Keyes, of Westerville, who afterwards moved it to Columbus.

There were, at one time, three distilleries in the township, which did an extensive business in the manufacture of liquor. The most important manufacturing interest in the township, at the present time, is that of brick-making, a large number of brickyards being in active operation.

TAVERNS.

The first house in the township, kept for the entertainment of the public, was opened by Peter Haroff, in his dwelling, on the old Columbus road, near where the college grounds now are. The house consisted of three or four log cabins, joined together, and in it the early township elections were held. About the year 1814, the Wilcox tavern was erected, by Roswell Wilcox. The building was a frame, and stood where the residence of Joseph Guitner now stands, and of which the old tavern now forms a part. Mr. Wilcox kept the tavern until his death.

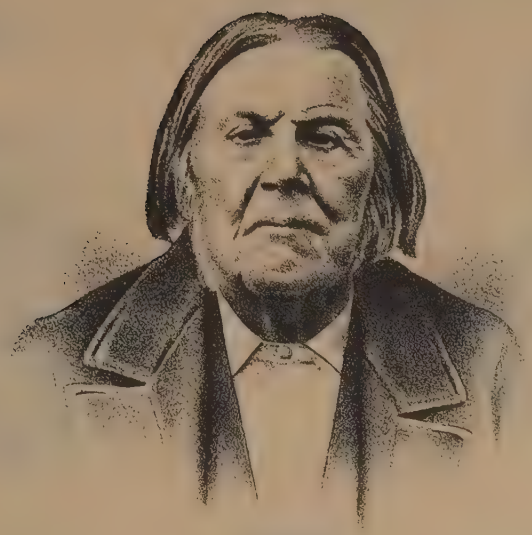
PHYSICIANS.

Dr. Charles H. Wetmore, the pioneer physician of the township, removed to this county from the city of New York, in the year 1819. He commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Henry, of Lansingburgh, New York, and afterwards read with Dr. Burrett, of Troy; he attended lectures at the college of physicians and surgeons of the University of New York, and was licensed to practice in 1808. He first began the practice of his profession in Troy, but was practicing in New York City at the time of his removal to Ohio. Dr. Wetmore died, September 10, 1868, in the eighty-sixth year of his age. Dr. Nathan T. Bull, born in Clinton county, New York, September, 29, 1795, came to this township, with his parents, Thomas and Sylvia Bull, in 1812. Adopting the medical profession, he went, when about thirty-one years of age, to Cincinnati, and attended lectures at the Ohio medical college, of that city, having previously read with Dr. Comstock. He began the practice of his profession in Hamilton county, where he continued some six or seven years, when he came back to Clinton, with the intention of engaging in other pursuits; but so great was the need of physicians at that time, that he reconsidered his resolution. From that time, until within a few years, Dr. Bull has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine.

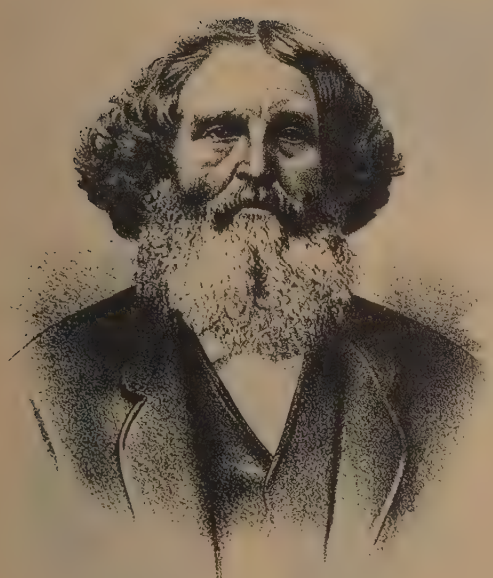
VILLAGES.

In 1846 or '47 Alonson Bull laid out a few building lots on the Columbus and Worthington road, which were bought and improved by mechanics. He did not design it for a village, and had no plat of his lots recorded. His purpose was merely to afford homes for a few mechanics, for the benefit of the neighborhood. The few houses erected, however, formed the nucleus around which grew up a little town, and took the name of Clintonville. A postoffice was established there in October, 1847, with James Ferguson as postmaster.

In 1842 Solomon and George W. Beers laid out forty acres into lots on the road, about a mile, south of Clintonville. They recorded their plat, and named the place North Columbus. The first lots were purchased by Alexander Shattuck and he erected the second house, William Carroll building the first. The first store was opened there by a man by the name of Bender. In 1859



JOHN FIELD.
("AT THE AGE OF 98.")



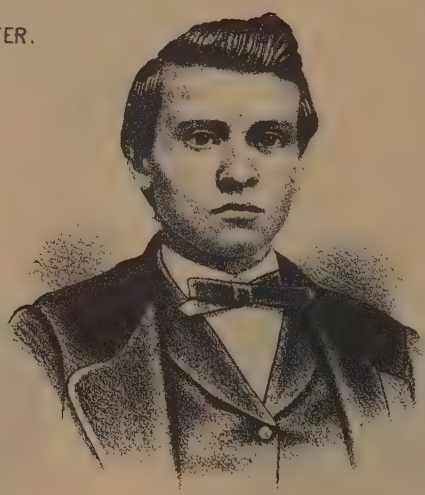
WALTER FIELD.

MARY FIELD.

PHOTOS. BY J. McCANN, WESTERVILLE, O

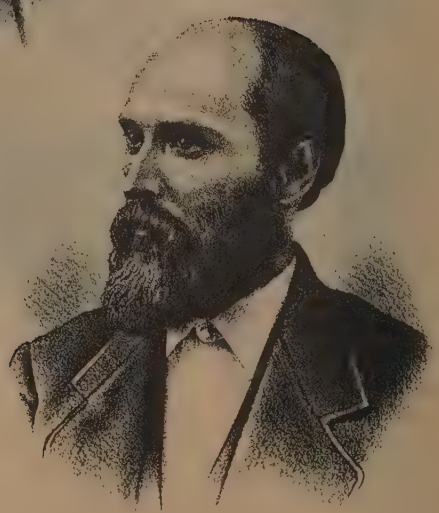
MRS. AMASON WEBSTER.

AMASON WEBSTER.



J.T. WEBSTER

MRS. ORRELL E. LEGG.



C. L. WEBSTER.

Kinnear's addition, consisting of fifteen acres, was laid out by Samuel Kinnear, and in 1870 an addition of one hundred and seven acres on the east side of the street, by George Williams. The town is now embraced within the corporation limits of Columbus.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

THE FIELD FAMILY.

Walter Field and wife (formerly Mary Ranney), emigrated from the headwaters of the Allegheny river, in Pennsylvania, to Athens county, Ohio, in 1819, where Mr. Field bought fifty acres of land, which he cleared and improved. He first came to Ohio in 1818, and selected his land. His father and mother, John Field and wife, came to Ohio the same year—1818 -and settled in Athens county, where they remained until 1826, when they removed to Clinton township, Franklin county, where Walter Field and family had removed in 1825. Here John Field died in March, 1864, at the age of one hundred years, one month, and seventeen days. His wife died in 1846.

Walter Field bought one hundred acres of land in the northeast corner of Clinton towhship, in 1825, on which he built a cabin and made a home. The land was then in its native state, covered with a heavy growth of timber, which took years of labor to remove and leave the soil fit for cultivation. After improving this land, he purchased one hundred and fifty-five acres west of his home, on which he moved in 1867. He died in 1877, aged eighty years. His wife died in 1875, aged seventy-five years.

The children of Walter and Mary Ranney Field were: Elizabeth, John, Frederick, and Artamissa, who were born in Athens county; and Zenas C., Louisa A., Jason B., Albert, and Andrew W., who were born after their removal to Clinton township. Elizabeth married Robert Barnes, and now lives in Wakeman, Huron county, this State; John married Mary Wood, in Cattaraugus county, New York, and settled in Indiana, whence he removed to Illinois, where he now lives; Frederick lives with his brother Albert, on the old homestead; Artamissa married John Fry, and lives in Franklin township, this county; Zenas went to the West, and became a pioneer in Oregon, where he endured great hardships, and took part in many campaigns against the Indians, and while engaged in this duty he took a severe cold, which settled on his lungs and threw him into consumption, from which he died in 1859; Louisa A. married George Sunderland, and lives in Sharon township, this county; Jason B. went to the West, in 1855, and has not been heard from since 1857; Andrew went to Kansas, in 1858, and in the spring of 1859 was overtaken on the plains in a severe storm, and perished.

Albert Field was born in Clinton township, August 3, 1835. In, October, 1859, he married Elizabeth Harter, whose father was an early settler in Licking county, and afterwards settled in Clinton township, Franklin county, where he made a home. Mr. and Mrs. Field have had three children—daughters—named Linda J., Huldah R., and Carrie A. Huldah, the second daughter, was married, December 24, 1878, to Taylor W. Smith. All live at home.

Mr. Field enlisted in company C, One Hundred and Thirteenth regiment Ohio infantry, August 20, 1862. He was with his regiment in the battles of Chickamauga, September 20, 1863; Wilson Creek, November 26, 1863; Buzzard's Roost, May 8, 1864; Resaca, May 14, 1864; Rome, May 17, 1864; and Kenesaw Mountain, June 22, 1864; all these battles being in the State of Georgia. During the battle of Kenesaw Mountain, June 22, 1864, he was struck in the left leg by a shell, and the next morning suffered amputation of the limb. He was taken to Chattanooga, where he remained in hospital until August 19, when he was taken to Nashville, from there to Louisville, and to Camp Chase, Columbus, September 1st. He was in the hospital fourteen months before his leg became entirely healed and his health good. On August 17, 1865, he was discharged from the service, at Tripler United States military hospital, Columbus. Since his discharge he has been engaged in farming, a part of the time in Kansas, but most of the time in Clinton township, this county, on the place he now owns. During a great part of the time, for ten years previous to his mother's death, he devoted his time to caring for her. At the same time his wife was engaged in the same duty toward her mother in the adjoining township of Sharon.

Mr. and Mrs. Field, with their children, now own and occupy the old homestead of one hundred and forty-two acres, in the northeast quarter of Clinton township.

THE WEBSTER FAMILY.

John Webster and his wife, Lydia, natives of Hartford, Connecticut, were married and lived in that State a number of years after marriage. In about 1813 they emigrated to Ohio, bringing with them their family, consisting, at that time, of two children—Charles L., and John. They settled in Columbus, where Mr. Webster worked at his trade, that of shoemaker, for a number of years. Here were born five children: Amason, Mary, Oliver, Ezra G., and Cynthia L.

The father and mother of John Webster, by name Philologus and Sarah Webster, came to Ohio at the same time, in about 1813, and settled near the center of the northwest quarter section of Clinton township, where they bought over two hundred acres of land.

John Webster and family remained in Columbus several years, but finally gave up his business there and removed to a part of his father's original land, where he bought a small farm. He died May 20, 1860, having survived his wife, Lydia, who died January 13, 1839, more than twenty years. Of their children, Charles L. became a physician, and settled in Illinois, where he died; John is a Methodist minister, and lives in Illinois; Mary married G. Weaver, and lives in Iowa; Oliver died, January 1, 1839; Ezra G. has been a member of the legislature of Illinois, and is now living in that State; Cynthia L. (Now Mrs. Ingles), lives a widow, in Madison county.

Amason Webster was born on High street, Columbus, where his parents lived at that time, on July 30, 1815. When a small child, his parents removed to Clinton township, where he has ever since lived. His youth was spent in the hard work incident to an early settlement in the woods, in clearing the land and cultivating the soil. When twenty-four years of age on the 27th of June, 1839 -he was married to Miss Mary Pinney, daughter of Levi Pinney, who settled in Worthington, in 1803. After marriage, they remained on his father's farm one year, when he rented the farm he now occupies for a term of five years. At the expiration of that time he bought the farm, of ninety acres, on which he has since had his home.

There were born to Amason and Mary Webster four children, two of whom are now living. They were: Julia, who married and died in Illinois, and whose daughter now lives in the home of Mr. Webster; Orrell E., who married Lewis Legg, and lives on a part of the home farm; Joseph Trimble Webster, who enlisted in the One hundred and Thirty-third regiment Ohio infantry, and was made sergeant in his company—he was ambitious and willing to work while his strength lasted, in consequence of which he was overtaxed with duties, and contracted disease from which he died eight days after his return to his home; and Charles L., who married Tillie N. Grant, and lives in the southern part of Sharon township, near the line.

Mrs. Mary Pinney Webster, wife of Amason Webster, was born in Sharon township, August 6, 1815. Her parents were Levi Pinney and Charlotte Beach, who were the first couple married at Worthington after its settlement. They were married on the tenth day of February, 1804, and commenced housekeeping in Sharon township, where their daughter, Mary, was born. She enjoyed the advantages of a religious education when young, and at the age of thirteen, connected herself with the Methodist Episcopal church, of which she ever after remained a consistent member. She was greatly interested in Sunday-school work, with which she was connected for nearly fifty years, most of the time as a teacher. For a number of years previous to her death, she was treasurer of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society. She was also a member of the Franklin County Pioneer association. She died July 9, 1858, surrounded by her family, and in the hope of a blessed resurrection. She left a husband, a son, and a daughter, to mourn the loss of a true and faithful wife, and a kind, loving, and tender mother.

Portraits of Amason Webster, his wife, and three children accompany this sketch, and will be found on another page of this book.

DR. CHARLES HENRY WETMORE.

The subject of this sketch was the son of the Rev. Izrahiah Wetmore, the youngest of a family of twelve children, and was born in Hartford, Connecticut, on the twelfth day of May, 1783. His mother died a few months after, and while yet in his boyhood, his father also died. Notwithstanding the loss of his parents at so early an age, he was enabled, by the practice of industry and economy, to acquire a thorough education. Entering Yale college in 1800, he completed the required course, and graduated in 1804. Here he was associated with many who, in after life, were distinguished for varied excellence in their respective public relations. Among these, his classmates, we find the honored names of Ezra S. Ely, Christopher E. Gadsden, Richard C. Lansing, John Pierpont, Henry R. Storrs, and John C. Calhoun. Having completed his preparations for the practical duties of life, he entered upon the study of law. This he did not long pursue, but abandoned it for a profession more in consonance with the kindly and generous qualities of his heart and mind.

In 1805 he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Henry, of Lansingburg, New York, at the same time teaching in the academy at that place, under the charge of the Rev. Samuel Blatchford. Continuing his medical studies with Dr. Eli Burrett, of Troy, and having attended medical lectures at the College of Physicans and Surgeons of the University of New York, he received from the censors of the Rensellaer County Medical society a license to practice "physic and surgery," March 15, 1808. After practicing his profession some months in Troy, he removed to Waterford, in 1810, where he was early admitted to the confidence of leading families, and received the warm support of many friends.

During the war of 1812 he was commissioned, by Governor Tompkins, surgeon of the One Hundred and Forty-fourth regiment New York infantry, He was, however, only a short time in active service, peace having been declared soon after the regiment was ordered to the field.

In the year 1814 he married Eliza, daughter of John Rathbone, of the city of New York, a wealthy retired merchant, who was the owner of large and valuable tracts of land in central Ohio, and whose name is even yet familiar to many persons in this State. In 1816 Dr. Wetmore removed to the city of New York, where he at once formed new acquaintances and friends, and was soon established in a lucrative practice.

His father-in-law having, as has been stated, extensive landed interests in Ohio, he was induced to remove there in 1819. On the seventh of November, of that year, he started from New York city on his journey to Ohio, in a two-horse wagon, with his wife and three young children, man and maid servant, arriving in Zanesville December 1st, where he tarried a few days with his brother-in-law, Dr. D. W. Rhodes, arriving in Worthington, at Demas Adams' hotel, on the eighteenth of December.

His first professional call in Worthington was on January 4, 1820, to the house of Jonathan Parks (an obstetrical case), and January 6th, his second call, was on the Right Rev. Philander Chase, first bishop of the diocese of Ohio. On the thirty-first of December, 1820, the following entry appears upon his books:

"This ends the year 1820, being one year and two weeks' residence in Ohio. On the thirteenth of November, removed from the village and commenced housekeeping on Rathbone section number one, in my own house, having a log house and stable, not finished, although comfortable. Family all well. Charged last year, or rather this year. $637.81."

It will be remembered that this was the day of low prices in all the various callings of life—professional and otherwise. During this year the following entries, among others, appear on his books, viz.: "Demas Adams, to visit for wife, 25 cents;" "Ezra Ginwald, visit for son, 25 cents;" "Bishop Chase, to visit, emetic tartar for son, and extracting tooth for wife, 50 cents." The bishop's residence was one mile south of the Kilbourne hotel. Other charges, varying from twenty-five to seventy-five cents, for visit and medicine, are found running through the year. In those days there were no prescription druggists, and every physician was obliged, of necessity, to furnish the medicine prescribed.

On removing to his farm he continued his profession, combining with it agricultural pursuits, and soon became widely known as a skilful and successful physician. At this early period sickness prevailed to an alarming extent throughout the country. It was not unusual, at about this period of time, for the doctor to start from home on a circuit of many miles, from Alum creek to the Scioto, from the southern part of Delaware county to the Darby plains, returning after an absence of two days or more. The road, in many cases was but a mere trace through the woods, admitting of travel on horseback only. The hardship and exposure incident to the profession had its effect upon a constitution never robust, and his infirm health compelled him to withdraw from the active discharge of professional duties, after an arduous and laborious practice of more than a quarter of a century in that locality.

Dr. Wetmore's genial, cordial, social disposition, and hospitable nature, made his home—"Locust Grove"—widely known, and a favorite resort of the educated and refined. Here he lived through many ensuing years, in possession of the richest sources of enjoyment.

On the twenty-fourth of February, 1853, Eliza, wife of Dr. Wetmore, died at Columbus. She was loved and revered by all who knew her. She animated her family circle by her cheerful and affectionate disposition. Her conversation was intelligent and instructive, and her life was governed by strict religious principle. She was the ideal of the household, and the sweet remembrance of her many virtues will be fondly cherished when she has long slept with her ancestors.

Dr. Wetmore, in his declining years, was active and vigorous to an unusual degree, and retained his faculties unimpaired to the last. He died at the family homestead, where he was temporarily sojourning, on the tenth of October, 1868, in the eighty-sixth year of his age.

PLAIN.

Plain township is the northeast corner township of Franklin county, and is bounded upon the north by Delaware county, upon the east by Licking, south by Jefferson township, and west by Blendon. It was first known as township number two, in range seventeen, and was so designated upon the maps. It is a part of the United States military survey. The fourth, or southeast, quarter was laid out in one hundred acre lots, for the benefit of the Revolutionary soldiers, who held one hundred acre warrants, and the patents issued accordingly. The north half of the township was laid off in sections, a mile square, and afterward divided into quarter sections. Section three, the southwest quarter, was patented to Dudley Woodbridge in 1800, and two years later sold to John Huffman, then of Washington county, Pennsylvania, but afterward a well known citizen of Franklin county, for a consideration of one gallon of whiskey per acre, or four thousand gallons of whiskey, to be delivered at Marietta. Mr. Huffman, in 1822, divided the land among his children.

THE EARLY SETTLEMENT OF PLAIN.

The township was first settled in 1801, or 1802, and though the soil was not regarded as the best, the population increased quite fast and regularly. This may be in part accounted for by the fact that the water was good, and the locality considered as a healthy one. There has been a controversy as to who was the first settler of Plain, most of those who are good authority upon local history, affirming that it was Joseph Scott, but some contending for the priority of settlement of a man named Morrison, who is said to have come in a very short time before. Scott, who was from Pennsylvania, settled either in the year 1801 or 1802, but in all probability the former, upon what is now known as the Caleb Farver farm, near the south line of the township, and in the southwest part of section four. A tract of ground in this locality was generally known among the early settlers, and even now spoken of, as "Scott's plains." This pioneer remained in the township for a number of years, and then removed to Union county, Ohio, where he died. Morrison settled near the northern boundary of section three, where Anthony Wayne Taylor's residence now is, and built his cabin ten or fifteen rods above Mr. Taylor's house. The broad expanse of level land in this vicinity was named after him, "Morrison's prairie."

Adam Baughman and his wife, Priscilla (Hoffman), of Washington county, Pennsylvania, emigrated to the township in 1805, and located upon Scott's plains, or prairie, in the southwest part of the township. They had two children when they moved into the township, and a number were born afterward. Their names, with those of the persons whom they married, and other information, are given in the following: Eve, died in infancy; Elizabeth lives in the township; Louisa, wife of Thomas Havens, is deceased; Solomon, who married Margaret Swickard, and subsequently Martha Arnold, and Catharine (Mrs. M. Swickard), are in the township; Mary is in California; Peter and Reuben, in the township; Abram, deceased; Levi, in Blendon. Adam Baughman, the pioneer, remained a resident of the township until his death, which occurred in 1853, and his wife until her death, in 1865.

Henry Hoffman, son of John Hoffman, who owned one quarter of the township—the southwest—came in at the same time as the Baughmans.

George Baughman and his wife, Barbara, came in 1807, and located on Big lick, but in 1812, removed to Mifflin township, and settled on Big Walnut, above the present village of Gahanna. Samuel Baughman, the oldest son of George, was married when he came to the township, to Elizabeth Hoffman. The other descendants of George and Barbara Baughman were: Elizabeth (Mrs. David Ridenour), Susan (Mrs. John Agler), Henry, David, Jesse, and Sarah (Mrs. Jonathan Swickard). All are deceased except the last named. The Baughmans were an important family in the early history of the township.

'Squire Thomas B. Patterson, also of Pennsylvania, came in 1805, and located near where Jonathan Swickard now lives. He has no representative now in the township or vicinity. One son, Hoffman, went to Illinois, and died there.

Jesse Byington, another early settler, of whose family not one is left, came in soon after Patterson, and located on what is now the Frank Johnson farm.

Lorin Hiels came about the same time as Byington, and lived in the township until 1875, when he died. Zimri, his brother, lived where Dennis B. Strait at present resides.

Gilbert and Philip Waters were early and prominent settlers. They were from Pennsylvania. Both were smart men. The latter, according to the testimony of several old settlers, taught the first school in the township. Gilbert Waters made his settlement where Nelson Wilkins now lives, but after a few years removed into the northern part of the township.

Matthias Dague, and his son, by the same name, Daniel and George Dague, emigrated from Pennsylvania, previous to 1810, for in that year the last-named was married to Mary Baughman, they being the first couple joined in wedlock in the township. Matthias Dague, sr., settled in the southwestern part of the township, and Matthias, Dague, jr., where Job Wilson now lives. Daniel settled upon Rocky fork.

Matthew and George Campbell came into the township when small boys, with their widowed mother, their father having died in Pennsylvania. This was in 1806. George Campbell married Amanda Farver. Both are now deceased. They reared a family of six children, viz.: William, now a substantial farmer of Plain township; Rebecca Montgomery, in Columbus; Mary E. Ranney, in New Albany; James, in Plain; Cicero, in Brooklyn, New York, and Sarah Jane Laugham in Philadelphia.

Previous to the war of 1812, there had arrived in the township several settlers, not heretofore mentioned, and soon after, the settlement had become quite large. Among the arrivals were: John Robinson, Jacanias Rose, William Goodhart, John Shesler, and Roger and Benoni Hill.

David Cook, and his son, Emyl, came to Jefferson township, from New Jersey, in 1811, and moved into Plain in 1819. Emyl Cook married Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Cisco, of the first-mentioned township. He is now ninety-four years of age. A son, Nathaniel, is one of the leading farmers of the township.

John Smith came from Berger (now Passaic) county, New Jersey, in 1813, and located on what is now the George Daily farm, in the northeast part of the township. John I. Smith, his son, came to the township, in 1818, bringing with him his wife, Catharine McCloud, and settled on the farm next to his father's. His children were: George and James (deceased), Archibald, Abraham, and Mary Ann (Cole), residents of the township. Archibald, the eldest son, is aged seventy-six, and lives upon a farm which he bought in 1833. Just previous to the arrival of John I. Smith, came his brothers, Daniel, Henry, and David, who settled in the same locality, which became known as the Smith settlement.

About the same time (1818), John and James Daniels came from Pennsylvania, and, soon after, the settlement was increased by the arrival of William Yantis and Joseph Moore, both from Pennsylvania. Yantis settled on the Nelson Wilkins farm, near New Albany, and Moore in the north part of the township.

Christian Horlocker, a native of Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, was born in 1769; came into Plain, in 1816, and settled on the northwest quarter of section fifteen, which he entered from the government. He was a pioneer in Fairfield county, as early as 1804, and lived for six years in Prairie township, and four years near Greencastle. Mr. Horlocker's first wife was Barbara Wagner. This union was blessed with four children. By his second wife, Mary Crites, he had seven children, and by his third, Mary Myers, nine. But one by his first marriage survives—Samuel Horlocker, who resides near Galena, Ohio. Four of his children by his second marriage are living: John, Peter, and the Rev. Daniel, in Franklin county, and William, in Nebraska. Those children of the third marriage who are still living, are: Christian, in Franklin county; Sarah, in Columbus; Anna, in Union county; David and George, in Dacotah, and Mary Jane, in Delaware county. Christian Horlocker, the patriarch and pioneer, died in Plain, in 1857. He was a soldier in the war of 1812.

Jacob and Catharine Wagner, of Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania, came to Plain in the year 1819, and made their settlement upon Sugar run. Jacob Wagner died in 1838, and his wife in 1833. They had, when they emigrated from Pennsylvania, six children: Mary A., Elizabeth (Horlocker), James, Jacob, Catharine (wife of G. H. Wagner), and Abraham, all of whom are dead except the last named. Those born after the arrival of the family in Plain were George, David, John, and Harriet. David and Harriet are deceased; John lives in Blendon township, and George in Plain. He was a soldier in the war of the Rebellion, and earned a reputation for bravery second to none. He is a man of affairs, and much thought of in the neighborhood, as is testified to by the fact that he has long held the office of justice of the peace; has served as executor and administrator of twenty-four estates, and has been guardian of ten or more children.

John Clymer, Jacob Bevelheimer, and John Alspach made their settlements about the same time as the Wagners.

Daniel Triplett, of Leesburgh, Virginia, arrived in the township in February, 1816, when the snow was two feet deep. He had traded for six hundred acres of land, and it was upon this that he made his settlement in the northern part of the township. He married, in 1817, Sarah Archer, from New Jersey, with whom he lived until his death in 1859. His wife survived him eight years. Their descendants were G. W., Delilah, and Huldah. G. W. is probably the oldest man living, who was born in the township. He has lived in one place sixty-three years. He married Agnes, daughter of William H. and Cynthia Jolley, of Licking county. Delilah Triplett married Orrin Landon, and resides in Kokomo, Indiana; Huldah is the wife of Nelson Wilkins, and lives in New Albany.

Peter Quinn and his wife, Elizabeth Cramer, came from Union county, Pennsylvania, to Fairfield county, Ohio, and after living there for two years, moved in 1820, into Plain township. Their descendants were Abram, now in Oregon; David, for many years a resident of Blendon township, but now a merchant in New Albany; Loh (Mrs. H. Parks), in Iowa; Sarah, John and Jackson, deceased; Mary (Mrs. J. Campbell), in Missouri; Sophia (Mrs. U. Campbell), in Blendon; Samuel, deceased, and Cicero, in Mfflin township.

Anthony Wayne Taylor, his wife, Melinda, and one child, John P., emigrated from Hardy county, Virginia, in 1822, and settled at the place where Mr. Taylor now resides. By his own thrift he has become the owner of upwards of one thousand acres of land. Mrs. Taylor died in 1875, and Mr. Taylor is still living. Their children were Huldah, Dora, William, Lorenzo, and Buren. The three last named are residents of the township.

Joel and Mary B. Ranney came in to Plain in 1820, and in 1826, Joel Ranney, jr., and his wife, Mary E., arrived, and located about a mile and a half east of New Albany. Mr. Ranney bought a good farm, and returning east, worked in the Portland stone quarries, to earn money to pay for it. The Ranneys had ten children, six of whom are living, viz.: Mary A. Hoffman, in Columbus; S. W., in New Albany; Harriet (Headley), in Nebraska; Emily R. (Clark), in Kansas; and John H., and Joel C., in the same State.

Frederick Henry, and his wife, Christina Kramer, came in from Pennsylvania, in 1826, and settled where their son, Jacob, now lives. Their children, in the order of age, were Jacob, Sarah Alspach, Rachel Wagner, Samuel, George, Elizabeth Alspach, Mary Newbold, and Louis.

Ezekiel Park, who now lives in Harlem township, Delaware county, came into Plain in 1826, from Hampshire county, Virginia. He married Elizabeth Crist.

Samuel Rigel, a native of Pennsylvania, came into the township in 1828, from Fairfield county, Ohio, where he had married Sarah, daughter of Daniel Hoy. For his second wife, he married Mrs. Miller (nee Wilson). Mr. Mr. Rigel is still living and is located in Westerville, where he has been for the past thirteen years. His children were: Daniel and Joseph, both deceased; Diana (Ulery), in Delaware county; Catharine (McClurg), in Columbus, and Fanny (Crist), in Blendon township.

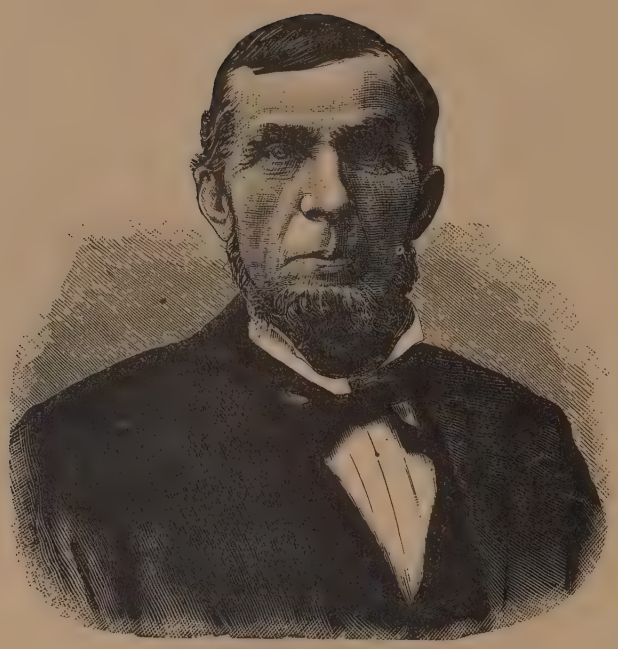
Abram Williams came in from New Jersey, in 1830. Betsey, his daughter, married the Rev. Daniel Horlocker, now resident in Columbus.

Isaac Williams and his wife, Elizabeth, came from Sussex county, New Jersey, in 1832, and located where their son, Isaac B., now lives, in the northern part of the township. Isaac Williams died, in 1862, and his wife two years earlier. Their children were: Catharine (deceased), Enos, John (deceased), Abraham, Isaac B., Elizabeth (Waters), Almeda (deceased), Alanson, Richard, Ann (Glick), and Jane (Fairchild). All but the last two were born before their parents emigrated to the township.

David Morrison and his wife, Nancy (Mann), came from Sussex county, New Jersey, in 1837, and located at their present place of residence.

John and Rebecca Robinson came in the same year as the above, from Pennsylvania. A son, George W., is a leading mechanic of Westerville, and has been located there for twenty-one years. He married Ann, daughter of Gilbert Waters, of Plain township, elsewhere spoken of.

Abraham A. and Dulcinsa Strait, of Sussex county,



DAVID QUINN.

The subject of this sketch was born in Union county, Pennsylvania, December 12, 1814. His parents were Peter and Elizabeth Quinn. In 1818, when he was but four years of age, his parents removed to Fairfield county, Ohio, where they remained two years, after which they came to Franklin county, and located in Plain township, where Mr. Quinn purchased one hundred and sixty acres of land, on which he made a permanent home, and where both himself and his wife spent the remainder of their lives.

David Quinn obtained a limited education at the schools then taught, after he became thirteen years of age. On the 9th day of April, 1835, he was united in marriage to Catharine Eyer, immediately after which he settled on an eighty acre lot, which he had purchased from his father, in the northwest part of the township. No clearing had been made on his place, and with his young wife he settled in the green woods, where they lived fourteen years, clearing and improving the land. In 1849 he sold his farm, and bought one hundred acres of wild land in Blendon township, which he also improved, and where they lived twenty-three years, when he also sold this land, and returned to Plain township. He had previously bought a brick store building in the village of New Albany, where he engaged in the mercantile business in 1871, and where he has since remained.

To Mr. and Mrs. Quinn have been born three children, as follows: Elizabeth, who married Adam Neiswander, and died, leaving one child; Sarah Jane, who married H. H. McCurdy, and lives in New Albany, and Angeline, who died when a little more than three years of age.

Mrs. Quinn died November 6, 1876. She had lived a consistent christian life as a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was well prepared for the last change in this life. Mr. Quinn is also a member of the same church. Since the death of his wife he has made his home with his only surviving daughter, Mrs. Sarah J. McCurdy, and her husband, in New Albany.

A portrait of Mr. Quinn appears in connection with this sketch of his life.

New Jersey, settled near New Albany, in 1839. Their children were: George R., now in Westerville; William D., Henry H., and Dennis B., in Plain township. Dennis B. has been county commmissioner and auditor.

FIRST EVENTS.

The first marriage of whites in Plain township was that of George Dague and Mary Baughman, July 10, 1810. George Dague died in 1871, and his wife in 1877.

The first death was that of Eve, daughter of Adam Baughman.

The first barn raised in the township belonged to George Baughman. It was built in the season of 1807–8, and his neighbors from Plain, Blendon, Mifflin, Jefferson and Truro townships assisted at the raising. Those who belonged in Plain, were Adam and Samuel Baughman, Joseph and James Scott, and Henry Hoffman. From Blendon there came Simeon Moore, sr., Simeon Moore, jr., and some of the Phelps family; from Jefferson, Matthias Dague and sons; from Truro, the Edgars and others; and from Mifflin, Frederick and John Agler, John Scott, Isaac Johnson and A. Anderson.

The first frame house was built by Daniel Triplett in 1819. It stood just north of the present residence of his son, G. W. Triplett.

The first brick house was erected by Henry Smith.

The first burial place was set apart in 1814, on land given by John Smith. It so happened that he was the first person buried in the lot which his generosity had given to the people of the settlement. Soon after the time that this cemetery, which is on the Reynoldsburg and Johnstown road, was established, another one was opened upon what is now known as the Caleb Farver farm, then owned by Joseph Scott. About the same time a regular place of burial was set off from the farm of Daniel Triplett.

THE FIRST SCHOOL.

It is known, absolutely, that the first school in the township was taught by Philip Waters, and there was but one term in seven years. The school-house was on the northeast part of the Alspach farm. There was a school-house on the Triplett farm, as early as 1821. Jacob Smith, of Jefferson township, taught there, and was, in all probability, the first teacher after Waters.

ORGANIZATION.

The township was organized in 1810, and originally included the territory now embraced in Blendon and Jefferson. The early records have been lost, and no man's memory retains the names of the first officers elected. John Scott and Simeon Moore, the latter an early settler in what is now Blendon, were the first justices of the peace. The next year Jacob Thorp, who lived in what is now the township of Jefferson, was elected in place of Scott. Simeon Moore was re-elected in 1814, and in 1815 the choice fell upon Jacob Smith and Thomas B. Patterson, the first of Jefferson, and the latter of Plain (according to present boundaries). George Wells was elected in 1817; Thomas B. Patterson was re-elected in 1818; Asa Whitehead, in 1819; John Davis, in 1820; Thomas B. Patterson, re-elected in 1821; John Davis and Abraham Williams, in 1823, and both re-elected in 1826; Daniel Swickard and Joseph Moore, in 1829. These were all the justices of the peace elected prior to 1830.

THE CHURCH OF THE UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST

was organized in Plain township, in 1826. Among the early pioneer members of the church were Daniel and Catharine Cramer, Jacob and Catharine Wagner, Frederic and Christina Henry, Rev. John and Mary Clymer, and George and Eva Cramer. Of this number there is but one living, namely: George Cramer. The early ministers were George ——, Bishop Samuel Heistand, Lewis Cramer, Bishop John Russell, Benjamin Moore, Elias Vandenmark, Bishop William Hanby, William Hastings, and John Montgomery. Two are still living—Elias Vandenmark and ex-Bishop Wm. Hanby. The church, in its early days, worshipped in the log cabin of the settlers, and in school-houses, and, besides, held annual camp meetings. The church has three organized societies in Plain township, each of which has a house of worship of its own. Franklin chapel is a large and well-built brick structure, and was erected in 1836, at a cost of one thousand, one hundred dollars. The trustees were Jacob Wagner, Frederic Henry, Ezekiel Park, George Cramer, and M. F. Clymer. The pastor, at the time the church was built, was W. W. Davis, now dead. The church was dedicated by Bishop William Hanby. The present trustees of the church are: George Wagner, J. P. Coil, Jacob Henry, Jacob Alspach, and G. F. Cummins. The pastor is Rev. S. Manger; J. B. Resler, presiding elder. The present membership is eighty-seven. Mount Pleasant chapel was built in the year 1857, at a cost of about nine hundred dollars. It is a good brick structure, well furnished. The building trustees were Martin Swickard, Jacob Swickard, and George Dague. The present trustees are John Martin, Frederic and Noah Swickard; George Dague, pastor; J. B. Resler, presiding elder. The number of members is forty-six. Rocky Fork chapel is a small framed structure, which has been used as a house of worship for many years. The trustees of this society are J. E. Park, Levi Baughman, Abraham Crist, Peter Searfass, and W. F. Park. The church numbers forty-two members. Among them are Ezekiel Park, who has been connected with the church about fifty years, and Abraham Crist, who has been a member for forty-three years. The pastor and presiding elder of this society are the same as those of the other two. The total membership of the three societies is one hundred and seventy-five.

METHODISM.

The circuit now called New Albany circuit, having but five appointments, was formerly called Blendon circuit, and embraced in its territory Johnstown, Alexandria, Reynoldsburgh, Pickerington, Galena, and Worthington It was larger than the present district, containing several circuits and stations, now called Columbus district.

Plain chapel was built in 1836, at a cost of twelve hundred dollars. The first Methodist Episcopal church, of Plain, was organized prior to that date. The early ministers were James Casper, Charles Waddell, Russel Bigeloe, Samuel P. Shaw, Nathan Emery, John Clark, David Whitcomb, James Ferree, Abner Goff, Jacob Young, Olive O. Spencer, Joseph Trunble, Uriah Heath, James Gilneth, Andrew Perkins, Andrew Murphey; and those later were David Lewis, William Porter, George G. West, Sheldon Parker, Isaac Williams, James Gurley, Alexander Mehamey, Samuel C. Riker, William Pitzger, John Miller, James Ellis, Joseph Adair, John White, J. Q. Lakin, J. and Ralph Watson. Under the administration of Andrew Murphey, at a protracted meeting of nine weeks' duration, one hundred and one persons professed religion, and nearly all connected themselves with the Methodist Episcopal church. The church has now but fifteen members, having been reduced by deaths and removals. The present board of trustees are Jacob Williams, Isaiah Needles, John S. Miller, Wellington Landon, Oliver Waters, and C. W. Williams; Isaac B. Williams, secretary.

NEW ALBANY METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

About 1805 or 1806, Joshua Williams, then living where the village of Galena, Delaware county, now is, began to preach in Plain township, at the Baughman cabin, and continued until 1808, when the Revs. Benjamin Lakin and John Grave began to visit the settlement as regular appointees. The station did not enjoy great prosperity, and no society was organized, or appointment maintained, in the neighborhood. A class was organized at Archibald Smith's in 1834, and another at the school-house a half mile north of New Albany. The class in the Smith neighborhood was composed of the following persons: Archibald Smith and wife, Mary Evans, Isaac Smith and wife, Roland Evans, James Smith and wife, and John Hughes. In 1846, the Revs. G. G. West and Sheldon Parker opened an appointment which combined the class from the Smith settlement and one from Jefferson township. They continued preaching, at the school-house north of New Albany, until 1848, when the present church edifice in the village was completed, and a great revival was held there, which inaugurated the establishment of Methodism in New Albany. The church has ever since been maintained, in a fair degree of prosperity, and at present numbers one hundred and three members. The present pastor is Rev. R. Watson. George Goodrich is local preacher. Job Wilson and Joseph Goodrich are stewards, and Job Wilson, Joseph Goodrich, George Cisco, and W. K. Evans, class leaders. J. N. Browning is superintendent of the Sunday-school. The church trustees are: David Quinn, George Goodrich, Joseph Goodrich, J. N. Smith, Homer Smith, Isaac Browning, Joseph Cisco, and Nelson Wilkins.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

was organized July 13, 1848, the ministers present being Revs. H. L. Hitchcock, of Columbus, J. Harrison, of Reynoldsburg, S. H. Rose, of Alexandria, and M. B. Starr, a missionary in this field. The charter members were James M. and Sarah Woodruff, Naman and Roxanna Case, Charles Pettit and wife, Louisa Landon, Louis Hard and wife, Matilda Stedman and Susan J. Marvin. The first officers were: Deacons, James Woodruff and Naman Case; trustees, Naman Case, Charles Pettit, Z. T. Guerin; clerk, Louis Hard. The first minister was the Rev. Milton B. Starr. The first sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered October 14, 1848. The council was organized by the appointment of Rev. H. L. Hitchcock as chairman, and Rev. Milton Starr, scribe. The present officers are as follows: Deacon, Thomas Simmond; trustees, Thomas Simmond, John Ross, Rowland Phelps; clerk, G. E. Simmond. The church has no regular pastor.

THE EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION

has a small wooden church in the northwestern part of the township. The church society was organized early in the history of the township, and its first members were Christian Bevelheimer, Peter Quinn, Daniel Swickard, Christian Horlocker, Daniel Stauffer, Samuel and Sarah Rigel, and Conrad Cring.

THE PHYSICIANS

of the village are: Sylvester W. Ranney, I. N. Smith, and A. B. Beem, the later late of Licking county. Dr. Ranney graduated from the Sterling medical college, of Columbus, in 1836, and has been in practice in New Albany ever since. Dr. Smith was born in the township, and is a son of Archibald Smith. He graduated in Cincinnati, and has been in practice in the village for over two years. The physicians who have practiced in the township are: Z. F. Guerin, Henry Goodrich (who was a soldier in the war of 1812, and is still a resident of the township), Dr. McGill, David Camp, Stephen and Charles Stimpson, father and son, Dr. Ward, Frank Brooks, Dr. Gilchrist, Dr. Mitchell, Dr. Anderson, now of Gahanna, and Dr. Holmes, now in Florida.

TEMPERANCE.

As early as 1820 there was a temperance agitation in this township, a thing quite unusual at that time in the Ohio settlements. Abraham Williams was the leading spirit in the reform. Meetings were held to test the feeling of the community in regard to the matter of dispensing with whiskey at raisings, husking-bees, etc. It was found that many were in favor of prohibiting the use of liquor on such occasions, but as the inhabitants were by no means unanimous in that decision, no definite action was taken, and at most of the social gatherings, and occasions of united labor, whiskey was furnished as in the other settlements, at an early day. Later, about 1835, there was another flurry of temperance feeling which soon subsided, however, and left, probably, a residue of good. Meetings were held, at this time, at Jacob Wagner's.

MILLS.

There is, and has been, no grist-mill in the township.

The first saw-mill was built on Rocky fork in 1827, by Daniel Kramer. The next was erected on Black lick near his present residence, by Archibald Smith. It was put in operation in 1834, and was continued in use about fifteen years. Christian Bevelheimer and Daniel Swickard built mills at later dates.

The only permanent or stationary mill, at present, in

(PHOTOS. BY ELLIOTT & ARMSTEAD.)

Geo. W. Triplett Agnes J. Triplett

GEORGE W. TRIPLETT

was born in Plain township, Franklin county, Nov. 22, 1818. His father, Daniel Triplett, emigrated from Leesburg, Loudoun county, Va., and settled in Ohio in 1816. Here he married Sarah Archer, who came from New Jersey several years previously. Before his marriage he had purchased the first section of six hundred and forty acres in Plain township, where he remained during his life. To them were born three children, one son and two daughters, of whom George W. Triplett was the eldest.

George W. Triplett, the subject of this sketch, obtained an education at the subscription and select schools of the day, and Oct. 30, 1848, married Agnes Jolly, daughter of Rev. William H. Jolly, a Universalist minister, who was among the first of that denomination to settle in the State. To Mr. and Mrs. Triplett were born five children, as follows:

Arthur, born June 29, 1849; married Mary Montgomery, and lives in Harlem township, Delaware county.

Florence, born Dec. 25, 1850; lives with her parents on the home place.

Alice, born May 11, 1853; died Sept. 20, 1854.

George, born April 9, 1862; lives at home with his parents.

Pearl, born May 13, 1868; also at home.

Immediately after their marriage, George W. Triplett and his wife settled on his father's farm, which became his by inheritance after the death of his father in 1859. He has spent his life on the farm on which he was born, and has always taken great interest in all matters pertaining to agricultural pursuits, in which he has achieved merited success. His farm of two hundred and twenty acres is well appointed and well tilled, and the home occupied by himself and family, a neat brick residence, is kept in excellent order. It is situated a mile and a half northeast of New Albany, and is well portrayed in the representation accompanying this sketch. Portraits of George W. Triplett and Mrs. Agnes Triplett, his wife, also appear in this connection.

RESIDENCE OF GEO. W. TRIPLETT, PLAIN TP. FRANKLIN CO., O.

the township is the steam saw-mill in the southeastern part of the township, owned by Martin Ealey. Beside the Brooks tile factory, this is the only mechanical industry in the township.

POST-OFFICE.

There is but one post-office in the township, and that is at New Albany. It is named Hope, and was established in 1838. The first postmaster was Daniel Landon, commissioned May 15, 1838, and continued by reappointment until April 15, 1853. The present postmaster is John W. Goodrich.

THE VILLAGE OF NEW ALBANY,

located a little south and east of the center of the township, was laid out in May, 1837, by Daniel Landon and William Yantis, each being the owner of one half of the land laid out in lots. The village had quite a prosperous growth for a few years, and was of considerable advantage to the country round about. The village was incorporated. In April, 1856, was held the first charter election, which resulted in the choice of the following officers: S. Ogden, mayor; C. S. Ogden, recorder; F. Johnson, J. McCurdy, C. Baughman, A. B. Beem, S. Stinson, councilmen; R. Phelps, marshal. Following are the officers elected in 1879: James Carpenter, mayor, Miles H. DeWitt, clerk; John Ulery, marshal; J. W. Goodrich, treasurer; E. Rice, L. Hines, Alexander Carpenter, G. D. Ulery, D. Quinn, Isaac Browning, councilmen; Christopher Horlocker, commissioner. The village is a special school district. A good school building of brick, two stories in height, was erected in 1872, at a cost of three thousand dollars. The building trustees were S. W. Ranney, George W. Holmes, J. W. Goodrich, J. J. Boston, Louis Hine, and H. H. McCurdy. The first superintendent after the new school-house was built, was R. P. Mills. The schools have at present about fifty pupils, and are in a very satisfactory condition, under the superintendency of Mr. Homer Smith, son of Archibald Smith. New Albany has two hotels, kept by A. J. Fix, and G. D. Ulery; three stores, F. Johnston's, D. Quinn's, and John W. Goodrich's. Mr. Johnston has been in business in the village since 1854. Wagon-making is carried on by Alexander Carpenter, and Zachariah McGuire; blacksmithing by Miles H. DeWitt, and Louis Hine; and shoemaking by William Johnston.

OTHER VILLAGES.

Loren Hills, and Lester Humphrey, in 1826, laid out a village plat on the Granville road, near where New Albany now is, and named it "Lafayetteville," but no improvements were made there, and the ground was, a few years later, given back to agriculture.

Francis Clymer laid out a village in 1835, upon his farm, and named it Mount Pleasant, but this, too, was a failure, and was abandoned.

BROWN

This township is bounded on the north by Canaan township, Madison county, and Washington; west by Canaan and Jefferson townships, in the same county; south by Prairie, and east by Norwich, Washington, and Jefferson townships. The surface presents the same level plain which characterizes the townships comprising this portion of Franklin county, except along the extreme western boundary, where it is cut by numerous small ravines. It has no stream of water, except Big Darby creek. This flows along the entire western line of the township, and was considered, in the early settlement, of much importance.

The soil is mainly gravel, though in some portions a black loam predominates. In productiveness, the township is fully up to the average.

Michael Sullivant and Lyne Starling formerly owned much of the land in this township.

SETTLEMENT.

The first settlement of Brown township was made along Big Darby creek, and began in, perhaps, 1808 or 1810. The eastern portion remained a dense wilderness, until as late as 1840.[1] The writer is unable to state to whom belongs the honor of having been the first settler in Brown township. Adam Blount was one of the earliest settlers. He was from Virginia. Joseph Belchey, a son-in-law, came with him.

John Patterson, also from Virginia, located here, about the same time, but, after a few years, returned to his former home.

John Hayden, a native of Pennsylvania, came from Hamilton county, in 1818, locating upon the farm now occupied by Jacob High, in Brown township, and here he died, in March, 1827. He was twice married. The children, by the first wife were: Elizabeth, David, Isaac, and Rachel, who are all deceased, except the eldest, now the widow of Dr. Rathbun, from whom the writer obtained the principal items of early history for the township. The children of John Hayden, by the second marriage, were: Hannah, William B., Nancy, Joseph, Jeremiah, and Sarah, only one of whom is living.

James Boyd, from Tennessee, settled in the township in 1820. None of the family now live in the township.

James Rinier, a native of Pennsylvania, settled in Brown township, in 1822. After a few years, he moved to Hamilton county.

Knowlton Bailey settled in the township quite early.

Obil Beach, whose wife was Elizabeth Kilbourn, came from Vermont to Ohio, in 1817, and located near Plain city, Madison county, where he died, as did also his wife. The children were: Susan, Amos, Marova, Uri, Ambrose, Rhoda, Sarah, Lorenzo, Roswell, and Obil O. and Orin O. (twins). Two of Uri's children live in Brown township—Malona C. (Mrs. John Kilgore), and Uri, who married Elleanor Downing. Chauncey Beach, a son of Ambrose, who married Elizabeth Kilgore, also lives in Brown township.

Jacob Frances and wife, Winnie Adams, were natives of Virginia. Early in the present century they settled in Athens county, Ohio. After living there a few years, the family located in Madison county, and, in 1825, made purchase of the land in Brown township, now occupied by a son, Henry. This was covered with a dense wood, but by determined and well directed effort, this has disappeared, and in its stead, we find broad acres, whose product yields a rich return to the husbandman. Mr. Francis died in August, 1840, and his wife some two years later. The children were as follows: Elizabeth, John, Sarah, Mary, Joseph, Henry, Nancy, Winnie, Hester, Jacob, and James. One only lives in the township: Henry, who married Elizabeth Hunter, now occupies the old homestead. From this gentleman the writer obtained the following names of settlers who were living in the township in 1825: George and Ananias Harris, Benjamin Morris, John Ross, and Samuel Ballinger. James Huggett came about the same time.

Abram Reece and Theresa King, his wife, were from Virginia, and came to Franklin county in 1812. Ten years later they removed to Madison county, where they lived until 1831, when they located permanently in this township. The farm is still occupied by the heirs. Mr. Reece died May 5, 1875, and his wife September 2, 1860. There were ten children in the family, six only of whom are now alive, and but three reside in this county: Robert, who married Sarah A. Slyh; David, not married, and Wilson, who married Jane Walker. All of these sons were soldiers in the Union army during the rebellion.

Henry C. Alder, whose wife was Elizabeth Patterson, is a grandson of Jonathan Alder, of whom we learn as follows: In March, 1782, he and his brother, David, were in the woods, near their home, in what is now West Virginia, when they were surprised by a party of Indians, and Jonathan, being but a mere boy (nine years of age), was easily captured. The brother ran, but was thrust through with a spear, killed, and afterwards scalped. Jonathan was finally adopted by the Shawnee tribe, and lived with the wife of Colonel Lewis, one of the chiefs. In June, subsequent to his capture, occurred the defeat of Crawford. After Wayne's victory, Alder, having in the meantime married an Indian woman, came to live on Big Darby creek. He became dissatisfied with his wife, and, after considerable trouble, succeeded in effecting a separation, when he returned to his family in Virginia, where he married Mary Blount, with whom he returned to his former home on Big Darby creek, in Madison county, and here he died in about 1850. A son, Henry, purchased in 1835, the farm in Brown township where Henry C. Alder now lives. Jonathan Alder lived with the Indians twenty-four years, and when he left them could talk but little English.

Thomas Kilgore was born in Pennsylvania, soon after which event his parents removed to Kentucky. In 1798 they came to Ohio, and for a few years, lived at Chillicothe. Thomas came to Madison county. He married Jane Patterson, and located in Canaan township, some two miles southwest of Plain city. Here he died on January 9, 1873. His wife died June 5, 1863. Of the eight children composing the family, three settled in Brown township: John, who married Malone C. Beach; Sarah, who became the wife of Jeremiah Sherwood, now deceased, and Elizabeth, who married Chauncey Beach.

John Lloyd and wife, Margaret Evans, were natives of Wales. They were married there on Saturday, and the following Monday, took passage for America. They arrived in Columbus on June 1, 1840, and the latter part of the same month, located in Brown township, erecting the log cabin a short distance from where stands the substantial brick dwelling now occupied by the family. He now owns five hundred and sixty acres of land, which he purchased in a wild state, paid for by honest labor, and has the greater part of it cleared, and under cultivation. His wife died August 9, 1878. The children were Mary (who is deceased), John, Elizabeth, Richard, Margaret, David and Anna.

N. E. Ferris who married Maria L. Samuels, located in Brown township in 1840. He became prominent among its best citizens. He died March 23, 1879. None of his children live in the township.

John Helser purchased the farm he now occupies, in 1844. His wife was Elizabeth Hendell. Two of his sons live in the township: Levi W., who married Mary Brant, and Frank, whose wife was Mary Schofield.

William Winegardner, and Daniel and Nathan Walker settled in the township about the same period as the above, and now occupy a prominent place in the township.

John McCoy and wife, Elizabeth Bell, came from Harrison county, Ohio, to Brown township, in 1849. He purchased a tract of wild land, consisting of five hundred acres in the southern portion of the township. This is now occupied by his descendants. He died in 1864, and his widow now resides in West Jefferson, Ohio. The children were Jane (Mrs. Judge Clark), John, Colmore, Jacob, James, Alexander, William, Hannah (Mrs. D. Priest), and Mary A. (Mrs. B. Carson).

Charles A. Holmes came with his parents from New York to Kirtland, Lake county, Ohio, early in its settlement. The Mormons became unpleasantly numerous, and in 1856 he sold and located in the eastern portion of Brown township, then all woods. He married Mary J. Ferris, a native of Columbus. Mr. Holmes died October

S. J. Woolley

Fannie V. Woolley

SOLOMON JACKSON WOOLLEY.

This gentleman, in some respects, one of the most remarkable characters in Franklin county, is a native of the Buckeye State, born near Zanesville, Muskingum county, on the twelfth day of January, 1828, the first son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Askins) Woolley, poor but very worthy people, to whom our hero owes many of his traits and much excellent early training. Mr. Woolley describes his mother as "not an educated woman, but a woman of remarkable natural abilities." On her father's side, she was of Holland descent, and her ancestors, including her father and grandfather, had been people of considerable substance in Amsterdam, where they carried on a large manufactory of silks, linens, etc. Jacob Askins, her father, during a commercial voyage to England, some time in the last century, was overtaken by a terrible storm, which so disabled the vessel upon which he was a passenger that she drifted for several months at the mercy of the winds and waves, and was finally driven across the Atlantic, and cast a wreck upon the shores of Virginia, nearly all originally on board having perished. Mr. Askins, then still a young man, was among the survivors, but was deterred by his dreadful experiences from again venturing upon the sea, and decided to settle in the new world, to which he had so strangely emigrated. He settled in Loudoun county in the Old Dominion, married a Miss Shafer, and after some years, removed to Washington, Guernsey county, Ohio, where he reared his family, including Elizabeth, who was the mother of S. J. Woolley. Mr. Woolley's ancestors on the father's side were English, but emigrated from the mother country long before the Revolutionary war, and were among the first settlers of New Jersey. Jacob Woolley, his grandfather, removed to Athens county, Ohio, when that part of the State was almost an unbroken wilderness, and settled upon what is now called Jonathan's creek. His son, Isaac, father of the subject of this sketch, was bred a stone-cutter, and afterwards spent most of his time away from the paternal home, working at his trade. After his first marriage, which was to a Miss Stokely, of Muskingum county, he settled on a place of his own near Zanesville, from which he removed, when Solomon was but one year old, to another, three miles from Amesville, in Ames township, Athens county, on a branch of Federal creek, where most of his family were reared. By this marriage he had several sons, half-brothers of Solomon, who, in after years, generously remembered them, as will be presently and more fully recorded. Their mother died while they were young, and Mr. Woolley, in the year 1827, took Miss Elizabeth Askins to wife. Several years afterwards, he sold the Athens county farm, and purchased another in Star township, Hocking county, where he resided for many years. Solomon was still very young at the time of the removal, but rendered all the assistance he could in the labors of the farm, and in due time, as the half-brothers, one after another, grew to manhood and went away, he took upon himself its chief burdens, as his father was absent a large part of the time, pursuing his vocation of stone-cutter. He found little time or opportunity for schooling, nine months in all, or three terms of about three months each, in the primitive country schools of that day, comprising the whole of his formal education. Until he was fourteen years of age, he had never had an hour's training in school. About that time the people of the neighborhood spontaneously agreed that they ought to have a school-house, and forthwith set about the erection of a rude affair, which was ready for occupancy within a fortnight after the vote to build it was taken. Mr. Woolley thus pleasantly describes this antique structure:

> "The architecture of this school-house did not correspond with that of the present day. It was made of round logs, with a clap-board roof, laid on loose, with weight-poles on top, to hold the clap-boards down; the floor was laid with what we called puncheons—a tree split in wide pieces, from two to eight inches thick, and hewn on one side; the chimney was made at one end, of stone, and we gathered up enough newspapers to paste over the windows, in place of glass; the paper, being oiled, transmitted a very mellow light. Slabs, or boards, were fastened around the walls, for our writing desks, and pins upon the walls to hang our hats and dinners on. Our seats were made of small trees, split in two, with the split side dressed, and four pins, or legs, underneath, making each of the proper height for a seat."

The schools kept in such buildings in those days, were of the kind, long since passed away in this State, known as "subscription schools." Miss Rebecca Prindle was the first teacher in this school, and so young Woolley's the preceptor, except his mother, from whom he had already received, as he subsequently learned, valuable instruction at home. The old-fashioned spelling-school was held by her once every week in term-time. In the summer he attended a Sabbath-school nearly four miles from his home. He was even now remarked as different from other young people of his age, preferring to associate with men rather than boys, and poring over his book at noon-time, during recesses, and in spare hours at home, rather than engage in play as the others did. He learned rapidly within the limited round of studies to which his opportunities confined him, and has since considerably redeemed his early deficiencies by persistent and careful reading, and is now fairly accounted among well-disciplined and well-informed men.

When but sixteen years of age, young Woolley achieved a notable business and industrial triumph. Through bad management his father's finances became involved, and he was compelled to borrow four hundred dollars at ten per cent. interest, giving a mortgage upon his farm by way of security. A year rolled speedily around, and nothing was realized toward the extinguishment of the debt. It was considered in the neighborhood inevitable that the mortgagee would get the place by foreclosure. At this crisis Solomon came to the rescue, and proposed that while his father should continue at his trade for the support of the family, he would undertake the sole charge of the farm (one hundred and sixty acres) in a vigorous effort to make enough to lift the mortgage. It was agreed to. Within eighteen months the full sum must be raised, and Solomon saw that with the best of management it was only possible to effect it by sowing most of the land to wheat, and that then, with a good harvest and fair price, success was certain. He had not only the entire responsibility to shoulder, but almost the entire labor to do, since his adult half-brothers had now all gone from home, and his younger brothers were too small to be of much service. He buckled fearlessly and stoutly, however, to his task. Beginning his day of labor at four o'clock, he worked three hours until breakfast, and then, with brief intermissions for dinner and supper, he he kept on until dark and on moonlight nights until far into the evening. His faithful toil, though it brought him many hours of weariness and somewhat impaired his health, met with its reward. It turned out to be "a good wheat year," and Solomon's crop—"good, well-filled grains, of a superior quality"—was the finest in that region. Wheat, too, was higher than usual, and he sold for a good price. Consequently, when the mortgage fell due, he had the proud satisfaction of releasing it in full, and presenting it to his lately burdened and anxious, but now overjoyed and grateful parents.

His first commercial venture, however—an enterprise which was taken in hand as soon as the troubles and labors induced by the mortgage were well out of the way—was not so fortunate. In the spring of 1845, he discovered an earthly substance upon his father's place, which turned red in course of burning or baking, and which, after sundry experiments, he concluded would be an acceptable substitute for Spanish brown or Venetian red. As soon as his big wheat crop was disposed of, he set about the erection of a horse-mill for grinding the stuff, though he had not the slightest experience as a mill-wright, and in his effort incurred the risk of unlimited ridicule from his neighbors. It was finished in about six months, and did run successfully, notwithstanding the unfavorable prophecies of his friends. He prepared about twelve hundred pounds of the new "Spanish brown," and soon afterwards started with it on his first visit to a large city. Taking a steamer at Pomeroy, he went to Cincinnati, and there made diligent and persistent attempts to sell the novel product. The real article of commerce, however, was bringing but a small price, and all the dealers were fully stocked with it, so that he did not succeed in effecting a single sale, and finally left the whole for sale on commission with the firm of Springman & Son, from whom he does not appear ever to have received a single remittance on its account. His first independent enterprise was thus a flat failure. Young Woolley made no complaint, but returned quietly to his rural home, where he remained, the last of his regular residence beneath the old roof-tree, during the winter of 1845–6.

The next spring, at his own solicitation, he went to Chauncey to learn the trade of cabinet-making, but left it shortly for the purpose of enlisting among the volunteers in the Mexican war. Visiting home, however, before enlistment, he there met with so much opposition that he changed his plans, and went to work for two months with Mr. H. Kanode at Logan, Hocking county. He then served Mr Alvin Finney as a laborer for a month, when he went to Chillicothe, and obtained employment in a slaughter-house for a short time. He had now got about twenty dollars ahead, and determined to embark in book-agency. Arranging with a Hartford (Connecticut) firm, the publishers of a "History of the United States," for a supply of books, he went to Cincinnati to procure the first lot shipped to him, and returning to Pomeroy, at once began his journey from house to house, in the effort to sell his wares. It was disheartening work at first, and several days elapsed before a single sale was made. Meanwhile he had revisited home, and in the neighborhood, by giving adequate security—for such was the general want of confidence in his success as a book-canvasser, notwithstanding his financial victory on the farm the year before, that he could get nothing "on time" without giving security—he purchased, on credit, a cheap old horse and the wood-works of a buggy, which he rigged up for his business, and started out again. He soon began to make sales, and rapidly reaped a tolerable harvest, selling over one hundred and fifty books in a comparatively short time. He remained at this work until the fall of 1848, traversing parts of Ohio and Virginia, and then intended to launch out more extensively into the business, but was forestalled by a Columbus firm, which secured the general agency for his book for all the western country, and effectually shut him out of the canvass.

Mr. Woolley now retired, temporarily, from the book business, but in no way discouraged by his various reverses and checks, he determined to make a bold push for the great metropolis of the country, the city of New York, to see what opportunities it had to offer in the way of business. At Kingston in Ross county, he engaged to accompany a party going with a drove of horses to that city, taking his own horse with the lot. They started about the first of March, 1849. It proved a singularly interesting and eventful journey to the youthful adventurer. He records, with enthusiastic delight, his observations of scenery, especially in the region traversed by the Alleghenies, of the towns and farming country passed through on their slow journey to the seaboard, which was reached in about six weeks. After staying at Chatham near New York, ten days, to put the horses in suitable order for market, they were sold, and among them the horse owned by young Woolley, for which he realized seventy-five dollars. He did not engage in any employment in the city, but, after investing most of his means in a lot of brass clocks and some more books, the former of which he had shipped to Fort Wayne, Indiana, and the books to Logan, Ohio, he embarked on the river Hudson for Albany. On the way thither, late at night, the "Empire," the steamboat on which he had taken passage, came in collision with a schooner heavily loaded with lumber, in Newburg bay, and sank with considerable loss of life. Mr. Woolley had not yet retired at the time of the collision, and with some difficulty made his escape to the schooner, losing all his clothing, except what he had on, but thankful to escape with life, especially when compelled to view the heart-rending scene of terror, panic, and drowning that speedily succeeded upon and near the "Empire." Albany was reached in safety upon another steamer the next morning, where cars were taken for Buffalo, and there he took passage on the steamer "Baltic" for Cleveland, en-route home. Upon this vessel he was destined to meet with another thrilling adventure. When about twelve miles out, the "Baltic" collided with a propeller, which did considerable damage, and led the captain of the former to return to Buffalo. An inspection of the injury, the next morning, however, resulted in a decision that the vessel might safely proceed on her voyage. She again put to sea, and Cleveland was reached without further incident. Mr. Woolley proceeded thence homeward by stage, receiving generous aid and hospitality, after his money was exhausted, from Judge Robison and other friends at Wooster.

After resting a few days at home, Mr. Woolley started for Fort Wayne, to sell his clocks. It was now the middle of August; the wheat crop of the year had failed, and the cholera had broken out in many places. It was, apparently, a very unfavorable season for such operations as his; and the clock peddlars, with which the neighborhood of Fort Wayne was then overrun, had already made an unlucky and discouraging canvass of the whole region. But the young speculator was not daunted, and, setting vigorously and intelligently to work, his clocks and books were soon all disposed of, in and about the localities to which they had respectively been consigned. Returning in November, he was able to make an investment in land to the amount of one hundred and eighty acres, in the same township where his family resided. He realized at least one thousand dollars from this one operation. He afterwards made a present of eighty acres from it to Isaac Casey, his half-brother.

He now, in the latter part of 1849, at the instance of a friend, Dr. T. P. Jackson, turned his attention to the then comparatively new business of taking portraits by the daguerreotype process. Early in the next year, with an apparatus and stock, purchased in Cincinnati, and only four days' instruction, received from Mr. V. L. Richardson, a Zanesville artist, at an expense of as many dollars, he embarked in this business, to which much of his future life was faithfully and successfully devoted. His beginnings were very small, however. At New Plymouth, his first point, he took no pictures for a week, but had more encouragement the second week, and then moved on to McArthurstown, where he seems to have become disheartened at his poor success, both in getting orders and in managing his chemicals so as to take good portraits, and sold his apparatus to one G. W. Pitcher. A siege with the chills and fever followed, which lasted about three months. Procuring a larger apparatus than before, Mr. Woolley started out again, and operated, with varying success, at Logan and Amesville, where he again sold out. Purchasing another outfit in Cincinnati, he took it to Virginia (that part of it now West Virginia), where he visited Parkersburgh, Harrisville, Point Pleasant, Buffalo, and Ripley, making some progress, but not yet doing very well. It was now January, 1857, and most of this year was spent in another Ohio tour. The next year he took his apparatus and stock down the Ohio river, landed at Henderson, Kentucky, and remained there and at other points in that State for several months. At Madisonville, the county seat of Hopkins county, he saw, for the first time, a slave sold, a young negro girl being struck off at auction by the sheriff. Another place of interest visited was Russellville, the birthplace of the notorious forger, Monroe Edwards. From Kentucky, Mr. Woolley pushed into Tennessee, visiting Nashville, Franklin, Lebanon, Gallatin, and Memphis. At the latter place he took passage on the steamer "Charleston," for New Orleans, where he embarked upon a gulf steamer for Franklin, in the Attakapas country. In this place he stayed but nine days, returning to New Orleans by way of the Bayou Plaquemine, and thence going to Bayou Sara, where, and at St. Francisville, Morganza, and other places in Northern Louisiana, he operated successfully during the early part of 1853. On the sixteenth of April, at Springville, Louisiana, he was initiated into the mysteries of the Sons of Temperance. He returned to New Orleans the latter part of the month, and there reembarked for Cincinnati, and the dear old home in Hocking county. A few weeks were passed pleasantly here, and, on Independence day, 1853, he started for New York, to revisit that city and see the World's fair, then being held in the well-remembered Crystal Palace, in the upper part of the city. During this visit he purchased a new instrument for daguerreotyping, and several hundred dollars' worth of stock, and returned, as from his former eastern trip, by way of Albany, Buffalo, and Cleveland, but without the perils of the trip of four years previous. He set up his new apparatus at home, and took a large number of portraits, and also operated with much success at Athens and Pomeroy. At the latter place he dropped daguerreotyping for a time, and entered upon a new and bold undertaking. Purchasing a flatboat and its load of sash for one thousand and forty-one dollars, he embarked with it, in person, down the river, having, also, two families, a small party of emigrants, on board. Dropping slowly down the Ohio and Mississippi, at times leaving the frail and uncomfortable vessel and going on to some important point in a steamer, he arrived, with his animate and inanimate cargo, after many adventures and dangers, and a thoroughly disagreeable voyage in general, at Memphis. He found that he could sell none of his sash here at a profit, but, nevertheless, disposed of a small amount at this place, and, presently, of a much larger quantity at Vicksburgh. At the latter point he sold the flatboat to the heads of the families on board.

His total loss by this venture was about eight hundred dollars, but he considered it a decided advantage to him in the long run. From Vicksburgh, he went to Bayou Sara again, to begin another tour of business as a daguerrean artist. He operated in a number of towns in this region, and on the twenty-fourth of June reached his first point in Texas, at the pleasant town of Marshall. He remained here over a month, and thence proceeded to what eventually became an extensive tour of the State, which he found remarkably profitable, and by which he far more than redeemed his recent losses. At Jefferson he sold his apparatus to a Mrs. Hargrave, and then traveled, by stage, to Shreveport, where he awaited the arrival of another instrument from New York. Re-entering Texas, he made another tour of travel and business in the State during 1855 and a part of 1856, visiting a large number of important towns, and everywhere observing men and things with his characteristic shrewdness and care. About the middle of the latter year, he returned to his father's home, now removed to a farm, fifteen miles northwest of Columbus. In August, his health having been impaired by his long and arduous labors in a southern climate, he went to New York city, to reside for a time at Dr. Taylor's water-cure establishment, where he soon reaped decided benefit. He had now accumulated about seven thousand dollars as the gains of honest industry; but aspiring to still higher rank in the profession, he took the opportunity of his short residence in New York city to learn the art of taking portraits on paper and glass, with the then celebrated firm of Meade Brothers. Upon his return, he opened a photograph gallery in Columbus, and continued in business there for several months. In October, 1857, he lost, by consumption, his own and only brother, to whom he was very greatly attached. The next month he bought a tract of seven hundred acres of land in Brown township, Franklin county, about three miles from the present Hilliard's station, on the Columbus, Cincinnati & Indiana Central railway, the same which he has since developed into the beautiful and very valuable "Appledale farm." During this year he took another professional tour through Ohio, and made a second visit to Kentucky, during which, at the State fair, in Henderson, his photographic work was honored with the first premium offered by the society. In December, he revisited Louisiana, and operated there, and in Texas, until the last of June, 1858, when he returned to Columbus, and spent some time and money in improving his new place near Hilliard's. In November, he again went south, and at Pattersonville, Louisiana, formed a partnership with a Dr. Cissna, and with him built a floating gallery, for business along the rivers and lakes of that region. This arrangement was dissolved the next June, and Mr. Woolley spent the rest of the summer in Ohio, occupying a part of it with the erection of a handsome marble monument over the remains of his brother. In the fall of this year (1839), he made more ample preparations for business, by the engagement of Mr. Asa Bushby, a landscape and portrait painter of some note, to travel with him, color pictures, and perform such other duties as his special talents and training fitted him for. With him another and final southern trip was projected, and the pair arrived at Alexandria, Louisiana, on the twenty-sixth of December, where they remained two months, and afterwards visited one or two points in Texas, when Mr. Bushby, disgusted with southern experiences, although they paid well, withdrew and returned to his home in Massachusetts. Mr. Woolley continued the tour in the Lone Star State, with greater success than ever, making in a single month, at Bonham, for example, nearly six hundred dollars net profit. This trip kept him away from home for many months, being the longest absence he had had; and he did not come north until after the great drama of the Rebellion had opened, when he took passage on the "Grey Eagle," the last boat which was allowed by the rebels to leave New Orleans for the north, and reached Columbus in safety, about the first of June. By this one trip, extending over something less than two years, he had netted about five thousand dollars.

His traveling business, now for a time over, Mr. Woolley settled down to the improvement of his large tract in Franklin county. It had originally been exceedingly swampy and rough—apparently about the most hopeless piece of landed property in that part of the country; and the neighbors scouted the idea of his being able to make any thing of it. They expected to see him "pour money down a rat hole," and prophesied that he would sink his entire fortune amid its bogs. He set resolutely to work, however, clearing, draining, planting an orchard, etc., until, by successive improvements from year to year, he has made this once forbidding tract one of the most productive and valuable farming properties in Ohio. Early realizing that an immense amount of drainage must be done, he purchased and set up a tile-mill on his own premises, which has been sufficient to equip fifteen or sixteen miles of tile-drain on his farm, as well as to fill numerous orders for his neighbors. His success in the reclamation of this unpromising purchase (made from Mr. M. L. Sullivant, the great Illinois farmer, at fifteen dollars per acre), is one of the most noteworthy features of his career, and has, of itself, sufficed to make his name known far and wide.

In 1862 Mr. Woolley determined to do something of his old work inside the army lines. Proceeding to Fayetteville, Virginia, he opened a gallery in such rooms as were to be had. The provost marshal here at this time was Col. R. B. Hayes, now president of the United States, from whom Mr. Woolley received sundry favors. Driven from house to house, however by the necessities of military occupation, he was finally forced to fit up a cow shed for his artistic operations. He remained here through the winter and most of the spring, leaving on the fifteeth of May for home. He now had his aged and infirm parents removed to his own farm, near Hilliard's, where they died in due course of nature, and were remembered by their son, by way of external honor, in the erection of a noble monument, of Scotch grey stone, standing sixteen feet high, and built at a cost of eight hundred dollars. He afterwards operated inside the army lines, at Corinth, Mississippi, having now a photographic tent of his own, one hundred by twenty-five feet in size, the largest of the kind then used anywhere with the army. He was here during the battle of Corinth, October 3, 1862, in which he lost a nephew, killed in the ranks, whose remains he had decently buried in the cemetery at that place. His health was very poor while here, and he was unable to work more than half the time; yet, by careful superintendence of four picture-rooms which he had established in and about Corinth, he cleared over three thousand dollars in this one venture. In 1863 he operated at Memphis and other points; but was compelled, by the state of his health, to spend part of this and several after years at the water-cure, in New York city, before mentioned. While on his way to Little Rock, Arkansas, in the fall of the year, he had a narrow escape from capture by the rebels—a large steamer, in full sight of that upon which he was, being taken and destroyed by them. At this place he remained until May, 1864, and cleared four thousand dollars. During the following summer, at the request of his fellow-townsmen and on the commission of the governor, he undertook a recruiting expedition among the negroes at the south, to raise men to fill the quota of Brown township. He visited many points in Tennessee and Alabama for this purpose; but the field had been too persistently and diligently gleaned, and he returned without success, but generously bearing all his own expenses, and returning every penny of the three thousand seven hundred dollars raised in the township for the procurement of recruits.

His career in the portrait business was now ended, as he supposed, and he was to give thenceforth his entire time and attention to the development of his home property. In the fall of 1867, however, his health compelled him to go to Dr. Trall's water-cure, at St. Anthony, Minnesota, to spend the winter. He took his photographic apparatus along and opened a room in that place, where it was destroyed by fire shortly aftewards. Much sympathy was expressed for him at Dr. Trall's, and offers of pecuniary aid were made, which he, of course, declined, and returned to his home the March following. His life since has been comparatively uneventful. Although an ardent and unswerving Republican since the birth of the party he has declined to go actively into politics, and has invariably refused office, although frequently tendered him, except once, when he accepted a petty township office rather than pay the penalty with which he was threatened; and he has also filled some school offices in his township. He has not spent much time upon secret societies, but was made a Free and Accepted mason in 1857, at Logan, Hocking county; and is the original granger of Franklin county, having been instumental in securing the organization of the first grange of the Patrons of Husbandry within its borders. In religion he has long been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and is fairly orthodox in his views, yet an independent thinker, with broad sympathies and liberal tendencies. He is a vegetarian in his dietetic belief; but is by no means rigid or troublesome in the application of his principles, at the home table or elsewhere. His feelings are strongly with any society for the prevention of cruelty to animals. While still a boy, he notes the killing by his shot of one of the deer that abounded in the forest adjoining his early home; but declares that "the poor thing made such a pitiful crying that I could never be induced to shoot at another." He would not rob or tear up a bird's nest, or allow other boys to touch one. Some humane views of his on this subject of killing birds, communicated to the Ohio Farmer a number of years ago, were very kindly received and led to his engagement as regular correspondent of that paper—an arrangement which was maintained with mutual satisfaction for six or seven years. He has also written much, mainly agricultural topics, for the National Agriculturist; the American Patron; the Western Rural, of Chicago; the Dirigo Rural, of Bangor, Maine; the Western Patron, of Findlay, Ohio; the Southern Agriculturist, of Columbia, South Carolina; the Germantown (Pennsylvania) Telegraph; the Ohio State Journal, of Columbus; and the Drainage and Farm Journal, of Indianapolis, Indiana. To the topic largely treated by the last named, as indicated by its title, he has given especial attention; and his writings thereon, growing as they do out of his large practical experience, have especial value. One communication of his, traversing an opinion expressed by the Drainage and Farm Journal, converted the editor of that magazine, and brough it into harmony with Mr. Woolley's views. In 1878, an essay upon drainage, prepared by him, took the prize of twenty-five dollars, offered by the State board of agriculture, for the best paper upon this theme; and it will be found printed in full in the report of the Board for that year. His writings, although devoid of rhetorical effect and making no attempt at exhibition of scholarship, have proved thorougly acceptable and useful to sensible, practical men.

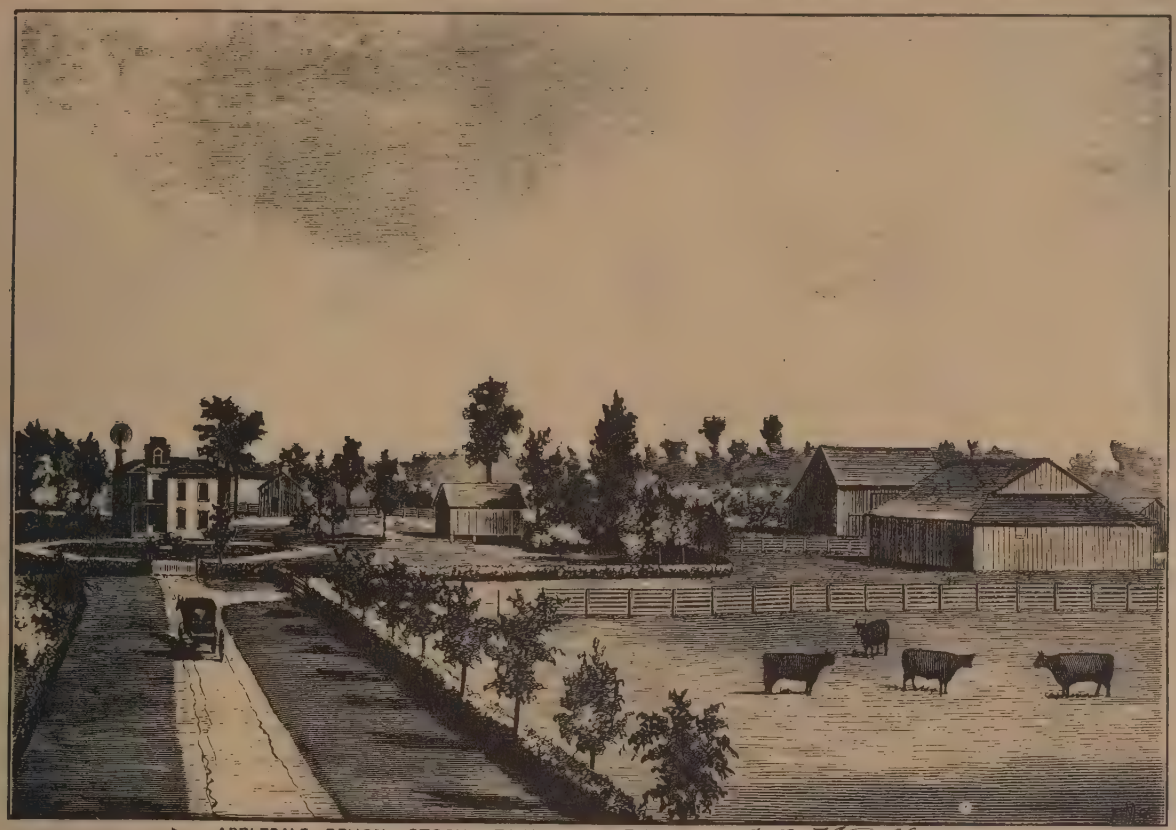
Of late years, Mr. Woolley has given much attention to the growth of Devon cattle and Southdown sheep, from the sale of which he has realized large sums. About the only designation in the way of businesss which he himself, as indicated by the return-card upon his envelopes, is "Proprietor of the Appledale Herd of Devon Cattle." With his vegetarian proclivities, he would not be likely to neglect fruit-raising; and the orchard which was among his first improvements nearly twenty years ago, with subsequent additions, is now in fine bearing condition, and is a very valuable feature of the property. It comprises about forty acres, mainly set to apples and pears, producing, of the former alone, about four hundred bushels last year.

Mr. Woolley is a quiet, self-contained man, not familiar in his manners, nor easy in the formation of acquaintances; yet he is thoroughly faithful and tenacious in his friendships. His retiring nature is not the result of timidity or lack of nerve, as his long and courageous battle with the fickle Dame Fortune would indicate, as also the following incident: About two years ago, while engaged in cider-making, the end of a forefinger was unluckily smashed. It needing immediate attention, as he thought, and disdaining to await the services of a physician, he had his pocket-knife taken out and opened by a friend, and then coolly and deliberately amputated his finger at the first joint. It healed up without difficulty, "at the first intention," and presents a more sightly appearance than most of the fingers which the doctors amputate.

His practical benevolence to his relatives is also well worth a note. The gift of an eighty-acre farm to a half-brother has already been recorded. To another he presented a farm in Union county, of one hundred acres, worth four thousand dollars; and to a brother-in-law he gave another farm in the same county, of sixty acres, held at three thousand dollars. In the later years of his parents he also voluntarily relinquished a mortgage which he had taken on their farm, to save it from falling into the hands of designing men, and handed the place over to them unincumbered.

In response to the great desire of his many friends in Ohio and elsewhere, Mr. Woolley is now engaged in writing an autobiography. It is almost finished, and promises to be a volume of great interest, not only to those with whom his own life has come in contact, but to those who desire to see the record of a life devoted to the honest pursuit of life's great ends and works, and all beautiful with generosity, kindness, and truth.

Mr. Woolley was united in the holy bonds of matrimony August 30, 1869, to Miss Fannie Virginia Cromwell, also of Franklin county, by the Rev. Daniel Horlocker, at the residence of the latter, near Groveport. In August and September, 1876, they took a pleasant trip to the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia, visiting on their way Harper's Ferry, Valley Forge, Mount Vernon, and other interesting historic points. In their pleasant home at "Appledale," enjoying the fruits of their labor, and with the promise of a serene and sunny course and ending of life, we now bid them farewell.



APPLEDALE · DEVON · STOCK · FARM. RES. OF S. J. Woolley ·

APPLEDALE TILE WORKS, S. J. WOOLLEY, PROP'R, BROWN TP., FRANKLIN CO., OHIO.

4, 1874. The children were Nancy M. (deceased), Anna E. (Mrs. James Vanschoyck), and Wilbur C., who lives on the home farm.

PHYSICIANS.

The first doctor, to permanently locate in Brown township, was John Rathbun, in 1839. Dr. Rathbun was a skilful practitioner, and a valued member of the community. His practice was extensive and lucrative. At this time but one physician resides in the township, D. H. Welling, who is a graduate of the Eclectic college at Cincinnati, in the class of 1876 and 1877. Dr. Welling is spoken of as devoted to the profession of his choice, and a rising practitioner.

INDUSTRIAL PURSUITS.

Under this head the writer finds little to record, as Brown is exclusively an agricultural township. In 1837 Isaac Hayden erected a saw-mill on Big Darby creek, the first in the township, not a vestage of which now remains. Numerous steam saw-mills have had an existence in the township; they were of the portable variety. The only manufacturing establishment now in this township is the tile and brick works, which were established by S. J. Woolley, some fourteen years since. The location is on the Hilliard pike, in the northwest part of the township. Mr. Woolley does a large business; employing twelve men, and having invested, in real estate, buildings, etc., ten thousand dollars. His sales for 1878, aggregated four thousand dollars. Mr. Woolley is among the prominent farmers in the township; his farm comprising six hundred acres of land, forty of which is in orcharding. He also pays considerable attention to the breeding of Devon cattle.

EARLY EVENTS.

The first frame house in the township was built by Henry Alder, in about 1834. It is now occupied by a son, Henry C. The second frame house was built by Dr. Ruthbun, in 1841. This is still occupied by his widow, who settled here in 1829. Henry Francis erected the first brick house in the township, and is still a resident therein. A private post-office was established here in July, 1848, and called "Darby." Joseph O'Harra was the first postmaster, though not commissioned. The office was, after a few years, abandoned, and none now exists in the township. The first store in the township was opened by Sylvester Brown, many years since.

ORGANIZATION.

The territory, as at present embraced within the boundaries of Brown township, was formerly a part of the townships of Norwich, Prairie, and Washington. It was erected a separate township in the spring of 1830, but no records are now extant showing who were the township officials elected on organization. The present (1879) officers are: R. K. Reese, Cornelius Beyer, and Levi W. Helser, trustees; Samuel Patterson, clerk; Samuel Francis, treasurer; Uri Beach, assessor; Lemuel Rathbun and A. J. Carter, constables, and twelve supervisors. Following is a list of the justices of the peace for Brown township, from its organization until the present time: Jacob S. Rogers, James Layton, John D. Acton, Paul Alder, Joseph O'Harra, William Walker; Henry Francis, James Huggett, Chauncey Beach, N. E. Ferris, John Kilgore, George M. Clover, Richard Jones, Robert Bynner, and the present incumbents, Henry C. Alder and Robert K. Reece, who were elected to the position at the spring election of 1879.

CHURCHES.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The first christian organization in Brown township was that known as the McCoy Methodist Episcopal church, in the south part of the township. This grew to be a flourishing church, and, in time, a comfortable frame meeting-house was erected. This church has ceased to exist, and the building has been converted into a barn.

WESLH CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

This is now the only christian organization in the township. The eastern portion of the township is largely settled by people of this nationality. The writer is indebted to John Lloyd, esq., for the data from which the following sketch is prepared. As early as the year 1845, services were held in a little log school-house, standing near the present church edifice, and during the same year an organization was effected. It was composed of the following members: John E. Rowland and wife, Francis Jones and wife, John Bibb and wife, and, possibly, two or three others. Services were held in the school-house until about 1860, when the present brick meeting-house was erected. Its cost was about eight hundred dollars. The trustees were: John Lloyd, Francis Jones, and Robert Bynner. A Sabbath-school was formed here, many years since, and has continued, with varying success, until the present time. The average attendance is small now, perhaps thirty. This is mainly due to the formation of a school in Norwich township, easier of access. Thomas W. Jones, is the present superintendent. The preachers of the Congregational faith who have, from time to time, spoken to this people, are: First, Rev. Dr. Hoge, of Franklinton, and, later, of Columbus, the pioneer of this denomination in Franklin county; following him—Revs. Seth Howells, David M. Evans, John H. Jones, Reese Powell, John Jones, James Davis, and Evan Jones. The church has no regular pastor at this time. The present deacons are: Francis Jones and Edward Evans.

SCHOOLS.

The first school remembered was held during the winter of 1820, in a little log cabin standing on the farm of Adam Blount. The teacher was Marantha Adams, and the children comprising the school were mainly of the families of Blount, Patterson, Hayden, and Belchy. The pioneer school-house was erected on the farm of James O'Harra. Some years later, it was a small affair. The pioneer school-house in the eastern portion of the township was built in the fall of 1840, and stood near the Welsh church. A man named Lynn taught a term of school in this building the subsequent winter. The school was made up from the families of Jones, Huggett, Evans, Roberts, Samuels, Bynner, Richards, Riggs, Rogers, Morris, Wilcox, Clover, Marshall, and a few others, all first settlers in this portion of the township. In, perhaps, the year 1847, a number of colored people formed an association for the advancement of the cause of education for the children of their race. A tract of land was purchased in Brown township, buildings erected, and a school formed. It was finally abandoned, but the writer is not conversant with the causes which produced this result. Nothing is now left to mark the location of this institution. The present township board of education are: Willson Reece, president; Samuel Patterson, clerk; Thomas Jones, John Major, F. E. Linn. H. C. Alder, and Benjamin Davis.

ANCIENT REMAINS.

Along Big Darby creek, in the western part of Brown township, there existed, in the early settlement, many evidences of that mysterious people of whom so much has been written, and so little known—the Mound Builders. On the farm of Henry Francis there is yet remaining quite an extensive mound, and toward the creek were numerous others, which have now disappeared. These were evidently tumuli, or burial places, as many human bones were found during the excavation of these works. There was also an enclosure, or fort, on the farm of H. C. Alder, esq., with two circles, enclosing, perhaps, one-half acre of ground. Its location was upon the high bank of the creek, toward which was the usual opening, found in works of this kind. It was composed of gravel, which has been removed for building and other purposes. Human bones were also found here. It is highly probable that this was a favorite camping ground for the Indians, as stone hatchets, arrow points, skinning knives, etc., were found in great number by the settlers. Mr. Francis has a number of fine specimens found here.

SHARON.

This is known as township two, in range eighteen, and is one of the townships included in the United States military district. The original township was known as Liberty, and at that time it extended for a considerable distance into what is now Delaware county. Franklin county, when first organized, comprised but four townships, of which this was located in the northeast, Franklin in the northwest, Darby in the southwest, and Harrison in the southeast. The name was changed from Liberty to Sharon, March 4, 1806, and it was finally established, with its present boundaries, March 4, 1816. It is now five miles square, and is bounded on the east by Blendon, on the south by Clinton, on the west by Perry township in Franklin county, and has for its northern boundary the Delaware and Franklin county line.

The first election, held in the original township of Liberty, took place at the house of Joseph Beaty, June 21, 1803, at which time Joseph Hunter and Ezra Brown were elected justices of the peace. At the same election Jeremiah Morrow was made the first representative from the State of Ohio to congress.

NATURAL FEATURES.

At the date of the advent of the early settlers, Sharon township, Franklin county, like nearly all portions of Ohio, was covered by a dense forest, consisting here of oak, elm, beech, maple, ash, walnut, and other varieties of timber. When these were removed, by the gradual process of clearing and burning, a rich soil was revealed, especially in the valleys of the Olentangy, and the numerous runs which help to form that stream. The entire surface of the township is naturally well drained, the land being of a sufficiently rolling nature to effect this without the use of any great artificial drainage. The Olentangy river runs from north to south through the township, a number of small runs emptying into it on either side. The eastern part of the township is drained by a number of small runs that empty into Alum creek, in Blendon township.

ORIGINAL OWNERS.

Sharon township, or at least the western part of it, was originally owned by General Jonathan Dayton, of Elizabethtown, New Jersey, and Doctor Jonas Stanberry, of New York city. It is included in the military lands, appropriated by congress in 1796, to satisfy the claims against the government of the United States, held by officers and soldiers who served in the Revolutionary war. These lands were surveyed about 1798, into tracts of five miles square, which were divided into quarters, containing each four thousand acres.

On the fourteenth day of December, 1802, a colony was formed in the States of Massachusetts and Connecticut, to purchase land and found homes in Ohio. Articles of agreement were made and signed by the owners of the land, comprising four sections (or quarters) situated upon and near the Whetstone (now Olentangy) river, in the military tract, as follows: "In the eighteenth range, first township and first section, second township, second and third sections, and third township, second section, containing sixteen thousand acres." The price agreed upon was one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

The purchasers in the formation of the colony agreed between themselves that one lot of one hundred acres should be perpetually used for the purpose of providing a school, and a lot of one hundred acres should be used for the benefit of a Protestant Episcopal church. Also, two roads should be laid out, one running north and south, and one running east and west through the tract. It was also agreed that at the crossing of these roads a square plat, consisting of one hundred and sixty acres, should be laid out and divided into one hundred and sixty lots, four of which, and those lying on the four central corners, should be given as a public square, to remain for a green or parade. One of the town lots was also reserved for a school lot, and one for a Protestant Episcopal church lot.

In the year 1804, the entire tract was partitioned off, and divided among the members of the company, each of whom received a little less than one hundred acres, with a certain number of village lots. The following is a list of the original colony, and the lots apportioned to each person: James Kilbourn, lots 93, 94, 116, 117; Thomas T. Phelps, 5, 6, 156; Abner Pinney, 54, 59, 70, 102, 127, 128, 129, 130; Russell Atwater, 30, 40, 46, 86, 90, 108, 119, 120, 121, 122, 135, 136; Jedediah Norton, 15, 41, 42, 47, 48, 49, 50, 55, 56, 74, 83, 85, 87, 92, 106, 111, 113; Job Case, 84, 88, 91, 95, 155; Levi Hays, 13, 14, 19; Levi Buttles, 3, 4, 29, 149, 24; Jeremiah Curtis; 68, 69; Zophar Topping, 1, 20, 80; Ebenezar Street, 57, 81, Nathan Stewart, 67, 99, 100, 110, 143; Roswell Wilcox, 133; Lemuel Kilbourn, 45; Jonas Stansberry, 36; Abner P. Pinney, 28; Josiah Topping, 23, 24, 53; Azariah Pinney, 44; Moses Andrews, 21, 22; Samuel Sloper, 51, 52; William Thompson, 63, 77, 82, 103, 115, 141, 142, 146, 159, 160; Alexander Morrison,sr., 2, 26, 39, 58, 72; Samuel Beach, 11, 12, 147, 148; John Gould, 18, 109; Alexander Morrison, jr., 31, 32, 33, 34, 43, 77, 114, 125, 126; Ezra Griswold, 16, 17, 61, 62, 78; William Vining, 104, 105, 123, 124; John Topping, 131, 132; Israel P. Case, 27; Israel Case, 37, 38, 137, 138; David Bristol, 7, 8, 60, 61; Glass Cochran, 97, 107, 112, 139, 140, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154; Lemuel G. Humphrey, Ambrose Case, and Jacob Mills, 9, 93, 98; James Allen, 65, 69, 96; Nathaniel W. Little, 25, 71, 75, 118, 144, 157, 158; Ichabod Plumb, 101; James Kilbourn, and others, committee, 10, 35, 64, 76, 134.

SETTLEMENT.

In the winter of 1801 and 1802, a company of enterprising men in the States of Connecticut and Massachusetts, organized a company under the name of the Scioto company, the object being to form a community of congenial tastes at some point in the territory of Ohio, near its principal stream, the Scioto river. Of their number, Rev. James Kilbourn was largely instrumental in promoting the enterprise, and he was appointed as agent to visit the west, and examine the country. He made his trip of exploration in the spring of 1802, and after traveling one thousand miles on foot through the wilderness, he selected sixteen thousand acres of land in sections two and three, of what is now township two, in range eighteen (Sharon township), and section one, in township one, and section two, in township three. He returned to Connecticut in the fall of the same year, and reported the purchase and location of the lands to the company. The following year he came on again, and preparation was made for the removal of the families who were to become the pioneers in this part of the wilderness. During the summer of 1803, Lemuel Kilbourn came to Ohio, with his family, accompanied by the following persons: Levi Pinney, Alexander Morrison, jr., Abner P. Pinney, William Morrison, Adna Bristol, E. C. Brown, and Israel P. Case. This party came in advance for the purpose of erecting cabins for the use of the colony, and also to erect a mill. On the fifteenth day of September, 1803, James Kilbourn, Ezra Griswold, with various others, and their families, commenced their journey toward the setting sun. Ezra Griswold, with his family, first completed the journey, arriving on the ground where is now situated the village of Worthington (then a perfect wilderness), on the twenty-sixth day of October. The other emigrants arrived soon afterwards. Ezra Griswold occupied a cabin on village lot number seventy-one; William Thompson, on seventy; David Bristol, on sixty; James Kilbourn, on sixty-one; Samuel Beach, on ninety-two; Zophar Topping, on eighty-three; Alexander Morrison, on eighty-two; Nathan Stewart, on one hundred; and Glass Cochran, on one hundred and one. All used the same well, which was dug on the south church lot. A school-house was immediately built on south college lot, and the same winter the first school was taught by Thomas T. Phelps. The first female teacher was Clarissa Thompson, who taught in the summer of 1804. It is a fact that the first timber cut for any kind of building purposes, in the woods, where the village now stands, was for a school-house, and the first house erected was a school-house. And as with the first settlers matters of education were foremost in their minds, and first in their work in the new country, so has it continued with the inhabitants of this town to the present day. Worthington attained notoriety for furnishing the best schools of all kinds to be found in the State, and at the present time has an excellent public school, as well as a normal school.

Colonel James Kilbourn came to Ohio to 1802, as agent of the Scioto company. He made a purchase of sixteen thousand acres of land, situated about the present town of Worthington, and, in 1803, brought out the colony of which he was agent. He was an Episcopal minister, and held the first service of that church in this part of the country. He was a prominent man in the early and later affairs of the colony; was instrumental in building the Worthington factory; kept a public house forty years or more; served in congress during 1812 and 1814; was in the State legislature in 1823, and again in 1838, besides filling various minor offices with credit. He was thrice married, first to Lucy Fitch, in Connecticut. She died in 1807, and he married Cynthia Goodale. By his first wife his children were: Hector, Lucy, Harriet, Orrel, and Byron. The latter became a distinguised civil engineer, and founded the city of Milwaukee, Wisconsin; he was also a member of the legislature of that State. His other children were: Eliza and Cynthia (twins), Lincoln, Charlotte, and James. His son, Lincoln, is engaged in the hardware business in Columbus. Colonel Kilbourn died in April, 1850.

Roswell Tuller came from Simsbury, Connecticut, to Ohio in 1803, with his wife and six children. They had three children after settling in Ohio. He remained in Sharon township a few years, and moved to Delaware county, where he was killed by a stroke of lightning. His son, Jonathan D., is the only one of the family now in the township.

Captain Abiel Case came soon after 1803. He owned a farm north of Worthington, and commanded a company in the war of 1812.

Moses Carpenter came very early, and remained a few years, when he went to Cincinnati. About 1829 he again came to Sharon township, and bought a small farm near the north line. His children were: Rodney, and Olive. Rodney lives near Worthington. Olive married a man named Cummings, and went to California, where she died.

James Russell came to Worthington at a very early day. He was a machinist, and a natural genius, and while living here constructed an orrery, to illustrate the revolutions of the heavenly bodies. This he sold in the east. His children were: Holman, James, Otis, Salome, Jerusha, and Mary Ann. The daughters married, and some of them are now living in Columbus.

Arias Kilbourn came soon after 1803. He was a hard worker, and after the factory was established worked there. He accumulated quite a large property, and owned a farm east of Worthington. Two of his sons went to the South, where they made homes. In his late years he took up the practice of dentistry, and went south, winters, to practice. His second wife was Phebe, daughter of Judge Stansberry. Both were buried in Worthington.

Judge Recompense Stansberry came soon after the Scioto company, and bought a tract of land in the south part of Worthington, where he lived and died. He was a prominent man in the country, and was appointed associate judge in 1849. In 1821, and again in 1841, he was postmaster at Worthington. Phebe, his only child, married Riggs Chapman, a merchant of Worthington. After the death of her first husband, she married Arias Kilbourn.

Jacob Fairfield was a well-known blacksmith, in an early day. His father was Jacob Fairfield, who had two sons, Jacob and John. Jacob Fairfield, sr., married, for his second wife, Mrs. Sabra Lewis, widow of Jedediah Lewis, who came to Worthington in 1807.

Isaac Case came from Simsbury, Connecticut, to Worthington, in 1804, with his family, consisting of wife and five children. Two more were born after settlement. He bought a farm of ninety-five acres, west of the river, but lived in the town, where he built a cabin, going from thence to his farm while engaged in clearing the land. He remained in the village a year or two, and then erected a cabin on his land, with no chimney, but simply a hole in the roof, through which the smoke could escape. They soon had a puncheon floor and chimney. His children were: Orlando, who married and died on the farm; Melona, who died with consumption; Pyrene, who was twice married, and died in Kentucky—her first husband was a tanner and currier, and had charge of that department in the Worthington factory; Philo, who died in Indiana, leaving a small family of children; Isaac Newton, who married Emily Vining, by whom he had two children—she died, and he married Mrs. Julia Case, by whom he has one child—and Jane, who married and died in Union county.

Samuel Wilson came to Ohio, from Cooperstown, Otsego county, New York, in 1802. His birthplace was in New Hampshire, but he lived some time in New York, and was married before emigrating. Chillicothe was the first place in which he settled, he remained two years, after which he came to Sharon township, in 1804. One hundred acres of land were bought by him, on the east side of the river, and north of Worthington. A part of it was owned by Roswell Wilcox. When he came to Ohio he had four children, and three more were born here. He died in 1813. The children were: Laura, who married John Smith, and lived and died in Clinton township; Elizabeth, who married Alden Fuller, and died at Central college: Samuel, who was in the war of 1812 for a short time, and afterwards captain of a company of light-horse under the old State militia laws—he owned the old homestead after his father's death, and died there; Sarah, who married Jonathan Finney, and died in Delaware county; Jane, who married Ozem Gardner, and lived near Flint post-office, where she died in 1869; Lucy, who married John Seller, and died in Delaware county; John M., who married Jane Payne, now owns the old homestead, and lives on the west side of the river. Samuel Wilson, sr., came from New York by way of Pittsburgh, in a sleigh: from Pittsburgh by boat to Portsmouth, and up the Scioto river in a keel-boat, to Chillicothe. The first house in that city, covered with a shingle roof, was built by him. After he came to Worthington he managed Colonel Kilbourn's grist-mill some eight or ten years. He died in 1813, and his wife died in about 1847.

Bela M. Tuller came from Simsbury, Hartford county, Connecticut, to Ohio, in 1805, and settled in Worthington. He came in November, and in the spring of 1806, bought one hundred and twenty-five acres of land in Perry township, where he died in 1831. Early in the summer of 1812 he took a load of provisions to Sandusky, arriving just after news was received that war had been declared. He remained in Sandusky, with his team, until September, when he came home. He was sick when he left Sandusky, but managed to drive to Delaware, and from there sent a message home for assistance. His son, Flavel, went on, and brought him home. His children were: Flavel, Homer, Flora, Elvira (who died in infancy), Lydia, Holcomb, Achilles, Aurelius and Elvira.

Flavel Tuller came with his father in 1805, then ten years of age. When seventeen years old, in 1812, he went as teamster in the quartermaster's department, where he remained some three months, conveying provisions and supplies from Urbana to the army, under General Tupper. His early education was obtained in Worthington.

where he studied for a time in Bishop Chase's school. In 1832 he married Lucinda Holcomb, by whom he had eight children: Franklin F. and Homer (twins); Henry who died in 1834; Susan, Lucinda, and Henrietta. Before his marriage about 1816, he built two boats on the Olentangy, which he loaded with produce, cheese, potatoes, butter, pork, etc., and floated them down to the Mississippi river, when he sold them, bringing, up finally, at Natchez, Mississippi. About three years after his first venture he built another boat, which he took directly to Natchez, and there disposed of his entire stock. About 1822 he engaged in business in Worthington with his brother, Homer, remaining with him until about 1860. Together they built the first distillery in Perry township. The first year they did not do much business, but the second year they commenced before the Christmas holidays, and worked, almost continuously, one hundred days and nights, sleeping in their clothing. They cleared, at this time, about fifteen hundred dollars. In 1826 Mr. Tuller started a packing-house for pork, which he operated for about ten years. When in business in Worthington, they procured their goods by way of Baltimore and Wheeling in wagons; afterwards by wagon from Sandusky, until the canal was completed, when they were sent to Columbus. He has in his family a Bible that was sunk in Lake Erie in November, 1838, when the schooner "Toledo" went down. It was recovered, with other goods during the same season. Mr. Tuller held an office in the old State militia. He now lives with his son, Franklin, in Worthington, aged eighty-four years.

Homer Tuller, brother of Flavel Tuller, was his partner in business for many years. He married Ann Eliza Kilbourn. Flora, a sister, married Treadwell Moore, and moved to Wooster, where she died. Lydia married James E. Woodbridge, and moved to Mt. Union, where she died. Holcomb married Jane Woodruff, and settled in Dublin, where she died. Achilles died at Mt. Vernon, Indiana. Aurelius died young. Elvira married R. W. Shawhan, and lives in Tiffin.

Mr. Chapman came very early, and settled on the west side of the river, some three miles north of Worthington. He had a large family, consisting of Ridge, Polly, Sally, Albert, Lucinda, Lucius, Harriet, and Sylvia. His son, Albert, is a physician at Dublin.

Josiah Fisher came about the same time as Chapman, and owned a tract of land adjoining him, which he cleared and improved. His wife died there, and he sold his land and moved to Illinois. Dr. Timothy Fisher, his son, lives at Marion.

Mr. Starr came early, and settled north of Vining, in the north part of Sharon township, on the west side of the river, where he died. His widow married a man who worked for them, and afterwards sold the farm, and removed to near Carey, Ohio. One of the family still lives there.

Charles Thompson came from Massachusetts in about 1806, when about twenty years of age. His father, Judge William Thompson, came at the same time, and settled a mile north of Worthington. They remained on this land, clearing and improving it, until 1817, when Charles Thompson married Orill Morrison, and moved to a tract of land owned by his father, in Delaware county. He remained there but about six months, when he returned to his father's, and worked with him about two years. He then moved to a farm a mile further north, where he lived the remainder of his days. Their children were Pamelia, William, Henry, Catharine, Harriet, and Mary. Pamelia married Louis Johnson, and lives at the old homestead; Catharine married Christopher Calkins, and died in Delaware county; Harriet married Horatio Wright, and died in Worthington; Mary is engaged in the millinery business in Worthington; William died when a child.

Jonathan Park came to Ohio from Bernardston, Franklin county, Massachusetts, in 1806. He first settled, with his family, in the Rogers settlement, on the west side of the river. He remained there about one year, when he moved to Middlebury, in what is now Liberty township, Delaware county, where he remained several years, finally returning to Sharon township. He bought a farm of one hundred and fifty acres, east of Worthington, where he built a cabin, and improved his land. In 1865 he moved into Worthington, where he died the same year. His wife died in 1878. Their children were: Rodney J., who lives in Missouri; Hulburt H., in Rock Island county, Illinois; William S., in Worthington, where he has a farm —he is also part owner of the Miami Powder works, at Xenia, Ohio; Sophia A. who lives in De Kalb county, Illinois; Sylvia M., who lives in Greene county; and Juliette, who was the youngest child.

Moses Maynard emigrated to Ohio, from Massachusetts, in 1806, with his family, consisting of eight children, as follows: Eber, Asa, Joel, Achsa, Moses, Electa, Apollos, and Lovisa. Mrs. Maynard died before he came west. He purchased two hundred acres of land from Nathan Stewart, besides several town lots in Worthington. Eber, his son, married in Massachusetts, and after settling here, went back after his wife. He worked with his father on the farm, and died there. Asa never married, and for many years taught school. Joel died when a young man. Achsa married Orange Johnson in 1814, and settled in Worthington. In 1863 they moved to Columbus, where he died in 1876. She lives with her daughter, Mrs. F. C. Sessions. Moses, jr., married and died in Worthington. Electa died young. Apollos died south of Worthington. Lovisa married Potter Wright, and died in Worthington.

Samuel Abbott came about the same time as Starr, and bought two hundred acres of land, near the north line of the township. This property he sold, and moved to Worthington, where he served as justice of the peace in 1820. A son, James, is engaged in the hardware business in Columbus. Another son lives in Washington city. Squire Abbott died in Worthington: his eldest son died near Granville, and his youngest died in California.

Jedediah Lewis came from Westfield, Massachusetts, with the Granville company, in 1806, with his family. He remained at Granville but a few months, when he removed to Worthington, where he built a saw-mill on the Olentangy. This mill he run for a short time, and died nine months after his settlement here. He built a cabin of buckeye logs when he first came, and for several years green sprouts and leaves started from the logs. Following are the names of his children: Elias, Prudence, Martin, Lucy, Eliza, and Jedediah. Immediately after her husband's death, Mrs. Lewis caused a frame building that he had erected near the river, to be moved into the village, on the lot now owned by Dr. Jedediah Lewis, in which the family lived many years. It was torn down in 1878. Mrs. Lewis afterward married Jacob Fairfield, sr. Of her children: Elias lives in Worthington; Prudence, a widow, in Virginia; Martin, a physician in Louisville, Kentucky; Lucy, a widow, in Columbus; Ezra, who died in Xenia; and Jedediah, who studied medicine in the Worthington medical college in 1840, and now lives in Worthington. He has practiced medicine in Indiana and Kentucky, and is now practicing here.

Elias Lewis was born in Lyme, Connecticut, and came to Worthington with his father's family in 1806. His father died in 1807, and on Elias fell the care of the family. He supported the rest of the children and his mother until 1820, when he married Martha Wiley, by whom he had three sons and two daughters. His wife died in 1853, and in 1857 he married Eliza Paramore, by whom he had one son. His second wife died in 1866. Mr. Lewis learned the trade of brick-laying and plastering, and followed that business for thirty years. He built the chimneys and plastered Bishop Chase's house, in about 1820 or 1821, Salmon P. Chase carrying the brick and mortar he used. During the building of the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & Indianapolis railroad, he had charge of a gang of men in constructing ten miles of the road bed. On the completion of the road he ran an omnibus from Worthington to Columbus, and aften ten years continued the same line from Worthington village to the railroad station, and operates it now.

Stephen Maynard came to Ohio with the Granville company in 1807, and aoon afterward bought land on the west side of the Olentangy, his farm extending to the river. His children were: Stephen, Joshua, Samuel, Nathan, James, and two daughters, Thankful and Betsey. All married and settled in this vicinity, but none now reside here.

Potter Wright came to Ohio in charge of machinery for a cotton-mill, which belonged to W. Webb, but for some reason it was not put in operation here, and was shipped to Coldrain. Mr. Wright came back to Worthington, where he worked in the factory for a time. In about 1823 he erected a building, and put in a carding-machine and a cloth-dresser. He also started a blacksmith shop, and manufactured machinery for making woolen cloth. He continued at this business until 1852 or 1853. He married Louisa Maynard, a daughter of Stephen Maynard, and raised a family of eight children. He died in 1855, and his wife died some years later. Two of their children live in Illinois. Horatio owns a farm near Worthington, and lives in the village. H. W. lives in the east part of the town, where he has a saw-mill. He also owns a farm. Cynthia lives at the old home in Worthington. James P. is engaged in the mercantile business in the same place.

Deacon Goodrich came from Connecticut about 1807, and settled in the north part of the village of Worthington. His children were Bela, John, Levi and several others. Mr. Goodrich was well along in years when he came to Ohio, and lived with his son, John, who opened a store in the north part of town. He afterwards sold his business, and moved to Texas. The other children moved to other parts.

Isaiah Wallace came very early, but at what date is not known. His son, Norman Wallace, was a drummer in the war of 1812. All moved from here many years ago.

Stephen Hoyt was an early settler, and one of the first blacksmiths in Worthington.

Orange Johnson came from Mansfield, Connecticut, to Ohio in 1813. His business there was the manufacture of combs, and the expense of his journey was met on the road by the sale of this article of merchandise. He engaged in the manufacture of combs in Worthington immediately after his arrival, working in an upper room of Col. Kilbourn's hotel, where he continued until 1814, when he married Achsa Maynard. After marriage he removed his shop to his house, and continued there until 1816, when he erected a brick building for his manufacturing business. He worked at this until 1827, and did a good business, accumulating some property. When he commenced in Worthington, his capital amounted to sixteen dollars and fifty cents. In 1827 he gave up this business, and was one of the incorporators of the Columbus and Sandusky turnpike. Col. Kilbourn was also one of the incorporators, and surveyed the road. Mr. Johnson was one of the leading commissioners, and principal agent of the company from first to last. The road was eight years in building, and while connected with it, Mr. Johnson accumulated a handsome property. At the same time he owned and managed a farm near Worthington. He, with two others, made the first survey for the railroad from Columbus to Xenia. He moved to Columbus in 1862; was for many years a director of the old Clinton bank, and afterwards a director of the Franklin State and National bank. He erected the Johnson and the Sessions blocks in Columbus, and died there in 1876. His daughter married F. C. Sessions, of Columbus, and her mother passes her declining years with them.

Dr. Starr came very early, but did not practice medicine here. James, his son, owned a tract of land north of town, which he sold, and then removed to Texas.

Deacon Abbott was an early blacksmith in Worthington. He was a prominent member and deacon in the Presbyterian church, and owned a farm north of town. When well along in years, he went to Granville, and died there at the residence of his son. His remains were brought back to Worthington for interment.

Milton Green came from Vermont, about 1812, and worked at carpenter work in the Worthington factory while it was in operation.

William Page worked in the factory, about 1816, in the cloth fulling department.

Joseph Poole came from New York, quite early, and had a farm well cleared, near where Flint post-office now is, in 1817. He was a hard worker, and was the father of ten children: Simeon, Abijah, Joshua, Thomas, Joseph, and five daughters, one of whom married Marcus Cole, and one married a man named Higgins. None of the family now live in this vicinity.

Chester Griswold came to Ohio from Sackett's Harbor, New York, but at what date is not known. He was employed in the Worthington factory, as book-keeper, and when the business was suspended he left this part of the country.

James Starr owned a farm north of Worthington, quite early, but where he went from here is not now known.

Berkley Comstock came to Ohio, from Vermont, very early, bringing with him his wife, and settled about two miles north of Worthington, and went from home as a soldier in the war of 1812; his wife died about the time of the close of the war, and he married Margaret Dixon, and raised a large family. Rodney, his son, lives on the old farm; James lives near Worthington, and Theodore, in Columbus.

Richard Dixon, a native of Ireland, was an early settler. He came before 1812, and worked in the factory at Worthington after it was established. A daughter married Milton Geer, who was also a native of Ireland, and came to Ohio with her father. Another daughter, Margaret, married Mr. Comstock.

Ira Kellogg came to Ohio very early, and was one of the first mail carriers from the region of Darby creek to Worthington.

Mrs. Cynthia Barker, came with her husband in an early day—about 1810. He died, and for many years she was a school teacher here and in the vicinity.

Rev. Henry Matthews was a well-known local Methodist preacher in this section, in an early day. Mathew Matthews, a brother, was connected with the Worthington factory. Another brother, Vincent, was a brick-mason. There were other members of the same family—Hiram and Harvey, and several sisters. Their father died here.

Mr. Harrington was an early settler, who went as a soldier in the war of 1812, and died when on his return, and nearly home, leaving a widow.

John Snow came to Ohio in 1814, from Providence, Rhode Island, and settled in Worthington with his family. Here he engaged in the drug business, at which he continued until his death, in 1852. There were three children: William T., George R., and John H., the latter of whom died in New Orleans in 1832. Mr. Snow was a very prominent Free Mason, and became the first grand master of the fraternity in Ohio. To him and Thomas J. Webb belongs the credit of systematizing the work of the craft in Ohio and the west. At one time he held the third office in the grand chapter of the United States, which met in New York, and also held the second office in the grand encampment of Knights Templar in the United States. As grand master of the State of Ohio, his jurisdiction extended throughout the west and south, in which the charters of many lodges bear his signature.

Demas Adams came to Worthington previous to 1816. He married a daughter of Colonel James Kilbourn, and was an assistant in the factory or store.

Stephen M. Frothingham settled in Worthington before 1816. He was a machinist, and after coming here engaged in the manufacture of carding-machines. He had a shop, in which he carried on this business several years. Ebenezer, his brother, came about the same time. He was a clothier, and worked in the factory.

Obediah Benedict was a blacksmith in Worthington in 1816.

Asa Weaver owned a farm west of town in an early day. His house was in the village.

William Thrall was a blacksmith in the factory.

Eliphalet, Peter, Samuel, and Brooks Barker were early comers, and lived in Worthington many years. Samuel and Peter were carpenters, and worked at that business.

Nathan Mason was an excellent machinist. He came from Providence, Rhode Island, in about 1814, and worked in the machinery department of the Worthington factory. When he came here he was single, but married Sally Wiley, by whom he had one daughter.

A man named Cole was an early settler. He was a graduate of an eastern college, and for many years was a school teacher in this vicinity. He went east, where he died. Many of his descendants now live in Franklin county.

Bishop Philander Chase came to Ohio in 1817, and settled in Worthington, where he purchased five lots, besides a farm of one hundred and fifty acres, south of the village. His farm had about sixty acres of land cleared and fitted for cultivation, and cost him two thousand and fifty dollars. The year he arrived he was appointed principal of the Worthington academy, and at the same time preached at the same place, and conducted the services of the Episcopal church. He soon had five parishes on his hands, and gave up his principalship of the academy. The first convention of the Episcopal church in Ohio was held in Columbus, in January, 1818, of which he was president. On June 3, 1818, the convention again assembled, at Worthington, and at this meeting, Rev. Philander Chase was elected the first bishop of the Episcopal church in Ohio. He was consecrated to his high office, in Philadelphia, February 11, 1819. On Sunday, June 6, 1819, he confirmed seventy-nine persons. His parochial district comprised Delaware, Berkshire, Columbus, and Worthington. He established a school at his house, where he erected such buildings as he could, about 1818. This he continued under many disadvantages for a number of years. His son, Rev. Philander Chase, jr., taught with him. He was also a teacher in the old college building. In the spring of 1823 it was proposed that an Episcopal college be established in Ohio to educate men for the ministry. Bishop Chase went to England to raise funds to build a college, and returned in the fall of 1824. In June, 1825, the trustees of the Ohio theological seminary met at Zanesville, and the same month the convention located the seminary at Worthington. Bishop Chase continued this school at his own house until 1826, when he made arrangements to purchase a tract of land in Knox county, where the seminary was, eventually, permanently located. At this time he had thirty students at his own house, under the instruction of his son, Philander. On September 9, 1831, he resigned the episcopate of Ohio, and the presidency of the seminary. He soon after removed to Illinois, where he was again elected bishop, in 1835. He established a college in that State while administering his episcopal duties.

Salmon P. Chase came to Ohio, to live with his uncle, Bishop Chase, in 1820, when but twelve years of age. He did chores about the farm, drove the cows to pasture and home again, took grain to the mill, and was kept busy when not in school. He once received instructions from his uncle to kill and dress a pig, which was to be roasted for dinner; he knew how to go to work to kill and scald the diminutive porker, but either the water was too hot, or he left the pig in too long, for when he expected to remove the bristles easily, he could hardly pull out one at a time; he was aware that the pig must be ready in time for dinner, and bethought himself of his cousin Philander's razor, which he procured, and with which he neatly shaved the pig. The job was well done, and reflected credit on the barber, but was bad for the keen edge of the razor. Salmon was also accustomed to ride a horse belonging to 'Squire Chas. E. Burr, the same animal being a favorite with the college professors, and others; he found that by sticking his heels in the sides of the horse, it would resent the indignity by kicking. He enjoyed the fun, and continued it until the horse would kick everything behind him, and could not be used for any purpose. Salmon lived with his uncle from June, 1820, until November, 1822. Mr. Elias Lewis, of Worthington, now in his eighty-third year, when a brick-layer, had Salmon P. Chase for a mortar-carrier, and speaks with pride of the fact that a man who, afterwards became governor of Ohio and chief justice of the United States, once carried mortar him.

Ozem Gardner came from Otsego county, New York, to Ohio, in 1817, then not quite twenty-one years of age. Some two or three years after his settlement he bought a parcel of land three miles north of Worthington, exchanging land in Lewis Center for it, with a man named Conine. He has since added to his purchase. There were several cabins, and something of a clearing, when he purchased. For five or six years he lived with Mr. Comstock, a mile south of his place, at the same time clearing and improving his land. One season he burned brick on Mr. Thompson's land, near Mr. Comstock's, and three seasons burned brick at Worthington. In 1823 he married Jane Wilson, and commenced house-keeping on his own place. They raised eight children: Harriet, Joseph, Samuel W., Ozem B., Lucy J., Leonidas H., Paryntha, and Althina. One child died in infancy; Harriet married John Potter, who owns a nursery on the adjoining farm; Joseph lives in Geneva township, Delaware county; Samuel is a merchant in Columbus; Ozem B. was chaplain of the thirteenth Kansas infantry, and was captured by bushwhackers, and shot, at Cabin creek, Arkansas; Jucy J. died; Leonidas lives on a part of the home farm; Paryntha married John De Witt, and lives in Morrow county; Althina lives at home, unmarried, and cares for her aged father. Mrs. Gardner died in 1869. Ozem Gardner was an original abolitionist, and his house was an asylum for many fugitive slaves. It was a station on the "under-ground railroad," from slavery to freedom. He has assisted more than two hundred fugitives on their way, in all weathers and at all times of day or night. No slave hunters ever came to his house, and no slave once in his care was ever captured. He used to conduct them to Eden, in Delaware county, or to the Quaker settlement; sometimes up Alum creek, to another friendly station.

John Bishop emigrated from Poughkeepsie, New York, to Ohio in 1817, and made a settlement in Blendon township, purchasing land on which now stands the village of Westerville. He brought his family, consisting of wife and children, who were: John, William, Walter, Sarah, Esther, Angeline, and Elizabeth. His children married and settled elsewhere, and his wife died. In old age he came to Sharon and lived a few years, until his death, with his son, William.

William Bishop came to Ohio from Poughkeepsie, New York, in 1818, and became an apprentice to a saddler in Worthington. After learning his trade he married Charlotte Wolcott, of Granville, and opened a saddler's shop in Worthington, where he continued until about 1850, when he commenced keeping hotel in the same place. He continued in the hotel until 1864. His first wife died, and he married Mrs. Nancy Stickney, who survives him. They had one son, Frank W., who is the present postmaster of Worthington, as well as township clerk. His children by his first wife were: Celia, Erville, Edward, Luella, and three who died in infancy.

Ozais Burr came from Bridgeport, Connecticut, to Ohio, in 1818, bringing with him his family, consisting of a wife, eight sons and one daughter. He purchased two hundred and sixty acres of land, a mile north of Worthington, on the pike, from Squire Nourse and another man. There were four cabins on the land, and a partial clearing of some forty-five acres, when he took possession of it. He still further improved it, and built a framed house and barn soon after his arrival. His children were: Philo, who is in the treasury department at Washington city; Jonathan N., who is a physician, at Mount Vernon; Charles E., who owns a farm of one hundred and twenty acres of the old homestead; Erastus, who is an Episcopal clergyman in Portsmouth; George C., who moved to Illinois, where he died; Levi J., who lives in Jackson, Michigan, where he is engaged in the mercantile business; William Henry, who went to the Mexican war and never returned; Catharine, who married Rev. Mr. Ufford, of Delaware, Ohio, and died in Iowa, from cholera; and Philander, who is a merchant in Worthington, Indiana.

Rev. Uriah Heath was assigned to Worthington, by conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, in 1839 and 1840. He was largely instrumental in founding the female seminary of the Methodist church in Ohio, during FLAVEL TULLER.

The parents of the subject of this sketch were, Bela M. Tuller, born June 19, 1773, and Lydia Holcomb, born June 19, 1776; both natives of Simsburg, Hartford county, Connecticut, where they were raised, and where they were married on the fifth of November, 1794. After marriage they remained in the neighborhood of their home, where they had five children. In the fall of 1806, the family removed to Ohio, and in the latter part of October joined the colony of eastern people at Worthington, near which place they remained until the following March, when Mr. Tuller bought one hundred and twenty-five acres of land in the township of Perry, and some two miles west of Worthington. On this land was a log cabin, a log barn, and a partial clearing of some twenty-five acres. Hard labor was yet to be done to prepare the land for cultivation; but a strong constitution, backed by an iron will, soon forced the mighty forest to give way, and it was not many years ere there was a large clearing and abundant crops growing on the hitherto uncultivated soil. In this log cabin home in the woods were born other children, four in number, making a family of nine members besides the parents. The children were: Flavel, Homer, Flora, Elvira (who died in infancy), Lydia, Holcomb, Achilles, Aurelius, and Elvira, the second.

Flavel Tuller, the subject of this sketch, was born in Simsburg, Connecticut, December 7, 1795, and was nearly eleven years of age at the time the family settled in Ohio. The duties of a man fell to him very early in life, and he soon did his part toward providing for the necessities of the family. The land on which their home was located was on the main road to Sandusky, and as they were soon enabled to raise grain and stock to sell, a ready market was found at their own door, where emigrants were glad of an opportunity to provide themselves with supplies. In 1812, Bela M. Tuller sold a load of flour and agreed to deliver it at Sandusky, where he arrived in safety immediately after the receipt of information that war had been declared with England. As teams were needed to work on the fortifications, he was detained until September, when he became sick and was allowed to return to his home. On his arrival in Delaware he was so ill as to be unable to proceed to his destination, and word was sent to his son, Flavel, who went to him, and conveyed him to his home. He never recovered from the effects of this sickness, and died in 1821.

Flavel Tuller engaged as a teamster, in conveying supplies from Urbana to the advance posts of the army, in the war of 1812, in which service he continued three months. He then returned to his home, where he remained until he became of age, soon after which, with his brother, Homer, he built a distillery on their farm. The first season they run this business they made nothing, but the second season they cleared some fifteen hundred dollars, after which they disposed of the business. The man to whom they sold was unable to pay for the property, and to cancel his debt sold them his farm. Both were hard-working, frugal, and honest young men, and it was not long before they had a reputation for fair dealing, that gave them almost unlimited credit among men of property. As they were able they bought land, until they were possessed of considerable real estate, which increased in value as the country became settled. All was not fair sailing, for they sometimes met with losses; but in the end perseverance gained the day, and they found themselves in the way to secure a competence.

Sometime after disposing of their distillery business, Flavel and Homer Tuller engaged in mercantile business, at Worthington, where they continued some twenty years, when they closed out their stock, and entered into the work of slaughtering and packing pork. They labored at this for some years, when they closed their labors in this direction, and transported two loads of pork and provisions down the river, to the vicinity of Natchez, Mississippi, where the cargo was disposed of.

On the twenty-sixth day of January, 1832, Flavel Tuller was married to Mrs. Lucinda Holcomb, daughter of William Webster. To them were given four children: Franklin F., and Henry Homer (twins), the latter died in infancy; Susan Lucinda, who married H. H. Hall, and now lives in Ashtabula; Henrietta S., married Horace W. Wright, and lives in Worthington. Franklin F., the eldest son, married Eliza J. Foster, by whom he had three children. She died September 15, 1879, at the early age of thirty-four years.

Flavel Tuller has resided in Worthington, where he has managed his various enterprises these many years, and now, in the eighty-sixth year of his age, lives with his son, Franklin F. Mrs. Tuller, wife of Flavel Tuller, died at their home, October 30, 1875.

these years. The last work he did in Worthington was to plant the shade trees in the public square, now the pride of the town. He was a man of progressive ideas, and wished to see improvements carried on. To his great disappointment, just as the seminary was being established, he was removed from his charge to Zanesville, in 1842. In 1862 he was again stationed at Zanesville, and died there from a stroke of apoplexy. At Zenia, in 1831, he was married to Mary Ann Perkins, by whom he had seven children. One of them, Louisa, is the wife of James P. Wright, and lives in Worthington.

EARLY EVENTS.

The first regularly recognized religious society was the Protestant Episcopal, which was organized in the winter of 1803–4. It was incorporated as a church in 1806–7. The first house for public worship was built by the Methodists in 1823. The first marriage took place on the tenth day of February, 1804. The ceremony was performed by Thomas Stephens, esq., of Franklinton, in the log school-house at Worthington. The persons united in marriage were Abner P. Pinney and Miss Polly Morrison, and Levi Pinney and Miss Charlotte Beach. Every person then living in the place was supposed to be present. The first justice of the peace was Ezekiel Brown, who was elected in 1803, while what is now Sharon township was a part of Liberty township. James Kilbourn was the second justice, he, also, being elected before Sharon was set off. The first militia officers were: James Kilbourn, captain; Aaron Strong, lieutenant; Abner C. Pinney, ensign. The first brick house was built by James Kilbourn, in 1804. It is still standing near the main street, on the southwest corner of the public square, and is at present owned and occupied by —— Wells, esq. The first frame house was erected by Ezra Griswold, in 1805. The building of the Protestant Episcopal church was commenced in the fall of 1828, and was completed the following year. The Presbyterian church was built in 1829. The first tavern was kept by Ezra Griswold, on lot seventy-one, in a log cabin, in the year 1803. The first store was kept by Nathan Stewart, in 1804, on lot seventy-one, in the log cabin occupied the preceding year by Ezra Griswold as a tavern, he having removed his tavern to lot number sixty-one. The first distillery was erected, by Nathan Stewart, in 1804, on farm lot number twenty-five. The first temperance society was formed in 1830. The first grist-mill of any importance to the early settlers, or, in fact, to Franklin county, was erected by James Kilbourn, near Worthington, on the Olentangy river, in, or about, 1805. About the same time a Mr. Carpenter erected a mill on the same stream, in what is now Delaware county, but, at that time, was in Franklin. Another mill was built on the Olentangy, near the village of Worthington, in 1807, by Preserved Leonard. This mill was in operation a number of years. The motive power was obtained from Rush brook, by means of a race, and wooden troughs, and was carried a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile, and allowed to fall on an overshot wheel. Mr. Leonard, after running his mill a number of years, sold it to Joab Hoyt, who continued it some time, when it was allowed to go to decay.

Samuel Maynard also built a mill on the Olentangy, at a later date, still farther down the stream. This has been rebuilt and repaired many times since, and is now owned by Jacob Weisenheimer, who does a good run of custom, besides manufacturing and selling flour in Columbus market.

Asahel Benedict had a blacksmith shop in Worthington before 1812. Jabez Fairfield worked with him, and was very expert in shoeing cattle, and when the army marched from Franklinton toward Sandusky, in 1812, the teams remained here a week until they were shod.

Indians frequently traveled through the country from their towns near Sandusky, and often stopped at the houses of the settlers. They were friendly, and did no harm to the people, but many were afraid of them. Some time before the war a report was started that the Indians were on the war path, and were coming to slaughter the settlers. The alarm was caused on the west side of the river at a log rolling. While the men were at work in the woods, the women were gathered at the cabin, and while they were in one room eating supper, a girl prepared to sweep the room they had been sitting in. While doing this, she accidentally knocked down a loaded gun that was standing behind the door. The fall caused it to explode, and the women imagined the Indians were about to massacre them, and raised the alarm, whereupon the settlers made a stampede for the village. Messengers were sent in every direction to warn the settlers. Many stayed during the night at the tavern of Ezra Griswold, and many in the academy building. The next morning a stockade was built around the academy, and the place was fortified as well as it could be on such short notice, while men armed with guns, scythes, pitchforks and such weapons as they had, stood guard about the town. In a few days the excitement subsided, when it was ascertained that there were no Indians within many miles, and the settlers returned to their homes.

Another story is told of the cause of this Indian alarm. A company of militia was encamped at Delaware, and the captain thought to try what stuff his soldiers were composed of. One night he posted the entire company on picket, with instructions to be watchful, as the Indians would probably attack them before morning. Some time about midnight the captain fired a gun, and gave the alarm that the Indians were coming. The pickets did not stop to form the company, but every one broke for his home as fast as possible. It is said that one man ran nine miles through the brush and briars to his home, and when he arrived there, the only article of wearing apparel he had on was a shirt collar. The bushes through which he ran, captured the remainder of his clothing. No one was left in the camp besides the captain and officers who understood the cause of the alarm.

Jedediah Lewis, sr., built a saw-mill on the Olentangy, in 1807. He came with the Granville company, but did not like the location, and remained there but a few months. He run his saw-mill until his death, which occurred when he had been here but nine months.

There was no regular mail to Worthington until 1805. Previous to that time, the mail was brought from Franklinton by a young man, a clerk in a store at Worthington. In the year 1805, the post-office was established in Worthington, and mail was received regularly. The first postmaster was William Robe, who was a man of small stature, but well proportioned; he was well educated, and afterwards became a teacher in the Worthington seminary. He was then appointed to a clerkship in the office of the auditor of State. His death occurred in January, 1823.

JUSTICES.

The following is a list of justices of the peace who have been elected and served in Sharon township: 1803, Ezekiel Brown, elected when what is now Sharon was part of Liberty township; 1805, James Kilbourn, elected when what is now Sharon was part of Liberty township; 1806, Alexander Morrison, jr., in place of Ezekiel Brown, after the organization of Sharon; 1808, Ezra Griswold, in place of James Kilbourn; 1808, Isaac Case, under an order for an additional justice; 1809, Alexander Morrison, jr., re-elected; 1810, Azariah Pinney, in place of Morrison, who was elected judge; 1811, Ezra Griswold, re-elected; 1811, Glass Cochran, in place of Isaac Case; 1811, Reuben Carpenter, in place of Azariah Pinney, deceased; 1814, Recompence Stansberry, in place of Glass Cochran; 1814, Isaac Case, in place of Ezra Griswold; 1814, Cruger Wright, in place of Reuben Carpenter; 1815, Ezra Griswold, in place of Cruger Wright, who was set off to Harrison township; 1817, Stephen Maynard, in place of Isaac Case; 1817, Recompense Stansberry, re-elected; 1818, Ezra Griswold, re-elected; 1819, Arora Buttles, in place of Recompense Stansberry, appointed judge; 1820, Samuel Abbott, in place of Stephen Maynard; 1821, Nathaniel Little, in place of Ezra Griswold; 1822, Arora Buttles, re-elected; 1822, John Goodrich, jr., in place of N. Little, deceased; 1823, Samuel Abbott, re-elected; 1824, R. W. Cowles, in place of Arora Buttles, appointed judge; 1825, John W. Ladd, in place of Goodrich; 1826, Samuel Abbott, re-elected; 1827, R. W. Cowles, re-elected; 1828, John W. Ladd, re-elected; 1829, Stephen Maynard, jr., in place of Abbott; 1830, R. W. Cowles, re-elected; 1831, John W. Ladd, re-elected; 1832, Isaac Case, in place of Maynard; 1833, R. W. Cowles, re-elected; 1834, John W. Ladd, re-elected; 1836, R. W. Cowles, re-elected, and Asaph Allen, elected; 1837, Ira Metcalf, in place of Ladd; 1839, Stephen Maynard and Levi Pinney; 1840, George Taylor, in place of Metcalf; 1842, Stephen Maynard and Philo Burr; 1843, George Taylor, re-elected; 1844, Ezekiel Brown, in place of Maynard, resigned; 1845, Philo Burr, re-elected; 1846, George Taylor, re-elected; 1847, Ezekiel Brown, re-elected; 1848, Philo Burr, re-elected; 1849, George Taylor, re-elected, and Luther Case, in place of Brown; 1851, Philo Burr, re-elected; 1852, George Taylor and Luther Case, re-elected; 1854, I. N. Case, in place of Luther Case, and P. Burr, re-elected; 1855, George Taylor, re-elected, and Stephen Hoyt, in place of P. Burr, removed to Iowa; 1856, Charles E. Burr, in place of Hoyt; 1857, I. N. Case, re-elected; 1858, George Taylor, re-elected; 1860, C. E. Burr and I. N. Case, re-elected; 1861, George Taylor, re-elected; 1863, C. E. Burr and I. N. Case, re-elected; 1864, George Taylor, re-elected; 1866, I. N. Case, re-elected, and G. H. Griswold, elected in place of C. E. Burr; 1867, George Taylor, re-elected; 1869, George H. Griswold, re-elected, and C. E. Burr, in place of I. N. Case.

WORTHINGTON VILLAGE.

The village of Worthington was laid out in May, 1804, by Rev. James Kilbourn, as agent of the Scioto company. It was surveyed and divided into one hundred and sixty-two lots, of which two were reserved, one for school, and one for church purposes. The balance were apportioned among the members of the company, which, at the division of the property, was dissolved. The lots were cleared, and cabins built as suited the needs and the means of the owners. The school-house was at once erected, that the children of the community might at once begin the acquirement of an education.

The village was incorporated by act of the legislature, March 9, 1835, which ordered—"that so much of the township of Sharon, in the county of Franklin, as is comprised in the town of Worthington, as originally established, with the additional streets and lots thereunto annexed, as recorded in said county, be, and the same are hereby erected into a town corporate, to be known by the name of Worthington." The second section of the act provided, "that it shall be lawful for the white male inhabitants of said town, having the qualifications of electors, to meet at the usual place of holding elections in said town, on the second Tuesday in March, next (1836), and elect, by a plurality of votes, by ballot, a mayor, recorder, and five trustees, to serve one year, and until their successors are elected." This act of incorporation was signed by John M. Creed, speaker of the house of representatives, and C. Anthony, speaker of the senate.

An election was held, Tuesday, March 10, 1835, at which the following officers were elected: James Kilbourn, mayor; George H. Griswold, recorder; Samuel Abbott, William Bishop, Ira Metcalf, A. H. Pinney, and William S. Spencer, trustees. After the election, it was discovered that, by mistake, the charter would not go into effect until March, 2, 1836, and consequently the officers elect could not legally perform the duties of their office. The legislature, at their next sesssion (January 26, 1836), passed an amendatory act, ordering that the original act should be in force from and after its passage. The regularly elected council met for business, February 19, 1836, and appointed the following officers: R. W. Cowles, treasurer; Captain Levi Pinney, marshal; Captain Chauncey Barker, street commissioner; Captain Abner Pinney, Captain Dayton Topping, and D. W. Harrington, fire wardens. On March 14, 1846, an ordinance was passed by the council, dividing the town into two wards, and, at the same time, repealing an ordinance, passed February 19, 1836, establishing three wards. March 4, 1871, the two wards, established in 1846, were consolidated, by ordinance. At the regular election, held March 8, 1836, the officers of the preceding year were re-elected. In 1837,

George H. Griswold

In the summer of 1803 Ezra Griswold and his family, consisting, at that time, of his wife, Ruth Roberts Griswold, and six children, joined the band of pioneers, comprising forty families who organized in the eastern States under the name of the Scioto company, and emgirated to the then wilderness of Ohio. The first of the company to reach their destination was the Griswold family, who arrived on the ground, where is now the town of Worthington, October 26, 1803, having left Simsbury, Hartford county, Connecticut, September 15th of the same year. Their journey was made in a wagon drawn by oxen, over almost impassable roads, and through an unbroken forest, and though other members of the colony were provided with teams of horses, such was the condition of the roads that the naturally slowly oxen completed the journey the sooner by several days. Mr. Griswold, after his arrival, opened the first public house in Worthington in 1803. This public house he conducted during the remainder of his life, and at his death, was succeeded by his son, George H. Griswold. Ezra Griswold died October 2, 1822. His wife survived him, and died May 31, 1847.

George Harlow Griswold, son of Ezra and Ruth Griswold, and the subject of this sketch, was born in Simsbury, Connecticut, May 21, 1795. At the time of the removal of the family to Ohio, he was eight years of age. He remained with his parents until he arrived at the age of twenty-five years, when he was married May 21, 1820, to Miss Mila Thompson, daughter of Judge William Thompson, who emigrated with his family from Massachusetts to Worthington in 1803. She was born June 18, 1798. The ceremony of marriage was performed by Bishop Philander Chase, first bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in Ohio. After marriage they settled in his father's house on the northeast corner of the public square, in Worthington, where they ever after lived.

Mr. Griswold, together with each member of the little community, was much interested in the cause of education, and became one of the founders and promoters of the Worthington academy, of which institution he was the treasurer for many years. His business, during his life, was of a varied and general character, in the course of which, and during a scarcity of currency, in the year 1819 he issued his individual currency to a large amount, all of which he afterward fully redeemed. He was also engaged in farming, in addition to the other pursuits he followed, and in the course of a long and active life, accumulated a large property. For many years he was well known as General Griswold, a title obtained from his connection with, and the interest he had in the militia service during the old times of "general muster."

A man possessed of superior mental endowments, he exerted a potent influence over his fellow-men, and early became a prominent and influential citizen. From his well-known character as a correct business man, he was almost constantly the recipient of offices within the gift of the people, and always discharged the duties pertaining to them with ability and fidelity.

Mila Griswold

Both General Griswold and his wife were early members of the Protestant Episcopal church, which Mrs. Griswold joined on the day of her marriage, and of which she was a worthy and consistent member to the day of her death. She was a true woman as well as a true christian, always the same—modest, retiring, gentle, kind, respected and loved by all who knew her. She was the mother of eight children, four of whom, one son and three daughters, are still living. She died in Worthington, February 21, 1871. General Griswold survived her, and died March 9, 1876, at his residence or the residence of his son, W. F. Griswold, with whom he made his home after the death of his wife.

Portraits of George Harlow Griswold and Mrs. Mila Griswold, his wife, accompany this sketch.

R. M. WORTHINGTON.

MRS. R. M. WORTHINGTON.

G. H. Griswold was elected mayor; Flavel Tuller, recorder, Elias Lewis, Nathan Mason, George Taylor, Ansel Mattoon, and Kingsley Ray, trustees. The corporation limits were extended February 29, 1856.

In 1873 the corporation and township, jointly, bought a building from the Worthington school-board, for use as a town-hall. The cost of the building was two thousand five hundred dollars. The upper story was soon afterward sold to the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, for use as a lodge-hall. The present corporation officers are: Dr. W. W. Bickett, mayor; Dr. O. Johnson, clerk; W. F. Griswold, treasurer; James Beers, marshal; Horatio Wright, William Yonel, S. T. Martin, F. F. Tuller, Dr. T. B. Asbury, and I. N. Wells, council.

POST-OFFICE.

The post-office at Worthington was established in 1805, in which year William Robe was appointed postmaster. He continued in charge until 1815, when Arora Buttles was appointed. Recompense Stansberry was appointed in 1821, and remained in charge of the office until 1841, when R. W. Cowles was appointed. He died the same year, and Recompense Stansberry was re-appointed and continued in the office until his death, in 1843. He was succeeded by George H. Griswold, who administered the office until 1849, when George Taylor took charge of it. He remained in the office until 1853, when George H. Griswold was re-appointed. Charles Martin, jr., was appointed in 1857, and was succeeded by George Taylor in 1861. Since that time there have been several postmasters: Mr. Carpenter, A. S. Wood, Mrs. Sanderson, D. H. Nash, T. B. Randall, T. B. Asbury, and the present incumbent, F. W. Bishop, who was appointed in 1877. A money-order department was established in connection with the office July 1, 1874.

A railroad station was erected on the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & Indianapolis railroad, three miles north of Worthington, in 1868, and called Westerville station. The same season a post-office was established at the depot, and was named Flint post-office. A. J. Willoughby was the first postmaster, but Solomon Timmons, as deputy, had charge of the office. H. M. & H. C. Johnson surveyed village lots near the station the same year. A small store was opened at this point, in 1869, by Creighton Eakin. In 1872 H. W. Johnson was appointed postmaster, and engaged in merchandising about the same time. The office has since been kept at his store.

PHYSICIANS.

The first physician who practiced medicine in Worthington—Dr. Josiah Topping—came with the first members of the Scioto company in 1803. Dr. Lamb came soon after, and remained until 1806, when his wife died, and he sold his property, removing to Delaware. Dr. James H. Hill came to Worthington about 1810, and practiced medicine until 1818, when he sold his practice to Dr. Daniel Upson. Dr. Wetmore practiced in 1820, and for many years thereafter, until about 1850, when he removed to Columbus. Dr. Kingsley Ray came some time after Dr. Upson, but did not remain in practice here long. He was of the regular old school, and the people of Worthington were favorable to the practice taught in the Medical College, which was the botanic school. This was represented by Drs. Morrow, Jones, Paddock, and others. The present physicians of Worthington are Drs. Asbury, Johnson, Bickett, and Lewis. Dr. George R. Snow came with his father, John Snow, in about 1816, then a young boy. He studied medicine in Worthington, where he commenced practice about 1830. After about ten or twelve years he moved to Columbus, where he practiced some ten years, when he returned to Worthington. In about 1852 he engaged in mercantile business, and remained at this until about 1858, when he failed. He died some ten years later, leaving a widow, one son, and two daughters. He was a prominent and successful physician who stood high in the profession.

WORTHINGTON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

In 1811, Colonel James Kilbourn and others formed a stock company, and were incorporated under the above name, Colonel Kilbourn being president and general agent of the company. A tract of land, lying adjoining the village on the southwest, was cleared and improved, and in two or three years the company had a large factory in operation. They manufactured woolen cloth, run a tannery, a shoe shop, cabinet shop, hat shop, blacksmith shop, besides other industries. They had stores in Worthington, Franklinton, and Columbus, and issued their own bank notes, which were in general circulation. A part of the stockholders lived in the east, but invested considerable sums of money in the business. The factory furnished employment for a large number of workmen, who were mostly paid from the stores of the company. In 1819 or 1820 the concern failed, and those who had invested money in it were heavy losers. While in operation, it contributed largely to the growth and prosperity of the place, and its downfall forced many of the workmen to change their vocation, or seek homes in some other place. The land on which the old factory stood is now included in the village of Worthington, but no vestige now remains of the works where so many busy hands were employed in that early day.

NEWSPAPERS.

The first newspaper published in Franklin county, was at Worthington, in 1811. It was started by Col. James Kilbourn, who was the first owner, and was called the Western Intelligencer. He continued its publication but a short time, when he sold it to other parties, and, in 1814, the office and material were removed to Columbus, where it was published by P. H. Olmsted, Joel Buttles, and Ezra Griswold. Its name was changed to the Western Intelligencer and Columbus Gazette. Since that time it has passed through many hands, and was the original foundation of the Ohio State Journal. When published in Worthington, in 1812, it supported James Madison for the presidency. About the year 1818, or 1819, another paper was started in Worthington—the fourth one published in the county. Its projectors were Ezra Griswold, jr., and Caleb Howard. It was called the Frank- lin Chronicle, and was short lived, being discontinued in about two years.

SCHOOLS.

WORTHINGTON ACADEMY.

From the date of the first settlement of Sharon township and the village of Worthington, a great interest was taken in the cause of education, the early settlers coming from a section of the country, where they had received the benefits of good schools. Almost the first building erected was one for use as a school-house, in which a school was commenced the same season. From this beginning the settlers procured from the legislature, on the twentieth day of February, 1808, an act incorporating a school under the name of Worthington Academy. This school was conducted under the above name, with a good degree of success, until the eighth day of February, 1819, when a new charter was obtained, incorporating the school under the name of the

WORTHINGTON COLLEGE.

The services of Rev. Philander Chase, an Episcopal clergyman, who was elected, the previous year, to the bishopric of Ohio, were secured as principal. His episcopal duties soon caused him to withdraw from the college, and for a time his son, Rev. Philander Chase, jr., had charge of it. The trustees of the college were Philander Chase, James Kilbourn, Thomas S. Webb, Chester Griswold, Recompense Stansberry, Chauncey Baker, Stephen Maynard, Ezra Griswold, Benjamin Gardiner, Orris Parish, Lucas Sullivant, and Leonard H. Cowles. At the time of passing the act of incorporation of Worthington college, the act incorporating Worthington academy was repealed. Worthington college was continued as such until about 1832, when a charter was procured incorporating the REFORMED MEDICAL COLLEGE.

The first faculty of this college were Drs. T. V. Morrow, president; I. G. Jones and Paddock as professors. The medical college was conducted some ten years, and had a large attendance. The botanic practice was taught and a large number of practitioners were sent out. The college finally came into disrepute among the citizens from the fact that the students did not respect the sanctity of the grave in procuring subjects for dissection. Several times the school was threatened by an indignant people, and about 1842 or 1843 it was discontinued here, and removed to Cincinnati, where it was remodeled and transformed into the present Eclectic Medical college of that city. The old college building was torn down in 1875, and the present fine public school buildings erected in the rear of its site, on the same lot.

PREPARATORY SCHOOL.

A branch was started in Worthington by Rev. P. S. Ruth, an Episcopal clergyman, for the purpose of preparing youth for the grammar school of Kenyon college. The old hotel property, formerly owned by Col. James Kilbourn, and situated on the southwest corner of the public square, was purchased. The funds for this purchase were partly procured from the accumulation of the old college property, and partly from subscriptions. Mr. Ruth conducted a good school, with a fair number of students, until after the breaking out of the war, when the attendance fell off, and in 1863 the school was abandoned. The building was turned over to the school-board of Worthington public schools, with the rest of the old college property, by special act of the legislature, in 1873. The board soon after sold the building to I. N. Wells, who now occupies it as a residence.

FEMALE SEMINARY.

In 1835 Rev. Jacob Young, a presiding elder in the Methodist Episcopal church, was assigned to the Columbus district. He had long had in his mind the establishment of a female seminary, but had not yet found a community that felt as he did. When he visited Worthington he found the people of whom he was in search, and here he found a lady, Miss Sarepta Marsh, who was well calculated to have the charge of such a school. He was ably seconded by Rev. Uriah Heath, who came on the circuit in 1839, and by Rev. William Herr, of Columbus. A small school was at first started under the care of Miss Marsh. This prospered and was soon moved into the Masonic building. In 1839 Miss Marsh, Uriah Heath, L. L. Hamline, William Herr, and Jacob Young, presented the matter before the conference, which met at Xenia. They had already raised quite a sum of money for the cause, by subscription. The conference looked on the project with favor, and a building was soon erected. Although commenced in 1839, it was not completed until 1841 or 1842. A charter was obtained for this, the first female seminary of the Methodist church in the west. It was continued as a seminary for many years, but was finally given up, as there were many similar institutions of learning in other parts of the State. For a number of years no regular school was kept up, but the hall was rented for institutes and private schools. The building and grounds were finally sold to Messrs. Mitchell and Ogden, for very much less than it cost. A school has been conducted in the old seminary building since 1871, by one of the purchasers.

OHIO CENTRAL NORMAL SCHOOL.

In 1871, Messrs. Mitchell and Ogden purchased the property known as the Worthington Female Seminary, which included three acres of land, and a large four-story brick building, with ample accommodations for one hundred and fifty or two hundred students. A normal school was inaugurated in September, 1871, which, from the start, received a large patronage. The attendance, the first year, was one hundred and eleven; the second year it had increased to one hundred and seventy-eight, with a graduating class of eight. The third year, Professor Mitchell engaged in another profession, and the school was left in charge of Professors Ogden and Lewis. This year the attendance was two hundred and fifteen, with a graduating class of seventeen. In January, 1875, Mr. Lewis withdrew, and Professor Ogden was assisted by Rev. Charles H. Young, rector of the Episcopal church, in Worthington; also, by Miss Carrie Semple, and six members of the senior class, as tutors. The attendance was born at Providence, Rhode Island, January 1, 1803. He was the first child of John Snow and Mary Thurston. When quite a youth, his father moved with his family from Providence to Worthington, Ohio. William T., after acquiring a liberal education, returned to the east, and kept the books of a large cotton factory, owned by a relative, where he applied himself with his accustomed diligence and success to acquire a knowledge of the art of manufacturing textile fabrics. Returning to his home in Worthington, his mind and soul became deeply interested in religion. He was converted, and soon after was ordained a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church. He continued to travel and labor with great success as an itinerant minister in Ohio, Western Virginia, and Michigan, for about twelve years. During this time he had married Elicta, daughter of Captain Gad Chamberlin, of Rome, Michigan. Mr. Snow's delicate constitution gave way under his great exertions and exposures, so that in 1836 he retired to his farm in Oakland county, Michigan. Here his active mind was at work, and he was soon a leading citizen of the county, holding important positions, and representing his county in the legislature. In 1855 he removed with his family to Worthington, Ohio, for the purpose of educating his daughters. His untiring industry would not permit him to remain idle. He soon after engaged in business in Worthington, opening a dry goods and general store, which he continued until September, 1873, when he sold out to B. Crook, and retired from business. Mr. Snow, after giving up the circuit, continued to preach, without compensation, as opportunity offered, while he lived; and was particularly useful, while in Michigan, in preaching to and teaching the Indians. It is related that an old Indian chief, who had been converted under Mr. Snow's ministry, removed some eighty miles into the wilderness. He died there, and his last words commanded his wife to go and tell Elder Snow, that it was "a good die." The faithful wife walked the entire distance to deliver the message from the dying chief.

REV. WILLIAM T. SNOW

Electa Snow

Mr. Snow died January 16, 1875, at his home in Worthington, Ohio, in great peace, sustained by the faith he professed, leaving his aged wife, a model of piety and benevolence, surviving him. He was the father of ten children. The eldest, Mary, wife of Dr. Carr, of Michigan, died many years ago. Five survive their father—Lida H., wife of John G. McGuffey, of Columbus, Ohio; Julia C., wife of Rev. T. S. Stivers, of Pomeroy, Ohio; Nettie J., wife of C. E. Stivers, of Chattanooga, Tennessee; Susan B., and Jennie D.

The distinguishing features of Mr. Snow's character were a bright, strong, and active mind, industrious and systematic in business; prompt and exact in all business engagements; clear and concise as a pulpit orator, and an exalted trust in providence. He was greatly loved and deeply mourned.

JOHN SNOW.

The subject of this biographical sketch, was born in the city of Providence, Rhode Island, the fifteenth of February, 1780. At the age of fourteen he was apprenticed to Mr. Dodge, of that city, who was engaged in the manufacture of jewelry, where he remained for seven years. After attaining his majority, and completing his term of service, he removed to Newport, in the same State, where he prosecuted the business of manufacturing jewelry for two years. The close application he was required to give to his work injured his health, and he was advised to engage in some less sedentary avocation. He then returned to Providence, where he engaged in the mercantile business, at which he continued until 1817, when he emigrated to Ohio.

He was married, March 22, 1802, to Mary Thurston, a grandniece of E. Wanton, first colonial governor of Rhode Island. To them were born four children, three of whom lived to maturity: William T., who became a respected and honored minister of the Methodist church, and died at Worthington; George R., who became a physician and druggist, and also died in Worthington; and John W., who went to New Orleans, where he died.

John Snow was initiated into the mysteries of free masonry in Mount Vernon lodge, Providence, February 14, 1809. In the second year of his membership, he was elected as master of the lodge, which position he continued to occupy, with honor to himself and great benefit to the craft, until he removed to his new home and the scene of his future labors, in the new State of Ohio. His earliest masonic record after his settlement in Ohio, appears on the minutes of a special meeting of New England Lodge, No. 4, at Worthington, September 29, 1817, where he was registered as a visiting member. Thomas Smith Webb, an early and life-time friend, and his masonic preceptor, was also a member of the same lodge. On the seventh of October, 1818, he was elected as master of New England lodge. It was while he occupied this position that the masonic fraternity of the State availed themselves of his eminent qualifications, and assigned him to the onerous duties of grand master and grand lecturer for the State. In this character, he was required to visit every lodge in the State, inspecting their records, correcting irregularities, and reducing the work and lectures to a system of harmony and order. By a succession of re-elections, he continued to hold the office of master of New England lodge until October 30, 1822, when he made an eloquent address to the lodge on the subject of electing officers, and concluded by declining further service as master of the lodge. Notwithstanding his declination to serve, he was unanimously re-elected; but, positively declining to serve further, James R. Pearce was elected his successor. Subsequently to this time the lodge voted—

"That Brother John Snow, our late worshipful master, has manifested an extraordinary attachment to the principles and institutions of masonry, and zeal for the stability and honor of the order, during the time he has acted as presiding officer of the lodge; and that he is eminently entitled to our gratitude for the masonic knowledge he has diffused among us, and for having originated and prosecuted the undertaking of erecting the Masonic hall in this town."

In 1827, having retired from the chair he had so long occupied in the grand lodge, he again accepted the office of master of New England lodge, which he held continuously until 1832, when he again declined to serve. His masonic zeal was not confined to the duties connected with the lodge, nor was it limited to "ancient craft masonry." He was prominent as a Royal Arch mason, and was the first grand commander of the first encampment of christian knighthood northwest of the Ohio river. He was elected to the office of high priest of Horeb Chapter, No. 3, of Worthington, November 17, 1818, which position he filled with zeal and faithfulness until 1822, when, for the same reasons that he declined office in the lodge, he refused to succeed to the office of high priest of the chapter. He was again elected to the same office in 1827, and served in this connection three successive terms, and during this time was voted, by his companions, a silver cup, as a testimonial to his services in the erection of Masonic hall.

On the fourteenth of March, 1818, Sir John Snow received from M. E. Thomas Smith Webb, deputy-general grand master of the general grand encampment of the United States, a dispensation authorizing him to assemble together, in the town of Worthington, in the State of Ohio, a sufficient and legal number of Knights Templar, Knights of Malta, and of the Red Cross, and open a council and encampment in said town, and therein confer said orders upon such tried and worthy companions of the Royal Arch, as may make application for the same. Accordingly, all knights residing within the distance of forty miles were summoned to convene with him on the fifteenth of March, 1818, at which time and place appeared Sir Thomas S. Webb, from the general grand encampment of the United States, and grand encampment of Massachusetts and Rhode Island; Sir John Snow, hailing from St. John's encampment, Rhode Island; and Sir Frederick A. Curtis, hailing from ———— encampment, Ireland. On the twentieth of March, 1818, an encampment of Knights Templar was opened, and sundry applicants were admitted to the order.

On the twenty-seventh of January, 1822, the general grand encampment of the United States, Sir Dewitt Clinton presiding, granted to Sir John Snow, and his associates, a charter "to form, open, and hold an encampment of the valiant and magnanimous orders of R. C. K. T., and K. of M., or order of St. John of Jerusalem, by the name, style and title of Mt. Vernon encampment." To this encampment, Sir John Snow was appointed first grand commander, to which office he succeeded until 1830, when the infirmities of age admonished him to retire from the active duties pertaining to the order.

During his declining years Mr. Snow devoted his time to the management of the drug business, which he opened in Worthington, and at which he continued during the remainder of his life, which closed at Worthington, May 16, 1852.*

*The biography of Sir John Snow has been compiled from the printed records of the proceedings of the grand lodge of Ohio, for the year 1853, aided by such additional information as could be obtained from family records.

that year was two hundred and fourteen, with a graduating class of twenty. The course of study embraces a review of the common branches, the higher branches, and the languages. In addition, there is a professional course, embracing the whole doctrine of educational growth and progress. Two new departments have recently been added to the school, viz.: a model school, composed of three grades—primary, intermediate and high school, and a genuine Kindergarten, for the purpose of training teachers, as well as exhibiting the true methods of culture for little children. A normal institute, of five or six weeks, in July and August, of each year, is an important feature of the school. For the year 1879, the school is under the care of John Ogden, A. M., as principal, and W. H. Tibbals, A. M., as assistant principal. The school has been re-organized the present season, by Professor Ogden, who is now the owner of the property.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

From the organization of Worthington there has been in the village a regularly kept public school; even before the State school law was enacted, was this the case. After the passage of that law, a common district school was taught, two or three terms during each year. Soon after 1850, the district was enlarged, and the number of youth became so many, that two teachers were employed. This is the first origin of the Worthington public schools. A two-story brick building was erected in the rear of the Episcopal church lot, for the accommodation of these schools, about the year 1856. On the twenty-third of March, 1861, the upper story of the building was leased to the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, for a term of five years, to be used by them as a lodge hall. Previous to 1870, the school board decided that the building was inadequate to the uses of the school, and in 1871 it was sold to the corporation and township. The schools were removed to the old college building, where they were continued some two years. In 1873, the present fine public school building was erected in the rear of the site of the old college building, the land reserved on the formation of the town being turned over to the control of the school board, by act of the legislature, in that year. The trustees received from the sale of the old building, two thousand five hundred dollars, and raised six thousand dollars by means of bonds. A sum of fifteen hundred dollars was also received from the sale of the Kilbourn hotel property, which had previously come into the possession of the school board.

CHURCHES.

ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Immediately on the arrival of the first of the early settlers, means were provided for all to hear the preaching of the gospel. The first house built after the settlement of the colony, was a log school-house. Colonel James Kilbourn had taken deacon's orders in the Episcopal church, and on him devolved the responsibility of the religious instruction of the community. Regular services were held during the latter part of 1803, and in the year 1804, the first Episcopal church, west of the Allegheny mountains, was organized at Worthington. In 1807 the academy was built, and, the same year, St. John's Episcopal church, at Worthington, was incorporated as such by the State legislature. Rev. James Kilbourn was the officiating minister until 1817, when Rev. Philander Chase came and settled in Worthington. He had taken priest's orders, and, on his arrival, took charge of the parish. He also established several stations in some of the adjoining country. In 1818, the second convention of the Episcopal church in Ohio, was held in Worthington, and, at this time, Rev. Philander Chase was elected the first bishop of the diocese of Ohio. Worthington has the honor of establishing the first Episcopal church in Ohio, and of furnishing the first bishop of the State. When the land belonging to the Scioto company was apportioned to the colonists, a lot of eighty acres was reserved for church purposes. This, with its rents, has always stood as the property of St. John's Episcopal church. The congregation of St. John's occupied a part of the academy building for church purposes until, in 1828, a church building was commenced, which was completed the following year. Bishop Chase remained in charge of the parish of St. John's until 1826, in which year he purchased the land on which Kenyon college now stands, in Gambier, Knox county. He was succeeded in the ministration of the church by Rev. M. T. C. Wing, who had taken deacon's orders. Since that time, a period of fifty-six years, many changes have been made in the rectors of the church, as well as in the congregation, nearly, if not quite, all of whom have found a last resting place in the home of the dead, at the rear of the church. The present rector is the Rev. Charles E. Young, who entered upon the duties connected with St. John's parish in 1875.

METHODIST CHURCH.

As early as 1811, Revs. Mitchell and Sabins held a camp meeting on what was afterwards the factory grounds, in the west extension of Worthington village, at which time a great interest was taken, many making a profession of religion. A class was at once formed, and a church organization effected. Previous to this time, Rev. Martin, a circuit rider, preached at the house of Samuel Beach, a mile south of the village, where he formed a class. The church was not organized until after the camp meeting above mentioned. The second class leader was Joab Hoyt, who was leader from this date, 1811, until his death in 1877. Services were held by Rev. Theodosia Bacon, who came from Connecticut or Massachusetts with the Granville company, in 1807 or 1808. Revs. Messrs. Tivis, Cummings, Swampstead, Swazey and others were among the early preachers. Rev. Mr. Mitchell who conducted the camp meeting, was a very resolute man, and as Methodism was not popular at that time, in the community, the rowdies committed various indignities toward him shearing the mane and tail of his horse, and burning the coat on his back with aquafortis. He was not to be driven away, however, but continued at his duties. The Methodist church building was erected about 1823, and was a small brick house. It was not completed for some time, and the bench used by the workmen was left in the audience room, and served as a platform for the preacher to stand on. This building was found inadequate for the growth of the church, and in 1870, was torn down, and the present brick church erected in its stead. It was built when the church was under the ministration of Rev. Mr. McClintock. It has a large membership, and has sustained a vigorous Sabbath-school for some sixty years.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

A meeting of persons in Worthington who favored the service of the Presbyterian church, was held June 18, 1816, at the house of Peter Barker, at which time a church organization was effected. There were eleven members present at this meeting, and in a very short time the number was considerably increased. Among the first members, were: John Smith and wife, Mrs. Stanley, Mrs. Cook, Job Case and wife, Daniel Case, wife and daughter, Samuel Balwin and wife, Dr. Kilbourn and wife, Benjamin Chapman and wife, E. Tuller, and Peter Barker. Others who joined later, were: Captain R. Comstock, Dr. Upson, John Abbott, E. Mallory, N. Carpenter, the Youels, Parks, Wilsons, Fullers, Bricketts, and others. The first ruling elders, were: Samuel Baldwin, Job W. Case, and Benjamin Chapman. In 1818 Samuel Abbott and John Youel were elected ruling elders. The meetings of the church were held for several years in private houses, for a time in the upper room of the academy, then in a small brick school-house. On the first of January, 1822, the trustees rented the Masonic hall for a term of six and a half years. On the twelfth of May, 1828, preliminary steps were taken toward the erection of a house of worship, the pastor, Rev. H. Hulburt, visiting the east for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions to help forward the work of building. The church was completed April 17, 1830, since which time it has been occupied. Some years since it was remodeled. Rev. Ebenezer Washburn was the first pastor, from February, 1817, to November, 1818. Since its organization the church has had twenty-four pastors and supplies, eight of whom have been installed. The present membership is fifty, under the pastorate of Rev. John L. Gage. A Sabbath-school of about sixty members, is sustained under the superintendence of Dr. Gordon.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

at Flint post-office, in the north part of Sharon township, was organized at the log school-house, about 1829. Rev. Leroy Swampstead, who was then on the Worthington circuit, was one of the first preachers. David and Jacob Young were among the first presiding elders. The first church, a log structure, was erected soon after an organization was perfected, on the farm now owned by Phelps Thompson. The early members were: Moses Carpenter and Naomi, his wife, John Hammon and wife, Harvey Hammond, Jonathan Pinney and Sally, his wife, Ozem Gardner and wife, Simeon Pool and wife, and several others. The log church was used until about 1865 or 1866, when the present frame building was erected, on the north part of Ozem Gardner's farm, at a cost of about twelve hundred dollars. Since that time an addition has been built, at a cost of about four hundred dollars. The church sustains a Sabbath-school of twenty-five or thirty scholars. There are at present about one hundred members in the church.

THE UNIVERSALIST CHURCH,

at Flint post-office, in the north part of Sharon township, was organized in 1871. John Potter, who lives in that part of Sharon, was brought up in the Unitarian belief, and did not feel at home in any of the orthodox churches, and in 1872, a meeting of persons in the neighborhood in sympathy with this creed, met at his house, and at other houses in the neighborhood. In April of the same year, they decided to erect a church building, and immediately set about it. Those interested laid the foundation, burned the brick, and did the carpenter work needed. The building was first used in December, 1871, but was not completed until the next June. In September, 1872, it was dedicated. The first members were John Potter, Elizabeth Potter, Jane Potter, Alfred Potter, Anna Thompson, Jesse Thompson, Sadie Burt, George Thompson, Ellen Gardner, and I. N. Case. The present membership of the church is about sixty. Rev. C. L. Lander is the pastor. A Sabbath-school of about seventy-two members is sustained, John Potter being the superintendent. Jesse Thompson was first superintendent of the school.

CEMETERIES.

A cemetery was established at an early day in the rear of the present Episcopal church, which was used for many years, until the ground was nearly all occupied, and the village of Worthington grew in size, and it was deemed best to provide another burial place. There is also a ground connected with the Presbyterian church, which was used many years, but is not now used for burials, unless in exceptional cases. The Methodist church people also had a ground at some distance east of their church edifice. Nearly all the persons buried here have been removed, and the ground is not now used. There is also a family burial ground in the north part of the township, on the Gardner farm.

WALNUT GROVE CEMETERY.

Several meetings of citizens of Worthington were held, in November and December, 1858, and a committee was appointed to examine grounds for use for cemetery purposes, and to make a report as to the terms of purchase of a suitable tract. They reported, in December, in favor of a ground on the land of Mr. Hoyt. The report was favorably considered, and a meeting of the citizens, on the proposed ground, was held January 20, 1859, which was largely attended. At this time the committee perfected arrangements for the purchase, from Mr. Hoyt, of fifty acres of land, at a cost of two thousand, one hundred and fifty dollars, with the view of selling all but ten acres. These grounds are situated within one mile of Worthington, and south from the village, near the east bank of the Olentangy river, and in full view from the pike leading to Columbus. They contain a little more than ten acres of land, and are covered with a growth of young walnut trees, from which the cemetery is appropriately named.

RESIDENCE OF HORACE W. WRIGHT, WORTHINGTON, FRANKLIN CO., O.

Immediately after the purchase of the grounds, the labor of improving them was commenced. The first burial, that of James N. Taylor, took place February 1, 1859. In June, 1861, the corporation of Worthington added some three acres to the cemetery, on the east, which was purchased from Mr. Peck. They also secured a road on the south line of Mr. Peck's land. The grounds have been considerably improved since their purchase, and many bodies have been removed from the old grounds to the new.

SOCIETIES.

THE MASONIC FRATERNITY.

New England Lodge, No. 4, at Worthington, was organized June 28, 1808, under a charter issued by the grand lodge of the Free and Accepted Masons, for the State of Connecticut, and dated October, 1803. At the same time a charter was granted for the organization of Erie Lodge, No. 47, in Trumbull county. The lodge at Worthington was designated, in the original charter, as New England Lodge, No. 48, and its charter was to continue in force until one year after the institution of a grand lodge in the State of Ohio. Rev. James Kilbourn was appointed first master of this lodge. No record appears of the formation of this lodge until 1808, at which time Ezra Griswold and James Kilbourn were appointed delegates to visit Chillicothe, and assist in the formation and institution of the grand lodge of Masons in Ohio. Th first officers of New England Lodge, No. 48, were: James Kilbourn, W. M.; Zopher Topping, S. W.; Josiah Topping, J. W.; Ezra Griswold, secretary; Israel Case, treasurer; Stephen Maynard, S. D.; Roswell Wilcox, J. D.; Azariah Pinney, tyler. At the meeting to consider the organization of a grand lodge in Ohio, the delegate from New England lodge, James Kilbourn, was not allowed to sit in the convention, the reason assigned being that the lodge itself had not been formally organized. On June 28, 1808, Thomas Worthington, of Chillicothe, conducted the ceremonies of installation of the officers of New England lodge. During the years 1808 and 1809, the lodge continued to work under the Connecticut grand lodge warrant. In September, 1809, in response to an invitation from the grand lodge of Ohio, it was resolved to unite with them, and in January, 1810, the lodge made returns, and was represented in the grand lodge by Rev. James Kilbourn, then chaplain of New England lodge. In 1814, six years after the formation of the grand lodge of Ohio, this lodge obtained its rank and number—four. Number one was left blank for American Union lodge, which was chartered in 1776; number two was Nova Caesarea lodge, of Cincinnati; No. 3, Erie lodge, of Warren, Trumbull county, and No. 4, New England lodge, of Worthington. Many men of Ohio, eminent in civil life, as well as Masonry, have been members of New England lodge, among them are John Snow, Thomas Smith Webb, both of whom held high offices in the grand lodge and grand chapter of the United States; Chester Griswold, Aaron L. Buttles, Rev. Philander Chase, first Episcopal bishop of Ohio, and many others, who have held important places of trust in the State and nation. In 1820, the Masonic fraternity of Worthington erected a substantial brick hall for lodge purposes, which is still used at this time—1879.

Mt. Vernon Commandery, No. 1, of Columbus, was organized at Worthington, March 15, 1818, under a dispensation issued by the general grand encampment of the United States, March 13, 1818. This commandery was organized by Sir Knight John Snow, from St. John's encampment, Rhode Island, Sir Knight Frederick A. Curtiss, from ——— encampment, Ireland, and Sir Knight Thomas S. Webb, from the general grand encampment of the United States. A charter was granted by the general grand encampment of the United States, September 16, 1819, the Hon. De Witt Clinton then presiding over that body. The first officers under the charter were: John Snow, G. Com.; Chester Griswold, Gen.; James Kilbourn, Capt. Gen.; Joseph Hughs, prelate. At a regular conclave, held on the twenty-second of February, 1844, it was "unanimously resolved to accept the order of the grand encampment, made at its late meeting, at Lancaster, authorizing and empowering this encampment to hold its meetings, a portion of the year, in Columbus." The next meeting was held in Columbus, and has, since that date, been kept in the capital city. No order was ever again issued for the assembling of the encampment at Worthington.

"In looking through its records, it is found that royal arch masons from Indiana, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Louisiana, received orders from this commandery. All the grand masters of the grand lodges of Ohio, for nearly fifty years, with one or two exceptions, were knighted at this commandery."

Horeb Chapter, No. 3, of Worthington, was organized under a dispensation from the deputy grand high priest of the grand royal arch chapter, of the State of Maryland and District of Columbia, December 18, 1815. Its first officers were James Kilbourn, H. P.; Chester Griswold, K.; Abner Lord, S.; Solomon Smith, secretary; Moses Byxbee, P. S.; H. Hyre, C. of H.; N. Potter, R. A. C.; A. Buttles, V. Shaw, S. Smith, M. of V. The officers for 1879, were: F. A. Bull, H. P.; Horace W. Wright, K.; S. S. Pinney, scribe; J. P. Wright, treasurer; T. B. Asbury, secretary; George Clark, C. of H.; J. R. Topping, P. S.; W. R. Bartles, R. A. C.; E. Weibling, Charles Clark, R. Osborn, M. of V.; R. N. Richardson, guard.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF GOOD TEMPLARS.

Ark Lodge, No. 270, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was chartered by the Grand Lodge of Ohio, February 22, 1855. The charter members were Isaac N. Case, Ansel Mattoon, Isaac Thompson, Almon S. Wood, and James M. Fuson. The lodge was instituted April 16, 1855, by Thomas J. McLain, grand master of the State. It has now a membership of sixty, composed of the best citizens of Sharon township. In 1873 the lodge purchased the upper story of the town hall building for a lodge hall, which is now neatly fitted up and supplied with the proper emblems of the order. It is in a prosperous condition, financially, having a surplus of over one thousand dollars, and no debt. The present officers are Thomas Bonner, N. G.; J. B. Stewart, V. G.; W.

W. Bickett, P. S.; Adolphus Tuller, treasurer; H. W. Wilcox, recording secretary.

OLENTANGY ENCAMPMENT.

Olentangy Encampment of Patriarchs, No. 149, was chartered May 8, 1872, and was instituted May 31st of the same year, by Joseph Dowdall, R. W. grand scribe. The charter members were J. T. Gardner, J. M. Fuson, D. M. White, W. W. Fuson, H. Chambers, J. E. Wright, H. B. Stickney, A. Tuller, A. S. Wood, and J. T. Bowen. The first officers were D. M. White, C. P.; H. B. Stickney, H. P.; H. Chambers, S. W.; W. W. Fuson, S.; J. M. Fuson, treasurer; A. Tuller, J. W. Meetings are held at Lodge hall of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

GRANGE.

Sharon Grange, No. 690, was organized under a dispensation from the State Grange, March 14, 1874. It received its charter July 1st of the same year, at the time having twenty-five members on the roll. The grange rapidly grew until in December, 1875, it had one hundred and six members. Regular meetings are held twice every month, in the town hall. The first officers of the grange were: H. W. Wright, master; Marcus Case, overseer; G. B. Goodrich, lecturer; S. S. Pinney, steward; E. M. Stanley, assistant steward; J. P. Wright, treasurer; J. M. Fuson, secretary; Samuel Watson, chaplain; George Lewis, gate-keeper; Mrs. H. W. Wright, ceres; Mrs. George Lewis, pomona; Mrs. S. R. Holt, flora; Miss Ella Stanley, lady assistant steward. Master for 1879 is Dr. T. B. Asbury; secretary, M. Case.

CELEBRATION.

The first celebration of Independence Day in the new colony took place July 4, 1804. The brush was cleared out from the space now occupied by the public square. and rude seats of logs arranged for the assembled people to sit upon. An address was delivered by Col. James Kilbourn, and a national salute given by falling seventeen large trees, in honor of the seventeen States of the Union, instead of firing so many cannon.

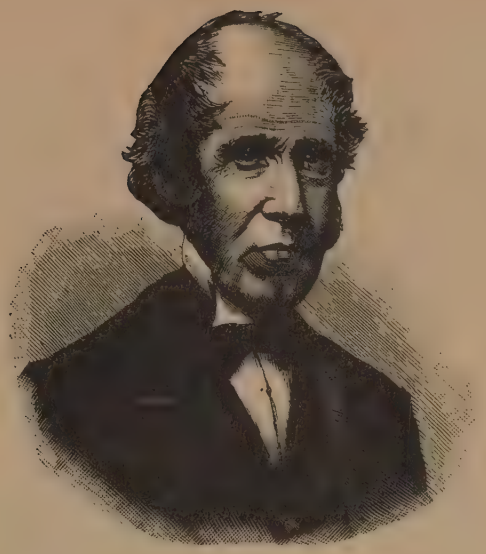
SURVEYOR'S MARKS.

As late as 1832, there was still standing, on the southwest corner of this township, a tree, marked "No. 1, T. 1, R. 19, I. L." (Israel Ludlow), all of which appeared very ancient, though no date appeared. In making a survey in the settlement of a dispute as to lot lines, the fourth day of April, 1834, Ezra Griswold found, at a distance of forty-six rods west from the corner ascertained as the right hand lower corner of this plat of the Scioto company, another corner, or center of township, near which was a tree, marked: "No. 4, T. 2, R. 18., I. L." Another, marked: "No. 3, T. 2, R. 18." Another marked: "No. 2, T. 1, R. 18., I. L." The initials, "I. L.," it is presumed, means Israel Ludlow, who surveyed here, about 1798.

GAME AND FISH.

For many years after the first settlement of the county, the rivers abounded in fish, and the forests were the haunt of a great variety of game. Fish were caught by means of nets, and sometimes with a brush seine, which required from ten to twenty men to handle. Large quantities of excellent fish were caught, there being at that time no obstruction to prevent their coming up all the streams.

Hunting was followed by many from a love for the chase, for purposes of food, and for the protection of the crops. A grand ring or drive hunt was organized before the country became very thickly settled. A day was appointed, and a line formed at Columbus, and extending across the country from the Olentangy river to Alum creek, on the east. Another line was formed near the Delaware county line, when the two parties commenced their march, meeting below Worthington. On the conclusion of the hunt, it was found that five hundred wild turkeys, thirty deer, and several bears had been killed. The wolves escaped to the swamps, and none were brought in. In early times the squirrels became so plenty as to be a positive nuisance, and committing great damage to the corn. A notice was accordingly published in the Columbus Gazette, of August 29, 1822, calling for a grand squirrel hunt of all the people in the vicinity, said hunt to continue two or three days. The hunt took place Saturday, August 31, 1822, and when the report of the slaughter was brought in, it figured up to nineteen thousand six hundred and sixty scalps that were produced. Very many of the hunters did not report, and it is impossible to give the exact number that were killed.



ORANGE JOHNSON.

The late Orange Johnson, farmer and banker, was born in Mansfield, Connecticut, February 7, 1790. Until the year 1807 he resided with his parents, assisting his father in the cultivation of the farm, and attending school in the winter seasons. In that year he was apprenticed to a comb maker, to learn the trade, and continued in this business in Mansfield, Southington, Berlin, and Utica, New York, until 1814, when he started for Ohio, making his journey upon horseback, and paying his way by the sale of combs. On August 11, 1814, he arrived at Worthington, Ohio, and established the comb business in that place, on a capital of sixteen dollars and fifty cents, the aggregate of all the money he possessed. His first customer, Robert Neil, of the firm of William & Robert Neil, merchants of Urbana, made a wholesale purchase amounting to ten dollars and fifty cents. In order to pack his goods in a merchantable manner, and to show them off to the best advantage, he needed paper and twine, but a thorough search of the town failed in finding those articles. He secured the services of "Mother Fairfield" to spin the twine, and, in the morning, with this and with the paper, which, during the night, he had accidentally discovered, he was enabled to present Mr. Neil with his wholesale purchases in pro forma condition. The business, thus commenced, grew rapidly and prosperously.

In 1827, he was appointed a commissioner to open a turnpike to Sandusky, and he was occupied in this labor about ten years. During this period he was engaged in farming and in dealing in real estate, his ventures being judiciously made. He was also appointed, with two other gentlemen, to make the first survey for a railroad to Xenia, and in all the public services to which he was called, he distinguished his labors by intelligence and by energy. For many years he was a director of the old Clinton bank, serving with his firm friend, D. W. Deshler. He was also a director in the Franklin National and State bank, and exhibited excellent qualities as a financier and a manager of responsible monetary institutions.

When Mr. Johnson first reached that section of the State which, for so long a time, was the scene of his active labors, he found it but sparsely settled, its many resources but partially developed, and most of its people comparatively poor. Only a small amount of money was in circulation, and this raised serious obstacles in the path of his business career, which would have discouraged men of less nerve and perseverance. In the face of adverse circumstances he carried on his business interests resolutely, and was able to gradually accumulate a large amount of property. He became a resident of Columbus in 1862, but before that time was prominently engaged in labor, which beneficially affected its permanent prosperity, and, since he became one of its citizens, aided largely in the support of public improvements. He erected the Johnson block and Sessions block and, in many ways, contributed to increase the vital business interests of the city. His foresight, good judgment and energy, rendered him remarkably successful as a mechanic, farmer, manufacturer, contractor, and banker, and, while he acquired a large fortune, it was honorably earned. No man ever questioned his fair dealing and integrity of action, and no man deserved more than he the respect which the public accorded him. He retained his place as a partner in the Commercial bank after he was over fourscore years of age. He had the affection of his family, the warm friendship of associates, the comforts and luxuries of a home of ease, and with advancing years he found increasing, instead of decreasing, contentment. He was married, in August, 1815, to Achsa Maynard. He died November 27, 1876.

His only daughter, Mary Johnson, married F. C. Sessions, banker of Columbus, Ohio, August 18, 1847.

J. W. White

REV. J. W. WHITE,

the subject of this sketch, was born in Palmyra, Maine, November 2, 1813. He was the eldest of the six sons of Deacon John White and Betsey White; three of whom have passed away, while each of the three remaining are ministers of the gospel. Deacon White was a man of large frame, broad intellect, fixed principles, deep piety, and of great hospitality. He was widely known, held many offices both in church and State, and, at eighty-seven years of age, called to his death-bed his children, and his children's children, blessed them, and passed peacefully to the home of the just. His mother, Betsey Jewett, was one of the numerous Quaker Jewetts, of New Hampshire; a woman of culture and great sweetness of disposition. She never struck one of her six sons or three daughters, and, after living happily with her husband for sixty-three years, and seeing well to the affairs of her household, she sweetly passed to a rich reward, at eighty-three years of age, loved and mourned by all who knew her. Her memory, to her children, is as a sweet perfume, lingering around a broken vase.

Mr. White was raised in true New England style. The first lesson taught him was that there were just as many mouths already as the barren soil could fill, and if he ate, his own hands must earn his subsistence. He worked on a farm, or in a boot and shoe shop, in summer, and attended a district school in winter. Fifty years ago, even a New England common school, with its broad seats without backs, mysterious text-books, and cheap, incompetent teachers, was but a sorry place in which to gain knowledge. In boyhood, a love of books became a passion. At fifteen years, he had literally devoured the family library, which consisted of such works as "Baxter's Call," "Edward's Sermons," "Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress," "Robinson Crusoe," and the writings of John Calvin; while in poetry was "Rouse's Version of the Psalms" and "Watt's Hymns." The first books he ever owned were bought with money resulting from a patch of potatoes raised by working early in the morning and late in the evening. They were a novel by Walter Scott, "Pollok's Course of Time," "Milton's Paradise Lost," and "Blackstone." With these, and a tallow candle, when his day's work was done, he held nightly converse. Scott fired the imagination, Pollok soothed, while the grand numbers of Milton awoke reverence, and Blackstone came in to hold the boy level, and save him from poetic frenzy.

In 1832, Mr. White began to cough, and it was thought best that he leave the farm and engage in a business where he would not be liable to so much exposure; he accordingly entered a store, as clerk. His employer was a man of culture, and kindly aided him in his studies. Here he made rapid progress. During the fall and winter he recited to a college professor, and paid for text books and tutelage by chopping cord-wood, at thirty-seven cents a cord. These were real life struggles, but to him they were what friction is to the diamond—they polished and brought out the lustre within him. Achillean invulnerability can only be possessed by frequent baptism in the seas of difficulty. Veterans are only made upon the battle-field. The truest and grandest manhood is developed by early and heroic struggles.

In 1833, he came to Ohio. While in Granville, Ohio, under the preaching of Rev. Lyman Beecher, of precious memory, he sought the Saviour, and made a public profession of faith in Christ. He proved that He was able to save to the uttermost all who came unto Him. The same year, while attending a protracted meeting, in Newark, he united with the Methodist Episcopal church. In the fall of 1844 he was licensed to exhort, and preached his trial sermon in the Town Street church at Columbus. He was licensed to preach, and was recommended as a suitable person to be received into the traveling connection, by the conference then sitting in Circleville. In five days from the date of his license he had settled his business, equipped himself with saddle-bags, bible, hymn-book, "Watson's Institutes," "Fletcher's Appeal," the "Methodist Discipline," and "Butler's Analogy," and without theological training, had taken up his line of march to the then wild hills of the Hock-hocking, to enter upon his life work. In 1836, he passed creditably an examination in his course of study, and was elected and ordained deacon. In 1838, he had completed his course to the satisfaction of the conference, and was ordained elder.

In June, 1840, he was happily united in marriage with Anna C. Williams, eldest daughter of the late Judge Hosea Williams, of Delaware. Although reared amid luxury, she entered heartily into the arduous and difficult duties of the wife of an itinerant, aiding and cheering her husband, and patiently and heroically sharing his wandering life, and now shares his retirement in their beautiful home.

Thus for forty years has he trod on in the active ministry; seven years on circuits, twenty-two years in city stations, and eleven years on districts as presiding elder. In the fall of 1874, weary from long and active duties of his ministry, he asked and obtained a superannuated relation. He then bought and refitted his first home, which he named "Maple Home," furnished it comfortably, and retired in the quiet village of Worthington.

Their three children, all they have had, are living, happily married, and well settled. We found this aged couple in their beautiful home, cheerful, hopeful, and happy. They have fought and won. Blessed with plenty, surrounded with friends, and being of cheerful and grateful dispositions, very sunny is life's afternoon. For such an evening one can afford to do battle all the live day. The results of such lives may not be measured in time.

HORACE W. WRIGHT.

The subject of this sketch was born in Worthington, Ohio, January 30, 1830, and here he has since lived. In his youth, he attended the schools of his native town, but did not pursue any prescribed course. During the winter of 1849–50, he studied at Kenyon college, Gambier, and on his return worked for his father, on a salary, until the death of the latter, September 3, 1855. Potter Wright, the father of Horace W. Wright, came from Providence, Rhode Island, to Worthington, about the year 1815, in charge of machinery for a cotton-mill, which it was designed to operate in the place. For some reason it was not put in operation, and the owner shipped it to another point. Mr. Wright came to the new country, owing to the glowing descriptions of the prosperity of the community and the grand future in store for the embryo town. He expected to find a thriving village, already in a fair way to become a great city, but was disappointed when he saw it in a crude shape, and yet to be hewn out of the forest. For some time after his arrival, he worked for the Worthington Manufacturing company, on a salary, but eventually withdrew from their employ, before the affairs of the company became hopelessly deranged, and in payment for his services received a house and lot in the village, which afterward became his home, and is now occupied by his daughter, Cynthia. After leaving the service of the company, he erected a shop, and engaged in the manufacture of carding and spinning machinery, and other machinery used in cloth making and cloth dressing. Here he built up a business that extended to many States, and, during his lifetime, accumulated a considerable property, which, at his death, was administered by his son, Horatio, and was divided among his children. His wife was Lovisa, daughter of Moses Maynard, one of the early colonists. To them were born eight children: Horatio, Mason M., Cynthia, James P., Horace W., Henry, George, and Sarah, six of whom are now living, one at Danvilie, and one at Paxton, Illinois, and three sons and one daughter in Worthington. Mr. Wright used, as a motto on the machinery he manufactured, the legend: "Flourish ye western manufacturers."

Horace W. Wright, of whom previous mention is made, engaged in farming, which avocation he has followed during his life. To this he has also added the care of the saw-mill in Worthington, which he has owned and managed during the past five years. On October 29, 1862, he was married to Henrietta S. Tuller, daughter of Flavel Tuller. To them have been born five children—Kate, Frank, Albert, Bernard, and Helen. Three of these, Albert, Kate, and Bernard, were attacked by that dread disease, diphtheria, and all died within one week, on the ninth, tenth, and sixteenth of November, 1876. Mr. Wright has been successful in his business life, and has accumulated a good property as the result of a life conducted under strict principles of integrity. He built his present fine brick dwelling house, a representation of which appears herewith, in 1861.

PLEASANT.

This township, which was formed as early as 1807, is bounded as follows: On the north, by Prairie township; south, by the township of Darby, Pickaway county; east, by Jackson township; and west, by Fairfield and Jefferson townships, Madison county.

The surface is varied. While some portions present an almost level plain, others, especially along Darby creek, are exactly the reverse, being broken and often decidedly hilly. There is, however, but little waste land in the township. The soil along the bottoms is a strong black marl, of great fertility; on the upland it is, for the greater part, clay, and well adapted to the growing of corn and grain crops generally. It is exclusively an agricultural township.

STREAMS.

These are Big and Little Darby, which enter the township near the northwest corner, and form a junction at, or near, Georgesville. From here, the former continues a general southeast course through the township.

SETTLEMENT.

The first settlers in the south part of Pleasant township were two brothers, Thomas and Elijah Chenoweth, natives of Maryland, who removed, with their families, from Pike county, Ohio, to this township, in the fall of 1799. They purchased two hundred acres of land each, in, and north of, the present village of Harrisburgh, and immediately erected, upon their respective purchases, rude log cabins, to shelter them from the inclemency of the long dreary winter now rapidly approaching. The cabin of Elijah stood just at the foot of the hill, near the spring, and a few rods northeast of the site of the present residence of a son, Elijah. The work of improvement was begun at once, and, in time, the Indian neighbors were supplanted by the hardy backwood settlers. The log cabin was exchanged for the substantial mansion, the dense forest gave way before the keen axe of the settler, and, in its stead, were broad acres, rich with their store of waving grain.

Thomas Chenoweth married Cassandra Foster, and lived to enjoy the full fruition of his labors. After his death, his widow and children removed westward. None now live in the township. The children were: John, Benjamin, Thomas, Joseph, Rachel, and Cassandra. Elijah Chenoweth married Rachel Foster. He died, December 5, 1828; his wife died April 17, 1825. The children of this couple were as follows: Joseph, who married Rachel Morgan, and, eventually, moved to Illinois, where he died; Elizabeth, who married John Carr, also died in the west; Lewis, who died in infancy; John F., who married Margaret Ferguson, and now lives in London, Madison county, Ohio; Sarah, who married John Haines, lived for a time in Madison county, where he was elected to the State legislature; after several removals, he settled in Illinois, where he died; Joseph, who married Margaret Heath, was also a member of the State legislature; the greater portion of his life was passed in Pleasant township where he died (Mrs. Sarah Hays, who lives in Darby, Pickaway county, is a daughter of the above); Cassandra, who married John Morgan, and lived many years in Pickaway county, eventually moved west, where she died; Rachel, who married Jesse Wood, also died in the west; Elijah, who married Nancy Chenoweth, now lives on the old homestead, and is the only one of the children now living in the township. To this gentleman, the writer wishes to express his gratitude for material aid in the collection of data for this history.

Benjamin Foster and Samuel Kerr, with their families, settled in this vicinity soon after the Chenoweths. Of these, the writer could learn nothing.

John Biggart, a native of the Emerald Isle, married Margaret Gibson, of Pennsylvania, and located near Harrisburgh, in the year 1800. Some two years later, he purchased the farm farther north, still occupied by his heirs. He was a weaver, but, by the aid of his family, became quite a successful farmer; he died, May 27, 1848; his wife died, April 14, 1862. The children numbered nine, of whom, Mary, Matilda, Charlotte, William, John, and Joshua, are deceased; Samuel, who married Mary R. Roberts, is the only one now living in Pleasant township; Rachel (Mrs. D. Clark), lives in Madison county, and Margaret (Mrs. D. McHenry), lives in Circleville.

John Dyer, was the first settler in the vicinity of Georgesville, formerly known as the forks of the Darby.

Thomas Roberts, a native of Martinsburg, Va., married Susan Poisel, of the same locality, and removed to Ohio a short time prior to the dawning of the present century. He lived for perhaps two years in Darbyville, Pickaway county, and then removed to Pleasant township, locating near the forks of Darby. His log cabin was built on the hill and not far distant from the site of the present substantial residence of Samuel Biggart. After a residence, at this place, of forty years, he removed to West Jefferson, where he died September 29, 1860. His wife died the November following. They had eleven children, of whom but few survived the years of childhood; three only are now living: Nancy, who married Matthew Bonner, and resides in Clark county, Ohio; Mary R., who married Samuel Biggart, and has an elegant home on the old farm; and Edwin R., who has been twice married, and is comfortably situated in Madison county, Ohio.

James Gardner who was, it is believed, the third settler on the forks of Darby, was a Virginian by birth. On arrival in Pleasant township, he purchased the property upon which stands the Dyer mill. This he improved, and here he passed his life, engaged in farming. His first wife was Polly Conwell. The children, the fruits of this marriage, grew to maturity: William, who has been twice married, and now lives in Madison county; Betsey (Mrs. W. Winders), and Nathanial, who married Mahala Walker, is deceased, and his widow (mother of Dr. G. W. Gardner, of Harrisburg), lives near Georgesville. Mrs. James Gardner deceased, and he married Susan Beevers, by whom the following children were born: Michael, James, Mary A., Susan, Vilinda J., Nancy, and Joseph, none of whom are now living in Ohio.

Philip Huffman, who was of German descent, came from Virginia to Ohio in 1802. His wife was Elizabeth Reel, a native of Virginia. The family first located in Ross county. They eventually located in Pickaway county (Monroe), and died there many years since. This couple, contrary to most pioneer families, were blessed with but two children: John and Sidnie. The latter became the wife of Lewis Ballard, and is now dead. John, who was born in Virginia, March 12, 1794, married Sarah Deyo, and, in 1835, settled in Pleasant township, where he still resides, without doubt, the oldest man in the township. His wife died January 10, 1879. His children numbered thirteen, of whom the following are living: Mary (Mrs. T. Barker), Lydia (Mrs. J. Scott), Nimrod, Minerva (Mrs. A. Spangler), Eliza (Mrs. G. Goodson), Margaret (Mrs. R. Alkire), Sarah (Mrs. Spangler), John, and Rachel (Mrs. L. Nutter).

Adam Spangler was an early settler in Franklin county. His wife was Rachel Tanquarry who is now living. Mr. Spangler died March 16, 1878. The children of this couple who live in Pleasant, are Alexander, John, James, Joseph, William, Calvin, Rachel (Mrs. T. Poulson), and Caroline (Mrs. D. Litery). Betsey (Mrs. J. Rush) lives in Pickaway county.

Foster Price was among the earliest settlers in the south part of the township. He died many years since. The children, now living, are Joseph, Benjamin, John, Tamsey, and Kitura.

James Walker, of Virginia, married Millia M. Foster, and settled in Ross county at a very early period. In 1812 he removed to Pleasant township, locating on the farm now occupied by the youngest daughter, Mahala (Mrs. Nathaniel Gardner). Here he engaged in farming, and lived to be over ninety years of age; he died December 6, 1860, and his wife, June 18, 1859. The children, beside Mrs. Gardner, who is the only one living, were William, George, and Sidney.

John McKinley married in Virginia, and came from that State to Pickaway county, in the year 1814, locating in Darbyville, where he died in 1877. He was three times married. His last wife, who survives him, was Mrs. Sophia Williamson. Of the children the following are living, at present, in Franklin or Pickaway: John Welsey, Joseph, Seymour, Russell, William, Harriet (Mrs. P. Morgan), Mary (Mrs. J. Fuller), and Sarah J. (Mrs. A. Thomas). The children dead, are David, who married Elizabeth Chenoweth (his widow lives near Harrisburgh); Susan, who married Jacob Rush, and James, who was a soldier in the Union army of the Rebellion, and was killed in action.

William Cummins was amongst the first settlers in Walnut township, Pickaway county, where he died. Three of his children now live in Franklin county: John who married Mary May, lives in Pleasant township, and is prominently connected with the Mt. Zion United Brethren church; James, who married Margaret Williams, and Edward who married Margaret Henderson, live at Galloway station in Prairie township.

Marmer Duke Story came from Delaware to Pickaway county, in 1815. His wife was Rachel Baggs. In 1837 he removed to Pleasant township, where he purchased a wild farm, and erecting his log cabin in the dense forest, he set about with a will, the removal of the heavy forest; his efforts were successful at his death, which occurred some twenty years since. Much of the lands were in a good state of cultivation. Only one of his children now lives in the township—Joseph who has been thrice married; his present wife was Margaret White. He lives some two and one-half miles southwest of Georgesville. Maamer Duke Story was a soldier in the war of 1812.

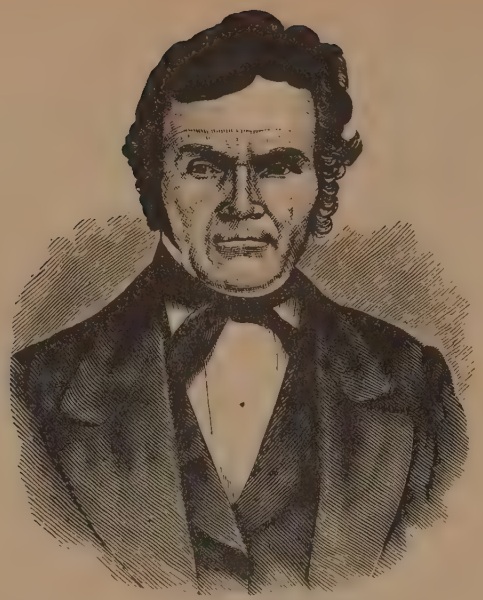
Handy Smith came from Maryland to Monroe township, Pickaway county, in about 1839. He married Sarah Littleton, by whom several children were born. She is now dead. Of the children the following are all farmers, and live in Pleasant township: Josiah O., who married Nancy Lane; Lemuel, who married Lucinda King, and Stanford, who married Nancy Foster.

William L. Foster, of Madison county, married Mary Athey, and in December, 1829, settled in Pleasant township, where they both live at this time. The children are John, Elijah, Nancy, Elizabeth, Emily, Mary, Margaret, William F. and Sarah (twins), and Cynthia J. Seven are now living, and all, with one exception, in Franklin county.

James Bradfield came from Pennsylvania to Pleasant, in 1831. He was single, and was among the first wagonmakers in the township. He married Priscilla Adams, and lives near Georgesville. Of a large family of children, but one is now living—Mary (Mrs. W. Waples), who lives in Darby township, Pickaway county.

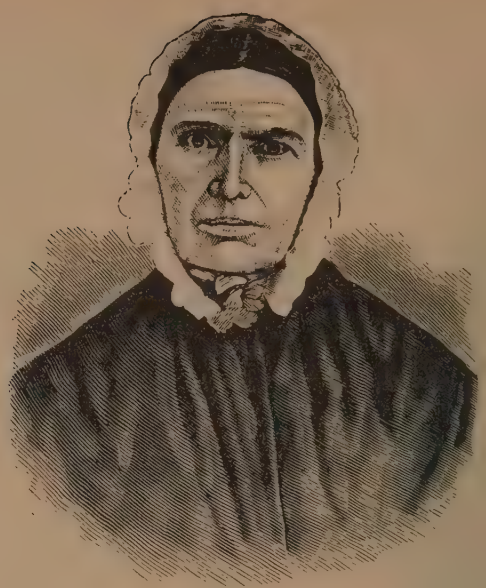
George Francis, married in England, Anna Walter, and in 1836 emigrated to America. Immediately on arrival he came to Columbus, where he lived some eighteen months; after which, he located in what became known as the "Pennsylvania settlement," in Pleasant township. He here engaged in farming, and continued that peaceful vocation until the spring of 1865, when he came to live again in Columbus. His living children are: Frederick F., who married Elizabeth Heath, and lives on the old homestead; and Mary (Mrs. William Poulson). Among other first settlers in this settlement, were James O'Day, Tobias Bulen, James Luckens, St. Clair Adams, Thomas Bourlen, Edward Hays, Jesse Fenton, William Norton, and Timothy Boucher.

R. M. Worthington came from Montgomery county,



Thomas Tipton

CAPTAIN THOMAS TIPTON



MRS. ELIZABETH TIPTON.

was born in Frederick county, Maryland, January, 1792. His father, Sylvester Tipton, was a teacher by profession, and lived in Jefferson county, Virginia, near Harper's Ferry, but at the time of the birth of the subject of our notice, he was temporarily residing in Frederick county, Maryland. Both his paternal and maternal ancestors were of Scotch-Irish extraction, and were worthy descendants of that sterling race of Highlanders whose representative was the famous John Knox, of the Reformation. Sylvester Tipton was a man of very limited means, but had a fair education, and, better than all else, possessed a good name. He was small in stature, but had a good constitution, and lived to a ripe old age, dying at the age of ninety years. His wife was a woman of more than ordinary strength of character. Her maiden name was Mary Starks, a niece of General Starks, of Revolutionary fame. She was tall and dignified in appearance, and being unusually intelligent, occupied a conspicuous place in the communities where she resided. Such were the parents of Thomas Tipton, who was ten years old when they settled in Chillicothe, Ross county. There he obtained his education, in such schools as the times and place afforded. It may be a matter of some interest to the young people of to-day to note, in this connection, what were the facilities for education, and what the qualifications expected of school teachers in those primitive times. The school-house was built of unhewed logs; the floor was made of puncheons, as were the most uncomfortable seats, which were supported, when not on wooden legs, by the ends being passed through between the unchinked logs. The qualifications of the teacher were in harmony with the school-house and other appliances. The certificate stated that the person therein named was "qualified to teach spelling, reading, writing, and ciphering, excluding fractions." At the age of fourteen, young Tipton closed his school days, at which time he could spell most of the words in Webster's spelling book, and write his name, as will be seen by reference to his autograph, which was written at that time. He was united in marriage, December 6, 1813, by Asa Shepard, a justice of the peace, to Miss Elizabeth Tomlinson, of Chillicothe, a woman of heroic fortitude which, it is said, never gave way amid all the hardships and privations of their pioneer experience. Her beneficence was limited only by her ability, and the poor and destitute who were the special objects of her care and attention, regarded her with reverential respect and gratitude. Mr. and Mrs. Tipton began their married life in Franklin county, where they purchased, from time to time, one thousand acres of land, and brought the same under cultivation. To build up a home of this sort, from such a forest, with poverty on one hand, distance from market on the other, and malaria everywhere, gives some idea of Captain Tipton and his good wife's energy of character, courage, and determination.

During the war of 1812, Captain Tipton was called into the military service of his country, and responded by at once raising a company, and was with General Harrison at Fort Defiance at the time of Hull's surrender. Captain Tipton, or "Uncle Tommy," as he was familiarly called by his friends and neighbors, possessed a hopeful, buoyant nature, and a kind and benevolent disposition; he would often, at great inconvenience to himself, help those less fortunate than himself, who could render no return but kindly good will and gratitude. He was an ardent friend, and absolutely had no enemies. The young approached him as a father, the aged sought his counsel as a friend in whose motives and judgment they had the utmost confidence. His character was one to be held in pleasant remembrance by all who enjoyed an intimate acquaintance with him, on account of his quiet, unobtrusive manner, and the healthful moral influence he exerted. Perhaps nothing more conclusively proves the pure and upright character of the man than the respect and filial affection of his children for him. While his life was always strictly moral and upright, he was over fifty years of age before he made a profession of religion. In October, 1841, he was called to witness the wonderful consolation of religion in the triumphant death of his daughter, Mary, then the wife of Elijah Chenoweth, jr. This was the first time that death had ever visited his own family circle, and it made a deep impression on his mind. His daughter, shortly before her death, exacted a promise from both father and husband that their names should be enrolled on the church book in place of her own. Shortly after this event Mr. Tipton called his family together, on a Sunday morning, and opened the family devotion with singing two verses of the hymn, beginning:

"And must this body die,
This well-wrought frame decay?"

After which his wife offered up one of those soul-stirring petitions for which she had long been noted in the praying circles of the neighborhood. In the evening of the same day he offered, in the presence of his family, his first prayer—at least his first audible one. The family altar thus established was continued the remainder of their lives, and they enjoyed the consolation of often hearing each of their sons conduct the family devotion. Captain Tipton was a member of the Methodist church, as are all of his children, save one, who is, at this time, a member of no church.

In politics, he was a Republican, and his sons are adherents of the same party. He served as county commissioner of Franklin county for the term of two years—but he was not an aspirant for office, and once declined a nomination for State representative.

He died, of a malarial fever, the thirteenth day of September, 1864, and his wife on the fifth of February of the same year.

Pleasant Ridge farm, known as the "Tipton farm," is on the west side of Darby creek, two miles north of Harrisburg, in Pleasant township, Franklin county, and is now owned by J. H. Chenoweth. The old cabin has been demolished, but the associations connected with it remain in the memory of the children, who, though long since grown to man's estate, speak with peculiar tenderness of the old home, and with the most affectionate veneration of the father and mother who built it in the woods, protected it from savage violence, and brightened it with love and kindly feeling; regarded no trial or sacrifice too great, or labor too severe, to raise their children to a condition better than their own.

Captain Tipton was the father of eleven children: Samuel S., who married Miss Lydia Gantz, is a farmer and stock dealer, and lives in Kansas. Frances married John Taylor, who is also a Kansas farmer; John S. married Miss Tabitha Stump. He resides in Kansas, where he is engaged in farming and the manufacture of agricultural implements. Jonathan married Miss Rebecca Shattuck. He lives in Franklin county, Ohio, and is a farmer. William A., now deceased, married Miss Julia Wilcox. Richard H., married Miss Minerva Buckles, and resides in Darbyville, Pickaway county, Ohio. He is a physician and surgeon of thirty-four years' experience, and is a graduate of Jefferson college, Philadelphia. Dr. Tipton was surgeon of the Ninetieth regiment Ohio volunteer infantry, in the war of the Rebellion, serving with credit for three years. Mary, now deceased, was the wife of Elijah Chenoweth, jr.; Sarah is the wife of George Stump, a farmer living in Kansas; Thomas C. married Miss Miranda Loomis, and is a resident of Williamsport, Pickaway county, Ohio. He is a physician and surgeon of many years' practice. A biography of Dr. Tipton is given elsewhere in this book. Nelson F. married a Miss Elder, of Illinois, who died, leaving him with one child—a daughter. He married, for his second wife, Miss Hayes, of Harrisburg, Ohio. She died, leaving a son as a result of this union. His present wife was a Miss Morgan. He is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, and a member of the Southern Kansas conference, and is at present stationed at Melvern, Kansas. Hiram C. married Miss Mary Shattuck, and is a farmer of Franklin county, Ohio.

Pennsylvania, in 1837. He was a single man. Making a stop in Pleasant township; he, in 1840, secured a wife, in the person of Miss Ann Stump, whose parents located in the township also in 1837. Mr. Worthington now lives on the Harrisburgh pike. His children are: Jane (Mrs. M. Bradfield), John W., Mary (Mrs. J. White), George, Sarah (Mrs. W. Rush), and Clark, who all live in Franklin county, and the greater portion of them in their native township.

Gideon Walton, whose wife was Rebecca Gilbert, was an early settler in Columbus. He now lives in Pleasant township.

It is folly to think that the foregoing gives the names of all early settlers in the township, worthy of mention. Many came very early, and remained a few years, going still farther west; others, perhaps, lived in the township many years, but have gone and are forgotten. Following are the names of settlers of whom the writer has no particulars. Some are among the very first; others, perhaps, are not: Samuel Kerr, Reuben Chaffin, William D. Adams, John V. Leach, who was an early merchant; John Turner, Charles Hunter, Morris Yates, John Harvey, George Goodson, Simon Cochran, and James Walker.

EARLY EVENTS.

The first white child born in Pleasant township was, without doubt, a daughter, to Elijah and Rachel Chenoweth. The date of this important addition to the pioneer colony was December 9, 1800. The child was named Cassandra. She grew to woman's estate, and became the wife of John Morgan, going to live in Darby township, Pickaway county. Here her husband died. She eventually married Joseph Morgan, and removed to the west, where she died. Among the first marriages in the township was John Chenoweth to Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas and Mary Foster. The date was soon after the present century began. This couple lived for a few years in Pleasant, removing then to Greene county, where they passed the remaining years of their lives. The first burials were on the Chenoweth farm, and not far from the present residence of Elijah Chenoweth. The writer was unable to ascertain who was the first person buried here. The first log houses were constructed by the brothers Chenoweth, in the fall of 1799. The first frame house was doubtless built by Samuel Kerr, early in the settlement. It stood on the farm owned at present by Elijah Chenoweth, jr.

John Biggart erected the pioneer brick house in the township, some two miles from Georgesville, many years since. The pioneer house of entertainment was at Harrisburgh. It was built by John Morgan, and was by him named White Hall. The writer was unable to get the date of its construction. This is at present owned by John P. Bolen, and is known as the United States hotel. Divers persons have played the role of host within its walls. Samuel Hill has another hotel at Harrisburgh. Thomas Chenoweth, without doubt, planted the first orchard in this portion of the township. The date was not far from 1800. A small number of these trees are still standing. On March 24, 1837, George Geiger and William Foresman opened the pioneer mercantile establishment in Pleasant township. The goods were displayed in a small building standing in what is now the southwest corner of the village of Harrisburgh. This firm, subsequently, built what is now the post-office row, and here, for years, prosecuted the business of merchandising. Joseph Chenoweth became a partner in the business, buying the interest of William Foresman. The present business at Harrisburgh is: L. W. Sifert, and A. C. Rush & Co., dry goods; F. Chenoweth and Henry Manning, groceries; Dr. H. A. Turner, drugs. There are also a number of small manufactories—shoe shops, wagon shops, etc., and several blacksmith shops. The first post-office was authorized in Pleasant township in 1815, and bore the name of the township. The following year, Georgesville was laid out, and, a short time after, the post-office was changed to that name. Following is a list of the postmasters: Thomas Roberts, William Scott, George Ray, and Thomas Story, who is the present incumbent. Harrisburgh was surveyed by Frederick Cole, under the direction of Joseph Chenoweth, in June, 1836. A few years prior to this, a post-office was established here, called Darby Cross Roads. This now took the name of the village. The succession of postmasters is as follows: John Haines, George Geiger, Abram Buckles, Dr. T. Thompson, Henry Miller, J. W. Goetschius, O. T. Curry, and the present incumbent, R. B. Parks, who was appointed to the office in July, 1861. Of manufactories, the first was a grist-mill, erected by Samuel Dyer, in 1805. This had a numerous ownership. It has been entirely rebuilt, and is now owned by the widow of William Dyer, whose husband built the present mill. Some fifteen years since, Thomas Chenoweth erected a flouring-mill on Darby creek, the second in the township. Numerous saw-mills have been built, generally small affairs.

ORGANIZATION.

Pleasant township, as organized in 1807, embraced many times its present area. In 1815, Jackson township was cut off, and in 1819, Prairie township was formed from this, reducing Pleasant township to its present limits. The records of the township do not date back far enough to be of service to the historian. The officers for 1879 are: F. Francis, M. S. Hays, J. Gardner, trustees; George Francis, clerk; J. B. Chenoweth, treasurer; W. J. Brooks, assessor; Richard Buzzard and E. Philips, constables. Following is the succession of justices of the peace: 1807, Samuel Kerr, John Smith, John Turner, Alexander Blair, Michael Dickey, Samuel Dyer, Reuben Golliday, Jacob Gundy, John Tipton, William Walker, Richard Heath, Henry Shenefelt, Geo. W. Helmick, Zelotes G. Weddle, J. B. Mitchel, Reuben Chaffin, Raper Millard, Henry Walker, John S. Young, J. O. Smith, and the present, S. V. Dalby and George Ray, who were elected in the spring of 1879, and who are strongly Republican.

CHURCHES.

Meetings were early held in the log house of Thomas Chenoweth, by the settlers, who were principally of the Methodist faith. As early as 1810 the Rev. John Collins and James Quinn began a series of meetings at the house of Elijah Chenoweth, which resulted in the formation of a class. This was composed mainly of the following: Benjamin Foster and wife, Thomas and Elijah Chenoweth, their wives and several of the children. Mr. Foster was the leader. Meetings were continued at Mr. Chenoweth's as late as 1842, when, the class having grown to such large proportions, and the attendance increased to such an extent that the accommodations were inadequate, a church edifice was erected. This was of brick; in size, some forty by fifty feet, and cost about one thousand, two hundred dollars. Its location was near where now stands the residence of Dr. Joseph Helmick. This did duty until 1858, when the present meeting-house was built. This is also of brick; forty-one by sixty-one feet in size, and cost two thousand, eight hundred dollars. The present membership of this church is one hundred. The officers are as follows: William B. Chenoweth, W. W. Carson, and Theodore Gantz, leaders; W. W. Carson and E. Chenoweth, stewards; William B., Elijah, and J. Hill Chenoweth, W. W Carson, David Hurst, and T. Gantz, trustees. A Sabbath-school was organized in the old log house. This is still in active operation, and has seventy scholars. S. V. Dalby is its superintendent. The present minister, who is located at Harrisburgh, is Rev. W. H. Sayre.

THE GREEN HILL CHURCH, which is attached to the Harrisburgh circuit, was formed about ten years since. It has a neat framed church building, and a respectable membership. The Sabbath-school is well attended.

DYER CHAPEL.

The first meetings in the vicinity of Georgesville, were held at the houses of John Biggart and Thomas Roberts, by Rev. James Hoge, of the Presbyterian church, in Franklinton. The date was early in the century. No church of this denomination was ever formed here, to the writer's knowledge. Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church preached at the dwellings of Charles Hunter, George Goodson, Simon Cochran, and James Walker, and also at the school-house in Georgesville. Dyer chapel, a neat wood structure, was erected in 1875, and cost one thousand eight hundred dollars. It is attached to California circuit. The present minister is the Rev. Mr. Alexander. The membership numbers fifty. Albert Keyes is class leader, and Joseph H. Gardner, superintendent of Sabbath-school, which has a goodly attendance.

MOUNT ZION UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH.

Meetings were held at the house of John Cummins in about 1860, and the following persons were in due time organized as a church: John Cummins and wife, William Forsyth and wife, Nathan Abbott and wife, and Mr. Long and wife. John Cummins was the leader of this class. Meetings were held at the house of Mr. Cummins, the greater part of the time, until 1864, when the present meeting-house was built. The following are the trustees who were elected at the building of the church, and continued in office: John and Edward Cummins, N. Abbott, William Scott, and William Forsyth. A Sabbath-school was organized soon after the erection of the church, and John Cummins elected its superintendent. Its membership is at present not far from forty. The church membership is now very small, being only thirteen. The following are the ministers who have had charge of this church from its inception: Rev. Mr. Johnson, Daniel Bonebrake, William Waters, Solomon Zeller, George Brown, and Joseph Brown, the present minister, who located here some five years since.

SCHOOLS.

In the summer of 1811, one Thomas Miller taught a term of school in a little log cabin, standing on the farm owned by Samuel Kerr. This was a small school, and was composed of the children of the Chenoweth, Kerr, and Foster families. This is believed to have been the first school in this portion of the township, though of this the writer has not positive knowledge. Schools were taught in this cabin for several years. In 1817 or 1818, a log school-house was built in the southwest corner of what is now Harrisburgh village. One of the earliest teachers in this building was Mrs. Elizabeth Kilpatrick. No frame school-house was built here until about the time the village was laid out. The village school district was organized in 1870, and convened in the building now occupied as a town hall. On May 1, 1875, it was, by vote, decided to erect a suitable school-building. The board consisted of: G. M. Stark, president; Willlam B. Chenoweth, treasurer; A. Poulson, clerk. It remains the same to-day, with one exception: A. Poulson resigned, December 4, 1876, and A. C. Rush, the present clerk, was appointed. He was subsequently elected. The building was completed in 1876. It is of brick; some thirty by sixty feet in size, two stories in height, and cost, complete, five thousand dollars. The school is divided into primary and intermediate departments. The enrollment of scholars is one hundred and thirty-six. The amount paid teachers for the year 1878 was nearly seven hundred dollars. The records of this district are in such a condition that the writer could learn but little from them. In Pleasant township there are thirteen school districts. The board of education is as follows: D. W. Machlin (president), J. W. Worthington, E. W. Young, W. B. Adams, I. F. Miller, John Cummins, N. Jenney, George Hay, J. Boyd, M. Billman, J. B. Story, S. Jackson, and John Price.

PHYSICIANS.

The writer learns that, in 1824, Dr. Lemuel Boyd was practicing in Harrisburgh, but failed to obtain any data of him. Dr. Thomas Thompson located here from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, as early as 1837. Dr. Thompson was an excellent practitioner, and soon acquired a large practice. He died in about 1840, and soon after, George W. Helmick, who was a graduate of Jefferson medical college—class of 1838 and '39, located here; he was of good medical attainments. He was twice married; his death occurred some twenty years since.

The present physicians are: Joseph Helmick, a brother of the above, and a graduate of the same school; he located in Harrisburgh in 1842; he married Jane Chenoweth, and yet enjoys a lucrative practice.

William J. Bashaw was the next physician to locate at Harrisburgh; he now lives in the country, where he still practices.

G. W. Helmick, jr., graduated at Starling medical college, Columbus. Edward F. Morgan, a graduate of the same school, and George W. Gardner, a graduate of Miami medical college, Cincinnati, Ohio, constitute the medical staff of Harrisburgh. Dr. W. N. Shoemaker is located at Georgesville. He is spoken of as a rising practitioner.

HARRISBURGH.

This village was incorporated in 1851, and an election held, when the following persons were elected: Mayor, Dr. J. Helmick; recorder, Z. G. Weddle; trustees, Henry Miller, J. Chenoweth, O. T. Curry, L. W. Sifert, and Dr. George W. Helmick. The records are so imperfectly kept that the writer is unable to give the succession of officers. The present are: Mayor, J. L. Smith; clerk, S. G. Lyday; trustees, G. M. Stark, J. R. Manning, J. P. Bolen, C. Vieman, O. T. Curry, and C. V. Sheeders.

This village has, at present, quite an efficient cornet band, numbering ten musicians; C. V. Sheeders, leader.

Lodges of Good Templars have, at divers times, had an organization in Harrisburgh village. There are none at present, though the need of thorough temperance work is painfully apparent, at least, to stranger eyes.

Georgesville was laid out many years since. Now there is no vestige of a village on the opposite side of Darby creek; at the railroad station is J. L. Moore's addition or New Georgesville—a little hamlet containing a few houses, general store by J. R. Biggart, and grocery by G. W. May. Dyer chapel is situated in this village.

Biographical Sketches.

J. W. STORY.

MARGARET STORY.

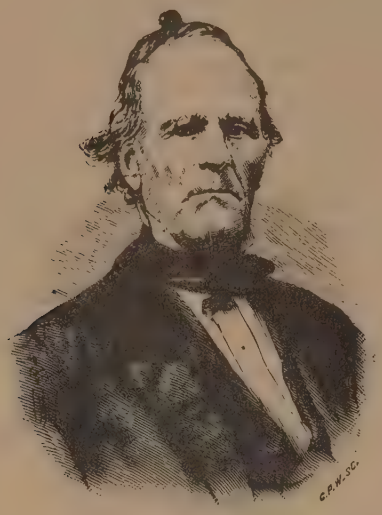
Joseph W. Story was the fourth child of Marmer Duke Story and Rachel Baggs. He was born in Sussex county, Delaware, and came to Ohio with his parents when he was nine years old. The family settled in Pickaway county.

The subject of this sketch settled in this county, on the farm he now owns and occupies, in the year 1834. He has been three times married. His first wife, whom he married in 1832, was Nancy Turner, by whom he had seven children, five of whom are now living: Martha, who married Aaron Lambert, lives in Iowa. John, who married Elizabeth Thomas, lives on the home farm. Thomas, who married Miss Louisa Moore, lives in Georgesville, this county. Sarah, who married Addison Taylor, lives in Nebraska. Dianna, who married Richard Hay, lives in Pleasant township. Matilda, who married Peter Tanner, lives in Madison county, Ohio, and Mary, who married Isaac Tanner, lives in Madison county, Ohio.

His second wife was Susan Nichols, whom he married in the year 1853, and by whom he had two children—a son and daughter. Marmer Duke is single and lives at home. Vergina, the daughter, married Richard Chaffin, and lives in Pleasant township, Franklin county, Ohio.

In 1872 he married his third wife, Margaret White, who is very much his junior, and by whom he has had two children, only one of whom, little Lora, is now living.

In politics, Mr. Story is a Democrat. While he has suffered many losses, financially and otherwise, for the want of an education, no stain of dishonesty has ever tarnished his name. He is now seventy-one years old, and lives at his ease, surrounded by every comfort he desires.



JOSEPH CHENOWETH.

MARGARET CHENOWETH.

Elijah and Rachel (Foster) Chenoweth, natives of Maryland, were early settlers in Kentucky, and about 1795 emigrated to Pike county, and settled near what is now the southern boundary of Ross. They removed, in the fall of 1799, to Pleasant township, Franklin county, being its first pioneers. Elijah Chenoweth was born June 12, 1762, and died December 5, 1828. His wife died April 17, 1825. Their children were: Thomas, John F., Joseph, Rachel, Cassandra, Elizabeth, and Elijah.

Joseph Chenoweth, the subject of this sketch, was born September 6, 1798. He grew to manhood in the home of his parents, where Elijah Chenoweth now lives, and became one of the widely and well known citizens of the county. He began in a humble way, and eventually accumulated great wealth and attained high honors. Early in life, and before he had any means other than a liberal capital of energy and industry, he made a living by driving between his home and Baltimore, carrying provisions east, and then loading his wagon with those articles of merchandise for which there was a demand in the new settlements of Franklin, Pickaway, and Ross counties. He also did considerable teaming between Chillicothe and Franklinton. In later years, his business was farming and stock dealing. He bought and sold great numbers of horses, cattle, hogs, and sheep, and was one of the first to drive stock across the country to the eastern market. He was as extensive a dealer as there was in the country. He added to his original farm, and became the possessor of about one thousand six hundred acres of land, the greater part of which, a considerable time before his death, he divided among his children.

Mr. Chenoweth was noted as a man of spotless character, and of many admirable traits. His generosity was one of the leading ones, and he had the life-long kind regard of many to whom, in one way or another, he had given assistance. He was a member of no church, but was most liberal in his support of the cause of religion, and when the Methodist people of the little village of Harrisburg decided to build a church and set about the undertaking, they would have succeeded but poorly had not Mr. Chenoweth come to their assisstance. He made the society a present of the lot upon which the church stands, burned the brick of which it is built, and furnished money very liberally beside. No man in the vicinity ever entertained more ministers than Mr. Chenoweth. His house was always open to them, and was their favorite stopping place. But, for that matter, his "latch string was always out" for everybody. He had an immense circle of friends, and few ever came into the neighborhood in which he dwelt without paying him a visit. He was a very cordial, affable man, and none more enjoyed companionship.

The personal popularity of Mr. Chenoweth, and the uprightness of his character, made him a strong candidate, in 1841, for the legislature of the fortieth general assembly. He was elected on the Whig ticket, as a colleague of Nathaniel Medbury, and served two terms as the representative of Franklin county. In his later years he was a Republican.

Mr. Chenoweth's first wife was Margaret, daughter of Amos Heath, of Pickaway county. Their children were: Rachel C. West, Jane Helmick, Elijah, Joseph, Sarah Hays, William, Elizabeth McKinley, Isabella Sheeters, and Jerry. It is a remarkable fact that there has never been a death in this generation of the family. All of the sons and daughters are living, and all are in Pleasant township except Jerry, who is a resident of Columbus. Mrs. Chenoweth died December 22, 1861, at the age of sixty-five years, four months, and fifteen days. The widowed husband took, as his second wife, Margaret Williams. Mr. Chenoweth died January 9, 1869.

R. M. WORTHINGTON

was born in Bucks county, Pennsylvania. His parents both died when he was quite young, leaving three children, of whom he was the eldest. His brother, Isaac, is a farmer, and lives in Clinton county, Ohio, and his sister, Mrs. Mary A. Harvey, lives in Pleasant township, Franklin county, Ohio.

At the age of twenty, our subject came to Ohio, and began life for himself. His education was limited to a few months in the commonest of common schools, but, fortunately, education, in a business sense at least, is not confined to school advantages. His property accumulations show what a man can do for himself when prompted by a spirit of determination. He is the owner of nearly five hundred acres of land in Pleasant township, with such appointments and appurtenances as do credit to the owner. His losses by fire, and security for friends, have been quite heavy, but have never seriously embarrassed him. A long life of usefulness, of well-directed energy, coupled with a rigid economy and an inflexible determination, is now richly rewarded by a quiet and peaceful old age, surrounded by a thriving family and the fruits of an industrious life. He commenced life for himself in an unbroken forest, and by dint of energy and well-directed effort, has lived to see the wilderness converted into cultivated fields.

He was reared among the Quakers, but was never a member of any church organization. He is a Democrat in politics, and has uniformly acted with that party. He has served as trustee of his township one term, and as supervisor ten or twelve years. He is not a politician nor an office-seeker, and we mention the above as an evidence of the confidence of his neighbors.

He had the good sense to select a companion from his youthful acquaintances. He married Miss Ann Stump, who was also born in Pennsylvania, but came to Ohio in very early life. She is the mother of six children, all of whom are now married and settled in life: Jane, who married Morris Badfield, lives in Madison county, Ohio; John William, who married Miss Harriet Titus, lives in this township; Mary C., who married Jacob White, lives near her parents; George, who married Miss Sarah Smith, lives in this township; Sarah E., who married William Rush, of Pickaway county; and Clark, who married Miss Josephine Wade, and lives with his parents and carries on the home farm.

Mrs. Worthington is a Methodist in belief, though distance from church, and failing health, prevent her the enjoyment of sanctuary privileges.

MRS. NANCY CHENOWETH.

Elijah Chenoweth is one of that small and fast-contracting circle of early residents whose recollections link together the past and present of local folk-history. He was born in 1806, on the farm where he now lives, and was the ninth child of Elijah and Rachel (Foster) Chenoweth, the pioneers who are spoken of in the foregoing sketch as having made the initial settlement in Pleasant township. He is the only member of the family living, except his brother, John F., of London, Madison county.

Mr. Chenoweth is a splendid example of that rugged development of physical and moral qualities attained through the simple, honest, home-spun manners of life that characterized the early settlers of Ohio. Although he has passed through more than the alloted three score years and ten, he is, to all appearance, hale and hearty—a fine specimen of preservation. He still takes an active part in the management of his large farm and in carrying on general business. He has been for fifty-three years a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, with which, also, all of his family are connected. Politically, he is a Republican, and has acted with that party since its organization.

Mrs. Chenoweth was a native of Clark county, Ohio, and was born in the same year as her husband. Nine children were the fruit of this marriage, six of whom still survive: Thomas, who married Emily Graham, of Ross county, and lives, at present, in Pleasant township, Franklin county; John W., who married Miss Mary E. Graham, and lives in Pickaway county; Joseph H., who married Mary O. Timmons, and lives on the home farm; Elizabeth, who married A. J. Shephard, and lives in Madison county; Sarah J., who married U. C. Gantz, and lives in Jackson township, Franklin county; and Rebecca E., who married W. W. Carson, of Delaware county, who lives with her father and works the home farm.

Mrs. Elijah Chenoweth died in 1874.

MADISON.

Madison, in territorial extent, exceeds any other township in the county, and, with the possible exception of Hamilton, is also the best agriculturally. It is within the tract denominated Congress lands, and was organized as a township in 1809. By an act of the legislature, passed at the session of 1850–51, a range of sections, being a strip one mile wide and six miles long, including the town of Winchester, was taken from Fairfield county and annexed to the east side of Madison, making the township eight miles in extent, north and south, and seven miles east and west, with the exception of the jog in the southeast corner. The township is well improved, the farms and orchards, of moderate size, being generally owned by their occupants, and containing good dwellings, barns and other improvements.

STREAMS.

Madison is among the best watered townships in the county. Big Walnut (or, as now called, Gahanna river) enters the township a short distance west of the center of the north line, and Alum and Black lick creeks in nearly the northwest and northeast corners, respectively. The three streams unite their waters in section seventeen, of the northwest quarter, the stream thence flowing a southerly direction until reaching section twenty, where it turns southwest and flows in that direction into Hamilton township. Little Walnut creek reaches the township just south of Winchester, from Fairfield county, flows thence a generally western course through the south half of the township, until south of Groveport, when it takes a southerly course, flowing into Pickaway county.

PIONEERS AND SETTLERS.

The first settlements in Madison township were commenced as early as 1803 or 1804. One of the earliest of the pioneers was George Tounge, who settled on the run, where Wesley Lawrence now lives. He subsequently removed to Carroll, Fairfield county, and died there.

John Wright, sr., came from Pennsylvania, with his parents, David and Sarah Wright, who settled in Bloom township, Fairfield county. He married Catharine Dildine, and a short time afterward removed to Franklin county, and located on the farm now owned by Jeremiah Kalb; he died there, in 1815, at the age of about thirty-three. His widow subsequently married Joseph Dunnuck, whom she also survived. She finally went to Hancock county, where she died, in 1878, at her daughter's (Mrs. Wiley), at the advanced age of ninety-three. She had, by her first husband, three children, viz.: John, who still resides in Madison, where he was born, in 1805, being one of the first children born in the settlement; David, who lives in Hancock county, and Sarah (Mrs. Wiley), in Wood county. By her second husband, Mrs. Dunnuck had four children, the only survivor of whom is William Dunnuck, attorney-at-law in Columbus.

James Ramsey, a native of Pennsylvania, went to Virginia, when a young man, and there married Ruth Van Meter. They moved to Kentucky, then called the "backwoods," and a few years afterward removed to Ohio, with two children. They settled, and remained for two years, on the Scioto river, in this county, and, about 1805, moved to this township, entering a half section, where Edward's station now is. At first they occupied a rough log cabin; afterwards, a hewed log house, built as early as 1810, which is still standing, and occupied. James Ramsey died in April, 1828, aged sixty-two years, his wife surviving him some ten years. They had a family of twelve children, only two of whom now survive—Nancy, widow of Jacob Andreck, in Lancaster, and Susan, wife Kalita Sallee, near Groveport.

Samuel and Robert Ramsey, the former an elder, and the latter a younger brother of James Ramsey, came out at the same time. Samuel took up a quarter section just north of his brother, James. He remained single until about the age of sixty-two, when he married Mrs. Margaret Karshner, of Hamilton, and lived in this township until his death. Robert Ramsey settled just over the line, in Hamilton, on the bank of Big Walnut, and is further mentioned in the history of that township.

Stauffel Kramer moved in about 1805 or 1806, and located on the run where David Martin now lives. He died there not long after his settlement, and his death was one of the first that occurred among the pioneers. His sons, John, Daniel, and George, married, and resided in the township for a number of years, but finally moved west.

Another family by the name of Kramer—Louis, Philip, John, Michael, Adam, Jacob, and George, all brothers, moved in with their families from Pennsylvania, in 1807. Louis, who was a preacher of the United Brethren church, settled on Little Walnut creek, south of where Canal Winchester now is, and soon after erected a saw and grist-mill there. Philip located in the same vicinity, but afterwards removed to Hancock county. John settled a short distance north of Winchester, and lived in the neighborhood until his death, in 1853. His son, now living in Canal Winchester, was born in this township, in 1808, and assisted in clearing much of the land north of the village. Michael and Adam also settled in Madison, and Jacob and George in Plain township.

In the spring of 1805, George Kalb, sr., and family, consisting of his wife and four children, and his father, John Kalb, emigrated to Ohio from Frederick county, John Chaney Jr.

Maryland. They remained in Lancaster, Fairfield county, until August of the same year, when they moved to this township. George Kalb located on the northeast quarter of section fourteen, and his father, who resided with him, took up the northwest quarter of section thirteen. The family, the first two years of their settlement in the Madison wilderness, lived in a cabin constructed of puncheons, set up on end, and covered with clapboards. George Kalb, sr., and wife, on coming, got lost in the woods only a short distance from their home, and so dense was the forest in every direction, that they were unable to find their way out, and they consequently had to make a night of it in the woods. George Kalb, sr., was born June 1, 1760, and died March 20, 1836. His wife, whose maiden name was Mary Kiefer, was born June 26, 1774, and died May 9, 1846. Their children were Catharine, John, Margaret, George, Mary, Anna, Elisha, Jeremiah, Susan, Caleb, and Isaac, all now dead except four, viz.: Margaret (now Mrs. Ruse), George, Jeremiah, and Susan (Mrs. Gill), all of whom reside in this township; John Kalb, sr., died in 1815.

Among the earliest and most prominent of the pioneers of Madison were the Stevensons. John Stevenson came from Baltimore, Maryland, as early as 1805, and bought one thousand acres of land, mostly in sections eight and nine. He built his log house on the bank of Black lick creek, in section eight. In his house, some of the earliest meetings were held, as mentioned elsewhere. He was buried in the old burying-ground, on Black lick, the first regular burying place in the township. William Stevenson, a brother of John, came about the same time, with his family, from Baltimore, Maryland. He settled where Irvin Stevenson now lives, and resided there until his death. The family consisted of five daughters and two sons. Joshua occupied the homestead after his father's death. The present wife of Judge Chaney, of Canal Winchester, is a daughter of Joshua Stevenson. The other son, George K. Stevenson, is still living, and a resident of the township. He is now about ninety-two years of age. The daughters were: Sarah, Susan, Jemima, Mary B., and Ann B. Sarah married Zachariah Stevenson, her cousin, and lived most of her married life in Madison, but finally removing west. Susan and Jemima, who became the wives respectively of Robert Bowen and a man by the name of McKelvey, both died in this township. Mary married Samuel Taylor, a tavern-keeper, in Canal Winchester, in an early day. Ann married Nicholas Hopkins, and, after his death, her cousin, Joshua Stevenson, and resided, during the most of her life, in the township, dying April 13, 1873. Her oldest daughter, Mary B. Hopkins—now widow of John L. Stevenson—is a resident of this township.

Charles Rarey settled in Madison township in 1806, removing from Virginia, whence he came from Germany. He settled about two miles south of where Groveport now stands, purchasing the north half of section number four, and the south half of thirty-three. He occupied the farm on which he settled until his death. His children were: John, Adam, Charles, Benjamin, Parker, George, William, Catharine, Elizabeth, and Christina, all now deceased. Catharine became the wife of Philip Pontius; Elizabeth married Thomas Harmon; and Christina married Rev. John Solomon, an early Methodist preacher of Madison; John Rarey removed to Indiana; Charles, Benjamin, William, and Parker, all reside where the family first settled, William occupying the homestead; George lived in Pickaway county; Adam Rarey married Catharine Pontius, and settled where the Rarey mansion now stands, in Groveport. He kept a tavern there in his log house when the road was only marked by blazed trees. He afterwards erected a brick tavern. He was the father of John S. Rarey, the celebrated horse tamer. The mansion referred to was erected by John S. Rarey. Two daughters of Adam Rarey, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Whetsel, now reside near Groveport.

Matthew Taylor, and family, emigrated from Nova Scotia, in 1800, and settled in Chillicothe, where they remained until 1806, when they removed to this county. Mr. Taylor entered several sections of land, and settled near the mouth of Alum creek, in this township. He erected a grist- and saw-mill, a short distance above the mouth of the creek, and continued their operation until his death, in 1812; his wife died the same year. They were buried on their farm, and were the first persons buried in that vicinity. They had a family of eleven children. John A. married Elizabeth McKnight, of Greene county, Ohio; afterwards, came to Columbus, and was an early surveyor, being with General Foos; eventually, he removed to Missouri, where he died, in 1823; his widow returned to Franklin county, and died here. They had three children, the only survivor of whom is Mrs. James Taylor, of Truro township. The other children of Matthew Taylor were: James, Matthew, Elizabeth (Mrs. Wood), David, William, Robert, Samuel, Rebecca May (wife of Edward Elsey), Jeannette (wife of Samuel Crosset), and Isaac. All are now deceased, except, possibly, Robert, who is supposed to be living in Illinois. James was a captain of infantry, and was stationed, with his company, at a block-house in Delaware (now Marion) county, shortly after Hull's surrender; William and Samuel were ministers, the former a Methodist, and the latter a Presbyterian.

Samuel Taylor, a brother of Matthew, removed from Nova Scotia, at the same time, and settled on the farm now owned by Z. Vesey. His children were: Rebecca (Long), Matthew, John, David, Samuel, Elizabeth (Faulkner), James and Eleanor (Griffith). It is said that the average length of life of the Taylor families was over seventy years.

John Swisher and family came to Ohio from Sussex county, New Jersey, in 1805. They first settled in Fairfield county, where they remained until 1807, when they removed to this township. Mr. Swisher located northeast of where Groveport now is, on land belonging to his father-in-law, Frederick Peterson. He afterward changed his location to the school section, where he resided for upwards of forty years, finally removing to near Dublin, this county, where he died. His wife, Mary, died in 1836, and he afterward married Mrs. Shepherd, of Washington township. There are six children of John Swisher now living, as follows: Jacob, in this township; Thomas, in Crawford county; Frederick, in Groveport; Fama, wife of Absalom Peters, of Walnut township, Pickaway county; Maria (now Mrs. Miner), living in Hamilton township; (she married Michael Plum, and after his death David Miner, who is also deceased), and Mrs. Hoover, in Bucyrus, Ohio.

The Deckers—four brothers, Elias, Esau, Isaac, and John—emigrated to this county from the Shenandoah valley, Virginia. Esau came out first in 1805, making the journey on foot. Before starting on his long journey, he went into the woods, and cut a willow cane which he carried with him. After selecting and entering his land, he stuck his cane into the ground, and returned for his family, with whom he arrived the next year. When he came back, he found the green willow stick had taken root, and was growing. It continued to flourish, and is now a large tree on the land now owned by some of the descendants. Some time previous to his death, he expressed the wish that his coffin be made from the tree, but his sons persuaded him to let it stand. Mr. Decker raised a family of three sons and two daughters, all of whom settled and died in the vicinity of their father's settlement.

Elias Decker came soon after his brother Esau, and bought the southeast quarter of section thirty-six, where he made a home. He served as a soldier in the war of the Revolution, and was also in the war of 1812. Before his death he received a pension for his services in defense of his country. In about 1830, he removed to Hancock county, where he died at the age of ninety-nine years. He had nine children—Andrew, Coonrod, Elisha, Agnes, Catharine, Annie, Mary, Effie, and Penelope. All married and settled about here, at first, but after a time, three daughters moved west. The sons all died here, Andrew on the home place. He had four children, two of whom are still living—Elias, on the southwest quarter of section thirty-six, and Elizabeth, in Illinois.

Isaac Decker came out in 1811, and made his location on the southwest quarter of section one where, in 1817, he laid out the town of Middletown, afterwards called Oregon. The town did not improve, and remained but a small settlement. Mr. Decker opened a tavern in his log house at an early day, which he continued some thirty years. He was by trade a shoemaker, in which he was assisted by his wife, who had learned to patch and half-sole shoes. Their patrons paid them in clearing and logging. They raised twelve children, six of whom are living—two sons and two daughters in the northern part of the State; Mrs. Ellen Seymour, and Isaac F. Decker, in this township, the former on Walnut creek, and the latter in Canal Winchester.

John Decker, of the brothers mentioned, settled in Washington township.

William D. Hendren, accompanied by his wife and one child, came to Ohio from near Front Royal, Virginia, in 1806. He entered the east half of section thirty-five, in Madison township, Franklin county, and cleared a part of the land, on which he remained some five years, when he bought a quarter section belonging to Mr. Hushour, and situated a mile and a half northwest of Groveport. There was a small clearing on the land at the time of his purchase, and he continued the work until he had a good farm under cultivation. His children were Thomas C., Louisa, Daniel C., Samuel O., William, Mordecai, Isaac, who died in infancy, Sarah Ann, and Robert. Three of the children died in childhood; the others grew up in the township, and settled there. Samuel O. is the only one of the children now living. After his father's death, Samuel O. bought the interest of his brothers and sisters in the first purchase made by his father, which he now owns. Thomas remained on the old homestead, northwest of Groveport, where he died. His wife and two sons still occupy the property. Another son lives in Minnesota, and one in the northeast part of the State. A son of Daniel Hendren owns a farm near the canal, southwest of Groveport.

William Fleming, and a family by the name of Hesnauer, were early settlers on the Hendren place, but left many years since.

Frederick Peterson came to Madison township in 1807, from Sussex county, New Jersey, and located about a mile and a half northeast of Groveport, where he entered a half section of land. He died some ten years after his settlement, and none of the family are now left.

Thomas Gray was among the early pioneers of Madison township. He came from Maryland, when a young man, and married here Theodosia Huff soon after his arrival. They settled on the place now owned by their son, Alfred Gray—the southeast quarter of section four. He died in December, 1850, aged seventy-three years. His first wife died young, and he afterward married Harriet Hughes. By his first wife he had eight children, and seven by his second. Four of his first wife's children are living, as follows: Rebecca, wife of William Powell, in Missouri; Alfred, who married Rachel M., daughter of Archibald Powell, and lives on the old homestead; Harriet, widow of John Milburn, resides in Jefferson township; Jedediah, lives near Groveport. The children of the second marriage are scattered.

George Smith settled at an early date, on the west side of Walnut creek, in the south part of the township, where he cleared some land and planted an orchard, and had the first apples known in the country. He lived but a few years, and left a widow, Mrs. Abigail Smith, who occupied the place many years after his death.

Billingsly Bull was a very early settler near the present village of Groveport. In 1810 he was a justice of the peace in Madison township. At the present time, none of the family remain in the country, and but little information can be obtained regarding them.

Jacob Weaver owned a small farm, on the second quarter of section twenty-three, at an early day. He removed to Indiana many years ago, with his entire family.

Ezekiel Groom, born in New Jersey, in 1767, and his wife, Rhoda, a native of the same State, born in 1773, removed soon after their marriage, in 1790, from New Jersey, to Hampshire county, Virginia. There they lived until 1804, when they emigrated to Ohio, and took up their abode in the wilderness, on the waters of Walnut creek, now Pickaway county. Their location was that now occupied by Vause Decker, of whose father (Luke Decker) Mr. Groom rented. In 1807 they removed to this township, and located in section nine, near where the bridge crosses the creek. He died there August 1, 1836, and his wife November 13, 1859. They were both zealous christians, and active members of the Methodist Episcopal church, and were among the original members of the Hopewell class. They had a family of nine children, of whom Thomas, now living in Columbus with his daughter, Mrs. Chamberlain, in his eighty-fifth year, and Mrs. Hosea Britton, of Hilliard, are the only survivors.

"THE VESEY PLACE." RESIDENCE OF Z. VEZEY, GROVEPORT, FRANKLIN CO., OHIO.

Philip Pontius came from Berks county, Pennsylvania, ina bout 1807, and settled with his father on Kinnikinnick creek, near Kingston, Ross county. He married Catharine Rarey, and in 1809 settled on the second quarter of section nine, which he bought and improved. They raised four children: Christine, Charles, Elizabeth, and John. The latter was killed, at the age of eleven years, by the running away of a team of horses, near Delaware, Ohio; Christine was twice married, and died at Lockbourn; Elizabeth first married Dr. Guard, and after his death married Richard Long—she died at Columbus; Charles married Elizabeth Sharp, and owns the home farm, where he was born and raised. Their children live near by—one on the home farm.

John Tallman came from Virginia in 1808, and settled on the property now occupied by his son, Nathan, now among the older inhabitants of the township. Two sons of Nathan Tallman have an agricultural implement store in Canal Winchester.

Abraham Harris was also an early settler in the same vicinity.

John Sharp and wife came from Berks county, Pennsylvania, in 1808, and bought the second quarter in section thirty-three. He afterwards increased his possessions until he owned some four hundred acres of land, which he cleared and improved. His wife was Mary E. Harbine, from Reading, Pennsylvania, by whom he had nine children, all of whom lived to maturity. There were five daughters and four sons, but few of whom are now living. Elizabeth married Charles Pontius, and has spent her married life at the Pontius home, on section nine. The other children of John Sharp, with one or two exceptions, settled in Franklin county, where they remained during their life. Mr. sharp died in 1863, aged eighty-two years. His wife died in 1839, aged fifty-seven.

Samuel Brown, originally from Pennsylvania, came to Ohio when a single man, and in 1809, married in Pickaway county, Margaret Kelley, who came from Pennsylvania to Lancaster, Ohio, with her parents when twelve years of age. Soon after their marriage, they removed to this county, and settled in Madison, where their son, Matthew, now lives, on a quarter section of land. They built a rude log cabin in the woods without a floor, in which they spent the first five years of their married life. Mr. Brown's experience of pioneer life was in strange disproportion to that of his wife. In 1816, while at work in the clearing, he was killed instantly by a falling tree, leaving his wife with three little children. Seven years afterward, she married Oliver Codner, sr., whom she also survived. After her first husband's death Mrs. Brown dreamed that an angel appeared to her and comforted her with the assurance that she would live to be over ninety years of age, and to see her descendants in the fourth generation, which dream was more than fulfilled. She died in the summer of 1879, at the age of nearly ninety-three. She was born in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, November 28, 1787. She possessed an excellent physical constitution, and during the early years of her married life, in addition to her household duties, assisted her husband in the work of clearing the land and bringing it under cultivation. Of her three children born of her first husband, two are now living, viz: Matthew, on the old homestead, born June 22, 1811, and Elizabeth, wife of Jacob Powell, now living in Jackson county, Missouri. By her second husband Mrs. Codner had four children.

Emmor Cox settled on number two, section thirty, as early as 1810. He owned the entire quarter section, which he cleared and improved. He had a family, consisting of four sons and five daughters. Mr. Cox and two of his sons died on the property, and at his death it fell into the hands of his son, John Cox, who was a well-known and capable surveyor. He also died on the property, which was then sold. A son of John Cox now lives in the vicinity.

Henry Bunn came to Ohio in about 1810, and located in Ross county, where he remained until 1814, when he settled on land in number two, section six, Madison township, Franklin county, then owned by his wife's father, Mr. Pontius. He afterwards bought the north half of section eight, which land he cleared and improved. His wife was Elizabeth Pontius, to whom he was married in Ross county, and who became the mother of six children: Nancy, Frederick, Mary, Sarah, Henry, and Elizabeth. Henry and Sarah went to Lafayette, Indiana, where they now live; Nancy married Samuel Lautis, and settled in Jackson township; Frederick married Charlotte Rarey, by whom he had eight children—five now living; Nelson H. and Jefferson L., live on the home farm, and the others near by. Mrs. Bunn, now a widow, lives with her son, Jefferson L., on the home farm. Of the two remaining children of Henry Bunn, sr., Mary married Joseph Sharp, and settled in the township, and Elizabeth married Daniel Groom, and died in 1878.

Henry Whitsel, from Maryland, settled near Tarlton, Pickaway county, before 1800. His brothers, Isaac, John, Samuel, and Daniel, settled near him, about the same time. He married Elizabeth Saylor, and, in 1810, removed to Madison township, Franklin county, where he entered land south of Emmor Cox; he died in 1855, leaving several children, most of whom are now living in the west. His son, David, married Elizabeth Rarey, and has lived in the township since his birth, in 1810.

Henry Dildine settled on the southeast quarter of section number two, in the fall of 1810. Harmon Dildine also settled, at an early date, on the southeast quarter of section three, where he raised his family, consisting of six sons and one daughter. Robert F., his youngest son, now resides near Groveport; a daughter in the village, and another son at Hilliard. Andrew, Daniel, and John Dildine, moved out at the same time as Henry and Harmon.

James McClish moved in at an early date, and located on eighty acres of land, which is now owned by Charles Pontius. A son, William McClish, now lives in Hamilton township.

Samuel Bishop removed to this State, from New Jersey, in 1807. He first settled in Pickaway county, but a few years afterward, came to this township and settled on one hundred and sixty acres, in section four, which he cleared and improved. He afterward sold this farm to Philip Pontius, and moved to the west side of the creek, where he died, about the year 1842. Two of his children are at this time residents of Franklin county, viz.: Mrs. Young, living in Hamilton, and William H., in this township, on the homestead.

Abednego Davis was a very early settler on the third quarter of section twenty-six, which he partially cleared. He sold the property to William Seymour, and moved from the neighborhood.

John Gander came before 1812, and settled on a quarter of section twenty-nine, where he made a clearing and lived twenty or twenty-five years. He raised a family of seven children, several of whom married while living there. They finally sold the property and went to another locality—some to Hardin county.

Jacob Gander was also an early settler at Middletown, and served as justice of the peace in 1825, and again in 1828. None of the family have lived in the township for many years.

Jacob Rhoads and family came from Pennsylvania, and were among the early settlers in Madison township. They located in the northeast part of the township, on Black lick, near where S. Hempy now resides. John, a son of Jacob Rhoads, built a grist- and saw-mill on the creek, both of which were run until about 1844, when they went down. The Rhoads removed to Van Wert county, after selling to a man named Peters.

Simon Helpman came from Pennsylvania in 1840, and located in Violet township, Fairfield county. The part of the township in which he settled, was afterwards set off into Franklin county. He married Eve, daughter of Elias Decker, in 1812, and raised ten children, four of whom are now living: one in Hancock county; one in Indiana; one in Iowa, one, John, in Winchester, where he is engaged in business.

Michael Rohr and wife, and their sons, George and John, with their families, their son-in-law, John Smith and family, and Thomas Rothwell all moved in together from Bucks county, Pennsylvania, in the summer of 1816. The company, with one four-horse team and two two-horse teams, left their eastern homes on the fifth day of July, and were some six weeks on the way. Mr. Rohr, sr., bought the whole of section six which had been previously occupied by Henry Bunn, and on which a little improvement had been made. Mr. Rohr, at his death in 1818, divided his land among his three children above named, and some of it is still in possession of his descendants. George Rohr had a family of two sons and two daughters, the daughters dying when quite small. The two sons are still living: John, on a portion of the farm his grandfather originally owned, and William, in Hamilton township. The children of John Rohr, sr., were: Jacob, Charles, Samuel, Michael, John, and Sarah. Charles owns a farm of two hundred and fourteen acres in the eastern part of section six, and resides in the north part of the township, and John near Canal Winchester. Samuel lives in Wisconsin. Michael and Sarah are dead.

John, George, Philemon, Andrew and Cubbidge Needels emigrated to Ohio from Delaware. John and Philemon removed in 1802. John, then single, came down the Ohio river to Louisville in a canoe. He married there, and afterward came to this State, locating in Fairfield county. In 1811 he moved to this township. Philemon came a few years after John, and first settled in Fairfield county. In 1812, or 1813, he took up his residence where Mrs. Eliza Needels now lives, having purchased, in connection with his brothers, John and Andrew, the whole of section nine. He died in 1851. He had a family of thirteen children, of whom all are now dead, except three: Rachel Needels, widow of Thomas Needels, now nearly seventy-seven years of age; Anna, widow of Littleton Gray, both residing in this township; and Mrs. Rebecca Daily, living near Des Moines, Iowa. George Needels settled in Fairfied county, but removed later to Knox county. Cubbidge Needels moved out from Delaware in 1810; resided in Fairfield county two years, when he came to this township and took a lease of some land of his brother, Philemon's. Afterwards he leased a farm on the school section, on which he resided until 1821, when he removed to Plain township. His wife died soon after their removal to Ohio, in November 1810, and he was afterwards again married. He died in 1840.

William Elder settled on the first quarter in section eleven, about 1813 or 1814. He cleared and improved a farm, and built a brick house. His family consisted of three sons and two daughters, none of whom are now living. Mr. Elder's place of nativity was Scotland.

John Kile settled northwest of Groveport at an early day. He bought land which he cleared, and where he made a farm. Some of his descendants now live in the township.

Alexander Cameron came from New Jersey, and bought land in the third quarter of section ten. Here he made a home and raised a family. One of his daughters married Mr. Ramsey; another married Cornelius Black, and now lives in the township. Still another, married William P. Sharp, and died in Hamilton township.

Adam Haveley bought number three, in section three, where he made a home. He was a hard working man, and paid for his purchase by making and selling maple sugar.

Adam Sarber came from Pennsylvania to Ohio, in

HENRY C. SWISHER.

MRS. HENRY C. SWISHER.

(PHOTOS. BY BAKER. COLUMBUS. O.)

RESIDENCE OF HENRY C. SWISHER, MADISON TP. FRANKLIN CO. O.

1812, and bought the second quarter of section thirty-three, which he partially cleared and improved. After his death the property was divided among his children, five of whom afterwards went west; one settled in Columbus, one in Winchester, and one in Groveport.

Christian Sarber came in 1818, and located on the first quarter of section three, where he cleared the land and made a farm. In about 1836, he removed to Putnam county. A part of his former land is now owned by Daniel Leigh.

The Daylongs were among the first settlers on the first quarter of section thirty-four, but none of the family are now living in the vicinity.

John Rager came from Pennsylvania to Pickaway county, with his father, who settled on Pickaway plains. While living there he married Catharine Valentine, and in 1814 he settled in Madison township, Franklin county, where he bought the first quarter of section twenty-six, which he improved. He died in Marion county, Indiana. His children were Lanah, Elizabeth, Mary, Sophia, William, and John. The daughters all married and settled in different parts of the country; William died in Allen county, Indiana; Elizabeth died in Madison township; John married Elizabeth Conkle, by whom he had fourteen children, ten of whom lived to maturity. His wife died in 1857, and he married Mrs. Nancy Rower. They occupy the old home place.

Zebulon S. Leigh came from New Jersey to Ohio in 1817 or '18, accompanied by his brother, Elias. He settled on the farm of Luke Decker, in Madison township, Pickaway county, as a renter, and afterwards rented land of John Welton in Madison township, Franklin county, where he died in 1841. He was married in New Jersey, and left a wife and nine children: Samuel, Phebe, Mary Ann, Matilda, Louisa, Huldah, Charles, John S., and Daniel. Phebe married William English, and settled in Auglaize county. The other children remained in Madison, where three now live—Samuel, Huldah, and Daniel. Mrs. Leigh, with her daughter, Huldah, lives with Samuel, on the southeast corner of section thirty-four. Daniel owns a farm in number one, section ten, which was originally entered by Mr. Pilcher, and was partially cleared by Adam Sarber.

George Seymour, who was one of the early settlers of Madison township, came from Hampshire county, Virginia, in about 1818 or 1820, the date not being exactly known. Immediately after his arrival, he bought the fourth quarter of section twenty-seven, and soon afterwards added to them the second and third quarters of section twenty-six. His son, Moses, inherited number two, and Jesse, number three in section twenty-six; William had number four in section twenty-seven. John had the quarter east of Jesse's, where he died, leaving a widow and three children, one of whom married Andrew Wilson, and now lives on the place. Moses raised eight children, several of whom have died since arriving at maturity. Two live in Groveport. William married, and raised seven children. His widow and three children live on the home farm; the others in the township. Jesse raised eight children, of whom one son, Miner, lives on the home farm, and two others live near by.

William Patterson came from Pennsylvania in about 1820. He bought the west half of section three, where he built a home, and raised a family. He finally removed to Columbus, Indiana, but came back, and died in Madison township. The only one of the family now living here is Thomas Patterson.

James Sandy settled in Ross county in 1821. He remained there but a short time, when he went to Pickaway county, and from there to Washington township, Franklin county, in 1824. He lived there until 1862, when he removed to Madison township, with his son-in-law, Sylvester Crothers, where he died, aged eighty-one years. He was a soldier in the "Virginia Blues," during the war of 1812, and was encamped one winter at Franklinton. His children were: William, Eliza, Philip, Wesley, Uriah, Charlotte, James, Ermine, Erastus, Rebecca, Isacca, Delilah, and Albert. Mrs. Crothers (Delilah), and Mrs. Young (Rebecca), live in Madison; Charlotte lives with her brother, James, on section twenty-five, east of Groveport; Albert lives in Groveport.

Samuel Murphy was an early settler on the southwest quarter of section eight, which he cleared and improved. The place is now owned by his son, Samuel. F. M. Murphy lives on the northwest quarter of the adjoining section, seven.

Peter Long was an early settler in the southwest corner of the township, on section twelve. His son, George, now owns the property.

Wesley Toy came to Pickaway county in about 1826, where he leased land until 1828, when he bought eighty acres acres of land south of Groveport. While there he married, and in 1836 or 1837, he sold his land and bought in Madison township, Pickaway county. He remained there about nine years, when he again sold and returned to Franklin county, in 1848, and purchased a quarter-section of land in section thirty, where he died in 1861. At his death the property was divided between his three sons, and is now owned by his son, Charles, who purchased the interest belonging to the other heirs.

George Edwards came to Madison from Bucks county, Pennsylvania, in 1827, and settled where his son, John, now lives. He died about a year after his settlement, and his widow was subsequently married to Alexander Cameron. Mrs. Daniel Hendren, John, and Stephen S. Edwards, are the children of George Edwards now living. The first two live in this township, and the latter in Marion.

Philip King settled on the farm now occupied by Solomon and Daniel Detwiler, at an early date. He died in 1846. Samuel Detwiler moved on to the farm in 1854, having emigrated from Franklin county, Pennsylvania, in 1852. He died in 1874.

James B. Evans located in Winchester, in 1832, and engaged, as a tailor, with Thomas Kelley; he was born in western Pennsylvania, and passed his early life there. In 1833, he left Winchester, and engaged in business in Pickerington, where he remained until 1836, when he returned to Winchester, where he served as justice of the peace from 1843 to 1849, being the first magistrate elected in the village; he was, also, the first postmaster, a telegraph operator on a line from Lancaster to Columbus, in 1849, and the first mayor of Winchester. He was connected with the telegraph-office in Winchester six months, and was then operator at Circleville for two years. He is now the mayor of Winchester, a justice of the peace, and conducts a tailoring business. Mayor Evans has been actively identified with almost every enterprise tending to the general improvement of Winchester, having been, for years, an efficient member of the village government, of the board of education, and other oganizations.

Samuel Gares came from Bucks county, Pennsylvania, to Ohio, in May, 1835. For a number of years he kept hotel at Reynoldsburg, where he remained until 1847; he died in Groveport, in 1859. He raised a family of six children, all of whom were born in Pennsylvania, and all of whom are now living—Mrs. Mary Ann Long, Mrs. Catharine Root, and Snyder Gares, in Columbus; A. Bennett Gares, in Indiana; and Mrs. Anna Galbraith, in Bellefontaine, Ohio. Edmund married Mrs. Amelia Rarey, by whom he had four children; she died, and he married Miss Jennie Perrill, a daughter of Hon. A. L. Perrill, of Madison township, Pickaway county, by whom he has one child.

PIONEER TIMES IN MADISON.

It is difficult for the young people of the present day, who see only broad, well-tilled fields, homes of comfort and plenty, surrounded with many evidences of refinement and taste, the country dotted with school-houses and churches, to form anything like an adequate conception of the real conditions of pioneer life. Most of the early settlers had no money on their arrival in the wilderness, and those who were thus supplied were but little better off than those who were not, for the necessities of life were not purchasable. Everything had to be produced from the soil. The necessary capital was strong hands and brave hearts, indomitable energy and perseverance. It required no outlay of capital to build a house. A few hours' work in the woods provided the necessary material, and its construction required no skilled labor. To clear the land and bring it under cultivation required an immense amount of toil and hardship, but, when the work was accomplished, the soil yielded in bountiful measure. The woods abounded with game, especially in deer and wild turkeys, upon which the pioneers mainly relied for their meat. One of the most noted hunters among the early settlers of Madison was John Wright, sr. He was in the forest with his gun almost constantly, during a portion of the year, and kept the little settlement abundantly supplied with turkey and venison. Bears were not numerous, although they roamed through the township to a considerable extent and a number were killed during the first few years of the settlement. They would frequently attack and kill, or carry off, the hogs of the settlers. One Sunday morning a bear killed, only a short distance from his cabin, a hog belonging to John Swisher. Mr. Swisher was absent from home at the time, but his brother, Philip, was at the house, and he and Mrs. Swisher gave chase to the animal, which, after running about a quarter of a mile, ran up a hickory tree, when Swisher shot him. Wolves were numerous and very destructive, rendering the keeping of sheep exceedingly difficult.

One of the privations most keenly felt in those early times was the lack of milling facilities, by which the settler could get his grain ground into flour or meal. Sometimes days would be spent in going to mill and back. In the first settlement of the township the nearest mill was in Ross county—Crouse's mill, on the Kinnickinnick and it was no small undertaking to go that distance through an almost unbroken wilderness, and wait one's turn at the mill. Sometimes trips were made to Chillicothe, to Zanesville, and one of the early settlers, Cubbidge Needels, went to Urbana to mill, and consumed four days in making the trip. Walter Hughes, an early settler on the farm now occupied by John Rohr, jr., a short distance west of Canal Winchester, had a hand-mill, which the settlers were allowed to use, the proprietor requiring toll for the privilege. The mill was a cheap contrivance, consisting of a couple of small stones placed in rig between two or three upright poles. In the upper stone, near the circumference, a pole was inserted, the upper end being fastened to the top of the poles constituting the frame. With the pole thus inserted the stone was propelled by hand, and Jacob Fisher says he has turned the mill for many an hour while his mother dropped in the corn. During the early years of the settlement the produce raised by the settlers was almost without value. There was no home demand, and no means of transporting it to distant markets. Wheat would frequently be hauled to Zanesville, many miles distant, and there exchanged for salt, bushel for bushel. The clothing of the pioneers, for many years, was entirely home made. Almost every farmer raised his own flax, which his good wife spun and wove into cloth, five yards of which would make a full dress for a lady in those simple times. The men frequently wore pants either wholly, or in part, made of buckskin, and they were considered good enough to go to meeting in. The grandfathers and grandmothers of many who are now, as a result of their toil and privation, surrounded by everything necessary to comfort and happiness, lived in cabins, the floor of which consisted of split slabs, called puncheons, with a chimney constructed of sticks and clay mortar, and windows made by cutting out a log, putting sticks perpendicularly in the opening, and covering them with paper greased with bear's oil or hog's lard. The only music which gladdened the ears of the housewife was the busy hum of the spinning-wheel; with a splint broom, made by her husband, she swept the puncheon floor, and a sap-trough answered the purpose of a cradle for her babe, for in those days, particularly, the children did not cease to multiply and replenish the earth. The pioneers who lived through all these experiences and left to us the rich inheritance which we now enjoy, are worthy of grateful and lasting remembrance.

EARLY SCHOOLS.

The first school in the township was kept in a log cabin on the farm of the pioneer, George Kalb. Children living three miles distant attended this school. One of the earliest teachers was a man by the name of Calhoun. A school-house was shortly afterward built on Black lick, on the school-section. Among the first teachers of this school was William Arnold and William Purdy. The latter is remembered by some of his pupils who are still living—Jacob Swisher, George Needels and others—as being kept out of doors on one occasion until he would treat them. The treatment, however, which the scholars in those simple times usually received at the hands of the school-master, was o a radically different nature from that which, on this occasion, they extorted from the pedagogue, William Purdy. One of the earliest schools was kept in a log house, on Walnut creek, on the farm now owned by John Seymour. The teacher was an elderly man by the name of Fletcher. A school-house was also built at an early date on the farm of Jacob Algire, the first teacher of which was George K. Stevenson, son of William Stevenson, the pioneer. These school-houses were after the style of that early period, namely: "Dutch back" fire-place, puncheon floor and clap-board roof, and some of them even enjoyed the luxury of greased paper for windows. A school was taught in the west part of the township, on the McClish land (section four), in 1818, by Noah Bishop, in a log cabin, in which there was no floor. A school was taught a little further east, at a still later date, by Alexander Cameron. The youngest scholars, instead of an elegantly illustrated primer, had a single leaf from such spelling books as were then in use, which was pasted on a board, or piece of wood, and having handles, which they held in their hands. Dr. Wiley kept a school in section thirty-six, in 1817 or 1818. The first school, of any account, in the southern part of the township, was taught by Stewart Corner, near the old Hopewell church. Dr. Wiley was one of the first physicians to settle in the township, locating in the southern part. He came about 1816, or 1817, and, it is said, practiced with success, although not a regular physician.

CHURCHES.

The Methodists were the first to institute religious services in the township. They held meetings at the house of John Stevenson, one of the most active and prominent members of the church, as early as 1806. Meetings were held regularly at his house, John Kile's and other places for a number of years, when about 1820, a hewed log meeting-house was built near Mr. Stevenson's on Black lick creek. The first camp meeting was held in the same vicinity. The name of the original members of the Stevenson class, the writer is unable to give. The society was very prosperous, and embraced a large membership. The following are only few of the early members whose names can now be remembered, viz: John Stevenson and wife, Richard Stevenson and wife, Zachariah Stevenson and wife, Richard Derrick and wife, Philip Hooper and wife, Jacob Algire and wife, John Algire and wife, George Powell and wife, Archibald Powell and wife, and Philemon Needeles and wife. But few of these joined at the time of the organization of the class. Revs. John Bigelow, Charles Waddell, and John W. Powers were prominent among the early preachers on this circuit. About 1840 the old meeting-house was abandoned, and a frame house built about a mile further west, near the site of the present brick church, called Asbury chapel. The frame meeting-house was used until December, 1872, when the present building was completed. This is a very neat and commodious house, costing about seven thousand dollars. The membership of the church is about seventy-five. Rev. A. C. Kelley, resident at Canal Winchester, is pastor. The trustees are Matthew Brown, Thomas Patterson, William Bullen, and Henderson Miller. The church has a large Sabbath-school, of which Madison Bennett is superintendent.

THE LUTHERAN CHURCH

of Canal Winchester was organized in 1839, under the ministrations of Rev. Mr. Wagenhals, as David's congregation. Previous to this time, members of the congregation had attended services at Zion's church, in Bloom township, Fairfield county. Soon after the organization of the new congregation, a union church edifice was built, in connection with the Reformed church of Winchester, which building is still used conjointly by the two congregations. The church, since its organization, has been under the pastorate of Revs. Messrs. Wagenhals, Wernle, Eirich, and Mochel, and is, at present, cared for by Rev. H. J. Schuh.

HOPEWELL CHURCH.

There are some incidents, connected with the origin of this old society, of an exceedingly interesting character. In 1804, Ezekiel Groom and family, as elsewhere stated, removed from Hampshire county, Virginia, to Madison township, now Pickaway county, and settled on Walnut creek, building their cabin where Vause Decker now lives. After about three weeks spent in settling his family and putting in his spring crop, Mr. Groom started out in search of Methodists. About nine miles distant, a little south of where Bloomfield now stands, in Pickaway county, he found a settler by the name of Bishop, who had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church in Virginia. The next morning, which was the Sabbath, Groom and Bishop set out for the old village of Toby Town, near the present site of Royalton, Fairfield county, where they had heard there were Methodists living. When near the place, they fell in with two men, who, on inquiry, informed them they were Methodists, and on their way to class-meeting. These men were Broad Cole and Jeremiah Williams. Groom and Bishop attended the meeting, after which they returned to their homes. Mr. Groom, wishing to attend the meetings regularly, and believing there must be a nearer way than that which he and Bishop had traveled, which was eighteen miles in extent one way, he and his neighbor, William Bush, set out in search of it. They called at an Indian camp in the neighborhood, and inquired of the Indian, Billy Wyandot, the distance in a direct line through the wilderness to Toby Town. The Indian held up his eight fingers, signifying eight miles. Billy was employed to pilot them through. Groom took his axe, and Bush and the Indian their guns, and started. Groom blazed the way as they went, and cut out a path as they returned, thus providing a short route to meeting. Soon after this, the well-known pioneer Methodist preacher, Rev. James Quinn, was appointed to the Hockhocking circuit, and made Toby Town one of his regular preaching places. Soon after he came, Mr. Groom conducted the preacher, by way of his new road, from Toby Town to the house of William Harper, near where Lockbourn now is, where he organized the first class on Walnut creek. Mr. Quinn organized, in 1805, at the cabin of Ezekiel Groom, the Hopewell society, which was then, and until a church was erected, called the Groom class. The little band was composed of nine persons, as follows: Ezekiel Groom, his wife, Rhoda, and their two daughters, Mary and Sarah; William Bush and wife, Nancy; and Mrs. Nancy Burton and daughters, Lucy and Betsey. Meetings were held at Mr. Groom's log house—with the exception of about two years, when they were held at Jeremiah White's—until the erection of the old Hopewell meeting-house, which was a frame, and stood about a quarter of a mile up the creek from the present church, where the old graveyard still is. In 1844, the society built, on the Pickaway county line, the house now in use. Among the early preachers (after Mr. Quinn) who rode this circuit, which was then Scioto circuit, were the Revs. Messrs. Benjamin Lakin, Lotsspeech, Axley, and William Swazey. Of this church, Mr. Thomas Groom, son of the pioneer settler and Methodist, Ezekiel Groom, and now nearly eighty-five years of age, was a member for sixty-three years, having joined in 1816, and only a few months since took a letter to unite with the church in Columbus, where he now resides. Mr. Groom was also a class-leader of the church for over fifty years. The church now numbers about sixty members, consisting of two classes, of which Charles Pontius and John F. Rainier are the leaders. This is now the Groveport circuit, and the pastor is Rev. J. M. Rife, appointed in the fall of 1879. The Sabbath-school was organized in 1823 or 1824, of which George W. Glaze was the first superintendent, and continued as such until 1835, when he removed to Indiana. His successors have been: Alexander Cameron, until 1843; Father Rainier, two or three years; Jeremiah White, five years, with the exception of one year, during which William Pyle officiated. From that time, until 1860, the office was filled by Charles Pontius and Henry Long, followed by D. R. Groom. The present superintendent is F. G. Pontius.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

of Groveport, is the offspring of the Hopewell church, and was organized in 1836 or 1837. A one-story brick building was erected, which remained in use until the year 1851, when it was removed, and the present neat and commodious edifice was built. The present membership is one hundred and eighty, the class being considerably the largest on this—the Groveport circuit. The pastor is Rev. J. M. Rife, appointed in the fall of 1879 in Canal Winchester, was organized, as a class, in 1837, in the United Brethren church, which was occupied by the Methodists, once in two weeks, until 1850. The early members were: Michael Ebright (who was the first class-leader) and wife, Joseph Wright and wife, Elizabeth Hathaway, Nancy Hathaway, and others—about nine members in all. The church was on Worthington circuit, in 1838. In the fall of 1839, the circuit was divided, and this appointment was then embraced in the Lithopolis circuit. It was afterwards set off into Pickerington circuit, then Groveport circuit, and now Winchester circuit. Since 1839, Lithopolis circuit has been divided so as to form three circuits. It is not now known who was the circuit preacher when the church was organized, but in the fall of that year (1837), Revs. James Gilruth and Andrew Murphy were on the circuit. In 1850, the congregation built a good brick church, on West street. In 1878, an addition of ten feet was built to the front of the church, and a tower was erected. The church was also generally repaired, and new windows were put in. Rev. A. C. Kelley is the pastor for 1879–80. The present membership of the church is seventy-five or eighty. A Sabbath-school has been sustained since the first organization of the church. Until 1850 it was held as a union Sabbath-school, in connection with the United Brethren, but since the building of their own church, has been conducted independently. The average attendance is seventy-five, and the school is superintended by R. R. Mills, principal of the village schools.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

THE UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH,

in Canal Winchester, was first organized in 1813 or 1815. Meetings were held at private houses, and at the old log school-house, until 1833, in which year the quarterly conference met at the house of David Kramer, and it was decided to erect a frame church. Among the early members were Ludwick Kramer, Francis Clymer, John Bower, James Drake, William Roads, Adam Kramer, John Kramer, David Kramer, John Coleman, Reuben Dove, Elias Smoltz, John Russell, P. Elder, and others. In 1834, the quarterly conference was held in Winchester meeting-house, which had been completed in 1833. In that year Rev. William Handy was the presiding elder, and Rev. Joshua Montgomery, preacher in charge. The conference was known as Scioto conference, on Lancaster circuit. On August 6, 1834, the circuit was divided, and was called Winchester circuit. For some years after the erection of the church building, the Methodists occupied it a part of the time. In 1850, the old frame church was removed, and in 1851 a substantial brick church was erected on the same ground. In 1877 the congregation erected a neat brick parsonage for the use of their pastor. The present membership of the church is sixty-six. A Sabbath-school of over one hundred members, is conducted under the superintendence of John Helpman, who has always been one of the leading and most energetic members of the church.

A United Brethren church was organized in Groveport in the winter of 1856. The same year, a brick building was erected on Front street, at a cost of about fourteen hundred dollars, and in September it was dedicated. Among the early members, and those instrumental in erecting the church building, were John Helpman, George Nye, B. H. Kearns, John Kramer, Henry Kramer, Ervin Moore, James G. Howell, and others. Services were kept up at this church until about 1869, when the congregation became so small through removals and deaths, that the organization was suffered to go down, and in 1870 or 1871, the building was sold to the Roman Catholics. Rev. Mr. Fisher was the last preacher that ministered to the congregation, which at one time consisted of some fifty members.

George Needels.

TRURO PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This society was organized by Rev. Dr. Hoge in 1820. The organization consisted of the Taylor, McComb, Long, Patterson, and Chester families. A frame meeting-house was subsequently erected, the ground for which, including a grave-yard—the whole consisting of about three acres—was given by William Patterson. The first burial in the grave-yard was his daughter, Jane Patterson. A strange incident is connected with that event. When the question of laying out the burying-ground was being considered, the young lady urged her father not to delay the matter lest some one in the neighborhood should die in the meantime and be buried elsewhere. In less than a week from that time she herself was entered in the new burying-ground. In 1835 the frame church was replaced by the brick one, which is still standing. The Truro church was once quite prosperous—one of the strongest in the Presbytery. From several causes it gradually declined, and for a number of years there has been no organization. The successive pastors of the church, have been: Revs. Matthew Taylor, Abner Leonard, Elias Vandeman, John M. Fulton, J. D. Smith, John Scott, John Arthur, Andrew Barr, and W. Maynard.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

of Groveport was organized, and the building erected, in 1854. The original members of the society, were: Samuel Sharp and wife, Perry Dildine and wife, Mr. Beggs and wife, William Henderson, Abram Sharp, Mrs. Patience Sharp, William Paul, Mrs. Eliza Ann Ferguson, Damaris R. Champe, Jane and Sarah Wright. The first ruling elders chosen, were: Samuel Sharp, Perry Dildine, and Mr. Beggs. Rev. Mr. Wilson was the first pastor, and after him successively, as follows: Rev. Messrs. Maynard, Irvin, Schofield (after whom the church was without a pastor for two years), Creath, Stevenson, Reynolds, Kingery, and Downs.

A Baptist church was organized in this township over fifty years ago. The early meetings were held at John Swisher's and William D. Hendren's, two of its leading members. A small frame church was subsequently erected near where the toll-gate, west of Groveport, now is. The society finally split, on account of a difference in doctrinal views, and the larger portion of the church withdrew, and afterwards built a frame church (still standing) in Groveport. Nothing now remains of either society.

THE REFORMED CHURCH, of Canal Winchester, was organized in a school-house, a mile south of the town, in 1836. Meetings were held at the school-house for a period of six months, after which they were held at private houses, in Winchester, until 1840, when the members of the congregation, in connection with the members of the Lutheran church, built a union church. The Reformed church was organized by Rev. George Weiss, who preached for them a number of years. He was succeeded by his son, Rev. I. S. Weiss, and he by Rev. James Heffley, now editor of the Winchester Times. Rev. Eli Keller followed Mr. Heffley, and, in 1874, he was succeeded by Rev. S. P. Mauger, who has had charge nearly six years. Among the first members were: Samuel Loucks and Chistine, his wife, John Small and wife, George Dietz, and John Shrock and wife. There are now about one hundred and twenty-five members, and a Sabbath-school with an average attendance of one hundred, of which George T. Bareis is superintendent.

THE MENNONITE CHURCH,

near David Martin's, was formed about the year 1845. George Hoffman and wife, and Abraham Lehman and wife, were the first members. The meetings of the society were held at the dwellings of the members until about 1850, when the small frame house, now in use, was erected. Rev. John Good, who lived in Fairfield county, was the first regular preacher. Rev. John Breneman was the first resident preacher. Rev. Jacob Bowman now ministers to the congregation, which numbers about twenty members.

ST. MARY'S CATHOLIC CHURCH was organized in 1871, in which year the congregation purchased the building erected by the United Brethren church, at that place. Ten families are now connected with the church, which has a membership of fifty-five or sixty. Revs. N. A. Gallagher, L. P. McKeirnan, F. J. Campbell, H. Anderson, T. J. Lane, and others, have conducted services here since its organization.

There is no history given of the Lutheran church at Canal Winchester, because of the failure of the pastor to furnish the sketch, as requested.

The first burying-ground in the township, regularly laid out as such, it is believed, was the Hopewell church grave-yard, near the site of the first meeting-house. There are several burial-places in the township, one of which deserves special mention. This is the beautiful Union Grove cemetery, near Canal Winchester. It was established under the general law of the State, providing for the incorporation of cemetery associations, passed February 24, 1878. The first meeting held for the purpose of forming an association, was held in the public reading room, at Canal Winchester, on the evening of November 19, 1877. At this meeting the articles of association were adopted, and the following persons elected as trustees to serve one year, viz: Philip Game, E. B. Decker, O. P. Chaney, J. S. Lehman, and P. E. Ehrenhart. On the fourth of December, following, the trustees held a meeting and elected Philip Game, president; E. B. Decker, treasurer; and James Heffley, secretary. The cemetery consists of thirteen acres, and was purchased by the association from Tallman. The grounds were laid out during the summer of 1878, and on the sixth day of September, were dedicated with appropriate ceremonies.

MILLS AND OTHER ENTERPRISES.

The first grist-mills erected in the eastern part of the county, were those of Matthew Taylor, sr., and John Sharp, located in this township, the former on Alum creek, near its mouth, and the later farther down, on Walnut creek, where the Lancaster pike now crosses it. They were built about the year 1806, or 1807, and not a vestige of them now remain. The Taylor mills were destroyed by fire. A saw and a grist-mill were built on Little Walnut, south of Winchester, at an early date, by Louis Kramer, and a like enterprise engaged in by John Rhoads, on Black lick, in the northeast part of the township. Besides the grist-mills mentioned in connection with the villages of Winchester and Groveport, are the large and excellent Empire mills, on the canal, west of Winchester. They were erected by Judge Chaney and son, O. P. Chaney, in 1851–2, and were so constructed that whenever there should be an insufficiency of water, steam power could be employed. The Messrs. Chaney, a number of years after, sold to Joseph Rosenfeld, sr., who subsequently failed, and the property was purchased, at assignee's sale, by Samuel Bartlit. The present owner of the mill is Charles B. Cowan, to whom they were given by his uncle, Mr. Bartlit.

A carding and fulling factory was built at lock number nineteen, on the canal, in 1833 by Isaac and George Cowden, and John B. Thompson. It consisted of two carding-machines and a fulling-mill. Judge Chaney bought the interest of the Cowdens, and John M. Shock bought Thompson's. In 1851 Mr. Shock sold to Judge Chaney, who moved the machinery down to lock twenty-one, where he erected another building and added to the machinery. The property continued in operation until within a year or two.

Thomas Rathmell, who moved in with the Rohrs in 1816, was one of the first blacksmiths in the township. He first kept his shop in the Rohr settlement, but a few years after, removed to the Groveport pike, where he carried on the business many years. Benjamin Rarey established a tannery on his farm, in section four, about 1820. Ezekiel Groom was the pioneer cooper of Madison, and was a useful mechanic to the infant settlement, manufacturing the necessary wooden articles so much in use in the early times.

The pioneer taverns of Madison were kept by Isaac Decker and Adam Rarey. Decker opened a tavern in his log house, in the old village of Middleton, at a very early date, and kept it for many years. Rarey built a log tavern, where Z. Vesey now lives. as early as 1812, and before the road was opened. He afterwards erected a brick tavern.

The early elections in the township were held at the old tavern of Adam Rarey, where the residence of Z. Vesey now stands. The first records have not been preserved, and the writer was unable to obtain the name of the first township officers elected. The present township officers are as follows: Clerk, C. Black, jr.; trustees, Moses Seymour, Elias Decker and William Sims; treasurer, J. F. Kile; constables, William Shrock and B. C. Sims; justices of the peace, James B. Evans, of Canal Winchester, and Leonard Sarber.

About the year 1824 or '5 George H. Stevenson constructed a flat-boat on Big Walnut, which he loaded with flour and pork at Sharp's mill, and Daniel Ross and others took the cargo to New Orleans. Ross died there of yellow fever. This was the first and only trip of the kind made down Big Walnut.

VILLAGES.

In the year 1817, the now almost vanished town of Oregon was laid out by Isaac Decker. It was first called Middletown, but in 1830 or 1831, the name was changed to Oregon. The first post-office in the township was established there in 1829, with Dr. Thomas Hersey as postmaster. He held the office until 1833, when he resigned, and Isaac D. Decker, was appointed. When the post-office at Groveport was established, in 1844, that at Oregon was discontinued.

Canal Winchester is a well-built, stirring little town, of about one thousand inhabitants, situated on the east line of the township. The town was laid out on the east side of High street, south of the canal, by Reuben Dove, in the year 1826, or 1827. A short time afterward, John Coleman laid out a number of lots on the opposite side of the street, and subsequently an addition was made on West street by David Dixon. Other additions have since been made. Henry Dove, the father of Reuben, was the original owner of the land on which the town is located, having entered a quarter section in 1806 or 1807. The town was originally named Winchester, after Winchester, Virginia, from the vicinity of which the Dove family had emigrated. The word "canal" was added to distinguish it from other places in the State of the name of Winchester. The village was embraced within the bounds of Fairfield county until 1851, when, by the annexation of six sections to the east side of Madison township, it was thrown into Franklin county.

The first store was opened by Jacob L. Vance, a contractor on the canal. He kept a small stock of goods, suitable for the demands of the laborers in his employ, in a log house south of the canal.

In 1832 Jacob Carty and Israel Julian started a store, which was afterwards continued by Carty alone for many years. David Dixon brought in a stock of goods, and opened a store about 1832, and in 1839 John F. and Samuel Bartlit commenced in trade. Samuel Bartlit, after a few years, bought out his brother, and continued the business alone until the fall of 1856, when he sold to his nephew, Samuel Pond, who died in August, 1857. In the fall of that year, Christian and David Gayman established a store, and have continued in merchandise from that time to the present, with substantial success. The Gaymans, five brothers—Daniel, David, Christian, Israel, and Moses—came to Canal Winchester in 1843, and they are all now residents of the town. Tallman, Allen & Co., afterwards Tallman, Speak & Co., was at one time a mercantile firm of Canal Winchester, and they erected, about 1852, the building now occupied by was born in Madison township, Franklin county, Ohio, August 26, 1810. His father, John McGuffey, came to Madison township in 1803, from Limestone, Kentucky, and his mother, Elizabeth Sworden, from Virginia, in 1805. He is descended on his father's side from the McGuffeys and McDowells, who came out from Scotland in 1745–6, and settled in the mountains of Pennsylvania, and from there removed to Kentucky, immediately after the war of the Revolution. At the time of his birth, in 1810, there were but few families in the township, the Indians being more numerous than the whites, and all the wild animals that were common to the forest before the advent of the white man, were still abundant and troublesome. The streams were full of drifts, and no bridges or highways. Mills and other conveniences were scarce. The subject of this sketch endured all the privations and hardships that were the common lot of the children of poor people at that early day, and grew up in the midst of the wilds of the magnificent forests of that fertile region, with but little opportunity for obtaining the learning of the schools, but having the great book of nature about him, which he carefully studied, and which expanded and strengthened his naturally strong and vigorous mind. From the age of nine years he had to rely entirely upon himself for his support. Being strong, intelligent, and willing, he found abundant employment; and by the use of hickory bark, for a light at night, while others slept, he acquired sufficient knowledge of the common branches of education, so that at seventeen years of age he engaged during the winter season in teaching school. During the spring, summer, and autumn he would take jobs of clearing and work in the woods. At nineteen years of age he was married to Pamalia, daughter of Richard Courtright, esq. This was the great good fortune of his life. His young wife was one of the most beautiful, modest, industrious, and lovable of maidens, and two years his junior, and of a very superior family of Holland Dutch. The young couple at once engaged in farming leased lands, with great success. The husband spent his evenings and leisure hours in reading aloud to his wife from good books and papers, while the good wife busied herself with the household cares. They had born to them eleven children, eight of whom grew to man-and womanhood, and to whom they were enabled to give the advantages of academic and collegiate educations. By integrity, industry, and economy, from tenants they became owners of thousands of acres of land in Franklin and other counties in Ohio. They lived together, as man and wife, for nearly forty years, when on the thirteenth of September, 1869, the dear wife and mother passed to her last rest. Mr. McGuffey, now in his seventieth year, is a vigorous, intelligent, strong man. While he has acquired a large landed estate, he has not neglected the cultivation of his mind by the study of mathematics, astronomy, philosophy, chemistry, and other branches of natural science, and the careful study of ancient and modern history and current events. He is really, although a quiet farmer, one of the learned men of his time. He has given great attention to the subject of underdraining and the reclaiming of wet and low lands. Indeed, he is a pioneer in this mode of improvement, having commenced in 1839. He has given much thought and had large experience in both surface and underdraining. He has long advocated that it is the duty of the State and local authorities to organize such a system of drainage as would prevent all water from becoming stagnant, thereby making all land productive, and thus removing all miasms, which have been man's greatest enemy, from our beautiful State.

JOHN McGUFFEY

MRS. PAMALIA McGUFFEY.

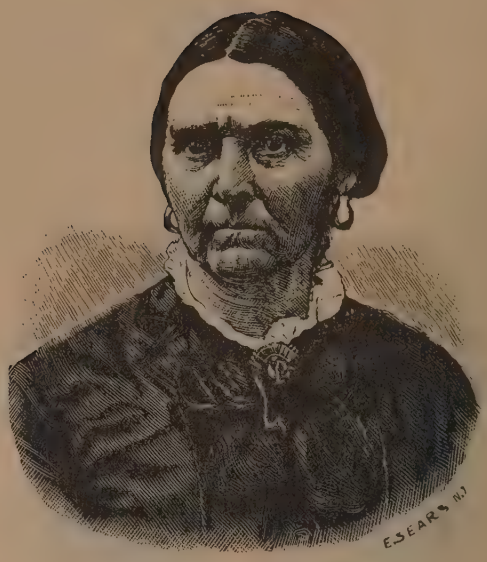
From his childhood, until he arrived at the age of thirty years, he was intimately associated with grandparents who had taken a prominent and active part in all the stirring scenes, and had vivid recollections of all the incidents and hardships of pioneer life in Western Pennsylvania, Kentucky, and Ohio, from 1770. They were strong, brave, and hopeful people, knowing no fear, and shrinking from no difficulties. Descended from such parentage, and under such influences, he naturally sought great and difficult undertakings, and is best satisfied when he has on hand some enterprise taxing to his utmost extent his mental and physical abilities. His latest great enterprise was to deepen and widen the bed of the Scioto river, in Hardin county, Ohio, thereby reclaiming many thousands of acres of very rich soil, which, to be successful, his clear mind saw must be done by a slow and gradual process. For twenty years he has devoted his time, his thoughts, and large sums of money to his favorite undertaking, until now he can pasture five thousand head of cattle, and he confidently expects to see three hundred thousand bushels of corn produced annually upon his lands, and that in future generations that which he has reclaimed from the waste of waters shall make homes for and sustain five hundred families.

JOHN BLACKWOOD.



MRS. JOHN BLACKWOOD.

THE BLACKWOOD FAMILY.

The estate of Hollywood, in county Down, near Belfast, Ireland, and known as the Blackwood estate, being an entailed property, fell to the eldest son of the family, and the youngest son, as is always the case where an estate is entailed, was left the alternative of becoming a clergyman in the established church, or of entering the military or naval service of the government. The younger son of the Blackwood family, in 1736, entered the English navy and embarked as an officer under Commodore Anson, in a voyage of discovery and conquest around the world. Previous to this he was married, and he left behind a wife and two sons, James and Robert, with no provision for their support other than his pay as an officer in the navy. The voyage was a successful one, and from his prize money, added to his pay, he was able to support his family. These prizes were taken from among the Spanish fleet and merchantmen, and from enforced contributions levied, as was then the custom, on seaports and cities captured. He again sailed, under Commodore Drake, and on the return of the ship from a seven years' voyage, as they were entering the port of Carrickfergus, Ireland, whence they sailed, he was struck from the bulwarks by the main boom, and sent to a watery grave.

The widow of this brave officer, with her sons, James and Robert Blackwood, were left almost destitute, while the son of the heir to the estate became a wealthy member of the Irish parliament, and on June 7, 1800, for his energy in supporting the Act of Union, was created a peer of the realm. The heir to the title and estate of Blackwood is now Lord Dufferin, late governor general of Canada.

The two sons of the naval officer, James and Robert Blackwood, were apprenticed to the linen manufacturing business, in which James became very expert in the making of fine work. Robert followed plain weaving, and after a time invented a machine for warping the linen, which worked to perfection. He took a farm and bought yarn at the markets. He also had seven looms in his house, and became quite an entensive linen manufacturer. After engaging in business he married Miss McCullen, by whom he had fourteen children. His wife died, and in the course of time he married Ellen Berry, by whom he had four children; one died while young, and the others emigrated to the United States, where they now live. Jane married Neil Shannon, and with him settled in Canada in 1833, and in 1838 they came to Franklin county, and located in Lockbourne. James came to the United States in about 1865, bringing his wife at the same time. They settled near Eddyville, Iowa, on land given his wife by deed. John Blackwood was born in county Antrim, at Crossmary, in Ireland, June 27, 1815. His parents lived three miles from the sea-port of Carrickfergus, a walled city. He obtained a limited education at the free schools of the time, and when sixteen years of age, in company with a neighbor boy, Hugh Semple, influenced by the glowing accounts they heard of America, sailed for the land they wished to see and know. They left Belfast May 12, 1832, and arrived in Baltimore, Maryland, Jnly 3, of the same year. For some time they wandered the country over, making a temporary home at Pittsburgh. Their intention was to settle in Ohio, of which State they had heard glowing accounts before leaving their native country. During the winter of 1832-3 they worked on the construction of the National road, through the State, under the superintendence of General Scott, Commodore Stockton and Colonel Brewerton, the engineers. Mr. Blackwood was promoted to the place of a foreman in the work, at which he continued until the work was completed to Jefferson, and the work was suspended by the government in 1835.

After leaving his work for the government he secured a school in the neighborhood wherein he now lives. While teaching school he met, and married, Christine Smith, a daughter of Jacob Smith, who was a very early settler in Pickaway county. After marriage he taught school during the winter season, and worked at house-building and carpenter work during the summer, continuing the latter business for about forty years. In 1841 he bought a farm of one hundred and seven acres, part in the southeast corner of Madison township, Franklin county, and a part across the line in Fairfield county. They settled on this farm, where they have since lived, with the exception of five years spent in Lithopolis, Fairfield county. Mr. Blackwood invented a corn planter in 1855, and the time spent in Lithopolis was devoted to the manufacture of this machine, in connection with other agricultural implements, and conducting a blacksmith shop. Though never an apprentice to any trade, he has great ingenuity, and has applied it in many directions. Since he came to this country he has been a close student and observer, and has acquired a good understanding of all subjects that attract general attention.

The children of John and Christine Blackwood were: Reuben, born July 29, 1839, who married Jennie E. Welton, May 22, 1862, and now conducts a hardware and stove business in Lithopolis; James M., born February 6, 1841, who married Barbara Whaley, September 2, 1862, and who is now postmaster, and owns a grocery store in Lithopolis; Sarah A., born July 20, 1843, who married Henry M. Brown, June 23, 1863, and now lives in Iowa; Jacob Smith, born March 16, 1845, who married Maggie L. Glick, September 24, 1868, and they now live near Columbus, Indiana, where they were married; Mary Christine, born August 24, 1847, and who died June 12, 1848; Pauline, born May 28, 1849, who married Samuel W. Woods, near Montmouth, Illinois, February 6, 1868, and have since removed to Cass county, Iowa, where they now live; Samuel W., born July 30, 1851, who now lives at home; Henry Caleb, born July 4, 1853, who is now a salesman in Osborn's carpet store, in Columbus; Marion Elizabeth, born September 5, 1855, who married John L. Green, August 31, 1876, and who now lives in Lithopolis.

the dry goods store of Spielman Bros., who began here under the name of Weisman & Spielman, in the spring of 1872.

A post-office was established in the year 1841, and James B. Evans, the present mayor and justice of the peace of the village, was appointed the first postmaster. The office was kept in a frame building on Waterloo street, which is now used for a dwelling. Mr. Evans held the office nine years when he resigned, and removed from the town. His successors have been Dr. J. B. Potter, Peter Koag, David Gayman, and the present incumbent, J. K. Miller. Mayor Evans was the first justice of the peace in Canal Winchester, and he has been identified with the town in some official capacity, almost continuously, since his location here in 1832.

The first tavern in the village was opened in a two-story frame building on what is now Columbus street, near the site of the present residence of John H. Spielman. It was opened by Peter C. Benadum, soon after the town was laid out. The next tavern was kept in the frame building, just south of the canal, by Samuel Taylor. A tavern, part frame and part log, was built on the lot now owned by the corporation, of which Ira Mason was the first proprietor. The Commercial hotel, now conducted by J. M. Schoch, was erected about the year 1852, by Peter Koag. The Merchants hotel was built in 1871, by Isaac Ebright, and kept by him some three years, when he sold to Jonathan Boyer, who leased it to Aaron Feustermaker. L. W. Boyer, the present proprietor, purchased the property in 1877. In 1876 Mr. F. Leonard made considerable additions to his one-story frame dwelling, and in February, 1879, opened it as a hotel. It is known as the Leonard house.

Canal Winchester has always been an important point with respect to its grain business. The first warehouse erected was a log structure, built in 1833 or 1834, just north of the basin. In 1837, Hathaway & Glendening put up a frame warehouse, east of the basin, and in 1847 or 1848, Samuel Bartlit erected a large building, near the site of the old log warehouse. These buildings, then belonging to O. P. Chaney, were destroyed by fire, June 2, 1878. This was the most extensive fire the village has ever sustained. As early as 1834 or 1835, Carty & Rogers built a frame warehouse, where the large elevator now stands, just west of the bridge, which said elevator was erected about the year 1841. The present grist-mill of Whitehurst, Lehman & Carty was built in 1868, and the large and excellent elevators of O. P. Chaney in 1878.

A prominent early business man of the village was Hiel Brockway, who ran a daily line of packets from Lockbourn to Cleveland, with his headquarters at Canal Winchester. He erected the old yellow warehouse, south of the canal. Brockway finally removed to Brockport, New York, where he died. A large portion of his property here was subsequently purchased by Mr. Bartlit.

SCHOOLS.

The first school in the village was held in a frame building, which stood on the site of the present residence, formerly a school-house, of J. S. Stevenson. The frame building was replaced, about 1848, by a one-story brick school-house, which was used until 1862, when it was sold, and afterwards converted into a dwelling. It is now occupied by Mr. Stevenson, as before stated.

The town constituted the eighteenth school district of Madison township, until April, 1868, when a school was organized under the Union school law. The first school board elected was composed of the following members: James H. Somerville, and James B. Evans, elected for three years; Dr. A. A. Short, and Christian Gayman, for two years; C. P. Rees, and M. Allen, for one year. Somerville was chosen president of the board; Evans, secretary, and Gayman, treasurer. The present school building was erected in 1861, but has since been remodeled and additions made. The cost, with the grounds, was about eight thousand dollars. The successive principals of the school have been as follows: D. T. Clover, one year; G. W. Buck, one year; J. W. Rutledge, one year; James Heffley, two years; Frank M. Kumler, two years; L. R. Powell, one year; J. F. Maxwell, one week; W. C. Campbell, two terms; David O. Brien, the unexpired term of that year, 1876; and P. R. Mills, the present principal, who was employed in 1877. The school, in the various departments contains, at present writing, two hundred and fifty pupils. The present members of the school board are: John Helpman, president; A. Starr, clerk; W. T. Conklin, treasurer; O. P. Chaney, J. K. Miller, and A. A. Short.

PHYSICIANS.

The oldest physician in the village is Dr. J. B. Potter, who located here in 1838, and has continued in practice until the present, with the exception of the years from 1861 to 1865, during which he was in the army. Dr. A. A. Short has been engaged in the practice of his profession in Canal Winchester since 1856. He came from Vermont, to Ohio, in 1849, and was subsequently connected with the infirmary hospital, in Columbus, for two years. After practicing alone in this village for three years, he formed, in 1859, a partnership with Dr. Potter, which continued until 1874, except during the four years that Dr. Potter was in the army. The other physicians of the village, at the present time, are Dr. A. Starr and Dr. V. A. Valentine. Among the doctors who have, at one time or another, been located here, we have the names of Drs. Chapin, S. H. Potter, Titus, L. A. Pierce, J. B. Pierce, Langworthy, Blake, and Clemens.

INCORPORATION.

At the session of 1865–6 the town was incorporated, and at the first borough election a corporate government was organized as follows: James B. Evans, mayor; C. W. Speak, recorder; John Chaney, sr., R. Trine, John Helpman, E. B. Decker, and M. C. Whitehurst, trustees. John Helpman was, at this time, justice of the peace. The present officers of the village are the following: James B. Evans, mayor; T. F. Ungemach, clerk; W. M. Game, I. L. Decker, John W. Griffith, John R. Clement, H. H. Dibble, trustees; and John Gehm, treasurer. Mayor Evans has been at the head of the village government since his first election in 1866, with the exception of four years, during which John Helpman, J. S. Stevenson, and Charles B. Cowan, successively filled the position.

SOCIETIES.

LEE LODGE,

No. 386, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of Winchester, was chartered May 14, 1867. The charter members were C. W. Speaks, C. P. Kees, J. W. Griffith, J. B. Evans, J. D. Potter, Jesse Brandt, R. H. Mason, and J. H. Cannon. The first officers were: C. P. Rees, N. G.; J. W. Griffith, V. G.; J. B. Potter, secretary; and James B. Evans, treasurer. The present officers are: S. C. Swonger, N. G.; J. E. Smith, V. G.; Philip Game, R. S.; J. W. Griffith, P. S.; and J. B. Evans, treasurer. For a time the upper story of the present post-office building was rented as a lodge hall. In 1868, the lodge built a second story to the store room of C. P. Rees, and fitted it for permanent use as a lodge hall. There are, at this time, about seventy-five members of the order belonging to this lodge.

FRANKLIN ENCAMPMENT,

No. 142, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was chartered May 3, 1871, and was instituted June 14th, of the same year. The charter members were J. B. Potter, C. P. Rees, J. B. Evans, J. W. Hische, J. W. Griffith, P. E. Ehrenhart, and R. H. Mason. The first officers were: J. B. Evans, H. P.; J. B. Potter, C. P.; C. P. Rees, S. W.; J. W. Griffith, J. W. The encampment meets in the Odd Fellows' hall. Present officers (1879) are: J. B. Evans, H. P.; William Game, C. P.; J. E. Smith, S. W.; Adam Weber, J. W.; John Griffith, secretary; Peter Ehrenhart, treasurer.

DAUGHTERS OF REBECKAH.

A charter was granted for the institution of a lodge of the Daughters of Rebeckah, in connection with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, May 15, 1879. The lodge is Bethel Lodge, No. 117. The officers are: J. B. Evans, N. G.; Mrs. P. Game, V. G.; Mrs. James Heffley, F. S.; Miss Mary Hische, R. S.; Mrs. Peter Ehrenhart, treasurer. Meetings are held at Odd Fellows' hall.

MADISON GRANGE,

No. 194, was chartered in November, 1873. The charter members were G. W. Miller, J. P. Kalb, John Beggs, John Lehman, John Courtright, George Rusche, B. Stemen, John Bishop, and others. The first officers were J. P. Kalb, M.; John Lehman, O.; John Begg, L.; John Bishop, secretary; Isaac Lehman, treasurer. The first meetings were held in S. Bartlit's building, south of the canal, where the organization was perfected. In 1874 a two-story building was erected near the railroad, the upper portion of which is now used as a grange hall, and the lower as a paint shop. The lower part, was for some two years, used as an armory, by the Winchester guards. The present officers of the grange are James Kalb, M.; John Lehman, O.; R. J. Tussing, L.; Elijah Kramer, S.; O. R. Miller, A. S.; A. Baughman, C.; Isaac Lehman, treasurer; Daniel Detwiler, secretary; Benjamin Shoemaker, G.

MILITARY ORGANIZATION.

A company of militia was organized under the laws authorizing the formation of the Ohio National Guard, March 2, 1878. It was, at first, known as the Winchester guards, and was assigned as Company N, 14th O. N. G. The officers elected on the organization of the company, were Philip Game, captain; Brice Taylor, first lieutenant; William Schrock, second lieutenant; all of whom hold their commissions at this time. While in camp in 1879, the name of the company was changed from the Winchester Guards to the Potter Light Guards.

In 1869 the first train of cars ran through Winchester, over the Hocking Valley road. The town had, however, as early as 1849, a telegraph line, extending from Columbus to Lancaster, the first operator of the office here being Squire Evans.

The town has a weekly paper—the Winchester Times—which made its first appearance March 16, 1871, as a prohibition paper, with Major J. W. Stinchcomb as editor. In the summer of 1872 it was purchased by C. M. Gould, who published it as a Democratic paper until November, 1876, when it passed into the hands of J. Heffley, one of its present proprietors. It is now published by Heffley & Gayman, as an independent paper, and has a good patronage.

In addition to the enterprises already referred to, the village contains three churches (spoken of more fully under the head of churches), and the various business places common to a place of its size and prosperity. What the town, at present, particularly needs is a good bank.

GROVEPORT.

The beginning of Groveport dates back to 1833. In that year Jacob B. West came and leased some land on the canal from Adam Rarey, and erected the old warehouse, still standing, near the bridge, and also a store building at the west end, in which, in the spring of 1834, he opened a stock of goods. In September, 1843, he laid out that part of the town lying west of the street running past the Methodist church, and named his town "Wert's Grove." Subsequently, in February, 1844, that portion of the town lying east of said street was laid out by William H. Rarey, to which he gave the name of "Rarey's Port." Messrs. Wert and Rarey were each ambitious of perpetuating his own name, in connection with the town. In 1844, Mr. Wert secured the establishment of a post-office, under the name of Wert's Grove, with himself as postmaster, but Mr. Rarey was a prominent business man in the town, and the name of Rarey's Port was perhaps more extensively known than that of Wert's Grove. Letters were frequently received through the post-office thus directed. The desirability of a common name soon became manifest to the citizens, and a public meeting was finally held for the purpose of making a choice, when a compromise was effected by discarding the personal part of the two names and retaining the latter part of both, and hence the town came to be called Groveport. Mr. Wert continued in business until 1847, or 1848, and did much toward building up the town which he had founded. He was engaged in merchan-

Truly Yours
H. L. Chaney, M. D

H. L. CHANEY, M. D.

By Dr. R. M. Denig.

There is nothing, perhaps, which so clearly indicates the character and intelligence of a community as its ability to discriminate between charlatanry and pretension in the medical profession and solid, real merit. Nor is there anything which tends more to strengthen and develop the native resources of a physician, and prompt him to arm and equip himself with the vast resources of his profession than this confidence of which we speak, when extended to him by the thinking and influential part of the community, in which he has chosen to practice his ministration.

In this respect Dr. H. L. Chaney has been singularly fortunate. It has fallen to the lot of few physicians, in rural districts, to enjoy a more unbounded and entire confidence than has been granted him by his extensive and intelligent clientelle. Nor has this confidence been misplaced, or without its effect upon its worthy recipient; it has stimulated him to ceaseless activity, to intense and exhaustive study, and unrelaxing exertions to meet the severe demand made on his time and services.

We offer, then, no apology for giving in the records and history of this county a brief notice of one who has responded so nobly to the claims of an arduous and honorable profession, and ever exerted an elevating influence in social life. The history of a county or State is made up of the history of its individual members, and none are more worthy of a notice in its pages than the high-toned, honorable physician, who has attained a well-merited and extensive reputation.

Dr. H. L. Chaney, son of John and Mary Chaney, was born August 20, 1820, in Fairfield county, Ohio. He assisted his father on the farm during the summer, and in the winter he enjoyed the advantages and privileges of the district school. This, with a subsequent two and a half years spent at the academy of Greenfield—supplemented by one year as teacher in the district school, embraces all the facilities he enjoyed for acquiring a preliminary education. Limited, however, as were these opportunities, the doctor entered upon his professional studies with as much preparation as the ordinary run of medical students, and with an ardent love for, and enthusiastic devotion to, the calling he had chosen.

His preceptor was the amiable and accomplished Dr. George E. Eels, late of Lithopolis, whose urbanity of manner, widely extended knowledge, as well as ability and skill, will long be remembered both by his professional brethren and the community in which he resided.

During the three years spent in the office of Dr. Eels, part of which time he was able to take a considerable share in the practice, Dr. Chaney attended two full and two preliminary courses of lectures at Ohio Medical college, Cincinnati, and graduated with honor in February, 1847.

In the summer of the same year, he commenced practice in Lockbourne, Franklin county, and in March, 1848, he was married to Miss Mary Mook, daughter of Thomas Mook, esq., of New York city, and shortly after, removed to his present place of residence, Groveport.

This was the doctor's second marriage—his first wife, Miss Mary Cunningham, to whom he was wedded before commencing the study of medicine, having died during the first year of their wedded life, and leaving no children. Four of his second wife's children are living.

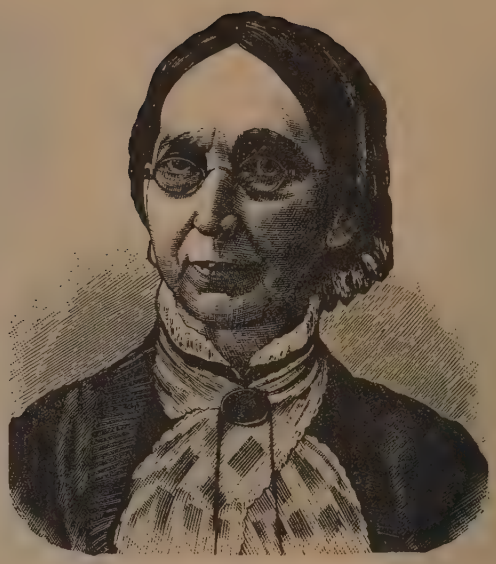
In politics, as in medicine, the doctor's position has always been sharply defined—Democratic to the core. In 1858 he was chosen a member of the State legislature, and served two sessions. Although his constituents would have had no difficulty in again returning him as a member, or giving him any office in the county he may have desired, his political aspirations seem to have culminated, and he returned to his first love—his profession, resuming its duties with increased energy and zeal.

Dr. Chaney was a member of the old State Medical convention, when the present State Medical society which grew out of it, was organized, and has been an active member of the latter ever since. He is also a member of the Columbus Academy of Medicine, and of the Columbus Pathological society.

For the past two or three years the doctor's impaired health has greatly impeded his performance of active duty, and yet under all his afflictions, and knowing but too well the gravity of his troubles, his mind has always been clear, and his judgment sound, and even with his wasted strength, his indomitable will has enabled him to perform an amount of active labor, from which many a sound and healthy city doctor would shrink.

Baker, Photo.

Charles Pontius



MRS. E. PONTIUS.

THE PONTIUS FAMILY.

Frederick Pontius was born April 4, 1759, in Buffalo valley, Northumberland county (now Union county), Pennsylvania, where in course of time he married, and raised a family of four children, as follows: John, born December 10, 1782, who died February 27, 1837; Philip, born January 24, 1784, who died May 28, 1845; Catharine, who married Adam Rarey, in Ross county, and in 1808 settled in Madison township, Franklin county; Elizabeth, who married Henry Bunn, in Ross county, and settled in Madison township, near her sister, where she died in August, 1860. The wife of Frederic Pontius died in their home in Pennsylvania, and he afterwards married Catharine Reedy. In 1807 the family emigrated to Ross county, Ohio, arriving in July of that year, and immediately settling on a large tract of land purchased the preceding year by Frederick Pontius, who came to Ohio for that purpose.

Philip Pontius was twenty-two years of age when he came with the family to Ohio. He had obtained a limited education in the German language in the schools of his Pennsylvania home, but possessed no knowledge of the English language, which, however, he learned to speak fluently during his later years. He was married, in 1809, to Catharine Rarey, who was born in Virginia, December 25, 1778. Her father, Charles Rarey, was of German birth, and emigrated to Virginia in a very early day, whence he came to Ross county very early, and from there to Madison township in 1806. On his first arrival in America he was sold as a servant to serve until able to pay the sum required as passage money. This he earned in a short time, besides accumulating enough to enable him to make a visit to his native land. After his return to this country he was married to Margaret Wolf, by whom he had ten children, Catharine being the second. Immediately after marriage Philip Pontius and wife came to Madison township, Franklin county, in the winter or spring of 1807, where they settled on a lot of eighty acres, in section thirty-two. They lived on this lot several years when it was exchanged for other land on the northwest quarter of section nine, on which they located in about 1811. Here he built a hewed log house of one room, and entered upon the labor of making a permanent home in the forest, and here, with the help of the children born to him, he cleared during his lifetime, one hundred and sixty acres of land. During the early part of the war of 1812 he teamed supplies to headquarters of the army at Franklinton, and while thus engaged was free from the draft which called out most of the able bodied settlers. His life was spent in redeeming a naturally fertile soil from the vast forest which covered it, and truly did he and his wife perform pioneer labors in the wilderness, often working at burning brush and log-heaps until far into the night in order to prepare ground where they could raise grain and vegetables for the sustenance of themselves and their little ones. Their house was the home of itinerant Metheodist preachers, who visited every section of the country, and no one, however humble or degraded, was turned from their door. Both early became identified with the Methodist Episcopal church, and both exemplified the true teachings of christianity in their lives and work. Mr. Pontius died May 28, 1845. His wife died November 2, 1854.

The children of Philip and Catharine Pontius were: Christine, born November 27, 1809, who married Abraham S. Rainier, and settled with him on the line of Franklin and Pickaway counties, their home being in the latter. He died leaving two children, and she married Josiah Hulva, whom she also survived, and died in Lockbourne, June 2, 1842. Charles, who was born April 19, 1812, passed his youthful days at the usual avocations of the time, and aided much in the labor of clearing the land and cultivating the crops. His education was obtained at the subscription schools, at that time the only place for obtaining an education. He was married, September 19, 1833, to Elizabeth Sharp, a daughter of John Sharp, who settled in Madison township in 1808. She was born August 1, 1811. Her father, John Sharp, was born in Heidelberg township, Berks county, Pennsylvania, April 28, 1781, and was married January 31, 1808, to Mary Elizabeth Harbine, who was born in Barn township, the same county, May 3, 1782. They raised a family of nine children, as follows: Mary C., Elizabeth, Samuel, Joseph, John, Ann, Catharine, Abraham, and Huldah, three of whom are now living—Elizabeth (Mrs. Charles Pontius), Samuel, and Abraham. The other children of Philip Pontius were: Elizabeth, born in 1814, who married Dr. B. F. Guard and settled in Pickaway county, near Lockbourne, where she died, and John, born in 1816, who died from injuries, caused by a runaway team, when but eleven years of age. Charles Pontius became a member of Hopewell Methodist Episcopal church in 1834. His wife had joined the Truro Presbyterian church in 1831, previous to their marriage, and retained that connection a number of years. She then joined Hopewell church, of which both have remained consistent, useful and efficient members to the present time. Mr. Pontius has for the past forty years been leader of one of the two classes in the church, and before that time was one of the stewards about two years. He has always been a liberal supporter of the church, and has ever been ready to assist a needy congregation in the effort to built a church home. In his business habits he has been careful and methodical, and, assisted by his wife, by economy and hard labor, has secured a comfortable competence for their declining years. The children born to Charles and Elizabeth Pontius were: Franklin G., born June 8, 1836, who married Mary E. Rainier, and lives on the southwest quarter of section five; Philip, born March 27, 1840, who married Anna A. Perrill, and lives on the farm adjoining his brother, Franklin; John, born August 14, 1842, and died November 12, 1842; Charles L., born May 1, 1845, who married Fannie C. Perrill, and lives at the old Pontius homestead.

dising, grain, and largely in pork-packing. One year he killed thirty-five thousand head of hogs. He died at Groveport in the spring of 1850, and left to his family a fine property. William H. Rarey and James Cooken established the second store in the village, in the building in which Mr. Wert first opened his. They carried on business together for a number of years, finally taking into the firm John Courtright. Cooken subsequently sold to his partners, and removed to Columbus. The Eberlys (now of Columbus), with A. C. Headley, and William and Salem Darnell were among the early and leading merchants of Groveport for several years. After Mr. Wert, the successive postmasters have been the following named gentlemen, viz: Edward Garres, A. C. Headley, Samuel Sharp, John L. Champ, Henry Long, and Cornelius Black, jr., (the present incumbent), appointed in 1878. The first tavern in Groveport was the Campbell hotel, built by John Campbell in 1838–9, and kept by him as a public house for twelve years. The present dwelling of Mrs. William Peer was built for, and opened as, a hotel by Alexander Fleming, about the year 1845.

The Railroad House, of M. Corbett, was built in 1869.

Rarey's grist-mill was erected, in 1871, by Rosenfield, Seymour & Co., and the old saw-mill, on the canal, was built by Moses Zinn, about 1848 or 1849.

The village was incorporated at the session of 1846–7, and the following village officers were elected in the spring of 1847, viz: A. Shoemaker, mayor; Samuel Sharp, E. M. Dutton, J. F. Bywaters, C. J. Stevenson, and William Mitchell, councilmen; A. Clark, recorder, and William James, marshal. Since, Mr. Shoemaker, Henry Long, Z. P. Thompson, E. W. Edwards, Jeremiah White, Z. P. Thompson, N. Steel, L. Sarber, W. W. Kile, Henry Long, George Adel, F. M. Senter, and Robert A. Shaw, (present incumbent), have officiated as mayors, in the order named.

THE PHYSICIANS

of Groveport, at the present writing, are: Drs. Cheney, Smith, Saylor, Morden, and McCollom. The oldest of these, in point of practice, is the first named—Dr. Hugh L. Cheney. Dr. Cheney read medicine with the well-known Dr. George E. Eels, of Lithopolis, and graduated at the Ohio medical college, Cincinnati, in 1847. He practiced in Lockbourn ten months, and, in 1848, settled in Groveport, where he has since followed his profession with signal success. Dr. Smith and Dr. Saylor have also been residents of Groveport for many years, and have built up a good practice. Of the physicians who formerly resided in this village, we have the names of Drs. Abel Clark, Joseph Bywaters, and —— Bolen.

SOCIETIES.

GORDIAN LODGE,

No. 205, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of Groveport, was chartered in 1851. The applicants for the charter were, George McCormick, Edmund Garres, Jacob Lowe, G. L. Smith, and G. P. Champ. The first officers were: George McCormick, N. G.; Jacob Lowe, V. G.; E. Garres, P. S.; E. L. Smith, R. S.; G. P. Champ, treasurer. In 1864, many of the members having removed to other places, the charter was surrendered. Application was made for a new charter in 1873, which was granted, with the same name and number as the first. The meetings of the first lodge were held in the west end of the Union school building, in the second story. After receiving the new charter, meetings were held in an old frame building, in the lower end of town, until 1876, when the township and village built a hall in the village. The Odd Fellows and Masons, together, built a third story to the building, which gives each a good hall, costing about eleven hundred dollars. The officers under the new charter, were: S. M. Bright, N. G.; S. A. Peters, V. G.; J. P. Arnold, R. S.; C. F. Needels, P. S.; G. L. Smith, treasurer. The officers for 1879, are: A. M. Rarey, N. G.; Albert Young, V. G.; J. P. Arnold, P. S.; C. Black, treasurer; O. R. Mansfield, R. S.; John F. Kile, C. F. Needels, and Benjamin Rees, trustees.

GROVEPORT LODGE,

No. 240, Free and Accepted Masons, received its charter May 4, 1853. The charter members were C. J. Stevenson, A. Clark, Charles Pontius, J. White, D. Sarber, Jonathan Watson, D. C. Shockley, and S. A. Darnell. The following were appointed officers: C. J. Stevenson, master; A. Clark, S. W.; Charles Pontius, J. W. The first meetings were held in the Union school-house, and after a time in an upper room of a building opposite the present hall. Meetings were afterwards held over Limbert's grocery. In 1876, the members of the fraternity completed a fine hall in the third story of the town hall, at a cost of about eleven hundred dollars, and now own their lodge room, it being fully paid for. They have been working as best they could until this debt could be paid, and now that they are clear, they will furnish and fit up their hall in good order. The officers in 1879, are: P. C. Tussing, W. M.; J. P. Arnold, S. W.; A. L. Brooke, J. W.; J. C. Hannum, treasurer; F. S. Rarey, secretary; William Simms, S. D.; C. P. Long, J. D.; M. Codner, tyler.

Groveport has now a population of about seven hundred, but the town is not thriving; in fact, for many years, it has been on the decline. This is due, principally, to the failure, years ago, of some of its principal business men. Merchandising, pork packing, the produce and grain business were formerly largely carried on, in which a great deal of capital was employed, and the aggregate liabilities of the failures were enormous for a little town to sustain. The town is pleasantly situated, and contains many pleasant dwellings.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

SAMUEL BARTLIT.

grain dealer and substantial business man of Canal Winchester, is the son of Elihu and Betsey Bartlit, and was born in Jay, Essex county, New York, November 16, 1811. His parents died when he was young—his mother in 1816, and his father in 1824. He lived with his oldest brother, John F., until he was twenty-one years of age, when he went to Keesville, in Essex county, and attended school. A short time afterward he was elected constable, and subsequently was appointed deputy sheriff of the county. Next we find him a clerk in a hotel in Albany, for about a year, when he joined his brother, John F., and family, in 1837, on their way to Ohio. They located in Kirkersville, Licking county, Ohio, where the brothers opened a store, which they continued about a year, removing thence to Reynoldsburg, Franklin county, Ohio, then a growing little town. They remained in trade there, however, only a few months, when they sold their goods and came, in the spring of 1839, to Canal Winchester. They immediately afterward opened, with a miscellaneous stock of goods, in a one-story frame building, on the site of the present dry goods store of the Messrs. Gayman. They soon afterward changed their location to the tow-path side of the canal, in order to catch the boat trade, occupying the small, red building which used to stand where the Commercial hotel now does. Merchandizing was carried on, in those days, almost entirely by barter and trade, and the Bartlit brothers exchanged their goods with the farmers for produce, pork, butter, eggs, etc., which, in turn, they sold to the boatmen for the same price in cash. Samuel would sleep in the rear part of the store, and when the boatman came along, as he did, in the night, he would arouse him by tapping on the window, and receive whatever of produce had been taken into the store during the day. The brothers continued in trade together until 1844, when John F. sold his interest to his brother, and removed to Waterloo, and subsequently to Columbus, where he was engaged in banking. In 1850 Samuel Bartlit erected the building now occupied by the Gayman brothers, and continued there in trade until September, 1856, when he sold out to his nephew, Samuel Pond. During all this time Mr. Bartlit was engaged in the grain and produce business, which gradually grew in proportions, and he erected, in 1847, a large warehouse (since burned down) on the north side of the canal.

Mr. Bartlit has given but little attention to outside speculation, but the result of the few ventures he has made in this direction, attests the soundness of his judgment. In 1856 he purchased some real estate in the eastern part of Columbus, and the same year a tract of land of nine hundred acres on Big Darby, in this county, for seven thousand seven hundred dollars. At the time of this purchase he had not seen the land, but the investment proved highly profitable, as did the other also.

Mr. Bartlit was largely instrumental in securing, in 1851, the annexation to Madison township of one tier of sections in Fairfield county, by which the village of Canal Winchester was thrown into Franklin county.

In 1853 he was the candidate of the Democratic party for State senator from Franklin and Pickaway counties. He was nominated, as he himself says, not because of any special merit or qualifications, but rather because of his availability. His election over so strong an opponent as P. B. Wilcox, the Whig candidate, and overcoming an adverse majority, was a handsome compliment to his personal popularity and strength. His two years' term in the senate was alike creditable to himself and to his constituents.

Mr. Bartlit was a pronounced Union man during the war of the rebellion, but he continued to act with the Democratic party until the nomination of Vallandigham for governor, in 1863, when he left it, voted for Brough, and has since been a staunch Republican.

As a successful business man, Mr. Bartlit's career furnishes an instructive lesson. With little to begin with, save a liberal capital of pluck and energy, he has, by industry and the observance of sound business principles, amassed a fine property and established an honorable reputation.

Mr. Bartlit has never married. On the death of David M. Cowan, the husband of his half-sister, Amanda, in 1850, Mr. Bartlit brought the mother and her two children, Charles and David—the youngest less than a year old—to his home. The mother married again, in 1868, but the boys have always remained with their uncle, who has been to them all that a father could be to his children. Charles was given a collegiate education, graduating at Kenyon college, Gambier, Ohio, in 1868. He is proprietor of the Empire mills, near Winchester, and has practical supervision of his uncle's business.

In the following sketch of Mrs. Pollay, sister of Mr. Bartlit, is given a genealogy of the family, so far as it can be ascertained.

MRS. ELIZABETH B. POLLAY.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES.

Elihu Bartlit, son of Rev. Moses and Lydia Bartlit, of Middletown, Connecticut, was born March 6, 1743. He graduated at Yale college in 1764, and married, August 7, 1771, Statira, daughter of Deacon Timothy and Mary Meigs, who was born September 14, 1741. They were the parents of three children, namely: Lydia, Elihu, and Miner. Elihu, the father of the subject of the present notice and of Samuel Bartlit—a sketch of whom appears above—was born on Sunday, March 26, 1775, and married, in 1801, Betsey Foot, and died June 1, 1824. Betsey Foot, who was born in Arlington, Vermont, December 25, 1778, and died May 4, 1816, was the second of eleven children of John Foot and Ruth Searl. They were born, respectively, July 14, 1754, and October 9, 1756; were joined in wedlock in 1775; and died respectively, June 16, 1826, and January 29, 1846. John Foot was the son of George Foot, of Stratford, Connecticut, who was born in 1721; the son of Jehiel Foot, of Stratford, Connecticut, who was born in 1687; the son of Daniel Foot, of Stratford, Connecticut, who was born in 1652; the son of Nathaniel Foot, of Wethersfield, Connecticut, who was born in 1620—the eldest child of Nathaniel Foot, "the settler," who emigrated from England in the year 1633, and settled in Connecticut.

Elizabeth Bartlit, the subject of this sketch, was born in Jay, Essex county, New York, December 1, 1806. She possessed a naturally strong inclination for the attainment of an education, which was gratified by the study of such branches as the common and public schools of the time afforded. When only sixteen years of age, she began teaching in the public schools of Greenwich, New York. She subsequently taught at various places in her native State, and, at intervals, attended several institutions of learning, spending one term, in 1834, at a seminary in Clinton, New York. The following year she went to Michigan, and engaged at teaching in the public schools of the town of Branch, then the county seat of Branch county, of that State. In 1838—March 1st—she was united in marriage to Lewis Pollay, of Branch, Michigan, who died, November 22d, of the same year. After her husband's death, Mrs. Pollay returned to her former avocation, teaching in Coldwater, Michigan, from 1841 to 1851, when she came to Ohio and took up her residence with her brother, Samuel Bartlit, in Canal Winchester. In 1853 she was appointed matron of the Central lunatic asylum, of Columbus, Ohio, in which position she served with efficiency two years. Returning to Canal Winchester, she taught in the schools of that place one year, when she permanently retired from the discharge of public duties.

Mrs. Pollay is a lady of unusual energy of character and vigor of mind, and is honored and respected for her moral worth by a wide circle of friends. She has been a member of Westminster Presbyterian church since 1853. Mrs. Pollay is the mother of one child—Eliza Maria—born December 6, 1838, who was married, October 1, 1863, to Charles H. Town, colonel of the First Michigan cavalry, and died October 26, 1873. Colonel Town died in May, 1865. Mrs. Town was a lady of thorough scholarship, and was the first principal of the female department in the high school of Detroit, Michigan.

GEORGE NEEDELS.

The subject of this sketch was born in Kent county, Delaware, October 26, 1806. His grandparents, Thomas and Rebecca (Cubbidge) Needels, came from England, and settled in the above named county and State. They had a large family of children, of whom Cubbidge, the father of the subject of this notice, was the fifth son. He was born in 1785, and married, in Delaware, Rebecca Cook, and emigrated to Ohio in 1810. His wife died a few weeks after their settlement in Madison township, and about two years afterward he was married to Sarah Harris, and, in 1821, removed to Plain township. He died in 1840. By his first marriage he had three children—two sons, and a daughter, who died when eighteen months or two years old. Thomas, the elder of the two sons, born September 21, 1805, married his cousin, Rachel

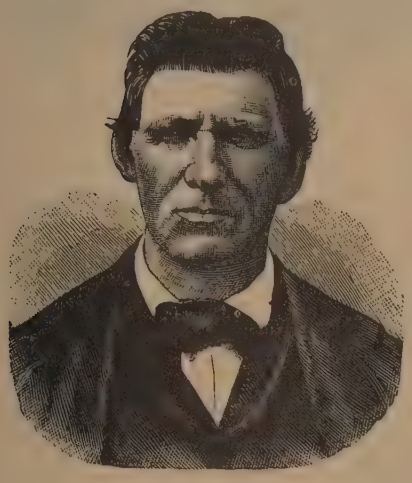
Sam'l Bartlett

Elizabeth O. Pollay

Needels, and died February 25, 1861. His widow is still living, and is now seventy-six years of age.

George Needels the younger son, and the subject of this sketch, remained on the farm with his father until he was twenty-one, when he went to Morrow county, and hired to a farmer, whom he assisted in clearing up a farm, remaining one year. He then returned to this county, and worked a farm, in connection with his brother, in Madison township, for about a year, when he concluded to engage in some other pursuit. He had no means, but he believed he could do something that would be more remunerative than to work by the month, for eight dollars per month—the wages usually received by farm laborers at that time. He went to Cincinnati, and engaged in selling books, keeping a stand on the river, and selling to passengers on the boats, and to others, the popular books of the day. He was quite successful in this venture, and during the three years that he was engaged in it (when he left the city on account of the prevalence of cholera), he accumulated enough money to buy eighty acres of land in Madison township, this county. Since then Mr. Needels has been engaged in farming, in which, also, he has met with complete success. He has, at various times, added to his original purchase, and now owns a large amount of first-rate and well-improved land. His life has been an actively industrious one, attending strictly to his chosen occupation, the results of which are of the most substantial and desirable character.

While not a member of any church, he is liberal with his means in the support of religious societies, and was one of the largest contributors to the erection of Asbury chapel. Mr. Needels is unmarried.



FREDERICK BUNN.

CHARLOTTE BUNN.

THE BUNN FAMILY.

Henry and Elizabeth A. Bunn were married in Ross county, where they settled in 1807. He was originally from Virginia, and his wife from Pennsylvania. Their first child, Frederick A. Bunn, was born in Ross county, November 12, 1812. When he was two or three years of age, his parents removed to Franklin county, and settled on the northwest corner of section six, in Madison township, where they remained two or three years, after which they bought one hundred and sixty acres of land on the west bank of Walnut creek, in section eight of the same township. The farm on which they settled is at this time owned by Nelson H. Bunn.

Frederick Bunn obtained a fair education at the schools then taught in the neighborhood, and passed his boyhood and youth in the usual avocations of the sons of the early pioneers—chopping and deadening timber, clearing the land, and planting the crops in their season.

On May 30, 1841, he was united in marriage to Charlotte Rarey, a daughter of Benjamin Rarey, who was an early settler in Madison township, where he located in 1808. She was born November 27, 1817. After marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Bunn settled in the house occupied by his parents, who moved into the house next south of their original home. Henry Bunn died there in May, 1848, and after his death his widow came to live with her son, Frederick, where she died in August, 1860.

To Frederick and Charlotte Bunn were born eight children, as follows: Louis, born July 19, 1842, who married Sarah Jones, and lives on the west bank of the Scioto river, in Jackson township—a representation of his home appears in connection with the history of that township; Mary, born September 12, 1843, who married Joseph Wright, and died December 10, 1868; Jefferson L., born June 5, 1848, who lives on the bank of Walnut creek, in Madison township; Nelson H., born November 10, 1851, who married Sarah Pauline Culp, and lives on the old homestead; Elizabeth, born May 7, 1854, who married William Moore, and lives in Pickaway county; an infant was born March 7, 1858, and died soon after birth; Sarah, born August 31, 1859, who died October 6, 1859; and Catharine, born July 5, 1861, who lives at home with her mother and brother, Jefferson L., on the west bank of Walnut creek.

Frederick Bunn died October 27, 1871, aged nearly fifty-nine years. He was a good farmer and a careful business man. Besides attending to his farm work he dealt quite extensively in stock, and during his life accumulated quite a property, which he disposed of by will before his death. To his sons he gave his landed property, and to his wife and daughters an equivalent in money.

Henry Bunn, the father of Frederick Bunn, was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was taken prisoner at the time of Hull's surrender of Detroit. When the prisoners were exchanged, by some mishap, he was left on board one of the enemy's vessels, but being possessed of a good voice and strong lungs, he managed to make the fact known, and a boat returned after him.

Portraits of Frederick Bunn, and Charlotte Bunn, his wife, appear in connection with this sketch of the family.

JEREMIAH KALB,

son of George and Mary (Kiefer) Kalb, was the eighth child in a family of eleven, and was born in Madison township, Franklin county, Ohio, only a short distance from where he now lives, April 4, 1811. His parents, and his grandfather, John Kalb, came to Madison township from Frederick county, Maryland, in the year 1805, and made a settlement in section fourteen, on the farm now owned by George Kalb, jr. His father died there in 1836, and his mother in 1846.

The subject of this brief biography remained upon the farm until he was twenty-one years of age, when his father, giving him two hundred dollars with which to purchase land, he walked all the way to Hancock county, and entered one hundred and sixty acres. He subsequently made a number of trips out to his purchase and back, and always went on foot. His father finally persuaded him to buy a farm at home On the tenth day of April, 1826, he was united in marriage to Mahala daughter of Abraham and Elizabeth Shoemaker, born December 18, 1809. Her parents removed to Madison township from New Jersey, in 1811, and settled on the farm where Jacob Baughman now lives. Her mother died there, but her father afterward removed to Hancock county, Ohio, and was subsequently married three times. He died in 1858.

The subject of this sketch, after his marriage, located where he has ever since resided. His wife died April 26, 1876, leaving to him two daughters, to wit: Mary Jane, born May 30, 1837, who married Thomas Begg, and now resides in Putnam county, Ohio; and Sarah Elizabeth, born August 1, 1839, who is the wife of Jacob L. Bowman, of Madison township.

Mr. Kalb is a prominent member of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church of Madison, and contributed liberally to the erection of the new church. He has been a trustee of the church ever since his first connection with it—a period of about thirty years.

SAMUEL HEMPY.

Peter and Rebecca Hempy, the parents of the subject of this sketch, were natives of Maryland, whence they emigrated to Lancaster, Fairfield county, Ohio, in the year 1808. The father, although he resided on a farm, was a millwright by trade. He died in the year 1840, and the mother about ten years afterward.

Samuel was born during the residence of his parents on a farm near Lancaster, on the first day of January, 1817. He remained on the farm until he was old enough to tend the saw- and grist-mill of his father, when he was thus employed until he was about twenty-one years of age, at which time his father sold the mills (which are located on Hockhocking river, west of Lancaster), and removed, in 1838, to a farm in the northwestern part of Fairfield county. He there commenced the erection of a mill, but shortly afterward Samuel rented his father's farm for two years, during which he married Catharine, daughter of Jacob and Susan Feasel, of Fairfield county, who was born December 24, 1823. He lived for two years more on another farm which he rented in the same county, when he purchased a farm in Mercer county, Ohio, to which he removed, and which he occupied something over two years, when he returned to Franklin county and rented, of Henry Dildine, a farm about a mile west of where he now lives. This place he occupied about four years, when, in 1851, he bought the farm on which he now resides. Soon after the death of his wife, which occurred August 24, 1853, he sold the farm and bought a small place, but about a year afterward he bought back the farm, and has continued to occupy it until the present.

August 13, 1855, he married Elizabeth Deal, daughter of Elias and Rebecca Deal, of Violet township, Fairfield county, Ohio, who was born December 7, 1838.

By his first wife Mr. Hempy has had six children, as follows: Infant son, born July 4, 1841, who died soon afterward; William Henry, born August 5, 1842, who died in the army at Nashville, July 16, 1862; Samantha Jane, born December 12, 1844, who died August 24, 1845; Oliver P., born September 7, 1846, who died April 3, 1864; Sarah Ann, born October 2, 1848, who married G. W. Burman, and died in Hardin county, Ohio, December 28, 1867; and Minerva J., born October 1, 1851, who is the wife of William Ororark, and resides in Hardin county.

The children of the second marriage are as follows: John C. F., born September 10, 1856; Mary C., born February 22, 1858, who is the wife of Uriah Francisco, and resides on a portion of the farm; George L., born April 22, 1859; Samuel A., born December 31, 1860; Ida B., born October 2, 1862; Lilly F., born February 2, 1865, who died March 9th, of the same year; Frank E., born February 9, 1866; Maggie Luella, born March 15, 1868, Olive Rebecca, born March 28, 1870; and Nora May, born August 3, 1874.

Mr. Hempy has followed the business of milling, with more or less regularity, until within the last two years. He run a mill in Hardin county two years, and has been engaged in milling in the vicinity in which he lives for over twenty years.

S. O. HENDREN.

The father of Samuel O. Hendren was William D. Hendren, born March 21, 1776, in Shenandoah county (now Warren county), Virginia. He was of Irish descent, his father having been a native of the north of Ireland, who emigrated to the United States, and, during the Revolutionary war, espoused the cause of American independence, and served as an officer in the Continental army. William D. Hendren passed his early life in Virginia, where he married. His first wife died, as did the only child they had, and, on January 12, 1805, he married Mrs. Nancy Booker, a widow with one daughter. The maiden name of his second wife was Nancy Cloud, the daughter of a wealthy farmer, who owned several plantations on the Shenandoah river, in Shenandoah county. She was born January 15, 1787. A short time after her marriage with Mr. Hendren, they removed to Ohio, arriving in 1806, and here they settled on land given her by her father, in Madison township, Franklin county. They located on section thirty-five, where they built a log cabin, and entered upon pioneer life in the woods. Both were hard workers, and in time they had a good farm cleared and under cultivation. As they prospered, other purchases of land were made, until they were possessed of some five hundred acres. In this home, in the woods, were born ten children, eight of whom grew to manhood and womanhood, while two died in infancy. Those who lived were: Thomas, Daniel, Samuel O., William, Robert, Louisa, Sarah Ann, and Rebecca.

William D. Hendren died February 3, 1826. His wife survived him, and died in January, 1849.

Samuel O. Hendren, the third son of William D. and Nancy Hendren, was born in Madison township Franklin county, September 29, 1812. The early part of his life was spent with his father and brothers in cultivating the farm and clearing the land. During his boyhood he obtained an ordinary education in the common schools of the day, and when he arrived at manhood's estate, having a thirst for more knowledge than could be obtained in his immediate vicinity, he attended Granville college for some time, but did not pursue a collegiate course. He afterwards studied at Blendon academy, and in Columbus. Though not a graduate from any collegiate institution, by close application and a lifetime spent in acquiring information on various subjects, he is possessed of a more than ordinary education, and is conversant with most subjects of general interest. He has never been a politician or place-seeker, but has enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his friends and neighbors, who have elected him to a place on the township school board, on which he has served many years. When quite a young man, and during the time when teachers were examined by a local school board, he was appointed one of the examiners, as one well qualified for the position. He became one of the original stockholders in the Groveport and Lancaster turnpike, and held the office of director many years, and also for a considerable length of time served as president of the company.

His brother, William Hendren, studied medicine, and became a very skilful and distinguished physician. He practiced his profession in Delaware many years, and was elected to the State legislature from that county, in which he served during the years 1853 and 1854. He afterwards moved to Arkansas, where he built up an extensive practice. He was a graduate of one of the Cincinnati medical colleges.

After the death of William D. Hendren, sr., in 1826, his estate was placed in the hands of an administrator, who managed it until the death of his widow, in 1849, when a deed of partition was granted, and the property was divided among the heirs. Soon after the division, Samuel O. Hendren purchased the rights of the other heirs, and became sole owner of the homestead.

He was married, July 9, 1846, to Helen Morris, who was born in Hamilton county, New York, May 8, 1816. To them were born five children, but one of whom—W. A. Hendren—grew to manhood. He remains at the old home with his father.

Mrs. Hendren died February 23, 1876, aged nearly sixty years. A portrait of Samuel O. Hendren, now in the sixty-eighth year of his age, appears in connection with this sketch of his life.

GEORGE W. NEEDELS.

Thomas and Rachel Needels, the parents of the subject of this notice, were natives of the State of Delaware, and were among the early pioneers of Madison, as noted elsewhere in the history of the township. He was born September 21, 1805, and died February 25, 1861. She was born April 16, 1803, and is still living in the same vicinity, in Madison, where she settled with her parents so many years ago.

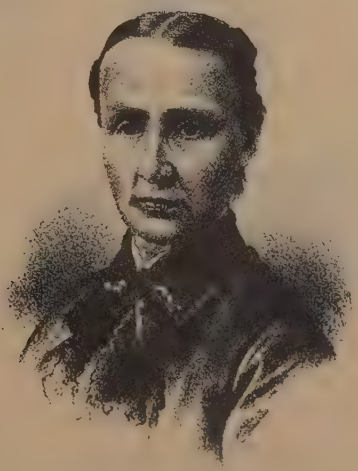
The subject of this sketch was the third in a family of seven children, and was born February 14, 1832. He was brought up on the farm, and enjoyed such advantages for the acquirement of education as the common schools of his neighborhood afforded, until he was about fourteen years of age, when he attended Central college, in Blendon township. He was married, January 10, 1854, to Miss Eliza A. Gray, daughter of

JEREMIAH KALB.

MAHALA KALB.

Sam'l O. Hendren

SAMUEL HEMPY.

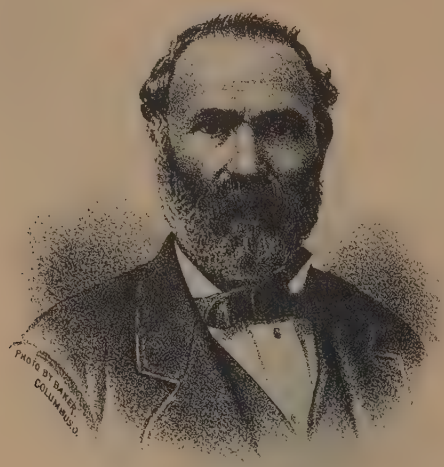


MRS. SAMUEL HEMPY.

(PHOTOS BY TRIMMER, WINCHESTER, O.)

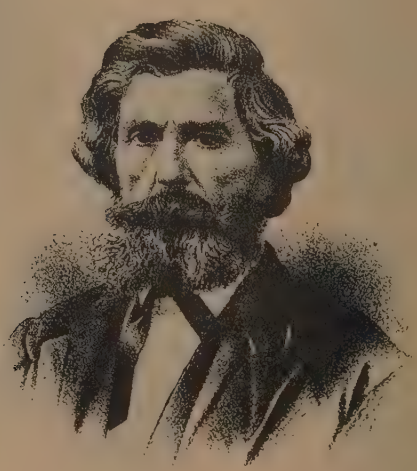
J. P. ARNOLD.

MRS. J. P. ARNOLD.



JAMES SANDY.

GEO. W. NEEDELS.



JNO. ROHR, JR.

PHOTOS. BY ELLIOTT & ARMSTEAD, COLUMBUS, O.

Thomas and Mary Gray, who was born in Truro township, this county, March 20, 1832. Mr. Needels located on the farm where his family now reside, which he received from his father, and by his industry and enterprise was making it one of the most desirable farms in the township, when his life was cut short by accident. On the twelfth day of February, 1874, while attempting to dismount from a horse, his foot caught in the stirrup, the animal became frightened, and, running, dragged Mr. Needels around the barnyard and kicked him in the side and breast. Two of his ribs were broken, one of which penetrated his right lung. The accident occurred on Monday evening, and he died Wednesday morning, February 14th. His untimely death was deplored by the entire community in which he resided, as he was a valued citizen, and enjoyed the confidence and respect of all who knew him.

The children of George W. and Eliza Needels are three in number, as follows: Mary Bell, born July 4, 1857, who is now the wife of Benjamin Bowman, of Madison; Laura Alice, born December 17, 1859; and Thomas Stanton, born August 9, 1862.

JOHN ROHR, JR.,

son of John and Margaret Rohr, was born in Madison township, Franklin county, Ohio, April 2, 1818. His parents emigrated to Ohio from Bucks county, Pennsylvania, in the summer of 1816, with a family of two children—Jacob and Charles. The father died March 1, 1831. While at work in a sugar grove, a short distance southwest of Canal Winchester, a storm came up towards evening, and he started for his home. He had not proceeded far when a tree was blown down by the storm, directly in his path, one of the limbs striking him on the head and fracturing his skull. He succeeding in reaching the house, but died the same night. Mrs. Rohr died in August, 1839. Their children were: Jacob, Charles, John, Samuel, Michael, two sons who died in infancy, and Sarah. The first four are the only survivors.

After the death of his father, the subject of this sketch lived with his uncle, George Rohr, until he was of age, and subsequently worked out. He rented a farm for four years, and, in 1854, he purchased, in Darby township, Pickaway county, a farm of one hundred and eight acres, which he occupied until 1870, when he sold and moved to Columbus, where he resided one year. He then, in March, 1871, purchased and moved to the farm he now occupies, comprising about one hundred and twenty-six acres.

Mr. Rohr was married March 30, 1851, to Elizabeth, daughter of Michael and Catharine Stimmel, who was born December 26, 1820. Her parents were among the pioneers of Hamilton township. They emigrated from Hampshire connty, Virginia, in 1810, making the journey on a couple of pack horses, with two children, one of whom was only about a year old.

To Mr. and Mrs. Rohr have been born the following children: Huldah Catharine, born May 2, 1853; Clarinda Elizabeth, born September 21, 1855; and Floretta, born April 11, 1860. Clarinda married Joseph S. Lehman, and now resides in Putnam county. She has three children: Huldah O., John R., and Clauda E., aged respectively, six, four, and three years.

JAMES SANDY.

James Sandy, sr., the son of William and Ermine Sandy, was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia, April 16, 1788, his parents being of Scotch descent. Here he was raised, and soon after the declaration of war with Great Britain, in 1812, he joined the "Virginia Blues," and while a member of that organization, was quartered, during one winter, in the town of Franklinton. At that time the ground now occupied by the State house was covered with its native forest. After his return to Virginia, sometime in the year of 1813, he was married to Miss Delilah Dulin, daughter of William and Charlotte Dulin, who was born February 1, 1797. To them were born eight sons and four daughters.

In 1821 he moved, with his family, to Ohio, and in 1825 settled in Washington township, Franklin county, where he resided until 1862, since which time, and until his death, October 20, 1864, he has lived with his children in Madison township. His wife died November 15, 1837, at the age of forty years.

Mr. Sandy was an ardent lover of his country, a true patriot, and a faithful soldier. He felt, and often expressed, the most earnest solicitude for the success of the war for the preservation of our government during the late Rebellion. For many years he was a member of the Christian church, and at his death was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. The last few years of his life were mostly devoted to the reading of the holy scriptures, in which he took great delight.

James Sandy, jr., the subject of this sketch, was the fourth son of James and Delilah Sandy, and was born in Norwich township, Franklin county, December 16, 1826. He remained on the farm with his father until he was eighteen years of age, and then went to Pickaway county, where he worked on a farm a year, after which he went to Ross county, where he also remained a year. He then returned to Groveport, in this county, where he learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked eleven years. He then moved on a farm east of Groveport, where he has since resided, engaged in agricultural pursuits.

He was married in Groveport, February 28, 1848, to Sarah Shoemaker, who was born November 5, 1831. The result of this union was one son, William Henry, born February 1, 1849. Mrs. Sandy died June 6, 1850, aged nineteen years.

He married, for his second wife, Sarah Ditzler, March 4, 1851. She was born March 6, 1829. To them have been born two children: Seabury, born April 7, 1852, who died October 20, 1853; and Genora, born May 10, 1854, who died December 14, 1856.

William Henry, the eldest son of James Sandy, married Annie Hare, September 9, 1869. Their children are: Luada, born April 19, 1871, and Hattie, born December 8, 1877, in Osage county, Kansas.

During the war of the Rebellion Mr. Sandy became a member of the National Guard, and when Governor Brough issued his call for forty thousand troops to take the field, he accompanied his regiment, and served in the Virginia campaign under General Butler, in 1864.

Mr. Sandy is a man with strong convictions of right, of perseverance, energy, and of strict integrity. He is one of the leading Republicans of his township, and joins the lead in all public enterprises for the benefit of the township. He became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church in 1857, and has since lived a consistent christian life.

HENRY C. SWISHER.

In the year 1805, John Swisher and family, of Sussex county, New Jersey, emigrated to Ohio, and in 1807 settled in Madison township, Franklin county. His wife, who, before marriage, was Mary Peterson, died in 1836, and he again married, a Mrs. Shepherd, of Washington township, and lived near Dublin until his death.

Jacob, the oldest child of John and Mary Swisher, was born in Sussex county, New Jersey, July 5, 1803. He married, for his first wife, Eliza Scothorn, and resided on the school section until her death, which occurred about a year after her marriage. A few years subsequently he was again married, to Anah, daughter of Philemon Needels, when he settled on the farm where he now lives, and resided there until 1842. He then removed to the place now occupied by John Anderson, which farm he cleared up and improved. He finally, after a short residence in Groveport, moved back to the farm he had previously occupied, and on which he now resides. Besides that of farming, Mr. Swisher's principal occupation has been the buying and selling of live stock. At an early period of his business career he commenced buying hogs, which he would fatten and drive to the eastern markets. He has walked to Baltimore and back on such trips a number of times, and for several years made an annual journey. In 1840 or 1841 he combined with his live stock business that of pork packing, in connection with other gentlemen, in Groveport. This branch of the business, however, proving unprofitable, it was afterward abandoned.

His second wife died in September, 1862. They had a family of nine children, of whom Henry C., the subject of this sketch, is the oldest. He was born in Madison township, Franklin county, Ohio, January 8, 1837, and married, December 18, 1866, Jennie Nau, daughter of Jacob and Mary Arch Nau, of Madison township. She was born October 15, 1844, in Hancock county, Ohio. Her mother died in 1856, and her father is still living on a portion of the Swisher farm. The subject of this sketch has been engaged principally in agricultural pursuits, and is among the energetic and successful farmers of his township. For seven years he cultivated a farm in the school section, taking a lease for nine years. He purchased the farm on which he now lives, and to which he has recently added, in the spring of 1866, and built his residence, a view of which is given elsewhere, about five years since. Mr. Swisher has also been to a considerable extent engaged in the shipment of live stock to the east, which he has uniformly found a profitable business.

To Mr. and Mrs. Swisher have been born the following named children: Ella M., born November 2, 1867, in Crawford county, Ohio, where the parents resided the first year after their marriage; Charles C., born February 19, 1869; Walter, born December 25, 1870, who died January 9, 1871; Edgar A., born January 23, 1872; Anah A., born December 16, 1873; and Florence, born December 13, 1878.

THE ARNOLD FAMILY.

The ancestry of this family is traced back to Stephen Arnold, who was born in 1695, and his wife Rachel, who was born in 1700. They moved from New England, where they resided at the time of their marriage, to Morristown, New Jersey, in 1729.

Samuel, son of Stephen and Rachel Arnold, was born November 5, 1727, and was married to Phebe Ford in 1748. They located in Washington valley, where six children were born to them, as follows: Jacob, John, Hannah, Samuel, Phebe, and Anna.

Jacob Arnold was born December 14, 1749, and on the breaking out of the war of the Revolution, entered with spirit into the contest for the cause of freedom. He became captain of a light-horse company, and was frequently detailed as escort to Governor Livingston and his privy council in the journeys they were often forced to make from place to place, as the approach of the enemy compelled retreat to safer quarters. In January, 1777, after the battles of Trenton and Princeton, General Washington led his army to Morristown for winter quarters. His own headquarters were at what was sometimes called "Freeman's tavern," and at others, "Arnold's tavern." Captain Arnold was its proprietor, and Washington was his guest from early in January until into June. The troops were quartered in Madison, Chatham, Hanover, Whippany, and other places near Morristown. This old tavern was standing until within a few years, when it was destroyed by fire.

Captain Jacob Arnold received an honorable discharge from service, at the close of the war, from General Washington, and was afterwards made lieutenant-colonel of the province of New Jersey, in 1793. Previous to this, in 1783, he was elected sheriff of Morris county, and served three successive terms. He was married to Elizabeth Tuttle, in 1771, and by her had nine children—Hannah, Samuel, Sarah, Gertrude, Jacob, Abraham, Jacob (second), Charles, and Eliza Maria. His wife died, and, in 1807, he married Sarah H. Nixon, by whom he had seven children.

Charles Arnold, son of Jacob and Elizabeth Arnold, was born September 29, 1788. He married Elizabeth Wolf, daughter of Thomas Wolf, who was born August 20, 1788, and about the year 1818 emigrated, with their small family to the then wilderness of Ohio. The box of the wagon in which they traveled was made their home until a cabin could be built. With good health, but with no capital, other than his hands, with which to gain a living for himself and family, he entered upon the hardships and privations of a pioneer's life, under which the feeble constitution of his wife sank until she died, April 2, 1823, leaving behind her eight children, the youngest but fifteen months old. These children were: Jane H., Abraham B., Margaret, Charles, Stephen, Jacob, Harriet, and Victor. With untiring energy and industry, Mr. Arnold was enabled to provide for his family and keep them together after the death of his wife, and, in 1824, he was a second time married, to Mrs. Elizabeth Farber. He was an active member of the Presbyterian church, and died in the arms of his youngest son, at Galena, Ohio, in 1851, at the age of sixty-three years.

Jacob Arnold, son of Charles Arnold, was born in Licking county, April 21, 1818. He was married to Orrilla Smith, daughter of Alexander Smith, September 8, 1840, and the following year moved to Franklin county. To them were born five children, of whom but two are now living—John M. and James P. John is unmarried and lives in Kansas.

James P. Arnold was born November 10, 1844, and was married to Corella S. Goodrich, daughter of Emerson Goodrich, September 3, 1869. They have two children—Horace G., born October 15, 1871, and Amy F., born November 13, 1872. He is now living with his family, on the farm bequeathed him by his father, by will, January 1, 1870. He has a beautiful home, situated about a mile and a half west of the village of Groveport, in Madison township, Franklin county. Jacob Arnold, his father, died March 19, 1870.

JOSEPH B. POTTER, M. D.,

of Canal Winchester, Ohio, son of John B. and Nancy (Morse) Potter, was born in Courtlandville, Courtland county, New York, November 12, 1815. His mother died when he was three years of age, and his father, who was a Baptist minister, in 1835. When eleven or twelve years of age, young Potter was sent to school at an academy in Canandaigua, New York, where he remained for six years. He then attended an academy at Rochester, New York, where he continued three years. His health having at that time become somewhat impaired, he went South, with a view to restoring it, and remained some three or four years. He then returned North, and was subsequently, for about a year, employed in the construction of the Michigan Central railroad. In 1838 he came to Canal Winchester, where his uncle, Stephen H. Potter, was engaged in the practic of medicine. Having, as opportunity offered, previously read medicine, he formed a copartnership with his uncle, which continued until 1840. He afterward practiced in partnership with Dr. James Langworthy until 1843, and then alone for a year or two. He then attended lectures at the medical department of the Western Reserve college, Cleveland, and was graduated in 1845 or 1846. He resumed his practice in Canal Winchester, and was afterward in partnership, successively, with Dr. Isaac H. Titus, Dr. Robert G. McLane, and Dr. A. A. Short, until 1861, when he went into the army. Dr. Potter entered the service as surgeon of the Thirtieth Ohio volunteer infantry, the original commander of which was Colonel Hugh Ewing. The regiment was in West Virginia until 1862, and afterwards with Pope in East Virginia, taking part in the second battle of Bull Run. The history of this gallant regiment need not be repeated here. Suffice it to say, that in nearly all of the great battles of the war—South Mountain, Antietam, Vicksburg, Mission Ridge—it took a conspicuous part, and was with Sherman in his illustrious march to the sea. At the siege of Vicksburg, Dr. Potter was on the operating staff for a few months, and then in charge of the field hospital of the Second division of the Fifteenth army corps. While at Black river, Mississippi, he was ordered to take charge of the Second division of the Fifteenth corps, as surgeon-in-chief of the division, in which position he continued until May, 1865, when he was made acting medical director of the Fifteenth army corps. This position he held until August, 1865, when he was mustered out of the service.

At the close of his army service, Dr. Potter returned to Canal Winchester, and resumed the practice of his profession, in partnership with Dr. Short, until 1874, and since then alone. He has always held a prominent place among the medical profession of Franklin county, and has an extensive and lucrative practice.

November 11, 1840, he was married to Emily D. Holly, of Canal Winchester, formerly of Vermont.

Z. VESEY,

son of John and Elizabeth Vesey, was born in Pickaway township, Pickaway county, Ohio, November 30, 1823. His parents emigrated from Sussex county, Delaware, and settled on the lower plains of the above named township, and died there—the mother in 1831, and the father in 1836. After the death of his parents, the subject of this sketch went to live with his uncle, Gideon Vesey, in Fayette county, Ohio, with whom he remained about three years. He then removed to Illinois, with his brother-in-law, Hamilton Waples, but remained only about a year, when he returned to his native township, and commenced working for Abraham Swisher, whose daughter—then Mrs. Catharine Frame—he married, August 11, 1842. He resided in Pickaway about a year after his marriage, when he removed to Franklin county, and located on a farm in Truro township. He soon, however, returned to Pickaway, and remained two years, when he again settled in Truro, on the same farm on which he had previously located, and resided there for sixteen or seventeen years. During the war he resided in Columbus, after which he returned to Truro, where he carried on farming, extensively, for some seven years. In the fall of 1874 he purchased, for twenty-four thousand dollars, the farm and elegant mansion, at Groveport, of John S. Rarey, the famous horse tamer, to which he removed in the spring of 1875, and where he now resides.

Mr. Vesey's life has been one of unusual activity. He started in business for himself with the fixed purpose of "doing something," to use his own words, and not, Micawber-like, of waiting for something to "turn up." He had but sixty-five dollars in money, but he possessed what was much more valuable and indispensable to his success—a clear head and an ample stock of what may be termed clear grit. He received potential aid from his father-in-law, who helped him, with his name, to obtain whatever credit he desired; but by promptly meeting every obligation contracted, he was soon enabled to dispense with such assistance. During the first four years of his business career he was unable to accumulate any property, but during the next ten years his gains aggregated over forty thousand dollars. From that time forward, until within the last four years, his accumulation of property was rapid. He owned, at one time, thirteen hundred acres of land, besides a great deal of other property. During the period mentioned, however—years of general business disaster—Mr. Vesey, like almost every man who has been engaged in business on a large scale, has suffered an occasional reverse of fortune. His principal occupation has been that of farming, although he has also dealt extensively in live stock.

D. B. Potter M.D.

Mr. Vesey was a large stockholder in the old Central bank, of Columbus (now Fourth National), and was elected vice-president of the institution in December, 1875. On the death of Captain Nathaniel Merion, in 1877, he was elected his successor, as president of the bank, which position he filled until April 1, 1879, when the bank was reorganized as the Fourth National.

His wife died January 15, 1878, and on September 3d, of the same year, he married Mrs. Lizzie Mason, of Fairfield county, immediately after which they visited the Pacific coast, spending several weeks in California. Mrs. Vesey is the daughter of Henry and Nancy Cosgrove, and was born in Cosgrove Hall, Pennsylvania (a village of which her father was the proprietor), April 9, 1843. She came to Ohio with her parents when five years of age, and after she was nine years old, was raised by her sister, Mrs. John Coal, of Columbus. In 1866 she was united in marriage to Elijah E. Mason, who died on his farm, near Lancaster, Ohio, January 19, 1876. Mrs. Vesey has two children—Frank and Johnnie—aged, respectively, twelve and eight years.

Mr. Vesey is the father of five children, all by his first marriage, viz.: Mary (now Mrs. Carson), living in Truro township; Abigail (Mrs. Sharp), in Woodson county, Kansas; Irene, at home; Snyder A., and Laura (Mrs. Thompson), in Truro.

HON. JOHN CHANEY, SR.

Few men have occupied more public stations, or have filled them with more satisfaction to the public, than has the subject of this sketch. In remarkable health and vigor, for one of his advanced age, Judge John Chaney bids fair to fill a century—an age so uncommon that the psalmist allotted but seventy years as the limit of man on earth.

Judge Chaney was born in Washington county, Maryland, January 12, 1790. When he was but four years old, his father removed, with his family, to Bedford county, Pennsylvania. When the father died, John was fourteen years of age. His only brother died soon after, leaving the mother and two sisters to be supported. His father, like all the family, was of a truthful and kind nature. Becoming security for friends, the fine farm of the family, together with the stock, etc., was sold to pay debts not his own. For six years the support of the family devolved upon John, who was scarcely yet in his teens, and he sustained the burden ungrudgingly and manfully. The marriage of his sisters took it from his shoulders, and, in 1810—nearly seventy years ago—young Chaney came West, and, for a time, worked on the land situated on the Ohio canal, in Fairfield county, now the village of Waterloo. Thence he went to Pickaway county, where he labored for nearly two years, when his health failed, and he returned to the old home in Pennsylvania. In 1815, with recruited health, he returned to Fairfield county, and settled in Bloom township, where he has made his home ever since, near what is now Canal Winchester. Afterwards, in order to straighten the lines between Fairfield and Franklin counties, a strip of land, including a tier of sections, was taken from Fairfield and attached to Franklin, which brought Judge Chaney within the latter, his farm being upon one of the sections transferred.

In 1816 Judge Chaney was united in marriage to Miss Mary Ann Lafere, and built, for a residence, a log cabin, fifteen feet square, with puncheon floor, clapboard roof, mud chimney, and other characteristics of the primitive dwellings of that period. Here the honeymoon of the newly-married couple was passed. When not at work upon his clearing, the young settler toiled for others, splitting rails or chopping cordwood. For the former he got fifty cents a hundred; and for the latter, twenty-five cents a cord, or one bushel of wheat, or two bushels of corn, then reckoned at twenty-five cents—the value of a full day's work by a good hand. Soon after his marriage, he brought his mother west, to live with him. Subsequently, while on a visit to her daughters in Pennsylvania, she died. His life was similar to that of all early settlers in Ohio, until the State began her works of internal improvement. Not long after his marriage, he became the purchaser of a small grist-mill. In 1821 he was dubbed "'Squire Chaney," on account of his election as justice of the peace for Bloom township, in which office, by successive re-elections, he served nine years. He also served, continuously, as township trustee, for twenty-three years. In the fall of 1828 he was chosen to the house of representatives in the Ohio legislature, and was re-elected in each of the next two years. For a time he held the position of paymaster in the State militia, and became, successively, major and colonel of a regiment. In the spring of 1831 he was elected, by the legislature, associate judge for Fairfield county. The next year he was place on the Jackson electoral ticket, and cast his vote in favor of the hero of New Orleans for his second term in the presidency.

The member of congress for the Fairfield district, in 1828, was elected as a Jackson man, and re-elected in 1830. During his second term, however, he favored the United States bank, voting to pass a bill, desired by the bank, over Jackson's veto. The Jackson men refused him a renomination, and Judge Chaney was made the Democratic nominee. The bank men nominated, as their candidate, the late member, whom they had bitterly opposed at two successive elections. Judge Chaney was elected, and served faithfully, for three successive terms, declining a renomination for a fourth term. During his third canvass, he was challenged to a public discussion in Morgan county—the district consisted of Fairfield, Hocking, Perry, and Morgan counties—but won so triumphant a victory as to largely increase his vote in that county, and he was never afterward challenged to a public discussion. His good common sense, his knowledge of facts, and the plain, sensible manner in which he tore his opponent's charges to pieces, made him a host of true friends. The reputation of Judge Chaney in congress, was that of an excellent member. He enjoyed the love and confidence of his political friends, and likewise, the entire respect of his political adversaries. Among the great questions upon which he was called to act while in congress, was the repeal of the celebrated "specie circular," issued by General Jackson. The bankers were buying up, for speculative purposes, vast tracts of the public lands, and paying for them in notes of their own bank, such notes, in many cases, being taken to the land office in sheets, signed there, and paid to the receiver as money. The treasury was thus being filled with notes of a doubtful character; and the circular was issued to prevent anything but specie being received for the lands of the United States. The panic among the bankers was terrible, and every effort possible was made to induce congress to have the circular rescinded. Many members elected as Jacksonians yielded to the clamor, and the bill was only defeated by a few votes. Judge Chaney, faithful among the faithless, stood firm. The circular was not repealed; so when the banks failed the treasury had but few of their worthless rags on hand, and many of those who voted at the dictation of the bankers, felt as if they would gladly repent in sackcloth and ashes, to atone for their folly.

Another question, deemed at the time of momentous importance, not only in congress, but by the people of all the States, was settled while Judge Chaney was a member; in its settlement he bore a leading part. The Cherokees held a large reservation in Georgia; they adopted a tribal organization, with their own code of laws. The State government rebelled at this, claiming that Georgia laws alone should prevail on the reservation. The commisson of a murder in the Cherokee country brought matters to a crises. The State authorities seized the offender, and tried him in the State courts, where he was sentenced to death. The case was brought before the United States court, and a writ of habeas corpus was issued; but the Executive of Georgia refused to produce the prisoner, and ordered the decision of the State court to be enforced. The man was hanged, to remove the cause of complaint, and settle the vexed question of jurisdiction. A treaty was made by the United States with the Cherokees, in which, for a certain sum of money and lands west of the Mississippi river, the reservation was ceded to the general government. Georgia claimed the land. It was not only valuable, but had been much improved; there were on it fine farms and residences, school-houses, etc., hence the struggle to get it. The question had to be settled by congress. After a short debate, it was referred to the House committee on judiciary affairs, of which Judge Chaney was a member, and Hon. John Bell, of Tennessee, was chairman, the former was absent, by reason of sickness in his family, when the committee met, and as the six remaining members were equally divided in opinion, no report could be made. He had, however, carefully examined the question, and on his return was ready to act, voting in the committee with those who held that the treaty was right and valid. His views prevailed there and in the House, where a bill was introduced authorizing the government to sell the lands, and, after some bluster and threats, all parties acquiesced, and the lands were sold, and the great Cherokee question was settled at once and forever.

A finer specimen of a man than Judge Chaney, in his younger days, was hard to find. There was a good-natured rivalry at Washington, between the New York delegation, and that from Ohio, on this subject, the New Yorkers claiming the palm for the Hon. Francis Granger, of that State, while the western members, one and all, asserted that in this particular the Empire State could not compare with the west. A Washington newspaper had an editorial on the subject, in which the statement was made that, while men might differ, to a woman the softer sex would vote for Judge Chaney.

Leaving congress at the close of the session, in 1839, Judge Chaney claimed retirement as his just due; but his old neighbors and friends, in 1842, elected him once more to the lower house of the Ohio legislature, over which body he was called to preside as speaker. Two years afterwards he was chosen to the State senate, and was again a member of the house in 1855. In the convention which drafted the present State constitution, he was an active and honored member. He has held more different public offices, probably, than any other man in Ohio, and filled them well. And yet it is a fact, borne out by the united testimony of his friends and neighbors, that he never asked a single office at the hands of his party or his friends. Yet, when office was tendered him, he felt that he could not decline. He had more honest pride in the good opinion of his neighbors and constituents than in office-holding; and, in all the heated contests through which he passed, his integrity, his word, and honor, were never impugned. His private character was pure beyond reproach; his public character had no taint of corruption in it, and as he has lived, so will he die: an honest, God-loving man, fearing to do evil, and striving to do good.

Judge Chaney was thrice married. His first wife, Mary Ann Lapere, died in February, 1823, leaving four children. In November, 1824, he was remarried, this time being united to Miss Elizabeth Miller, who died in January, 1836, leaving five sons and two daughters. In December, 1860, he married Mrs. Mary Stephenson, who is still living. Most of his children survive—his daughters well married; his sons fine business men. Among the latter, are O. P. Chaney, a grain merchant, doing an extensive business at Canal Winchester, and Dr. H. L. Chaney, an excellent physician, in large practice, at Groveport.

DANIEL LEIGH.

MRS. DANIEL LEIGH.

THE LEIGH FAMILY.

Daniel Leigh, a native of New Jersey, born in 1756, emigrated to Madison township, Pickaway county, Ohio, in 1823, where he died a few years after his settlement. He was a soldier of the Revolutionary war. He was the father of six children: Zebulon S., Charles, Watrous, Elisha, Sarah, and Eliza—all now deceased except Watrous, a wealthy farmer now living in Lynn county, Iowa, aged about eighty-six years. Charles died in Madison township, Pickaway county, soon after the death of his father. Elisha died in Illinois. Sarah, wife of Samuel Savage, remained in New Jersey. Eliza became the wife of Captain Buzzenbarger, and settled in Indiana.

Zebulon Stout Leigh, the oldest of the family, was born in Allentown, New Jersey, in the year 1790. He learned the saddler's trade of his father, but not liking it, he chose the life of a farmer, which he afterward followed. He married, in New Jersey, Amy Laning, and removed to Madison township, Pickaway county, Ohio, in 1818. His wife was the daughter of Samuel Reed Laning, who emigrated to the same township from Trenton, New Jersey, with his family in 1819. They were five weeks in making the journey from Philadelphia to Decker's mill, on Little Walnut creek, where they permanently settled.

Mr. Laning died about two years after his arrival. His wife, whose maiden name was Huldah Pierson, survived him some eighteen years.

Zebulon Leigh settled on Walnut creek, in the Decker neighborhood, where he lived several years; then moved to Madison township, Franklin county, Ohio, and located on the farm of John Welton, where he died in 1841. His widow is yet living, and is one of the oldest inhabitants of the township, being nearly eighty-eight years of age. They were the parents of nine children, to wit: Samuel, Phebe (afterwards Mrs. English), Mary Ann, Matilda, Huldah, Louisa, Charles, John S., and Daniel. All are now dead except Samuel, Huldah, and Daniel, who reside in Madison township, Franklin county.

Daniel, whose portrait appears, with that of his wife, herewith, was born March 1, 1834, and married, December 29, 1867, Margaret E. Copland, daughter of Joseph and Mary Ann (English) Copland, of Auglaize county, Ohio. She was born October 6, 1841. To them have been born three children, namely: Joseph S., born November 1, 1870; Mary Amanda, born April 14, 1873; and Olin Copland, born February 25, 1876.

TRURO.

The surface of this township is generally level. The principal stream is Big Walnut creek, or, more properly, Gahanna river, which flows southwardly, through the central portion of the township. Black lick creek, a branch of the Gahanna, runs in a southeasterly direction through the eastern part.

SETTLEMENT.*

The first settlements in the township were made in the year 1805. Among those who moved into the Truro woods, in that year, were John and Charles Medford, from Pennsylvania, and Thomas Palmer, from Maine. The Medfords settled in the southwest corner of the township, on Alum creek. They subsequently sold out to Daniel Ross. Thomas Palmer was the owner of the land on which John Edgar and family located in 1806—on Black lick creek, a short distance north of Reynoldsburg. Palmer was then a single man, but afterwards he married, and lived in the township until his death.

John Edgar, of whom mention has been made, came from Pennsylvania. His eldest son is now a resident of Jefferson township.

In 1806, John Lynch, originally from Pennsylvania, removed to this township from Lancaster, Ohio, where, with his wife, Mercy, he had settled in 1799 or 1800. He settled at the north end of what is called Sprague's Hill. He served a few months in the war of 1812. He was the father of six children, namely: Jonathan, John, Cornelius, Daniel, William, and Mercy. Daniel lived and died in Sandusky. Cornelius removed to Indiana, and William to Illinois. Mercy married a Mr. Boyd, and now lives in Illinois. Jonathan is supposed to have lost his life in the Seminole Indian war, as he was never heard from after he entered the service. John, about the year 1820, married Nancy Scott, and resided in the township until 1850, when he went to California, where he died, in 1863. His son, John H. Lynch, is now living in Reynoldsburg, where he is engaged in the marble business. He is also a justice of the peace of the village, in which position he has served for several years.

The same year Benjamin Cornell moved in from Virginia. They located just east of Walnut creek, on the National road. Benjamin sold out to Captain John Hanson, in 1812 or '13, and removed to Urbana. The widow of William Cornell still resides in the township.

Matthew Long, from Nova Scotia, also joined the settlement in 1806. He located in section twenty-two, and subsequently erected a saw-mill and a grist-mill, which he operated until 1825, when he died. He left a wife and four sons. Robert, Edward, and George were raised by David Taylor, and Henry by A. Vinton Taylor. Henry Long is now engaged in business in Groveport, and Edward and George reside in Portland, Oregon. Robert is deceased. John Long, a brother of Matthew, was also a pioneer of Truro.

Prominent among the pioneers of the township were the Taylors. Robert Taylor, of Truro, Nova Sciotia, having entered or purchased lands in this township, removed with his family in the fall of 1806, to Chillicothe. He resided there until the spring of 1809, when he came and settled on Walnut creek, having, the previous summer, erected his dwelling—the first framed house in the township. The old structure is still standing, and is in a pretty good state of preservation. Robert Taylor died in 1828. His children were Abiather Vinton, Elizabeth, and Margaret (both of whom married into the Long family), Lydia (who married her cousin, Matthew), Jane (afterward Mrs. Thompson), James W., David, and Susan, who married Gilbert Green. The only survivors are David and Mrs. Green, the former residing in Columbus, and the latter, who is now a widow in Truro.

William McIntire, now living a short distance from Reynoldsburg, has been a resident of the township since 1808 or 1809. His father came from Virginia, with his family, in the above year, and settled on the old Hebron road, where William Ashton now lives. He had a large family of children, of whom eight are yet living. William, the oldest, married, for his first wife, Mary Frazer, who died, of cholera, in 1834. In 1840 he was again married, to Sarah Longshore, who died in the year 1857. He has three surviving children, and two deceased. Mr. McIntire purchased the first lot in Reynoldsburg after the town was laid out.

In 1810 or 1811, Zachariah Paul removed to this township, from Virginia, and located on Walnut creek, about a mile and a half south of the National road, where he resided until his death. Two sons and a daughter (Mrs. Stigler, in Mifflin township), are now living. The oldest son, John, died, in 1879, on the homestead. His widow now resides in Columbus.

About this time William Thompson came from Pennsylvania, and settled just below Paul. In 1820 he sold to William McComb, of Washington county, Pennsylvania, and removed to Indiana.

Capt. John Hanson came to Ohio, from Virginia, with his wife and two children, about the year 1806. In 1812 he bought out Benjamin Cornell, on the National road, just east of Walnut creek. Capt. Hanson was born, in Virginia, in 1799, and died, in Reynoldsburg, in 1861. His widow—second wife—now lives in that village.

* For the facts concerning many of the early settlers herein mentioned, the writer has relied upon the recollections of Mr. David Taylor, now of Columbus, but one of the earliest pioneers of Truro township.

In 1812 Daniel Ross and his sons, James, Alexander, Hugh, Daniel, Fulton, and Edward, removed to this township, from Nova Scotia. The father died in Truro, but the sons finally moved out of the county.

Richard Rhoads, with his family, which consisted of his wife and three children, came to Ohio from Pennsylvania in 1807. He remained four years in Bloomfield, Pickaway county, when, in 1811, he moved to Truro, and settled on the place on which his son, Lambert, now lives. He died in 1851, at the age of seventy years. His wife died in 1870, at the age of ninety-three. They raised nine children, as follows: Margaret (Mrs. Johnson), and Philip, who live in Reynoldsburg; Lambert P., who married Sarah Cornell, and lives on the old homestead; Elizabeth, who remains unmarried, and lives with her brother, Lambert; Isaac, deceased; John, who was killed on the railroad at Pataskla, Licking county, in 1873; Richard, who also resides in Reynoldsburg; Mary (Mrs. Doren), who lives in Iowa; and Matthew H., deceased. The family is remarkable for longevity—the ages of the six surviving children agregate four hundred and twenty-four years, or an average of nearly seventy-one years.

David and Nancy Graham, of Reynoldsburg, are among the oldest residents of the township—being aged, respectively, sevent-nine and seventy-six—and were also among its early pioneers. Mrs. Graham came with her parents, James and Margaret Graham, from Washington county, New York, in 1811. Her father bought from John Logan one hundred acres of land, just east of where Reynoldsburg now stands, and resided there until his death, August 7, 1835, the mother having died previously. Mr. Graham came to Truro when seventeen years of age, in the year 1817. His father, George Graham, settled about a mile north of where Reynoldsburg now is, and died there some twenty years ago. His wife survived him, and attained the age of eighty-five. Mr. and Mrs. Graham have now eight children (two having died), fifty-one grandchildren, and eighty great-grandchildren. Mr. Graham was engaged in merchandising in Reynoldsburg, for twenty-five years.

In 1812 John Cambridge moved in from Pennsylvania, and, in 1814, Elias Chester and Jeremiah Nay, from New York.

George Powell, and family, earlier settlers in the adjoining township of Madison, settled in this township together with his brother, Archibald and family, in the year 1815. They erected a cabin, on the place now occupied by James N. Peters, and the two families occupied it, together, for about a year, when Archibald built where his son, Joseph B. Powell, now lives. He died there, in 1868, at the age of nearly eighty five. His wife survived him about ten years, and was nearly the same age at her death. Six of the family are now living—William and Jacob, who live in Missouri; Mrs. Alford Gray, who lives in Madison township, this county; Joseph B., who lives on the homestead, in Truro; and James N. Peters, who lives in the same neighborhood.

In 1815 or '16 David Pugh, a native of Wales, moved into the township from Delaware county, and located on the place now occupied by the Enlows. He kept a tavern there for many years. His wife, before marriage, was Jane Murphy, whom he married in Delaware county. They had a family of seven children, the youngest of whom is Judge Pugh, of Columbus. David, the eldest son, was born in 1814, and died in 1877. He married, first, Elizabeth Whetsel, and after her death, Hannah Phillips, his cousin, in 1861, who still survives. He lived, during the greater part of his life, on the farm now occupied by his sons, David S. and John M. The other children of David Pugh, sr., are Mrs. Robert Shields, of Columbus, Mrs. Jane Hudson (widow), in Truro, Andrew, who lives in the west, and Margaret and Isabel (twins), deceased.

Thomas Enlows came from Baltimore, Maryland, in 1816 or 1817, and purchased one hundred acres on the east side of Big Walnut. He sold to David Taylor, and died shortly afterwards. He was the father of three daughters and one son, James, who was raised by Mr. Taylor. He married Jane Wolf, and settled on Broadway, a mile west of Big Walnut, where he raised his family. He finally purchased the farm now occupied by his family—five unmarried children. He was in the war of the Rebellion, and died at Vicksburg in October, 1863. His body was brought back to Truro, and buried in the same grave with that of his father on the Hanson place. Mr. Enlows was one of the best as well as one of the most influential citizens of the county.

Daniel Whetsel, a native of Pennsylvania, was one of the early pioneers of Pickaway county, settling in the old Indian town of Westfall, Wayne township. In 1823 he moved to Franklin county, and located on the land now owned by his daughter, Huldah. He died December, 1868, at the advanced age of eighty-seven years, his wife preceding him many years. There are now seven of the family living, four of whom reside in the west. Of the remainder, Huldah, unmarried, occupies the homestead; Elisha M. is a resident of Columbus, and Mrs. Martha Taylor, in Blendon township.

Jacob Wolf and family came to this county from Hardy county, Virginia, in 1831. Mr. Wolf settled in the Powell settlement, where he lived about six years, when he bought the David Pugh place, on Broadway, which he made his permanent residence. Four of the family are yet living, viz.: Mrs. Staley, in the adjoining township of Jefferson; John, who married Ann Cornell, near Reynoldsburg; Mrs. Shull, in Mifflin township; and Levi, in Hibernia.

Benjamin V. Lunn came from Bucks county, Pennsylvania, in 1833, and located on the National road, near where Dr. Lunn now lives. He died the next year after his arrival, and was the first person buried in the Baptist church burying-ground. His widow is still living in the township, and is now aged seventy-three. Josiah R. Lunn, and Benjamin V. Lunn, her only children, also reside in this township. The former married a daughter of David and Nancy Graham.

William E. Bullen emigrated from England, in 1832, and remained in Canada until 1836, when he bought one hundred acres of land in Truro township. He had a family of six children, five of whom settled in the immediate vicinity. Two sons now live in the township—John, and William. John married Mary Wallace, in 1843, and has had eight children, six of whom are now living. He has worked hard in grubbing out the tough beech roots and clearing his place, and by industry and economy has secured a comfortable home. William E. Bullen, his father, died in 1844.

Basil Batchelor, originally from near Syracuse, New York, moved in from Licking county, Ohio, in 1846, and located on Broadway, about four miles from the city, in Truro township. He died in 1870. His wife, Nancy Batchelor, is still living. A son, Lemuel, resides in Bluffton, Indiana, and is county treasurer; another son, Basil, is a resident of Delaware county; Alonzo, and Rhoda, reside in Union county; Lucy married Elias Chrysler, now deceased, and lives in Mifflin township, this county.

FIRST SCHOOL.

The first school in this township, as now remembered by Mr. Taylor, was kept in a log cabin on the east bank of Big Walnut, just south of where the Livingston road now crosses it. The first teacher was a man by the name of McAfferty, who taught about the year 1820. There was an earlier school on Alum creek, in Montgomery township, taught by Helen Tappan, which the children of Truro attended.

CHURCHES.

THE UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH,

in Reynoldsburg, was constituted about the year 1818. The organization took place at the house of James Graham, the Rev. Mr. Armstrong, from near Xenia, officiating. The original members of the society are as follows: James Graham and wife, Matthew Crawford and wife, William Crawford and wife, Isaac Crawford and wife, David Crawford, John Frazier and wife, John French and wife, John Livingston and wife, William Graham and wife, Robert Taylor and wife, George Graham and wife, and a few others, whose names cannot now be remembered. Before the erection of a meeting house, the society usually met for worship at the dwelling of James Graham. Frequently, in the summer season, they would hold meetings in some barn, which occasion would bring out a large attendance. This practice, however, was common to nearly all religious societies in that day. The church erected a frame house, at the Lancaster, and Hebron cross roads, which was used some thirty years, when the present building, in the village, was built. Rev. Mr. Donaldson was the first pastor, and after him, in the order named, Revs. Messrs. McLane, Lindsey, Forrester, McNary, McArthur, and Park, whose term of service has not yet expired. The membership is now about one hundred. David Graham, Robert Boyd, William Johnson, and Alexander W. Livingston, are the elders.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

This church, called Friendship church, was organized by Elder Hanover, at the house of John Coons, September 13, 1823. The membership consisted of the following named persons, viz.: Thomas Torance, Thomas Torance, jr., Mary Torance, Daniel Whetsel, John Coons, Catharine Coons, and Mary Dean. Daniel Whetsel was elected church clerk, and John Coons deacon. The society held their meetings at the dwellings of the members—generally at Mr. Coons' or Mr. Whetsel's—until 1834, when the brick church, since rebuilt, was erected. The pastors of this church have been as follows, officiating in the order named, to-wit: Elders Hanover, Nadden, Wayne Taylor, Hendron, George Tusing, Samuel Williams, John A. Thompson, Thomas Cole, and Ephraim Barker.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

in Reynoldsburg was first organized as a class, about 1835, by a Mr. Lee, who was the first class leader. The early members of the class were: John Hughes and several sons, Harvey and Walter Miller, John Fell, Mrs. Schoonover, Mr. Lee and wife, David Oakley, and others. Meetings were held in the old school-house, south of town, for about a year, when a frame meeting-house was built, on the northwest corner of the present school-house lot. This house was used by the society until 1871, when the present brick church was erected. Rev. Mr. Donahue was on the circuit in 1839. The circuit was then called Pickerington, and it still retains that name, although it has since been divided. The present membership is about one hundred, and Rev. J. Kemper is pastor. A Sabbath-school has been in existence for many years, and now numbers about one hundred and forty pupils. The superintendent is D. J. Snyder.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

of Reynoldsburg was formed August 6, 1836, the Rev. James Hoge, Rev. H. Vandeman, and Elder John Long, of the Truro Presbyterian church, officiating in its organization. It was organized with ten members, viz: John W. Thompson, Mary Thompson, Archibald Cooper, Margaret A. Cooper, John Henthorn, Ruth C. Henthorn, James M. Robertson, Maria Robertson, Jane Bronson, and Leah Anderson. John W. Thompson, James M. Robertson and Archibald Cooper were chosen ruling elders. Early meetings were held in the old Methodist church. The first meeting-house was erected by the society in 1840. It was destroyed by fire in 1861, and the present house which stands on the same lot, was built the same year. Rev. Elias Vandeman was the first pastor. Since Mr. Vandeman the following named clergymen have been employed by the society, viz: Jonathan Cable, John Court, William H. Rogers, James Harrison, Elijah Kuhns, H. C. McBride, Thomas Downey, Homer McVay, Lewis E. Jones, William E. Mack, and Samuel D. Smith. Rev. Messrs. Vandeman, McVay, Mack, and Smith have officiated as pastors of the church, the rest as stated supplies. Rev. Mr. Smith is still in charge. The membership is now fifty. The ruling elders are A. T. Graham, Jacob Henderlick, William Williams, and Abraham Hare.

THE UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

July 22, 1848, at a meeting in the village school-house a large number of those interested being present, there was organized what was then termed the First Universalist Society of Reynoldsburg, now called the First Universalist church of Reynoldsburg and vicinity. The organization was effected by the election of the following officers: Jonathan Looker, president; John Miller, clerk; Tobias Broomback, treasurer; E. P. Bull, Vincent Hutson and John Miller, trustees.

A constitution for the government of the society was drawn up and signed by about forty members, the original signatures or those of first members, being: John Miller, E. P. Bull, Joathan Looker, Vincent Hudson, T. Broomback, John Wright, John T. Cookus, Noah Powers, Amanda Miller, E. S. Miller, Eliza Cookus, Elizabeth Scott, Martha Looker, Reuben Schofied, Isaac Powers, Jacob Schaffer, A. J. Moore, J. M. Allen, N. C. Mason, D. C. Vandugyn, Lot Davis, C. Keiser, and George Taylor. The church building was erected in 1849, at a cost of about one thousand five hundred dollars, and upon a lot donated for the purpose by John Ricketts. The first regular pastor employed was the Rev. Henry Gifford. Varying degrees of prosperity have been passed through by the church, but it has been during most of the years of its existence, in a very flourishing condition. It has at present about forty members. The present pastor is the Rev. W. B. Woodbury; and the trustees of the church are: Charles G. Hutson, M. M. Mason, and Samuel Parkerson.

POWELL CHAPEL.

This society was formed by the Rev. James Hooper, at the Powell school-house, in the year 1850. The constituent members, were: Archibald Powell and wife, Edward Long and wife, Jacob Powell and wife, Amon Algive and wife, and Mrs. Elizabeth Peters. Edward Long was the first class leader. In 1851 the meeting-house was erected, and services have been regularly held in it by the society until the present time. It has been recently extensively repaired. A class was organized at White hall about the year 1845, and a small frame building erected, which is still standing. The society has ceased to exist, and no meetings have been held in the house for a number of years.

THE DESCIPLE CHURCH

was organized April, 1861, by Elder Basalman, with a membership of fifteen, as follows: Austin Sprague, W. P. Sprague, William R. Sprague, Harvey Sprague, Polly Sprague, Mary Sprague, Levi Sprague, Eliza Sprague, Leroy Sprague, Georgia Sprague, Addie Sprague, J. T. Smith, John Reynolds, Phinneas Tucker, and James Flinn. W. P. Flinn, and James Flinn, were chosen elders. The church was completed in 1870, prior to which the meetings of the society were held in the Universalist church, and subsequently in the hall over the drug store. The regular preachers had been Elders Taylor and T. D. Garden, of Columbus. The church now numbers about one hundred and thirty members.

MILLS.

There is, at the present time, no grist-mill in Truro township, and but one saw-mill—that of Henry Krum, in the northwest corner of the township. Among the mills which had an existence within the township, was the grist-and saw-mill of Matthew Long, on Big Walnut, below Hibernia, who operated them until his death, in 1824 or '25. In 1833 or '34, Sylvanus Baldwin moved into the township, and bought one hundred acres of land, with a saw-mill, where the Livingston road crosses the Big Walnut, and afterwards erected a grist-mill there. A steam grist-mill was erected by General Reynolds, on Black lick, in the south part of Reynoldsburg, and a saw-mill was built at an early date, on the same stream, a short distance below the village, by Joseph McIntyre, which continued in operation for many years.

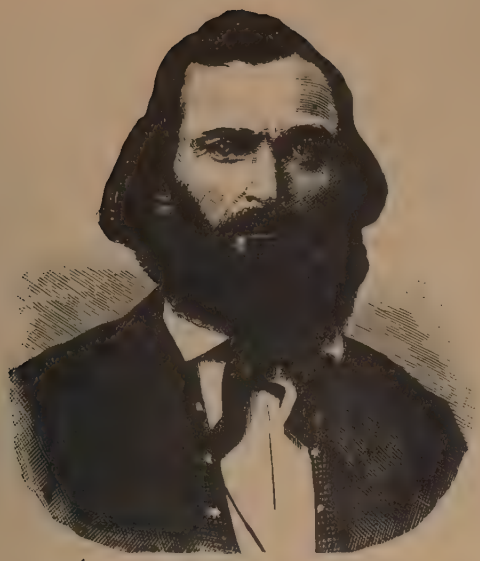
The stone quarry of William A. Forrester, near Reynoldsburg, was opened, by Henry Bessey, about fifty years ago. The stone was first quarried for bridging purposes, on the National road. The quarry was purchased of Bessey about 1840, but was not developed to any extent until some six years since, when Mr. Forrester erected a mill, and commenced sawing. The stone is of the free-stone quality, and is from twenty inches to two and a half feet in thickness when quarried. It is used largely for building purposes and flagging, going mostly to Columbus, Newark, and Zanesville. The dip is to the south-east, along a little stream, and the supply is, apparently, inexhaustible.

The tile factory, at Reynoldsburg, was established by Hiram Dysart & Co., in 1874. It is now owned and operated by the firm of Dysart & Henderlick.

REYNOLDSBURG

was laid out in the fall of 1831, by John French, who owned the land on which the village is located, and the place was first called Frenchtown. Soon after the town was laid out, James C. Reynolds, afterwards General Reynolds, then a young man, from Zanesville, came and opened a store with a small stock of miscellaneous goods, suitable for the wants of the laborers upon the National road, then in process of construction, and the name of the village, not being entirely satisfactory to the inhabitants, it was changed, at a public meeting of the citizens, to that which it now bears. Reynolds had, at that time, no interest in the project of building up a town, except the increase in his business which would naturally follow. He subsequently married in, and became identified with the place that bore his name, and was one of its leading citizens, and most prosperous business men. He resided there for a number of years, was once adpointed postmaster, built a steam mill, and was generally active in public as well as private affairs, but finally removed to Carroll, Fairfield county, where he died.

The town had, for a few years, quite a rapid growth, during which time it attained to nearly its present size. Its greatest prosperity was probably attained in about 1846 or 1847, and it continued to hold considerable importance as a place of trade until the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was built, in 1853, when the stages were discontinued upon the National road, and the village ceased to have that element of support. Then, too, the little station village of Black Lick was developed upon the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and to it was diverted a portion of the patronage that formerly sustained Reynoldsburg, in its best days. The village still retained, however, a



J. B. Powell

MRS. M. S. POWELL.

THE POWELL FAMILY.

Joseph Powell was born and married to a daughter of Archibald McCoy, in the State of Maryland, removing thence to Bedford county, Pennsylvania, in 1794, where he remained until his death. The children born to this couple were: Mary, born August 3, 1781; George, born February 19, 1783; Archibald, born December 1, 1784; Joseph, born December 7, 1786; Sarah, born February 2, 1789; Elizabeth, born March 10, 1791; Thomas, born February 2, 1793; Mary (second), born November 17, 1798; Rachel, born December 27, 1799; John, born September 3, 1801; Jonathan. born March 23, 1803; William, born July 1, 1805; Robert, born September 15, 1807; Susannah, born March 5, 1809; Nancy, born November 6, 1810; and David, born January 6, 1813.

Archibald Powell, the third child in this family, married Elizabeth Adams, in Bedford county, Pennsylvania, January 29, 1808, and in 1815, accompanied by his family, removed to Ohio, and settled in Truro township, Franklin county. The year after their arrival they built a cabin on the farm now owned by J. B. Powell. Their children were; William, born August 5, 1809; Mary, born December 5, 1810; Jacob, born June 2, 1813; George, born January 25, 1815; Malinda A., and Rachel M. (twins), born December 7, 1818; Joseph B., born March 27, 1822; Elizabeth J., born October 30, 1824; and Clarissa A., born November 19, 1828. Archibald Powell died September 3, 1868. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Powell, lived until nearly eighty-six years of age, and died April 29, 1878. Before her death she had one hundred and sixty-three descendants, as follows: Nine children, sixty-eight grand children, and eighty-six great-grandchildren.

Joseph B. Powell, son of Archibald and Elizabeth Powell, was married to Lucinda T. French, August 12, 1863. She was born April 3, 1842. To them were born three children: Clement M., born June 3, 1864; William A., born September 21, 1866; and Andrew J., born May 12, 1869. Mrs. Powell died October 6, 1870, and on the twenty-fifth of January, 1876, he was again married, to Mary S. Fancher, who was born September, 26, 1852. They have one child: Gerda M., born May 7, 1878. Mr. Powell has passed his life on the home farm, with the exception of two years and three months spent in the gold mines of California, during the years 1850, 1851, and 1852. He was able to bring home a quantity of gold from the mines, but has found a more profitable and pleasant business and home on his farm, where he has since remained. A representation of his home accompanies this sketch.

THE FANCHER FAMILY.

William Fancher was born July 6, 1764, and was married in Pennsylvania, where he had a family of nine children, as follows; Henry, born January 25, 1786; Nancy, born May 5, 1790; Samuel, born February 16, 1792; William, born November 8, 1793; Amy, born in 1798; Polly, born April 25, 1800; Nehemiah, born May 7, 1804; David, born July 16, 1806; Rebecca, born October, 1809. The family came to Plain township, Franklin county, in an early day, and after their arrival, William, Henry, and Samuel, served in the war of 1812.

William Fancher, jr., was married, in 1815, to Selina Cook, by whom he had three children: David, born October 15, 1816; James, December 10, 1817; William, November, 16, 1819. Mrs. Fancher died, and he married Eveline Brown, who was born April 22, 1825. Their children were: George, born October 26, 1847; Joseph, May 7, 1849; John, December 11, 1850; Mary Selina, September 26, 1852; Josephine, July 26, 1854; William C., March 13, 1856; Isaac, May 5, 1858; Samuel, September 15, 1860; Henry, September 13, 1862; Ulysses Grant, October 27, 1864; Lorenzo Dow, November 29, 1868.

considerable portion of its prestige, and has done so to the present.

As has heretofore been stated, Mr. Reynolds had the first store in the village—in fact, had one upon the site before there was a village there. The building was a hewed log house, which stood where the United Presbyterian church now is. The second store was occupied by B. B. Bronson. Next in order, after Mr. Bronson, came the store of Rhoads & Clendenning, and their successors, Metler & Clendenning. Then came Rhoads & Hutson, and then Elias Weaver. The first hotel was that now known as the Central house, built by Michael Demorest, in 1832. He sold to Benjamin Sills, who conducted the little tavern for some time. In 1833, Mr. Demorest built what is now the McEwen house, and of which Louis Sells, a nephew of the proprietor of the other house, was landlord. Emanuel Rhoads, in 1835, built the third hotel, which is also still standing, but not in use.

THE POST-OFFICE

of Reynoldsburg was established in 1833, and James C. Reynolds was the first postmaster. He was succeeded, in 1840, by Hiram Sibel, and he, in 1841, by E. G. Hardesty. Mr. Reynolds was reappointed in 1842, and served four years, when he gave place to John Miller. Lewis Sells succeeded him in 1847, and, in 1849, was himself succeeded by L. P. Rhoads. In 1853, R. R. Johnston obtained a commission, and, in 1855, John Cookus. John Wright was the postmaster in 1856, and those who have followed him, down to the present time, have been John Lynch, R. R. Johnston, Richard Roe, Vincent Hutson, and Mr. Mason.

PHYSICIANS.

The following list will be found to contain the names of all of the physicians who have lived in Reynoldsburg long enough to be identified with its people: Dr. Robertson was the first practitioner, and came at the time the village was established. He remained a long time, had a large practice, and was much liked. Those who followed him, and remained for greater or less length of time, were Doctors Cowden, Fulton, John McCullough, Thomas Sturgeon, M. R. Ewing, Carroll, Gravenna, George, Foregraves, Anderson, James Langworthy & Son, William Goldrick, Samuel Mathews, Aljo, Fisher, J. D. Nourse, and M. D. Brock, the last two of whom were particularly prominent and able physicians. Dr. Jacob Schaffer and Dr. D. S. Waddell were each, for many years, residents of Truro township, but not of Reynoldsburg, though each had a large practice there. The present physicians of Reynoldsburg are L. T. Lunn, H. A. Rodebaugh, F. G. Taylor, and T. W. Alberry. Dr. Lunn came to Ohio from Penntylvania, with his father—Thomas Lunn, in the year 1833. He read medicine with Dr. Langworthy, of Reynoldsburg, and subsequently, in 1857, graduated at Jefferson medical college, Philadelphia. Immediately afterward, he established himself in Reynoldsburg, where he has continued, with success, until the present. Dr. Rodebaugh studied with Dr. Kinsman, of Columbus, and, in 1874, graduated from Starling medical college, that city. He then bought out Dr. Brock, of Reynoldsburg, and has since built up a good practice in the village and surrounding country. Dr. Taylor derived his medical education at the Eclectic medical college, Cincinnati, in 1875, and subsequently practiced in Pickerington, Fairfield county, three years, when he located at Reynoldsburg. Dr. Alberry graduated at Columbus medical college, in 1876, and afterward located in this village.

INCORPORATION.

Reynoldsburg came into being, municipally, in 1839, being then chartered by the legislature, and its corporation government was organized in 1840, Abraham Johnston being at that time elected mayor, with the following board of trustees: D. K. Wood, Samuel Garres, John W. Thompson, Mark Evans, James O'Kane, and Archibald Cooper. Beginning with Johnston, the mayors elected from 1840, to the present, have been as follows: 1841, Daniel Taft, re-elected in 1842 and 1843; 1844, Robert Shield; 1845, Archibald Cooper; 1846, James O'Kane; 1847, R. Shield; no elections were held from this time to 1853, when R. Shield was again chosen; 1854, J. B. West; 1856, Richard Rhoads; 1857, J. B. West; 1858, M. H. Rhoads; 1862, J. H. Miller; 1866, Robert Trimble; 1867, John Schoonover; 1869, A. J. Graham; 1872, H. Wilson, and W. W. Johnson (to fill vacancy); 1873, W. W. Johnson, regularly elected; 1876, John H. Lynch; 1878, J. B. West, the present incumbent. The other officers now in position, are: Harvey Nichols, clerk; C. J. Huston, F. W. Norris, J. P. German, T. W. Alberry, Samuel Chandler, William Rhoads, councilmen; J. A. Frazier, marshal.

SOCIETIES.

MASONIC.

Reynoldsburg Lodge, No. 340, Free and Accepted Masons, was instituted October 21, 1862, with the following charter members: M. D. Brock, John Dickey, John E. Beckwith, L. W. Babbitt, G. M. Tusing, Jonathan Choes, James Taylor, R. R. Johnston, and Hiram Cooper. The first officers, appointed by the State lodge were: M. D. Brock, W. M.; John Dickey, S. W.; L. W. Babbitt, J. W. The lodge has now seventy-three members, and is officered as follows: Tunis McNaughten, W. M.; H. A. Rodebaugh, S. W.; D. J. Snyder, J. W.; Walter Burton, treasurer; John G. May, secretary; William Ashton, L. D.; John H. Lynch, tyler.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS.

Truro Lodge, No. 411, was instituted June 1, 1869, and the following were its charter members: John D. Nourse, R. A. Rhoads, George Shanks, Norman Woodruff, C. W. Nicely, Morris Evans, Lewis Painter, Gilbert Green, James Layton, J. A. Frost, John H. Middleton, Philip Straull, William Hunt, Vincent Hutson, Harrison Outcult. This lodge has now eighty-two members. Its officers are G. T. Smith, N. G.; William Middleton, V. G.; J. H. Long, P. S.; W. E. Ashton, R. S.; F. W. Norris, treasurer; George Holliday, S. W.; C. S. West, conductor.

REYNOLDSBURG ENCAMPMENT was instituted June 1, 1875, and was originally composed of the following members: John D. Nourse, William Rhoads, O. F. Coons, Jacob Pickering, W. E. Ashton, William Hunt, C. S. West, George Stoner, Charles Fishbaugh, David Pugh, P. W. Strahl.

Soon after the village of Reynoldsburg was laid out, Thomas Armstrong sold a few lots, where the National road crosses Big Walnut. These were improved and formed the nucleus of the little hamlet, called Hibernia. The place was not platted, nor did the proprietor intend it for a village. A post-office, however, was established there in 1849, and William F. Armstrong, appointed postmaster, who continued to hold the office until 1857, when he resigned, and the office was discontinued.

TOWNSHIP ORGANIZATION.

Truro was organized as a township in 1810. It originally formed a part of the old township of Liberty. The first election for township officers was held at the residence of the Taylor family, who had the honor of giving the township its name. That of "Truro" was selected, after a township of that name in Nova Scotia, in which they had formerly lived.

The township records not having been preserved, we are unable to give the names of the first township officers elected, except the justice of the peace, who was Ebenezer Richards. Township officers, in those times, served without compensation, and such was the practice until about the year 1850.

By an act of the legislature, passed the 27th of January, 1857, nine half sections were detached from the south-west corner of Licking county, and annexed to Franklin, which caused the jog in the south-east corner of Truro township, as shown by the county map.

The present township officers are as follows: William Rhoads, clerk; J. R. Lunn, J. B. Powell, and John Townsend, trustees; W. W. Johnson, treasurer; Wm. Swonger, assesor, and John H. Lynch and James Taylor, justices of the peace.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JAMES ENLOWS.

Thomas Enlows, the father of James Enlows, was born September 16, 1792, and was married March 29, 1818, to Sarah Bull, who was born August 5, 1791. To them were born six children: Prudence R., Sarah P., Elizabeth B., James, Thomas, and Rachel. Soon after their marriage, they emigrated to Ohio, and located in Truro township, Franklin county, where both parents died, and their little family became scattered.

James Enlows, the subject of this sketch, was born November 4, 1825, and, after the death of his parents, was received into the family of David Taylor, where he remained until he became of age. He was married, November 30, 1852, to Mary A. E. Wolf, a daughter of Jacob Wolf, who settled in the township, in 1832. They commenced housekeeping, on a tract of two hundred and twenty-seven acres of land, situated in the west part of Truro township, which he had previously purchased. There was a small clearing on the place, which he extended and improved, and where they lived some twelve years, when he bought one hundred acres on the pike, west of Walnut creek. This land was very well cleared and here they made their home and raised their family. To them were born six children, as follows: Thomas, J. J., Rebecca J., Margaret E., Mary A., and Sarah P. The latter died in infancy.

James Enlows, the husband and father, enlisted as a soldier in the war of the Rebellion, and served in the Ninety-fifth Ohio infantry. He participated, with his regiment, in the siege of Vicksburg, and soon after the army left that place, was taken sick and died, October 8, 1863. His wife survived him fifteen years, and died at her home, in Truro township, June 9, 1878. Their children, two sons, and three daughters, still occupy the home place.

GILBERT GREEN.

The subject of this sketch, Gilbert Green, was born in Sussex county, New York, November 27, 1804. His father was Gilbert Green, sr., and his mother, Susan Green. When but a few years of age, his parents removed to New Jersey, where he passed his early life, and where he was married, October 3, 1826, to Melinda Harrison. Three children were born to them in New Jersey, and in 1831, the family came to Ohio. Mr. Green bought one hundred and eighteen acres of land in sections ten and eleven, Truro township, Franklin county, and a short time later bought two hundred acres adjoining his first purchase, on the east. Mrs. Melinda Green died about a year after their settlement, and on the ninth of September, 1833, he was united in marriage to Susan Taylor, who was born in Chillicothe, September 21, 1808. Her father, Robert Taylor, settled on section fifteen, in Truro township, in about 1809.

To Gilbert and Susan Green were born seven children—Robert, Gilbert, Sarah, Mary B., John Covert, Elizabeth Jane, and Gilbert Merwin. Three of these, Robert, Gilbert, and Sarah, died in infancy. Mary B. was born July 1, 1837; married Valverda Ware, May 29, 1860, and lives at the old homestead. John C. was born November 30, 1844; married Sarah Jane Parkison, and lives on the eastern part of the home farm. Elizabeth J. was born December 3, 1848; she has remained single, and is now residing in Chattanooga, Tennessee. Gilbert Merwin was born December 20, 1851; married Elizabeth Marshall, and lives in Columbus. The children of Gilbert Green, by his first wife, were: Aaron H., who was born July 10, 1827; married Cornelia Lucy Ware, and now lives in Chattanooga, Tennessee. William H. was born November 1, 1829; married Julia Ware, and died, leaving three children. The third child was Mary O., who is long since deceased.

Mr. Green was a hard working man, and cleared and improved his farm. For many years he had very poor health, caused by a severe cold taken while returning from New Jersey, with his brother, and from which he never fully recovered. His death occurred January 25, 1878, at the age of seventy-three years and a few months. His widow survives him, and lives with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Ware, and her husband, at the old homestead, which she has occupied for forty-five years. She has now twenty-four grandchildren.

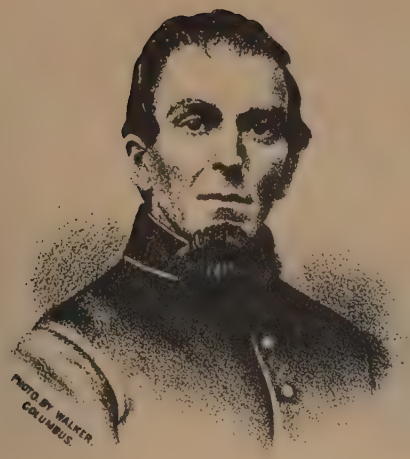
Mr. Green became a member of the Presbyterian church while a resident in New Jersey, and after his settlement in Truro united with the Presbyterian church, at Reynoldsburg, of which he became an elder. He lived the life of a christian, and was prepared to meet a christian's death.

Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Green appear elsewhere.

THE WOLF FAMILY.

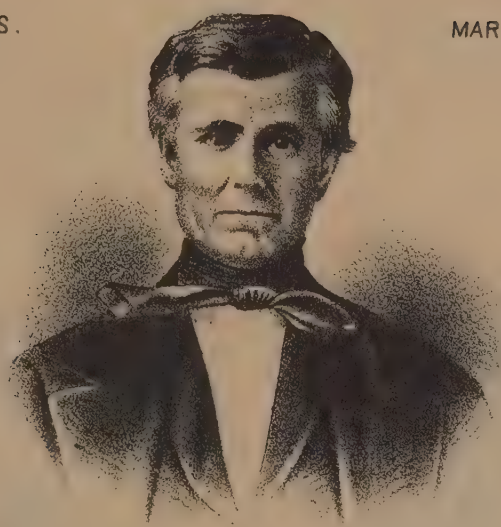
Jacob Wolf, sr., was born in Virginia, January 28, 1788, whence his parents came from Germany. As a child he learned the German language, and when but eight years old his mother died. His father soon afterward married an English woman, and, from disuse of the language of his parents, he lost the German and acquired the English language. He was married while in Virginia, to Margaret Cornell, in about 1811, and by her had ten children: Jane, John, Joseph, Christine, Isaac, Jacob, Mary, Rebecca, Archibald, and Levi, of whom but four are now living. Levi lives in Hibernia, Truro township. Jane married Miles Hanson, and, after his death, married Mr. Staley. They now live in Jefferson township. Rebecca married Abraham Shull, and lives in Mifflin township.

John Wolf, the second child of Jacob Wolf, was born in Hardy county, Virginia, March 2, 1815. When a little more than fifteen years of age, he accompanied his parents to Ohio, and settled, with them, in Truro township, Franklin county, in 1831. The following year they bought one hundred and ninety acres of land in section twenty-



JAMES ENLOWS.

MARY A. ENLOWS.

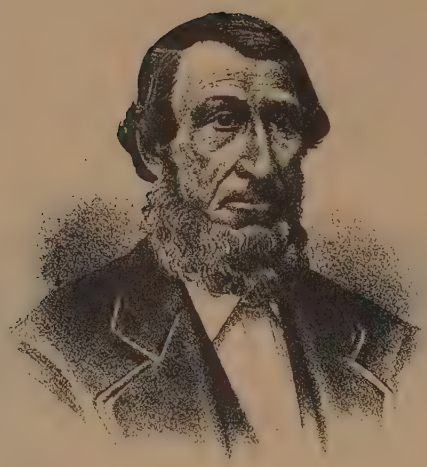


W. NOE.

J. R. LUNN.

MRS. J. R. LUNN.

PHOTOS. BY ELLIOTT & ARMSTEAD.
COLUMBUS, O.



JOHN WOLF.

GILBERT GREEN.

SUSAN GREEN.

(PHOTOS. BY ELLIOTT & CO. COLUMBUS. O.)

six, where they lived some five years. They then rented a farm in Jefferson township one year, after which a farm was purchased on the north line of Truro township, which land is now owned by the Enlows heirs. Mr. Wolf, sr., died July 14, 1869, in the eighty-second year of his age. His wife died September 2, 1872, aged eighty years.

John Wolf was married February 14, 1837, to Ann Cornell, who was born September 17, 1819. Her parents were William and Permelia Cornell, who were among the pioneer settlers of Truro township. Mr. Cornell died in the spring of 1835; his wife survives him, and remains at their old home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolf have always resided in the county, and, since 1869, have lived at their home, just west of Reynoldsburg. Their children were three in number: Margaret J., born February 21, 1840, who married Cyrus Eberly, March 18, 1862, and lives in Columbus; Permelia A., born November 15, 1841, who died August 8, 1863; Jacob S., born October 25, 1848, who married Miss C. J. Hickman, December 24, 1872, and lives on the farm adjoining his parents', on the west.

Mr. Wolf owns one hundred and forty-three acres of land in Truro township, besides a small farm in Licking county. They are blessed with two children, now living, and three grandchildren. Their home is a pleasant and well-appointed one, and is situated in a fine location. Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Wolf appear on the opposite page.

THE LUNN FAMILY.

William Lunn, the first member of the family to emigrate to America, left England under very peculiar circumstances, in about the year 1700. Some friends of his were about to sail for America, and he accompanied them on board the ship to bid them a last farewell. When he had taken his leave of them he found, to his surprise, that the vessel had started on her voyage, and was bearing him, an unwilling passenger, to a foreign country, with no preparation for such a journey, and without even a coat on his back. But he made the best of the circumstances, and when they arrived at their destination, proceeded to Berks county, Pennsylvania, where he settled, and married, and raised a family.

Josiah Lunn, son of William Lunn, when a young man, married and raised a family, consisting of six sons and one daughter. His son, Josiah Lunn, was born May 7, 1759. He married Mary Vastine, whose father, Benjamin Vastine, came from Holland. To them were born six sons and three daughters. Their son, Benjamin Vastine Lunn, was born February 3, 1803. He married Elizabeth Ride, whose mother came from Scotland. After marriage, in company with his mother, three brothers, and two sisters, they came to Franklin county, Ohio, arriving May 22, 1833. In the fall of the same year, they bought a farm on the bank of Black Lick, in Truro township, two and a half miles north of Reynoldsburg. On this land was a saw- and grist-mill, but he was not long able to manage them, as he sickened with lung fever, and died the following winter, leaving a widow and one son—Josiah R., born September 17, 1831. Another son—Benjamin Vastine Lunn—was born February 10, 1834. Thus, in his early manhood, was the husband and father called hence, leaving his family in a new country, and on property illy suited to their circumstances.

His son, Josiah R. Lunn, was married, October 9, 1856, to Margaret Graham.

THE GRAHAM FAMILY.

About the year 1774, John and William Graham, with their families, left County Down, Ireland, near Belfast, and undertook the journey to America. A long and tedious voyage of sixteen weeks intervened between the time they left the shores of their native country and their arrival in New York city. They made a settlement in Washington county, New York, near the present village of Shushan, at that time called Sodom. Here they joined what is known as the Seceders' church, of which William Graham was made elder. John Graham had one son, also named John, and two daughters, all of whom settled in western New York.

William Graham and his wife, whose maiden name was Mary McBurney, lost several of their children during their long voyage, and after settling in America they had four more born to them—John, George, Nancy, and Jane. In 1817, the entire family emigrated to Ohio, and made a settlement in Truro township, where William Graham and his son soon died.

Their son, George, married Anna Cowden, of Cambridge, New York, in December, 1799. He was born June 2, 1777, in Salem, Washington county, New York, and his wife, June 30, 1779, in Pelham, Massachusetts. To them were born twelve children, as follows: William G., James, John, Sarah, Susan, Mary, Ann, Levi, Isaac, Nancy, and Amos. His wife's sister, Margaret Cowden, accompanied them in their journey to Ohio, in 1817. They traveled eight weeks, in a two-horse wagon, before reaching their destination, in Truro township, Franklin county, where Mr. Graham bought two hundred and seven acres of land, located a mile and a quarter northeast of Reynoldsburg. They suffered many privations and hardships in the new country, where there were few roads except corduroy, no bridges, mills far distant and poor at that, fevers and ague very prevalent, and doctors few and far between. Houses were made of logs, with a hewed puncheon floor, the roof covered with clapboards, and barely a nail used in their construction.

David Graham, the first child of George and Anna Graham, was born February 17, 1801, at their old home, in New York. When a young man, in 1819, he taught school on his father's farm. On the twentieth of December, 1821, he was married to Nancy Graham, of Truro township, and settled on a lot of fifty acres, given him by his father. This land he cleared and occupied until 1854, when he engaged in business at Taylor's station, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. Later, he bought a dry goods store at Reynoldsburg, and associated his son with him, where he remained twenty-one years. He now lives on a small farm near the village. To David and Nancy Graham were born ten children, as follows: Matilda D., Maria, Samuel, James McLean, William B., Sarah J., David L., Margaret, George McB., and Anna M.

Margaret Graham was born August 9, 1837, and was married to Josiah R. Lunn, October 9, 1856. To them have been born seven children—Benjamin V., Nancy I., Elizabeth E., Alice, Estella, David J., and DeWitt B., all of whom are living at their home.

WILLIAMS NOE.

The father of Williams Noe, Daniel M. Noe, was the descendant of an old Huguenot family from France, whence his father, Abraham Noe, came to America during the Revolutionary war. Daniel M. Noe was married in New Jersey, January 1, 1809, to Mary Williams. Three children were born to them in that State, and in 1816, with his small family, he emigrated to Ohio, settling in Plain township, Franklin county, where he made a purchase of one hundred acres of land. But few settlers were located in this vicinity, the nearest neighbor being Joseph Scott, half a mile distant, while the country was a wilderness, with no roads, other than paths and blazed trees to mark the course of the hardy pioneers. Here he made a clearing, and improved a farm, on which he lived until 1869, when he died, aged eighty-two years, one month and nineteen days. His wife survived him, and died January 2, 1879, aged eighty-four years, five months and four days.

To them were born eleven children, who lived to maturity. Williams Noe, the subject of this sketch, was born in Plain township, September 10, 1817, and here he passed his early life, occupied in assisting his father in clearing and improving the farm, and raising the grain and crops necessary for their subsistence. He obtained a limited education at the subscription schools of that day, and on the third of April, 1842, was married to Isabella Pugh, who was born April 24, 1820. Her father was David Pugh, who was one of the early settlers of Truro. Her brother, John M. Pugh, became probate judge of Franklin county, and is a prominent lawyer of Columbus.

After marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Noe settled in Truro, where they ever after lived. Mrs. Noe died at their home, January 11, 1850. She was the mother of six children, all sons, (two pair of twins), three of whom died in infancy. Of those who survived, was David Pugh Noe, who was born January 3, 1843. During the war of the Rebellion he enlisted in the Forty-sixth Ohio infantry, and participated in the battle of Shiloh, at which he was wounded. He received his discharge, for disability, August 30, 1862. Daniel M. Noe, who was born November 4, 1844, also entered the service of his country, in the same regiment, and was also wounded at Shiloh, from the effects of which he died in the hospital, at Cincinnati, April 6, 1862. Andrew J. Noe, who was born February 4, 1847, was patriotic, like his brothers, but not of an age to enlist as a soldier in the early part of the war, but entered the service in 1864, and served three months, at the end of which time he was honorably mustered out with his regiment.

Some time after the death of his wife, Williams Noe came into possession of property from her father, which was deeded to his three sons, two of whom are now living and still own it, but reside on another farm, which they have since purchased, on the northeast quarter of section ten. Mr. Noe, sr., was married a second time, in the fall of 1852, to Pernelia Hanson, a daughter of Captain John Hanson, who setteld in Truro in 1809. She was never blessed with any children, and died April 2, 1869. Mr. Noe was one of the original abolitionists, in the county, and as such was obliged to suffer much persecution for his opinions' sake, but stood nobly by the cause he believed just, until in the end it triumphed. He was also a strong advocate of the temperance cause, at that time also extremely unpopular. A great reader, with a very retentive memory, he was able to recall dates and events with astonishing accuracy. His reputation among his neighbors was that of a strictly honest man, a good citizen, and a friend to all humanity. His death occurred May 21, 1869.

BLENDON.

Blendon is one of the regularly surveyed townships of the United States military lands, and five miles square. It is township number two, in range seventeen. It was originally connected with Sharon township, for civil and judicial purposes, but was stricken off on the sixth day of March, 1815.

PHYSICAL FEATURES.

The surface is nearly level, except where broken by the streams, which have high banks. Alum creek enters the township boundaries at the northwest corner, and flows in a generally southerly direction, but bearing off to the east, somewhat. The proper name of this stream is Alum, and not Elm, as some have contended. It was not named after the species of timber found in the county, through which it meanders, but called Alum in consequence of the substance which exudes, in some places, from its slate banks. Big Walnut creek flows southerly, through the eastern half of the township. Big run rises in the northern and central part of the township, flows south and empties into Alum, near the crossing of the Granville and Worthington road.

THE PIONEERS AND EARLY SETTLERS.

Blendon township was settled in the year 1806. The families of Edward Phelps and Isaac Griswold, accompanied by Ethan Palmer, came in that year from Connecticut, and made their way into the unbroken forest, settling where their descendants now reside. The native place of these pioneers was Windsor, Hartford county. They were just two months upon the road, leaving home June 24th, and arrived at the place of their destination August 24th. They were three days making their way from Granville to the spot where they settled, in Blendon. The party did not come wholly ignorant of the nature of the country that was to be their home, but, nevertheless, it was in a great measure, to them, terra incognita. They knew but little of the resources, or the dangers, and disadvantages of the wilderness that was to be their home. Edward Phelps, sr., and Isaac Griswold, had made, in 1805, a brief visit to Ohio, and it was the favorable report that they carried back to New England that led the families to determine on emigration. On arriving in Blendon, the little colony first encamped on the elevation east of Alum creek, and on the site of the Granville road, immediately east of the Phelps farm. After making there permanent locations, each family began preparations for the provision of those things necessary and convenient. The Phelps made a clearing of about seven acres, and the Griswolds one of about half that extent—the difference, perhaps, being caused by the fact that the former family included more boys than the latter. But, however this may have been, it had little to do with future success—that was gained by both families of pioneers. The small beginning, in each case, led to large success, and permanent prosperity.

The Phelps family consisted, upon its arrival in Blendon, of Edward Phelps and his wife, Azubah (Moore), and six children—Edward, jr., Abram, William, Azubah, Lucinda, and Chloe. Homer M. Phelps was born in Blendon, February 9, 1812. He is a resident of Blendon, and located upon the old homestead, on the Granville road, just east of what has, for more than half a century, been known as "Blendon corners." He married Elizabeth G., daughter of Edward Connelly, who came from Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in 1833, and has three children: Fredonia A. (Mrs. F. B. Dean, of Mifflin), Henry W., and Clinton E. But to return to the original settlers: Edward Phelps, sr., was born August 27, 1757; his wife February 13, 1765. He died August 10, 1840, at the age of eighty-one years and eleven months; she, October 18, 1849. Edward Phelps, sr., was son of Timothy, who was the son of Cornelius, the son of Timothy, the son of William, who was one of the first settlers in Windsor, Connecticut. The dates of births and deaths of the children of this couple were as follows: Edward, born May 10, 1790, died October 22, 1845; Abram, born August 16, 1791, died August 18, 1834; William, born September 16, 1802, died June 1, 1847; Azubah, born May 19, 1794, died April 14, 1860; Lucinda, born January 28, 1797, died November 25, 1873; Chloe, born May 30, 1799, died October 9, 1865. Edward Phelps married Betsey Jamison, a native of Virginia, who is still living in the township. Their children one of the oldest residents and most prominent citizens of Blendon township, is a native of that region, having been born near the present site of Westerville, March 12, 1818. He was the son of Samuel and Bell (Craig) McDannald, who had emigrated from Bath county, Virginia, five years before, and were among the very first settlers in the north part of Franklin county. The family traditions, as well as their experiences here, were much identified with pioneer and wild life. Mr. McDannald's paternal grandmother, with her sister, both little girls, were carried off, sometime in the last century, by the Indians, from the mountains of Virginia, and kept in captivity for seven years. During the wanderings of her savage captors, she was taken repeatedly through the picturesque country in Ohio, where her descendants long afterwards made their home, and recognized it with delight, at once upon revisiting it, although by that time white settlement had somewhat changed it. When the elder McDannald settled in his wilderness home, the danger from Indians had passed; but the usual hardships and privations of pioneer life, with some perils from wild beasts, and more from the prevalent diseases of the early day, were still their lot. The family is of Scotch-Irish and Presbyterian descent, to which is due much of their sturdy vigor of mind and body, and their high religious and moral character. When John was but five weeks old, his father removed to a new place, three or four miles distant, to the site of the elegant mansion and extensive farm now occupied by the subject of this sketch. He was educated in such district schools as the country then afforded, and spent some time in the Blendon institute, a private classical school, opened near his home, about 1834, by the Rev. Ebenezer Washburne, which has since become Central college. His father died in March, 1844 (his mother dying nearly ten years before), and he took possession of the old homestead, buying out the remaining heirs. Here he has continuously resided since, living a quiet, unostentatious, uneventful, but, withal, happy and prosperous life. He took a hearty interest in the founding of Central college, gave liberally to the new building for a ladies' hall, and is now a trustee of the institution. He is also trustee in the College Presbyterian church, of which he is a member, and has served eight years as township trustee. He is otherwise occupied wholly in the management of his large estate, numbering two hundred and fifty-two acres, and is passing into a serene old age, held in boundless honor and respect by his neighbors and a host of friends far and near.

JOHN CALVIN McDANNALD,

Mr. McDannald long remained unmarried, but had an efficient housekeeper and counselor in the person of a maiden sister, Miss Lila McDannald, who still resides with him. By them were mainly reared two nephews, Dr. Augustin Starr and Samuel Craig Starr, sons of a deceased sister, the latter of whom was a soldier in the late war, served honorably three years, and was then mortally wounded, and died inside the rebel lines. January 3, 1866, Mr. McDannald was married, in Westerville, to Miss Ada M. Cook, formerly of Ross county. They have no children. A brother of his, Mr. Alexander McDannald, the only remaining member of the family, is an extensive farmer upon a place immediately adjoining the old home.

were Gustavus, William, Perry, Harriet, Chauncey, Margaret, Timothy, Homer, and Lauretta. William and Timothy are both well-to-do farmers in Blendon. Margaret married J. C. Vance, and also lives in the township, as does Lauretta, who became the wife of U. C. Vincent. Edward Phelps, jr., was a captain of militia. Abram was a colonel, and served several terms as justice of the peace. Homer M. Phelps has been elected justice of the peace three terms.

Ethan Palmer, who came with the Phelps family, married Loretta Olmsted.

The Griswold family consisted of Isaac Griswold and his wife, Ursilla (Clark), who was a native of Windsor, Connecticut; two sons, Isaac Mortimer and Edwin B., both of whom have been dead for many years; Oliver Clark, a brother of Mrs. Griswold; and a sister of Mr. Griswold—Salina. Four children were born after the arrival o the family in Blendon: Christiana, born in the year 1808, who married Thomas Schrock, of Mifflin; Fredus N., born May 6, 1811, who was, for many years, a helpless invalid; Cicero P., born December 6, 1815; and Mindwell, born December 19, 1822, who is the widow of the late George B. Clark. The three last named are residents of Blendon.

Simeon Moore, sr., and Simeon Moore, jr., arrived in the township June 8, 1807, from Hartford county, Connecticut. They lived, the first few weeks, with their friends and relatives, the Phelps family, until they could build a cabin upon the land, five hundred acres, which the elder Moore had bought in the south-east section of Blendon. They moved to their own home early in the fall, beginning their pioneer life. Simeon Moore, jr., made buckets, and sold them in Chillicothe for corn, getting for each one as much as it would hold of the precious food supply. Their nearest neighbors were three miles away. Game was abundant, and the best of meat to be had for the effort of an hour's hunt. Like the other pioneers, they used the skins of the deer, and other animals, for their clothing, and also the linsey-woolsey woven by the women. The next season after their arrival, the families were brought to the home in the wilderness. Simeon Moore, sr., was a soldier in the war of the Revolution, and fought at the battle of Bunker Hill. He died, at Blendon, in 1825. Simeon Moore, jr., died in 1853. His first wife died in 1829, and he then married, as his second wife, Laura Patterson, who is still living in Blendon township. Virgil D., oldest son of Simeon Moore, is now living in Mifflin township. The other descendants, Emmerette, Horace, Harriet, Alfred M., Simeon, and Roxanna, are all dead, except Simeon, who is now in Texas. Laura Ann (Mrs. G. W. Williams), is in Hamilton township, and Cordelia and Wallace, children by his second wife, are respectively located in Mifflin and Blendon.

John and William Cooper came in 1808 or 1809, from Virginia, and located in section two, near Alum creek. William Cooper and his wife, Phebe, both long since dead, had four children, who now live in the township. William Calvin, upon the old place, Hannah (Mrs. J. Watt), Abram and Melinda, in Westerville. The children of John and Polly Cooper are: Eliza, Rachel (Walling), Mary Ann, and William, who lives upon the old homestead farm, which his father bought of James Kilbourne. John Cooper was an admirable character. He combined many good traits, was a good hunter, a neat farmer, and a very useful citizen.

Colonel George Osborne, and Francis Olmsted and his wife, Chloe (Case), came in 1808. They were from Hartford county, Connecticut.

Samuel McDannald and his wife, Bella (Craig), came from Bath county, Virginia, in the fall of 1813, with a four-horse team, being five weeks upon the road. They located upon the west bank of Alum creek, opposite the present village of Westerville, where they remained four years, and then removed to the present site of John C. McDannald's home, and built upon the ground where his house now stands, a small log cabin. Mrs. McDannald died in 1834, and her husband in 1849. They had six children, viz: Lila J., Margaret Cartmill (Watson), Martha Crawford (Starr), John Calvin, Alexander C., and Rebecca E. Long. Margaret, Martha and Rebecca are dead, and the other three reside in the township. John Calvin married Ada M. Cook, and Alexander C. married Parthenia Toll.

Samuel Puntney came to Blendon in 1813, and located near the Moore's.

In the same year as the above, Isaac Harrison, also of Virginia, located near the center of the township. He was a farmer and mechanic, and deacon in the first church organized in the township.

John Yovel and family came in 1809, from Rockbridge, Virginia, and settled in section two, west of Alum. Mr. Yovel bought one hundred acres of land near the present site of Westerville. built a cabin upon it, and cleared off the timber. Yovel's children were Elizabeth, Ellen, William, Permelia, James, Mary, Jane, John, Erastus, Loranna, Ebenezer, and Ann Eliza. William is the only one of the children now living. He resides in Worthington.

Cruger Wright located on the Dr. Blair farm in section two. He came from Connecticut, and his wife was a daughter of Mr. Goodrich who owned one quarter of the township. Wright served several years as justice of the peace. One of his daughters, Mrs. Orris Loomis, lives in the township.

Reuben Carpenter, of Vermont, brought his family in 1809, and located in section two, west of Alum. All removed fsom the township. Henry Hone, of Pennsylvania, located, about the same time, on Walnut creek, in section four, and built a mill there. He lived in the township until 1821 or '22.

John Matoon and his wife, Thankful, from Chelsea, Vermont, emigrated to Worthington in 1806, and came into Blendon two years later, locating in section two. Mr. Matoon died in 1843. His children were Calvin Stebbins, Willis, and Edwin. Willis married Ora Caroline Johnson, a native of Connecticut, who is now living upon the old homestead.

Garrit Sharp and his wife, Anna, came to the township from Genesee county, New York, in 1810. Andrew

Sharp, brother of Garrit, emigrated to Licking county, Ohio, where he married Clara Webster, but eventually moved into Blendon, and died there. Garrit Sharp lived, the first year, with Youel, but after that, upon his own land, in section two. He had, at first, one hundred and eighteen acres, but added to that until he was the owner of over four hundred and fifty acres. He had eight children, who came to maturity. William lives upon the old homestead in the northern part of Westerville; Stephen is in Delaware county, as is also Marybee (Mrs. S. Scott), Sarah (Mrs. Allen Hickok), is in Union county, Ohio, and John Wesley, in Franklin county, Iowa.

Levi and Bela Goodrich came to Blendon about the same time, but did not long remain.

Robert McCutcheon, and his wife, Mary (McKnight), both of Irish descent, the two families having come from Ireland at the same time, and settled in the same place, came to Blendon in 1811, from Augusta county, Virginia. They had eight children at that time, and one was born after their arrival. Their names were John William, James, Ellen, Samuel, Elizabeth, Margaret, Robert, Reed, and Hodge. The only one living is Ellen, wife of James Lawson. Robert McCutcheon originally owned the property upon which Otterbein university now stands, and afterwards the farm now owned by Stephen Cook.

Menzes Gillespie came into the township about 1816, from Hartford county, Connecticut, and settled first in the eastern part of the township, but afterwards on section two. He was an orderly sergeant in Captain Symon's company, Scott's brigade, in the war of 1812. In 1817, Mr. Gillespie married Chloe, daughter of Edward Phelps, by whom he had six children—Mary (Mrs. E. McClary), in Harrison county; William, Marcus, and Abram, in Whitley county, Indiana; Alma (Mrs. M. Dickey), in Blendon township; Menzes, Chloe (Mrs. D. C. Grinnell), in Illinois; and Walter, who died in infancy. Menzes Gillespie, jr., married Harriet Eblen, and resides in Blendon township, west of Alum. His father died in 1854.

Israel Baldwin came from Delaware county, New York, and settled west of Alum, in 1814, and lived there until his death. His children—Levi, Roxanna, Hannah, Clark, Lucy, and William, are all dead. The last named was a soldier in the Mexican war. Thomas Ingalls, of Vermont, came about the same time as Baldwin, and located in the same part of the township. He died in 1876.

Squire Timothy Lee, originally from Massachusetts, moved with his father into New York, when a boy, and from there came to Ohio, settling in Blendon, on Big Walnut, soon after the war of 1812. He married Rhoda Taylor, and lived in the township until his death, at an advanced age. He was one of the prominent men of the community, a fine scholar, very active and enterprising, and did much for the township. He kept it out of debt, which was an important thing in early days, when money was scarce. He held many offices, and was generally looked up to as a superior man. Probably he was most widely and favorably known as the founder of Central college, an institution of which the history is given elsewhere in this chapter. It has been said of him by one who knew him well (M. C. Howard, of Blendon, in an address delivered July 4, 1876): "Educated in the practical theory of economy, in New England, he came here, bold, decisive, and independent. His ideas of justice admitted of no qualifications. Had he been a king upon his throne, and his own son a rebel, he would have signed his death warrant with the utmost composure." He erected a distillery at an early date, at which the surplus grain of the surrounding country was made up into whiskey, but subsequently abandoned the business because of conscientious scruples, and became a warm and strong advocate of temperance. He also built the first mill in the township, and established a woolen factory on quite an extensive scale.

William Watt and family were early settlers on section three, coming from Pennsylvania. The children are now all dead, and the family is represented by a grandson.

C. P. Hempsted, from Windsor, Connecticut, was noted as a school teacher, and was also township clerk for a number of years.

Gideon W. Hart was a prominent early settler. He and his wife, Nancy (Langton), came from Hartford county, Connecticut. Mr. Hart first arrived in the township in 1816, and kept bachelor's-hall one winter, with Squire Timothy Lee. He made his permanent settlement, a year later, on Big run, in section one, taking up four hundred acres of the land surveyed by the government, which fell short twenty acres. He was a surveyor by profession, and a man of great force and true nobility of character. He was elected a colonel of the militia, and served many years as a justice of the peace. He died in 1859, and his wife in 1875. They were the parents of five children, who are: Mary P., deceased, Caroline (Mrs. William Phelps), Candace S., Sarah L., deceased, and Henry C., who, with his sister, Candace, lives at the old place.

Robert Jamison, with his wife and a large family, came from Virginia in 1816, and located in section two. He was a tanner by trade; a man of great industry, and a good citizen. His son, James W., lives on the old farm; and a daughter, Elizabeth, who married Edward Phelps, also lives in the township.

John Bishop and his wife, Sarah (Van Braman), came from Poughkeepsie, New York, in 1818, and stopped the first season with Aaron Phillips, who was located just on the line, in Sharon township. He afterward bought and cleared one hundred acres of land, which is now dotted with the houses of the south part of Westerville. The family, consisting of father and mother, and eight children, came from their New York home with two teams, and crossed the Ohio river on the fourth of July. Only three of the children are now living; they are: Hester A. (wife of Rev. D. Bonebrake), who lives in Westerville; Elizabeth (Mrs. J. B. Ingalls), who lives in Gevnea township, Delaware county; and Sarah (Mrs. John Hart). John Bishop died in 1854, and his wife in 1850.

Ezra Sammis came in about the year 1816. A son,

Selah R. Sammis, now resides in the township of Blendon.

Thomas Folland was for many years a resident of the township. He lived, at first, with Squire Carpenter, whose daughter, Sophia, he married.

Artemas Cutler came previous to 1818, from Vermont. He was a farmer, a builder and a miller. Among the other callings, that his versatility led him into, was that of an exhorter. He was particularly loud-voiced in this vocation, and attained quite a notoriety. Mr. Cutler was a very good man, but, unfortunately, had a habit of exaggerating, beyond all measure of probability, or posibility, in the stories he told, and in every day conversation. This was a serious offence to the matter-of-fact people who surrounded him, and was regarded as particularly unbecoming in an exhorter. It was once made the subject of a kind of half-official reprimand, at a meeting of the Methodists (to which denomination Cutler belonged), and he arose from his seat and made a characteristic response. "Brethren," said he, "I know that is my infirmity, and I have striven to overcome the evil member, but it is too strong for me. It has caused me much pain to think of it, and often I have lain awake in my bed at nights, meditating upon the matter, and have shed barrels and barrels of tears."

The Westervelts made an important addition to the settlement, in 1818. They were from Duchess county, New York. Peter, William, and Matthew Westervelt were among the leading men of early times in Blendon. They were active, not alone in their own business affairs, but in the promotion of all public improvements, and the interests of the community in which they dwelt.

Peter Westervelt was born in 1791, and died in 1869. His wife, Hannah Lemington, was born in 1796, and is still living—a resident of Westerville. They were the parents of eleven children: Anna Maria (Mrs. J. B. Ingalls), who died in 1845; Sarah (Mrs. N. E. Sammis), who lives in Iowa; Rebecca (Mrs. L. R. Goodspeed), who lives in Westerville; Hannah (wife of Rev. G. G. West), who lives in Westerville; Cornelius L., who died in 1859; Balinda, who died in 1834; Matthew, who died in 1857; Angeline (Mrs. Theron Westervelt), who lives in Iowa; Martha, who died in 1834; Mary (Mrs. Dr. A. Andrus), who lives in Westerville; Antonette (Mrs. Dr. O. G. Blair), who lives in Westerville.

William Westervelt was born in 1792, and died in 1878. He was married, in 1814, to Sally Bishop, who died in 1877. They lived together the remarkably long period of sixty-three years. Beside one son, who died in infancy, they had twelve children: Jane (Mrs. D. Headington) and Lovina (Mrs. S. Budd), both of whom live in Westerville; W. Bishop, who died in 1844; Hannah (Mrs. M. V. B. Burris), who lives in Wisconsin; James, who resides in Westerville; Caleb, who died in 1865; Helen (Mrs. M. Tall), who lives in Iowa; Sarah (Mrs. J. T. Price), who lives in Westerville; Ira G., who lives in Shebause, Illinois; Rebecca, who lives in Westerville; Catharine (Mrs. H. Penigle), who lives in Richwood, Ohio, and Celia (Mrs. N. W. Grinnell), who lives in Kankakee, Illinois.

Matthew Westervelt married Mary Lemington, and, after her death, Abiah Leonard. His children by his first wife were: William, now in Missouri; Edgar, in Galena, Ohio; Emeline (Mrs. Wm. Connally), deceased; Melissa (Mrs. J. B. Connally), in Colorado; and James, in Illinois. The children by his second wife were: Alfred, Edwin, Mary Ann (Mrs. M. Wells), Emery, and Louisa—all deceased except Emery.

Oliver Clark located in section two. He came from Connecticut about the year 1821; married Mrs. Jemima Bartlett, and lived in the township until her death, when he removed to Athens.

Origin Rugg and Aaron Philips came a year later than Clark, the former from Connecticut, and the latter from New York. A son of Mr. Rugg—Dayton—now lives in the township.

Jonathan Noble came in 1823, or the year following, from Litchfield county, Connecticut, and settled on what is now known as the Torrence farm. A daughter, Eliza (Cook), lives at present in Blendon.

Peter P. Lawson, and his wife, Jane (Van Bramer), both of them of Holland Dutch descent, came into Blendon from New York State, Duchess county, in 1822. They located near the present site of Westerville, but after two years, removed to Columbus, where they lived eight years. At the expiration of that time Mr. Lawson bought a farm in Sharon township. Peter P. Lawson was a captain in the war of 1812. He died in 1854, and his wife in 1843. They had twelve children—John, Helen, Catharine, David, Peter, Eliza, James, Seeley Ann, Julia Ann, Susan, Francis, and Jane. The only one living is James, familiarly known as "Uncle" Jimmy Lawson—a man of sterling worth, though eccentric in some particulars. He has led a checkered career. He was brought up a farmer, but early in life adopted other callings. He drove, in 1825, the first post coach in Franklin county, and followed waggoning for a number of years, after he had given up staging. Then his father and himself bought two hundred acres of land. He married, and raised a large family; went into the stock business, and was at one time worth from one hundred thousand to one hundred and twenty thousand dollars, but his partner made away with a considerable sum of money in 1854, and he was obliged to sacrifice his property to satisfy creditors, and he has since been a comparatively poor man. He was the first man who shipped stock by rail from Westerville to the New York market. He and his wife (Ellen McCutcheon) have lived together over fifty years. They have four children remaining of the eleven born to them—John, in Illinois; Irvin, in Westerville; Julia, in St. Louis; and Eliza, in Columbus.

Joseph Clapham, and his wife, Sarah, came to the township in 1823, and remained there until their deaths, which occurred, respectively, in 1874, and 1872. Mr. Clapham was an Englishman by birth, and came to America in 1818, settling first in Pennsylvania. They had seven children, four of whom are still living—Joseph is in Geneva township, Delaware county; George, Mary Ann, and Sarah Jane, in Blendon township. The last named married James Goldsmith.

Grove Pinney came from Connecticut, in the year 1825. Steven Brinkerhoff, and Daniel Landon in 1826, the former from New York, and the latter from Pennsylvania.

Squire Randal R. Arnold came into the State, in 1812, and into the county in 1825. He was one of a colony, formed on Lake Champlain, and emigrated to Ohio by wagons. The party passed through Buffalo the night before it was burned by the British. They followed the lake shore road from Buffalo to Cleveland, and thence came into the central part of the State by the way of Wooster, passing through the "forty-mile woods." It was there that they met General Harrison, traveling on foot, leading a pack-horse, and with no escort, save one aide. The general mounted a boulder, by the side of the trail, and made a fine speech, encouraging the emigrants, and, afterwards, giving them provisions. Most of the colonists settled in Delaware county, and the vicinity of Worthington, Franklin county. Randal R. Arnold, on coming into Blendon, in 1825, hired out to a Mr. Cutler, a mill-wright, but later became a carpenter and builder, and a very good one, too. He built many of the houses in Blendon township, and the adjacent country. At the beginning of the Mexican war, he was one of the leaders in forming a company for the service. He was one of the surveyors of the Westerville town plot, in 1839; was elected justice, in 1835, and has served in that capacity ever since, with the exception of two or three terms. His position has always been that of a leader in the affairs of the community.

Elias Cornell was a settler of 1825. He was from Duchess county, New York. He settled on a farm, west of Alum creek, and lived there until his death, in 1849. Mrs. Angeline C. Cornell, who was a daughter a John Bishop, the pioneer, lived until 1870. Four of the children of this couple are now living. John B. is a farmer, and resides on the Columbus pike, just south of Westerville. He married Lucinda L., daughter of Benj. Merriss, of Norwich township. John D. Cornell, a brother of Elias, came to the county a little later than he did, but removed to the south.

Ebenezer Washburn, one of the best known of the settlers of this part of the county, came into Genoa township, Delaware county, in 1816, and was identified with Blendon, more or less, from that time, though he did not become one of its residents until 1829. He was noted as a preacher. Many residents of the township remember how he used to take his family in an ox-cart from Central college, where he lived, to the Sunday meetings, at the old hewed log school-house. His widow now resides in Cleveland.

Samuel Loomis and family came from Connecticut in 1827, and located in section three. He was a school teacher of much ability. He had several sons, and one of them, Horace, who married Jannette Wright, is now a resident of the township.

Nicholas Budd and his wife, Catharine, came from Duchess county, New York, to Harlem township, Delaware county, and moved from there into Blendon, in 1829. A son, Sylvanus, is in business in the town of Westerville, and John Budd is an extensive farmer.

Horace Spring, a native of Massachusetts, but raised in New York State, came to Ohio in 1830, and located in Blendon, upon Alum creek. He removed to Sharon township, where he lived three and a half years, and then returning to this township, took up and cleared the farm on which he, at present, resides, lot four, section one. He married, in Connecticut, Minerva Fish, by whom he had six children, five of whom are now living. Frederick, Charles, Elizabeth, and Homer are in Blendon, and Ralph, in Marion, Ohio.

George W., William, and Thomas Schrock came from Romney, Virginia, in 1832, and settled upon the lands still occupied by them or their heirs. They have been among the most useful citizens of the township. George W., and his wife, Rachel V., are both dead; the former departed this life in 1878, and the latter, in 1879. They raised a large family of children, most of whom live in the township. Their names are James, Sarah Jane (in Iowa), William, George W., Mary Ann, Meliessa C., Vause, Melinda C., Clara C., and Alfred T. William Schrock, brother of George W., died in 1876; his widow, who was A. Gulick, lives in Westerville. Thomas married Miss Griswold, and lives in Mifflin township.

Edward Connelly and his son, Jacob B. came from Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in 1833. Jacob B. now lives in Columbus. Elizabeth G. married Homer Phelps, and lives in Blendon. Mary Ann (Westervelt), Harriet (Gravina), and Caroline (Westervelt) all live in Fairbury, Illinois.

In the year 1834 or '35, Stephen Good, Edward Nutt, Welch Richey, John Judy, and John Hagar made their settlements. A son of the latter, Luther P., lives in Westerville.

Edward D. Howard, of Franklin county, Massachusetts, arrived in 1837. He married, in Delaware county, Ohio, Nancy L., daughter of Satchel Clark. Mr. Howard established the manufacture of brooms at the time he came into the township, and the business is continued by his son, Mitchell C., who resides on the old farm in section one, near the north line of the township.

Joseph Dickey, of Washington county, New York, came into the township in 1838, and died seven years later. His wife, Lovina (Taggart), died in 1854. Their settlement was upon Big Walnut. They had five sons who are living: James H. is in Greene county, Ohio; Moses T., Joseph L., and Albert F., in Blendon, are among the representative men of the township. Courtland M., the youngest, is in Greene county.

John Beaf came into the county in 1838, locating at Columbus, and came to Blendon in 1846. H. T. Henderson came from Ross county in 1841, and located in Pleasant township, but removed to Blendon in 1866. Edwin Gravina came into the township in 1838. He was a native of England. G. S. Duesenbury came in from Granville, Licking county, in 1849, and since that time, has been the business in Westerville. Nathan S. Vincent was one of the later arrivals, but a man who was of great value to the township. His death was carried by the accidental discharge of a gun, in the summer of PHOTOS. BY M. WITE. COLUMBUS. O.

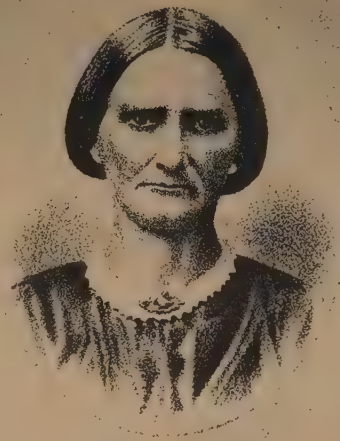
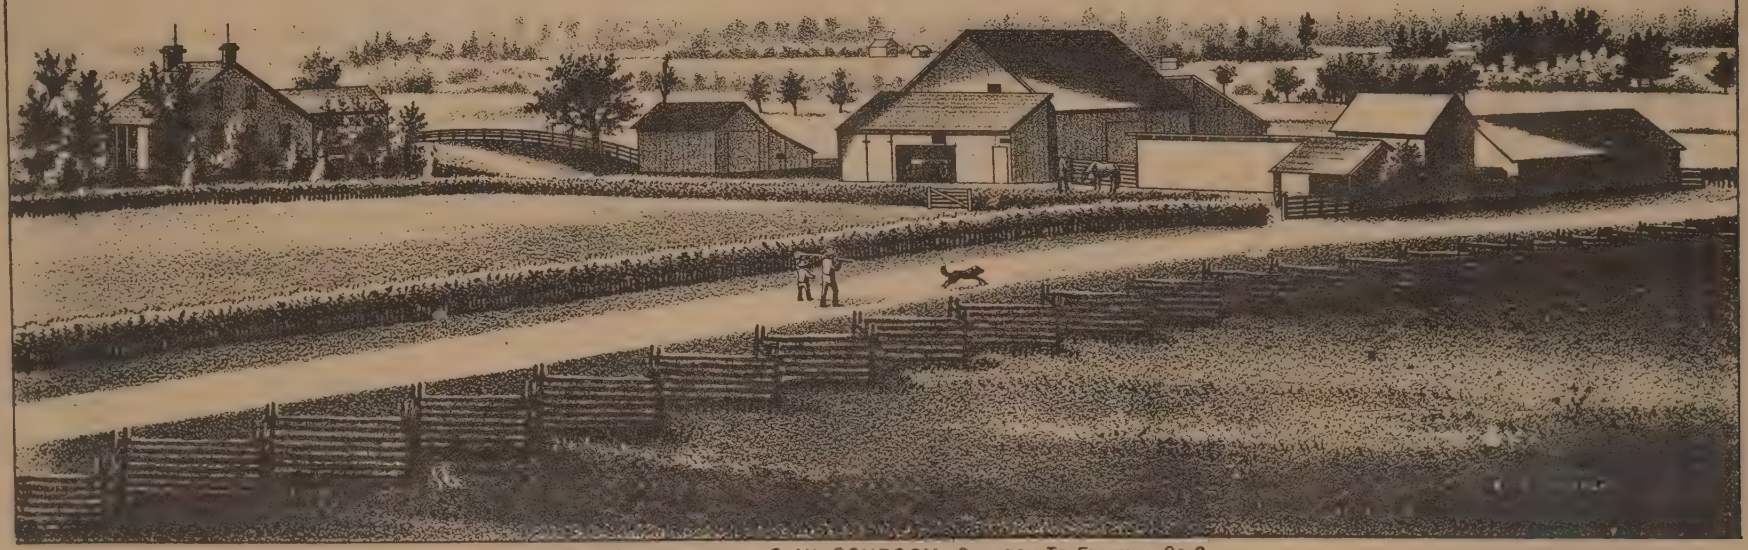
G.W. SCHROCK.



MRS. G.W. SCHROCK.



LATE RESIDENCE OF G.W. SCHROCK, BLENDON TP., FRANKLIN CO. O.

1879. Mr. Vincent was united in marriage to Lauretta Phelps.

Abner Park came in, in 1842, from Warren county, New Jersey, and located upon the north line of the township, bring a family of eight children.

FIRST EVENTS.

The first child born was Benjamin Moore, son of Simeon and Roxanna Moore. He was born in the Phelps cabin, during the second year of the settlement—1807. The first marriage was that of Ethan Palmer and Lovilla Olmsted. The first death was that of Eliza F. Palmer, aged eighteen months, in 1817. Ethan Palmer died March 30, 1818. The first cabin was built by Isaac Griswold. Edward Phelps built one a few days after. Both were built a few days after the two families came into the wilderness, in 1806. Phelps built the first frame barn, in 1811. The first wheat was sown in the summer of 1806, by the Phelps and Griswold families. Edward Phelps planted the first orchard, in 1808, and some of the trees are still standing, immediately opposite the residence of Squire Homer M. Phelps. The trees were brought, on horseback, from Granville. The first brick house was built, by Col. George Osborne, about 1821. The first frame house was built by Squire Lee or Olmsted. Edward Phelps and Simeon Moore both built the same year—1821. Edward Phelps and Abram Phelps cut the first tree for the purpose of improvement, on the bottom east of Blendon corners. The first tavern in the township was opened about the year 1821. It was a small frame house, located at Blendon corners, and its landlord was Francis C. Olmsted. The first saw- and grist-mill was erected by Squire Timothy Lee, near Central college, on the Big Walnut, about 1814. The stream was then known as the Gahanna, or Big Belly, the latter being the name of an Indian well known in the country. Soon after the Lee mill was put in operation Dr. Pickett established a saw-mill near the site of Westerville, and, about the same time, Squire Gideon Hart put up one on Big run. The first burial place was the cemetery near J. W. Jamison's, on the Columbus pike. The lot was donated by Robert Jamison. The first road was what is now known as the Granville and Worthington road, the line of which was run through, in 1805, by Colonel Kilbourne, of Worthington. The timber was cut later. The mails were carried through on this road, on horse-back, in early years, from Zanesville to Urbana.

THE FIRST SCHOOLS.

Salina Griswold taught the first school in Blendon township. She was a sister of Isaac Griswold's, and had, as her only pupils, her little nieces and nephews, and the children of Mr. Phelps' family. A barn, built by Edward Phelps, in 1811, and still standing, just a few rods east of Squire Homer Phelps' residence, served as the school-house. Other schools were held not long after the above, in shops or barns, which belonged to Francis Olmsted and Ethan Palmer. The first school-house was, probably, the one erected in 1814, in the north-east corner of what is now known as the Jamison graveyard. There was another school-house, built of logs, just south of Mr. Griswold's. A singing school was conducted as early as 1818, by Squire Congar Wright.

CIVIL HISTORY OF THE TOWNSHIP.

The records of the township have been preserved, and from them we take several important and interesting items of early civil history. Blendon township was originally organized in 1815, by the name of Harrison, the old township known by that name, having been in the territory which, in 1810, was set apart to Pickaway county.

The first page of the old book of township records shows that, on March 6, 1815, on the petition of Elisha Bidwell, John Matoon, John Cooper, and others, it was ordered that the second township in the seventeenth range of the United States military district, be erected into a township, to be called and known by the name of Harrison, and it was further ordered that the first election should be held at the house of Conger Wright, on the first Monday in April, 1815. The election was held agreeably to the commissioners' order, and the following officers elected: Robert McCutcheon, town clerk; Isaac Harrison, George Osborne, and Garrit Sharp, trustees; John Cooper, treasurer; Edward Phelps, lister and appraiser; John Yovel, appraiser; Oliver Clark, and John D. Coe, constables; Reuben Carpenter, and Edward Phelps, overseers of the poor; Simeon Moore, and Samuel McDannald, fence viewers; John Yovel, Francis Olmsted, Christian Smothers, and Elisha Bidwell, supervisors; Conger Wright, and Isaac Griswold, justices of the peace.

"The honorable trustees of Harrison township met on the 23d of December, 1815, and laid the following town tax, which is as follows, to-wit: To each stud-horse, twenty-five cents; to each gelding and mare, twelve and a half cents; to each cow, and neat cattle, six and a fourth cents; for the purpose of paying all necessary expenses against the township, amounting to fourteen dollars and twelve and a half cents."

The treasurer's report, made April 1, 1816, showed that the amount of the tax imposed was fourteen dollars and twelve and a half cents. The expenses amounted to seven dollars and ninety cents.

The name of the township was changed to Blendon on the 8th of December, 1824, by order of the county commissioners.

Previous to separate organization, Blendon township was attached, for civil purposes, to Sharon. It includes just twenty-five square miles, and is in the same shape as originally laid out.

The present township officers are the following: William Sharp, H. Ridenour, and A. Wright, trustees; L. R. Goodspeed, treasurer; H. T. Sibel, clerk; R. R. Arnold, Ezekiel Dubois, justices of the peace; Geo. Watt, (president), L. Schott, J. N. Miller, S. Kahler, Chas. Holt, A. J. Gantz, D. C. Lane, and E. Matthile, board of education.

PRESBYTERIANISM.

The old Presbyterian church of Blendon was made up of the two elements of this denomination, from the two tides of immigration which met and mingled into Franklin county—the New Englanders and the Virginians. Those of the latter current of population who were members of the church, were mostly the descendants of the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. The earliest of the pioneers had no religious meetings, but in 1812 those of the denomination of which we here give the history, had preaching in their neighborhood. The famous Rev. James Hoge came to Blendon occasionally in the year mentioned. His first sermon and, no doubt, the first Presbyterian service held in the township, was at the residence of Robert McCutcheon, a log cabin, standing about in the middle of what is now State street, in the village of Westerville. Services were afterward held, every six weeks, at the residence of John Cooper. The first regular place for holding religious meetings was a log school-house standing in the northeast corner of what is now known as the Jamison grave-yard, built about 1814. It was not long before this school-house was found inadequate for the accommodation of the congregations that assembled to hear Mr. Hoge preach, and in 1820 an addition was built. The Rev. Mr. Ebenezer Washburn came into the vicinity in the winter of 1816–17. He began missionary work in Blendon in 1818, and it was largely through his efforts, a sufficient number of people being converted and made anxious for that result, that a church was organized in the township. The Presbyterian church of Blendon came into being in 1820, and was called Lebanon church, after Lebanon, Virginia. The original members of the church who brought their letters from Worthington, were John Cooper and Mrs. Polly Cooper, Samuel McDannald and Mrs. Belle McDannald, Robert McCutcheon and Mrs. Mary McCutcheon, John Yovel and Mrs. Jennie Harrison, William Watt and Mrs. Bell. Isaac Harrison joined, at the same time, by profession of faith. Soon after, the following persons became members: Mrs. Rachel Curtiss, Katy Curtiss, Ralph Smith, William Hall, and Alexander Smith. The number of members, at or after the time of organization, was fifteen. The first elders were Isaac Harrison and John Yovel. When there was no preaching, the people were accustomed to assemble and listen to the reading of a sermon. The readers were usually Squire Timothy Lee, Deacon Harrison or Captain Peter Lawson. A singing class was organized among the young people by Squire Cruger Wright, as early as 1818. Ebenezer Washburn was the regular preacher. About 1826 he removed from Genoa to Worthington, but continued to preach to the Blendon church. The project of building a house of worship began to be discussed in the same year. At first there was some disagreement between the members living on Alum creek and those on Big Walnut, as to the location, but the matter was compromised by fixing the location between the two streams, and in the geographical center of the township. Squire Timothy Lee donated a piece of ground for the purpose, and a substantial and, for those times, a tasteful and commodious house was erected and dedicated in the autumn of 1829. It stood near the center of the present grave-yard, and just across the road from the present old building. A protracted meeting was held here the week after the opening of the house, in which Mr. Washburn was assisted by Rev. Ahab Jenks, a Congregational minister, who came to Ohio in 1822. Many converts were made, among them Squire Timothy Lee. On the night of the Sunday following, the church was burned. It was, doubtless, the work of an incendiary. Most of the members had gone to Worthington, to be present at sacramental services. The ruins of the building which had cost them so much toil and expense, confronted them on their return. They gathered around the still glowing embers, and held a prayer-meeting. Though cast-down, they were not discouraged. The next year they erected the edifice, which is still standing, upon land donated by Edward Phelps. The building was not completed at first, but was used for two years in an unfinished state, with temporary seats and pulpit. In 1833 it was finished and formally dedicated. At the same time Ebenezer Washburn was installed as pastor. In 1830 those members of the Blendon church—sixteen in number—who lived in Delaware county, were set off by the Presbytery, and constituted the First Presbyterian church of Genoa. The years following the dedication of the church at Blendon, were years of healthy growth and prosperity. The year 1840 was marked by a powerful revival. Mr. Washburn retained the position of pastor until 1858. The field remained vacant, with temporary supplies, until 1860, when Rev. J. C. Tidball was installed. He preached for a number of years, and was succeeded by Rev. R. G. Adams. He gave place to Kev. Reuben Holm, and he to William E. Mock in 1874.

About the year 1860, the question of removing the church to Westerville began to be agitated. The Central College church, which had been organized in the mean time, had drawn off those members who lived in the eastern part of the township, and the church edifice, growing old and needing repairs, was found to be entirely on one side of the congregation. Wisdom dictated a removal. In the removal of 1863, a subscription paper was circulated, and preparations began for the erection of a Presbyterian house of worship in Westerville. In 1864 the substantial brick edifice, now in use, was completed and dedicated, and the old house abandoned. Prominent in this movement was Elder G. L. Houghton, a man of great energy, foresight, and enterprise. The first years of the church in its new home were marked by progress and increase in members and influence. A Sabbath-school was organized, which grew rapidly under the superintendence of Elder L. B. Keeler. The Rev. Mr. Tidball closed his labors with the Blendon church in 1869, removing to Columbus to assume the pastorate of the Hoge church. After that, the pulpit was temporarily filled by Prof. Garst, of Otterbein college, and the Rev. C. C. B. Duncan, until Rev. H. M. Robertson became pastor. He was succeeded, in the spring of 1877, by the Rev. Alex. U. Carson, the present pastor. The officers of the church, at present, are as follows: J. W. Jamison, J. McChan, Humphrey Bard, T. Ward, and S. Timmons, elders; G. A. Brewer, William Beal, and S. Timmons, trustees; S. Timmons, treasurer; T. Ward, Sabbath-school superintendent.

THE CENTRAL COLLEGE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH was indirectly an offshoot of the original Presbyterian church of Blendon, though it came into organic being from the impulsion of the same forces that founded Central college. The New School synod of Ohio, and the Presbytery of Marion, determining to found a college in the central or northwestern part of the State, were influenced to locate it in Blendon by the proposition of Squire Timothy Lee to give one hundred acres of land on such condition. The school being established, it was thought desirable to organize a church in close relations to the institution, both as to locality and ecclesiastical connection; hence the formation of the Central College church, in 1843. In pursuance of a resolution of the trustees of the college, a meeting was called for the organization of the church. Rev. L. A. Sawyer presided, and the Rev, Ebenezer Washburn was also present, and took part in the exercises. Sixteen persons presented letters, and were organized into a church. How many of them were from the Blendon church the record does not show. Timothy Lee and Stillman Tucker were elected elders, and President Sawyer became the active minister of the church, which immediately began holding services in the college building. Mr. Sawyer continued to supply the pulpit, until he resigned the presidency of the college, in 1846. The Rev. J. Covert, next president, took charge of the church the same year, and remained until 1848. The pastorate was, for a time, vacant, but Rev. Edmund Garland became the minister in 1849, remaining until 1851. Rev. Levi B. Wilson became regular pastor in 1853, and resigned in 1855. During all of these years the church was regarded as an appendage of the college. Its membership was small from the beginning, not exceeding twenty-five in number until 1862. In 1860 the Rev. Henry Bushnell came to the college, and was induced to take charge of the school. Both school and church prospered under his control. At a later period, the pulpit was supplied by Mr. Washburn, Rev. Warren Jenkins, Rev. Anson Smythe, Rev. H. B. Scott, Rev. I. M. King, and Rev. J. C. Campbell, each of whom served for about a year. Rev. Levi P. Sabin began his labor in 1868, and continued three years. It was largely through his labors that the present commodious house was built, in 1870. The Blendon Presbyterian church and the Central College church were brought into union again, and placed under one pastoral charge, on the seventeenth of September, 1872, the Rev. H. M. Robertson preaching in both until 1877, when Mr. Carson succeeded him. The officers of the Central College church for 1879 are: O. C. McDannald, Charles Watt, Alfred McLeod, elders; C. E. McDannald, De Witt Gates, Wm. Linn, Frank Wilber, Charles Hempsted, trustees; Alvin Wright, treasurer.

THE CENTRAL COLLEGE BAPTIST CHURCH

had its origin in Genoa township, Delaware county, and only its late history belongs to Blendon. It was organized in 1832, with John Nutt, Daniel Dusenbury, Nancy Dusenbury, Lydia Sebring, Charles McLeod, Alfred McLeod, Rebecca McLeod, and Sally Nutt, with some others, as members. The church was removed to Central college, in 1868, in which year the church edifice was also constructed. The house, which is still in use, was built by a committee consisting of Charles McLeod, Joseph Clapham, and S. Hildreth, at a cost of two thousand two hundred dollars, and the lot was donated by Elder S. G. Barber. The church was dedicated January 24, 1869, by Elder Randall, of Columbus. The first regular preacher was Elder P. Kelsey. Although the membership has always been small, and at present includes but eighteen members, the organization has always been kept up. The church is at present without a regular pastor. Its officers are as follows: Joseph Clapham and S. Hildreth, deacons; Charles McLeod, clerk; Joseph Clapham, treasurer; Joseph Clapham, Charles McLeod, and I. N. Farmer, trustees.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

A Methodist class was organized in Blendon as early as 1819, though there was preaching in the township several years before. The members at first were Reuben Carpenter, John Mattoon, Isaac Tinkham, Thomas Ingalls, Garrit Sharp, Ezra Sammis, John Bishop, and the Westervelts—Matthew, Peter, and William. The first presiding elder was William Swazey. A small church was built of hewed logs, south of Westerville. The class prospered, and grew in numbers and activity. Nineteen years later, or in 1838, the present church was built. It was erected upon a lot, donated for the purpose, by Matthew Westervelt, and cost about three thousand dollars. The society at that time was a large one, and consisted of members from both sides of Alum creek. The first trustees were Thomas McCloud, Isaac Tinkham, Artemas Cutler, John Mattoon, Ezra Sammis, and Reuben Carpenter. Cutler was an occasional exhorter. The church is, at present, in a flourishing condition, and has a large membership. Its officers are the following: H. Dyxon, T. H. Torrence, T. H. Connard, John Budd, L. R. Goodspeed, J. H. Henderson, George Kirts, Isaac Thompson, W. R. Wyant, Samuel Wood, stewards; S. Budd, A. C. Elliott, local preachers.

UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH.

Otterbein station is a congregation of the United Brethren in Christ, at Westerville. Its history is interwoven with the history of Otterbein university, as the two have grown up together. It was organized early in the year 1848, by the Rev. Isaac Kretsinger, and continued to worship during that year and part of the year following, in the basement of the Methodist Episcopal church. Since then its meetings have been held in some of the college buildings, or in the chapel, as at present. Rev. Isaac Kretsinger was the first pastor, and the original members were Rev. Lewis Davis, Rebecca Davis, Prof. W. R. Griffith, Mrs. Griffith, and Mr. Thompson. The following are the names of the successive pastors: 1848, I. Kretsinger, one year; 1849, Henry Jones, one year; 1850, George Hathaway, one year; 1851, J. Winter and J. Winn, one year; 1852, Lewis Davis, one year; 1853, W. W. Davis, one year; 1854, Israel Sloan, one year; 1855, J. S. Davis, one year; 1856–7, Lewis Davis, two years; 1858, J. H. Brundige, one year; 1859, William Hanby, one year; 1860, A. Owen and J. M. Spangler, one year; 1861, Lewis Davis, one year; 1862, S. W. Zeller, one year; 1863–4, William Millar (resigned to go into the army, in May, 1864), eighteen months; 1864–5 J. Weaver, eighteen months; 1866, William Fisher, one year; 1867–9, J. B. Resler, three years; 1870, J. G. Bowersox, one year; 1871–4, E. S. Chapman, four years; 1875–9, J. S. Mills, five years. The conference year does not fully coincide with the calender year. Most of the pastorates began about the first of October preceding the date named, and ended about the same time in the year named. The church now numbers three hundred and twenty members. It has a Sabbath-school of two hundred members, which was organized by electing Prof. J. Haywood, superintendent in 1851. Its present superintendent is Prof. J. E. Guitner. This Sabbath-school has a normal department, in charge of President H. A. Thompson, D. D., for the training of Sunday-school teachers. It also supports a mission school at Manoh, West Africa. The present faculty of Otterbein university, and the bishop of the Ohio district, are members of this church.

THE EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION.

The church of this denomination is the youngest of the several church organizations of Westerville village and Blendon township. It was organized in the fall of 1877, and the neat church edifice was built the same year, and dedicated December 1st. It cost two thousand one hundred and fifty dollars. The constituent members were Samuel Rigal, Mrs. Amanda Rigal, Mrs. Elizabeth Ridenour, Mrs. Catharine Kroener, Amy Baldwin, George Ritter, Catharine Ritter, Mary Glick, Mrs. Cheever, and Mrs. Elizabeth Perdue. The church was organized by Rev. E. Wingard, and the house of worship by the Rev. H. J. Bowman. The first pastor was Rev. C. L. Crowther, and he was succeeded by the present incumbent, Rev. W. W. Sherrick. The present officers of the church are as follows: Samuel Rigal, Henry Ridenour, George Rigal, G. S. Ritter, trustees; Henry Ridenour, steward; George S. Ritter, class leader; Rev. W. W. Sherrick, Sabbath-school superintendent.

THE GREAT CAMP MEETING, AND ITS LEADING EPISODE.

The year 1838 is remembered as the year of the great camp meeting. The meeting resulted in the making of many converts, and it is noteworthy for another reason. It was at this protracted religious service that the necesity for a school, under the Methodist auspices, suggested itself to the leading men of the church, and that the first steps were taken which led to the establishment of the Blendon young men's academy. But it was because of a peculiarly old time incident that the meeting became widely heard of and much talked about. The grounds selected for the great gathering were on the farm of Matthew Westervelt, just south of the present college campus. The principal speaker was the Rev. James Gilruth, and he was assisted by Revs. Uriah Heath, Jacob Young, and others. Preacher Gilruth was a native of North Carolina, and came to central Ohio with Harrison's army. He was a man of unusual force, mentally and physically, stood nearly six feet high, weighed about two hundred pounds, and was of powerful build. It was said that he was the only man in Blendon township who could throw a certain heavy axe over the steeple of the old court house, in Franklinton. At the camp meeting the rowdies organized under the leadership of a notorious bully and rough, from Delaware, or some of the northern counties, and committed several disgraceful acts. While the Rev. Ebenezer Washburn was preaching, on Saturday evening, this bully, supported by his gang of roughs, undertook to pull down the stands that were used to support the lights. He succeeded in pulling, or breaking, down the one nearest the pulpit, when he was caught by a guard, who intended to hand him over to a magistrate. Athough the guard was one of the largest and strongest men in the township, the bully caught him up and threw him to the ground, as easily as if he were a child, and started around the pulpit for the purpose of extinguishing another light. Just at this time the Rev. Gilruth slipped quietly from his place on the platform, behind the speaker, and took up a position, which was directly in the bully's way, to the other light. The huge, hulking form of the rough soon confronted the preacher, and the two were immediately engaged in a scuffle. The evil-doer seized Mr. Gilruth, evidently expecting to serve him as he already had the guard upon the other side of the platform. But he was mistaken in his ability. Gilruth showed himself a "fighting parson" of no mean power. The preacher gave him a jerk as he came and threw him ten or twelve feet forward, flat upon the ground. The bully jumped up, shook himself and caught at the preacher a second time, but again found himself landed, as at first, a considerable distance from the impelling power. A third time he attempted to bring the Rev. Gilruth down. They clinched and struggled; both fell, but the parson was on top. The bully gave up, saying, to those foremost in the crowd which had gathered around them, "take him off, he is too much for me." Upon this Gilruth got up, caught his antagonist by the arm, lifted him to his feet, and started to deliver him to the proper authority. To do this it was necessary to cross Alum creek. When they reached its bank the beaten bully objected to crossing on foot, and wanted to be carried over in a wagon. Gilruth made no reply, but marched him through the water, up the opposite bank and to the house of a justice of the peace, who, after a trial, sent him to the county jail. After that there was peace at the camp meetings, in Blendon and its vicinity.

POST-OFFICES.

There are three post-offices in the township, the first established being the one at Blendon corners, originally called Harrison, but changed to the present name when the name of the township was altered. It was established in 1824. Isaac Griswold was the first postmaster. The present postmaster is Thomas Ballard. The Westerville post-office was established in 1846, and Jacob B. Connelly was its first postmaster. Mrs. M. Coggeshall is postmistress at present. The Blendon Institute office was established in 1841, and its name was changed to Central College in the year following. Austin Stibbins was the first postmaster. A. Wright is the present postmaster.

THE MANUFACTURING INTERESTS

of Blendon are very small. Beside the broom manufactory of M. C. Howard, there are not more than half a dozen establishments in the township. There is a grist-mill in Westerville, which is run by Dennis & Slough. It was originally owned by Squire Lee, and located at Central College, but the machinery was removed from there to Westerville, in 1873, by William Thayer. It was burned down and rebuilt in 1876. The only permanent saw-mill is that owned by E. C. Brett, and situated in the north part of Westerville. J. W. Everill has extensive tile works, established in 1875. The foundry, at present owned by Mayor T. J. Alexander, was started by Alexander & Smith, in 1862. A patent fence is the principal article manufactured. A spoke factory has been lately started in Westerville, by John S. Hall, of Columbus.

THE WESTERVILLE DISTRICT AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

was organized in 1871. It is composed of farmers of the townships of Plain, Jefferson, Mifflin, Clinton, Sharon, Perry, and Blendon, in Franklin county, and of Harlem, Genoa, Orange, Berkshire, Berlin, and Trenton, in Delaware county. The officers elected in 1871 were: W. R. Parsons, president; D. S. Houghton, vice-president; E. J. Yokum, secretary. The organization was effected hastily and at short notice. In 1872 the society was more thoroughly organized, and measures taken looking toward permanent establishment. A mass meeting was held at Westerville, April 11, at which Mr. W. R. Parsons proposed to be one of fifteen or twenty persons to purchase land, and fit the same in suitable manner as a place for holding the affairs of the society. In a very short time a sufficient number of gentlemen had signified their willingness to enter into the arrangement suggested. They were: W. R. Parsons, W. S. Clymer, T. F. Houghton, James M. Fuson, William Frazier, W. R. Samuels, George Shanks, Dr. C. P. Landon, Dr. Andrus, Wm. J. Phelps, George Dusenbury, William Rowe, Nathan Hutches, William Cooper, J. C. Vance, and C. A. Redding. These stockholders, through a committee appointed for the purpose—Dr. Andrus and C. A. Redding—purchased from the Rev. Daniel Bonebrake, and the Rev. J. B. Resler, a tract of thirty acres of land, which forms the present grounds of the society. A good half-mile track has been laid out, suitable buildings put up for the various exhibits, and other improvements made. A log house, built in the centennial year, and an exact counterpart of those in which the pioneers lived, is one of the most interesting objects on the grounds.

Following are the officers of the society in 1879:

William Frazier, Westerville, president; George Wagner, Hope, vice-president; C. F. Palmer, Westerville, secretary; William Cooper, Westerville, treasurer; directors, Wm. Taylor, Plain, one year; L. W. Babbitt, Plain, two years; Eli Segner, Jefferson, one year; George Shanks, Jefferson, two years; F. B. Dean, Mifflin, one year; Milo Horlocker, Mifflin, two years; Ed. Stanley, Clinton, one year; J. W. Robbins, Clinton, two years; Abram Moore, Sharon, one year; W. R. Parsons, Sharon, two years; C. A. Redding, Blendon, one year; H. Ridenour, Blendon, two years; Jacob Davis, Perry, one year; J. M. Thomas, Perry, two years—Franklin county; S. Fairchild, Harlem, one year; T. M. Cole, Harlem, two years; John Copeland, Genoa, one year; Wm. Alkire, Genoa, two years; John Bale, Orange, one year; Wm. Clymer, Orange, two years; Briggs Cornell, Berkshire, one year; Roswell Cook, Berkshire, two years; Wm. Beardsley, Berlin, one year; Geo. Ridgeway, Berlin, two years; N. Perfect, Trenton, one year; E. J. Condit, Trenton, two years—Delaware county; Wm. Frazier, J. H. Bale, and W. Alkire, finance committee; Wm. Clymer, C. A. Redning, and H. Ridenour, executive committee; S. W. Babbitt, marshal; S. M. Park, chief of police.

WESTERVILLE.

The village of Westerville was laid out by Matthew Westervelt in July, 1839. It is, at present, a village of about fifteen hundred inhabitants, and is chiefly famous as being the seat of Otterbein university.

The first tavern kept in the village, was in the house now occupied by Dr. Cable, and the proprietor was Jotham Clark. It was opened in 1836.

The first store was kept by J. B. Connelly, where Squire Snowdy's now is, in the year 1838. Sylvanus and W. H. Budd were the next to engage in business, and not long after they started, the firm of Harvey & Slaughter came into existence. John Beal, still in business in Westerville, began in 1856, and is probably the oldest merchant in the village—that is, has been in active business more years than any other of the present number.

The village has now a population of about fifteen hundred. It has four of the six churches in the township, good schools, and its full share of the various societies and other institutions that abound in villages. It is a strong temperance town, and of healthful morals generally. In appearance it is rivaled by but few of the boroughs of its size in the State.

ORGANIZATION OF THE VILLAGE.

A preliminary meeting of the citizens of Westerville was called in the fall of 1857, and a committee of five appointed to report the boundaries of the village at a subsequent meeting. This was held December 19, 1857. The report upon boundaries was accepted, and a committee was appointed to proceed to perfect the corporation. This committee consisted of James Langham, R. R. Arnold, E. Munson, John H. Judy, and John Haywood. A petition to the county commissioners was prepared, and eighty-seven names were signed to it. This petition was acted on, and the incorporation granted by the commissioners July 19, 1858, and a record duly made of the same. The first election was held October 11th of the same year, and the following officers chosen: John Haywood, mayor; Thomas McFadden, recorder; James Langham, R. M. Walker, P. E. Guitner, C. A. Redding, and C. May, trustees.

The first regular meeting of the trustees (council) was held October 21st, and with other proceedings, William Hays was chosen marshal, and Daniel Guitner, treasurer, to serve until the regular election.

John Haywood, the first mayor of the village, is still one of its residents. He is a native of Chautauqua county, New York, a graduate of Oberlin, and has been a resident of Westerville since 1851, and nearly all that time has held the position he now occupies—a professorship in Otterbein university.

The present officers of the corporation are the following: T. J. Alexander, mayor; John Knox, John Beal, J. H. Torrence, Abram Cooper, Isaac Thompson, John Haywood, council; L. R. Goodspeed, treasurer; Joseph Knox, marshal.

A substantial building, including a commodious hall, post-office, prison, mayor's office, and other apartments, for public or official use, was erected in 1875. It is of brick, two stories in height, and cost about three thousand, five hundred dollars.

VILLAGE SCHOOLS.

Prior to November, 1867, the village had but one school building, familiarly known as the "brick schoolhouse." This building contained one large recitation room, and, at the time of its erection, was regarded as a model for size and convenience. It was built in 1855, and, at that time, was supposed to be sufficient for the purpose designed—the accommodation of the youth of the village, for at least ten years. But in less than five years the increase in population made it necessary to furnish two additional rooms for school purposes. The schools of the village attained no particular prominence in the county, until after the erection, in 1866–7, of the large brick edifice, known as the "union school-building."

Professor A. J. Willoughby was elected superintendent of the schools, in 1867. There were three or four departments, but soon after, a more modern system of grading, and thorough course of study was adopted. Under the able management of Professor Willoughby, the schools soon attained a high degree of excellence. After the resignation of Professor Willoughby, at the close of the school year, 1873, Professor W. Y. Bartles was elected superintendent. The course of study was revised, many improved methods of teaching introduced, and some important changes in text books made. Professor Bartles resigned in 1877, and Professor John Clark was elected superintendent. He is the present incumbent. The schools now have five departments, and the course of study has been so arranged that students graduating may enter the freshman class in Otterbein university. The schools were never in a more prosperous condition than at present. The enumeration of 1879 shows a school population of three hundred and fifty-nine, and the school board intend to remodel the present school building, and to add two recitation rooms.

SOCIETIES.

BLENDON LODGE, NO. 339, F. AND A. M.,

was organized February 24, 1862, with the following charter members: T. M. Copeland, T. J. Alexander, C. W. Smith, Daniel Shipe, C. B. Hempsted, F. A. Bull, A. G. Stevenson, P. Westervelt, A. Park, and M. R. Spurgeon. The first officers were: G. M. Copeland, W. M.; F. A. Bull, S. W.; A. G. Stevenson, J. W.; P. Westervelt, treasurer; T. J. Alexander, secretary; D. Shipe, S. D.; M. R. Spurgeon, J. D.; A. Park, tyler. The present officers are: W. Y. Bartels, W. M.; G. W. Clark, S. W.; L. D. West, J. W.; Jas. J. Knox, treasurer; H. F. Sibel, secretary; C. Duesenbury, S. D.; J. P. Horn, J. D.; E. Weibling, tyler.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS.

Rainbow Lodge, No. 327, was organized August 7, 1857. The charter members were: C. A. Vananda, David Leib, A. G. Stevenson, J. W. Jamison, and Theophilus Jones. The first officers were as follows: J. W. Jamison, N. G.; C. A. Vananda, V. G.; A. G. Stevenson, secretary; D. Leib, treasurer. The present officers are: C. Dyxon, N. G.; C. M. Sammis, V. G.; O. B. Phillips, recording secretary; T. J. Alexander, permanent secretary; L. R. Goodspeed, treasurer.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

Westervelt Lodge, No. 1239, was instituted November 1, 1878, with the following officers: H. T. Sebel, I.; E. Weibling, I. D.; S. Timmons, A. D.; J. B. King, P. D.; W. Y. Bartels, F. R.; H. A. Guitner, R.; W. O. Rowe, guide; C. Allen, treasurer.

OHIO NATIONAL GUARD.

Company C, Fourteenth (infantry) regiment, Ohio national guard, was raised at Westerville, Ohio, mainly through the efforts of Captain I. N. Custer, Captain E. P. Vance, and Quartermaster H. A. Guitner, in August and September, 1877. The company was mustered on October 1, 1877, by Captain C. S. Ammel, Company A, Fourteenth (infantry) regiment, Ohio national guard, and was assigned to the Fourteenth regiment, as Company C, taking the place, in the regiment, of the Franklin Guards, of Columbus, who had disbanded. The company organized by electing I. N. Custer, captain; E. P. Vance, first lieutenant; and S. Timmons, second lieutenant. In January, 1877, Captain Custer resigned, and E. P. Vance was elected to fill the vacancy, with S. Timmons, first lieutenant, and H. Schick, second lieutenant. The company has seventy-seven members at the time of this writing [September, 1879], accounted for as follows: Commissioned officers, three; non-commissioned officers, thirteen; musician, one; wagoner, one; privates, fifty-nine.

THE PEOPLE'S MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION, of Westerville, was incorporated April 17, 1877, and began business in June, following. The officers are: J. Weaver, president; H. A. Thompson, vice president; John Knox, treasurer; J. B. Resler, secretary. The association issues certificates upon the life plan, which mature only at death, and on the life maturity plan, which mature at death and in from twelve to twenty-five years during life. The uniform assessment plan is used by which all divisions and classes are discarded, and an exact equality, proportioned to age, is maintained between all the members of the association. The association had the remarkable good fortune to operate eighteen months, and secure over a thousand members before a death occurred. The association has met with such favor with the public, that at this date [October 24, 1879] there are over one thousand, eight hundred members, covering risks aggregating over two and one-half millions of dollars as an assessment basis. The assessments are graduated to the age of the members, in such a way that, on an average, it will cost the old and the young the same amount to secure the same amount of benefit. The aim is to afford protection upon terms equitable, cheap, and safe, and the generous patronage of the public shows that the efforts of the managers to afford protection at cost, are appreciated.

The Westerville Cornet band is composed as follows: C. Smith, W. C. Reese, G. Wagner, J. C. Redding, S. M. Hanby, W. O. Redding, T. Whitehead, S. Timmons, C. Dyxon, G. Whitehead, L. E. Custer, D. Kenyon, W. Young, J. Price. C. Ranney, W. Wellen, H. Custer. Prof. W. C. Reese is instructor. This band was organized in the month of October, 1878. D. C. Kenyon, president; L. E. Custer, vice president; S. M. Hanby, treasurer; W. O. Redding, secretary.

BUSINESS IN WESTERVILLE IN 1879.

Following is a list of the business houses of Westerville, in the fall of 1879: J. F. Shoddy, J. P. Horn, Rowe & Bartles, G. W. Robinson, S. Budd, groceries; H. Dyxon, J. Beal & Son, P. E. Guitner & Co., dry goods; L. R. Goodspeed, S. Jarvis, hardware; Joseph Knox, E. P. Vance, W. Sammis, drugs; George Duesenbury, L. Cunningham, Jaspar Spooner, —— Pierson, boots and shoes; J. Westervelt, J. Weibling & Son, furniture; S. M. Hanby, M. Weibling, harness shops; M. D. Waters, R. Andrix, Price Bros., meat markets; L. R. Foster, bakery; S. Fry, A. Spayd, jewelers; Mrs. Lottie Newcomb, Mrs. Bright, milliners; J. Founce, tinware; Isaac Traubb, merchant tailor; Frank Bull, proprietor Commercial house; E. J. Cox, H. Swartz, W. J. Wharey, blacksmiths.

PHYSICIANS.

Most of the physicians of Blendon have been located in Westervelt. In early years the people of the township relied upon the Worthington doctors. Among the first in the township were: Drs. A. G. Stevenson, Thomas McFadden, and J. W. Durant. Dr. Stevenson bought property, and remained some years in the community. Dr. McFadden is still a resident, but has a professorship in Otterbein university, and is not in active practice of his profession. Dr. Ritchie was another practitioner at an early date, in the township, and lived on Big Walnut. Drs. Clark, Charles Balsar, and McLeod have also been located at Central college. The first physician of long and regular practice, thoroughly identified with the community, was Dr. G. W. H. Landon. He was a student of the Ohio university, and also studied with the elder Dr. Cotton, of Marietta, and graduated in medicine from the Starling college, of Columbus. He came to Westerville in 1843, and began practice. He remained in the village until 1852, when he went to St. Joseph, Missouri., where he died in 1862. He was a medical director of the department of St. Joseph, and was a nominee for the office of State treasurer of Missouri, at the time of the inception of the Republican party. Later he was associated with the Gratz Brown and Bell movement. He enjoyed an extensive practice in Westerville, and the surrounding country. Dr. Chauncey P. Landon, brother of the above, graduated from the Ohio university, at Athens, in 1844, and from the Starling medical college in 1850, immediately after which he went into practice at Westerville, in which place, and at his country home, five miles south, he has resided most of the time. He was in the Union army in 1863–4–5, as surgeon of the One Hundred and Thirty-third regiment of Ohio volunteers, and was also post-surgeon at one of the forts on the James river. He has had a very extensive practice. Dr. Abner Andrews is another practitioner of Westerville, who has had a long term of service at his profession. He began practice in the villiage in 1850, and a year later graduated from the Eclectic medical institute of Cincinnati. He has been in Westerville all the time since beginning practice, except a short interval when he was obliged to give up practice on account of his health, and studied law, in Cleveland. His son, Frank Herman Andrews, a graduate of the Starling medical college, is his partner. Dr. D. W. Coble, a graduate of the Jefferson medical college, Philadelphia, of the year 1877, has been practicing, in Westerville, since 1871. The other physicians of the village, are: Drs. A. O. and Giles T. Blair, J. O. Dawson, and D. M. Clark. The elder Dr. Blair is one of the widely known practitioners of the State. He was originally from Massachusetts. He first graduated from an Allopathic, and then from a Homœopathic college; was once professor of materia medica in the Cleveland Homœopathic college; practiced fifteen years in Columbus, and has, during the past five years, been in Westerville. Giles T. Blair is a graduate of the Eclectic medical institute of Cincinnati, and now practices Homœopathic. He has been in practice in Westerville three years.

THE BLENDON YOUNG MEN'S SEMINARY

was an educational institution, located at Westerville, under Methodist auspices, and was the predecessor of the Otterbein university. The movement which resulted in its establishment had its inception at the great camp meeting of 1838. The subject was broached there, and talked over at the next conference, and a committee, appointed with discretionary powers, decided to open the school. February 9, 1839, an act was passed by the legislature of Ohio, incorporating the school under the title above given, and with the following trustees: Matthew Westervelt, Thomas Ingalls, Randal R. Arnold, Alexander M. G. Elliott, John W. Ladd, Willis Mattoon, George McWhirk, Alanson Bull, Jacob Young, Charles C. Baldwin, Leonidas L. Hamlin, and Nathan Emmery. Matthew Westervelt donated twenty-five acres of land on which to establish the seminary. Suitable buildings were erected, and the school was opened under the direction of J. C. Kingsley and George Blair. The school flourished for a number of years, but began to decline after the opening of the Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, and in consequence of its patronage being thus diverted, it was decided to tender the ground and buildings to the United Brethren, on condition that they should establish a school and assume the indebtedness of the Methodist institution, amounting to about twelve hundred dollars. The tender was made by a committee consisting of Dr. G. W. H. Landon and Matthew Westervelt, at the United Brethren conference, at Lancaster, and was formally accepted.

THE OTTERBEIN UNIVERSITY OF OHIO.*

This institution has been and is now known as the "Otterbein University of Ohio." It is so called from Philip William Otterbein, the founder of the church under whose auspices the university was first established, and by which it is now controlled.

It was chartered in 1849, by the legislature of Ohio, with university privileges. The names of the first trustees were: Lewis Davis, Jonathan Dresback, and William Hanby, of the Scioto annual conferenee, of the church of the United Brethren in Christ, and Jacob Barger, Peter Flack, and P. Hulburt, of the Sandusky conference of the same church.

LOCATION.

The location is fixed in the charter at Westerville, Ohio, twelve miles from Columbus, the capital of the State, and on the direct line of the Cleveland, Mt. Vernon & Columbus railroad. The college campus comprises about eight acres. The ladies' boarding hall, with its playground, occupies about one acre. The lands that were in use by the manual labor department have all been disposed of since that plan was abandoned.

BUILDINGS.

When the site was purchased, there were two buildings already erected. One was a frame building, two stories in height, and twenty-six by forty-four feet. This was used for cabinet, chapel, recitation rooms, etc. The other was an unfinished brick building, twenty-eight by sixty-six feet, three stories in height, and was used as a boarding-hall for young ladies. These afforded sufficient accommodation in the beginning. Soon there was need of a building for young men, and, in 1854, a hall was built by a friend of the institution, Mr. Jacob Saum, of the Miami Valley, and from him it was named Saum hall. It was three stories in height, and designed as a dormitory for young men. It was of rectangular form, with no pretentions to architectural beauty. As the university grew and prospered, it was soon found necessary to erect another building, which could afford a larger chapel and more commodious recitation rooms. In 1854, arrangements were made for the erection of a new building, and the work was commenced the following spring. The building was never entirely completed. The chapel was occupied, and a number of recitation-rooms, and rooms for the literary societies, were put in order. The trustees were hindered in their plans, and, for want of means, finished rooms only as they were needed. This building was burned in 1870. A religious meeting was in progress in the chapel, on the evening of the twenty-sixth of January, of that year, and the congregation had been dismissed, and the building closed up by the janitor, who resided in it. About one o'clock in the morning the alarm of fire was given. The citizens, awakened from their slumber, rushed out to witness the most extensive conflagration that had ever occurred in the community. The main college building was in flames, and the fire was making such rapid progress that all hope of staying its ravages was abandoned. In a few hours the stately edifice was reduced to a shapeless ruin. With the exception of some chemical and philosophical apparatus, and a few articles of minor importance, the loss was total, including the building, with all its furniture, the college library, of over three thousand volumes, including a copy of the Sinaitic manuscript, presented by the emperor of Russia, and the finely furnished halls and select libraries of the literary societies. The loss was estimated at fifty thousand dollars, fortunately relieved by an insurance of twenty thousand dollars. Measures were at once set on foot to replace the heavy loss to the institution. The board of trustees were summoned to meet in extra session, February 15, 1870. Meanwhile, public meetings were held in Westerville, and this community and Columbus were canvassed for subscriptions to rebuild.

When the trustees met in February, a proposition was presented to reopen the question of location, and offer the university to the community in Ohio proposing the greatest inducements in money and friends, at the regular meeting in May, 1870. When the propositions were canvassed, the one from the citizens of Westerville seemed the most favorable, although others were valuable, and it was agreed to relocate at this place.

Plans for a college building were invited from several architects, and the one drawn by R. T. Brooks, of Columbus, Ohio, was adopted. The building was advertised for proposals, and the contract finally let to A. R. Cornell, of Newark, Ohio, for twenty-seven thousand three hundred and forty-five dollars, and the material of the old building. The new building was to be completed by the first of August, 1871.

This building is an imposing structure, the extreme length of which is one hundred and seventy feet, and extreme depth one hundred and nine feet. It is four stories in height, including the basement. It contains a large chapel room, spacious society halls, library and reading room, laboratory and numerous large and convenient recitation and other rooms, amply sufficient for all existing wants.

A newspaper editor has given the following description of the building:

"The architectural design of the new building is happily conceived and makes a pleasing impression from whatever point of the compass you approach it. The height of the central portion is four stories, including that under the mansard roof, and that of the wings three stories. One of the most marked interior improvements of this building, over that of the old, is in the college chapel. Instead of the former immensely overgrown and unnecessary parallelogram, in which it was difficult for any but an experienced elocutionist to make himself heard by more than one-half the audience, we have now an auditorium, built after the style of the modern theatre, with special reference to bringing the largest number of auditors within easy hearing distance of the rostrum. A spacious gallery, extending around between the opposite points of the arc, adds greatly to the seating capacity of the room; the seats in the gallery being in almost all respects fully as desirable as those on the floor. The seating capacity of the hall is sufficient for from seven to eight hundred persons. The room is everywhere adapted to all purposes, whether for chapel uses, public worship, or commencement exercises. The Gothic style of the architecture is mainly followed in the design of the building. A large freestone slab, in the central part of the front, bears the inscription

"OTTERBEIN UNIVERSITY
FOUNDED APRIL 26, 1847.

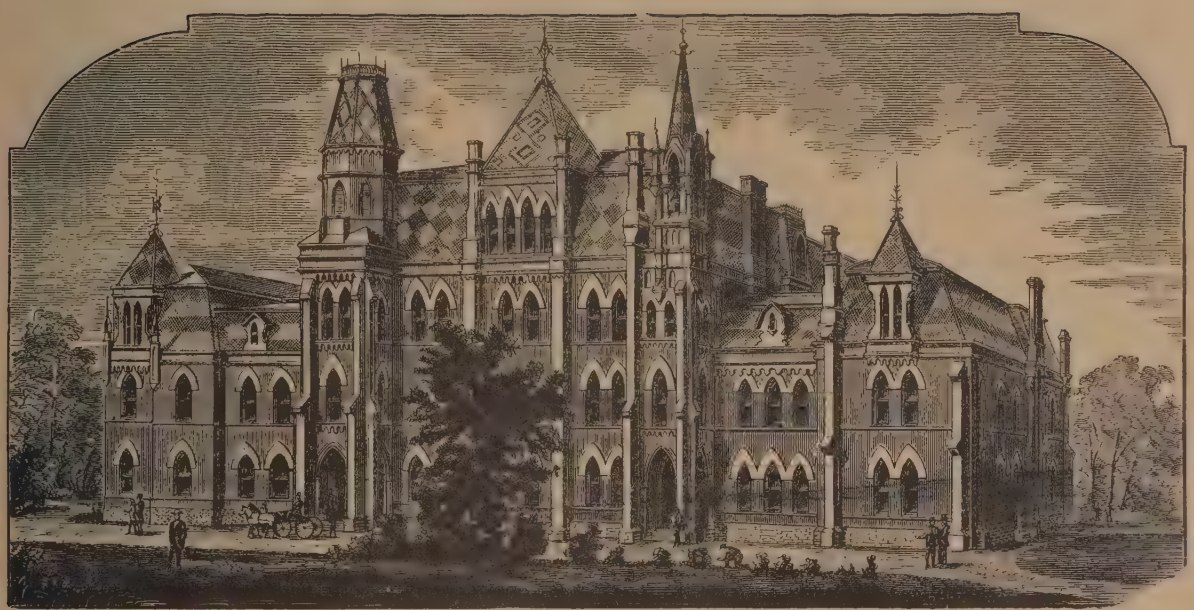
ORIGIN AND CHANGES.

A reference has already been made to the origin of the university. It may be valuable to give it in the language of the founders themselves.

"The need of education for the benefit of the church of the United Brethren in Christ being deeply felt by many of its ardent supporters, and the want of a permanent location in Ohio, where the church and its friends could concentrate their united efforts in establishing a school of learning, to give to the lovers of education an opportunity of securing it, within the influence of the same, when, in the course of Providence, in the year 1846, the Methodist Episcopal church, by their trustees, proffered to transfer, by an act of their conference, the property which constituted what was called the 'Blendon Young Men's Seminary,' and to carry into effect the measures which render it necessary to dispose of said institution, the citizens of Westerville and vicinty, at a meeting called for that purpose, agreed and proposed, by a large majority, to offer said institution to the church of the United Brethren in Christ, with a view to having the institution kept in successful operation for the benefit of those who had liberally contributed to its erection (under the control of the Methodist Episcopal church), which meeting also appointed a committee of two, to wait on the Scioto conference of the United Brethren church, then about to meet. By this committee were presented the preamble and resolutions of said meeting, embracing the situation of the institution, and the wish of its supporters. All of which was recieved by the Scioto conference, in the session at Bethlehem church, in Pickaway county, in the month of October, 1846. At this conference, a committee of investigation was ordered, which reported in favor of a purchase, and trustees were accordingly appointed. Their first regular meeting occurred April 26, 1847."

The history of this institution, like that of most of those founded in the earlier settlement of our country, affords another example of success accomplished under the most adverse circumstances. The men who founded the University were men of strong faith. The vast majority of the church were not in sympathy with such a movement—worse than this, many were actively hostile to it. They had no money, therefore, to give to its support. Not only the young people, but the fathers of the church, had to be educated to appreciate its wants. The records of the trustees, in the early days of the university show that the managers of the institution were not free from perplexity. Time and again they met, when debts were pressing them, without knowing which way to turn. They adjourned to meet again, with the assurance that succor would come, but in what direction, or from what source, they could not tell.

*Compiled from a history of the university, prepared for the Centennial exhibition, at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1876.



OTTERBEIN UNIVERSITY.

CO-EDUCATION.

The men who founded this university, had no previous experience in the management of institutions of learning. In admitting ladies into the college on the same terms with gentlemen; in permitting them to recite in the same classes, take the same courses of study, and receive the same degrees, they builded better than they knew. Not being able to build and man separate institutions, they wisely concluded to put both sexes into the same school. After twenty-nine years of successful experience in the co-education of the sexes, it is generally agreed that better results are secured in mental and moral culture, better discipline obtained, and a more harmonious development of character produced, than in the old way.

Provisions were originally made for the maintenance of the manual labor syetem, but it was never brought practically into vogue, and does not now exist. The discussion, pro and con, developed much feeling.

FINANCES.

This scheme led to another trouble, which almost crushed the university. Arrangements had been made for securing an endowment fund by the sale of scholarships, but after a great deal of trouble and expense in selling the scholarships, the scheme was abandoned.

In the year 1866 it was felt that another effort must be made to endow, or no permanency could be secured. It was agreed to ask voluntary contributions from the people. Agents were put to work for this purpose, and, in view of the fact that all these years we have been carrying a debt for building and other purposes, they have done well. There is now pledged to the institution, in notes and bequests, ninety-eight thousand dollars. Of this amount, seventy-five thousand dollars is funded and bearing interest at ten per cent.

REV. LEWIS DAVIS, D. D.

If one person, more than another, can claim the honor of being the founder of the university, that honor belongs to Rev. Lewis Davis, D. D. No one has labored more faithfully in its interests, for a longer time, nor accomplished better results, than he. After the first six months, he became president of the university, and for eighteen years, amid troubles, cares, and perplexities—financial and otherwise—he was its honored head. He was one among the few who saw the need of such an institution. He was one of the committee that purchased the property, and was one of the first trustees. During his whole connection with it he was its financial head. A large portion of the present endowment was secured by him in traveling from one field of labor to another. In 1871, at the time of the dedication of the new building, in view of the uncertain condition of his health, and his years admonishing him that he should seek more moderate labor, he resigned the presidency, to accept a position in Union Biblical seminary (then about to be opened at Dayton, Ohio), as senior professor, in which capacity he has been employed ever since.

THE OFFICERS OF THE FACULTY, from 1847 to 1873, are as follows: William R. Griffith, principal, 1847 to 1849; Rev. William Davis, 1849 to 1850; Rev. Lewis Davis, 1850 to 1857; Rev. Alexander Owen, 1858 to 1860; Rev. Lewis Davis, D. D., 1860 to 1871; Rev. Daniel Eberly, A. M., 1871 to 1872; Rev. H. A. Thompson, D. D., 1872, presidents. William R. Griffith, 1849 to 1850; Alexander Bartlett, 1850 to 1852; James A. Martling, 1852 to 1853; Ralph Manning Walker, 1853 to 1858; Rev. Samuel B. Allen, 1862 to 1865; John E. Guitner, 1867 to 1869, professors of the ancient languages. Lucian H. Hammond, 1858 to 1862; Rev. Samuel B. Allen, 1865 to 1867; John E. Guitner, 1869, professors of Greek. Ralph Manning Walker, 1858 to 1862; John E. Guitner, 1865 to 1867; Rev. Henry Garst, 1869, professors of Latin. Rev. Sereno W. Streeter, 1857 to 1858 professor of intellectual philosophy. Lucian H. Hammond, 1857 to 1858; Rev. Sereno W. Streeter, 1858 to 1860, professors of rhethoric and belles-lettres. Sylvester S. Dillman, 1849 to 1850; John Haywood, 1851 to 1858; Rev. Henry A. Thompson, 1862 to 1866, professors of mathematics and natural sciences. John Haywood, 1858 to 1862; Rev. Henry A. Thompson, 1866 to 1867; John Haywood, 1867, professors of mathematics. Thomas McFadden, 1858 to 1862; Thomas McFadden, 1866, professors of the natural sciences. Rev. Julius Degmeier, 1859 to 1862, professor of modern languages. John E. Guitner, 1864 to 1865, adjunct professor of languages. Jacob Zellar, 1857 to 1858; John E. Guitner, 1862 to 1864, tutors in languages. Miss Sylvia Carpenter, 1848 to 1849; Miss Lucy Carpenter, 1849 to 1850; Miss Sylvia Carpenter, 1851 to 1854; Miss Martha A. Perin, 1854 to 1855; Miss Mary L. Gilbert, 1855 to 1862; Mrs. Lizzie K. Miller, 1862 to 1863; Miss Melissa A. Haynie, 1863 to 1864; Mrs. Lizzie K. Miller, 1864 to 1869; Miss Clara L. Leib, 1869 to 1870; Mrs. Lizzie K. Miller, 1870 to 1875; Mrs. M. Fisher, 1875, principals of ladies' department.

The present faculty consists ot Rev. H. A. Thompson, D. D., president and professor of mental and moral science; John Haywood, A.M., professor of mathematics; Thomas McFadden, A. M., M. D., professor of natural sciences; John E. Guitner, A. M., professor of Greek language and literature; Rev. Henry Garst, D. D., professor of Latin language and literature; Mrs. M. A. Fisher, A. M., principal of the ladies' department; W. L. Todd, professor of instrumental music; W. C. Reese, teacher of penmanship; Mrs. Harriet E. Thompson, A. M., teacher of drawing and painting.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The collegiate department of Otterbein university offers two full courses of study, the classical and the scientific, each requiring four full years for satisfactory completion.

The classical course leads to the degree of bachelor of arts, and is, in its general character, identical with that which is offered by the leading colleges and universities of the Union. It requires long and progressive study of the Greek and the Latin languages, mathematics, natural sciences, philosophy, history, political science, metaphysics, and morals, and furnishes that knowledge and training which those who are competent to judge pronounce the paramount qualification for any profession or station in life.

The scientific course leads to the degree of bachelor of science, and is adapted to the wants of those who, for any reason, may not desire to spend in study the longer time required to complete the classical course. It does not require Greek, but will accept Greek, French, or German, instead of the Latin required. In other respects, it is not essentially different from the classical course, and classical and scientific students recite in the same classes, if their studies are the same.

The alumni records show a list of two hundred graduates, one hundred and thirty-eight of whom are gentlemen, and sixty-two, ladies. We should like to print a list of the names, if we had more space.

LIBRARY.

The University library consists of over one thousand well-selected volumes, besides pamphlets, all obtained since the great fire of 1870, and nearly all fresh publications. Books are added from time to time, as they are obtained by donation and by purchase. Connected with the library is a reading room, furnished with many of the best religious papers, newspapers and magazines.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

A very valuable means of improvement is that afforded by the literary societies. There are four of these societies, two conducted by the young men, the Philophronean and the Philomathean, and two by the young ladies, the Philalethean and the Cleiorhetean. All the societies are in a prosperous condition, and each has a commodious and well furnished hall and a valuable library.

CENTRAL COLLEGE is the name of an educational institution of a very small village which has grown up around it.

The first educational enterprise was a school taught at this place, by the Rev. Ebenezer Washburn, the pioneer of higher education in Blendon, in a building, long since destroyed.

About 1835 Squire Timothy Lee took measures toward the realization of what had long been a cherished idea—the establishment of a permanent and valuable seat of learning. With this idea in view he made liberal proposals to the new school branch of the Presbyterian church. The Presbytery of Franklin accepted his generously offered gift of money, lands, and building. He gave a tract of one hundred acres of land, and erected, at his own expense, all of the buildings necessary—a large brick dormitory, forty by sixty feet, and three stories in height, a dwelling house and two buildings for use, respectively, as chapel and recitation rooms. A charter was obtained, and the college regularly organized in 1842. Rev. L. A. Sawyer was the first president, and Rev. Ebenezer Washburn was made professor of natural philosophy, mathematics and astronomy. The school flourished for a time, but met with adversities, and finally became very nearly defunct, though not until after many young men had been educated there, some of whom have since become distinguished. Mr. Sawyer remained at the head of the institution until 1846, when he was succeeded by the Rev. J. Covert. He gave place, two years later, to the Rev. Edmund Garland. Rev. Levi B. Wilson was the next president. The Rev. Henry Bushnell became president in 1860. He was succeeded by Prof. Williamson, who, like Mr. Bushnell, was very successful in his management of the school. In 1872 and the following year, the buildings were repaired, and the institution passed under the control of the presbytery of Columbus with which the presbytery of Marion was, soon after, brought to unite. Central College academy is now under the principalship of Prof. F. A. Wilbur. It aims to do academic and preparatory work for colleges, and receives pupils of either sex.

The village of Amalthea or Central College was laid out by the college board of trustees, on the lands of Squire Timothy Lee, in 1849. It has but two stores—those of F. W. Wells and A. L. McLeod, the first, a general store, and the latter, a drug store.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

NATHAN S. VINCENT,

long a resident of Blendon township, at the Alum creek bridge, on the turnpike between Westerville and Columbus, was born in Brown township, Delaware county, Ohio, October 7, 1830. He was the son of Charles and Louisa Vincent, who were emigrants from France to this country. His mental training, in a formal way, was received solely in the district schools of Delaware and Franklin counties. In 1846 or 1847 he came, with his parents, to the lower part of Blendon township, about two miles from the home now occupied by his widow. He remained with them during his young manhood, laboring on the farm until his nineteenth year, when he learned the carpenter's trade, which he chiefly pursued thenceforth, and a year or two after the war of the Rebellion broke out, he was appointed general superintendent of building at Camp Chase, near Columbus, and served in this capacity nearly two years—so long as needed by the maintenance of the war. He then retired to a farm he had purchased three miles north of Westerville, and engaged in farming. After remaining three years, he sold the place and went to reside on the farm on Alum creek, where he died on the thirteenth of June, 1879. For the last five years before his death, he was honored with successive appointments as general superientendent of the State fairs at Columbus. He was held in high esteem for his business ability and his many excellent qualities of character, and numbered a host of friends. In 1853—November 24—he was married to Miss Lauretta C. Phelps, of the same neighborhood, who is the subject of the following notice.

MRS. LAURETTA C. (PHELPS) VINCENT, wife of the late Nathan S. Vincent, of Blendon township, was born at the old homestead, occupied for many years by her father and mother, Edward and Elizabeth (Jameson) Phelps, in that township. The date of her birth was September 18, 1835. Her parents removed to this part of Ohio from Hartford, Connecticut, in 1806, and were among the very first settlers in the region. She took the usual round of pioneer education in the country schools, and spent a year (1851–2) in Central college, then in charge of Professor Levi Wilson. After that she remained in the quiet life of home until united in the bonds of matrimony with Mr. Vincent, as before noted, to whom she remained a loving and faithful wife, through all his labors and cares, until death separated them. She now owns and occupies the homestead last purchased by him, two and a half miles south of Westerville. All the children of her marriage—seven sons and one daughter—are still surviving, and all reside with their mother, the oldest being twenty-four, and the youngest six years old. Their names, in the order of birth, are: Charles E., born December 9, 1855; Chauncey P.; born November 19, 1857; Corwin T., born December 24, 1859; Carrie F., born October 14, 1862; Joseph C., born March 26, 1866; William F., born February 14, 1868; Freddie, born March 6, 1871; and Walter B., born July 14, 1873.

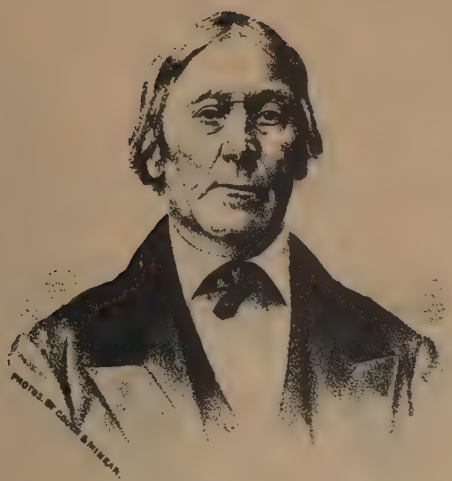
GEORGE WASHINGTON SHROCK,

an early settler, one mile south of Westerville, now deceased, was born in Romney, Virginia, December 12, 1804. His father, William Shrock, was a native of Winchester, in the same State, but was of Irish descent. While still young, he removed from Winchester to Romney, where he resided sixty years, and pursued the trade of a hatter, removing finally to Ohio, with his son, George, and dying at his house in Blendon township, December 21, 1848. The mother's maiden name was Jane Means. Her family was of Dutch origin, but she was born in New Creek, Virginia. George was brought up mainly in the family of his elder brother, Perez, with whom he learned the weaving trade, which he followed at intervals, afterwards. For some time after his majority he was also a flatboatman on the south branch of the Potomac, and engaged casually in various other labors. September 27, 1832, he was joined in marriage with Miss Rachel V. Inskip, also a native of New Creek, born there December 4, 1811. Upon the subsequent removal of the family to Ohio, she rode on horseback with the emigrating party all the way from her birth-place to the new home. From their union sprang a large family, five sons and five daughters, of whom seven are now living, namely, in the order of seniority: James, a bachelor, still residing upon the old place, near Westerville; Sarah J., now Mrs. Edward Nobles, of Washington county, Missouri; William, a farmer, in Sharon township, two miles from Westerville; Melissa, now Mrs. Benjamin F. Moody, also near Westerville; Vause, residing three miles south of the same place; Clara Arabell, at the old home; and Alfred Taylor, owner of the homestead, at which he now resides. Another son, George W. Shrock, jr., was a soldier in the Ninety-fifth Ohio volunteer infantry, during the war of the Rebellion, was wounded at the battle in front of Spanish fort, Mobile bay (the last fight of the Rebellion), April 8, 1865, and died of his wound seventeen days afterwards, in the United States general hospital, at New Orleans.

The place near Westerville, now occupied by three of his descendants, is the one first settled by Mr. Shrock, and mostly cleared up by him, upon his removal to Blendon township, about 1840. Here he resided until his death, on Christmas day, 1877, his venerable wife surviving until September 2, 1879. He was long a member and officer of the Presbyterian church, in Westerville, lived in peace with all the world, and died much lamented by the community among whom he had so long lived and labored.

SAMUEL RIGAL,

son of Philip and Catharine (Keller) Rigal, was born near Reading, Pennsylvania, April 14, 1807. His ancestors were among the foreign soldiers who settled in Pennsylvania, at the close of the Revolution. When Samuel was but nine years old, his father came to Ohio, and settled in Lithopolis, Fairfield county, as a farmer, also practicing, as opportunity afforded, his trade of weaver. The son had little chance of schooling, and pursued the labors of the farm at home, with little intermission, till he was twenty-one, when he became his own master, but continued farming. In 1828 he removed to Plain township, Franklin county, and entered sixty acres for a farm, receiving, also, one hundred and sixty acres with his young wife, formerly Miss Sarah Hay, of Fairfield county, Ohio, daughter of one of the oldest settlers in that region, to whom he was married on New Year's day, of the same year. Losing her by death, he was married, October 12, 1866, to Mrs. Amanda Miller. Upon re-marriage, he sold his farm and moved to Westerville, where he engaged in the hardware business for a year, when he retired,



JOSEPH CLAPHAM.

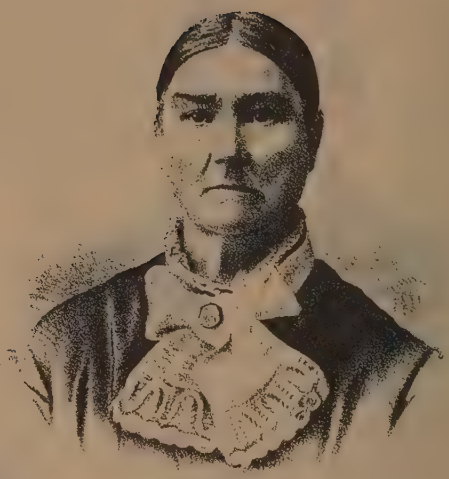
MRS. JOSEPH CLAPHAM.

A. O. Blair

N. S. VINCENT.

LAURETTA C. VINCENT.

SAMUEL RIGAL.



MRS. SAMUEL RIGAL.

HORACE SPRING.

MRS. HORACE SPRING.

(PHOTOS. BY BAKER, COLUMBUS, O.)

and has since lived a quiet life, comparatively freed from business cares, enjoying the fruits of his long and hard labors. He has had two sons—Daniel and Joseph—both of whom are dead, and three daughters—Diana, now Mrs. Daniel Ullery, wife of a farmer in Delaware county; Catharine, now Mrs. Samuel McClung, a widow, residing in Columbus, her husband having been killed by an accident in Missouri, some years ago; and Fanny, now Mrs. Jonathan Trist, wife of a farmer in Blendon township. He has never been in politics, but has held several township offices, and is, with his wife, a member of the Evangelical Association, or "Allbright" church, in Westerville.

Mrs. Amanda (Wilson) Rigal, wife of Mr. Samuel Rigal, is the daughter of John and Rebecca Wilson, who were among the earliest settlers near Newark, Licking county, Ohio, to which place they removed in 1805, from Hardy county, Virginia. In their new home they shared fully in the hardships of pioneer life—among the Indians, bears, and wolves, the latter of which still abounded in that region. There Amanda was born, May 18, 1818. She received her education solely in the primitive log school-houses of that day. In her twentieth year she was married to Anthony Miller, a young carpenter, and long a schoolfellow and playmate of hers, by whom she had eight children—three daughters and five sons—of whom four are living: Perry W., who lives on the old homestead, at New Albany; John N., a farmer in Blendon township; George W., a farmer in Livingston county, Missouri; and Mrs. Margaret E. Shrock, wife of a farmer four miles south of Westerville. Mrs. Rigal, with her first husband, removed, in 1853, from Licking county to New Albany, Plain township, Franklin county, where he died, of palsy and typhoid fever, March 6, 1862. She remained a widow something more than four years, when she was married, as already noted, to Mr. Samuel Rigal, and has since made her home with him in Westerville, where she is the mistress of a spacious and comfortable mansion, with handsome grounds about it.

JOSEPH CLAPHAM, SR.,

one of the old residents of this township, now deceased, was born in Walton, Yorkshire, England, on Christmas Day, 1793. He married Miss Sarah Hudson, of the same place. They emigrated to this country in the spring of 1818, sailing from Hull, and landing safely at Philadelphia, after a voyage of eight weeks. They removed at once to Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, where he engaged in teaming. At the expiration of five years, they came to Ohio, settling in Blendon township, in October, 1823, upon the farm then owned by Mr. John Snow, of Worthington, now known as "the Shrock place," Seven years afterwards he bought a hundred-acre farm on Big Walnut creek, one mile north of the present location of Central college, where they resided until their death, his occurring September 4, 1875, when he had almost completed his eighty-first year, and his wife's January 22, 1873, she then being aged seventy-five years and twenty-three days. They were highly respected for their useful and upright lives. Both were members of the Presbyterian church, and he, although not active in politics, had the convictions, first, of an anti-slavery Whig, and then of the Republican party. During several terms he served the people as township trustee. Five, out of a family of nine children, survive him—Joseph, a Delaware county farmer; George, a farmer near the old homestead; Thomas, a farmer in Mercer county, Missouri; and Mrs. Sarah J. Goldsmith, widow, and Miss Mary Ann Cladham, who reside at the old home. The other children died as follows: Martha, at home, October 21, 1832; Charles, at home, 1842; Mrs. Elizabeth Strong, in Bucyrus, Ohio, August 12, 1855; and John, upon his farm in the neighborhood, January 12, 1879.

HORACE SPRING,

residing about a mile east of Westerville, is one of the most venerable citizens of the township. He was born in Sandisfield, Berkshire county, Massachusetts, August 8, 1800, of mixed Dutch and Irish blood. His parents were Artemas and Sarah (Adams) Spring, his father being a farmer and stone mason. He is the oldest of fifteen children, of whom twelve lived to adult age. Both his grandfathers did honorable service in the war of the Revolution. When Horace was but eight months old his people removed to Hartford, Washington county, New York—then altogether a new country—and began the clearing of a farm, but sold out in about three years, and afterwards resided in various parts of the same township and county.

Young Spring, when but eighteen years old, determined to see the great world for himself, and to push his fortune in it. He started from home with one shirt and a pair of socks in his bundle, and thirty-seven and a half cents in his pocket. He revisited his birthplace, and afterwards went to Warehouse point and other places in Connecticut, where he worked until 1830, farming and teaming, and for some years holding a profitable interest in a line of stages running from Hartford to New Hampshire. In that year he removed to Blendon township, settling two miles south of Westerville, near the Alum creek bridge. Much of the means hardly earned in New England had been lost by various mischances, and he came to Franklin county with but seventeen dollars and fifty cents in money, and a hoe, an axe, and a hand-saw, by way of implements. With indomitable will, however, great vigor, and ceaseless industry, he set to work again and measurably recovered his means in a very few years; so that when, in April, 1836, he bought his present place for five hundred dollars, he was able to pay most of it cash down. Here his lot has since been cast, full of hard, but successfull labor, and devoid of exciting incidents and events. He has never been an office-seeker, but has several times had the post of township trustee conferred upon him. Originally a Jackson Democrat, he has since been, successively, an anti-slavery Whig and a Republican. He has lived a life without reproach, and is very highly esteemed by his fellow-citizens. March 15, 1824, he was married, in East Windsor, Connecticut, to Miss Minerva Fisk, of Warehousepoint, who died in 1873. Their children have numbered six—five sons and one daughter—all of whom survive save one, and are settled within forty miles of the old home. The daughter, Miss Elizabeth Spring, remains with her father, to cheer his declining days.

ALONZO O. BLAIR, M. D.,

the nestor, and, in his prime, the leading Homœopathic practitioner of medicine in Ohio, now a resident of Westerville, was born the son of Luther Blair, a farmer of Becket township, Berkshire county, Massachusetts, March 13, 1806. He received his academic education in the district schools of his native place and at Lenox academy, where he spent a year or two in faithful study. Determining to study medicine, he began to read in the office of Dr. John Cornell, in Schoharie, New York, and afterwards attended medical lectures at the Berkshire medical institute, a department of Williams college, kept in Pittsfield Massachusetts. Completing his preliminary studies at the age of twenty-two, he opened an office in Schoharie, but shortly after, in 1837, removed to Ohio, and settled at Newark, Licking county, where he again began the practice of his profession. At the expiration of seven years, he removed to Columbus, where he continued in practice until July, 1861, when he transferred his residence to Cleveland. He had, for a year or two previous, been delivering lectures from the chair of materia medica in the Homœopathic medical college in that city, and upon his removal there, assumed the position, in the same institution, of Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine. About five years afterwards, he was elected to the presidency of the college, and retained this important post for several years, when he resigned, to devote himself solely to his lucrative and increasing practice. He was, for a time, president of the State Homœopathic Medical society, and has been a prominent member of several other professional bodies. He was also physician to the orphan asylum in Cleveland, and while in Columbus rendered similar services to the home for the friendless, and was also there a member of the city council for one term. He served the government and the disabled soldiers in Cleveland for some years as pension surgeon. He was the first physician in Central Ohio to take a decided and permanent stand as a Homœopathist, and is known throughout that region and Northern Ohio as the father of Homœopathy in the Buckeye State. In 1876 Mr. Blair removed back to Columbus, and spent two years there, when, feeling the increasing weight of years and bodily infirmites, he retired to the quiet of a farm, purchased by him near Westerville, and ultimately to a comfortable dwelling in the village, where he now resides with a son, greatly esteemed by the community, and peacefully awaiting the summons to his final reward. He is a Swedenborgian in religious faith, an old Liberty man in politics, and a Republican from the beginning of Republicanism, and has always manifested a hearty and active interest in the temperance reform.

Dr. Blair was married in Schoharie, New York, September 9, 1826, to Miss Ann Maria Kroemer, who also still survives, at the advanced age of seventy-two. They have had four children, three of whom are living—Dr. George H. Blair, a practitioner, formerly in Columbus and Cleveland, but now of Fairfield, Iowa; Dr. Giles F. Blair, who resides with his father, and practices in Westerville and the surrounding country; and Jeannette, now Mrs. F. A. Comstock, wife of a manufacturer in Columbus. All are happily settled in life, and have growing families.

MIFFLIN.

Mifflin was, originally, a portion of the old township of Liberty, erected at the time of the division of the county, in 1803. It so remained, until 1811, when the township was established and organized with its present boundaries. It is just five miles square, and is one of the townships of the United States military lands, known, in early times as township number one, range seventeen.

The land in this township is level, or slightly undulating, except along the two principal streams—Alum and Walnut creeks, which flow through its teritory from north to south, the former in the western, and the latter in the eastern part. The beds of these streams are quite deeply sunken, and in many places they have precipitous banks of a shaly slate formation. Along Alum creek, the greatest unevenness is exhibited. The bottom lands of this stream and Big Walnut, contain the richest soil in the township. The uplands are also fertile, and produce fine wheat, being composed of what is generally known as the "yellow oak soil," which originally bore a heavy forest, in which that variety of timber prevailed.

NAME.

The township was first settled by emigrants from Pennsylvania, and they gave the place of their choice the name of their old governor—Mifflin.

CIVIL BEGINNING.

The township was organized and established within its present limits in 1811, previous to that time having been in common with Blendon and Jefferson, attached for civil and judicial purposes to Plain. The first justices of the peace were Frederick Agler and John Scott. In 1815 John Scott was re-elected, and Stephen Harris was chosen in Agler's place.

The first fall election of officers shown by the records is that which occurred in 1815. At that time the election was held at Frederick Agler's house, William Read, John Turney, and Agler acting as judges, and James Shannon and Henry Hawken as clerks. Following is the full list of officers elected: William Read, John Turney, and James Price, trustees; Geo. Baughman and Asa Roberson, supervisors; Hugh Price and Asa Roberson, constables; James Shannon and Jacob Isanheart, overseers of the poor; John Agler and Geo. Ridenour, fence viewers; Henry Hawken, clerk; Stephen Harris, treasurer; James Shannon, lister; Stephen Harris, house appraiser.

The present officers are: David Beers, William Shepherd, and William A. Stygler, trustees; John Zuber, clerk; Thomas D. Cassady, treasurer; Eli Chrysler and David Beers, justices of the peace; Levi Benedict and Daniel Beers, constables.

PIONEERS AND EARLY SETTLERS.

Mifflin township was settled in 1799 or 1800. The exact time cannot be stated, nor can it be said definitely who was the first settler. Many of the earliest families have no representatives left in the township or county, and others, who are still represented by their descendants, cannot be definitely placed.

William Read, who was, in all probability, the first, owned several hundred acres in the southwest part of the township, and lived near the present location of St. Mary's seminary. He was a prominent man—an associate judge of the court of common pleas, and a member of the legislature. None of the family are now living in this part of the country. His son, Adam, who was also at one time a member of the legislature, was killed at the raising of a log barn.

Frederick Agler was another of the early pioneers. He, like Read, settled on Alum creek, but about three miles farther north. He bought a large amount of land, made many improvements, and remained in the township until his death, in 1824. Margaret, his wife, also died at an early date. They raised quite a large family of children, of whom Samuel, Louis, Elizabeth (Mrs. Peter Horlocker), and Margaret (Mrs. James Park), are residents of the township. The Aglers came as early as 1806 or 1807.

Matthias Ridenour and his wife, Catharine Fage, came in in 1810, and settled on Big Walnut creek. They were originally from Maryland, removed from there to Pennsylvania, and thence to Ross county, from whence they came to Mifflin. Their family consisted of David, George, John, Susan, Mary, and Catharine. All are now dead, except David, who is a leading citizen of Westerville, Blendon township. Susan married Daniel Turney, Mary married John Turney, and after his death, Frederick Neiswender, of Jefferson township. Catharine married John Scott.

Daniel Turney and his wife, Susan (Ridenour), of Pennsylvania, emigrated, in 1806, to Chillicothe, and came from there to Mifflin township in 1811. They settled first upon Big Walnut, above the present site of the village of Gahanna, and soon afterwards, removed to Alum creek, and settled upon what is known as the Cynthia Turney farm. They had nine children, of whom seven are still living, as follows: John, in Morrow county; Mary (Dill), Susan (Bell), Daniel, in Iowa; Catharine (Noble), also in Indiana; Phebe (Noble), in Iowa. Daniel Turney died in 1856, and his wife, in 1857. They were among the best known and most liked families in the township.

George and Barbara Baughman, with their families, first settled in Plain township in 1805, but subsequently removed to Mifflin, where they spent most of their pioneer life. They were from Washington county, Pennsylvania. Samuel Baughman, a son of George, was grown up and married, and when others of the Baughmans moved into Mifflin he brought with him a family. Jesse Baughman, another son, was for many years one of the prominent interprising citizens of Mifflin. He laid out the village of Gahanna; was engaged in manufacturing; was a farmer, and in other respects assisted the advancement of the township, none, perhaps, doing more. He was twice married, his first wife being Catharine Turney, and his second Mary Albery, a sister of Judge Albery, and who is still living. Jesse Baughman died in 1878. A sister, Mary, was a party in the first marriage performed in Plain township. Henry Baughman, another son of George and Barbara Baughman, raised a family in Mifflin, but he, himself, removed to Auglaize county in 1834, where he remained until his death.

John Saul, another settler from Pennsylvania, was one of those who arrived early in the township. He located on Big Walnut, and there raised a family. Three of his daughters, Lydia Jacobs, Ann Shanks, and Polly Sherrick, are now residents of the township.

James Price, a native of Maryland, but for some years a resident of Virginia, came to Mifflin in 1811, and settled where his son, Hugh, now lives, on the Price road, near Big Walnut, there being at the time no other settlers in the east part of the township, except the Ridenours, where Gahanna now stands. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. Besides being a farmer, he was by occupation a blacksmith, and if not the first in the township, was certainly the first in the east part. He also served as justice of the peace. He died in 1853. His family consisted, when he came to Mifflin, of only a wife, Mary McComb, of Virginia, and one child, Jane, now in Adams county, Illinois. The children born after settlement, were: Harriet, deceased, Hugh, Eliza, who lives in Iowa, William, deceased; Oliver P., who lives in Indianapolis; and James, who died in 1862. Robert Wert came with James Price, and, like him, was a soldier of the war of 1812. Stephen R. Price, father of James, became a settler in the township in 1815, but bought land there as early as 1808, when he made an inspecting trip. He was one of the most intelligent and well informed of the pioneers, having been educated in London, England, for the ministry. In 1776, when he was nineteen years of age, he ran away to the United States and enlisted in the American army, and served all through the war. He took a prominent part in the affairs of Mifflin, and a year after his arrival was elected justice of the peace, and subsesequently re-elected three times. He died in 1832.

John Scott and his sons were squatters, east of Big Walnut creek, in 1811, when James Price arrived. They came through the country with the surveying parties of Thomas Worthington, Duncan McArthur, and Nathaniel Massie. John Scott, jr., subsequently settled near Gahanna, and Andrew in Fairfield county.

The Deans were prominent and early settlers, arriving soon after 1810, or, possibly, in that year, and taking up a thousand acres of land in the western part of the township. The family consisted of Lebious Dean, his wife, Rhua, and several sons, among them Ebenezer, who became a permanent settler. They made their settlement very nearly upon the ground now occupied by Francis B. Dean's house, and where there originally stood a giant sycamore tree, so large that, after it was prostrate, a horse and rider could pass through its hollow. Ebenezer Dean built one of the earliest mills in the township, which is elsewhere spoken of. He was one of the township's most active residents until his death, in 1841. He married Rachel Dalzell, of New York State, who is still living, in Columbus. Their children were: Francis B., a resident of Mifflin; Robert D. and John, citizens of Columbus; George (deceased), Ebenezer, and Sally Maria.

Luther Patterson and his son, Philander, the latter still a resident, came in from Massachusetts, in 1816, and settled on Alum creek. A daughter, Laura, married Simeon Moore, one of the early settlers of Blendon.

Andrew S. Smiley, a brother-in-law of Stephen R. Price, settled south of the latter on Big Walnut, in 1816.

James Latta, a native of Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, came to the township, on foot, in 1818, to make arrangements for the settlement of his family, who came in a flat-boat, by way of the Ohio river, and thence up the Scioto, shortly after. His father had about eight hundred acres of land in the township, and James Latta and his wife, Elizabeth, located upon it, near the east line of the township. He died in 1826, leaving a family of eight children: Martha, Sarah, and Mary, now deceased; William and Hannah, in Miami county; John, a resident of Mifflin; James and Elizabeth, deceased. John Latta married, in 1842, Phebe T., daughter of Robert Paull.

John Starrett came with the Lattas. He became quite noted as a local school-teacher, and was a resident of the township until his death, in 1859, at the advanced age of eighty-eight years.

William Smith was a settler of the period of 1820, and a native of Pennsylvania. He settled in the northeastern part of the township.

Nathaniel Harris came into the county in 1814, from the State of New York, and was noted as a singing-teacher, and, afterwards, as a lawyer and doctor. He left the State in 1855, and located in Springfield, Illinois, where he now lives, aged eighty-nine years. He was twice married. One son, Edwin, is now a resident of Gahanna.

William Dalzell and Henry Zinn came in about 1818.

D. Stygler, son of John and Bulah Stygler, of Belmont county, Ohio, natives of Virginia, who emigrated from there in 1810, came into Mifflin township in 1825, and beginning with nothing, has attained a large property. The farm he first settled upon in 1833, was the one up Walnut creek, on which his son now resides. He has since bought the property on which he resides, on the Columbus and Gahanna pike, and other real estate, amounting in all to about two hundred acres. He married Harriet, a daughter Zachariah Paull, of Truro township. His daughter, Sarah Parks, lives in Plain township; Leander, upon the old farm, which his father cleared up; Many Jane is deceased; and William is in the township, upon a farm which is a part of his father's accumulations.

George Bartlett came in in 1825, and made the first improvement upon the Columbus and Gahanna pike, where Mrs. Culberson now lives.

John Clark, a son of Joseph Clark, who was a settler of 1798, in Ross county, was born there in 1804, and in 1828, moved to Mifflin township, and made a clearing just east of the present site of Gahanna, upon a portion of the eight hundred acres lying in Mifflin and Jefferson townships, and bought by his father from Governor Worthington, in 1814. He has here handsome improvements, including a fine residence, built in 1840. He married Mary Murray, by whom he has had seven children—Joseph, Elizabeth, William, Phebe, Harwood, James, and Rufus, all of whom are living except Joseph, the first born.

Robert Paull came into the township in 1830, from Berkeley county, Virginia, by wagon, and has cleared up the farm which is on the road from Gahanna to Central College, and in the northern part of the township. He had, by his first wife (who died before his removal to Ohio), two children—Robert and Phebe (Latta). He died in 1852.

Thomas G. Schrock came to the township with his father, William Schrock, from Hampshire county, Virginia, in 1831. There also came, at the same time, three others of the family—Pierce, William, and George, all three of whom are now dead. Mr. Thomas G. Schrock made his settlement, where he now lives, and upon the farm which he has cleared in 1834. He married Christina, daughter of Isaac Griswold, the first female child born in Blendon township, by whom he has reared a family, of whom five are living, viz: Isaac W., Orentia, Ursulla Jane, Editha, and Lacylum.

John Dalzell and his wife, Catharine, of Oneida county, New York, in 1831 or '32, made their settlement in the township. John Dalzell had been, previous to his removal to Mifflin, a resident, since 1822, of Columbus, and a warden in the penitentiary.

Zachariah Kramer came in in 1830, and settled north of Gahanna, and David Shull, in the same year, settled on the same farm, where the family now lives, which had been somewhat improved by Isaac Johnson, of Jefferson, then a squatter.

About this time came, also, the Dills from Nova Scotia. There were John Dill and his wife, Sophia Beckwith. Their children were: Edward, who lives in Blendon; William and George, in Mifflin; David, John, Augustus, Joseph, and James. Of the five last named, all are dead, except John, and he resides in Blendon. Augustus married Elizabeth Turney, by whom he had three children: William A., a resident of Blendon, and John B. and Joel W., of Delaware county.

James Park, son of Amos and Sarah Park, of Ontario county, New York, came into Delaware county, in 1816, and from there into Franklin county, in 1830, where he located upon his present farm, on the Sunbury pike, in the northwestern section of Mifflin township. He married Margaret, a daughter of Frederick Agler. The elder Park followed his son into Mifflin, in 1832, and remained there till his death, in 1851.

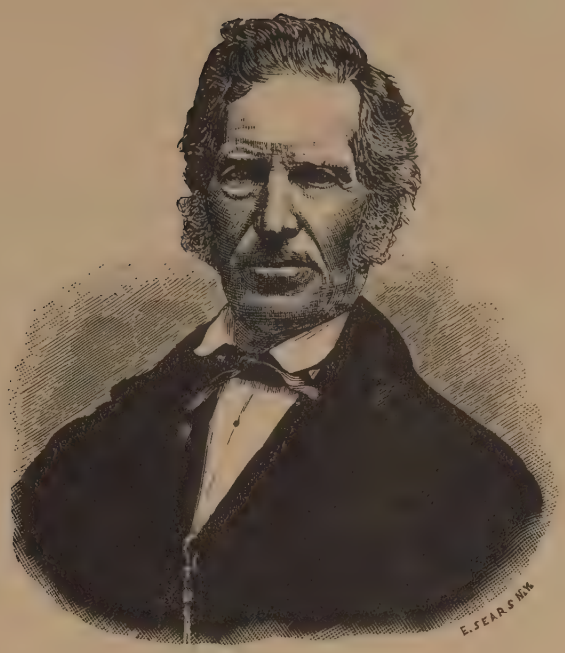
George and Ellen Harwood came in from Washington county, Pennsylvania, in 1835, and located on the farm which the family improved, and upon which a son—Thomas—now lives, situated on the road from Gahanna to Central College. They had a large family: Eliza, John, Thomas, Charles, Benjamin, Harriet, and Alvin, of whom only Thomas survives. He married Christina Wilkins.

Henry and Henrietta Carpenter came into Mifflin in 1839, from Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, and later moved into Jefferson township. Henry Carpenter died at the advanced age of one hundred and four years, and his wife at ninety-eight, both being people of wonderful strength and splendid health. Charles Carpenter, a son, is now a business man of Gahanna, and one of its leading citizens. Ae has been several times a justice of the peace. A sister, Julia Ann (Beecher), lives in Indiana.

Sarah Crouse Ramsey, widow of the late John Ramsey, son of Joel, an old settler of Plain township, and herself the daughter of Christian Crouse, of Strasburg, Germany, who came to Columbus in 1841, is a resident of the township. John Bagshaw, a native of England, is one of the most prominent of the later settlers, and an influential man in the township. His farm, on Alum creek, has been almost entirely cleared up by him. Philip Keim, a native of Virginia, came into Mifflin, from Licking county, in 1851, and took up the place where his widow, Susan Keim, now resides. He was one of the useful men of the township, until his death, in 1858. Samuel Powell, a native of England, came to this country in 1838, and located in Licking county, and, in 1852, removed to Mifflin, where he died in 1879. His widow, Matilda, daughter of John and Mary Keim, who came from Pennsylvania to Ohio, in 1826, resides upon the farm which her husband improved.

VARIOUS FIRST THINGS.

The first marriage in the township was that of James Scott, to Miss Judy McManaway. The first death was that of a daughter of Ake Anderson. The first cemetery was in the southwest part of the township, the one near the Mifflin chapel. It was here that Judge Read was buried, also Ebenezer Dean, and the Dalzells. Polly Smiley was buried at an early day near the Big Walnut, but the ground is not now used for burial purposes. The first tavern was kept by George Read, son of Judge Read, where the water-cure establishment of Dr. Shepherd now is. It is probable that the first road ever traveled in the township was the old Zanesville road, leading to Columbus, and running through the southern part of the township. Some of the early settlers came in on this road, and then cut their way through the forest to their locations. This road was long since abandoned, except a little part which is still in use, and which lies just south of the new Orphans' home. The first school-house was built on Big Walnut, where Gahanna now is; the second, on top of the hill,



JESSE BAUGHMAN.

Jesse Baughman, son of George and Barbara (Steele) Baughman, was born in Washington county, Pennsylvania, on the eleventh of June, 1802. His parents were of the well-known Pennsylvania German blood. His father was a carpenter, but Jesse was brought up mainly on the farm, giving, however, some attention to education in the common schools of that time. In 1805 his parents removed to the country near New Albany, Plain township, Franklin county, and when Jesse was in his eleventh year, in 1812, they again removed, this time going to Mifflin township, where they lived upon a farm, and where both died in the fullness of years. Young Baughman was married May 26, 1825, to Miss Catharine Turney, of Mifflin, and settled on the old farm till after his second marriage (his first wife died December 1, 1838), which occurred May 3, 1840, and was to Miss Mary Albery, a young lady of a German-English family, residing in Jefferson township, and sister of Judge Albery, of Columbus. He was the founder and original proprietor of the village of Bridgeport, which he laid off in 1853. In 1859 Mr. Baughman built the first gristmill ever erected in Mifflin township, at Gahanna, and managed it with success until 1865, when he sold out on account of poor health, and afterwards did some light labor in farming, but mostly lived a retired, quiet life, free from manual labor. He served as county commissioner for Franklin county one term—1853–5, and was quite often elected township trustee, assessor, land appraiser, and to various other minor offices. He was one of the first to promote the organization of the Franklin county pioneer association, of which he remained an active member. He was a Democrat in politics, and a Presbyterian in his religious convictions, ever an active man in church and Sabbath-school. He died in Gahanna on the last day of 1878, much lamented by a great number of relatives and friends. In an autobiographical notice which he contributed to the newspapers some years ago, he said of himself, and, doubtless, with the utmost truthfulness: "In all my dealings I have never been sued, neither have I ever sued any one. I never spent twenty-five cents for cigars or tobacco, and was never intoxicated in those seventy-three years"—[the time he had then resided in the county].

By his first marriage Mr. Baughman had five children—four sons and one daughter—of whom four are living: Rev. George Baughman, a clergyman resident in Eaton, Preble county, Ohio; Joel, a farmer near Gahanna; Josiah, an engineer at Westerville, and Mary Ann, now Mrs. Eskridge Carter, wife of a farmer in Blendon township. Seven children—three sons and four daughters—were the issue of the second marriage. Four of them yet survive: William Sandford Baughman, a farmer near Gahanna; Francis, a lawyer at Battle Mountain, Nevada; Esther Josephine, now Mrs. Robert Collier, residing at No. 152 Hamilton avenue, Columbus, and Lewis Clifford Baughman, the youngest child, yet at the old home in Gahanna, residing with his mother, who is still, though somewhat advanced in years, in vigorous health, and gives promise of long life.

west of Alum creek, and on what is known as the Alum creek road; and the third, in the Parks neighborhood.

The first brick house was built by Judge Read, about 1815, but one was erected by Andrew Agler about the same time—the one in which Peter Horlocker now lives.

DEER HUNTING.

James Price, father of Hugh Price, at present, a resident of Mifflin township, was, in the early years of the settlement, a great hunter, and particularly fortunate in killing deer. He seemed to have a natural instinct for hunting; and his knowledge of the woods and of the habits of animals was so thorough that he seldom failed to come home, within a half hour, with a haunch of venison on his shoulder, or some other game slung across his back, when he went into the woods with his trusty rifle. He supplied his own family and the neighbors with venison and other meats, and often, when the larder was low, his services were brought into requisition with good effect. It was thought that from the time of his arrival in Mifflin (1811) to the time that the deer disappeared from the woods (about 1848), he killed as many as five hundred deer, to say nothing of smaller game. He rid the country of wolves, too, as late as 1826, trapping an old she-wolf that had been a great source of annoyance to all the settlers, because of her frequent and very bold depredations.

Mr. Price had some experiences which proved deer hunting not an altogether safe sport. One adventure, in particular, showed its danger. One evening, in October, he took his small bore rifle and the tomahawk which he always carried, when hunting, and went into the woods to cut a few hoop poles, which he needed. It was customary in those days to carry a gun, whenever going any distance from the cabin, either for self-defence, or to bring down any game that might, by chance, be seen. Mr. Price, on this occasion, had gone but a short distance when he saw a fine, large deer. He fired, and it fell. Supposing it to be dead, he went up to the animal, laid his gun down, and prepared to remove the skin and choice parts of meat. Just as he drew his tomahawk from his belt, the deer, quick as lightning, sprang to its feet, and came furiously at him. He aimed a blow at the deer's head, but the handle of the tomahawk struck one of the deer's horns, and the weapon flew from his hand many feet away. Then a life or death struggle commenced between the weaponless man and the infuriated animal. The deer tried to gore Price with its horns, but he being a very strong man, succeeded in holding the animal so that it could not reach him. He was jerked violently backward and forward, however, and the deer's sharp hoofs struck terrible blows upon his person, cutting entirely through his clothing, and producing painful wounds. The deer jumped upon Price frequently, and finally, he became so weakened by the loss of blood and the violence of the battle that he was scarcely able to keep up. The fight lasted about half an hour, and just as Mr. Price was about to give up, it ended in a singular way. The deer setting its feet firmly in the ground, began to pull back with all its strength, and when the strain was most severe, Mr. Price suddenly relaxed his hold, thinking to dodge behind a tree before the animal could reach him. As he let go, the deer reared upon its hind feet, and fell heavily backward. As it made a struggle to rise, Mr. Price saw that one of its horns had become fast under the root of an elm tree. He was quick to take advantage of the situation, and drawing his pocket-knife, cut the deer's throat. When Mr. Price arrived at home, he was in a very pitiable contion. His clothing was blood-stained, and hung upon his person in tatters, his face was cut and bruised, so as to be scarcely recognizable, and his left thumb was out of joint, and his strength completely gone.

On another occasion, Mr. Price was so badly hurt by a deer that he had shot, that he only got home with great difficulty in half a day, although the distance he had to travel was not more than a mile and a half.

CHURCHES.

The Rev. Ebenezer Washburn, of Blendon, began preaching in Mifflin, in 1819, his first services being held in the barn of William Smith. This was the beginning of Presbyterianism in the township. In the same year the Rev. Charles Henkle founded a Lutheran church. These two denominations have ever since held the precedence in the east part of the township.

THE LUTHERAN CHURCH

was the first one organized, though, as stated above, the Presbyterians were as early in holding religious services, and, it is also probable, that the Methodists were equally early, but this denomination, usually the pioneers of Christianity, were later in Mifflin than any other township of the county. The first preaching by the Lutherans was in George Ridenour's house, at Daniel Forney's and at —— Neiswender's, in Jefferson township; afterwards, services were held at a school-house, in the same township, which was built by Michael Neiswender. The meetings were held in various localities, for the accommodation, in turn, of the different settlements. The early members of the church (organized as above stated, in 1819) were: George and John Ridenour, Michael Neiswender, George Baughman, Jesse Baughman, David Ridenour, John Saul, Daniel Turney, Jonas Souder, and, perhaps, a few others. The house of worship was built in 1838, just north of the present site of Gahanna, and upon a lot donated, for the purpose, by Zachariah Kramer. An addition was found necessary, and was accordingly built, in 1843. The church has now a total membership of one hundred and sixty persons, and is under the pastoral charge of the Rev. Lewis T. Meyer. The elders are Isaac Souder and G. Neiswender; Serenus Souder and Nicholas Heischman, deacons; Samuel Neiswender, John Kramer, and John Souder, trustees.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH,

as shown by the record, was organized in 1840, by the Rev. Ebenezer Washburn and E. Fitch, who were appointed to the duty by the presbytery of Columbus. The members were: James, Mary, Eliza, and Hugh Price, John Starritt and Martha Starritt, Mary Clark, Elizabeth Latta, Nathaniel and Sophronia Harris, George, Eleanor, and Eliza Harwood, William and Jane McCutcheon, Edward, Jane, and Mary Dill, Susan Turney, Christiana Schrock, and Mary Starritt. George Harwood, William McCutcheon, and Nathaniel C. Harris, were chosen as elders. The church edifice was built soon after the village of Gahanna, or Bridgport, was laid out. This church has now fifty-five members, and no resident minister. The elders are John Clark and Robert Paull. Isaac Shull, Walter Paull, Jesse Price, Rufus Clark, and William Stygler, trustees; John Clark, treasurer.

EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION.

This denomination has a church building at Gahanna, which was built in 1870. The society is not in a flourishing condition. The first class formed was at a considerably earlier date than the building of the church, and it consisted of Mr. H. Ulery, Elizabeth and Peter Neiswender, and Polly Nofzger.

PHYSICIANS.

The first physician was Samuel Stambaugh, who commenced practice in 1846, and remained until the fall of 1850, when he removed to California. His successors, who remained long enough to entitle them to mention, were Jonathan Flathery, Dr. Williams, John Baughman, who died in 1862, David Ridenour, who now lives in Indiana, and Frank Beatley, who now resides in Columbus. Of the physicians now in the township, all but one are located in Gahanna. Dr. R. P. Anderson, of the Eclectic school, and a graduate of one of the Cincinnati colleges, has been in practice about twenty-five years. He practiced in Albany, Plain township, until 1876, and then removed to his present location, where he has quite a large patronage. The other medical men are Thomas Young, —— Sensenig, Wm. A. Wilson, and T. J. Clouse.

ST. MARY'S OF THE SPRINGS

is a seminary for young ladies; is under Catholic control, and is one of the well-known educational institutions of central Ohio. It is beautifully situated upon a gentle eminence, near the southwest corner of Mifflin township, and just three miles from Columbus. It is near the lines of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis and the Baltimore & Ohio railroads. It has claim to the latter part of its name from the fact that, within the extensive grounds, there are several excellent springs from which bubbles up an abundance of pure, cold water. There is also an iron spring, and one of white sulphur, which are said to be among the most valuable medicinal springs in the State. The institution, which has recently been incorporated by the legislature, was established in 1868, and is now under the direct superintendence of the Dominican sisters, and also under the auspices of the bishop and clergy of Columbus, and the Rev. S. A. Clarkson, O. P. The superior is Mother Francis. The academy is a large and well-built structure, three stories in height, and has all the conveniences and luxuries that belong to a place of its kind. The school is in a very flourishing condition, and has been well patronized from the time of its establishment. A handsome view of the seminary is given herewith.

DR. SHEPHERD'S WATER-CURE.

Dr. W. Shepherd has, in Mifflin township, a private sanitarium and water-cure, which has attained quite a wide celebrity. It is situated in the southwest corner of the township, upon the Alum creek road, and is about four miles from the State house. The buildings are, in themselves, attractive, and they ornament a beautiful landscape. The grounds are extensive, including about forty acres, and are tastefully laid off, and adorned with trees and all the varied greenery that can combine to lend beauty to the place. Dr. Shepherd, who is a graduate of the Eclectic medical college of Cincinnati, established the sanitarium in 1853.

MILLS IN MIFFLIN.

Early in the history of the township, Ebenezer Dean built a saw-mill on Alum creek, which he run for a number of years, and in which was sawed a vast deal of lumber used in the surrounding country. His son, Francis B. Dean, also operated the mill a number of years, and Judge Heyl was at one time its owner. This was the first mill in the township. The exact date at which it was built can not be ascertained, but it was undoubtedly earlier than 1825. James Park built a mill on the same creek about a mile up stream, and Andrew McElrain put up one, about where St. Mary's seminary now stands, in 1839. Dr. William Janney, of Virginia, who was temporarily a resident of Mifflin, built a saw-mill, in 1837, upon Big Walnut. Samuel Powell had a steam saw-mill in operation for about ten years, near where his widow now resides. There are now steam saw-mills in, and near, Gahanna, the former owned by J. W. Caldwell, and the latter, upon the Columbus pike, owned by Eli Chrysler.

The first and only grist-mill in the township was built in 1859, at Gahanna, by Joel and Jesse Baughman, and is still in operation. Eli and Elias Chrysler bought out the Baughmans in 1865. It subsequently passed through a series of ownerships, among the various proprietors, either wholy or in part, being Joel Baughman and Eli Chrysler, Edwin Harris, R. S. Katterman, and W. W. Berris, the present owner.

POST-OFFICES.

The first post-office in the township was established at Gahanna, and is known by the name of the village in which it is located. It was established in 1849, and Thomas Young had the first commission as postmaster. Another was established on Alum creek, at Park's saw-mill, in 1851, and Jeremiah Lasure was appointed postmaster. Two years later he was succeeded by James Park. This office has since been removed to the toll-gate, upon the Columbus and Westerville turnpike, where it crosses the west line of the township.

THE VILLAGE OF GAHANNA, OR BRIDGEPORT, is a hamlet of about three hundred population, of comparatively recent growth. It is located in the east part of the township, upon Big Walnut creek, and midway between the northern and southern boundaries of the township. That portion of the village which is Gahanna, was laid out in 1849, by John Clark, esq., and the other, properly called Bridgeport, was laid out in 1853, by Jesse Baughman. The village was never incorporated. The first place of residence which was built upon the site of Gahanna, was a log cabin, erected by John Ridenour, and dwelt in by John Starritt. The first tavern was kept by James Staley, and was known as the Mifflin hotel. The first store was kept by Thomas Young, and the second by William Beecher. Gahanna has had a slow growth and very moderate business improvement. Three of the four churches of the township are situated in the village, and it has a good school, at present under the charge of Leonard Graham, of Reynoldsburg. William Ross is postmaster, storekeeper, and hotel landlord. The other stores are those of Mrs. S. A. Quinn and Mrs. F. M. Percy. Wagon making is carried on by John Zuber and Jonas Glick, and Jacob and Charles Breiret are manufacturers of carriages. Theodore Carpenter is a tinner and hardware dealer.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS.

Mifflin Lodge, No. 518, is a flourishing organization of Odd Fellows, which meets in Gahanna. It was instituted June 27, 1872, by Joseph Dowdall, P. G., and consisted of fhe following charter members: G. H. Gunderman, S. L. Quinn, D. Hollen, W. Beechard, W. P. Dawson, C. Goodman, A. Mann, E. Ayres, L. Stagg, John Shilling, W. J. Cheney, John Miller, J. Winsor, and H. Cummins.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

SAMUEL L. QUINN.

Samuel L. Quinn was born in Plain township, Franklin county, January 5, 1833. His early life was passed at his boyhood's home, and here he obtained the rudiments of an education, which he afterwards improved at Central college, where he commenced study when about eighteen years of age. He remained at college a number of years, pursuing an irregular course of study, such as he deemed would be of most advantage to him during life, without attempting to take the prescribed course, and become a graduate. When about twenty-three or twenty-four years of age, he gave up his studies, and engaged in teaching, which vocation he followed some five years. He then spent some two years in travel, in the west, crossing the Rocky mountains during his absence. Then returning to his home for a brief time, he, in 1866, engaged in mercantile business, at Gahanna, which he continued until 1873, when he was appointed deputy sheriff of Franklin county, and disposed of his business in order to assume his official duties. He was a second time appointed to the same office, in which he served until August 13, 1876, when typhoid fever claimed him as a victim, and he died at the early age of forty-three.

He was a member of the Young Mens' Democratic club, of Columbus, and was held in high esteem by his fellow-members, who passed a series of resolutions on his death, among which was the following:

Resolved, That we deeply deplore the loss of our brother, who had so many of the virtues that go to make up the true gentleman and patriotic citizen; that his memory will ever be cherished by us with kind recollections of true friendship, as he himself was true to his friends.

In his death the county lost a faithful and efficient officer, his family a kind, affectionate, and loving husband and father, and the society in which he moved a warm-hearted, genial, and honorable member. He was married, April 9, 1861, to Miss Sarah A. Grant, of Jackson township, who became to him a helpmeet, in every sense. To them were born five children, of whom death has taken three. Those living, are Louis and May. About a year after the death of her husband, Mrs. Quinn returned to Gahanna and engaged in mercantile business, in the building formerly occupied by her husband, and where she has since remained.

EBENEZER BUTLER.

Judge Ebenezer Butler, of Mifflin township, Franklin county, Ohio, was one of the earliest settlers of that township. He came from New York some years previous to the war of 1812. He was born in Connecticut, near Hartford, in the year 1758. Following in biographical order the incidents of his life, it appears that he was among the first of the revolutionary patriots who participated in the struggle of the American colonies, in resisting British oppression. At the early age of eighteen, he responded to the call upon the people of Connecticut, and, in conformity with the traditions of those trying times, he "left his plow standing in the furrow," received the ancient fire-lock from the hands of his mother, and joined General Putnam in the defence of Bunker Hill. After that memorable battle, he remained in the army until sickness compelled him to leave it.

In imitation of the primitive custom, he married when quite young. His wife was Rebecca Davis. Not long after this event, he discovered that the central portion of the State of New York, then a part of the extreme western frontier of the country, offered attractive inducements to enterprise, and he determined to seek a new home there. He settled in the then small village of Pompey, where he received the appointment of land agent, for the sale of the State lands, and immediately began to prosper. Here his somewhat numerous family of children were born. Their names were Martha, Belinda, Aurelia, Flora, Mary, and Rebecca, the latter of whom died when quite young. To this number, two sons —Roswell and Manly —and a second daughter named Rebecca, were added. Belinda and Aurelia were educated at the Hamilton academy; Flora and Mary were sent to Hartford, for the advantages of the higher studies and accomplishments.

In progress of time, Mr. Butler was appointed to a judicial position on the local bench, and elected to the legislature of his adopted State. He was the contemporary and neighbor of the father of Gerrit Smith; each the possessor of a very extensive landed estate. Judge Butler, in the prime of life, was a man of remarkable capacity for business enterprise, engaging with equal facility and uniform success in merchandise and farming—in the milling business, and in ocean commerce, becoming largely interested in foreign trade, and the owner of a considerable investment in vessels. He had formed a partnership with a Mr. Phillips, and, during his necessary presence in Albany, in attendance upon the legislature, his partner succeeded in defrauding him of a large sum of money, with which he absconded. Succeeding this event, came the embargo of 1807, which ruined his shipping interests. The result of these successive misfortunes was an embarrassment so serious that he was compelled to bring to a close his large and varied business transactions. Upon a settlement with his creditors, which was accomplished with rigid conformity to the rules of honor, which governed him in all his transactions, he found himself still in possession of a small reserve of capital, with which to begin life anew, in the now populous and prosperous State of Ohio, then one of the youngest of the States, presenting, in the superior advantages of its agricultural lands, inducements which attracted a large emigration from the eastern States, and offering, as he conceived, an inviting opportunity for the retrieval of his fortune. He bravely resolved to make the change, and, accordingly, joined the throng of emigrants to this then far western locality, bringing with him his entire family, with the exception of his oldest daughter, who had married Mr. Atwater, an attorney-at-law in the State of New York. He came directly to Franklin county, and entered lands to the amount of some seven hundred acres, on Alum creek, about seven miles north of the site of the future city of Columbus. The location was an almost unbroken wilderness. The scattered settlers were too few as yet, too impoverished, and too laboriously occupied in securing for their own households the subsistence they required, to render much of neighborly aid to each other. The lot of the early pioneer in this State was one which it is hard to realize. With his own hands, and with such help as he could, with difficulty, obtain, he built a log house for an immediate home. In his oldest son Roswell he had a very efficient assistant, in the struggle with the difficulties which beset his efforts. It is related of this son, that he was very popular with the pioneers, who were often benefitted by his superior intelligence. His death, by drowning, at an early age, was felt as a great loss in the neighborhood. In their new and trying experience, Judge Butler's daughters put to practical use the advantages of education which they had acquired in their more prosperous days. One of them —Aurelia opened a school in the village of Franklinton, on the opposite side of the river from Columbus. The third daughter —Flora —found an opportunity to establish a school for young ladies, in Lancaster, then one of the most thriving towns in the State, some thirty miles distant. Her hand was soon sought by Mr. Christian King, the leading merchant of the place, and the fourth daughter—Mary —took the school, and retained it until her marriage with Mr. Richard Douglass, an attorney-at-law, residing in Chillicothe. His daughter, Aurelia, married Judge Orris Parrish, of Columbus. The exposure encountered at the burning of his home, which caught fire by some accident, and was consumed so rapidly that the inmates barely escaped, seriously impaired his health, and an attack of fever subsequently occurred, which occasioned his death, in 1826, in the sixty-eighth year of his age.

THOMAS HARWARD.

The subject of this sketch was born in Morgan county, Ohio, December 26, 1816. His parents were George and Ellen Harward, who came to this State from Pennsylvania when quite young, and were married in Ohio. They raised nine children, of whom Thomas was the first in order of birth. In 1835 the family came to Franklin county, and located in Mifflin township, a mile and a half north of Gahanna, where George Harward purchased ninety acres of land, to which he afterward added, by purchase, one hundred and thirty-four acres. After his death, Thomas Harward bought the interest of the other heirs in the estate, and, in 1862, built a substantial brick house on the place, in which, with his family, he now lives. He has been a hard-working and industrious man, economical in his habits, and strongly attached to his home. He was married, in 1864, to Christine Wilking, and has a family of five children, as follows: Carrie E., Emma May, Charles, Alvin, and Arthur, all of whom are living at home. Both Mr. and Mrs. Harward are members of the Presbyterian church, with which they have been connected many years.

NORWICH.

This township originally constituted a part of Franklin township, but in 1809, when Washington was organized, it became a part of that township, and so remained until 1813, when it was laid out and organized under its present name. It, at that time, included what is now the south part of Perry, until that township was estabished, in 1820. There was no post-office until 1852, and the inhabitants were obliged to go a considerable distance to obtain their mail, as well as for all purposes of trade. This township has settled up very slowly, especially the northern and western portions. The first settlements were made along the river, and afterwards in the southern part.

SETTLEMENT.

The first settlers in what is now known as Norwich township, were Daniel Brunk and family, who settled half a mile south of Hayden run, in 1807.

Rev. Benjamin Britton settled on land, next south of Brunk, at the same time. He was a Christian, or "New Light," preacher, and early organized a church of the denomination to which he belonged, on land near by, which, at that time, belonged to Joseph Carr, but which was not occupied. Mr. Britton was assisted by Rev. Mr. Fisher, of Worthington. A log structure was built for use, as a church, but was occupied but a few years, when the church died out, and the building was fitted up and used as a dwelling-house. The members of the church, afterwards, joined with the congregation at Dublin.

The first cemetery in Norwich township was on the land at that time owned by Daniel Brunk. The name of the first person buried there is not now known.

Isaac Grace settled east of Mr. Britton, and near the Scioto river, about the same time. He was a Methodist preacher, and an early member of Christie Methodist church, at Dublin.

George Rager settled near Hayden run, soon after the settlement of Britton and Grace. Like many others, of that day, he was a firm believer in the supernatural, and as strong a believer in the efficacy of a silver bullet to cause the death of a witch.

Peter Latimer was born in Connecticut, and, when about two years old, was taken to Pennsylvania, where he spent his early life. He was married, while living there, and, on one occasion, himself and wife were obliged to seek safety from the Indians, by flight into the woods. They hid between two logs, and distinctly heard the Indians, as they searched the woods for them, but, fortunately, they remained undiscovered. In 1811, they emigrated to Ohio, and settled in Norwich township, on land now owned by William Armistead, where Mr. Latimer purchased a large tract. He sold from this, after a time, until he had a farm of but one hundred and fifty acres left. He carried the first mail from Columbus to Zanesville, on horseback, and also carried the mail from Columbus to Bellefontaine, many years. He raised eight children, five of whom are now living, as follows: Harriet, in Illinois; Elizabeth, in Iowa; Sallie (Mrs. McCoy), in Perry township, this county; Naomi J. (Mrs. Williams), at Chittenden hotel, Columbus, and John, in the gold mines of Alaska. Mr. Latimer has been a resident of Columbus during the past fourteen years, making his home with his daughter, Mrs. N. J. Williams. He is now in the ninety-eighth year of his age.

The next settler below Britton and Grace, was Samuel Davis, who came to the township, with his family, in 1814. He was born in Connecticut, and in 1785 emigrated to Kentucky, when about twenty years of age. He was there employed by Major Simon Kenton, as a spy among the Indians, to warn settlers of intended raids by the savages. There were twelve men thus employed, six being on duty at a time. He served as a spy three years, and at one time, when trapping with a man named Campbell, both were captured by the Indians, when camped on the Big Sandy. They were tightly bound, for security, but his bonds hurt him so that he could not sleep. The Indian who had charge of him inquired what was the matter, and when informed, directed one of his young men to loosen his thongs. Mr. Davis watched his opportunity, leaped across a small run into a thicket and escaped, but with scarcely any clothing. For six days he traveled, with no food, other than wild roots, in a cold March air, until he reached the settlement. Campbell was taken to Detroit, and sold to a Frenchman, whence he eventually obtained his freedom.

After the close of the Indian war, General Massey and thirty men came to Ohio and laid out the town of Chillicothe. Mr. Davis and General McArthur, afterwards governor of Ohio, were employed as hunters for the camp, at Chillicothe, where they came in about 1796. Samuel Davis was married, in Kentucky, to Elizabeth Smith. His son, Asa, was born at Graham station, in Kentucky, a few weeks before they came to Ohio. After the survey of Chillicothe was made, he received a lot in the town, on which he built a house, where he lived one year. At the end of that time he bought land in the Peewee bottoms, where he remained two years. He then moved into Buckskin township, Ross county, where he purchased five hundred acres of land, on which he resided until 1814, clearing and improving his farm. In 1814 he came to Norwich, where he bought three hundred and eighty acres from Mr. Terry, of Highland county, who owned the property. When in Connecticut he learned the silversmith business, but on his settlement in Kentucky worked at blacksmithing and gunsmithing. He started a shop on his land, in Norwich township, where he worked until just before his death, in 1849, hiring the clearing of his farm. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, from Connecticut, and served two years. He was also in the war of 1812, a short time. At the time of his death he was a Revolutionary pensioner. His wife died in 1844. They raised ten children—Asa, Orange, George, Anson, Moses, Buriah, Samuel, James, Elizabeth, and Smith. Elizabeth married Benjamin Sells, and lives in Washington township, near Hayden run. The children all settled in Washington and Norwich townships. Asa lives in Norwich, a short distance south of Hayden run; Samuel and Smith have homes a short distance south of Dublin. Samuel Davis, his son, Asa, and Ebenezer Richards bored two wells, in the river, on Dr. Davis' farm, for the purpose of obtaining salt. After boring to a depth of one hundred feet in each, they gave them up, having passed through the rock. They then went to Delaware county, where they sunk a well over five hundred feet deep, and found a strong white sulphur stream. They were obliged to give up the work, on account of the prevailing sickness of that season, and never again resumed it. The land is now occupied by the State girls' industrial school. Asa Davis settled on the farm with his father after giving up the salt-well. He worked the place, and shortly bought it from his father, on condition, that he furnish each of his brothers with one hundred acres of land. Since that time he has added to his farm, and increased his property. In August, 1879, over eleven thousand dollars of money that he had in Pickley's bank, at Columbus, was stolen from the vault during business hours. In 1845 he married Mrs. Lucy J. McDowell, and has had five children, four of whom are now living. Two daughters are married, and live in the vicinity, and one daughter and a son live at home. Mr. Davis was a soldier in the war of 1812, and now receives a pension on account of his services. He has also received one hundred and sixty acres of land. He is now about eighty-four years of age, and the oldest settler in Norwich township.

A man named Hopper was an early settler on the south bank of Slate run. He had the first cabin north of the three mile cabin, at the State quarries, in Franklinton.

William Armistead emigrated from Virginia to Ohio in 1808, and in 1809 settled a mile below Hayden run, where he bought three hundred acres of land, which he cleared and improved. He was twice married, and raised five children, two of whom live in the township, and one in Kansas. The others are not now living. On his death, Mr. Armistead willed his property to his wife. She soon gave up her claim, and the property was sold to Michael Walton, and the proceeds divided among the children.

Asa Wilcox settled on the river road, on land now owned by David Elliott, in about 1811. He did not make a purchase there, but a number of years later bought land on the Hilliard pike, now owned by Abraham Sells.

Robert Elliott came from Pennsylvania in about 1810, and bought land on the river road, and north of the present location of Wesley church. His wife was a daughter of Daniel Brunk, and by her he had several children. His son, Daniel Elliott, now owns and occupies the home farm.

A Mr. Everett settled on land adjoining Elliott, on the south, in about 1812.

Henry McCracken was an early settler near the present farm of Abraham Sells.

Ephraim Fisher was born in Maryland, and came from there to Jefferson county, Ohio, where he remained some years. In 1814 he, with his father and Elias Pegg, bought six hundred and twenty-five acres of land a mile and three-fourths southeast of Hilliard. In 1816 they moved to Franklinton, where Mr. Pegg finally settled, selling his part of the land in Norwich to Moses Hart, in 1819. In 1818 Mr. Fisher built a cabin on his land, and occupied it. It was a small home, twelve by fourteen feet in size, and with no floor. He split oak clapboards on which to place their bed, and soon made a comfortable home. They came to the country in a large Pennsylvania wagon, drawn by four horses, and brought with them two cows and calves. Their cows and one calf died of murrain, and they were obliged to go two miles through the woods for what milk they used. His son, George Fisher, was then nine years of age. His clothing, when a boy, consisted of buckskin, for many years, until flax could be raised. Ephraim Fisher died in 1838, and willed his property to his children. On the sale of the land, George Fisher bought the property, on which he now lives. Ephraim Fisher was twice married, and has had eleven children, most of whom are now dead. One son lives in Hilliard. George Fisher married Sarah Latimer, and has had eight children, two of whom are now living. The original proprietors of his land were William Price, T. Bentley, and B. Anderson.

Mr. Cutler settled south of Hilliard a mile and a half, as early as 1816, where he bought and improved a farm. He sold to S. Winecup, and he to Daniel O. Roberts. It is now owned by William Roberts. The Cutlers moved to Franklinton after selling their property.

Moses Hart settled north of Ephraim Fisher, in 1819, where he built a cabin and cleared the land; his purchase was made from Elias Pegg. His children numbered six, four sons and two daughters. Moses Hart, jr., his son, now lives on the land, aged about eighty-eight years.

Harmon Groom settled south of Moses Hart, in the same year, and built a cabin and cleared about six acres of land. In 1825, he sold to Hart, and moved into Prairie township.

Martin Miller, and others, leased land west of George Fisher, at that time owned by a man in Kentucky. The property is now owned by Benjamin and Elias Scofield.

Francis Wilcox came to Ohio, from Canada, in 1810, and settled in Franklinton. In about 1812, he moved into the southeast corner of Norwich township, and cleared the land now owned by E. Wilson. About 1820, he bought one hundred acres of land, a mile and a half west of his first settlement, where he died. He deeded his property to his son, Peter, who now occupies the land. He married Tryphena Watts, in 1827, and has one daughter living near Hilliard.

Samuel King came from Pennsylvania to Chillicothe, in about 1800. Afterwards, he bought land in Clinton and Sharon townships, and made his home in Clinton, where he worked in a tannery. Samuel M. King, his son, was born in Clinton, in 1807, and, in 1840, bought fifty acres of land near Hilliard, on which he now lives.

John Laird settled on land south of, and adjoining, the present village of Hilliard, in 1820 or 1821. He improved the land, and lived there until about 1840, when he sold out and moved west.

John Vanschoyck settled next west of John Laird, in 1821. His children settled in the vicinity, and some of them are still living near Hilliard.

Daniel Roberts settled a mile and a half south of Hilliard, about 1823; he had a wife, but no children. Robert, his brother, settled in Washington township, a little later, and, while visiting in Norwich, he died. His son, William, was raised by Daniel Roberts, who left his property to him. The children of William Roberts now live a mile and a half south of Hilliard.

John McCan settled west of Hilliard, in 1821, the same year that Vanschoyck came to the township.

Ezekiel Latimer and wife, with one child, came from Connecticut, in about 1822. They moved with two wagons, drawn by a team of horses and oxen, respectively. Lines Latimer, a cousin of Ezekiel, came at the same time. They bought, together, one hundred acres of land, in the southeast part of the township, now owned by Albert Scringer. Lines sold his share to Ezekiel, after a few years. The widow of Ezekiel Latimer now lives with her daughter, Mrs. George Fisher, aged eighty-four years.

William Watts came from New York, in 1804, and settled two years in Franklin township, where he rented land of Lucas Sullivant. In 1816, he moved into Perry township, then part of Norwich, where he cleared land and made a home, which he deeded to his son. He died in Washington township, where another son lived.

Samuel Paxton settled in Perry, where he married Amy Wilcox, and remained several years. In 1823 they removed to Norwich, where he rented and leased land several years. He finally settled on a lot of fifty acres, given his wife by her father. He lived on the farm near Hilliard, and cleared the land, and died there in 1849, of cholera. His wife and children sold their interest in the property, and the children went to different parts of the country. One daughter lives in Union county. Mr. Paxton lives three miles southeast of Hilliard.

David Thomas settled on the north part of the land now owned by Daniel Roberts, in about 1820 or 1821. He was a batchelor, from Virginia, and his original purchase comprised four hundred acres of land.

David Smiley settled on the river road about the same year, and Daniel D. Lattimer came at the same time.

Edmund Warren emigrated from Connecticut with his father, in 1819. They settled in Athens county, where he married Maria Hyde, in 1830. In 1836, he bought seventy-two and one-half acres of land in the Selden survey, number three thousand and two, a short distance northeast from Hilliard. A clearing of about four acres had been made by Stanton Boland, a renter, previous to his purchase. Isaac Davidson had charge of the land. Mr. Warren has since added to his original purchase, and now has one hundred and ten acres, which he has cleared and improved. Two of his sons now live on the place with him.

Isaac Davidson settled in Norwich in 1832. He bought seven hundred acres of land, but the title proving defective, he lost his first purchase money. The matter was finally settled, and he sold a part of the land to Edmond Warren.

Abraham Sells was born in Franklinton, in 1806. In 1809 his father moved to Washington, and located a mile west of Dublin, on Indian run, where Mr. Sells passed his early days. In about 1840 he came to Norwich, and bought land east of Hilliard, where he now resides. A pioneer association was formed at a grove on his farm, the past summer [1879]. Mr. Sells has a fine grove and a beautiful location for picnic excursions, and intends to fit his grounds for the convenience of such parties. A short distance below the picnic ground is as fine and pure a spring of water as can be found anywhere, and in the river are boats, with a fine slack water for over two miles. This place will soon become a favorite resort for pleasure seekers. The camping-ground of chief Crane, of the Wyandot tribe of Indians, is shown a short distance from the spring.

Jonathan Hommons, Wilkins, Duling, Amos Kidwell, John Hiser, and Smith Doolan, settled in the woods northwest of Hilliard, about 1840, where they made clearings, and improved farms. Some have sold their property, and moved elsewhere, and others remain on their land.

Charles Peyton and family emigrated from Virginia, in 1833. They remained in Zanesville eighteen months, where he worked in a mill. In 1835 they went to Jonathan's creek, in Muskingum county, and in 1842, to Perry county, in both of which places he worked at milling. In 1846 he leased land in the south part of Norwich township, near the Scioto river, and in 1852 bought eighty-seven acres, a mile south of Hilliard, in the woods. He has cleared and improved the land, and now occupies it. His son, James, lives on the farm, a short distance from the home of his parents.

Apollos Rogers came to Ohio from New York State, and bought three hundred acres of land in the Bellfield survey. A small clearing had been made when he came on to occupy the land. He died in 1844, and his property is now owned by his three sons—Marcellus, Martin, and Milton.

Daniel Avery came from Pennsylvania in 1820, and settled in Perry township, near the Scioto river, on land now owned by Mr. Matthews. He remained but about two years, when he moved on land owned by Joshua Davis. From there he went to Worthington, and in about 1829 settled two miles south of Hilliard. In 1834 he went to Illinois. He was a carpenter, and helped to erect many buildings in Norwich. His son, P. S. Avery, lived in Washington township from 1836 to 1840. In the latter year he bought a farm northwest of Hilliard, with a clearing of about fifteen acres, made by Alfred Latham, who had a lease of the land, then owned by J. S. Britton. Mr. Avery has cleared and improved the land.

EVENTS.

The first orchard planted in Norwich was by Samuel Davis, in 1814. He purchased the trees for his orchard from Lucas Sullivant, at Franklinton.

The first burial ground was on land belonging to Daniel Brunk, in the north part of the township. The name of the first person buried there cannot now be ascertained. Since the first ground was opened, many grounds have been used on private lands. One was started at an early date, on the lot belonging to, and adjoining, Wesley M. E. church, and another is located opposite the home of Marcellus Rogers.

About 1833, a saw-mill was erected on the Scioto river, by Samuel Wilcox. A few years later—about 1845—Joseph Corbin built a grist-mill at the same place, which is still in operation. Both mills are now owned, and managed, by Frederick Fishinger.

Dr. Streeter was the first physician who located in Norwich. He was not a regular physician, but practiced medicine in the neighborhood. Dr. Hamilton came to Norwich, about 1846, and remained several years, when he removed to Columbus. Dr. Hood, also, practiced in the township for a time. Dr. W. H. Jewett was the first physician to settle in Hilliard, soon after the village was laid out. Dr. Taggart practiced a short time in Hilliard, after Jewett came. Dr. R. Z. Seeds located at Hilliard, in 1869, and continues in practice there. Dr. Merryman come soon after Dr. Seeds.

The steam saw-mill, at Hilliard, was built by James Ralston and Kirkpatrick, in 1854. It has since changed hands many times, and is now owned by William M. Gill, in trust for J. H. Simpkins.

The warehouse, at Hilliard station, was built by John R. Hilliard, in 1853. Was afterwards owned by P. S. Avery, then by Benjamin Sells, and, at the present time, by Conrad Koehler.

Miskell Saunders was a justice of the peace, in Norwich, in 1833. It is not known in what year he came to the township. His death occurred by a fall from a horse.

The harness used by early settlers was often unique, being, sometimes, composed of hickory withes, bass-wood bark, and moosewood.

Lamps were made by scraping a hole in a turnip, which was filled with grease and a tow wick to burn. The light was never very strong, but the early settlers had no daily papers to read after the day's work was done, and generally were too tired to read, had there been plenty of reading matter.

Wheat was winnowed by swinging sheets, a splint riddle being used. Two men swung the sheet, and another handled the riddle.

A grand squirrel hunt was celebrated in 1830, which lasted two days. Prizes were given for the most scalps produced. Abraham Sells took the first prize, amounting to eighty bushels of corn, he having killed one hundred and fifty squirrels. The second prize was given to Moses Davis, for killing one hundred and forty squirrels, and consisted of forty bushels of corn. Several thousand squirrels were killed during the two days' hunt.

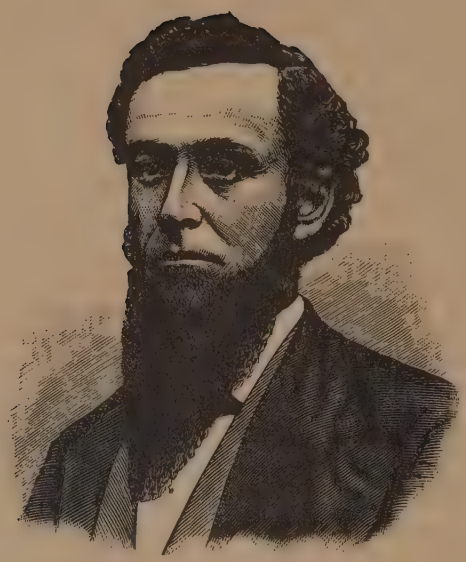
This township has never yet had a town-house or hall, though, at the present time, the trustees, with a committee from the council at Hilliard, are considering the propriety of erecting a suitable town-hall, which will undoubtedly be done very soon. From 1813 to 1820, when Norwich included the southern portion of Perry township, it was entitled to three justices of the peace. From 1820 until 1851 it had but two, and since the latter date it has been allowed three. Among the justices were: Daniel Brunk, in 1813; Thomas Backus and Ebenezer Richards, in 1814; Daniel Brunk and Robert Elliot, in 1816; Amaziah Hutchinson, in 1817; Messrs. Brunk and Elliot again in 1819; Mr. Brunk and John McCan, in 1822; L. L. Latimer and Mr. McCan, again in 1825; John Weeden and George Black, in 1828; David Smiley, in 1830; Miner Pickle, in 1831; Miskell Saunders, in 1833. On the stone over the grave of the latter is the inscription: "He died a christian and a Democrat." While of the former there is a shadow of a suspicion, of the latter there is no doubt. The township officers for 1879, are: John W. Howard, Andrew Huffman, and Daniel Roberts, trustees; W. A. Crum, clerk; J. M. Merryman, treasurer; Jacob Romick, assessor; Orange Sells and William Walton, justices of the peace; John Fisher and George Harper, constables.

SCHOOLS.

The first school in the township was opened in a log building at Smiley's corners, on the river road, and was in operation in about 1814. A special school-district was cut off, in Hilliard, in 1870, although schools had been kept at and near the place for many years previous to that date. In 1878 the brick school-house was condemned as insecure, and was torn down. A new one was erected during the year, which is adapted for four schools, three of which are in operation at this time. Besides the school at Hilliard, the township is well supplied with district-schools, nearly all of which are provided with substantial brick school-houses.

POST-OFFICE.

The first post-office in Norwich township was established in the spring of 1852, at a place called Smiley's Corners. David Smiley was the first postmaster. This office was discontinued in 1854, and the same year an office was established at Hilliard, with John W. Dobyns as postmaster. He remained in charge of the office several years, and was succeeded by James S. Wright. On his death, in 1804, Orange Sells was appointed to the office, which he still holds. It was kept at a private house until Mr. Sells was appointed. He removed it to the warehouse, and railroad station, which was in his charge. The first quarter after he took it, the business of the office doubled, and during the year increased fourfold. In July, 1879, it was made a money-order office.



R. Z. Seeds. A. M. M. D.

DR. R. ZENAS SEEDS

was born in Jackson township, Franklin county, Ohio, January 12, 1845. His parents were Dr. John Seeds and Asenath Seeds (Britton), both of whom were born in the United States, the former in Ohio and the latter in Virginia. When but four years of age his father died, leaving his mother with a family of seven children, himself the youngest. His early life was one of privation and hardship. Until he arrived at the age of fourteen, his education was obtained at the district-school, three miles distant, and was consequently very limited. He spent the winters, from his fourteenth to his eighteenth year, at the Union schools of Mechanicsburg, Champaign county, working on the farm of his uncle, Lewis Britton, during the summer months. He then went to Antioch college, Green county, Ohio, where he finished his literary education in the fall of 1867. His early hopes and aspirations were to be a physician, and when a boy he was always, in mimicry, making "pills and powders." During his college course he had paid particular attention to those branches of study most nearly connected with the science of medicine, and now resolved to adopt that as his profession.

He attended his first course of lectures at Starling Medical college, Columbus, in the winter of 1868–69, and graduated second in a class of seventy-two members, in the winter of 1869–70. He then returned to his adopted home in Hilliard, and to his uncle, James S. Britton, who had always been his best friend in his attempts to obtain an education and prepare himself for his life work, both pecuniarily and by his sound advice.

He was married to Electa Davis, eldest daughter of Asa Davis, esq., and grand-daughter of Samuel Davis, one of Franklin county's first settlers, who was a comrade of ex-governor McArthur, and several times a prisoner of the Indians. Asa Davis when but a boy was in the war of 1812, with "Mad Anthony Wayne," in some of his marches against the hostile savages.

Dr. Seeds was in the war of the Rebellion, although but nineteen years of age. He and an older brother were with General Sherman until after the capture of Kenesaw mountain. His brother, Dr. S. M. Seeds, remained with the army as assistant surgeon of the Thirteenth Ohio volunteer infantry, until the close of the war. In the spring of 1870 Dr. R. Z. Seeds commenced the practice of medicine at his present home, in Hilliard, where he has built up a practice and a character that any person might well be proud of.

Mail was carried by Peter Latimer for many years, between Columbus and Urbana. He always made the journey on horseback.

HILLIARD.

In the fall of 1853, about the time of the building of the Columbus, Piqua & Indiana railroad, John R. Hilliard caused his farm to be surveyed into village lots, and laid out the present village at Hilliard station, which was incorporated in 1869. The first officers of the corporation were: John R. L. Seegur, mayor; A. H. Gray, clerk; W. H. Jewett, J. S. Britton, William Matthews, Nathan Landaker, John Godown, and A. M. A. Forshee, council. An election was held, September 20th, and the new council met on the twenty-ninth of the same month, and were duly qualified to their new offices. A room situated on the corner of Columbia and Center streets was occupied by the council, for a number of years, until in 1878, when a room in the new business block of Orange Sells was leased. The present officers of the village are: Orange Sells, who has been mayor since 1872; Conrad Koehler, R. Z. Seeds, J. P. Landaker, A. M. A. Forshee, T. R. McNorton, and John Scott, council; T. H. Thackery, the present clerk, has held that office since 1872; J. M. Merryman is treasurer, and J. M. Guches, marshal.

CHURCHES.

WESLEY METHODIST CHURCH

was organized, as a class, in Norwich, about 1832. Preaching was had, by local ministers, in Armistead's barn, and in other places, until 1836, when a small frame church was erected, on the site of the present church, a little south of the present residence of D. Elliott, on the river road. In 1850 the frame church was torn down, and a brick building erected. This was blown down, after standing two years, and was then rebuilt. It was again blown down, within a year, and was rebuilt a third time. The early members were: Abner Clapp and family, William Armistead, M. McCracken, —— Morehead, ——Glasscock, and others. Rev. J. D. Smith, a local preacher, was instrumental in putting forward the project of first building a church. The present membership is about forty-five. A Sunday-school of about seventy members is sustained.

ST. JACOB EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH

(German) was organized in the south part of Norwich, near the line of Norwich township, in 1847. Among the first members were: Matthias Fladt, Matthias Spindler, John Koener, and others. A hewed log house was built soon after the church was organized, which was used until 1872, when a substantial brick church edifice was erected, at a cost of five thousand, one hundred dollars. The old log house has been used for some years for a church school, at which reading and writing, German, and the church catechism, are taught by Rev. Henry Horst, the pastor. The church has had three pastors: Rev. Adam Ernst being the first, Rev. H. Bauer, the second, and Rev. Henry Horst, the present pastor, who has been in charge of the congregation during the past seventeen years. The present membership of the church is forty voting members, and about sixty families. The number of scholars in the church school is about forty. This school does not interfere with their attendance at the public schools, but is in addition to that.

A church of the United Brethren was organized at the old log school-house, east of Hilliard, about 1852, but it was continued only a year.

COLWILL METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

was organized in the winter of 1876-7, and a house of worship erected, about two miles southwest of Hilliard. The first members were: John Colwill and wife, Philip Clover and wife, Mr. Harlow and wife, Henry Culp and wife, Harvey Simpkins and wife, and others. A Sunday-school, during the summer and fall, has been sustained two years. Rev. Isaac Mackey, of Hilliard, is pastor of this church.

THE DISCIPLE CHURCH,

at Hilliard, was built about 1853, as a union church, by members of the Christian church and members of the Disciple church. The Christian church was organized the first, and kept its membership together until about 1877, since which time they have not had regular services. The Disciple church was organized two years after the Christian church, or about 1855. The first members were: A. M. A. Forshee and wife, Nathan Landecker and wife, and others. The membership is small. The first members of the Christian church were: Thomas Dobyns, wife and family, Solomon McCullough, and others. But two services are held monthly in this church, the Disciples having preaching once, and the Adventists once, during the month, the services being two weeks apart. A Sunday-school is regularly sustained by the congregations of this church.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH,

at Hilliard, was first organized as a class, in a log school-house, east of the present village of Hilliard, about 1842. Meetings were held there, with local preaching, until about 1853, when the school-house was burned by some persons, who did not wish church services held there. In 1854 the class was divided on the question of building a church, eight of the members being in favor of building near the old site, and seven insisting on erecting a church at Hilliard station. The party in favor of a house of worship at Hilliard circulated a subscription paper, and met with such good success that, in 1854, the church was built. Samuel Crum was one of the most efficient members in erecting the new church, and superintended, and did a great share of the work, of building. The original class consisted of Hosea Britton and family, John Britton and wife, Jacob Moyer, Mr. Doolan, Edmond Warren and wife, Rachel Gray, and others. The members who formed the class at Hilliard were: Samuel Crum and wife, Mrs. Gray and three sons, and Anna Vanschoyck. After the church was built, the class rapidly increased until, in 1876, it numbered over three hundred members. Since that time two independent classes have been formed, outside of the Hilliard church: one called Colwill church, southwest of Hilliard, about two miles, near the line of Brown township, and one at Churchman's, in the western part of Washington township, where a church is being erected —in 1879. The Colwill church is already completed. The present church at Hilliard numbers some two hundred members, under the pastorate of the Rev. Isaac Mackey, who lives in a neat brick parsonage, owned by and adjoining the church. The circuit preachers, when the church was built at Hilliard, were Revs. Archibald Fleming and Bradford Cook. A Sabbath-school, of about one hundred members, is sustained, under the superintendence of Hosea Romick.

SOCIETIES.

Norwich Lodge, No. 385, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was chartered June 25, 1867, by the grand lodge of the State. It was instituted the same date. The charter members were James C. Gray, William Roberts, J. H. Kidwell, W. M. Gill, Moses Latham, P. S. Avery, David Smiley, William H. Jewett, William M. Walton, Daniel Latham, and Henry S. Baldwin. The first officers were: J. H. Kidwell, N. G.; Moses Latham, V. G.; J. C. Gray, F. S.; William Roberts, treasurer; William Gill, P. S.; David Smiley, C.; John T. Jewett, I. G.; Tilghman Grim, O. G.; P. S. Avery, R. S. N. G.; W. M. Walton, L. S. N. G.; W. W. Sells, R. S. V. G.; W. H. Jewett, L. S. V. G.; David Latham, R. S. S.; H. Baldwin, L. S. S. Since its organization the lodge has occupied a rented hall, but some years since it purchased a building lot, on which will be built, at some time in the future, a lodge hall. The lodge has in its possession a small fund in readiness to use for building purposes. The present officers for 1879, are: J. W. Wintringer, N. G.; W. F. Henry, V. G.; David Reese, F. S.; W. M. Gill, P. S.; John Hart, treasurer; T. R. McNorton, W.; A. S. Hager, C.; J. F. Ball, O. G.; John R. Fisher, I. G.; John Hart, R. S. N. G.; A. M. A. Forshee, L. S. N. G.; E. Fisher, R. S. N. G.; George Fisher, L. S. N. G.; J. H. Homon, R. S. S.; N. Ellis, L. S. S.

Avery Lodge, No. 493, Free and Accepted Masons, was chartered August 19, 1873, after working nearly a year under dispensation. The charter members were J. T. Black, William Hatton, J. E. Moling, Edward S. Churchman, R. Z. Seeds, Clark Glover, Alexander Davidson, P. S. Avery, and Henry Culp. The first officers were: J. T. Black, W. M.; R. G. Seeds, S. W.; J. E. Moling, J. W.; The present officers for 1879, are: J. E. Moling, W. M.; Alexander Davidson, S. W.; John Koehler, J. W.; Clark Glover, S. D.; Nathan Scofield, J. D.; W. A. Crum, secretary; John Hart, treasurer; Abraham Orihood, tyler. Before the lodge commenced working, the members and friends of the fraternity subscribed money, and in 1872 they added a second story to the store building of John Westerwiller, which was completed and dedicated as a masonic hall. Meetings are held the first and third Tuesdays in each month.

INDIANS.

The bank of the Scioto, in Norwich township was a favorite camping-ground of the Wyandots. The old chief, Crane, had his camp on land now owned by Abraham Sells, and with members of his band occupied the land at times for some time after the arrival of the first settlers. The river was, at that time, filled with the finest of fish, among them the large yellow salmon; for be it remembered that at that time the land had not been cultivated, and the water of the Scioto was pure and clear, it being fed mainly by springs. This noble fish is long since driven away, and by the damming of the river many other fine fish cannot come to the upper waters of the stream. The forests along the banks, and back into the country, were filled with game, and this was a paradise for the red man.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

MRS. EMULA ROGERS.

The subject of this sketch, Mrs. Emula Rogers, was born in Connecticut, November 22, 1799. Her father and mother were Abner and Mercy Gillett Clapp. When about six years of age, her parents removed to Martinsburg, Lewis county, New York, where she passed her early life, and where she obtained a good education for that early day. She was married, October 12, 1823, to Asa Moore Rogers, by whom she raised three children—Mary, Lester Asa, and Julia E. Her husband died January 2, 1831, and, on September 16, 1835, she was again married. Her choice fell on Apollos Rogers, a brother of her former husband. By him she had two children—twins—to whom they gave the names of Eli and Ela. Mr. Rogers, her husband, had been married previously, and had several children by his first wife. In 1836, with their family, they emigrated to Ohio, arriving in Norwich township, September 29th, of that year. Mr. Rogers bought a farm near the Scioto river, and well toward the southern line of the township, where two of his sons—Marcellus and Milton Rogers—now live. Here he died, September 17, 1840. Mrs. Emula Rogers, his wife, survived him, and died February 9, 1871, aged seventy-one years.

Of her children, Lester A. removed to Grand Rapids, Michigan, where he now lives. Julia E. is living single in California. Mary married John Howard, July 4, 1850, and lives in Norwich township. Their home is about eight miles from Columbus, on the river road.

Mrs. Emula Rogers joined the Methodist Episcopal church at Martinsburg, New York, when about sixteen years of age, and continued in close connection with it to the time of her death. Both of her husbands belonged to the same church. After the death of her second husband, she kept her family together until all but one were married, when she gave up housekeeping, and spent the remainder of her days with her daughter, Mrs. John Howard, in whose home she quietly fell asleep, well prepared, by a consistent christian life, for the call at the last great day.

MRS. EMULA ROGERS.

WILLIAM MERION.

S. S. Quinn

MARION.

Marion is a small, ill-shaped township, almost encircling the city of Columbus. It is bounded, on the north, by Clinton and Mifflin; on the east, by Truro and Madison; on the south, by Hamilton, and on the west, by the city of Columbus and the Scioto river. It was formed February 24, 1873, by order of the county commissioners, as follows:

"That sections one, two, three, four, ten, eleven, twelve, and fractional sections eight, and nine, of township four, range twenty-two, situate in the township of Hamilton, contiguous to the south line of Montgomery township, be, and the same is hereby annexed to said Montgomery township, and the said Montgomery township is erected and constituted a new township, to be called Marion township."

Montgomery was the western township in the Refugee tract, and was organized in 1807. It originally consisted of a part of Liberty township. It was named by Judge Livingston, after his distinguished uncle, General Richard Montgomery, who fell at Quebec. The new township of Marion was named for the family of that name, now residing in it.

NATURAL FEATURES

The township is level. The soil consists largely of clay, although there are some rich bottom lands along Alum Creek. This stream is the largest water course in the township, being a western branch of Big Walnut, and of nearly equal magnitude. It rises in the north-eastern part of Delaware county, and flows in a southerly direction, through the eastern part of this township—marking the eastern limits of the city of Columbus—and unites with Big Walnut some eight miles southeast of the city, in Madison township.

INDIANS,

of the Wyandot tribe, had an encampment, in the early settlement of the township, on Alum creek, just above Colonel Livingston's. They hunted in the surrounding region, and were friendly with the whites. They would, however, occasionally steal a horse from the settlers. One was stolen from John White, which Mrs. White had ridden all the way from Pennsylvania, and William Hamilton lost a horse in the same way. But, with the exception of an occasional theft of this kind, the pioneers of Montgomery suffered no annoyances from the Indians.

NATIVE ANIMALS.

It seems incredible to the present generation, that less than eighty years ago the township, now so highly improved, and skirting a city of over fifty thousand inhabitants, was covered with a dense forest, and inhabited by wild beasts, but such is the fact. Game, of nearly all kinds, was abundant, especially deer, wild turkeys, and smaller game. Bears were somewhat scarce, and we have no reports of any being killed in the township. Wolves were the most annoying, often killing the settlers' sheep, even under the walls of their cabins, and sometimes attacking calves and young cattle. A wolf once attacked a calf belonging to John White, while a social party of the settlers was being held only a short distance away. In 1804 or 1805, William White and William Hamilton shot a large panther, over in Hamilton, after following him one whole night.

EARLY SETTLEMENT.

The first settlements in the township were made along Alum creek, and were commenced about the year 1799. Most of the early settlers came from Mifflin county, Pennsylvania. One the first families that settled in the township was that of David Nelson, sr., who located and lived, for a year or two, south of where Columbus now stands, and then located near the site of the present residence of John J. Nelson. Afterwards, he purchased a section of land in the "Refugee tract," including the homestead now occupied by Mr. Nelson. After occupying a cabin for a number of years, he erected, in 1819, the main part of the present frame house of his grandson, and occupied it until his death. He had several children. Martha was the wife of Judge Livingston, and Nancy was the wife of John Barr, both of whom settled on the creek. Another daughter married a Shannon, and was the first wife of David Taylor. The son, Robert, lived on the corner of Broad street and the Creek road, and David, on the homestead. Four daughters of Robert Nelson are now living: Mrs. Sanderson, in Worthington, Mrs. Dr. McConnell, in Upper Sandusky, the widow of Governor Brough, now temporarily in Europe, and Mrs. James Armstrong, in Wisconsin. David Nelson, jr., married Mary, daughter of Isaac Taylor; he died in 1847, his wife surviving him some two years.

William Hamilton and family were the first occupants of the place on which John Barr afterwards lived. He died in 1802 or 1803, and his was undoubtedly the first death among the pioneers in this township. He had a large family of children, who were bound out to others after their father's death.

George Turner, one of the first settlers, built on the creek where George Emmett now lives. He afterwards bought a quarter-section across the creek, through which Friend street now runs. Only one of the family is now living—Mary Hendren, who lives near Groveport.

William Shaw settled just above the Nelsons, and lived there until his death. A daughter, now the wife of Squire Matt Martin, of Columbus, is the only survivor of the family.

William Reed located on the place next above Shaw. None of the family are now left. The Reeds were the largest land-holders on the creek, and carried on farming extensively, but the last one in the family died in the poor-house.

Among the early settlers, already mentioned, were: John Starr (the older), Nathaniel Hamlin, and John McGown, afterward proprietor of the present site of Columbus.

Andrew Culbertson, about the year 1804, settled in the southwest corner of the township, near where the starch factory now stands.

John White, in 1801, located on the creek, on land then owned by Edward Livingston, now owned by his son, Robert Livingston. His family consisted of his wife and six children, the youngest of whom was George, now living in Marion, and is nearly eighty-two years of age. The mother rode all the way from Mifflin county, Pennsylvania, on horseback. The family arrived in this township on the fourth day of July. After living some three years on the creek, during which he made some improvements, erecting a double log house and clearing about fifteen acres of land, he purchased from Messrs. Mills and Stanberry, fifty acres, where his son, George, now resides. He there built, on nearly the site of the present brick residence of his son, a hewed log house in which he lived until his death, in 1828, at the advanced age of ninety-six years. His wife died in 1840. He was the father of eight children, two of whom died in Pennsylvania. Three are now living, they are: Mrs. Catharine Vining, in Illinois, now over ninety years of age — Susan, unmarried, and George—both living in Marion, aged, respectively, eighty-three and eighty-two, nearly. George married Mary Kilgore, who died January 6, 1873. John White, the father, was a soldier of the Revolutionary war.

Colonel Edward C. Livingston came to this county, from Saratoga county, New York, in 1804. He was the agent for the sale of considerable land in Franklin and Licking counties. In March, 1807, he was married to Martha, daughter of David Nelson, sr., and settled on Alum creek, on half section thirty-four. He erected a frame house on this place, as early as 1808 or 1809—without doubt the first framed dwelling in the township. The old building was consumed by fire a few years since. Judge Livingston was a man of much force of character and native ability, and a worthy descendant of the old and distinguished family of that name in New York. He was elected associate judge of Franklin county in 1821. Mr. Livingston died November 13, 1843, in the sixty-first year of his age, and his wife died August 30, 1855. They had eight children, all of whom, except Angelica, who died at the age of fourteen, lived to maturity. Four are now living, viz: Mrs. David Taylor, in Columbus; Mrs. Elijah Marion and Robert Livingston, in this township, and Mrs. Smith, in Missouri. James, the eldest, was a physician, and practiced in Marion county until his removal to Missouri, where he died. Edward was a resident of this township, where his widow, who was Elizabeth Hawkins before her marriage, now lives. Caroline was twice married: first, to Samuel Wilson, and, after his death, to Dr. John Morrison.

William Mooberry, with his family, consisting of his wife and five children, came to this county, from York county, Pennsylvania, in the year 1806. Mr. Mooberry made his location just below where Joseph Berkey now lives, on Alum creek, purchasing three quarter sections of land. He died there, January 28, 1829, and his wife August 27, 1822. All of their children, with the exception of Alexander, removed to Tazewell county, Illinois, but John is the only one now living there. Alexander Mooberry has been a resident of the township ever since he came into it in 1806. He married, in 1822, Margaret Williams, and settled where Mr. Shoaf now lives. In 1855, he moved to the place he now occupies. His wife died in May, 1872. Mr. Mooberry is now eighty-three years of age.

Thomas Hamilton, son of William Hamilton, previously mentioned, was brought up by David Nelson, after his father's death. He was one of the first children born in Franklin county. He was born in 1798, and continued a resident of the county until his death, in 1863. He was married, in 1824, to Elizabeth Reed, of Pickaway county, and located on the northeast part of the Livingston farm, but afterwards settled where his family now lives. Mrs. Hamilton is still living, and is now aged nearly eighty-one.

William Merion, sr., came from Boston, Massachusetts, about the year 1807, in company with William Palmer, who afterward owned the Yeager property. He was then single, but a year or two after his arrival, he married Sally Waite, who came with her father, Jenks Waite, from Johnstown, New York, in 1806. After residing in Franklinton about a year, he settled on the Chillicothe road, just north of what are now the city limits of Columbus. He owned, in connection with his brother, Nathaniel, and his sister, Mrs. Morrill, some seventeen or eighteen hundred acres of Refugee land, in Montgomery and Truro townships. He died, in 1837, aged fifty, and his wife in 1856, aged sixty-six. Four, of their six children, are now living. William, the oldest, was born in this township (then Montgomery), in 1811, and is the oldest present resident of the township, who was born in it. He located where he now lives, in 1833. The three other surviving children are: Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Davis, and Mrs. Stewart, all living in Columbus. Captain Nathaniel Merion (deceased), was president of the Central bank of Columbus (now Fourth National). He died in June, 1877. George died in 1866.

Moses Morrill, also from Massachusetts, settled at an early date on the Chillicothe road, south of William Merion, sr., his brother-in-law; his residence was that now owned by Mr. Frisbie. His wife was Milly Merion. Mr. Morrill died in 1837, his wife surviving him many years. Two of their children are now living—Mrs. Cookman, in Columbus, and the wife of Colonel Innis, near the starch factory.

Elijah Merion, sr., a brother of William Merion, sr., previously mentioned, came from Boston, Massachusetts, with his wife and four children, in 1816; he located on the half section just east of where his son, Elijah now lives, and resided there until his death, in 1865. He was born December 20, 1779, and was, consequently, at the time of his death, eighty-six years of age; his wife, who survived him, was, at her death, about the same age. Their four children are still living—Calvin, the eldest, aged seventy-eight, residing near Peoria, Illinois, Mrs. Flannagan and Mrs. Lydia Mooberry, also in Illinois, and Elijah, in this township. He married Adaline, daughter of Judge Livingston.

Adam Earhart, with his family, came from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, in 1818, and settled where Philo Watkins now lives, in this township, then Hamilton, purchasing eighty acres of land. After living there a number of years, and making considerable improvement, he removed to Alum creek, across from Eberly's mills. He bought there eighty acres of land, and resided upon it till 1840, when he purchased, and removed to, the farm now owned and occupied by his son, John H. He died January 3, 1844, and his wife, February 18, 1869. They had a family of eleven children, seven of whom survive, as follows: Josiah Irvin, living in Bloomfield, Iowa; John H., in this township, on the old homestead—he is now serving his third term as director of county infirmary, and has been assessor of the township for many years; Mrs. White, widow of George White, in Columbus; Maxwell K., in Groveport; Isabella, with her brother, John H.; Susannah, wife of John Hawthorn, in Columbus, and Edmiston, in this township. George H., deceased, was elected sheriff of the county, in 1868, but died before his term expired.

David Aultman has resided where he now lives since 1833. His father, William Aultman, emigrated from Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, to Ohio, and after residing a number of years in Columbiana county, and afterwards, a short time, at Lancaster, settled in Columbus, in 1812. He was one of the first residents of that now thriving city, there being but one house there when he bought his lot, at the public sale, and High street was merely cut out. David Aultman was born in Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, in 1801, married Elizabeth Otstotts, in 1829, and lived in Columbus until 1833, when he removed to Montgomery, now Marion, township.

Jacob Hare came from Ross county, about the year 1812, and first located on the Scioto river, a mile south of Columbus, and afterwards moved into Columbus, where he resided many years, during which time he was engaged in wagoning from that place to Chillicothe. He finally purchased the fifty acres now owned by his son, B. F. Hare. He died in Columbus. Besides the son mentioned, several children live in the west.

John Wallace came from Pennsylvania, in 1813, and settled near Columbus, where he purchased one hundred and fifty acres of land. He married Betsey Andrews, from Massachusetts, in 1817, and raised a family of two sons and two daughters. The youngest son died at the age of fifteen. The other married, and lived in Delaware county. The daughter, Mary, became the wife of John Bullen, now living in the south part of Truro township, whom she married, in 1843, and Elizabeth married, in 1835, David Handley, and lives in this township.

Colonel Frankenberg, still living in this township, in the eighty-fourth year of his age, emigrated from Hanover, Germany, to this country, in 1833. After a residence of about six months in Columbus, he purchased half a section, where he now lives. In 1834, he married Dorothy Frankenberg, his cousin, who came from Germany the same year. Colonel Frankenberg assisted, in 1814, in driving Napoleon back into France, being a lieutenant of artillery. His military title is derived from the fact that he was, in the old militia days, a colonel of militia in this State.

Herman Ochs settled where his son, Gustavus, now lives, about the year 1835; he came from Germany, in 1832, and bought first in Missouri, but the title of his land proving defective, he lost the whole amount of his investment. His first wife, who was the mother of his two children, was, before marriage, Matilda Hinthe, who came from Germany in the same ship with the Frankenbergs. Their children were: Gustavus, who occupies the homestead, and a daughter (now deceased), who was the wife of Henry Mitthoff, of Columbus.

In 1812, David Nelson and Colonel Livingston erected the first frame barns in the township. The buildings were both quite large, that of Nelson's being thirty by sixty feet. There were not enough settlers to raise it, and a part of the frame fell down. A company of soldiers, at Franklinton, were sent for, who came and helped to put up the structure. The barn of Colonel Livingston now stands on the farm of George White, and is still, apparently, as good as ever. Mr. White says he would rather have the old structure now than any built now-a-days.

THE FIRST SCHOOL.

According to the recollection of Mr. David Taylor, the first school was kept in a cabin on the old Bartholomew farm, in 1812. The teacher was a lady, but her name cannot now be remembered. A frame school house was built on the Morrill farm as early as 1822 or 1823, in which the first school was taught by a male teacher by the name of Christy.

CAPITAL UNIVERSITY.

This institution was founded in the year 1850. It is under the control of the Evangelical Lutheran church, as represented by the joint synod of Ohio. It is connected with an older institution of learning—the "German Evangelical Lutheran seminary of the Joint Synod of Ohio"—but retains, however, an independent organization. Since 1853, the college occupied the old Capital university building (where the Park hotel now stands), in the northern part of the city of Columbus, until a few years ago, when a ten acre lot, just east of Alum creek, on the old National road, being presented to the institution, the old college building was disposed of, and a new and greatly-improved edifice was erected on the new location. The university is distant about three miles east of the center of the city, and is easy of access, a street railway being operated to within a mile of it. A commodious boarding-hall is built in the immediate vicinity of the college, which, together with the residences of the professors, and a neat church, now approaching completion, gives to the location a lively and pleasant appearance. It forms, in fact, a pleasant little suburb of the city, presenting, however, all the advantages of a quiet rural life.

The university building is sixty by one hundred and seventy feet in size, and affords ample accommodations for students, lecture-rooms, society-halls, and everything necessary to such an institution. There are, at the present time, seventy-six students in attendance. The faculty consists of Rev. Wm. F. Lehmann, president and professor of German language and literature; Rev. E. Schmid, A. M., secretary and professor of Greek and history; Rev. M. Loy, A. M., professor of mental and moral sciences; Rev. C. H. L. Schnette, A. M., professor of mathematics; Rev. Theo. Mees, professor of Hebrew and principal of the preparatory department; Rev. C. A. Frank, professor of Latin.

CHURCHES.

A frame meeting-house was erected many years ago—and is still standing—on the old Mooberry farm, now owned by Mr. Shoaf. It was used a number of years by the Presbyterians, the Rev. Dr. Hoge being the first preacher. The erection of the Evangelical Lutheran church, across the road from Capital university, was commenced in 1873, and at this writing is not fully completed. It is a neat brick edifice, and will cost ten thousand dollars. The church society was organized in 1878, by the Revs. W. F. Lehmann and C. A. Frank, of the university. The membership is now about fifty.

MILLS.

The first mill on Alum creek, in this township, was a saw-mill erected by David Nelson, the elder, about the year 1820, where the Nelson grist-mill now stands. It was run for many years, when it was removed and the grist-mill, erected by David Nelson, jr., or rather the back part of the mill was then erected, the front part having been built afterward. The mill was weather-boarded with walnut, and much of the inside work consisted of the same material. Black walnut timber was very abundant in the township, in former years. The mill still remains in the family.

The grist-mill of Samuel Eberly, located on Alum creek, in the southeast part of the township, was built by his father, Jacob Eberly, about forty years ago. He established at the same place, before the erection of the grist-mill, a saw-mill and a still-house, of which Adam Earhart was the builder.

STARCH FACTORY.

In 1843, Messrs. C. Colgate and Julius J. Wood established the starch factory south of Columbus. In 1846, Colgate disposed of his interest to Sumner Clark, and the business was continued by Clark & Wood until 1849, when Wood bought out Clark's interest, and the business was carried on by Mr. Wood alone, until the first of March, 1878, when a stock company, with a capital of one hundred thousand dollars, and Mr. Wood as president, was organized. In 1852, the establishment was destroyed by fire, but was soon after rebuilt. The factory uses five hundred bushels of corn a day, and gives employment to one hundred hands.

THE REVOLVING SCRAPER COMPANY, in the northeast part of the city, was organized December 11, 1873, with a capital of fifty thousand dollars. The officers chosen at that time were: Theodore Leonard, president; James Watson, vice-president; F. A. Jacobs, secretary and treasurer; Addison Watson, superintendent. The present officers are as follows: James Kilbourne, president; W. M. Kurtz, secretary; Otway Watson, treasurer. The company are doing an extensive business in the manufacture of scrapers, plows, and wheel-barrows, giving employment to a large number of hands.

COUNTY CHILDREN'S HOME.

This institution is located in this township, and was founded in the spring of 1878. The home comprises thirty-two acres of ground, which were purchased by the county commissioner, of B. W. Rees, at a cost of fifteen thousand dollars. The building, which, at this writing, is not yet completed, is a very large brick structure, erected by Messrs. Johnson & Kremer, architects, of Columbus. It will cost, when finished, about forty-five thousand dollars, and will furnish accommodation for over three hundred children. The home is expected to be ready for occupation about the middle of December, when the children now at the Home for the Friendless, on East Friend street, will be turned over to the county, and placed in the new institution. October 31, 1879, the county commissioner appointed J. H. Outhwaite, Isaac Eberly and William E. Horn, trustees of the children's home, the appointments to date from March 1, 1880, and to be for one, two, and three years. At this writing, a superintendent for the institution has not been appointed.

TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.*

The first election for township officers, after the organization of the new township of Marion, was held in the spring of 1873, at Circle's school-house, when the following officers were chosen: John J. Nelson, clerk; Philo B. Watkins, Robert N. Livingston, and —— Dague, trustees; Samuel Eberly, treasurer; John H. Earhart, assessor. The present township officers are as follows: Robert N. Livingston, clerk; George E. Roberts, John A. Becker, and —— Beidleman, trustees; George W. Cuffaloo, justice of the peace; Theodore Leonard, treasurer; John H. Earhart, assessor.

* Columbus was laid out in 1812, and nearly all events, worthy of note in the township, aside from those mentioned, are associated with the city.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

THE MERION FAMILY.

In searching for the early history of the Merion family, we find that Nathaniel Merion, sr., of the town of Dorchester, Massachusetts, was married to Thankful Withrington, in 1749. The fruits of this union were two sons and five daughters. William, the second son, joined Washington's army during the war of Independence, was taken prisoner by the British, and died in New York city. Nathaniel, the eldest son, married Lydia Gay, daughter of David Gay, and granddaughter of George Talbot, on the nineteenth of December, 1776. They raised eight children, as follows: Millie, Elijah, Mary, Lydia, William, Nathaniel, Hanna, and David.

William Merion, son of Nathaniel Merion, was born in Dorchester, Massachusetts, May 9, 1787. His early life was passed in the home of his birth, and before he became of age, in connection with two brothers and one sister, he purchased eighteen hundred acres of land lying in the Refugee tract, in Franklin county, Ohio, to which place he emigrated in about 1808. He first settled in Franklinton, where he followed the business of carpenter and builder for a year or two. On February 14, 1809, he was married to Sally Wait, who came, with her parents, from New York, in 1806. They remained in Franklinton about a year after marriage, he still following his business of carpenter. They then settled on his land, but a few rods south of the present city limits, on High street, at that time an unbroken forest. Here, with an indomitable will and sturdy perseverance, they hewed a home out of the wilderness, and became among the first pioneers of Columbus. To them were born seven children—three sons and four daughters—of whom William Merion, of Marion township; Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Davis, and Mrs. Stewart, of Columbus, are the only survivors.

William Merion, jr., was born in the new home, on High street, September 10, 1811. On January 24, 1833, he was married to Catharine Clickenger, by whom he had nine children. Mrs. Merion died June 20, 1857, and on the twenty-eighth of October, 1858, he was again married, to Mrs. Martha Sheldon, a daughter of James Uncles, who was an early pioneer in Columbus. They have had three children, but one of whom is now living. The children of William Merion now living are: Charles, Henry, Oliver, William, Levi, James, and Edwin, all of whom reside in the vicinity, and three of them on the home farm.

Mr. Merion, whose portrait appears on another page of this work, is a man of strong convictions and steadfast purpose, and what he believes to be right and just, he will strongly maintain. As one of the original stockholders of the Columbus and Groveport turnpike, he was early made one of the directors, and for the past thirty years has been treasurer of the company. While always true to the principles of the Republican party, he has never been a place-seeker, though he has been nominated by his friends for county office, and such was his known integrity of character, that he received the full party vote, though in a hopeless race. When the township was known as Montgomery, he served a number of years as trustee, and when the name was changed he proposed to the commissioners that it be called after the name of his father, which was done without a dissenting voice, though the name was spelled with a change of one letter, making it Marion. He has also been a prominent member of the Franklin County Pioneer association since its organization, and for several years has been its treasurer.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS AT COLUMBUS, OHIO.

HISTORY OF FRANKLIN COUNTY.

COLUMBUS.

PREFATORY.

The existence of a city proves that the human species belongs in natural history, to the class of animals known as gregarious. Perhaps a Darwinian might say that men come honestly by this characteristic; since the apes, their putative ancestors, lived together in flocks, long before men lived at all.

But the gregariousness of man, strikingly typified as it is by that of many of the lower species, yet contains elements of which no trace or shadow can be found in the habits of any other animals. The city of modern times is an outgrowth of the instinct of self-improvement, which is a peculiar characteristic of the human race. No other animals manifest the least disposition to improve upon the condition of their progenitors. Some of the feathered tribes, probably, approach nearest to men in their gregarious habits—especially in their modes of architecture. The swallows, for instance, build their nests in large numbers contiguous to one another, for society and protection—each nest accommodating but a single family. The construction of their dwellings exhibits skill and forethought; and the instinct which guides them in their operations is, in many respects, hardly distinguishable from human reason. But they do not manifest the least tendency to improve, or even to change. As far back as our knowledge of the species extends, they have built their nests in precisely the same fashion; and there is no reason to suppose that they will ever build them in any other.

It is true that the nests of nearly, if not quite, all species of birds, are built solely for the convenience of propagation; and even when new ones are not constructed every year, the old ones are occupied but temporarily, from year to year. The remarks made above, however, apply with equal force to those animals, whether gregarious or solitary, which construct permanent dwellings for shelter and protection. Their mode of architecture is neither taught by one generation to another, nor has it ever undergone, so far as can be ascertained, the least change since the art, by whatever means, was first communicated to the species.

The abodes of civilized men, on the other hand, are built only by those who have been carefully taught the art of building; and their modes of architecture are constantly changing. Whether or not barbarism was the primal condition of the race, or a deterioration from a better and happier state, it is certain that what we now call civilization is the result of gradual improvements upon a state of barbarism.

Neither state, the barbarous nor the civilized, can properly be predicated of brute animals; since both alike presuppose a capacity for self-improvement, in which brutes (as we have said) are obviously deficient. The habits of brute animals (like those of plants) may be changed by domestication, which results from an external force brought to bear upon them by the dominant race —a change which, when left to themselves, they have no power to perpetuate and transmit to their descendants. But civilization is the result of internal moral and spiritual forces, of whose influence brutes are no more susceptible than plants themselves. When, therefore, Sir Charles Lubbock speaks of "the present state of civilization among ants," unless his language is intentionally humorous, it must be regarded as absurd and preposterous.

A modern dwelling—especially a suburban villa, with "all the modern improvements"—is an epitome of modern civilization. The highest achievements of human skill and ingenuity in the practical sciences, in the mechanical and decorative arts, are embodied in its erection and ornamentation, and in filling it with all the appliances of comfort and convenience, of elegance and beauty. Its grounds, under the magic hand of that double artist, the landscape gardener, become a work of art-in-nature, where the essential elements of picture and sculpture blend in a wonderful harmony. The science of architecture which gives it beauty of form and durability of structure, is one of the sublimest outgrowths of man's desire for immortality. To the same and kindred desires, which mark man as a spiritual being, are to be attributed all the attractions of painting and statuary, of music and literature, with which its interior abounds. The parental authority and the filial obedience which obtain within its precincts, are the germs of all human government and loyalty. And the virtues—and, alas! the vices, too—which spring up in those precincts, become, when multiplied by millions of other homes, and modified by contact with the various forms of social life, the characteristics of the country and of the age.

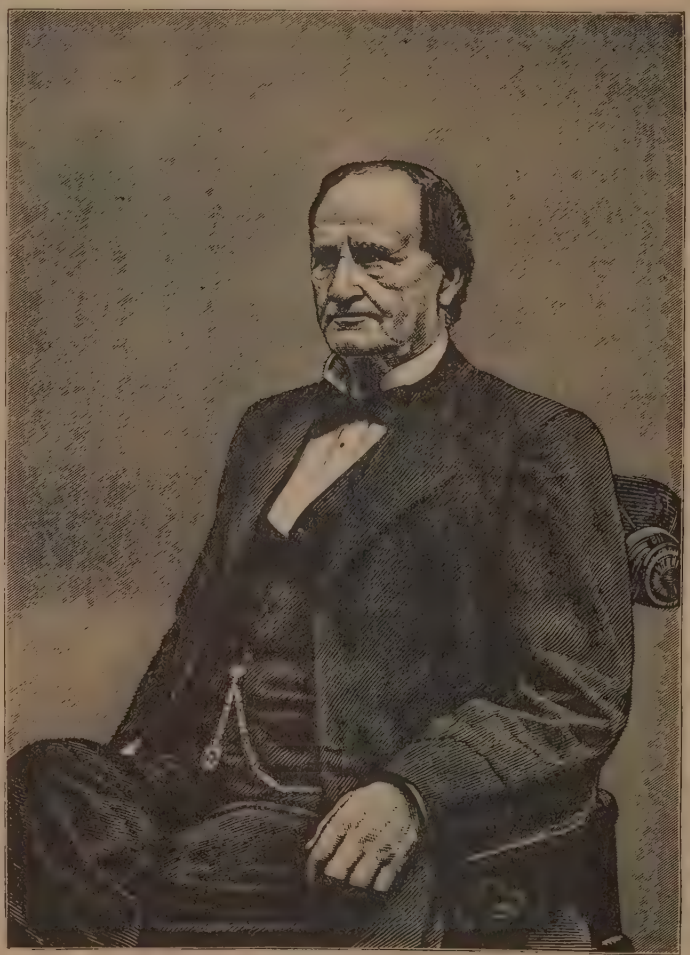
It is obvious that the history of such a dwelling, and all that legitimately belongs to it, would fill many volumes, and occupy the mind and pen of the readiest historian through the longest lifetime. What, then, shall we say of the history of a city like Columbus, which contains thousands of dwellings properly ranking with the one we have briefly described, and a much larger number of an inferior and descending rank, terminating in the cabin of extreme poverty? In the history of a city, it is obvious that very little can be said of its individual and domestic life. It is only where these come in contact, or become coincident, with some of its organized forms of public life—in pecuniary, industrial, political, military, benevolent, religious, educational, or social affairs—that they can be mentioned at all. These various interests must, for the most part, furnish the material of which our history is to be composed. But when we reflect how ramified each of these interests has become, and over how great a length of time the history of nearly all its branches extends, we shall perceive that the difficulty will not be to find material for our work, but to select judiciously from the superbundant material which will be offered to our hands.

Take the religious interest, as an example. This is represented by some forty-three church organizations, several of which have been in existence over half a century. A full history of every one of these bodies, such as its minister might prepare to be preserved by his parishioners, would fill a large volume. The same may be said of the State intitutions located here. A complete history of each, with the legislative, and other documents pertaining thereto, would occupy more space in our work than we can possibly spare for the entire city history.

But while the bulk of our history, compared with the mass of material accessible, must necessarily be parvum e multo, we trust that the number of interesting facts recorded, and the amount of useful information presented, will justly entitle it to be called multum in parvo.

DAVID TAYLOR

was born in the town of Truro, in the Province of Nova Scotia, on the twenty-fourth day of July, 1801. His ancestors were Puritans. Matthew Taylor, his great-grandfather, emigrated from near Londonderry, Ireland, in 1721, and settled in Londonderry (now Derry), New Hampshire, in 1722. The emigrants who settled that town—of which Matthew Taylor was one—were Presbyterians of the John Knox school, and are called Scotch-Irish, being the descendants of a colony which migrated from Argyleshire, in Scotland, and settled in the province of Ulster, in the north of Ireland, about the year 1612. Matthew Taylor was the father of six sons and two daughters. His second son, Matthew, was born in Londonderry, New Hampshire, October 30, 1727. He married Miss Archibald, of Londonderry, and had six sons and two daughters born to that marriage, the birth of Robert, the fourth son, being April 11, 1759.



Soon after the "old French war" and the evacuation of the province of Nova Scotia, by the French, about the year 1763, Matthew Taylor, with a number of other familes, moved from New Hampshire to Nova Scotia, and settled in the town of Truro, at the head of the bay of Fundy. At this time Robert was in his infancy. On December 6, 1781, he was married to Mehetabel Wilson, and had born to that marriage four sons and several daughters. The oldest son, Abiather Vinton, was born March 25, 1783. The second son, Matthew, was born June 18, 1785. The third son, James, was born November 25, 1795, and the fourth son, David, the subject of this sketch, was born on the twenty-fourth day of July, 1801.

In the autum of the year 1805, Robert Taylor came to Ohio with his family and settled in Chillicothe. Prior to leaving Nova Scotia he had purchased some lands in what is now Truro township, Franklin county, and in the summer of 1808, while living in Chillicothe, he determined to remove to said lands, and in that year built thereon the first frame house ever erected in the eastern part of the county. David, then seven years of age, assisted the workmen in the construction of the house, living with them in camp while the work was going on. In the spring of 1809 Robert Taylor removed with his family into the new house, where he resided until March 28, 1828, when he died.

David Taylor commenced business for himself when twenty years of age. His first adventures were in stock. From 1820 to 1827 he was very active in this business, collecting large herds in Ohio and driving the same to the eastern markets. During this period he went "over the mountains," as it was then called, with stock eighteen times, and was successful in almost every venture. He continued to deal extensively in stock for many years, but after about 1827 he adopted the policy of collecting stock and preparing it for the eastern market, but selling at home. It was only when he failed to secure a satisfactory purchaser at home that he drove his stock to market. In the meantime he invested the gains of his enterprise in lands which were brought into cultivation as fast as it could profitably be done.

In 1850 he purchased a large tract of land, then known as the Brien section. It consisted of the southwest quarter of Jefferson township, Franklin county, and contained over four thousand acres of land. This he subdivided into tracts of from fifty to one hundred and sixty acres and sold a considerable portion of it, reserving for himself such portions as best suited his purpose. This transaction added materially to his fortune.

In the year 1826 he erected a house and established his home on the west bank of Walnut creek, a short distance north from his father's old homestead. Here he resided until 1843, when he constructed a commodious dwelling house on his farm, on the National road, near Walnut creek, where he resided until March 1858, when he removed to his present residence, on Broad street, in the city of Columbus. Since that time he has made no great exertion in business affairs, but has found such employment as he desired in watching over and caring for his estate, and in performing his duties in respect to such public trusts as have, from time to time, been imposed upon him.

He has always taken an active interest in the development of the agricultural interest of the State. He was one of the founders of the Franklin County Agricultural Society, and was president of that organization for the years 1857, 1858 and 1870.

In 1861 he was elected as one of the members of the State board of agriculture, for the State of Ohio, and was twice re-elected, serving, in all, six years. From 1862 to 1866 he was the treasurer of that organization, and on his retirement so satisfactorily had he performed his duties in that respect that a suitable testimonial was voted him.

In early life he had considerable taste for military affairs, and for many years was an active member of a then famous mounted company, called the Franklin Dragoons. This company had served through the war of 1812, under Captain Joseph Vance, and for many years after that war the company organization kept up. Abram McDowell succeeded Captain Vance in command of the company, and he was succeeded by Robert Brotherton, and he by Joseph McIlvain, and he by Philo H. Olmsted, and he by David Taylor, who was elected captain in 1824, and served in that capacity for three years.

He was first married in September, 1826, to Nancy T. Nelson, by whom he had two children born—Eliza, who was married to Samuel Sharp, now living in Chicago, and Robert N., now living as Upper Sandusky.

In July, 1831, he was married to Margaret Shannon, who died soon after her marriage, and in May, 1836, he was married to Margaret Livingston, oldest daughter of Judge Edward Livingston. Six children have been born to this marriage—David, Edward L., Mary C., Henry C., Martha, wife of Samuel Lee, of Philadelphia, and Margaret L., all of whom are now living.

COLUMBUS.

FRANKLINTON—THE PREDECESSOR AND ONE OF THE COMPONENTS OF COLUMBUS.

In writing the biography of a celebrated man, it is common to begin with an account of his ancestry. And so, in writing a history of Columbus, it is proper to commence with that of Franklinton; not only because its early founders were mostly Franklintonians, but because the older town has become part and parcel of the younger. Saturn, it is said, had the bad habit of devouring his own progeny. Columbus, on the other hand, without seeming to be aware that it was a very bad thing to do, has swallowed up its progenitor.

Franklinton was the first settlement in the territory now composing the county of Franklin, and was laid out six years before said county was set off from that of Ross—i. e., in the month of August, 1797. Its founder and proprietor was Lucas Sullivant, a native of Kentucky, who came to this region about a year previous to the date just mentioned, being engaged in surveying land and locating land warrants. To stimulate the growth of his town, he set apart the lots on "Gift street" as donations to actual settlers. The new town grew apace. The following names are recorded as among those of the first settlers: Joseph Dixon, George Skidmore, John Brickell, Robert Armstrong, Jeremiah Armstrong, William Domigan, James Marshall, the Dearduffs, the McElvains, the Sells, John Lisle and family, William Fleming, Robert Balentine, Jacob Grubb, Benjamin White, Jacob Overdier, Arthur O'Harra, Joseph Foos, John Blair and John Dill, the latter from York county, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Sullivant married, about the year 1801, and became himself a settler and householder in this new town. Soon after him, Lyne Starling and Robert Russell came, and, about the same time, Robert Culbertson arrived from Shippensburg, Pennsylvania, with a numerous family of sons and daughters, some of them single, and others married and bringing their families. Biographical sketches of these settlers, so far as their history is known, will be given elsewhere.

The rude simplicity in which these first settlers lived, may be learned, not only from the fact that they were compelled to make Indian corn their principal diet, but also from the expedients to which they had to resort in order to reduce it to an edible condition. "The people," says Martin, "constructed a kind of hand-mill, upon which they generally ground their corn. A horse-mill was then resorted to and kept up for some time. Some pounded their corn, or boiled it; and occasionally a trip was made to the Chillicothe mill,"—a trip of nearly fifty miles, on horseback, through the wilderness.

It was a year or more after the first settlement was made, that Mr. James Scott, who must have been a pretty courageous business man, ventured upon the business of merchandising; and although his store is represented as having been a rather small concern, it nevertheless "added much to the convenience of the settlers." Some four or five years later, another village store, somewhat more pretentious, perhaps, was opened by Robert Russell, esq., who afterwards became a well-known business man in Columbus.

In those early days, all the central and southern portions of Ohio were very sickly, and few more so than the settlement at "the forks of the Scioto." This was very discouraging to the settlers. Some of them sold their lands, or other property, abandoned the country, and moved back to the old settlements; and many others, during the more sickly seasons, would fully resolve to do so. But when health returned, and they were enabled to look with less jaundiced eyes upon the present advantages and future prospects of the country, they would change their minds and determine to cling to their new homes.

And besides, lengthy as was the sick roll, the death rate was hardly ever higher, often not so high, as at the east. The prevailing disease was fever and ague, which seldom kills, however much it may vex and worry. So a great majority of the settlers gradually "got used to it," and finally came to think and speak of it with a sort of contempt, and to regard it as "no great shakes, after all."

It is worthy of note, in this relation—as showing the error of those who look upon fever and ague as almost certain to undermine the constitution and shorten the days of its victims—that there are few, if any, portions of the country, east or west, in which may be found more octogenarians still vigorous in mind and body, than in Franklin and Pickaway counties. Of course very few of these octogenarians were born here; but, almost without exception, they came here in early life, passed through all the hardships and perils incident to a new and unsettled country (fever and ague included), and, amidst them all, reared families of children who are now men and women as vigorous as themselves. We would not advise our friends to settle in malarial districts. But if, in the providence of God, they find themselves there, and shaking with the ague, we think it about as prudent to stay it out and shake it off, as to try to run away from it.

For several years after Franklinton was first settled, there was no post-office nearer than Chillicothe; and, when opportunities did not offer to send by persons going on business, the people of the village were in the habit of raising money by contribution, and employing a man to carry their letters to be mailed to friends far away, and to bring back letters from them, as well as papers containing the current news from the outside world. Colonel Andrew McElvain, for many years a prominent citizen of Franklin county, was, when a boy of but thirteen years old, the first regular mail carrier between Chilicothe and Franklinton, after the establishment of the post-office at the latter place. This office was established in 1805, and the postmasters who served it, during its continuance, were, in the order of their appointment, as follows: Adam Hosack, appointed in 1805; Henry Brown, in 1811; Joseph Grate, in 1812; James B. Gardiner, in 1813; Jacob Keller, in 1815; Joseph McDowell, in 1819; William Lusk, in 1820; and W. Risley, in 1831. A few years after Mr. Risley's appointment, the office at Franklinton was discontinued, the one at Columbus being considered sufficient for the convenience of the people.

Franklinton was made the county seat from the time of the organization of the county, until 1824, when the county seat was removed to Columbus. The courts were held in hired rooms till 1808, when a brick court house was erected, Lucas Sullivant being the contractor. A new jail, of the same material, was built about the same time. The first jail was built of logs. Tradition has handed down no accounts of a county-seat war, such as has often been waged —on the one hand to resist removal, and, on the other, to effect it, vi et armis, if necessary. We may, therefore, believe that the doughty knights of Franklinton properly regarded discretion as the better part of valor, and that, consequently, no blood was shed, nor bones broken, on either side.

From 1805 to 1812, a number of young men located in Franklinton, who grew up with the county and became wealthy and conspicuous. Among these, were: Gustavus Swan, R. W. McCoy, Dr. L. Goodale, Dr. S. Parsons, Francis Stewart, Samuel Barr, Henry Brown, Orris Parrish, and Ralph Osborn, while a number of others passed off the stage before they had acquired fortunes or public distinction, and have mainly dropped out of public view. Such biographical sketches of those named above, as can be made up of existing memoranda, will be given elsewhere.

The time of greatest business prosperity in Franklinton, was during the last war with Great Britain, from 1812 to 1815, inclusive. The "ill wind" of war always "blows good" to certain favored localities; and such a locality was Franklinton, during the years above mentioned. Great fears, however, were felt of depredations by the British and Indians, after the surrender of Hull, at Detroit, in August 1812. These fears were not without foundation; for Franklin county was then on the frontier, and the whole Sandusky and Maumee country was held by hostile Indians. False alarms were frequently given; and a few families, whose circumstances permitted, left the country for a place of safety. The governor, however, soon ordered out the militia en masse, and the fears were quieted. Franklinton became the headquarters of the northwestern army, under General Harrison. Two or three thousand troops were sometimes collected there; but they were constantly coming and going, so that, at other times, there would be few, or none, except the officers in the commissary department, who were actively employed in collecting and sending forward provisions and forage for the army. During this time all the productions of the country met with a ready sale in cash, and at high prices; and almost every body had plenty of money. But after peace was concluded, and the profuse expenditure of money, which characterized the war, had ceased, the hard times returned, and Franklinton began to experience all the inconveniences of a financial revulsion. The pressure was probably the greatest during the years from 1819 to 1823. All agricultural products fell back to the old prices, or even lower—pork, from four dollars per hundred to one dollar and a half; flour, from four dollars per hundred to one dollar, and other products in the same ratio; and even at that rate the sales were very dull. Real estate also fell to about one fourth of its price during the war; and a large portion of the transactions were at forced sales—a hundred parcels of land being sometimes included in one advertisement of the sheriff. Rigid economy now became the rule among all ranks of society; and the change which took place in modes of living is graphically depicted in this short sentence from Martin's history: "The wealthiest families used rye coffee; and the most distinguished public men dressed in blue linsey pantaloons."

Among the memorable events that occurred at Franklinton, during the war, was the execution of a soldier, under the sentence of a court martial, for deserting and threatening the life of his captain. The soldier's name was Wm. Fish, and he was shot in June, 1813. The execution is described as "an awful scene." Three others were condemned to die at the same time, but were pardoned by General Harrison. The last one that received his pardon, was, before it was announced, conducted to his coffin, at the same time with Fish; the cap was placed over his eyes, and he remained in that situation till his companion was shot. Then his pardon was read to him. The revulsion of feeling which he must have experienced cannot be described—nor even imagined.

In 1817, Mr. Wm. Lusk, a teacher, and at one time postmaster, in Franklinton, commenced the publication of an annual, entitled, The Ohio Register and Western Calendar, which contained, besides an almanac, a list of State and county officers, with various items of statistical information. In this register, for 1821, he thus speaks of the old seat of government of Franklin county:

"Franklinton, the county seat, contains a post-office, a store, three taverns, a common school, and an academy, in which are taught English grammar, geography, book-keeping, double and single entry — mensuration, geometry, trigonometry, plane and spherical surveying, navigation, algebra, and astronomy."

If any persons wonder why Mr. Lusk gives to a description of the "academy" more than twice the space given to all the other business interests of the town, when they learn that that was his peculiar institution, they will probably have no difficulty in accounting for the "milk in the cocoanut."

In 1815 or 1816, Mr. Lucas Sullivant, having obtained a charter from the legislature, built a toll-bridge across the Scioto, on the road leading from Columbus to Franklinton. The bridge started from the east side of the river, nearly at the same point with the present Broad street bridge; but, running more directly across, it reached the other side several rods lower down, and a new road was opened thence across the prairie to Franklinton, and passed through the town one square further south than the old road, which followed the line of the present street. This change gave general dissatisfaction to the property-owners on the old street. The bridge stood eight or ten years, when, some of the timbers becoming rotten, it fell. It was then rebuilt in the same position with the present bridge, and the main road through Franklinton was restored to its former position.

This toll-bridge became the property of Joseph Sullivant, on the death of his father. And when the National road was being built (about the year 1832), the superintendent agreed to erect a new bridge, at the expense of the government, provided Mr. Sullivant's right should be extinguished. Whereupon the citizens raised, by contributions, eight thousand dollars, and the county gave two thousand dollars more, making ten thousand dollars, which was paid to Mr. Sullivant for his right; after which the present substantial structure was erected, as a part of the National road.

Although there was nothing like a "county-seat war," either at the time of the removal, or at any time previous; yet it is not to be supposed that the Franklintonians gave up their chief possession, and distinction, without some opposition. The removal was agitated for several years, and was steadily opposed—the influence of Lucas Sullivant being sufficient to prevent it, during his lifetime. He died in 1823, and the very next year the removal was accomplished.

Annexation also had its constant opponents. The dread of increased taxation led a majority to look upon it with great disfavor; and when at length, in 1871, the "broad mantle" of the city corporation was extended over them by an act of the common council (on a petition from a part of the citizens), there were not wanting those who cried out against it, as a piece of high-handed usurpation. But, notwithstanding all this, we think that few, if any, of them will now deny that annexation to the city has been of great advantage to the place. For over fifty years the town had been as dead as towns often "get to be." It had not even aspired to the dignity of incorporation, but had continued an unorganized hamlet, as at the first. In 1858, Mr. Martin wrote of it, as follows: "The town of Franklinton has not varied much in population or business for the last forty years." And certainly it did not vary much, in those respects, during the thirteen remaining years, previous to annexation. The population of the entire township of Franklinton, the oldest and, with two exceptions (leaving out Columbus), the most populous in the county, was, in 1850, but eighteen hundred and twenty-seven. What the population of the village was, is not given; but, at most, it could not have been more than five or six hundred. But population is now increasing; new houses, and of a much better class, are being built; new stores and shops of various kinds are being opened, and an appearance of thrift is fast taking the place of the seedy and dilapidated look which the place wore a few years ago. Few, we apprehend, of the present Franklintonians would be willing to return to their former independent condition.

The old land-marks are mostly gone. All the houses, in which it was claimed that General Harrison made his headquarters during the war, have disappeared—and they were at least equal in number to the cities that claimed the honor of being the birth-place of Homer. A log house, evidently one of the first erected, and facing the principal street, is now occupied as a blacksmith's shop; but neither its present occupant, nor anybody else we found, could tell us by whom it was built. The old court-house, which was used for a public-school building nearly fifty years, finally became dilapidated, and was abandoned. After standing for several years, in a ruinous condition, it has at length, within the past year (1879), been torn down, and an elegant, three-story brick school-house, fast verging upon completion, now occupies its place; and the usable portion of the old bricks have been used in building a commodious dwelling, on a lot owned by Mr. Deshler, a short distance north of the old site.

The Sullivant mansion, now owned and occupied as a charitable house, by the "Sisters of the Good Shepherd," remains—but so changed and enlarged that its original proprietor would never recognize it. But the most interesting and suggestive of all the ancient lankmarks of Franklinton, is the old burying ground, on the bank of the river, a little northwest of the town. Here still repose the ashes of many of the early pioneers, the record of whose birth and death, on the crumbling tomb-stones, serves as a connecting link between the past century and the present. Take one simple inscription as a sample: "Sacred to the memory of Mrs. Elizabeth Culbertson, wife of Colonel Robert Culbertson, who was born in 1743, and died in 1815, aged seventy-two."

But the spirit of change invades even the resting-place of the dead. While few recent interments have been made in the old ground, many of the bodies first deposited there, have been removed to a more elegant retreat amid the shades of Green lawn; among which are those of Lucas Sullivant and wife, Lyne Starling, and General Foos and wife. It is probable that, before many years, the others, who have descendants or relatives still living in the neighborhood, will be removed; the old inscriptions will all become obliterated, and the stones themselves disintegrated, or broken down and destroyed. And even if the ground should not be vacated as a burying place, and devoted to some less sacred use, this ancient city of the dead, like its neighboring city of the living, will in time be filled by a new population.

Several years before the annexation of Franklinton to Columbus, Michael Sullivant laid out a village between the two places, to which was given the name of Middletown. This name is still frequently applied to that locality, in common parlance; but, as no previous history makes mention of it, we do not deem it important to give it a more extended notice in ours—in which decision we trust we give no offence to the people who live there.

SITE SELECTED AND NAMED FOR THE FUTURE CAPITAL.

In the year 1800, congress passed a law establishing the seat of government of the Northwest Territory at Chillicothe. This is, doubtless, the reason why, on coming into the Union as a State, two years later, Ohio made the same place its temporary capital. Probably, few persons ever seriously expected that this fine old town, delightful as its situation is, and every way desirable, in itself, for such a purpose, would ever become the permanent seat of government. A general desire for a more central location soon began to show itself. In obedience to this desire, the legislature in February, 1810, appointed five commissioners, viz.: James Findlay, W. Silliman, Joseph Darlington, Reisin Beall, and William McFarland, to examine and select the most eligible site. These commissioners were to meet at Franklinton, on the first of the following September. This town, one mile west of the present State house, was one of the competitors for the coveted honor, but its low situation was against it, and it had to content itself with the possibility (since become reality) of being one day included within the limits of the capital city. After meeting, as directed, and examining the claims of the several competing places, the commissioners reported to the legislature, on the twelfth of September, 1810, in favor of a place on the west side of the Scioto, twelve miles above Franklinton, where the town of Dublin, in Franklin county, was afterwards located. No action, however, was taken by the legislature till its next session. Four enterprising and far-seeing men, viz.: Lyne Starling, John Kerr, Alexander McLaughlin, and James Johnston, having obtained possession of an eligible site, conceived a plan for inducing the legislature to locate thereon the permanent capital of the State. Their proposition, made to the legislature on the tenth of February, 1812, was as follows: That, if the legislature would establish the seat of the State government on the high bank east of the Scioto river, nearly opposite Franklinton, in township five, range twenty-two, of the "Refugee lands," and would, on or before the first Monday of December, 1817, begin to hold its sessions in a town to be laid off thereon by the company, and continue to hold the same there until the year 1840, the company would:

First—lay out a town on the lands mentioned, on or before the first day of July, 1812, agreeably to a plan presented to the legislature; second—convey to the State, by warranty deed, in fee simple, such square in the town, containing about ten acres, for public buildings, and such lot of ten acres for the penitentiary, and dependencies, as a director, or such person or persons as the legislature should appoint, might select; third—erect and complete a State house, offices and penitentiary, and such other buildings as should be directed by the legislature, to be built of stone and brick, or either, the work to be done in a workmanlike manner, and of such size and dimensions as the legislature should require; the penitentiary and dependencies to be completed on or before the first of January, 1815, and the State house and offices on or before the first Monday of December, 1817. If these buildings, when completed, should be valued at less than fifty thousand dollars, the company should make up the deficiency in such further buildings as should be directed by law; but if the valuation should exceed fifty thousand dollars, the legislature should remunerate the company for such excess. On the fourteenth of February, 1812, an act was passed by the legislature, formally accepting the proposals and bond of the company, and permanently establishing the seat of government of this State on the lands named therein. The act provided for the appointment, by the legislature, of a director to superintend the surveying and laying off of the proposed town; to direct the width of its streets and alleys, and select the square for the public buildings, and the lot for the penitentiary and dependencies. Under this act, Joel Wright, of Warren county, was appointed director, or agent of the State; and Joseph Vance, of Franklin county, was selected to assist him. Under their joint superintendence, and at the expense of the proprietors, was platted a town destined to become the capital of one of the most important and influential States of the American union, and the metropolis of a region unsurpassed in richness of soil, and all the other sources of material prosperity.

One week from the passage of the act locating the future capital, i. e., on the twenty-first of February, 1812, the legislature passed the following "resolution giving a name to the permanent seat of government:"

"Resolved, by the general assembly of the State of Ohio, That the town to be laid out, at the high bank on the east side of the Scioto river, opposite the town of Franklinton, for the permanent seat of government of this State, shall be known and distinguished by by the name of COLUMBUS.

MATTHIAS CORWIN,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
THOMAS KIRKER,
Speaker of the Senate.

Attest: R. OSBORN, C. H. R.
Attest: C. A. NORTON, C. S."

Other names were suggested, but to General Joseph Foos (who settled in Franklinton about the latter part of 1798, and who was a member of the legislature for many years, between 1807 and 1827), belongs the honor of proposing the name of the Great Discoverer, which was finally adopted.

We are indebted for this information to the eldest son of the general, Captain Nelson Foos, who is well known in this city as one of the landmarks of the olden time. Thus it is that the goodly capital of Ohio received "A local habitation and a name."

HISTORY OF LANDS CONTAINED IN THE ORIGINAL TOWN PLAT.

The town of Columbus, as we have seen, was located on the high bank, east of the Scioto river, nearly opposite Franklinton, in township five, range twenty-two, of the Refugee lands. These were so called from the fact that they were appropriated by congress for the relief of certain persons from the British provinces, who, in our Revolutionary war, espoused the cause of the revolted colonies. These lands were originally surveyed in 1799, by the authority of the general government, and divided, like the other public lands, into sections of six hundred and forty acres each. But in 1801 they were divided into half-sections, and numbered as such. Patents were issued for half-sections, designating them by the appropriate numbers. Immediately after the acceptance of their proposals by the legislature, the proprietors—Starling, Kerr, McLaughlin, and Johnston—entered into a partnership, under the act accepting their proposals, and establishing the seat of government. In the articles of association it was stipulated that a common stock should be created for the mutual benefit of the partners. To this stock Starling was to contribute half-section twenty-five, with the exception of ten acres previously sold to John Brickell; Johnston's contribution was to be half-section nine and the half of half-section ten; and McLaughlin & Kerr, who had previously been partners and were considered as a third party to this agreement, were to contribute half-section twenty-six. The proceeds of the sales of lots were to remain as common stock, until their contract with the State should be completed; and each party was to derive an equal benefit from all donations, obtained by subscription or otherwise. In addition to the lands contributed by the proprietors, the Rev. Dr. James Hoge conveyed to them eighty acres on the south end of half-section eleven; Thomas Allen donated twenty acres in the southwest portion of half-section twelve, belonging to Bela Badger, of Virginia (and now called East Park place), was included in the plat, though without any legal authority. The three tracts last named were added, to make the size and form of the town agree with the plat submitted to the legislature. Dr. Hoge and Mr. Allen, having conveyed their tracts by deed to the proprietors, received back, in due form, half of the ground in lots, after the town had been laid out. The succession in the proprietorship of the lands above mentioned, down to the time of their being brought into the original town plat of Columbus, is as follows: half-section twenty-five was granted by the general government to John Allen, who was named as one of the refugees in the act of congress of February 18, 1801—his patent having been obtained from President Jefferson, April 5, 1802. Previously to this, however, he had conveyed it to G. W. Allen, October 18, 1801. The latter having forfeited it by foreclosure of mortgage, it was sold, by the sheriff of the county, to Lyne Starling, July 11, 1809.

Half-section nine was conveyed by government patent to John Halstead, a refugee, May 7, 1802, and by him to James Johnston, February 5, 1803.

The original grantee of half-section ten, was Martha Walker, who received her patent, February 15, 1802. By her it was conveyed to Peter Mills, April, 17, 1802; he sold it to James Johnston and Thomas Allen, February 19, 1803; and Allen sold a part of his share to Johnston, April 13, 1812.

Half-section twenty-six was granted by Thomas Jefferson to Benjamin Thompson, February 13, 1802. By him it was sold to James Strawbidge (or Strowbridge), May 6, 1802; and by the latter to Kerr and McLaughlin, March 12, 1808.

Half-section twelve was granted by government to Seth Harding, February 20, 1802; and by him sold to Bela Badger, February 16, 1803.

The original patentee of half-section eleven, was James Price—his patent being dated May 7, 1802. By him it was sold to John S. Wills and Humphrey Fullerton, August 26, 1808; by Wills and wife, to Fullerton, April 21, 1809; by him to James Hoge, August 16, 1810; and by Hoge to the proprietors, April 16, 1812. All those receiving government patents were named in the act of congress, as refugees. The whole amount of ground covered by the original town plat, was about twelve hundred acres.

About the year 1824, the heirs of John Allen brought suit to recover the land in Lyne Starling's half-section. It was a long and tiresome case, which we have no time to follow. The claim of the contestants was based upon mere technical grounds; and it failed, as all such claims should. Unawed by this failure, certain parties made an effort, soon after, to eject the owners of the lots in Kerr and McLaughlin's half-section. The claim of the contestants, in this case also, was merely technical, and failed like the other, and thus was forever set at rest all question as to the title to the lands contained in the original town plat of Columbus.

INCREASE OF TERRITORY.

This will be an appropriate place for giving an account of the lands which, at different times, have been brought within the corporate limits of the city. Within a few years, the rapid increase in the population of Columbus, and its advance in manufacturing and other enterprises, have compelled a corresponding increase of its territorial limits. Previous to 1863, the city occupied an area of only eleven hundred acres. By annexation that year, sixteen hundred acres more were added to its territory. In 1871, its limits were enlarged, by annexations from the surrounding townships, as follows: From Montgomery and Franklin townships, two thousand, seven hundred and forty acres; and from Clinton township, thirteen hundred and twelve—making the present area of the city six thousand, seven hundred and fifty-two acres. This gives Columbus more than six times the territory it had in 1863, and two and a half times more than it had in 1871. If the same ratio of increase should continue, the city limits would contain, at the end of the persent century, an area of about sixty-four square miles. The sections of land brought into the city limits, by these annexations, and the original patentees of the same, are as follows: From Montgomery township—half-section twenty-seven, patented to John McGowan; half-section twenty-eight, to Jonathan Eddy; half-section twenty-nine, to Joseph Binden; north end of half-section thirty, to John Edgar; north end of half-section thirty-one, to Seth Harding; a few acres of half-section thirty-two, to Seth Noble; half-section twenty-four, to Jonas C. Minot; half-section twenty-three, to J. Levitre; half-section twenty-two, to John Edgar; half-section twenty-one, to Noah Miller; half-section sixteen, to Carpenter Bradford; half-section fifteen, to James Livingston; half-section fourteen, to Thomas Faulkner; half-section thirteen, to Rev. Seth Noble; half-sections four and five, to John Starr; a small portion of half-section six, to Colonel Samuel Bradford; fractional section seven, to John De Ruch. From Clinton township—a part of quarter township three, patented to Jonathan Dayton; a part of quarter township four, to George Stevenson. From Franklin township—all the lands west of the Scioto river, now included within the limits of the city, are a part of original survey ninety-three, and were patented to Lucas Sullivant, as assignee of Robert Vance; to whom they had been granted, in consideration of military service rendered to the United States, as a soldier from Virginia. A notice of Lucas Sullivant, as the proprietor and founder of the town of Franklinton, is made in another place. Of the above named patentees, only John McGowan, Seth Harding, Rev. Seth Noble, John Starr, John De Ruch, and Lucas Sullivant are known to have been settlers. Jonathan Dayton was a member of congress from Elizabeth, New Jersey, and was, at one time, the owner of fifty or sixty thousand acres of land, in different parts of Ohio. John De Ruch was a millwright, from Ross county, and obtained his patent on account of a mill he erected on the land. He is, undoubtedly, identical with the "Mr. John D. Rush" mentioned in Martin's "History of Franklin County," page five, as having "erected an inferior mill on the Scioto, a short distance above Franklinton." This was "about the year 1799, or 1800." That the increase of territory, mentioned above, was fairly commensurate with the increase in population, may be inferred from the following statement: In 1815, three years after the city was laid out, its population was seven hundred; in 1820, it was fourteen hundred and fifty; in 1830, two thousand, four hundred and thirty-seven; in 1840, six thousand and forty-eight; in 1850, seventeen thousand, eight hundred and twenty; in 1860, eighteen thousand, five hundred and fifty-four; and in 1870, thirty-one thousand, two hundred and seventy-four. If the population of the city should increase in the same ratio till the year 1900, it would, at that time, contain over two hundred thousand souls.

TOWNSHIPS FORMERLY AND AT PRESENT OCCUPYING THE TERRITORY OF COLUMBUS.

The original township occupying the principal ground now covered by the corporation of Columbus, was Liberty, one of the four townships into which the county of Franklin was first divided. The order establishing it, defining its boundaries, and appointing the first election for the choice of justices of the peace therein, was passed by the Franklin court of common pleas on Tuesday, May 10, 1803. Following are extracts from the proceedings of said court, of the date named, in relation to Liberty township:

Ordered, That all that part of Franklin county contained within the following limits and boundaries, to-wit: Beginning on the east bank of the Scioto river, at the intersection of the sectional line between the sections number eight and seventeen, in the fourth township, and twenty-second range, running thence with the said sectional line east, to the line between the counties of Fairfield and Franklin: thence north with the said line, and from the point of beginning, with the Scioto, to the northerly boundary of Franklin county, and be called Liberty township.

Ordered, That there be elected, in Liberty township, two justices of the peace, and that the electors hold their election for that purpose at the house of John Beaty, in said township, on the 23d day of June next, as provided by law.

At the election thus appointed, Joseph Hunter and Ezra Brown were chosen as the first justices of the peace in the new township. In the course of a few years, as the result of various divisions and sub-divisions, the township of Liberty became extinct. We have not learned the precise year, but we know that Montgomery township was established in that part of Liberty which afterwards included the corporation of Columbus, on the ninth day of March, 1807—the first justice of the peace elected that year being William Shaw. This township, with occasional changes of boundary, has continued to the present time. The justices of the peace last elected (the number having been increased to three) are as follows: Theodore Jones, Lot L. Smith, and Matthias Martin.

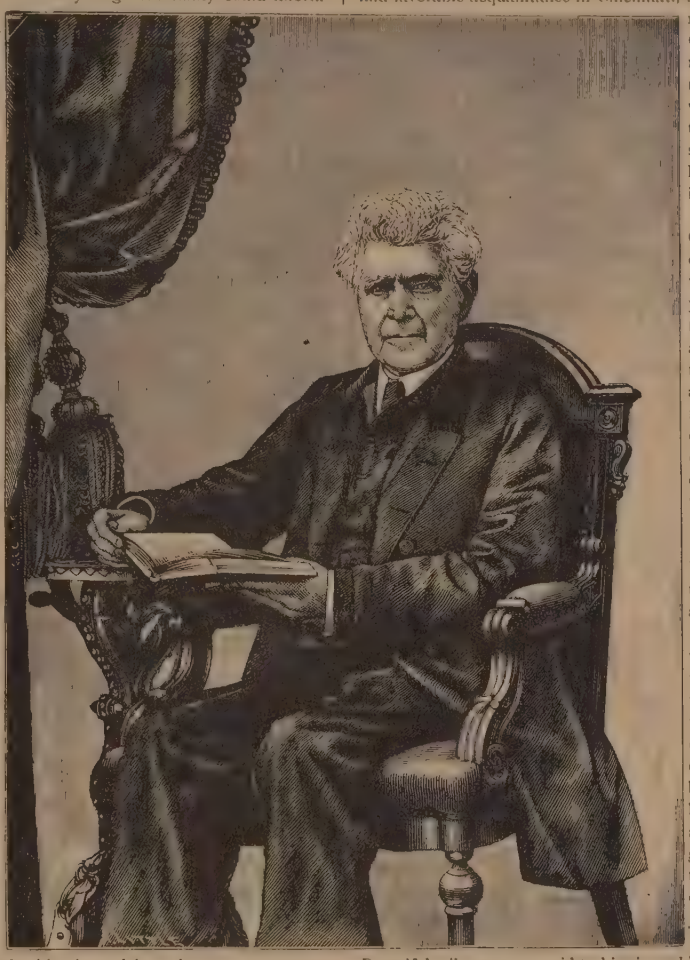
For a long time after its incorporation, Columbus had no territory outside the township of Montgomery. But about the year 1860 it extended itself westward, across the Scioto, taking in that part of the township of Franklin lying in the bend of the river. Several years afterward, in 1871, the city limits were still further extended in that direction, taking in the old town of Franklinton; and, in the same year, a narrow belt of territory a little more than three-fourths of a mile wide, lying along the east bank of the Olentangy river, and running up some two miles into the township of Clinton to the village of North Columbus, was taken into the corporation. Thus, at that time, the city of Columbus occupied parts of three different townships. This mixture of jurisdictions being found inconvenient, the county commissioners, in compliance with a petition from the city council, passed an order, on the twenty-fourth of February, 1873, extending the boundaries of Montgomery township, so as to include those portions of Franklinton and Clinton embraced in the limits of Columbus, and restricting the boundaries of the first mentioned township in all other directions, so as to make them coincide every where with the city lines; and, at the same time, erecting the territory, thus cut off, into a new township (with some additions) to which was given the name of Marion. By this action the township boundaries and those of the town became one and the same; and the only township officers needed for the execution of the laws, in addition to the municipal, county and State authorities having jurisdiction over the same territory, are three justices of the peace (who, at the present time, are the ones named above), and four constables acting under them—those last elected being as follows: N. B. Smith, Martin Van B. Little, Augustus Johns, and John Q. A. Robinson.

FIRST EVENTS.

The opening chapters of every local history, going back to earliest times, must, of course, be largely made up of first events. But among such events there are always a number of isolated facts, preserved in the memory of the oldest inhabitants, and important only, or mainly, because they are "the first." We have collected

JOHN NOBLE.

John Noble was born in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, November 15, 1789. His parents were Samuel and Mary Patterson Noble. With them he removed to Emmettsburgh, Maryland, in early life. Here his father joined with the occupation of a farmer that of a mechanic. John was early engaged in labor, and had to leave school at a very early age. He chafed at the attitude the slave owners assumed towards mechanics, and when he arrived at majority, he announced his fixed purpose to leave for a free State. This purpose impelled his father to sell his small property and remove, in May, 1811, to the State of Ohio. They passed through Lancaster, to Pickaway county, where the family settled on a beautiful farm, near Tarlton, where Samuel Noble and most of his children lived and died. John Noble returned to Lancaster the same year, and engaged at once in active business. Full of energy and enterprise, he made himself felt in every department of life. He advocated improved schools, the building of a school-house and market-house and all other improvements that the young community could afford.



In the winter of 1812–13, he commenced a trade of ready-made clothing, shoes, etc., with the army, lying at Franklinton and Delaware, and thence to Fort Meigs. In passing through Columbus, Front street was the chief street, and it was full of logs and brush. He attended a treaty with the Indians at Piqua, of which he gave a vivid picture in his "Pioneer Sketches," published in the Columbus Gazette, in 1870. The money he made by these enterprises was lost by a partner. He had, therefore, to pursue every honest calling he could, to support himself and his young family.

In 1820, he commenced hotel keeping in Lancaster, a business which ultimately became his only occupation; but at that time such an employment was too small for his necessities, and he carried on several mechanical branches, in addition. In 1825–6, he took a contract on what was called the deep cut of the Ohio canal, in Licking county, and was present and took part in the ceremonies at Licking summit, July 4, 1825, when Governor Clinton, of New York, took out the first spadeful of earth for that canal. This enterprise, with that of building the Banking-house, for the Ohio bank, in 1826-7, and others, brought him into debt. As money was exceedingly scarce, and produce very low, he determined to take a cargo, by flat-boats, to New Orleans. This was done by hauling the load to Circleville, twenty-two miles, and there loading about two miles above town, on the Scioto, thence floating down the Scioto and Ohio to the Mississippi, to New Orleans. This trip was successful, and he was able to pay off his debts.

He found Lancaster was probably to be left at one side by the advance of Columbus, and the building of the National road; so, in 1832, he removed from Lancaster with his family, and took charge of the National hotel, in Columbus, located where the Neil house now stands. He remained in this house nearly seven years. During this period the Cumberland, or National road was built, and the line of Neil, Moore & Co.'s stages furnished the great means of travel to the west. Emigration was at its height, and many thousands of people stopped at his house in Columbus, who afterwards settled in Ohio, or the States further west. As he had a wonderful facility for making acquaintances he was in those days as well known as any man in Ohio.

In Columbus he showed the same interest in the advancement of the interests of that city that he had shown in Lancaster. He became supervisor of roads at one time, in order to have the power to improve Broad street, and was the first person who redeemed that beautiful avenue from the swamp. He was afterwards one of the commissioners to plant the trees that now beautify that street. He was, for many years, a member of the city council. In July 4, 1839, he assisted actively at the laying of the corner-stone of the new capitol, provided the jars deposited in the corner-stone, and aided in filling them with all manner of documents, to be opened for the enlightenment of future ages. These incidents indicate the energy and spirit of the man. In 1840 he removed to to Cincinnati, to take charge of the Dennison house, which he kept for five years. While here he gained a very large and favorable acquaintance in Cincinnati, and all southern Ohio. He returned with his family to Columbus, in 1845, and remained here until the summer of 1847. While here he was elected a representative to the forty-fifth general assembly of Ohio, from Franklin county, and served with intelligence and fidelity.

In 1847, he returned to Cincinnati, and took charge of the Pearl Street house, which he kept for seven years, when he went back finally to Columbus, and abandoned all active business. In 1854 he was elected again to the city council, and remained a member for several years. On the sixteenth of July he was elected president of the council, to fill an unexpired term, ending April 10, 1856.

When the war of 1861–5 broke out, he was deeply interested, and gave every aid and comfort he could to the Union cause. He was always interested in the advance of the city, State, and nation. By nature he was active and enterprising. These qualities continued to the end of his life. His step in his last days was as elastic, his eye as clear, his speech as ready, and his hearing as good, as in his youth. At the ripe age of eighty-one, on the twenty-fourth day of June, 1871, at six in the morning, he passed away. Beautiful tributes were paid to him in public and private. His was a life of usefulness and honor, marked by justice and integrity. He was genial by nature, winning and retaining many friends, and crowned the whole by a firm, consistent christian faith. The example of such a life, worthy in its every relation, is of lasting benefit to the race. It inspires others to the highest aims and noblest purposes in the accomplishment of life's great work. Human effort and aspiration are usually content with that which is not worthiest, best, even if within their grasp; hence the lasting benefit to man of a career which furnishes an exception to this rule, and which has been satisfied only with highest attainment.

The children of Colonel Noble were: Catharine, wife of Godfrey M. Robinson; Mary, widow of Clement J. Acton; Margaret Delia, wife of Dr. Stadwig Loring; and Henry C. Noble, all residents of Columbus, and General John W. Noble, of St. Louis, Missouri. Mrs. Kate Myers, wife of E. L Taylor, of Columbus, is a granddaughter.

several of these from various sources, but chiefly from Studer's history, and will proceed to record them here—beginning with the first events in Franklinton.

The first family settlement made in this forerunner of Columbus, was by Joseph Dixon, in the fall of 1797. The first "meal-making establishment" was constructed by Samuel McElvain, and consisted of a hole burned into the top of a stump—the corn being pounded in this, as a mortar, by two men with pestles, and the meal sifted through a deer skin, pierced with holes by a hot wire. So says Colonel Andrew McElvain, son of Samuel, writing from West Point Grove, Logan county, Illinois, in 1856. The first water-mill was erected by Robert Balentine, near where Hayden's factory afterwards stood, in Columbus. The first whiskey was distilled by Benjamin White, near where Ridgway's foundry now is. A good many people would like to see the man who will distill the last. The first sheriff of Franklin county was this same Benjamin White. The first contract for carrying the mail to and from Franklinton, was taken by Adam Hosac, he also being postmaster. The first mail carrier was Andrew McElvain (mentioned above), who was only thirteen years old when thus employed. The first store was established in Franklinton by James Scott, in 1798. The first hotel, in the same place, was opened and kept for many years by General Joseph Foos. The first public sale of lots in Columbus took place June 18, 1812—the same day on which war was declared against Great Britain. The post-office was first established here in 1813—Matthew Matthews being the first postmaster. The first newspaper published here was established in 1814, with the title of the Western Intelligencer and Columbus Gazette. It was removed to this place from Worthington, where it was first issued by Colonel Kilbourne, in 1811, under the first part of the above title. The first bakery was commenced by Christian Heyl, in 1813, in a rough cabin, at the corner of Rich and High streets, for which he had to pay one hundred and twenty-five dollars rent. The first marriage, that of George B. Harvey and Miss Jane Armstrong, took place in February, 1814. The first saw-mill was built by John Shields and Richard Courtney, on the Scioto, a short distance below the site of the present penitentiary. The same Mr. Shields, three years later, built a flouring-mill on a creek in the southwest portion of the town. In 1815 or '16, the first jeweler's shop was opened in the city by William Platt. Joel Buttles, agent of the Worthington manufacturing company, opened the first store in Columbus, in a small brick building, afterwards occupied by the Broadway Exchange. About the same time McLean & Green opened one in a cabin on the south side of Rich street, just east of the corner where the Mechanics' hall subsequently stood. In the spring of 1813, Volney Payne opened the first tavern in the new town, in a two-story brick house, built by John Collet, for the purpose, on the west side of High street, where the Johnson building now stands. The first school opened in Columbus was a private school, kept in a little cabin on the Public square. The first census of the infant capital was taken by James Marshall, in the spring of 1815, showing a population of seven hundred souls. David Smith, Orris Parish, David Scott, and Gustavus Sevan, were the first lawyers attracted to the new town, having located here about the year 1815. In 1814 was erected the first market-house in the middle of High street, near its intersection by Rich street. The town council declared it a nuisance in 1817, and a new market-house was built on State street, immediately west of High. The first bridge over the Scioto river was built by Lucas Sullivant, about 1813, under a charter from the legislature. It crossed on Broad street, where now stands the substantial bridge of the National road. In 1817, William Lusk published his first almanac, in Columbus, and it was regularly issued thereafter, every year, for about thirty-five years. Dr. John M. Edmiston was the first physician who located in Columbus—the next being Dr. Samuel Parsons, who removed from Franklinton, and fixed his permanent residence here, about the year 1815. The first two churches of Columbus were erected in 1814. One was a small house built of hewed logs, and used by the Methodists. It stood on the same lot where was afterwards built the Town Street Methodist church. The second was a log cabin built by the Presbyterians, near the corner of Spring and Third streets, and used for about four years, when it was superseded by a frame building erected on the west side of Front street, south of Town. The first money for removing the stumps and other obstructions from the streets of the new town, was raised by subscription, about the year 1815. The town being incorporated on the tenth of February, 1816, the streets were gradually improved thereafter by order of the council. The first board of councilmen elected, after the incorporation of the city, were Robert W. McCoy, John Cutler, Robert Armstrong, Henry Brown, Caleb Houston, Michael Patton, Jeremiah Armstrong, Jarvis Pike, and John Kerr. The first bank, known as the Franklin Bank of Columbus, was incorporated February 23, 1816, and on the first Monday of September following, it was organized by the election of directors, with Lucas Sullivant for president, and A. J. Williams, cashier.

INCORPORATION OF COLUMBUS—BOROUGH AND CITY.

On the tenth of February, 1816, exactly four years after accepting the proposal of the four proprietors to lay out a town for the future capital, the legislature passed an act for its incorporation. Section first describes its boundaries, and designates it as the "borough of Columbus." Section second appoints an election, to be held at the Columbus inn, on the first Monday (the sixth day) of May, following, to choose nine common councilmen, who were to elect from their number a mayor, recorder, and treasurer. Various provisions follow, for which we have no space; but the following section breathes such a peculiar Berghian humanity, that we cannot resist the temptation to give it entire:

SECTION 16. And be it further enacted, That no law shall ever be made by this corporation subjecting cattle, sheep, or hogs, not belonging to any resident of this borough, to be abused, or taken up and sold, for coming within the bounds thereof.

The election required by this act was held at the time and place appointed, and, on the thirteenth of the same month, the councilmen elected met, at the same place, and chose, from their own number, Jarvis Pike, mayor; Robert W. McCoy, recorder, and Robert Armstrong, treasurer; also, the following officers, not of their number, and not mentioned in the act: Samuel King, marshal; William Long, clerk of market, and John Kerr, surveyor.

Under this charter, the borough of Columbus went on prosperously for eighteen years—that is to say, until the third of March, 1834. On that day (the wish of the people having been suitably expressed) the legislature erected the town corporate into a city, by the passage of an act to that effect, only a few of whose provisions we have room here to insert. Section third divides the city into three wards, and gives to the city council the power to change the boundaries of these, and to create new ones. Section fourth provides for the election of a mayor, biennially, by the people, on the second Monday of April. Section fifth provides for the election of twelve councilmen (four from each ward), who must select, from their own number, a president, recorder, and treasurer. Section eighth gives to the council the power to pass ordinances "for the apprehension and punishment of all vagrants and idle persons." This was long before the name "tramp" had become familiar to American ears. But, in this section, the legislature of Ohio furnished to later times the only true key for the solution of the "tramp problem." Section eleventh empowers the council "to grant or refuse license to tavern-keepers, inn-holders, retailers of spiritous liquors by a less quantity than a quart; keepers of ale and porter houses and shops, and all houses of public entertainment"—thus, long before a "Maine law" had been passed, giving a clear sanction to the principle of prohibition. The twentieth section provides for the election of a city marshal (not from their own number) by the common council.

The first officers elected, after the incorporation of the city, were as follows: John Brooks, mayor; Abraham Stotts, marshal and clerk of market; Wm. T. Martin, recorder; William Long, treasurer; C. R. Prezriminisky, surveyor. We give, in conclusion, the following list of city officers at the present time, 1879: G. G. Collins, mayor; H. E. Bryan, clerk of city and council, and city auditor; Alex. W. Krumm, solicitor; T. N. Gulick, civil engineer; Henry Heinmiller, chief engineer of fire department; Jacob Haerring, street commissioner; H. A. Mahlman, infirmary director, and C. Breyfogle, president of common council.

THE FRANKLIN DRAGOONS.

This military company, mentioned as the escort of President Monroe, on the occasion of his visit to Columbus in 1817, was organized in the time of the war of 1812, and continued until 1832, or '33, when it was disbanded. During its continuance it was commanded by six different captains, all men of mark in their time, and all now passed off the stage, except David Taylor, who was the last. Following are brief sketches of each, in the order of their services:

Joseph Vance enjoyed the reputation of being a fine officer, and was in the service, in different grades of rank, during the greater part of the war. Being one of the early settlers of the county, his interests were always identified with those of the infant settlements. He married in Franklinton, in 1805, and was a resident of the county the remainder of his life. He was for many years the county surveyor, and one of the leading citizens of his time; being greatly respected by the entire community. He died in 1824.

Abram J. McDowell was one of the many contributions of Kentucky to her northern sister across the Ohio river. Having served through the war of 1812, he settled, soon after its close, in Franklinton. His wife was Eliza Lord, one of the Starling family, so well and favorably known in Kentucky and Ohio. He is represented as being a Kentucky gentleman of the old school, aristocratic in all his notions, refined and educated, but regarded by many as haughty in his manners; and perhaps, on that very account, never acquiring wealth. He was the father of the distinguished general, Irwin McDowell, who was born in Franklinton, October 25, 1818. At the head of his troop, he was afterward promoted to the rank of colonel, which title he bore through life. Notwithstanding the charge of haughtiness, he was a man of free and jovial disposision, and always had many warm friends. He held the office of clerk of the courts, and county recorder, for many years, and was afterward mayor of the city of Columbus. He died in 1844, in the fifty-fourth year of his age.

Robert Brotherton was the third commander of this popular troop, and, like his predecessors, promoted to the rank of colonel. He was a native of Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, came to Franklinton in early youth, and resided in the county ever after. He married a daughter of Captain Hooken, a family of high respectability. Of a mild and sociable disposition, he became very popular without any apparent effort on his part. He filled the difficult and unpleasant office of sheriff for two terms (or eight years) with peculiar ease and kindness, and was never charged with injustice or oppression. He died in November, 1837, aged about forty-five years.

Philo H. Olmsted was born in the township of Simsbury, Hartford county, Connecticut, in February, 1793. His father, Francis Olmsted, was a soldier in the war of the Revolution, and was with the army that captured Burgoyne. In 1808, he came to Ohio with his family, settling at first at what is now known as Blendon Four Corners, where his father owned a large tract of land. After assisting his father two years, in improving his land, at the solicitation of Colonel James Kilbourne, he entered the printing office of the Western Intelligencer, a paper just started at Worthington. He became one of the proprietors of that paper, which was removed to Columbus in 1814, the name being changed to Ohio State Journal. He continued his connection with the Journal till after 1830, and then went into merchandise. In July, 1817, he was married to Sarah Phillips, from Mercersburg, Pennsylvania. Of ten children born to them, four lived to maturity, and two are still living: Mrs.

Wright, widow of Dr. M. B. Wright, a distinguished physician of Cincinnati, and Charles H. Olmsted, a resident of Columbus. Mr. Olmsted died in 1870, aged seventy-seven years.

Joseph McElvain was promoted to the rank of colonel in the Ohio militia, like his predecessors in the command of the dragoons, and he was distinguished by this title through life. Colonel McElvain was one of the first residents of Franklin county, coming here with his father and family, when he was a child, and spending the remainder of his life here. He was in turn, farmer, merchant, hotel-keeper, and public officer. He was, for many years, an assistant in the Ohio penitentiary, held the office of county treasurer four years, and was also superintendent of the county infirmary, discharging the duties of this office with kindness and urbanity. He died suddenly, on the seventh of February, 1858, at his residence in Worthington.

David Taylor was the last of the captains of this noted company, and the only one who still survives. As his portrait, accompanied by quite an extended biographical sketch, appears elsewhere in this volume, no further notice is here necessary.

CHURCH HISTORY.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES—THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

The youthful Hoge, the pioneer of the Presbyterian church, in Columbus and vicinity, arrived in Franklinton in December, 1805, in company with the supreme judges, who were about to open, in that town, the first term of the supreme court ever held in Franklin county. Mr. Hoge, afterwards known as Dr. Hoge, had just been licensed to preach, by the Presbytery of Lexington, Virginia, and had obtained from the general assembly an appointment as itinerant missionary in Ohio. The judges converted the court-room into a chapel, and adjourned to hear the first sermon of the young missionary.

As the first fruits of his zealous labors, in three months (February 8, 1806), a Presbyterian church was organized, and on the Sunday following, the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered to thirteen members. In September, 1807, the congregation gave Mr. Hoge a call to the pastorate of the church. This document was in the hand-writing of Lucas Sullivant, and was signed by Robert Culbertson, and William Reed, as elders, and by Joseph Dixon, John Dill, David Nelson, William Domigan, Joseph Hunter, and Lucas Sullivant, as trustees. The young pastor was promised a yearly salary of three hundred dollars, for three fourths of his time, until the congregation should be able to pay him at the same rate for his whole time. A plain brick building was erected, in 1812, for the use of the church, principally through the instrumentality of Lucas Sullivant. Before it was completed, however, it was taken possession of by the military stationed in the town, and during a violent tornado, in March, 1813, it was blown down. Not so the incipient society. In 1814, a log cabin, twenty-five by thirty feet, was built for religious services, on a lot belonging to Mr. Hoge, within the limits of the present capital of Ohio. During the next five years, the meetings of this society were held, both in Franklinton and Columbus, though principally in the former place.

As the greater portion of the congregation resided on the Columbus side of the Scioto, a frame meeting-house was built in the spring of 1818, on a lot donated for that purpose, at the junction of Town and Front streets. The sale of seats amounted to one thousand seven hundred and ninty-six dollars and fifty cents, the highest price paid for a pew being forty dollars. In 1821 the congregation was organized as the First Presbyterian church of Columbus, and, in 1823, the salary of the pastor was increased to eight hundred dollars. The present church edifice, on the southwest corner of State and Third streets, was erected in 1830, and two years later the salary of Dr. Hoge was raised to one thousand dollars. About the year 1850 the church edifice, at an expenditure of twenty thousand dollars, was remodeled and greatly improved. A semi-centennial celebration of their organization was held, in Franklinton, on the eighth day of February, 1856. The venerable Dr. Hoge preached his farewell sermon June 25, 1857, and was succeeded in his pastoral charge by Rev. Edgar Woods, of Wheeling, Virginia. Mr. Woods resigned in 1862, and was succeeded by Rev. William Roberts, of Wilmington, Delaware. At the close of 1864, Mr. Roberts retired from the pastorate, which was committed to Rev. W. B. Marshall, who resigned in December, 1869. The church remained without a pastor until May, 1871, when Rev. Robert Laidlaw, of Milton, Ontario, was chosen to fill the vacancy. Mr. Laidlaw resigned his pastorate in April, 1875. In July of the same year, Rev. Edward P. Heberton was called to the pastorate, and began his ministrations September 5, 1875. Mr. Heberton resigned in February, 1877, and the present pastor, Rev. Willis Lord, entered upon the labors of his pastorate on March 11, 1877. The First Presbyterian church building, which was again remodeled in 1859, is an imposing structure, giving evidence of the finest architectural taste. On the south wall of the auditorium, is a marble tablet in memory of Dr. Hoge, a mute witness to the beauty and value of long pastorates.

[The first history of this church, brought down to the year 1863, and published in the Presbyterian historical almanac of that year, was written by Joseph Sullivant, a son of Lucas Sullivant, the founder of Franklinton. All historical sketches of this church, relating to a period antecedent to the above date, are based upon Mr. Sullivant's history.)

SECOND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This church was organized in 1839, on the first Sunday in March, and was an offshoot from the First Presbyterian church. Early in the following year, the congregation assembled for worship in the basement of the church edifice, then in process of erection, on the west side of Third street, between Rich and Friend streets. The building was completed during the current year, and cost, including the lot, about fourteen thousand dollars. From the time of their organization until May, 1840, the church had been served, first by Rev. Stephen Topliff, followed by Rev. Mr. Chamberlain and Rev.

George S. Boardman, of Rochester, New York, who closed his services at this time, having preached the sermon at the dedication of the new church, April 10, 1840. In little more than a year the church increased threefold, and had exchanged its humble hired room for a commodious and substantial house of its own. On the tenth of May, 1840, in response to a unanimous call, it being the repetition of the first sent out by the newly organized society, Rev. Henry L. Hitchcock supplied the church, though not seeing his way clear, as yet, to accept the call. He subsequently accepted, however, and was installed in November, 1841. Dr. Hitchcock had graduated at Yale in 1832, at the age of nineteen; studied theology at Lane; was ordained in 1837, and installed pastor of the Congregational church, at Morgan, Ashtabula county, where he remained until he came to Columbus. In the language of the present pastor, Wm. E. Moore, D. D., "The record of his success is the history of the church." In 1855, Dr. Hitchcock was elected to the presidency of the College of the Western Reserve, and accepted it as the "post of duty," sacrificing his own preference and that of an attached people. He died July 5, 1873, in the sixtieth year of his age. Rev. Edward D. Morris, of Auburn, New York, succeeded to Dr. Hitchcock, commencing his pastoral labors in December, 1855. Although the church building had been enlarged in 1850, owing to the increasing congregation a more commodious sanctuary was felt to be a necessity, by both pastor and people. In 1858, the work of building the present church was commenced. The lot on which it stands is situated on the east side of Third street, between State and Town streets, and was given to the society by Daniel T. Woodbury, a leading merchant of the city, and a liberal member of the church. Rev. John F. Kendall succeeded Mr. Morris, in 1868, and in April, 1872, the present pastor, Rev. William E. Moore, D. D., was duly installed. By a special request of the church, all the former pastors took part in the installation services. Dr. John F. Kendall preached the sermon, Dr. Edward D. Morris gave the charge to the people, and Dr. Henry L. Hitchcock the charge to the pastor. On the fifth day of July, 1873—only a little more than a year from this time—Dr. Hitchcock died, in the sixtieth year of his age. In 1874, the house No. 122 East State street, was purchased as a parsonage. At present, the number in communion is four hundred and twenty; in the Sunday-school, three hundred and fifty. The church property is valued at about one hundred thousand dollars.

THE HOGE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This mission church, the youngest offspring of the oldest among the sisterhood of Presbyterian churches in Columbus, was organized in January, 1870, with twenty members. The congregation is fast increasing, in a rapidly growing part of the city. The pleasant church building on Park street, in the northwest part of the city, is generally known as Hoge chapel. Rev. J. C. Tidball, the first pastor, was succeeded by Rev. Kingery, in 1871, and Rev. J. M. Richmond was called to fill the office in 1872. The first elders were: Dr. G. F. Guerin, Samuel Garwood, J. A. F. Cellar, and William Sacket. The trustees are: William Sacket, William D. Barnett, John D. Vincent, Samuel Garwood, J. A. F. Cellar, and James Mickel. The present pastor is the Rev. J. F. Hamilton.

WESTMINSTER CHURCH.

Westminster church was organized June 1, 1854, by a colony from the First Presbyterian church. Previous to the completion of their church edifice, in 1857, the congregation held its services in the lecture-room of Starling medical college. The church building, on the corner of State and Sixth streets, will seat about five hundred persons, and cost, exclusive of the tower, sixteen thousand dollars. Rev. Josiah D. Smith, the first pastor was installed in August, 1854, and died in May, 1863. The successive pastors, previous to 1872, were: Revs. Henry McCracken, H. M. Robertson, and Rob Roy McNulty. The first elders of the church were: William Blynn and John Y. Cowhick, installed June 14, 1854.

THE WELSH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

This church, located on the southwest corner of Long and Fifth streets, was organized in 1849, by Rev. J. T. Williams. The number of members at that time was twenty-eight. The first minister was Rev. William Passy, of Granville, Ohio. The first officers of the church were Edward Herbert, and Evan Reynolds. The meetings of the society were held in a small frame building, on the northwest corner of Long and Fourth streets. Among the early members of the church were: William Denbow, Daniel S. Jones, Roger Reynolds, Noah Brown, and Thomas Rowland. The church was received into the Presbytery, May 30, 1850, and during that year the church edifice was built, on the lot already described. The Rev. David Williams, the first settled pastor, took charge of the church in 1855, and remained until 1858, when he was succeeded by Rev. William Perry. Between this date and 1860, the church was served by the following pastors: Revs. Joseph E. Davis, Hugh Roberts, and Evan R. Jones. Rev. R. H. Evans was called to the pastorate in October, 1866, and remained until March, 1869. At that time the church numbered eighty-five members, and the building had been considerably enlarged. Rev. David Harris became pastor in March, 1870. The church, at that time, numbered eighty-seven members. In December, 1872, the membership was one hundred and forty-seven. The present pastor is the Rev. John Jones.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCHES—TOWN STREET CHURCH.

From the "records of the Methodist church, in the town of Columbus, Franklin county, State of Ohio," we learn that at "a meeting of the Methodist Episcopal church, on the twentieth day of December, 1813—present, the Rev. Samuel West, assistant preacher on the Delaware circuit—George McCormick, Peter Grubb, Jacob Grubb, John Brickle, and George B. Harvey, were duly appointed trustees for the Methodist church in this town." On Friday, January 22, 1814, the trustees elected George McCormick, president; Jacob Grubb, secretary; and John Brickle, treasurer. About the same time the first Methodist church or class was formed in Columbus, by the Rev. Samuel West. The class at first consisted of but four members—George McCormick, George B. Harvey, Mrs. George McCormick, and Miss Jane Armstrong, who soon afterwards became Mrs. George B. Harvey. The next member admitted was Moses Freeman, a colored man, who left, about 1822, for Liberia, Africa. The original propietors of Columbus, in 1814, donated the lot on which the Town Street church now stands, to the trustees above named, for the use and benefit of the Methodist church of Columbus. In 1815, a small hewed log building was erected for the use of the church. We find George McCormick and John Cutler appointed a committee, in 1817, to have the meeting-house "chinked, daubed, and underpinned," and to appoint a suitable person to keep it in order. This building was used as a school-house, and here William T. Martin, long and familiarly known as "Esquire Martin," taught his first school in Columbus, beginning in 1815. In 1818, Jacob Grubb and John Martin were made a committee "to draw up a subscription paper and receive the money subscribed," to enlarge the meeting-house. September 7th, Michael Patton presented to the trustees his bill for three hundred and sixty dollars, for finishing the meeting-house, which was allowed. About 1823, the colored members of the Town street society withdrew from their white brethren, and formed a society of their own. About the year 1840, they built a brick church on Long street. Jacob Grubb, Nathaniel McLean, and Henry Mathews having been "appointed by the quarterly conference a committee to procure subscriptions to build a new meeting-house in Columbus, presented the same" to the trustees, April 13, 1825, with thirteen hundred dollars subscribed. The old wooded structures were removed from the lot on Town street, and a good brick building erected on the same site. The new edifice was not, however, finished for several years, though constantly used as a house of worship.

The following is a list of the circuit ministers who officiated in Columbus prior to 1831, with the dates of their appointments: 1814, Samuel West; 1815, Isaac Pavey; 1816, Jacob Hooper; 1817, William Swayze and Simon Peters; 1818, William Swayze and Lemuel Lane; 1819, John Tevis, and Leroy Swormsted; 1820, John Tevis and Peter Stevens; 1821, Russell Bigelow and Horace Brown; 1822, Russell Bigelow and Thomas McCleary; 1823, Charles Waddle and H. S. Fernandes; 1824, Alfred Lorain and Charles Waddle; 1825, Leroy Swormsted and Joseph Carper; 1826, Joseph Carper and John H. Power; 1827, Samuel Hamilton and Jacob Young; 1828, Samuel Hamilton and Jesse F. Wixom; 1829, Leroy Swormsted and G. Blue; 1830, John W. Clark and Adam Poe. The Town Street church was organized as a station, in 1830, and Rev. Thomas A. Morris, afterwards Bishop Morris, was appointed to its charge. During the year of his service, a great revival took place, and about ninety were added to the church. The membership was doubled during the year, and at its close was reported at three hundred and twenty. The church was at this time still unfinished, the walls unplastered, and there were no permanent seats. Rev. Robert O. Spencer was appointed to the station in 1831, and Rev. Russell Bigelow in 1832. Mr. Bigelow is remembered as an eloquent and remarkable man. Bigelow chapel was subsequently named as a memorial of him. At the close of the year the number of members was three hundred and twenty-four. Edward W. Sehon was appointed to the station in 1834 and 1835, with Rev. L. L. Hamlin; Rev. Joseph Carper, in 1836; Rev. Joseph A. Waterman, in 1837; Rev. William Herr, in 1838 and 1839, and Rev. Joseph M. Trimble in 1840 and 1842. There was a remarkable revival during Mr. Trimble's term, at the end of which there was a membership of four hundred and fifty.

Rev. David Whitcomb succeeded in 1842; Rev. Messrs. John Miley and Abram B. Wombaugh, in 1843; Rev. John Miley, in 1844; and Rev. Granville Moody, in 1845 and 1846. At the end of his term Mr. Moody reported six hundred members. At this time Wesley chapel, the first outgrowth of the parent stem, on Town street, was formed. Rev. Cyrus Brooks was appointed to the Town street station in 1847 and '48; Rev. Duval Warnock, in 1849 and '50; Rev. Clinton W. Sears, in 1851, and Rev. Joseph A. Brown, in 1852 and 1853. During this last term the present Town church edifice was commenced and nearly completed. Bigelow chapel society was organized during the same period, taking a goodly colony from the Town street congregation. The Rev. John White was appointed to the station in 1854 and '55; Rev. James M. Jamison, in 1856 and '57; Rev. B. N. Sphar, in 1858 and '59; and Rev. Joseph M. Trimble, in 1860 and '61. The church edifice was completed about this time; and, after the church had suffered much financial embarrassment, the debt was canceled. The succession of ministers for the next decade, was as follows: Rev. Daniel D. Mather, 1862 and '63; Rev. C. A. Van Anda, 1864, '65 and '66; Rev. W. H. Scott, in 1867; Rev. Earl Cranston, 1868; Rev. B. N. Sphar, in 1869 and '70; Rev. C. A. Van Anda, in 1871 and 72; Rev. James Will, in 1873 and '74; and Rev. Isaac F. King, 1876. The church having undergone thorough repairs at a cost of more than three thousand dollars, was reopened November 11, 1877. It is now (August, 1879), entirely out of debt, and has, it is claimed, the largest and most attractive auditorium of any Protestant church in the city. The Town Street church properly includes a comfortable parsonage, and a substatial and attractive church edifice. There is at present a membership of five hundred and five, and a Sunday-school containing three hundred pupils. Dr. J. M. Dunham is superintendant, and J. P. Bliss, secretary. The following are church officers: Rev. Messrs. Benjamin Tressenrider, G. Switzer, P. Kelley, and W. B. Chadwick, local elders; Rev. Messrs. George Weaver, G. Priest, and J. R. Edwards, local preachers. The stewards are: J. M. Dunham, J. H. Squires, W. H. Linn, H. C. Loomis, R. S. McMains, J. B. Kirk, H. J. Maynard, Benjamin Phillips, and J. P. Bliss. The trustees of the church are: M. W. Bliss, C. C. Bellows, W. B. Irwin, P. Twigg,

N. A. Sims, Burris Maynard, and Joseph Martin. The class leaders are: M. W. Bliss, J. B. Kirk, H. J. Wylie, Burris Maynard, Wesley Boyce, Phillip Trigg, H. J. Maynard, J. W. Crawford, Thomas Griffin, and Frank M. Westerman. The Rev. Mr. Bethauser, late of Circleville, was assigned to the charge of this church in the fall of 1879.

WESLEY METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Location—High street, between Gay and Long. This society was organized in 1848, by a division of the Town Street M. E. church, the Rev. George C. Crum taking with him, for the purpose of forming a new organization, to be called the Wesley Chapel M. E. church, one hundred and ninety members. The society erected a church building the same year, which was dedicated during the session of the Ohio annual conference, by Bishop E. S. Janes. The church has been served by the following pastors, in the order given: Revs. George C. Crum, William Lander, John W. Weakley, John Leavith, J. L. Grover, John Frazer, William Porlen, George Brush, George Mather, J. M. Trimble, C. E. Felton, J. Crook, D. H. Moore, and S. A. Keene, pastor in charge in 1872. The church has been remodeled, and greatly improved, at a cost of twenty-eight thousand dollars. The church membership, in 1872, was four hundred and fifty, the Sunday-school numbering three hundred and fifty, with forty officers and teachers. The church property, at that time, was valued at fifty-eight thousand dollars. The minister in charge, in 1879, was the Rev. A. C. Hirst.

ST. PAUL'S AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

This church is the successor of the Bethel Methodist Episcopal church, or, rather, it is the same society, with the name changed. About the year 1823, the colored members of the Town Street Methodist Episcopal congregation separated from their white brethren, and formed a society of their own. Their meetings were held in private rooms until a frame building for their use was erected, on Straight alley. This was occupied until (in 1844) a brick church edifice was built, on east Long near Fourth street. The first board of trustees of Bethel church were: Richard Butcher, sr., Richard Butcher jr., Joseph Harris, James Bland, Hanson Johnson, Allen Brown, and Edward Smith. The first stewards were, Anthony Bassett, B. J. Roberts, and A. M. Taylor. Of all these, Hanson Johnson was, in 1872, the only survivor. The new St. Paul's African Methodist Episcopal church edifice was built, in 1871–2, on a lot on the north side of Long street. The audience-room will seat from seven to eight hundred persons. The total cost of the church property was a little over twenty thousand dollars. The church was dedicated on Sunday, July 21, 1872, Bishop Payne officiating, assisted by Rev. Philip Tolliver, of Chillicothe. Rev. B. B. Arnett is the pastor, in 1879. The Sunday-school numbered, in 1872, one hundred and twenty pupils, and had eighteen teachers, David Streator being the superintendent. There were six hundred volumes in the Sunday-school library. The church has an organ and a choir, and, in 1872, there were two hundred and seventy-six members.

GERMAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

This society was organized in 1843, at which time services were held in the old engine-house belonging to the city, and located on the south side of Mound street. In 1864, the congregation took possession of a good-sized brick building, on the site occupied by their present beautiful church. In this they continued to worship until the increasing membership compelled them to provide a larger church. The erection of the new church was begun in April, 1871, and it was dedicated on Sunday, September 8, 1872. The building is neatly finished, and will seat from five to six hundred persons. A tower and bell have since been added. The Rev. L. Allinger took charge of the congregation, in 1871, and resigned in 1873. Rev. George Schwinn was in charge from 1873, to 1876, and the present pastor, Rev. August Gerlach, from 1876, to 1879. The society membership is about one hundred and seventy, and the Sunday-school pupils number one hundred and seventy-five.

BIGELOW METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

In May, 1853, a mission Sunday-school was established on the corner of Fourth and Friend streets, and Joseph Fitzwater was placed in charge of it. The teachers and pupils, at the opening, numbered thirty-five. Preaching was instituted, Rev. J. A. Bruner, pastor of the Town Street church, and his assistant, Rev. A. B. Mabee, preaching, alternately, at the Sunday-school room and at the city hall, over the market-house. Later in the year, the Ohio conference appointed A. B. Mabee as missionary at this point. In November, 1853, the church was organized. Elijah Grover, A. Cooper, N. Gibbons, M. Halm, J. Fell, J. Whitzell, and B. Barnes, trustees. The necessary funds for building a chapel were raised by subscription, the following spring, and in July, 1864, Bishop Morris dedicated a neat frame building, on the corner of Friend street and Straight alley, the building and site costing four thousand two hundred dollars. In 1859, the chapel was found to be too small, and an exchange was make with the Second Presbyterian congregation, which was about to remove from their church edifice, on the west side of Third street, between Rich and Friend streets, to their new building, on the east side of Third, between State and Town streets. The Methodists took the church building the Presbyterians were about to leave, paying the latter five thousand dollars, and the chapel property, which was considered worth another five thousand, making the cost of their new location ten thousand dollars. In 1864, the society numbered about four hundred members. On the ninth of November, 1869, the church edifice was destroyed by fire, but was immediately rebuilt, the basement and lecture-room being occupied in the following February. December 18, 1870, the finished building was dedicated by Dr. Reed, of Chicago. The reconstructed edifice cost nearly thirteen thousand dollars, and will seat about six hundred persons. The building and lot are valued at about twenty-five thousand dollars. In 1869, the society had built, on an adjoining lot, a parsonage, at a cost, including lot, of three thousand, five hundred dollars, which, fortunately, escaped the flames that destroyed their church. The society is free from debt. The following is a list of the pastors, down to the year 1879: Rev. C. Mabee, one year; Rev. J. H. Creighton, one year; Rev. T. Lee, two years; Rev. L. Taft, two years; Rev. A. G. Byers, fourteen months; Rev. D. H. Moore, ten months; Rev. J. T. Miller, one year; Rev. D. Horlocker, two years; Rev. W. White, three years; Rev. J. H. Gardner, two years: Rev. James Kendall, one year; Rev. J. C. Jackson, three years; Rev. S. D. Hutsinpiller, who is the present pastor.

THIRD AVENUE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

This church is an outgrowth of a Sunday-school organized June 24, 1867, by R. P. Woodruff, esq., in a small brick school-house, located on East Second avenue. November 7, 1867, the church was organized at a meeting called by the missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church of Columbus. M. W. Bliss, M. Halm, H. F. Booth, L. Hillary, Henry O'Kane, John Short, John R. Hughes, and R. P. Woodruff, were elected trustees. The society was called the Mt. Pleasant mission of the Methodist Episcopal church of Columbus. Rev. A. G. Byers, then chaplain of the Ohio State prison, was appointed, by the presiding elder, to the charge of the mission. November 11, 1867, the lot on which the present church stands was purchased by the Methodist missionary society for the sum of one thousand, two hundred and fifteen dollars, its dimensions being one hundred and thirty feet front on High street, and one hundred and ten feet deep on Third avenue. October, 1868, the conference appointed Rev. Lovett Taft, the first pastor of the charge. The society numbered seventeen members at the time of this appointment, and there was a Sunday-school of sixty children. Late in October, of 1868, the erection of a church was begun, which was completed about January 1, 1869. The building was fifty by thirty-one feet, and cost two thousand, five hundred dollars. At the fourth quarterly conference, of that year, the name was changed from Mt. Pleasant to that of Third Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. At the close of this year, the church reported seventy members, and a church property of four thousand dollars. Rev. L. Taft served the church as pastor two years, and was succeeded, in 1870, by Rev. I. B. Bradrick, who served one year. During his pastorate the church lot was cleared of debt. Rev. H. K. Foster became pastor in 1871, but resigning early in 1872, Rev. J. L. Groves supplied the church until October, 1872. During this year a room forty-four by twenty-four feet was added to the north end of the church for class meeting purposes. Rev. R. H. Wallace was appointed by the conference in the autumn of 1872, at which time the membership was one hundred and fifteen, with a Sunday-school of one hundred and sixty pupils. Mr. Wallace was succeeded by Rev. W. D. Cherrington, in 1864, who served one year, and was followed by Rev. E. I. Jones, who served three years, when the present pastor, Rev. S. A. Keen, was appointed, October, 1878. August 1, 1879, an enlargement and improvement of the church was begun, which was completed September 13, 1879. This increased the capacity of the church from two hundred and seventy sittings to four hundred and fifty. The church has now three hundred and twenty-five members, and two hundred and seventy-five enrolled in the Sunday-school. The church property is estimated at ten thousand dollars.

CHRISTIE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

This society was organized, by members principally from the Town Street Methodist Episcopal church, in the year 1860. In 1861, a brick church edifice was built on Cleveland avenue, or Eighth street, at, or near, the intersection of Spring street, extended. Rev. E. W. Kirkham was the first pastor, and organizer. The successive pastors were: Rev. T. W. Stanley, two years; Rev. Ancil Brooks, two years; Rev. J. F. King, one year: E. H. Heagler, three years; Rev. J. M. Jamison, two years; G. W. Burns, pastor in 1872. The society of Christie chapel, at the above date, consisted of about one hundred members, with one hundred pupils in the Sunday-school. Rev. D. Horlocker, pastor in 1879.

HEATH METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

We are not informed as to the early history of this church. It is located on west Broad street, near the east line of the old town of Franklinton. The Rev. D. Y. Murdock became the pastor, in 1873, and continued three years; the Rev. S. C. Frampton, in 1876, continuing two years, and the Rev. Joseph McClusky, who came in 1878, is the present pastor. The number of communicants is one hundred and thirty-seven, and the number of pupils in the Sunday-school, about one hundred and thirty.

BROAD STREET METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The Broad Street Methodist Episcopal church was organized, with one hundred members, July, 1875, by Rev. Joseph M. Trimble. The pastors since that time are Rev. R. W. Manly, and Rev. D. W. Clark, who is now in charge. The present membership is three hundred. The church property is valued at fifteen thousand dollars. The church is out of debt, and will, eventually, build, on Broad street, a suitable church edifice.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CHURCHES.

We learn from the early records of the Episcopal church in the west, that the Rev. Philander Chase, afterwards bishop of the diocese of Ohio, left Connecticut in the year 1817, and came to this part of Ohio to form churches in a region in which, strictly speaking, he was not a pioneer, except in the office which he filled. The township of Sharon, in which Worthington is located, was settled by the "Scioto company," formed in Granby, Connecticut, in the winter of 1801–2. "Obeying, to the letter, the articles of association, the first cabin erected was used for a school-house and church of the Protestant Episcopal denomination." The first Sunday after the arrival of the third family, divine worship was held therein, and, on the arrival of the eleventh family, a school was commenced, though scenes all unfamiliar, and sounds well calculated to draw away the thoughts from the printed page, environed the youthful pupils.

The historian is able, after the lapse of a half century, to pay this tribute to the outgrowth of this sturdy New England wisdom and piety. "This early attention to religion and education, has left its favorable impress upon the character of the people to the present day." This glimpse into earlier history explains the fact that the labors, both of the Rev. Mr. Chase and the Rev. Mr. Preston, were divided, at first, between Worthington and Columbus. It was to gather in the harvest thus planted, and, doubtless, not without tears, when the pleasant New England homes were remembered, that he who was destined to occupy so prominent a place among the standard bearers of the church's host, came thus early into the great west, and, therefore, is this passing glance into remoter causes quite relevant to the history of the establishment of the Episcopal church in Columbus. The Rev. Mr. Chase preached in the Buckeye house, on Broad street, in the then borough of Columbus, on the third of May, 1817, using the liturgy of the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States.

TRINITY CHURCH.

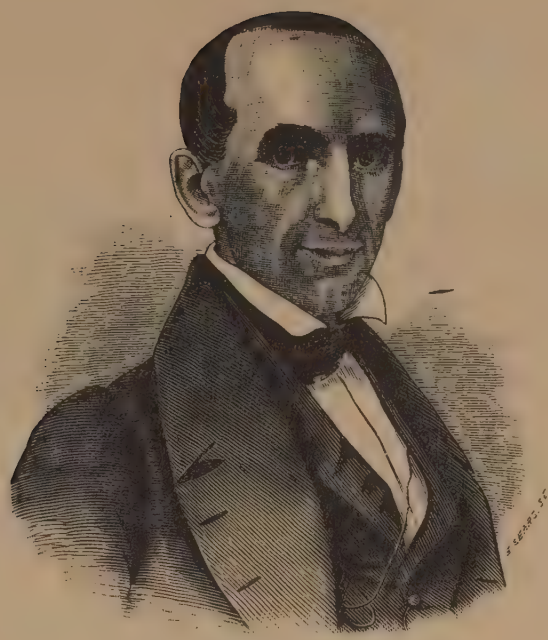
The Rev. Philander Chase preached the second time in Columbus, on Wednesday, May 11, 1817. After service, an instrument was signed by thirty persons, associating themselves as the "Parish of Trinity church, Columbus, State of Ohio, in connection with the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States of America." The signers of this instrument were: Orris Parish, Joel Buttles, Benjamin Gardiner, Alfred Upson, Philo H. Olmsted, John Kilbourne, John Warner, Thomas Johnson, John Webster, George W. Williams, Christopher Ripley, Austin Goodrich, Daniel Smith, Josiah Sabin, Cyrus Allen, Abner Lord, James K. Cary, John C. Brodrick, William K. Lampson, Cyrus Parker, William Rockwell, A. J. McDowell, jr., L. Starling, Cyrus Fay, Charles V. Hickox, John Callitt, Amasa Delano, Silas Williams, James Pearce, M. Mathews. After the third service held in Columbus, on the eleventh of the same month, the organization was completed by the election of vestrymen and wardens. Orris Parish and Benjamin Gardiner were elected wardens; John Kilbourne and Joel Buttles, vestrymen; and Benjamin Gardiner and Joel Buttles, delegates to a diocesan convention, to be held at Columbus, on the first Monday of January, 1818.

The services of the church were subsequently held in several different buildings. Bishop Chase, who was consecrated bishop of Ohio, February 11, 1818, officiated at Worthington, and also at Columbus, when his other duties would permit. Occasionally the assistance of other clergymen was obtained, and members of the congregation, appointed for the purpose, officiated as lay-readers, in the absence of a clergyman. It is recorded that on the 16th of September, 1819, Benjamin Gardiner, and Cyrus Fay, were appointed, "lay-readers, to read the service of the church on each and every Sunday;" and also that on the 10th of September, 1825, Matthew Mathews was appointed lay reader. The Rev. William Preston, the first rector of Trinity church, took charge of the parish, in connection with that of St. John's, Worthington, on Easter Sunday, 1829. At the expiration of two years, he resigned St. John's, giving his whole time to Trinity. At the commencement of his rectorship, there were in the church, seventeen communicants, and eleven families. In 1833, a stone church, costing, with the lot, eleven thousand dollars, was built, on Broad street, on the site now occupied by Hayden's elegant business block. The number of communicants had increased, in the meantime, to one hundred and ten, and the number of families to seventy.

The first marriage on record in the parish, is that of Justin Morrison and Melissa Boardman, solemnized October 20, 1831, by the Rev. William Preston. The first confirmation in the parish was held by the Right Reverend Philander Chase, September 15, 1830. In 1855, during the rectorate of Rev. Charles Reynolds, a lot was purchased, for eight thousand dollars, on the southeast corner of Broad and Sixth streets, with the view of building a church better suited to the needs of the congregation, than that which, built in the infancy of the society, had yet served it for more than twenty years. The foundation of a church was laid on this site, in 1856, but at that point the work was suspended. This lot was sold, subsequently, for over thirteen thousand dollars, and a site was purchased for seven thousand, five hundred dollars, on the southeast corner of Broad and Third streets, and immediately east of Capitol square, one of the finest locations in the city. In 1863, Dr. John Andrews purchased the Broad Street stone church for ten thousand dollars, the sum expended in its erection thirty years before. After a delay of ten years (which resulted, no doubt, in the erection of a finer church edifice than would have been built at an earlier date), the corner stone of the present beautiful church was laid in 1866. Divine service was held, for the first time, in the chapel, on the first Sunday in December, 1867, and the congregation took possession of the church the following easter. The church is of Gothic architecture, and is built of sandstone brought from the vicinity of Newark. The cost of the building, when completed, which from the well-known ability of the society, cannot be long delayed, is estimated at about eighty-five thousand dollars. In interior decoration it compares favorably with church edifices in older and larger cities, and the completion of its tower will make it worthy of its exceptionally fine location, and give it rank among the most imposing church structures in the State. The following is a list of the rectors of Trinity to the present time: The Rev. William Preston, from 1829 to 1841; Rev. Charles Fox, 1841 to 1842; Rev. Alexander F. Dobb, 1842 to 1846; Rev. Dudley A. Tyng, 1847 to 1850; Rev. William Preston, 1850 to 1854; Rev. Charles Reynolds, 1855 to 1858; Rev. G. H. Norton, 1858 to 1859; Rev. Wm. D. Hanson, 1859 to 1860; Rev. Julius E. Grammar, 1861 to 1864; Rev. C. A. L. Richards, 1865 to 1869; Rev. Rufus W. Clark, 1871 to 1877; Rev. C. N. Babcock, from March, 1879, to the present time.

ST. PAUL'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Articles of association having been signed by members of Trinity church, and others, for the purpose of organ-



Truly Yours
S. Brush

Samuel Brush, son of Platt and Elizabeth (Treat) Brush, was born January 13, 1809, in the town of Greene, Chenango county, New York, his father being, at that time, a practicing lawyer in Oxford, in the same county, where they resided until 1815, when the family removed to Chillicothe, Ohio, and his father formed a partnership, in the practice of the law, with his brother, Colonel Henry Brush, then a member of congress.

In 1820 he removed, with the family, to Delaware, Ohio, his father having received the appointment of register of the land office, for the sale of government lands in the seven northwestern counties of Ohio, and resided there until 1828, when his father returned to Chillicothe to live, on his removal by General Jackson, and he himself took charge of the State land office, at Tiffin, Ohio, until his father resigned his office as register thereof.

He was clerk in his father's office from his early youth, and received a classical education, through three private tutors, graduates of colleges, one of whom was General John A. Quitman, afterward governor of, and member of congress from, Mississippi. He read law with his father, who, in the spring of 1830, had removed, with such of his family as were living, to his farm, near Fremont, Ohio. He was admitted to practice law at Tiffin, Ohio, by the supreme court, August 30, 1830—his uncle, Judge Brush, being one of the judges on the bench. The court was held at Tiffin, but the judges and lawyers boarded at Fort Ball, where his examination took place, before a committee of the ablest lawyers of the bar, on the favorable result of which, Judge Brush, his uncle, congratulated him, as he had feared that he would not be found qualified. He was admitted to practice in the circuit and district courts of the United States, for Ohio, in 1831, and in the supreme courts of the United States and district court of the District of Columbia in the winter of 1840–41.

In the spring of 1831 he left Fremont, on account of his health, and went to reside in West Union, Adams county, Ohio, and there practiced law, and was elected prosecuting attorney, in October, 1833, serving as such two years. He then went to Batavia, Clermont county, Ohio, and there practiced until the fall of 1836, when he removed to Columbus, Ohio, and opened an office in December, of that year, on State street, adjoining the office of Starling & Gilbert, who dissolved partnership in 1837, when he formed a partnership with M. J. Gilbert, under the firm name of Brush & Gilbert, which firm did a large and lucrative business in Columbus for several years. He acquired the title of major while in Columbus, by holding the commission of brigade inspector. He was elected vice-president upon the organization of the Franklin County Agricultural society, and was afterwards elected president, and served two years, during which period the fair grounds were purchased and buildings erected thereon, at a cost of over six thousand dollars, and when he retired the society was out of debt, and had a surplus of two hundred dollars in the treasury.

He was president of, and built, the Columbus and Granville plank road.

In 1859 he retired from the practice, and removed to Canandaigua, New York, and engaged in farming, residing on a farm at the head of the main street of the village. During the civil war, although foreseeing the demoralization that would result therefrom, he contributed all in his power to aid in its prosecution, for the purpose of restoring the Union and maintaining the laws of the United States, and purchased a substitute for his son, who was at college, and not liable to the draft. His son, Henry Bush, having graduated at Hobart college, studied law, and being admitted to practice, in the fall of 1868, he opened a law office with him in the city of Buffalo, New York, where they practiced two years, and, their health failing them, they returned to Canandaigua, and his son alone continued the practice until his death, on July 17, 1879. His death, so unexpected, at the time when he had required a reputation as a sound lawyer and able advocate, was the greatest misfortune of his father's life, as he was an only child.

Mr. Brush, as a lawyer, was a superior special pleader, no case prepared by him having ever been lost, or judgment reversed for defective pleading. His mind possessed great powers of concentration, and he handled with ability a great number and variety of facts and points in the trial of important causes. He was a man of great industry in pushing his business, being always ready for trial in his cases, but never encouraged litigation, but always advised his clients to settle.

He was always true to his friends, and grateful for, and prompt to return, all favors, and willing and ready to forgive all attempts to injure him; a man of undoubted integrity of character, and sincere in his opinions, conservative and independent in his politics, and anti-sectarian in his religious views, and a firm believer in the truth of christianity, and of the salvation of all those who believe in the atonement and try to live in accordance with the precepts of Jesus Christ.

He was married June 7, 1843, at Port Gibson, Ontario county, New York, to Cornelia A. Jenkins, daughter of Lewis Jenkins, esq., and granddaughter of Judge Moses Atwater, of Canandaigua, New York. His wife is still living.

izing a parish of the Protestant Episcopal church in the southern part of the city of Columbus, a site was selected on the corner of Mound and Third streets, and the foundation of a church edifice laid in the autumn of 1841. At a meeting of the parish, held on the first day of December, 1842, the Rev. H. L. Richards, who had been called to the rectorate of the new parish, presided, and F. J. Mathews acted as secretary. Having chosen St. Paul's as the name of their parish church, they completed their organization by the election of the following officers: A. Buttles, senior warden; J. N. Whiting, junior warden; Henry Mathews, Moses Altman, John Burr, and Herman M. Hubbard, vestrymen. The church edifice having been enclosed, and commodious Sunday-school and lecture rooms finished in the basement, the services of the church were commenced on the first Sunday in Advent, 1842. The church was completed and consecrated in 1844. The rectorate of the Rev. Henry L. Richards terminated at Easter, 1848. In July, of the same year, he was succeeded by the Rev. Alfred M. Lontrel, and the latter in 1851, by the Rev. Thomas P. Tyler, who remained only a few months, and returned to New York. The Rev. W. Norman Irish became rector in 1852, and resigned in the summer of 1855. The Rev. E. B. Kellogg officiated in the church for some months, when the Rev. I. A. M. La Tourette entered upon his rectorate, on the first Sunday after Ascension day, 1856. The Rev. James L. Grover became rector in March, 1858, and continued until June, 1862. The Rev. George Seabury, the next rector, commenced his duties in 1864, and resigned in January, 1867. He was succeeded in September, 1867, by the Rev. C. C. Tate, who continued rector until November, 1872, when he removed to the diocese of Indiana. The Rev. C. H. Kellogg succeeded to the charge of the parish in the same year, and continued until 1874, when he was succeeded by the present rector, the Rev. R. W. Graange.

The church edifice of this parish is a substantial brick structure, and, though making no claim to architectural beauty, the interior is churchly and attractive. There has been a steady increase in the number of communicants, and the parish is thoroughly organized for effective work. The following are the officers elected at the Easter election of 1879: ————, senior warden; Lincoln G. Hilbourn, junior warden; James Hershaw, W. T. Williams, Leo Lesquereux, F. J. Williams, Henry Butler, and Charles G. Lord, vestrymen; R. W. Linnen, secretary of vestry and treasurer of the parish. There are also, in connection with the parish and for the furtherance of church work, the following named organizations: St. Paul's Church guild, Sunday-school, branch of Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions, Ladies' Aid society, Altar committee, and Ladies' Visiting committee, with assigned districts.

TRIAL OF THE REV. COLIN C. TATE.

A brief record of this trial, which properly belongs to a history of the St. Paul's parish, is appended. An ecclesiastical court, for the trial of the Rev. Colin C. Tate, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church in the city of Columbus, convened at Trinity church, October 26, 1869. The court was composed of the Rev. Lewis Burton, D. D., of Cleveland; Rev. J. Maxwell, of Youngstown; Rev. William Bowen, of Newark; Rev. E. C. Benson, of Gambier; and Rev. N. R. High, of Toledo. The charges against Mr. Tate were "that he had a choir of boys dressed in white surplices, whom he permitted to sing while coming into and going out of church." The prosecution was represented by Rev. Samuel Clemens, church advocate; Judge J. R. Swan, of Columbus; Judge Jones, of Delaware; and General Mitchel, of Columbus. The defence was represented by Rev. Dr. Thrall, of Massachusetts; Rev. A. H. Washburne, of Cleveland; Judge Otis, of Chicago; and Thomas Sparrow, of Columbus. The defence entered a plea to the jurisdiction of the court. The question was elaborately argued on both sides. On the fourth day of the session, the president announced that the court was equally divided on the plea of jurisdiction, but that he should sustain the plea by his casting vote. Thus the court was dissolved in the same manner as a preceding one had been, which was convened for the same purpose.

CHURCH OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

This church was commenced as a mission of Trinity church, the parent society of this communion in the city. It was located in a portion of the city much in need of church privileges, owing to the fact that church building had tended to cluster about the central part of the city. It started with a Sunday-school numbering one hundred and sixty-five pupils. Other denominations building in the immediate neighborhood, soon after the opening of the mission, the number of pupils has somewhat diminished, though the interest manifested on the part of the congregation, and by the officers and pupils of the Sunday-school, has been most encouraging. "You will find that a willingness to work characterizes the people of the Good Shepherd," said one competent to judge, and with this spirit pervading an enterprise, success may safely be predicted. The mission was at first under the care of Rev. C. M. Sturges, assistant minister of Trinity, who resigned in 1875. Rev. J. Mills Kendrick became minister in July, of the same year, and in May, following, was made rector, the church at that date (May, 1876,) being regularly organized. A neat brick church had been previously built, at a cost of five thousand, three hundred dollars. The success of the parish is due, in a great measure, to the zeal and liberality of members of the parent society. Augustus N. Whiting, the superintendent of the Sunday-school, though a communicant of Trinity, has continued to pass the door of his own parish church, and that not far from his own, to give his influence and labor to the building up of a feeble congregation. Nor have these examples of self-devotion been lost upon the young society. Scarcely had it ceased to be a mission itself, when, under the leadership of its young and zealous rector, the Rev. E. J. Humes, who succeeded Rev. Mr. Kendrick, in 1878, a mission of the church was established in a much-neglected district in the northeastern part of the city, where, it is believed, it will accomplish great good. About five hundred dollars were expended in repairing and beautifying the church, a new chancel screen, and judicious frescoing, adding much to the attractiveness of the interior. There are, at present, one hundred and seventeen communicants, and one hundred and thirty-eight pupils in the Sunday-school. A. N. Whiting and Alvan Hyde, are wardens, and J. N. Champion, James Alexander, J. R. Topping, C. E. Fish, and J. G. Reams, vestrymen.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCHES.

A history of the Roman Catholic diocese of Columbus, will serve to emphasize this truth, everywhere observable in regard to the people of this faith: They find the means, be it from their penury or their abundance, to build churches, and found hospitals and schools. Let no organization, human or divine, hope to emulate their unchecked prosperity, until it can show an equal zeal and devotion to the cause it has essayed to defend. "A word to the wise is sufficient." Previous to the year 1833, the services of this church were held at long intervals, the congregation consisting of laborers on the National road, a few German residents, and farmers in the vicinity. A hall in the Paul Pry house was first used for these services, and afterwards the houses of several members of the church. Those of George Studer, John Burke, and John McCurtney, being still held in reverential regard from their associations with those early times. Their first deed in trust bears date May 15, 1833. This was the deed of a lot on the northeast corner of Rich and Fifth streets, donated by Otis, Phebe W., Samuel, and Margaret Crosby, and Nathaniel and Caroline E. Medbury; the condition of the conveyance of this lot being that a church was "required to be built" on it within five years from the date of the deed. The first celebration of high mass in the church thus built, was held April 29, 1838, Father H. D. Juncker, afterwards bishop of Alton, Illinois, being the celebrant. Father Young, who was sent by the bishop, in 1839, to take charge of the church in Columbus, died bishop of Erie, Pennsylvania, in 1866. On the eighth of December, 1839, Archbishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, held, in the new church, the first confirmation, and in the evening delivered a sermon in the senate chamber of the old State house. In 1844 it was found that the congregation had outgrown their first church, and was rapidly increasing. The result of the movement then made was the building of the present church edifice, on the corner of Rich and Fifth streets, known as

HOLY CROSS CHURCH.

Father William Schonant, who had taken charge of the church February 25, 1843, continued pastor until the new church was completed. He was succeeded by Rev. C. H. Borgess, afterwards made bishop of Detroit, who remained about ten years. During his administration the church tower was built, at a cost of about seven thousand dollars. Improvements were also made in the interior of the church building, including a new pulpit, a St. Mary's altar, an organ, and the church bells, at an aggregate cost of two thousand nine hundred dollars. The Very Reverend J. B. Hemsteger, V. G., by order of Archbishop Purcell, took charge of the congregation May 5, 1859. During his connection with the church a splendid school-house and a fine pastoral residence were erected on the church premises. The present pastor [1879] is the Rev. J. H. Ahrens. The church property, in 1872, was valued at ninety-five thousand dollars, and the number of members was two thousand one hundred.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH.

An organization for the purpose of building this church was formed by Rev. John Furlong, the first Irish priest stationed in Columbus. He was succeeded, the next year, by the Rev. James Meagher, who, through John D. Clark, purchased of Robert Neil, for one thousand dollars, a lot on the northeast corner of Seventh and Maghten streets. The corner stone of St. Patrick's church was laid September 5, 1852, and the church was dedicated September 25, 1853, by Archbishop Purcell. In the rear of the church, and connected with it, is a substantial dwelling, containing ten rooms, and having large halls, basement, and cellar. It is at present the bishop's house. Father Meagher, assisted by Rev. Edmund D. Flahery, continued pastor of St. Patrick's congregation till 1857, when he was succeeded by Rev. Edward M. Fitzgerald. The latter was pastor till he was created bishop of Little Rock, Arkansas, in 1867. He was assisted, during his pastorate, by the following priests, in succession: Rev. Messrs. John Murray, Jos. Fitzgerald, and F. C. Mallon. Immediately after Bishop Fitzgerald's departure, Bishop Sylvester Horton Rosecrans, D. D., consecrated, March 25, 1862, auxiliary bishop of Cincinnati, Ohio, took charge of St. Patrick's congregation, and continued in that relation a brief period, until the diocese of Columbus was established, March 3, 1868, of which he was created the first bishop. He was assisted by Rev. George H. Ahrens, afterwards chancellor of the diocese, who was succeeded by Father Gonesse. Rev. James Daly and Rev. N. A. Gallagher also assisted for some time. Rev. J. A. Murray was pastor of the congregation in 1872, and the church numbered one thousand members, the church property being valued at forty thousand dollars. Rev. Jno. C. Madden is the present pastor.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

In the spring of 1865, at a meeting of the Holy Cross congregation to consider the propriety of building a church in the southern part of the city, it was decided to proceed, at first, with the erection of a school-house. The school-house, and improvements, cost nine thousand dollars. In 1866, the present St. Mary's church was begun, and the foundation laid. Rev. Father F. H. Specht, who had come to the city to assist at Holy Cross church, and afterwards, if found necessary, to build a new church, was placed in supervision of the new structure. The building was completed in 1868, at a cost of forty thousand dollars. The church was dedicated on the twenty-eighth of November, 1868, by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Roscrans, assisted by the neighboring clergy. The church seated, at its consecration, a congregation of seven hundred, and, with the available space, could be made to seat one of one thousand. Father Specht, the present pastor, was appointed to that office in 1868, by Bishop Rosecrans, at the request of a large number of the congregation. A fine pastoral residence was built, in 1872, at a cost of six thousand dollars. The value of the church property, in 1872, was seventy-five thousand dollars. The school connected with the church contains about two hundred and thirty pupils, and the congregation numbers one thousand, five hundred. St. Mary's has a chime of three bells, procured from Mr. Meneely, of West Troy, New York, at a cost of two thousand, two hundred dollars.

ST. JOSEPH'S CATHEDRAL.

Next to the State house, the most substantial and imposing edifice in the capital of Ohio, is St. Joseph's cathedral. It is a noble structure; creditable to the enterprise and devotion of the Roman Catholic church, and an ornament of which the city may well be proud.

The cathedral stands on the northwest corner of Broad and Fifth streets, having a frontage of one hundred and twenty feet, on Broad, with a depth of two hundred feet on Fifth street. The lots were purchased in 1866, for fifteen thousand dollars, and excavations for the foundation were made during the summer of the same year. The corner-stone was laid, with much pomp, on the eleventh of November, following; the Right Reverend Bishop Rosecrans, then co-adjutor to the Most Reverend J. B. Purcell, D. D., arch-bishop of Cincinnati, officiating. Papal bulls having arrived in March, 1868, making Columbus an Episcopal see, it was decided that the proposed new church should be the cathedral, and that it should be built of stone instead of brick, making such changes only in the plan, as the change of material might suggest. One of the changes was the taking up of the foundation walls, to lay them deeper and wider. Another, was the adding of the tower and baptistry on the southwest corner. The arching of the windows, and the supports of the clear story, carry out the directions of Gen. W. S. Rosecrans, who, in the summer of 1870, spent several days with his brother, the bishop, aiding in the details of the work. Michael Fahey, of this city, previous to 1872, had been for two years superintendent of the work, which rapidly progressed under his supervision.

On the twenty-fifth day of December, 1872, Mass was first celebrated in St. Joseph's cathedral, by Right Rev. S. H. Rosecrans, who had entire charge, as pastor; assisted by Rev. J. A. Murray. The cathedral is Gothic, in the style of architecture, the material of the walls being sandstone—of the kind which, instead of disintegrating, hardens by exposure to the atmosphere. The stone has been brought from different quarries, principally from Hanover and Clay Lick, a portion from Lansaster, and some from Haydenville. The windows are cased in freestone, mostly obtained at Lithopolis, Pickaway county. The brackets are cut from Columbus limestone, about the only stone in the structure procured at home. The cost of the edifice, when completed, will not be less than a quarter of million of dollars. In 1874, the priests assisting the Bishop, were Rev. Henry Anderson, Rev. T. J. Campbell, and M. M. Meara; in 1875 Rev. M. M. Meara and Rev. M. A. Hartnedy; in 1876, Rev. M. M. Meara and Rev. G. H. Ahrens, chancellor of the diocese, both of whom remained at the cathedral till the death of Bishop Rosecrans, October 21, 1878. In this year the cathedral was plastered, at a cost of three thousand dollars. On October 20, 1878, St. Joseph's cathedral was solemnly consecrated to the srevices of God, by Bishop Dwenger, of Fort Wayne, Indiana. Eight bishops, nearly one hundred priests, and an immense concourse of people from different parts of the State attended. The next evening, October 21, 1878, God called to himself the beloved and sainted Bishop Rosecrans, whose funeral took place from the cathedral, the following Friday, Bishop Foley, of Chicago, preaching an eloquent sermon. Very Rev. N. A. Gallagher was then appointed administrator of the diocese of Columbus, by the arch-bishop of Cincinnati, until a successor to Bishop Rosecrans shall be chosen by the Pope. Rev. M. M. Meara is at present pastor, assisted by Rev. F. Woesman. The administrator, Very Rev. N. A. Gallagher, resides at the cathedral, and also Rev. J. Kuehn, chaplain to the Roman Catholic inmates of the State prison.

CHURCH OF THE HOLY FAMILY.

This church is situated on the west side, in the old town of Franklinton. The building was purchased of the United Brethren, in June, 1877, under the pastorate of the Rev. R. C. Christy, who died in St. Francis' hospital, on October 16, 1878, after an illness of about six months. His successor in the pastorate was the Rev. T. C. Reynolds, who came about the last of June, 1878, and remained till March, 1879. The Rev. W. F. Hayes came, about the time Father Reynolds left, and is still in charge. Adjoining the church is a parsonage and a commodious school-building, the school being under the charge of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

BAPTIST CHURCHES—THE FIRST BAPTIST.

The history of this church runs through a period of more than fifty years. In February, 1823, Rev. George Jeffries, a Baptist minister, settled in Columbus, and immediately began preaching in his own house. In the spring of 1824, eleven persons organized themselves into a congregation, and, on the 15th of May, were duly recognized by an ecclesiastical council, and received into the sisterhood of churches. Elder Jeffries continued to preach to the church, and in April, 1825, was formally called to be its pastor, though receiving little or no pecuniary compensation, and still holding the meetings in his own house. In 1830, it appears, Elder Jeffries built a school-house, to which the meetings were transferred. This school-house was between Front and Mound streets, in the rear of St. Paul's German Lutheran church. In April, 1831, the church purchased a lot on Front street, near the corner of Mound, paying for it one hundred and seventy-five dollars. On this a small brick church was built, at the cost of many sacrifices on the part of the few members; the pastor and his wife, as well as others, laboring with their own hands to complete it. On the Saturday before the first Sunday in May, 1832, they held their first season of worship in their new house. In the meantime, several prominent Baptists having settled in the city, and thinking the church not sufficiently aggressive, and not taking the stand in the community which the importance of the cause demanded, determined to take steps for a more efficient organization. An appeal was made to the American Home Missionary society for aid. As the result of this movement, the Rev. T. R. Cressy was commissioned by that society, and sent to labor as a missionary in Columbus. At his arrival, in the summer of 1835, a general meeting of all interested was called, with a view to consolidate the Baptist element of the population into one organization. This meeting was held in Trinity Episcopal church, on Broad street, Rev. Mr. Preston having generously offered its use for this purpose. This conference resulted in the union of the Independent Baptists and the Welsh church, with the original organization; Mr. Jeffries resigning, and Mr. Cressy assuming the pastorate, with a church numbering fifty-six members. The Welsh members were, from the first, a useful and efficient element in the Baptist organization. Rev. John Harris, who came in with them, was a devout and earnest man, whose zealous exhortations and fervent prayers, were remembered by many, long after he had passed from earth. He died December 12, 1863, in the seventy-seventh year of his age. Early in Mr. Cressy's pastorate, a movement was made to furnish the congregation with a church edifice suited to its needs, both in size and location. A lot was secured, on the corner of Rich and Third streets, and the lecture-room of the new church was occupied for public worship in 1837, though the church was not dedicated until November 1, 1840. Mr. Cressy resigned, in 1842, leaving a membership of one hundred and ninety-two, and a rich legacy in the impress of a godly life, which shall stimulate christian activities in the years to come. The pastors following Mr. Cressy were: Rev. Daniel Eldridge, two and a half years; Rev. D. B. Cheney, five and one half years; Rev. Henry Davis, five years; Rev. D. A. Crandall, seven and one fourth years; Rev. George S. Chase, one and one-fourth year; and Rev. J. W. Osborne, five years. In 1869, the church building, erected in 1840, was removed and enlarged, at an outlay of eight thousand dollars, and will cost, when the tower is completed, about thirteen thousand dollars. The number of members, in 1873, was about three hundred and fifty, there being a large and efficient Sunday-school, under the superintendence of L. D. Myers, and two mission schools—one in the north, and one (at Mount Airy), in the northeast part of the city. The pastor, at that time, was Rev. I. F. Stidman, of Philadelphia, who commenced his labors October 1, 1872. The trustees, of the church were: Dr. J. M. Wheaton, L. D. Myers, Jeffrey Powell, B. J. Loomis, L. L. Smith, Abel Hildreth, and A. B. Lawrence; James Somers being the clerk, and Charles E. Batterson, treasurer. Mr. Stidman is still the master.

SECOND BAPTIST CHURCH.

This is an organization formed in the year 1837, and had, in the year 1872, a membership numbering three hundred. The church is located at the southeast corner of Gay and Lazelle streets, and has a flourishing Sunday-school, containing one hundred and twenty pupils. The pastor, at the above date, was Rev. James Poindexter, and the superintendent of the Sunday-school was Wm. H. Roney. At the same date, the other church officers were: A. Lewis, M. McGee, J. Dickey, James Shelton, M. Trent, trustees; J. Hooper, E. Trent, C. Houston, N. Lynn, J. Johnson, deacons. The Rev. Mr. Poindexter is still the pastor of the Second Baptist church.

SHILOH BAPTIST CHURCH.

This church is located on east Long, between Third and High streets. At a meeting, held on the eighth of August, 1869, an organization was effected, with a membership of fifty-five. Prominent among the members were elders James Shewcraft and F. Mitchell. In November, 1871, Colman C. Smith purchased the present church building, from John Miller, banker, at a cost of four thousand, two hundred dollars. The officers of the church, at the same date, were as follows: Henry Hill, Henry Allen, W. B. Ferguson, C. Richardson, James Shelton, Robert Johnson, and Wayman Baley, deacons; C. C. Smith, C. K. Harris, N. Baley, R. Johnson, and M. Randolph, trustees; Henry Hill, treasurer; John M. Booker, clerk. The number of members, at the above date, was one hundred and ninety. The number of Sunday-school pupils is twenty-three, with C. C. Smith as superintendent.

THE UNIVERSALIST SOCIETY.

The first Universalist preaching in Columbus, was about the year 1837. The first regular minister of that denomination, who preached in the city, was Rev. A. A. Davis, of Delaware county. He continued to preach here a year or two, assisted, occasionally, by other preachers, the meetings being held in the United States court house. The Rev. Mr. Saddler succeeded him, preaching at the same place, and continuing also a year or two. After an interval of two years, the Rev. Mr. Abel was engaged, and continued six months, followed by the Rev. Mr. Anderson, for about the same time, and Rev. George Rogers, who preached only for a short period. The meetings, at this time, were held in a hired room, in Mr. Buttles' building, corner of High and Friend streets. The Universalist society of Columbus was organized in March, 1845, and consisted of thirty-eight members. This organization was made under an act of the legislature, to incorporate certain churches therein named. The first board of trustees were John Greenwood, John Field, James W. Osgood, Demas Adams, and William Bambrough. The Rev. Mr. Eaton preached for the society for a few months, the Rev. Nelson Doolittle commencing his labors as pastor in October, 1845. The present church edifice was built in 1846, on a lot on the east side of Third street, between Town and Rich streets. Mr. Doolittle resigned his charge in the fall of 1851, and was succeeded, the next spring, by Rev. N. M. Gaylord, from Lowell, Massachusetts. Mr. Gaylord continued till the fall of 1854, and then removed to Boston. During the years 1855 and 1856, Rev. Messrs. Gifford, Up son, and Hawes, officiated as pastors. In the fall of the latter year, Rev. H. R. Nye became the pastor of the society, and continued in that relation till April, 1859. Mr. Nye was followed by Rev. Thomas Gorman, whose ministry began in the winter of 1859, and closed in 1861. Rev. J. S. Cantwell succeeded Mr. Gorman, and continued till 1865, when he was succeeded by Rev. A. W. Bruce, who resigned in 1868. Rev. T. Gorman acted as temporary supply until September, 1869, when Rev. E. L. R Reexford, the pastor in 1872, was called from Cincinnati. The officers of the society, at that date, were: O. F. Evans, president; A. B. Robinson, secretary; G. W. Sinks, treasurer; John Field, Isaac Eberly, E. T. Hancock, B. F. Martin, and Thomas Lough, trustees. In 1872, the society numbered one hundred and sixty, and the number of church members was one hundred and fifteen. There were also one hundred and forty pupils in the Sunday-school. The Rev. T. P. Abell is the present pastor.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES—FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

On the twenty-sixth of September, 1852, a certificate of dismission was given to forty-two members of the Second Presbyterian church, "for the purpose of being organized into a new church, to be called the Third Presbyterian church of Columbus." This organization was completed on the twenty-ninth of the same month, the church thus formed adopting rules of government identical with those of the church from which they came; that is, partly Presbyterian and partly Congregational. Under that name the church continued over three years, being, during that time, under the pastoral care of the Rev. Wm. H. Marble. The first officers were as follows: Warren Jenkins, M. B. Bateham, J. W. Hamilton, L. L. Rice, elders; T. S. Baldwin, L. L. Rice, F. C. Sessions, trustees. On the third of November, 1856, by a unanimous vote of the members, the name was changed to that of the First Congregational church of Columbus, thus conforming altogether to the polity of that denomination. Rev. J. M. Steele was installed as pastor on the seventh of the same month. The very acceptable labors of Mr. Steele were cut short by his sudden death, from small-pox, in the city of New York, April 5, 1857. Rev. N. A. Hyde, of New York, officiated as stated supply from December, 1857, to June 1, 1858. The handsome church edifice, on Broad street, facing the State house square, was dedicated December 21, 1857. The Rev. Henry B. Elliott, from Connecticut, was installed November 9, 1858, and continued as pastor until May 11, 1860. Rev. Edward P. Goodwin, from Vermont, was installed February 26, 1861, continuing his pastorate until December 15, 1867, when he resigned to accept a call to Chicago. Rev. George W. Phillips, from Massachusetts, was installed as Mr. Godwin's successor, May 12, 1868, and resigned his pastorate in 1871. Rev. Robert G. Hutchins, the present pastor, accepted a call, and entered upon his labors in this church on Sunday, October 27, 1872. Marked prosperity attended the labors of the foregoing pastors; six hundred and fifty-one members having been received into the church up to the close of Mr. Phillips' pastorate, in 1871, the membership at that time being about three hundred. The church building had just been remodeled and enlarged. and a building for Sunday-school and social purposes, adjoining the church, erected at a cost of about twenty-five thousand dollars.

WESLH PRESBYTERIAN, OR CONGREGATIONAL, CHURCH.

This church was organized by the Rev. Dr. James Hoge, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, about Christmas, 1837. The membership, at first, was but twelve, and the first officers were: David Davis, elder, and William Jones, deacon. The church has met every Sunday for worship, and kept up a regular Sunday-school, since its organization, though it has been, much of the time, without a pastor. The first preacher was Hugh Price, who took charge of the church in 1838, and continued his pastorate about two years, preaching, however, only half of the time. His successors were: Rev. Seth Powell, for four years, and Rev. James Price for a year and a half. After a vacancy, during which there was only occasional preaching, the Rev. B. Evans was engaged for a year and a half; Rev. Reese Powell, for five years; Rev. John H. Jones, for four years; Rev. Reese Powell, being engaged a second time, remained ten years (till 1869); Rev. John Jones was then engaged for about a year and a half. After this, Rev. Mr. Evans, a resident of the city, preached occasionally, but the church was, for some time, without a settled pastor. For several years after its organization, the meetings of the church were held in various places, and sometimes at the residence of David Davis. Finally, a brick school-house, on the corner of Fourth and Oak streets, was rented, and there the congregation met until its present house of worship was built, in 1845, on the north side of Town street, between Fifth and Sixth streets. The Town Street church was incorporated April 10, 1872, under the name of the "Welsh Congregational church," with the following persons named as trustees: David Price, John Davies, John Bain, Richard Brown, and Jonathan Stephens. Though reduced, in 1849, to its original number, twelve, by a large number of its members leaving to help form the Welsh Methodist Calvanistic church, it has now [1879] a membership of over eighty, and is doing active missionary work among the Welsh people who come to the city. The Rev. John Jones is the present pastor.

HIGH STREET CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

This church was organized March 9, 1872, twenty-seven members from the First church having been dismissed at their own request, for the purpose, and eleven from other churches uniting in the organization. The corner-stone of a church edifice, to be erected on the west side of High street, north of Capital university (now Park hotel), was laid on Monday, September 9, 1872. The structure gives ample evidence of the wise liberality of the new congregation, and is located in the midst of an intelligent and rapidly increasing population. Rev. S. M. Merrill was first placed in charge of the church, services being held in a temporary chapel until the church was completed. Mr. Merrill was succeeded by Rev. A. H. Ross, in February, 1873. The present pastor is the Rev. E. K. Squires. The church, including the ground, cost about twenty thousand dollars. The first officers of the church were as follows: S. M. Hotchkiss, C. H. Walker, L. P. Rose, W. Jenkins, deacons; E. C. Beach, clerk and treasurer; W. A. Hershiser, S. E. Samuel, and David Price, trustees.

NORTH COLUMBUS CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

This church was organized about the year 1874, the Rev. James Harris being the first pastor, and continuing in that relation to the church until 1878, when he resigned. The Rev. Mr. Jones is acting pastor of the church at present—August, 1879.

ST. PAUL'S GERMAN EVANGELICAL CHURCH.

This is one of the oldest church organizations in the city, its origin dating back as far as 1821. For many years it was without a church edifice, its services being held in a frame building on Third street. Several pastors served the congregation previous to 1843, when the Rev. Conrad Mees, the present pastor, assumed the charge. In 1844, a large brick church edifice was built on the southwest corner of High and Mound streets. Like most of the German congregations in this country, its growth was attended by many severe trials, both internal and external. A sad calamity befell the society, in the autumn of 1866, in the destruction of their church, by fire, twelve years after it was built. With the church, an organ, said to be the finest in the city, was also destroyed, there being no insurance on either. But this new calamity, as has often been observed in other destructions by fires, developed an unsuspected strength in the struggling congregation. Through the unaided exertions of the society, the first anniversary of the fire was celebrated by the consecration of a new church, though not entirely completed. The church has a very desirable location, and the congregation, said to be one of the largest in the city, has, for more than twenty years, occupied its rebuilt edifice. It is most creditable, to both pastor and people, that for thirty-six years, the bond which should unite the pastor to his flock, has been held too sacred to be sundered for a trivial cause. The Sunday-school and choir of St. Paul's German Lutheran church, naturally partaking of this conservative element, have passed through a quarter of a century without any change in their organization, or interruption in their regular Sunday offices—content to walk with the same pastor in the old paths.

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

In the year 1866, was organized the First United Brethren church. The church edifice is located on the south side of Town street, between Fourth and Fifth streets. The church property is valued at fifteen thousand dollars. Rev. W. B. Davis was the first pastor, Rev. James H. Dickson, being the pastor in 1872. The trustees at that date were Samuel Hively, John Helpman, and Isaac Winter. There were also, at the same date, forty-four members, and a Sunday-school with sixty pupils. We applied for items of subsequent history, but none were furnished.

OLIVE BRANCH CHURCH.

This church, located in Neil's addition, near the Piqua railroad shops, was organized in 1867, by Rev. W. B. Davis after his retirement from the pastorate of the First church. The pastor in 1872 was Rev. W. H. Spencer. The trustees, at that time, were: George Davidson, John Nelson, Joseph Fuller, John Henvon, and William B. Davis. The church had at that time ninety members, and a Sunday-school of one hundred and ten pupils, with Samuel Mateer as superintendent. The property was then valued at three thousand five hundred dollars.

GERMAN UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH.

This church was organized in 1868. It is located on the south side of Friend street, east of Seventh. It had, in 1872, twenty-five members, and fifty pupils in the Sunday-school. The church property was then valued at four thousand dollars. No response was made to our circular requesting further information.

TRINITY GERMAN EVANGELICAL CHURCH.

This church was organized in 1847, by Rev. F. W. Lehman, its first, and to this date [1872], only pastor. Its first meetings were held in Mechanics' hall—afterwards in Mound street German church, and other places. Its present large church edifice, on the northeast corner of Third and South streets, was erected in 1856 and 1858, and will comfortably seat one thousand persons. The number of communicants in 1872, was five hundred and seventy-seven, and the Sunday school had an average attendance of about two hundred, there being also regular catechetical exercises on Sunday afternoons in the church, in presence of the congregation. This church is now [1879] under the pastoral care of the Rev. R. Herbst. There are, in connection with the church, three societies, having in view the furtherance of the interests of the congregation, called men's, women's, and youths' monthly meetings. Besides, most of the members of the congregation are attached to an association organized for the care and support of sick members.

THE GERMAN INDEPENDENT PROTESTANT CHURCH.

In February, 1843, a society was formed under this name, with the following officers: Louis Hoster, president; N. Maurer and Otto Frankenburg, vice-presidents; Peter Ambos and J. P. Bruck, secretaries; Jacob Silbernagle, treasurer. Rev. A. L. Begeman became the first pastor. In April, of the same year, a lot was purchased on Mound street, near Third, and the corner stone of the new church was laid, on the fifth of June, following, and on the seventh of December, the church was completed and dedicated. The church membership, in 1872, was two hundred and eighty-one; pupils in the Sunday-school, three hundred and ten. The pastor, in 1879, is the Rev. Christian Heddaeus.

EMMANUEL'S CHURCH.

Emmanuel's church, on Friend street, between Seventh and Washington avenue, is a mission of the German Evangelical Association, organized about the year 1857, by the Rev. John Barnhard. It numbered, in 1872, thirty-seven members. The trustees of the church at that time were C. Emrich, P. Schneider, and J. Ruppesberger. There are about seventy-five pupils in the Sunday-school, and, at the above date, the Rev. Noah Schupp was pastor. He was succeeded by the Rev. D. H. Rosenburg, who is, at the present time, in charge of the congregation.

THE HEBREW TEMPLE.

About the year 1852, a congregation was formed, the few Israelites in the city having previously met, without organization, in private rooms or rented halls. Joseph Gundersheimer was first president of the congregation, and S. Lazarus, who had filled a similar office in Germany, acted as minister, without compensation. His successors were: Revs. Messrs. Goodman, Weil, Hess, Lippman, Wetterham; Schoenberg, and Rosenthal. The present congregation, under the name of B'nai Israel, was formed August 12, 1868, with nineteen members. A handsome lot was purchased, on the northwest corner of Friend and Third streets, upon which the temple now stands, and for which five thousand dollars was paid. Liberal subscriptions to the building fund were obtained at the east, and elsewhere, as well as from the citizens of Columbus. The corner-stone of the temple was laid on Sunday, May 1, 1870, and the temple was dedicated on the 16th of September, of the same year. Rev. Dr. J. Wechsler, of Nashville, Tennessee, became their minister. in August, 1870, though declining a more lucrative position tendered him at Selma, Alabama. The erection of the temple marks a new epoch in the history of the congregation, is the testimony of the present very able and popular pastor, the Rev. M. B. A. Bonheim. The "Minhag America form of worship" has taken the place of that which prevailed previous to this latter compilation, by the very learned Dr. Isaac M. Wise, editor of the American Israelite, Cincinnati. It is claimed that this "reformed worship," which has been very generally adopted in the Hebrew congregations throughout the United States, has done a great deal for the religious training, and mental and moral elevation of the Israelites in this country. The Hebrew temple is of the Franco-Italian style of architecture, and will seat three hundred worshipers. The present officers of the congregation are: Rudolph Hirschberg, president; R. Vogle, vice-president; Morris Mayer, secretary; J. Schonberg, treasurer; H. Harmon, warden; Moses Kleeman, Sam'l Adler, Louis Kahn, M. Zinfeld, Judah Nusbaum, and A. Wise, trustees. There are also in the congregation the Ladies' Benevolent association, and the Ladies' association for the Cleveland Orphan asylum. There are also two Jewish secret lodges—the Independent Order of B'nai Brith, and the Independent Order of Kesher shel Barsel. Both have taken upon themselves the mission of uniting Israelites, in the work of promoting their highest interests, and those of humanity, and of defending, developing, and elevating the mental and moral character of the Jewish race.

FIRST ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH

is located on Rich street, between Seventh and Washington avenue. The chuch had not, until the year 1868, a permanent place of worship. The cost of the building, erected during that year, was about twelve thousand dollars. There is a church membership of fifty (in 1872), and there are sixty pupils in the Sunday-school. Rev. Joseph Beck was the first pastor; Frederic Bentz, and George Getz, elders; J. Zigler and John Hank, deacons; A. F. Zigler, John Bowman, and John Eny, trustees.

THE CENTRAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH is located on the southeast corner of Gay and Third streets. The church had its origin in prayer meetings, held by a few persons in private houses, in October, 1870. In April, 1871, a call was tendered to the Rev. T. D. Garvin, of Cincinnati, to become the pastor of the church, which he accepted, and entered upon the duties of that office on the third Sunday of the month. The first officers of the church, were as follows: William Wallace, F. D. Pronty, William Williams, and Benjamin Styles, deacons; T. Ewing Miller, treasurer; F. D. Pronty, clerk; T. Ewing Miller, William Williams, and James Archer, trustees. A lot was purchased, on the southeast corner of Third and Gay streets, for five thousand three hundred dollars. On the east end of this lot a temporary church building was erected, and opened for public worship, the third Sunday of May, 1872. A considerable portion of the funds, requisite to build a permanent brick structure, capable of seating a congregation of six or seven hundred, and to cost about twenty thousand dollars, had already been pledged outside of the city. The number of church members, at this time, was one hundred and five—the Sunday-school numbering one hundred and fifty-four. Benjamin Styles is the present superintendent, and Rev. Mills Harrod is the pastor.

ST. JOHN'S GERMAN EVANGELICAL CHURCH.

The pastors of the German Lutheran, St. Paul's, and Trinity churches, objecting to persons becoming members of their respective congregations, who continued to act as members of secret organizations, caused a withdrawal of some twenty-six persons from the two congregations, who held a meeting at the residence of Jacob Bleile, in June, 1872, for the purpose of organizing a new congregation. At a second meeting, held in the old City hall, July 17th, the constitution for the new society, to be known as the St. John's German Protestant Evangelical church, was adopted, and fifty-six signatures obtained to the same. The membership, in 1872, was one hundred and fifty; the Sunday-school numbering one hundred and ten pupils. Rev. William Purpus was the first pastor, and John Burkhardt, superintendent of the Sunday-school; John W. Richenbacher, president; Andrew Schwarz, secretary; George P. Schroll, treasurer; who, with John Burkhardt, are the trustees. The Rev. William Purpus resigned in June, 1879, and returned to Germany, and his successor, Rev. I. I. Weiss, entered upon his labors August 1, 1879.

FRIENDS' MEETING.

A Friends' meeting-house was built on Ohio avenue, between Oak and Broad streets, in 1873–4. It is a commodious brick structure, with a basement for Sunday-school purposes. There are some forty members belonging to the meeting, and the Sunday-school numbers fifty or sixty pupils. Religious services are kept up every Lord's day.

CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

COLUMBUS FEMALE BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.

This, the parent society of most of the benevolent institutions of the city of Columbus, was organized January 5, 1835, at the old Town Street Methodist Episcopal church. The constitution presented to the first meeting, by Mrs. John Patterson, was adopted, and one hundred and seven members secured. The first officers of the society, were: Mrs. James Hoge, president; Mrs. E. W. Sehon, vice-president; Mrs. Noah H. Swayne, treasurer; and Miss Maria Kelley (now Mrs. Judge Bates), secretary. The board of managers were: Mrs. William M. Awl, Mrs. Demas Adams, Mrs. Ralph Osborne, Mrs. Moses Jewett, Mrs. Samuel Crosby, Mrs. John Bailhach, Mrs. Benjamin Blake, Mrs. Joseph Ridgway, Mrs. D. Woodbury, and Mrs. A. Vanhorn.

The city, in 1835, had a population of about four thousand, and visiting committees were appointed at the first business meeting, for each of the three wards, or districts, into which the city was then divided. A purchasing committee was also appointed, consisting of Mrs. John Patterson and Mrs. N. H. Swayne, "to buy cloth to be made into such articles as may be necessary." The object of the society was declared to be, to devise and carry out a systematic plan for the temporary relief of the poor. The constitution provided that the relief should be so administered as to encourage industry and independent exertion for support. The sick, the old and infirm, widows and very young and destitute children, were to be the first objects of attention. On the sixth of April, 1836, the society formed an auxiliary, to educate the children of the poor. That branch of the work was taken in charge by the following ladies: Mrs. A. P. Stone, Mrs. Isaac Dalton, Mrs. William Preston, Mrs. J. B. Crist, Mrs. Dr. Lathrop, Mrs. Noah A. Swayne, Mrs. Isban, Mrs. I. G. Dryer, and Mrs. James Cherry. In 1837, Mr. Alfred Kelley donated to the society a lot as a site for a school-house. During the same year, Messrs. D. T. Woodbury, Joseph Ridgway, jr., and P. B. Wilcox, were constituted an advisary board. These were the only gentlemen ever connected with the society. A small school-house was built on the lot on Fourth street, donated by Mr. Kelley, and a free school was opened and continued for eight or nine years, or until the free school system, under the State law, went into operation in this city. The lot and building were afterwards sold for five hundred dollars, and the money placed at interest for the benefit of the society, so that Mr. Kelley's donation, in 1837, forms the foundation of a permanent fund, which promises, with God's blessing, to increase with the increasing demands of a growing population. The society was incorporated by an act of the legislature, passed March 5, 1838. Section first, of this act, reads as follows: Be it enacted, by the general assemby of the State of Ohio, Mary P. Cressy, Maria M. Espy, Sarah Asberry, Maria S. Preston, Mary S. Kelley, Caroline Dryer, Keziah B. Stone, and their associates, being females, who now are, or who may hereafter, agreeably to the constitution and by-laws of the "Columbus Female Benevolent society," become members thereof, are declared a body corporate, with perpetual succession, for the purpose of administering to the wants, and alleviating the distress of the poor and afflicted of their own sex, and of affording moral, physical and intellectual instruction and improvement to orphans and other poor children. This act of incorporation provides, in its third section, that the amount of property, which can be held by the society, shall not exceed, in value, fifty thousand dollars. (Why?)

The fee for membership is one dollar per year. Twenty-five dollars paid at one time constitutes a life member. Of these, the society received, in the first thirty-seven years of its existence, but three—Mrs. John N. Champion, whose name is first on this list, and who became a life member in 1855, and Misses Kate and Mary E. Deshler, whose names were added in 1871. In a little more than six years, following 1872, twenty life members were added to the society—ten being received in 1876, and ten in 1877. Will the annual reports for 1878 and 1879, make as honorable a record? The tender age of four of the recently added life members, suggests a source from which the society should realize large additions in the future. If fathers and mothers would make this fee for life membership a thank-offering at the christening of their little daughters, and teach them "so soon as they shall be able to learn," that in this act they were consecrated to labors of love for the poor and him that hath no helper, how much more equitable than now would be the division between that which is lent to the Lord, and that which is lavished upon the world. The permanent fund of the society has been derived, principally, from bequests and life memberships—the largest bequest, previous to 1872, being that of the late Dr. Lincoln Goodale, amounting to about fourteen thousand dollars. The amount of funds invested is nineteen thousand four hundred and fifteen dollars. There is also a bequest, from John G. Deshler, of twenty-five thousand dollars, the proceeds of which are not yet received by the society. Prior to the year 1857, the following ladies had successively filled the office of president of the society: Mrs. Dr. Hoge, Mrs. General Patterson, Mrs. Isaac Dalton, Mrs. T. R. Cressy, Mrs. William Preston, Mrs. Alfred Kelley, Mrs. I. G. Dryer, Mrs. A. D. Lord, and Mrs. J. L. Bates. The following is a list of life members, to 1878: Mrs. J. N. Champion, Miss Kate Deshler, Miss Mary E. Deshler, Mrs. Godfrey Robinson, Mrs. Louisa M. Gwynne, Mrs. F. C. Sessions, Mrs. William G. Deshler, Miss Elizabeth Greene Deshler, Mrs. Harriet E. Ide, Miss Julia Ide, Mrs. John G. Deshler, Mrs. George M. Parsons, Mrs. Ezra Bliss, Mrs. Samuel Galloway, Miss Katharine B. Ide, Mrs. D. A. Randall, Mrs. Rufus W. Clark, Mrs. James L. Bates, Mrs. Robert G. Hutchins, Mrs. Herman M. Hubbard, Miss Kate Hunter, and Miss Ann Eliza Deshler. The following are the names of the present officers: Mrs. H. M. Hubbard, president; Mrs. Harriet E. Ide, vice-president; Mrs. W. A. Mahoney, secretary; Mrs. George J. Atkinson, treasurer.

COLONEL ISAAC DALTON.

The subject of this sketch is one of the older settlers of Franklin county, and his family genealogical record is of considerable interest. Philemon Dalton, Hannah, his wife, and Samuel, their son, came to this country from England in the ship "Increase," on the fifteenth of April, 1635—fifteen years after the landing of the Pilgrims. Samuel Dalton married three times, his third wife, Mehitabel Palmer, having many children—the eldest, Samuel Dalton. This Samuel married, and had one son, Isaac, who married, and had six children, viz.: Samuel, Abigail, Mary, Meriam, Moses, and Ruth. These names are all given in a letter written by their father, Isaac Dalton, from the battle-field of Louisburg, in 1745, a copy of which is the possession of Benjamin Dalton Dorr, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Samuel Dalton, who was grandfather of the subject of this sketch, married Hannah Evans, and had ten children, viz.: Mollie, Hannah, Ruth, Isaac (father of the colonel), John, Jonathan, Abigail, Dorithy, Meriam, and Lucy.

The full record of Samuel's family is in what is called the old Dalton Bible, now in possession of Benjamin Dalton Dorr, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Valuable information has been obtained, in the genealogical history of the Dalton family, from the "New England Genealogical and Historical Register," published quarterly at Boston since 1841, "Farmers' Genealogical Register," and "Shirtlieff's Records of Massachusetts."

The said Isaac Dalton, sr. (father of the colonel), was born in Salisbury, Massachusetts, March 2, 1761. After serving through the Revolution as a soldier, he married Eleanor Merrill, who was born in Amesbury, Massachusetts, in 1763. They moved into New Hampshire, where they had fourteen children, six of whom only lived to grow up, viz.: Samuel, who married Judith Brown, and had three children; Hannah, who married John Stewart, and had six children; Nancy, who married Samuel Collins, and had ten children; Polly, who married William Merrill, and had one son; John E., who married Clarissa L. Cassett and Elizabeth Cassett, and had eight children, and Col. Isaac Dalton, who was born in Warner, New Hampshire, on May 27, 1801, and baptized on September 13, 1801, by the Rev. William Kelley, pastor of the Congregational church. He experienced religion in the fall of 1821, and was received into the Congregational church, June 23, 1822, by Rev. John Woods, pastor. After holding various military positions, in 1831 he was commissioned by the governor of the State of New Hampshire to serve as colonel of a regiment of State militia. He also held a prominent position in the masonic fraternity, having been exalted to the sublime degree of royal arch mason, and also, to that of royal and select master. He came to Columbus, Ohio, on September 15, 1831, and received dismission from and recommendation to the church, on June 20, 1833, by the Rev. Jubilee Wellman, pastor. He united with the First Presbyterian church, in July, 1833—the Rev. James Hoge, pastor. He was married to Elizabeth Foster, of Canterbury, New Hampshire, on October 27, 1834, who died November 28, 1841. He was elected and ordained elder in the First Presbyterian church, in the spring of 1835. His first child, Sarah Foster, was born October 25, 1836, and died August 8, 1837; the second, Joseph Merrill, was born February 9, 1839, and died October 8, 1846; the third, Alfred Foster, was born May 22, 1840, and died August 31, 1841; the fourth, Sarah Elizabeth, was born October 28, 1841, and died November 2, 1873. He was married to Elvira Stewart, of Columbus, on the twenty-eighth of December, 1843. By her, his first son, William, was born April 16, 1845, and died December 16, 1866; his second son, John Calvin, was born on May 31, 1849.

During the colonel's early life, he lived on a farm with his parents, until about eighteen years of age, when he left home to follow the carpenter business, in which he was engaged until he came to Columbus. On April 1, 1837, the trustees of the Institution for the Blind appointed him steward, and Mrs. Dalton, matron, to collect the pupils, and board and teach them. The institution was formally opened on July 4, 1837, under the charge of A. W. Penniman. He remained in the institution four years, until Mr. Wm. Chapin was appointed supetintendent, and took charge of the same. He then returned to his former occupation until 1859, when he commenced plane-making, and worked for the Ohio Tool company until April, 1862. He was at that time commissioned by Governor David Tod, to take charge of the sick and wounded soldiers arriving at the union depot, feeding them, and, when necessary, furnishing them with clothing, and assisting them to get transportation to their homes, or sending then to the hospital. He was here engaged at the Soldiers' Rest for over four years, until all the Union soldiers were discharged or returned home.

During the prevalence of the cholera in 1849 and 1850, he was appointed by the city council, a member of the special board of health, to attend to all cholera patients, and see that they were supplied with good nurses, and make a full report of every case to them daily. He was thus engaged about three months each year.

After his services at the Soldiers' Rest, he returned to his home near the court house, on south High street, which he purchased in 1834, where he has lived most of the time since that date.

THE HARE CHARITY FUND.

Jacob Hare, a native of Pennsylvania, came to Columbus in 1812. He was present at the first sale of lots in the summer of that year, and bought a lot on High street, which he never suffered to pass out of his hands. His investments turned out well, and by these and the increased value of his real estate, he left at his death an estate variously estimated at from fifty to eighty thousand dollars. Mr. Hare died in this city on the third of November, 1860, in the eightieth year of his age. The balance of his estate, both real and personal, after the settlement thereof, and an annual allowance to his widow, was devised to the city of Columbus, to form a charity fund for the benefit of the poor and unfortunate of the city. This fund was to be forever under the control and management of the city council, who were not to diminish it below the original amount. The wish of the testator is more clearly defined, in the requirement, that at such time as the state of the fund should justify it, a suitable building should be erected, to be named the Orphans' home, or Beneficial asylum. Mr. Hare appointed William T. Martin executor of his will, and in case of Mr. Martin's decease before that of the testator, he nominated James Cherry, executor. On the fifteenth of April, 1861, Mr. Donaldson presented to the city council a copy of Mr. Hare's will, which was referred to a standing committee, to be called the Hare charity fund committee, consisting of Messrs. Stauring, Wilson, and Comstock. The original bequest, about eighty thousand dollars (says Mr. Chadwick, chairman of the committee of council on the home, in 1872), was by a compromise, divided with the heirs of Mr. Hare, leaving about thirty-five thousand dollars, the interest of which only could be used for the maintainance of the home. This sum was, however, increased by the surrender, upon the part of the Ladies' Benevolent society, of Columbus, of their home, including the building and other property, valued at about eight thousand dollars, the city council, from the date of this transfer, assuming the entire control of the institution. The report from which these facts are gleaned, continues thus: "That both parties to this transfer—ladies and city council—thought this action, at the time, a prudent, if not actually a necessary one, there can be no question; but that for the beneficiaries of the home, it was most unfortunate, every fact in its subsequent history fully confirms." The same report concludes in the following words of earnest wisdom: "The secretary can not well forbear, in view of the foregoing statements, to suggest, if it can be done in accordance with the provisions of Mr. Hare's will, that this charity should be transferred to the care of the Ladies' Benevolent society, or some other private charitable organization in the city of Columbus; or that in some way, the orphan children of Columbus should be secured in their rights under the generous provisions contemplated by their benefactor." It is gratifying to know, that immediately after the publication of this report, such radical changes were made in the management of the home, that the comfort of its inmates was secured as far as the circumscribed accommodations of the building would allow. Miss Lida Daniels, now Mrs. Dr. J. M. Wheaton, succeeded Mrs. Loomis, as matron, and bears testimony to the readiness of the board of trustees to second, to the extent of their ability, every suggestion with reference to the welfare of the home and its inmates. The location and construction of the building making it every way unfitted for a home for children, it was, for years, the earnest wish of those to whom was committed the care of this fund, to secure another location, possessing the advantages so utterly wanting in the old, and at the same time within the means placed at their command. By the conditions of the bequest, only the annual interest could be applied to the erection of buildings or the current expenses of the home.

The recent purchase of an attractive cottage, with a domain of over seven acres surrounding it, in the northeast part of the city, gives ample evidence of a wise management of the fund. The new home is in the midst of a native grove, and seen, as now, in its gorgeous garb of autumnal glory, it seems as though nature had put on her brightest, to welcome the hapless, though now, doubtless, happy little ones, to this sweet retreat, and, at the same time, to prepare, in crimson and gold, a crown for the heads of those who have ministered, and yet do minister, to those of whom the loving Master said: "The poor ye have always with you." There is room, wisely economized, as at present it appears to be, under the management of Mrs. C. M. Barringer, as matron, to accommodate the limited number for which the fund will provide; and, with a few, but much needed, improvements, the Hare Orphan's home may be looked upon as having entered upon a new era of usefulness. The cottage was built for a private residence, and, naturally, the kitchen is quite inadequate for the work of a family of over twenty. As a sanitary provision merely, a laundry should be built, suitably connected with the main building, and containing a bath-room, with ample water supply. Judging from what has already been accomplished, the friends of the home will not wait long for that which all acknowledge as a pressing need, and which can be secured at so modest an outlay. The present board consists of the following named gentlemen: Peter Baker, esq. (president), William Ide (secretary), Mr. Hess, and General Samuel Thomas. There are at present, October 1, 1879, eighteen children at the home, all except one under ten years of age.

THE LADIES' SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY.

The Ladies' Soldiers' Aid society of Columbus, like the loyal uprising of its citizens, had its counterpart in every city, town, and hamlet, throughout the north. The untold material wealth represented by the vast accumulations of hospital supplies, which have been made efficient through the agency of the sanitary commission, was emphatically the product of a labor of love. How much these labors influenced the final result, it is impossible to say, but of their adaptedness to ameliorate the sufferings inseperable from war, there is no doubt. And, as the scale on which they were conducted was commensurate with the vast operations involved in that terrible struggle, what language can adequately express their beneficence! The mothers, wives, and daughters, of the Union, had already given their choicest treasures to their country. Was it strange that the lesser gifts should not be withheld? The mother could not seek her fever-smitten boy, in the distant military hospital, nor could the wife minister to her husband, though cruel wounds had paralyzed the strong arms, and made him helpless. These were not isolated cases. The land was filled with such mothers and wives, and their yearning anxiety, which, left to prey upon their hearts, would have consumed them, found its solace and its natural expression in labors that should surround the suffering loved ones with something of the atmosphere of home. There should be no lack of the numberless accessories which often make of the sick room at home a shrine where each member of the household, offers constantly, his best. First, there must be a wealth of soft garments, suitable for the sick and the convalescent. And how these were multiplied, till, in number, they were as the sands upon the sea shore, or the leaves in the forest—and they were for the healing of the nation—a quotation from an early chronicle will show:

"The Ladies' Soldiers' Aid society of Columbus, as auxiliary to the National Sanitary commission, at Washington, made its first annual report, for the year ending October 21, 1862. The operations of the institution had been successful; the cutting-room had been open every day of the year, and the committees appointed to cut and supervise work had been present, to give out work and receive donations; Wednesday of each week had been set apart for a general meeting in the main building, to which ladies generally were invited. There, with sewing machines, and concerted action, much good had been done. The society had thirty-six auxiliaries connected with it; from these, and from individuals, it had received large donations. The report gives a long list of articles of clothing, and of necessaries, and delicacies, sent away for the use of sick and wounded soldiers."

Entertainments of various descriptions were given, and always with the most gratifying results. But these were, of necessity, only an occasional resource, and supplemented the grander work, which did not meet the public eye, but which was not remitted until the last battle was fought. Let any one take the trouble, if he esteems it such, to reflect upon what is implied in the unobtrusive statements in the above quotation, and then find, if he can, the other factor concerned in producing the wonderful results which were realized in the equipment of our hospitals in the late war, and he will have acquired a clear conception of the manner in which ladies' soldiers' aid societies placed our army hospitals in a condition to challenge the admiration of the civilized world.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

Naturally, in the vicissitudes of a long-continued war, many sick, disabled, and destitute soldiers would be found at all central points of army operations, not provided for by military organizations accessible, without a greater expenditure than would be involved in caring for them at those points where they were found in any considerable numbers. This work was assumed by the Sanitary commission, and gave rise to large numbers of temporary "soldiers' homes." The Soldiers' home, located in this city, was an efficient agency in this good work. It was established, April 22, 1862, under the auspices of the Soldiers' Aid society, in a room in the raiload depot, and was placed under the charge of Isaac Dalton, of this city. On the 17th of October, 1873, it was removed into a building erected by the Columbus branch of the United States' Sanitary commission. The building cost about two thousand, three hundred dollars, and contained forty-five beds. Soldiers were lodged in the home, and those who were destitute were supplied with food and other necessaries. In the spring of 1864, one thousand, eight hundred dollars were expended, in an addition to the former structure, making the entire building one hundred and forty feet long. The addition contained eighty beds, like those in the first building—on iron bedsteads. It was opened July 20, 1864, for the reception of soldiers. At the same time Mr. Dalton was succeeded by T. E. Botsford, who continued to serve as superintendent till the home was closed. Men, from almost every State in the Union, who had no where else to go, were hospitably entertained, and when recovered, or refreshed, sent on their way rejoicing. During Mr. Botsford's superintendence, from July 20, 1864, to May 7, 1866, thirty-four thousand, nine hundred and eighty-two persons were furnished with lodgings, and ninety-nine thousand, four hundred and sixty-three meals were distributed to thirty thousand and fifty-five men, of whom twenty-five thousand, six hundred and forty-nine were members of Ohio regiments. Many refugees from the south were also entertained. On the closing of the home, the superintendent, under the direction of the representatives of the Sanitary commission, donated to the Hannah Neil Mission, or Home of the Friendless, the building, and other property, belonging to the Soldiers' home.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

A lecture delivered in the city in 1858, by Charles Reemelin, of Cincinnati, in which he described the good accomplished by similar charities in Europe, led to the formation of an association of ladies, called the Industrial School association. The first officers were: Mrs. Hannah Neil, president; Miss Matilda Gwynne, secretary; Miss Ann Robinson, teacher. The work of the Industrial school consists, chiefly, in collecting poor children, once a week, for the purpose of giving them instruction, coupled with relief. The girls are taught, under the supervision, and with the assistance, of voluntary teachers, to make garments of the material purchased by the association, which are distributed as the necessities of the beneficiaries require. It is found that this active benevolence, which regards the bodies, as well as the souls, of those it seeks to benefit, has a wonderful power in breaking down the suspicious reserve with which a formal homily on morals or good manners would be received, and the informal intercourse between teachers and pupils, gives ample opportunity for the dropping of good seed into hearts softened by the touch of christian sympathy. And where do the grace and gentleness of refined and christian womanhood shine with fairer luster than when they thus come (not stoop) to the lowly children of want and misery, to charm them out of their degradation by an exhibition of that divine charity which seeketh not her own? The association was not incorporated until June 30, 1866. The record of incorporation states that, at a meeting held on the eighth of May, 1866, it was resolved to change the name of the organization to that of the "Industrial Mission School association." At the same meeting, I. C. Aston, F. C. Sessions, George Gere, J. J. Ferson, and E. A. Taylor, were elected trustees, and Miss L. Peters, clerk. The name was again changed, in 1868, to that of the "Hannah Neil Mission and Home of the Friendless," a home having been established in connection with the school. The care of both charities proving too onerous, the industrial school was transferred to the Columbus Benevolent society, in 1870, under whose fostering care it has been an instrument of great good. The average attendance has been, for several years past (1879), two hundred. A mission Sunday-school, the offshoot of this labor of love among the poor and them who have no helper, was organized on west Friend street, in 1868, by Mrs. T. J. Harris and Miss Kate Hunter.

THE HANNAH NEIL MISSION AND HOME OF THE FRIENDLESS.

This institution, at first, connected with the Industrial school, was called the Hannah Neil mission, in honor of one who was most efficient in its establishment, whose life was devoted to works of charity, and whose memory is embalmed in the hearts of the poor and afflicted.

The general purpose of the institution is to provide an asylum for helpless and destitute women and children, of all ages. It properly dates from the first of April, 1868, when the home was opened in the Soldiers' home buildings near the Union depot, On the fifteenth of December, 1869, it was removed to its present location on east Friend street, south of the Institution for the Blind. The buildings are those formerly used by the State asylum for Idotic or Imbecile Youth, and are situated on a handsome lot of three and a half acres. The lot and group of buildings are estimated to be worth thirty thousand dollars; the purchase money for which was raised by subscription among the benevolent citizens of the city.

After patient trial of the first plan of the home, which was to receive all who were homeless and friendless, it was found that the presence of adults, of the class most frequently appealing to this charity, was undesirable; as a large majority of the beneficiaries were young children. And even, when not really vicious, the influence of adults was, in most cases, injurious, tending to perpetuate early habits, and to draw the children away from those elevating associations with which it was the aim of the board of managers to surround them. Accordingly, for several years, though all are afforded temporary relief, none but children have been received as permanent inmates. It is the aim of the board to provide suitable homes for the children as rapidly as opportunities offer; and to this end the children are not placed in the public schools, but a teacher is employed in the home, who gives the morning to regular school lessons, and the afternoon to the instruction of the older girls in sewing, or in assisting in the duties of the household. The children being thus always at the home, a choice by those who visit the institution for this purpose (which is of almost daily occurrence) is greatly facilitated. "We sent away our baby last night, after dark—a sweet little creature, but very delicate;" said the gracious lady matron, Mrs. Louisa Sites, "and we have just sent word to a lady that she can take this little one," pointing to a plump bit of feminity, of four or five years, who occupied her little chair in the school-room.

Credentials, on the part of strangers proposing to take children, are required; and the child is removed on a trial of three months. If, at the expiration of this time, either party (that is, the board or the person wishing to indenture) is dissatisfied, the child is returned to the home.

There are, at present, October, 1879, fifty-three children in the home, whose daily wants have been hitherto supplied, with the exception of an inconsiderable endowment, by the contributions of the charitable, and as the result of an amount of self-sacrificing labor on the part of the board of managers, which it is impossible for those who have not participated in them, to estimate. It is the intention of the authorities of the home to transfer the present inmates to the new and well-constructed Children's home, a county institution now advancing toward completion, and whose erection does honor to Franklin county. The future field of usefulness for the Home of the Friendless is receiving the careful consideration of the present board, which is composed of the following ladies: Mrs. R. D. Harrison, president; Mrs. George McDonald, vice-president; Mrs. William Ewing, treasurer; Miss Mary A. Jones, secretary; Mrs. Dr. Andrews, Mrs. Ezra Bliss, Mrs. E. L. Hinman, Mrs. J. S. Norton, Mrs. Isaac Aston, Mrs. Wm. Hershiser, Mrs. E. L. Lovejoy, Mrs. Charles Hayden, Mrs. B. N. Spahr, Mrs. H. E. Ide, Mrs. Ira Hutchinson, Mrs. Wm. Dennison, Mrs. Isaac Eberly, Mrs. Louisa Nevins, Mrs. Henry Lanman, Mrs. James Wilcox, Mrs. Wm. Monypeny, Mrs. Wm. Deshler, Mrs. James McGrew, Mrs. A. Gardner, Mrs. E. T. Watson, Mrs. J. H. Beebe' Mrs. Dr. S. M. Smith, and Miss Kate Hunter. There is also an advisory board, composed of five gentlemen.

CERTAIN CATHOLIC INSTITUTIONS.

HOLY CROSS CHURCH SCHOOL.

The school-building connected with this church is very creditable to the energy of the pastor and the congregation. It was built at a cost of eleven thousand, eight hundred dollars, and has seven rooms, each twenty-seven by thirty-two feet. Three of the upper rooms are used for the female department, under the care of the Sisters of Notre Dame, with about two hundred pupils. The male department is on the first floor, with an average attendance of one hundred and fifty.

ST. PATRICK'S SCHOOL.

This school is located on the corner of Seventh street and Mount Vernon avenue, and will accommodate about five hundred pupils. The female departmens, like that of Holy Cross Church school, is under the care of the Sisters of Notre Dame. Value of school property—twelve thousand dollars.

SISTERS OF NOTRE DAME.

The sisters of this order devote their time principally to the education of the female pupils of the Catholic parish schools of the city. The house of the sisterhood is located on Rich, between Sixth and Seventh streets.

ST. ALOYSIUS SEMINARY.

This institution of learning was founded, by Bishop Rosecrans, in September, 1871. The course of study embraces theology, philosophy, history, mathematics, and the Latin, Greek, German, and English languages, and occupies eight years. The object of the seminary is the education of Catholic youth for the priesthood, and derives its chief support from the Catholics of the diocese. Location—a short distance south of west Broad street.

THE ST. FRANCIS HOSPITAL.

This hospital, located on the southeast corner of State and Fifth streets, occupies a part of the Starling Medical college building. The Society of the Poor of St. Francis was formed, in 1840, by Mother Francis Shevier, in Auchen, on the Rhine. The sisters of this order first established a hospital, in this city, in January, 1852, on Rich street, nearly opposite Holy Cross church. The building first occupied proving insufficient for the demands of the hospital, it was removed, on the 17th of February, 1865; the sisters having leased about two-thirds of Starling Medical college building for the term of ninety-nine years, for the sum of ten thousand dollars. To aid the sisters in the needed improvements, adapting the college building to the uses of a hospital, six thousand, five hundred dollars were raised by fairs, held under the auspices of the Catholic churches of the city, assisted by the citizens generally. The average number received into the hospital, annually, is about five hundred. All sick, aged, and infirm persons, without distinction as to religious belief, nationality, or race, are admitted into the hospital, and fed, clothed, and cared for. If the beneficiary can pay, the sisters will not refuse a compensation; but the lack of money is no bar to a participation in their all-embracing charity. Medical and surgical services are rendered gratuitously by the faculty of Starling Medical college. All the expenses of the hospital are provided for by collections made in the city and vicinity, by those members of the order devoted to this portion of the work.

THE HOUSE OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD—FOR PENITENT FEMALES.

This institution is located on west Broad street, corner of Washington. The order from which the house derives its name was established in France, in the seventeenth century. In the year 1835, new life and vigor were given to the order by the superioress at Angers, who had, before her death, in 1868, established no less than one hundred and ten houses in different parts of the world, in charge of the sisters of the order. The object of these houses is two-fold. First, the reformation of penitent women and girls of all ages; and, second, the preservation of female children, by giving them a plain, useful education, and teaching them all kinds of needle-work. In Europe, the happiest results have been produced by permitting female convicts to spend the last six months of their imprisonment with the sisters, who do their utmost to rescue the unfortunate, and instil into their minds the love of virtue. The house of the Good Shepherd, in this city, was opened in May, 1855, in a rented dwelling, so small as not only to subject the inmates to serious inconvenience, but also to greatly retard the growth of this good work. In 1856, the want of more room became so urgent, that the sisters were compelled to remove, and were so fortunate as to secure their present very advantageous location. The building (which is the old Sullivant mansion) has been enlarged at a considerable expense, but is still taxed to its utmost capacity by the large numbers who flock thither to find shelter and guidance at the hands of the devoted sisters. The inmates are all engaged in some useful employment. Example enforces instruction, and all the labor of the large household is performed by the inmates, under the assistance and direction of the sisters. All are subject to strict rules of discipline, which must be complied with. All manual labor is performed in silence and in order. The time, aside from that allowed for rest, meals, and recreation, is devoted to some useful purpose calculated to promote virtue, industry, and purity of soul; but all work, from the mother superior to the least of the inmates, according as their strength will permit, and thus contribute to the support of the institution. The institution is commended to the attention and good will of the public. It is by the labor of the sisters and the inmates that the house is supported, the receipts from other sources being very small.

CEMETERIES.

GREEN LAWN CEMETERY.

Green Lawn Cemetery association, of Columbus, was organized under a general statute, passed in the winter of 1847–8. At a meeting of the citizens, at the council chamber, on the evening of the twelfth of July, 1848, a committee of eleven was appointed, consisting of A. P. Stone, A. F. Perry, Joseph Ridgway, jr., Wm. B. Thrall, John Walton, John Miller, William Kelsey, William B. Hubbard, Joseph Sullivant, Robt. W. McCoy, and William A. Platt, charged with the duty of looking for a site and reporting a plan for the organization of a cemetery association. At a subsequent meeting of citizens, held on the second of August, 1848, the committee reported articles of association, which were considered, amended, adopted, and signed by a competent number to authorize a complete organization. The first meeting for the purpose of effecting an organization, was held on the twenty-sixth of August, when Wm. B. Hubbard, Joseph Sullivant, Aaron F. Perry, Thomas Sparrow, Alfred P. Stone, William B. Thrall, and John W. Andrews, were elected to constitute the first board of trustees, Alex. E. Glenn being chosen clerk. Mr. Hubbard was unanimously chosen president of the board. At a meeting of the board of trustees, held on the first day of February,

HON. THOMAS MILLER.

The subject of this notice, over a third of a century a prominent and much respected citizen of Columbus, was born in Mount Vernon, Knox county, Ohio, April 11, 1817, third son of James and Hannah A. (Gillespie) Miller, of that place. He was related, by blood, to several families of distinction—being a cousin to Senator James G. Blaine, Congressman Ewing, and Judge P. B. Ewing, of Lancaster, Ohio, Mr. Thomas Ewing Miller, of Columbus, and to the wife of Gen. W. T. Sherman. Three brothers of his—Dr. Jonathan Miller, Mr. Henry Miller, of the firm of Miller & Huston, wholesale boot and shoe dealers on High street, and Mr. William Miller—still reside in Columbus, and are numbered among its leading citizens. His father died in that city in 1861, at the venerable age of seventy-three, greatly regretted by his fellow-citizens. The early years of his son, Thomas, were spent partly in Knox county; but while still in boyhood he removed with the family to Brownsville, Fayette county, Pennsylvania, where, at the age of twenty-one, in 1838, he was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of Gen. Wilson, of that place. By her he had seven children, five of whom survive him, and all reside in Columbus—Eliza L., wife of Mr. John Boyce; Margaret, wife of Mr. John McCarty; Cecilia, wife of Richard J. Fanning, clerk of the Ohio supreme court; Thomas Miller, jr.; and Miss Sallie Miller. Directly after marriage he came back to Ohio, and removed, in 1845, to Columbus, where his home was afterwards continously to the day of his death. Here, in the firm of Thomas and William Miller & Company, he engaged in book agency and general book-selling, and, to some extent, in publishing, for a number of years, until politics and the conferment of office upon him commanded his chief attention. During his official career he engaged in no other business, except the supervision of his farming interests. He was for a time one of the lessees of the Ohio canals, with the other public improvements that belonged to the system. He had been bred to no special trade or profession, but exhibited unusual talents for general business and the amassment of fortune. In his later days he came into possession of the Friend Street railway, and managed it with much ability, bringing it into excellent condition and making it a paying property. His own residence, a large and elegant mansion, which he occupied for thirty years, stands at the eastern end of Friend street, near the suburbs of Columbus. He was also a large purchaser of farm property, and managed for many years before his death a number of estates of this kind. He accumulated a very handsome fortune, which was generously used for the good of humankind. The Catholic Columbian, in an excellent memorial article soon after his death, refers thus to this trait of his character:

"All the eminent qualities displayed in public life shone out in the sweet quiet of domestic and private life, benevolence predominating in all his dealings. Wherever poverty, suffering, or distress appealed for human aid or consolation, there, quietly, silently, and unknown, he exercise that virtue, the guiding star of his life, charity. Unostentatiously, the right hand fulfilled the Scriptural injunction, and distributed gifts in charity's name, without the knowledge of the left. The widow, the orphan, the friendless, the outcast, alike have experienced the charity of Thomas Miller, and by their suffrages to the Throne of Grace obtained for their benefactor the retention of the faith in which he was baptized, for which he always contended, and in which he hoped to die. During his long life he had not tasted the sweetness of that faith, but his zeal for it was not less ardent, as he persevered in educating his family in its doctrines and keeping to its practices. Not convenience, worldly gain or political preferment caused him to relinquish his faith, though the circumstances may have conspired to force him to such a calamity. On Friday last, as the funeral procession moved from his late residence to the cathedral, on all sides could have been seen the manifestations of sorrow at the demise of so worthy a citizen; and as the corpse was borne past the Orphan-asylum, the kneeling forms within the enclosure testified more powerfully than words as to what cause the deceased owed the grace of a blessed death."

Mr. Miller was a Democrat, in his political faith, and during the Rebellion was what is known as a "War Dem ocrat." In 1854 he was elected sheriff of the county, and in the campaign of 1864 was the candidate of his party for representative in congress from the Columbus district. He also filled at various times, by federal appointment, the positions of assessor of internal revenue, and postmaster of the city. His first wife died in 1859, and three years thereafter he was married to Mary Thomas, of Hicking county, Ohio, who survives him, as also their four children—Misses Belle, Clara, and Julia Miller, and Master James Miller. About the middle of May, 1879, he was taken with a fatal sickness, the disease known as "embolism," having for its chief characteristic a deficient supply of blood to the brain, and died of it nine weeks afterwards, on the fifteenth day of July. His funeral was conducted according to the rites of the Roman Catholic church, of which his first wife was a most devout member, and in whose faith he died. A very large concourse of citizens was in attendance; and general grief was felt throughout the city at the departure of one so long identified with its interests, and so widely beloved.

1849, Mr. Andrews tendered his resignation, and William Platt was chosen to supply the vacancy. The grounds originally purchased by the association consisted of about eighty-three acres, admirably adapted to the purpose for which they were intended. They were situated about two miles and a half southwesterly from the State house. The cost of the whole was about three thousand, seven hundred and fifty dollars. In the summer of 1849, under the superintendence of Howard Daniels, architect and civil engineer, tasteful and appropriate improvements were planned, and the work commenced was carried forward with the energy and esthetic ability which characterized its inception. The visitor cannot fail to be impressed by the high order of talent, as well as the large liberality, which have united to produce results so pleasing. The first person buried in this cemetery was Leonora, daughter of Aaron F. Perry, on the seventh of July, 1849, a few days preceding its formal dedication. The dedication services were held in a beautiful grove near the center of the grounds, on the ninth of July, 1849, in the presence of a large concourse of people. The services were conducted by some of the leading clergymen of the city, Dr. Hoge delivering the dedicatory address. A graceful dedicatory ode was written for the occasion by Benjamin T. Cushing, esq., for which we regret we have not space. In the summer of 1856, the question arose as to the propriety of selling lots to colored persons, and thereby admitting them to membership in the association. A circular was addressed to each member, or stockholder, stating the proposition to set apart a portion of the cemetery grounds for the burial of colored persons, and requesting the stockholder receiving it to indorse his preference upon the back of the circular, and return it to the office of the trustees. A large proportion of the stockholders, who made returns, were opposed to the proposition, and the division was not made until February, 1872. In 1872, sixty-two acres were added to the domain, making the cemetery to consist of about one hundred and forty-seven acres, forming nearly a square, of gently undulating surface. The officers, at the present time, are as follows: John Greenleaf, president; P. W. Huntington, treasurer; Joseph Dowdall, secretary; Oliver P. Hines, James S. Abbott, H. B. Albery, J. P. Bruck, Wm. B. Hawks, trustees.

MOUNT CALVARY CEMETERY

Is located on the Harrisburg turnpike, about half a mile beyond the southeastern limits of the city. Its area is twenty-seven acres, purchased, in 1865, by the Catholics of Columbus, for three thousand dollars. A year after the cemetery grounds were purchased, by the joint action of all the Catholics of the city, the Germans of the Holy Cross church paid the English Catholics three hundred dollars for the choice between the two halves of the tract, and took the north half. Rev. John W. Brumer was the first Catholic priest buried in the portion of the grounds set apart as a burial place for the Catholic clergy. Mount Calvary cemetery was consecrated by Bishop Rosecrans, November 2, 1874. Previously, portions of ground had been blessed for the interment of the dead. Few have been removed from the old burying ground, though it is the intention to remove all to the new cemetery. The grounds are under the charge of Father Meara, of St. Joseph's cathedral.

THE HEBREW CEMETERY.

About the year 1850, the few Israelites, then in the city, who were organized as a congregation for public worship, purchased a half-acre lot, to be used as a cemetery. The lot lies in the eastern part of the city; but, as a city ordinance prohibits interments within the limits of the corporation, a lot was procured and laid out, about the year 1876, comprising two acres of ground, and situated just south of Mount Calvary cemetery.

THE NORTH GRAVEYARD.

One acre and a half of the tract of land, known afterward as the "North Graveyard," was donated by the original proprietors of Columbus, July 2, 1813, for a burial ground. John Kerr, one of the proprietors, was authorized to execute the deed of conveyance. That was not done until April 21, 1821, though the lot had been used as a burial place from the time the grant was made. In February, 1830, eight and a half acres, adjoining the above described lot, were added, by purchase. John Brickell, in 1845, added a strip of twenty feet in width, giving the city, however, no control over it. These three parcels of land, embracing about ten and a half acres, and surrounded by a board fence, constitute the tract known as the "North Graveyard," and were for many years the principal burying ground of the city. It lies on the west side of High street, about one-eighth of a mile north of the railroad depot. As the city was expanding around and beyond it, the council, by an ordinance passed July 21, 1856, made it a penal offence to use it any longer for interments. Such, however, was the clamor against the ordinance, that it was repealed before the day arrived for it to take effect. The practice of burying in this place was gradually discontinued, however, and when, in May, 1864, the council passed a second prohibitory ordinance, it was merely formal; no interments having been made there for several years. Many of the bodies buried there have been removed to Green Lawn cemetery; and, though the city authorities have taken means to preserve the grounds, no doubt this city of the dead will, in time, be obliterated, by the steady encroachments of the city of the living.

THE OLD CATHOLIC BURYING GROUND.

The lot, or tract, generally known by this name, contains three acres and a quarter. It is located in the northeast part of the city, north of Naghten street, and east of Ninth street, or Washington avenue. It was conveyed, September 11, 1848, by Peter Ury, to Archbishop Purcell, to be held in trust as a burying-ground, for the use of the catholics of Columbus. The tract had, however, been used for that purpose for two or three years before this conveyance was made. The ordinance of the city council, in 1856, prohibited burials.

THE EAST GRAVEYARD.

This tract of land, lying about a mile and a half east of the court house, on Livingston avenue, contains eleven and a quarter acres, and was conveyed to the city of Columbus, in 1839, by Matthew King, without conditions or restrictions. It was purchased expressly for a cemetery, and about two-thirds of it was laid out in lots, and sold by the city to purchasers. This was formerly used as a public burying-place, principally by the Germans, but of late years only for the burial of the very poor, the friendless, and public paupers. A portion of the lot proving to be too wet for the purpose of a burying-ground, and its existence retarding the growth of the city in that direction, it was proposed, several years ago, to remove the bodies already interred in it, and convert the ground into a public park, in connection with the beautiful grove in the rear of it—the only grove of native forest trees remaining in the eastern portion of the city. Although the plan has not yet been carried out, its execution is only a question of time.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

THE OLD STATE HOUSE.

The four original proprietors of Columbus, Kerr, McLaughlin, Starling, and Johnston, under the superintendence of William Ludlow, the director appointed by the legislature, erected a State house on the southwest corner of State house square. The building was completed in 1814; the free-stone for the window and door-sills was brought on wagons from Black Lick, twelve or fourteen miles east from the city, through swamps and mire. The bricks used in its construction, were made in part of the ancient mound which formerly stood at the intersection of High and Mound streets. The building was seventy-five feet north and south on High street, and fifty feet east and west on State street, and the principal entrance was in the center of the south front, on the latter street. It was two stories high, with a square roof, rising to a balcony, from whence rose a spire one hundred and six feet from the ground. Above the balcony hung a well-toned bell, the idea evidently prevailing, at that distant era, that legislators had duties, and sometimes needed to be reminded of them. The foundation of the building was of dressed stone, raised two feet; and there was a belt of dressed stone marking the height of the first story. The hall of the house of representatives was on the first floor, and connected with it were two committee rooms and a gallery. A stairway on the left of the east entrance led to the gallery of the representatives' hall, and one on the right led to the senate chamber, in the second story, which also had two committee rooms. A door on the west front opened directly into the hall of the house from High street, and one on the east side of this hall opened into the wood yard.

The legislative halls were warmed by great wood-fires built and kept glowing in the spacious fire-places ornamented with huge brass-topped andirons. No marble was used in the construction of our primitive capital, but the wooden columns used both for strength and ornament in the hall of the House of Representatives, were handsomely turned, and painted in imitation of clouded marble. Over the west and south doors there were built into the walls, neatly dressed stones with patriotic inscriptions.

The old State house, after having stood the estimated term of one generation, and witnessed the transformation of a primeval forest into a thriving city, was destroyed by fire on the first day of February, 1852. The fire was first discovered by the watch, on the floor in the centre of the Senate chamber. It was nearly extinguished when it was discovered that the timbers above were on fire. The roof was soon burned through, and the entire belfry was enveloped in flames. The fire could not be reached by any of the appliances at hand, and it soon became apparent that the venerable edifice which had been the theater of patriotism and zeal for the public good, was doomed to destruction. The burning building cast a lurid light on the Sabbath morning sky. As the belfry swayed to and fro, as if buffeted by the breath of the Fire King, the clear-toned old bell rang out a brief parting requiem. Or we may imagine the genius of the old State house, seeing, in prophetic vision, the glory of the future house, seized the brazen tongue to "Ring out the old, ring in the new."

It does not appear that the origin of the fire was ever satisfactorily ascertained. The furniture in the hall of the house of representatives was removed, and the papers of the clerks were also saved, but very little was rescued from the senate chamber, and a large mass of documents perished with the building. During the remainder of the session, the house met in Neil's Odeon hall, and the senate, in the United States court house. In 1853 the house met again in Odeon hall, and the senate, in Ambos hall. In 1854 the same halls were occupied. In 1855 there was no session of the legislature, it being the only year since the organization of the State, without a legislative session, although our present State constitution provides for biennial sessions only. In 1856 the Odeon and Ambos halls were again occupied, and in 1857 the senate and house of representatives met, for the first time, in their respective halls in the new State house.

THE OLD STATE OFFICES.

In accordance with their contract with the State, which included offices, as well as State house, the Proprietors' association erected, in 1815, a two-story building, twenty-five by one hundred and fifty feet, fronting High street. It stood on the State-house square, in a line with the State house, and sixty feet north of it. This building, designed for the State offices, was of the same material, and general construction, as the State house. The foundation was of rough stone, with a belt of dressed stone, marking the height of the first story. The principal entrance was in the center of the front, on High street. A door, toward the north end, opened into the office of the secretary of State, and, for some unexplained reason, two doors, toward the south end, opened into the State auditor's office. On the left of the central entrance was the governor's office, and on the right, the office of the State treasurer. From the entrance-hall, and directly opposite the front door, a winding stairway led to the second story. This was appropriated to the use of the State library, though used, in early times, for the offices of the quartermaster and adjutant-general, and, occasionally, for other public offices. The building was removed in the spring of 1857, preparatory to the grading of the public square.

CAPITOL SQUARE.

The public square, in the center of which now stands the capitol of Ohio, one of the most imposing edifices on the Western continent, was, in the years 1815 and 1816, cleared of the native forest trees by Jarvis Pike, who inclosed it with a rough rail fence, and raised from it successive crops of wheat and corn. The fence having fallen into decay, the square lay in common for a number of years. Under the direction of Alfred Kelley when agent of the State, it was inclosed in 1844, by a neat and substantial fence, with cedar posts and handsome palings, painted white. About the same time, Mr. Kelley caused elm trees to be removed from the forest and planted on the north, east, and south of the square, thus preserving an open view of the noble western facade of the capitol. Their trunks were then from four to six inches in diameter, but a fruitful soil and genial climate have changed them into monarchs of their kind, bearing their coronals of spreading boughs with kingly grace. The neat fence, with painted palings, was removed, in 1859, and the square was inclosed by an unsightly board fence, about twelve feet high, as a guard against the escape of convicts engaged in dressing stone for the new capitol. A substantial iron fence, set in a heavy freestone base, was completed, in 1867, along the west side of the square, and on the north and south sides, half the distance from the western to the eastern side. The fence inclosing the other half of the square was of wood. Frequent attempts were made to induce the legislature to extend the fence so as to inclose the other half of the square, but without success. Among the objections to its extension, it was urged that the fence was not only too massive, but it was so high as to obstruct the view and greatly injure the appearance of the capitol as seen from the street. After persistent agitation of the subject, the legislature, in 1871, appropriated eighteen thousand dollars to procure and put up around the State house grounds a new fence, to be done under the direction of the comptroller of the treasury, with the advice and consent of the governor and treasurer. A design for the new fence, by Frank Krumm, was adopted, and a contract entered into with L. Schaeffer & Son, of Springfield, Ohio, to build the same, at twenty-one thousand, one hundred and nineteen dollars and thirty cents. The fence was put in place the following year, and, in accordance with the design, gates were placed at the corners of the square, and walks constructed to intersect the carriage-ways that encircle the capitol. The State house square comprises ten acres, and has a considerable elevation above the Scioto. With earth, taken chiefly from the canal and river, it has been raised in the center from four to six feet, and has been so graded as to form a gentle descent from that point in all directions. During the present summer (1879) four fountains, of unique design, have been placed in some of the principal plats into which the grounds are divided, by fine broad walks and carriage-ways. The square was laid out and ornamented after a plan drawn by John Clusker, of Cincinnati. The general idea carried out in this plan, contemplates a pleasing variety of evergreens, deciduous trees and shrubbery, so arranged, in groups, as to afford unobstructed views of the capitol, and, at the same time, gratify the natural taste for order and beauty.

It being the duty of a faithful historian to make a record of whatever has been, or is now, of interest in a community, the fact that an attempt to make an artesian well within the capitol grounds was inaugurated, in 1857, is properly mentioned here. The work was commenced in July, 1857, and discontinued October 1, 1860, leaving the well a failure, after reaching a depth of two thousand, seven hundred and seventy-five feet. The work, however, was, doubtless, of value, as a means of showing the geological formations which underlie the capital. Detailed statements of the work, and the peculiar obstacles met with in its progress, are to be found elsewhere, and are of great interest to that class of readers familiar with the physical sciences.

THE NEW CAPITOL.

The first feeling experienced by persons visiting Niagara falls, for the first time, is, in nine cases out of ten, that of disappointment. The great width of the precipice, and the immense volume of water poured over it, dwarf the height of the fall, and make it appear, as has been often expressed, "like a good-sized mill-dam." But let not the visitor, if he have a soul that can admire, appreciate and enjoy the sublime in nature, turn away in disgust. Rather let him linger in the presence of the great wonder—studying it from every attainable point of observation—from the surface of the stream below, as well as from the summit of the rocks above—thinking less of himself and his own emotions, than of the mighty power in whose presence he stands—and the scene will gradually grow and expand until, having assumed its true proportions, and become instinct with its own vitality, it will take possession of his soul, filling it with an indescribable delight. Analogous to this was our experience on first visiting the Ohio State house. The elevation on which it stands; the extent of ground surrounding it; and above all, the massiveness of the architecture, seemed at first to dwarf the height of the building, making it look disproportionately, and almost disagreeably low; and the first comparison that suggested itself to our mind, was that of a huge iron-clad "monitor," with its revolving turret. And it was not until we stood at the foot of its massive pillars, and under its sky-like rotunda, and looked down upon the city from its lofty dome, that it assumed in our mind its real artistic proportions, and impressed us with a feeling of majesty and grandeur such as no other structure, except our national capitol, ever produced.

Its style of architecture is the simplest form of the Doric, of which the American Encyclopedia thus speaks:

"This style, typical of majesty and imposing grandeur, was almost universally employed by the Greeks in the construction of their temples; and, certainly, monumental art does not furnish us with the equal of a Greek peripteral temple"—i. e., a temple surrounded on every side by a row of columns. The finest specimen of this style of architecture—and, indeed, the noblest architectural monument in Athens—was the Parthenon, the temple dedicated to Minerva. It "was built in the best period of architecture, and under the inspiration of the highest genius in art"—Phidias, the greatest sculptor of ancient times, being its superintending architect, and some of the most celebrated works of his chisel adorning both its exterior and interior walls. To those who have seen a picture of the Parthenon in its ruins, it will be evident, upon the first view of the Ohio State house, that, in its external form, the latter was modeled after the former. Although the capitol is much the larger, the proportions of the two do not greatly differ—the one being one hundred and eighty-four feet, by three hundred and four; and the other one hundred and one feet, by two hundred and twenty-eight. The length of each structure, therefore, is about twice its width. The height and the diameter of the columns are about the same in both—i. e., thirty-six feet, by six. The capitol, therefore, is comparatively low. But this defect, if it be one, is obviated by the superior elevation of the building (ten feet in all, including the stone terrace and the steps to the porticos), and the lofty dome, the summit of which rises one hundred and fifty-eight feet from the ground. The Parthenon is peripteral, or completely surrounded by columns, the whole number of which is forty-six. On the other hand, the capitol is but partly surrounded by columns, there being eight in each of the side porticos, and four in each of those in the ends—twenty-four in all. But in the remaining portion of the walls, pilasters or square pillars are set, of the same height, and about the same diameter and distance apart as the columns, and extending out two feet from the body of the walls. These, at a little distance, give the building the appearance of being "colonnaded all round," and therefore peripteral. The Parthenon is also said to be octostyle—i. e., having eight columns under the pediment, or what we should call "the gable." And the same title may be given to the capitol, since a pediment is placed over each of the porticos having eight columns apiece, at the west and east fronts of the building.

The propriety of modeling the Ohio State house after the Parthenon, is sufficiently obvious. The Parthenon was a temple dedicated to the goddess of wisdom; and the larger of the two portions into which its interior was divided, was the one in which the great statue of the goddess was erected. And surely the capitol of a State ought to represent concentration of its highest wisdom. Legislators, unfortunately, are not always wise; but if wisdom may justly be demanded for any earthly work, it must be for the enactment of laws to govern such a commonwealth as that of Ohio. And it is certainly on the assumption that they are wise that men are ever elected to the legislature of any State. But more than for the character of those who congregate in its legislative halls, our State house is the temple of wisdom on account of the vast stores of knowledge, in all departments of human thought, collected in its library, which probably contains more books than could have been found in the whole city of Athens, while Minerva bore sway from the Parthenon, over that city of boasted learning.

In an artistic point of view, our modern Parthenon must, of course, yield the palm to the ancient. Built of white marble, from the celebrated quarries of Mt. Pentelicus, the ancient structure was adorned, both in its outer and inner walls, by its great master, Phidias, with sculptures that have ever since been the admiration of the world. On the other hand, constructed of more sober-colored limestone, Ohio's capitol stands in simpler majesty, with its walls, for the most part, still awaiting the immortal works, both in sculpture and painting, with which native genius shall yet adorn them. Two such decorations only (to be described further on), one in each of the two departments of art, now grace its rotunda, as a pledge of what the future has yet in store. But in the manifold utilities which distinguish modern civilization, the capitol has, almost infinitely, the advantage. The Parthenon had but two rooms, the larger containing the statue of the goddess, and used mainly for festive and religious occasions; the smaller occupied as the treasury of the city. But the capitol has twenty-eight rooms on the first floor, ten on the second, and fifteen on the third—making fifty-three, and each of them devoted to some useful purpose in connection with the government of the great State of Ohio. Each of the two structures, therefore, may stand as the exponent of the civilization that produced it. In the ancient building, taste dominated over utility; in the modern, utility dominates over taste. The one was the embodiment of a spirit which aimed at the artistic enjoyment of the few, the other of a popular sentiment which demands the highest attainable good of all.

The act providing "for the erection of a new State house, at the seat of government," was passed by the general assembly, on the twenty-sixth of January, 1838. As this was thought to remove all doubt as to the continuance of the seat of government at Columbus, there was great rejoicing among the citizens, which manifested itself in a grand illumination and a series of festivals. Under the provisions of the act, the legislature, on the sixteenth of the following March, appointed, by joint resolution, a board of commissioners, consisting of the following gentlemen: W. A. Adams, of Muskingum county; Joseph Ridgway, jr., of Franklin county; and W. B. Van Hook, of Butler county. These commissioners met at Columbus, in April, and entered into contract with Wm. S. Sullivant, for stone from his quarry, on the Scioto river, at fifty cents per perch of twenty-five cubic feet. Under that contract, during the year 1838, two thousand and sixty-two perches of stone were delivered, a part at the site of the proposed building, and a part at the penitentiary, and convicts were employed in preparing the stone for the walls. The commissioners also advertised for plans, offering pre-

DR. SAMUEL Z. SELTZER.

Samuel Zimmerman Seltzer, long an esteemed resident and successful physician in Columbus, now deceased, was brought into the world August 17, 1801, in Jonestown, Lebanon county, Pennsylvania. He was the son of George and Elizabeth Seltzer, whose ancestors were German-born. His father settled in that region long before Jonestown was founded, and he and a Mr. Jones, from whom the place was named, were the original proprietors of its site. He was a farmer, but his son, Samuel, at the early age of two years, was crippled for life by a severe cold, which settled in the hip and resulted in serious disease, stunting his growth somewhat, and permanently laming him. He was thus prompted to a studious life, and, after a course in the common and higher schools, and some classical education at a university in Philadelphia, he entered the Jefferson Medical college, in the same city, from which he was graduated in due course. He had, meanwhile, occupied his time profitably in vacations with reading in the office of Dr. Eberle, of Jonestown, with whom he became associated in practice, soon after graduating, and at once sprang into active and successful business.

July 30, 1821, while still in his twentieth year, he was married to Miss Mary Fausnoght, of the same place, and in 1832, with her and their three young children, removed to Columbus. Here he recommenced practice, alone and a stranger; but soon improved his acquaintance and recommended himself by his success, getting, by-and-by, a large business, which he kept until his death. This sad event occurred in 1852, of dysentery, as the ultimate result of an attack of cholera, which he had in 1849. He was a quiet, unobtrusive man, never seeking or holding public office. He was a Universalist in his belief, and took an active part in the formation of the society of that faith now existing in the city, and in the building of its original church edifice, still standing on Third street, between Rich and Town streets. He was also a Free Mason. He took a hearty interest in the local medical societies, and also in public improvements, especially in the founding of the State institutions in Columbus, and died much respected and regretted by his fellow-citizens. Of the thirteen children born to his family — five sons and eight daughters — five of the latter died in infancy, and one son since. The survivors, in order of age, are: George D., a tinner, residing in Columbus; Matilda, wife of John K. Heyl, a customs-house officer, living in Philadelphia; Dr. Van S., of Columbus, the subject of a biographical sketch published herewith; John Z., a musician and music dealer, in Columbus; Samuel, a conductor on the Central Ohio railway; Ellen A., wife of Jacob Long, a Columbus confectioner; and Wilhelmina, who resides with her brother, Van, in Columbus. His wife still survives, at a venerable age, and also resides with the younger doctor, as noted in the outline of his life and public services.

DR. VAN S. SELTZER.

One of the best known, and most successful physicians of the capital city is Van Swieten Seltzer, M. D., a citizen "to the manner born," who first saw the light upon the identical spot where he now resides, at No. 39 east Friend street, Columbus, on the thirty-first of August, 1834. He is of German extraction, his father being Samuel Z. Seltzer, whose life and character are treated in a separate notice in this volume. The elder Seltzer being a physician, his son, the subject of this sketch, after a preliminary course of education in the Columbus public schools, and a year at the State university, easily and naturally fell into a course of medical reading. His father being now dead, he entered first the office of Dr. John Morison, in Columbus, and afterwards that of Professor and Dr. G. Howard, the latter holding at the time the chair of surgery in the Starling Medical college, the lectures of which young Seltzer attended during three academic years. He was graduated in 1856, at once re-opened his father's office for general practice, and speedily acquired a large and lucrative business, which he has retained with steady increase to the present time. His theories and remedies are of the "old," or allopathic school, in the application of which he has achieved remarkable success. For four years, 1870-73, he was physician to the county infirmary, and for the next three years he held a similar relation to the State Deaf and Dumb institution. Besides these distinctions, he has been entrusted by his fellow-citizens with several posts of honor and responsibility. In his earlier business life he was for a time assessor of his ward, and, but for its Democratic proclivities (he has been a Republican since Republicanism was), he would have received several other local offices, for which he has occasionally consented to be a candidate. The present year (1879) he was nominated on the Republican ticket as one of the candidates for representative from Franklin county to the State legislature, and was defeated, in the face of a general Democratic success in the county, by only two hundred and fifty-four majority. At present he is a member of the board of police commissioners of the city. August 14, 1855, Dr. Seltzer was united in marriage to Miss Minerva Smeltzer, of Zanesville, Ohio, who is still living, as also his mother, who resides with him at his pleasant home in Columbus, and is now in her seventy-ninth year. Dr. Seltzer has no children, but finds abundant occupation in the other enjoyments of home, and in his increasing professional and public cares.

miums. Between fifty and sixty were received from different parts of the country. From the designs thus furnished, the commissioners, in October, 1838, selected the best three, to which they awarded premiums. These were from Henry Walter, of Cincinnati (who was made superintending architect); Martin E. Thompson, of New York city; and Thomas Cole, of Catskill, New York. The plan actually adopted was a modification of these three premium designs, and the average estimate of expense was about four hundred and fifty thousand dollars —less than one-third of the entire expense of the building up to 1875, when it had amounted to one milllion, four hundred and forty-one thousand, six hundred and seventy-seven dollars.

The estimates of the commissioners and architects were passed in part upon convict labor, at much lower rates than upon other labor. The commissioners, in their report to the legislature, urged the employment of one or two hundred convicts, on the score of economy, and asked for an appropriation of fifty thousand dollars. The legislature, at its next session, made the desired appropriation, and active work began in April, 1839. Excavations were made, and the laying of the foundations commenced; and the work steadily advanced under the superintendence of the architect, and the commissioners in person. The corner-stone was formally laid on the 4th of July, 1839, in the presence of a vast assemblage of people, including three fine military companies from Lancaster. A procession, said to have numbered five thousand, was formed on High street, and marched into Capitol square. When the northeast angle of the projected State house was reached, one of the bands struck up "Hail Columbus." There a gigantic stone was seen swinging aloft, upheld by derricks and a complicated maze of cordage, ready to be let down upon another of like size, resting firmly in its bed, and containing, securely packed in strong flint-glass jars, a large number of interesting documents, for preservation "into the ages." After prayer by the Rev. Dr. Hoge, ex-Governor Morrow prefaced the ceremony, which he had been appointed to perform, with an eloquent address, of which the following are the closing sentences: "May the blessings of a benign Providence, through all coming time, rest upon this people, and upon this house, the work of their hands.

I NOW LAY THE CORNER-STONE OF THE CAPITOL OF OHIO."

The stone was then properly and safely adjusted to its firm and permanent resting-place. The Rev. Mr. Cressy invoked the divine blessing, and the throng moved from the square to Fourth street, reassembling under a large elm, on Joseph Whitehill's property. Here a thrilling ode, composed by W. D. Gallagher, was sung, and an oration delivered by John D. Miller; after which the exercises of the day were closed by a bountiful repast served upon the public square.

It was the design of the commissioners to build, during the next season, the basement story, and to provide brick and other materials for the interior walls. To enable them to do these things, they requested an appropriation of thirty thousand dollars.

But the legislature, at its next session, in the winter of 1839–40, instead of granting this request and thus providing the funds needed for the prosecution of the work, in a fit of not very dignified vexation, actually repealed the law for the erection of a State house! The history of this strange freak is briefly as follows:

The year 1840 being the date mentioned in the agreement made by the State with the original proprietors of the town, as the time up to which the sessions of the legislature should be held thereat—"and from thence until otherwise provided by law"—when this date approached, other towns in the central portion of the State began to agitate the question of removing the capital. There had been, for some time, more or less ill-feeling on the part of these towns toward Columbus. Among other grave offences, she was accused of putting on metropolitan airs. An incident occurred in the legislative session of 1839–40 which served to kindle this little spark of envy into a flame. Certain charges had been brought against a member from Cuyahoga county, William B. Lloyd, resulting in an investigation, and a vote of censure. After the investigation, a paper signed by sixty-three citizens of Columbus, principally young men, expressing undiminished confidence in Mr. Lloyd's integrity, appeared in the Columbus State Journal, of February 17th, with the signers' names attached. Many members of the legislature who had voted to censure Mr. Lloyd, took umbrage at this action of the young men, denouncing it as an unwarrantable interference with the proceedings of the general assembly. While the excitement was at its height, Mr. G. B. Flood, a representative from Licking county, introduced into the house the bill above referred to, repealing the act for the erection of a State house. It passed both branches of the legislature, and became a law on the tenth of March. By this action, the work on the new State house was suspended for more than six years, during which the subject of removal was agitated more earnestly than ever before.

All efforts, however, proved unavailing; and the general assembly, at length, on the twenty-first of February, 1846, passed a new act for the erection of a State house, but made so small an appropriation for continuing the work that nothing was done the next season, except by a few convicts, in excavating for the foundations and laying about two thousand perches of stone.

The commissioners appointed by the legislature, under the new act, were W. A. Adams, Samuel Medary, and Joseph Ridgway, jr. So little means, however, was placed at their disposal, that they were able to sccomplish little till the spring of 1848, when arrangements were made for the vigorous prosecution of the work. Wm. R. West and J. O. Sawyer were appointed architects and general superintendents, and Jacob Strickler, special superintendent. The basement walls were partly raised by the close of the year.

The next season (1849) the stone quarry was worked on a larger scale—a railroad track being laid to the bottom of the quarry. The basement walls were completed during this year, and the building loomed up about fourteen feet from the surface of the ground. In the spring of 1850, active operations began under favorable auspices, the legislature having made an appropriation of eighty thousand dollars for the prosecution of the work. Notwithstanding the prevalence of the cholera during the summer, the edifice that season, reached a height of nearly thirty feet above the original surface of the ground. During this season, the State was called to mourn the death of Mr. Ridgway, one of the commissioners, and the report of his survivors, to the legislature, at the close of the year, makes the following allusion to the sad event:

"In common with their fellow-citizens of the State, the commissioners have to regret the loss of their colleague, Joseph Ridgway, jr., who died of cholera, in the month of August, at Mt. Vernon, Ohio. He was endeared to his survivors by rare intelligence, honesty, and energy, which placed him among the most honorable and useful men in the community."

In 1851, William L. Sullivant was appointed commissioner, in the place of Mr. Ridgway. Work was recommenced on the building, as soon as the weather would permit, and the structure was raised about twenty feet higher—the height of the exterior walls being about forty-eight feet. In March, 1852, the legislature having passed an act to "provide for the more efficient and expeditious completion of the new State house," appointed Edwin Smith, S. H. Webb, and E. T. Stickney as a new board of commissioners. One of their number, Mr. Webb, was appointed general superintendent, and Mr. West was retained as architect. In 1853, a contract was made with Messrs. Ambos & Lennox, of Columbus, for the iron framework of the roof. Before the close of the year, the columns for the legislative halls, with their bases and capitals, all of Pennsylsania white marble, had been placed in their appropriate positions. In May, 1854, Mr. West having resigned his position as architect, N. B. Kelly was appointed in his place, and was soon after intrusted with the general supervision of the work. A contract was made with Charles Rule, of Cincinnati, for furnishing and laying all the marble tile required for the floors of the rotunda and halls, to consist of Italian white, and American black, white and blue marble. Contracts were also entered into with James Lennox for the wrought iron water-tanks, and with Nelson A. Britt for putting on the copper roof. All the stone work, except the steps and the cupola, was finished during this year, and the State house rapidly approached its completion. In 1855, contracts were made for the interior work; among others, with James Lennox, of Columbus, for heating apparatus, and with the Columbus machine manufacturing company for the wrought and cast-iron work for the ceilings in the several rooms. In the annual report of the commissioners for this year, the architect, Mr. Kelly, explained to the legislature the elaborate plan which he had devised for ventilating and warming the building. The desks for the speaker and for the clerk of the house of representatives, were nearly completed during this year. They are of white Italian marble, and those in the senate chamher were designed to correspond in style and material.

On the eighth of April, 1856, an act was passed "to provide for the prosecution of the work on the new State house, prescribing the order in which it shall be done, and making appropriations therefor." Under this act, a new board of commissions was appointed, consisting of Wm. A. Platt, acting, and James T. Worthington and L. G. Harkness, advisory members. These commissioners, pursuant to the provisions of the act, and in view of the approaching completion of the building, submitted the plans, previously adopted, to Thomas U. Walker, of Washington city, and Richard Upjohn, of New York city, as consulting architects. These artists gave their opinion and advice, which did not lead to any material change. All the work contemplated by the last-named act, except the floor of the library hall, was finished by the close of this year. The legislative halls, with the necessary committee rooms, clerks' rooms, etc., were, at the same time, ready for the use of the general assembly. On the evening of January 6, 1857, a superb banquet was given by the citizens of Columbus to the members of the general assembly and other State officials, and to a great number of distinguished visitors. All parts of our own State, and many of the other States of the Union, were represented in the great assemblage which gathered in the city on that memorable occasion. About two weeks previous to the festival, the city council appointed Messrs. Noble, Comstock, Decker, and Reinhard, a committee to make arrangements for a "house-warming" in the new State house; and, at a citizens' meeting, on the same evening, L. Buttles, Henry Wilson, W. G. Deshler, R. E. Neil, and Francis Collins, were appointed a committee for the same purpose. On the afternoon of the day appointed for the festival, the Cleveland Grays, a fine military company, arrived in the city, and were received by the State Fencibles, of Columbus, whose guests they were. The appearance of the two companies, as they paraded the streets together, was the subject of general remark and admiration. During the day, the State house was prepared for the grand banquet, and the ceremonies and festivities of the evening. The chairs and furniture were removed from the halls. The rotunda, which had been beautifully decorated with tri-colored muslin, evergreen, flowers, and wreaths, was assigned for the banqueting hall. Tables, bountifully laden, were placed in its eastern half, in a semi-circular form. As evening came on, the noble edifice was brilliantly lighted; and, crowning all, was the illuminated dome, from which the light shone in all directions, with rare and beautiful effect. At nine o'clock, the ceremonies previously arranged, began. The Rev. Dr. Hoge offered prayer. Alfred Kelly, of Columbus, at that time representing the counties of Franklin and Pickaway in the State senate, made an address of welcome.

While these exercises were going on in the hall of the house of representatives, the senate chamber was the scene of music and dancing. It was not long before this festivity became general, wherever a space could be cleared for musicians and dancers. Till a late hour at night the capitol was the scene of light, joy, and revelry, while crowds of people jostled each other on the stairways, and kept thronging through the rotunda, the halls, apartments, and corriders, like the restless waves of the ocean. The number of people present during the evening was estimated at eight thousand. It appears, from the report of D. W. Deshler, treasurer of the committee of arrangements, that from the number of admission tickets given up, and by other means, the entire number of visitors to the festival might be set down at ten thousand, seven hundred and twenty-eight. The amount of money received on subscription and sale of tickets was four thousand, seven hundred and five dollars; leaving on hand, after all expenses were paid, three hundred dollars. The legislative session of 1856–7 was the first held in the new State house. During the year 1857 the unfinished work on the building was actively pushed forward. The next two years, 1858 and 1859, were devoted to the completion of the cupola, the main stairway, the eastern terrace and steps, the tiling of the rotunda, gas fixtures, brick arches, stone flagging, and the grading and ornamenting of the grounds. Isaiah Rogers, of Cincinnati, was appointed architect, in July, 1858, and, under his superintendence, the remainder of the work was completed, late in the fall of 1861. Occasional improvements, however, have been added since that period. The entire time occupied in the erection of the building, leaving out intervals of suspension, was about fifteen years. The total cost, up to October 15, 1875, was one million, four hundred and forty-one thousand, six hundred and seventy-seven dollars. Although there are but two tiers of windows on the outside of the building, it is, nevertheless, three stories in height—the upper story obtaining light (as do also the others, in part) from four open courts, extending up through the entire building. The dimensions of these courts are, about twenty-four feet in breadth by fifty-nine in length. The heating apparatus (costing over forty-thousand dollars), the carpenter's shop, and the packing and storage rooms, are in the basement. The first story is devoted to the State offices. On the second floor are the large chambers—the senate, house of representatives, the State library, and supreme court room. The committee rooms, flag, and relic rooms, are in the third story.

The flag room, here mentioned, was selected in 1866, for the reception and preservation of the Ohio regimental and other flags carried in the late civil war. It was furnished with suitable stands and railings for the colors of different regiments and companies, which were put up in order on the sides and in the middle of the apartment, with a printed card attached to each banner, showing its number and title. There were in the room, in 1867, three hundred and forty-four flags of cavalry, artillery and infantry. A register is kept in which visitors are desired to record their names. Opposite to this room, and connected with it by a narrow corridor, is the relic room, in which are contained a large number of captured flags, and other trophies of the late Rebellion. The rooms of the State board of education are situated opposite to those of the governor. There are three of them, forming one of the pleasantest suits in the building. The west room, occupied as the secretary's office, is handsomely furnished, and is the assembly room of the board when in session. The middle room is devoted to the library and cabinet. The east room is the mailing office and store room for reports, etc. There are in the library about two thousand volumes, all standard works, and nearly all purchased in Europe by Mr. Klippart, the secretary of the board. On the walls of these rooms hang the only set of the portraits, now in the United States, of prize cattle, published by the Smithfield club. Here, also, are portraits of twenty-five of the most noted stallions of the king of Hanover's stud, photographs of Baron Steiger's renowned sheep, casts of the most important species of the fish of lake Erie, made in plaster in 1876, and many other interesting and instructive objects.

We will conclude our historical description of the Ohio State house, by a brief notice of its rotunda, and the works of art now or formerly contained in it. Its general resemblance to that of the capitol at Washington, has, of course, struck every one who has seen them both. No description can give any adequate idea of the effect produced upon the mind of the beholder, as he stands and gazes up into the sky-like expanse. We must content ourselves with a simple statement of its dimensions. The height of the stone arches, above the rotunda floor, is thirty-six feet, four inches; diameter of the floor, sixty-four feet, five inches; height from the floor to the eye of the dome, one hundred and twenty feet; from the floor to the upper sky-light, one hundred and thirty feet.

The rotunda floor is, in itself, an exquisite work of art. It is a Mosaic work, containing four thousand nine hundred and fifty-seven pieces of marble. The centre is a star of fourteen feet diameter, having thirty-two points. The centre of the star is formed of seven hexagons, black white and red, surrounded by three borders of green, black, and green. The star-points are black and red, on a white ground. A border of green seperates this star from the body of the floor, which is composed of concentric circles of octagons and squares; the octagons of the inner circle measuring five and a half inches, and those of the outer, two feet in diameter. The whole is bounded by a border of green, as a dividing line between the rotunda floor and those of the corridors and niches—they being respectively square and diamonds, black and white. The octagons are of black and white, alternating.

If the beholder stands at any point and looks toward the center, he will perceive a straight row of octagons, alternately white and black, diminishing in size, and terminating in the outer edge of the star. If, from any octagon in the outer circle, his eye follows right and left the rows composed of blocks of the same color, he will perceive that they sweep around in a sort of parabolic curves, terminating in opposite sides of the star; and, as he approaches the star, these curves will diminish in length, and the points at which they meet the star, will come nearer and nearer to the line of his approach. It seems wonderful that concentric circles, composed of blocks differing in size and color, can be so arranged as to display these diversified lines, which are almost labyrinthine in their intricacy, and yet perfectly harmonious in their relation to each other. The black marble is from Vermont; the white is the Italian veined; the squares are of red marble, from Lisbon, Portugal, and the green borders from Vermont. The whole forms an exquisitely beautiful floor, having an area of about three thousand two hundred and seventy square feet.

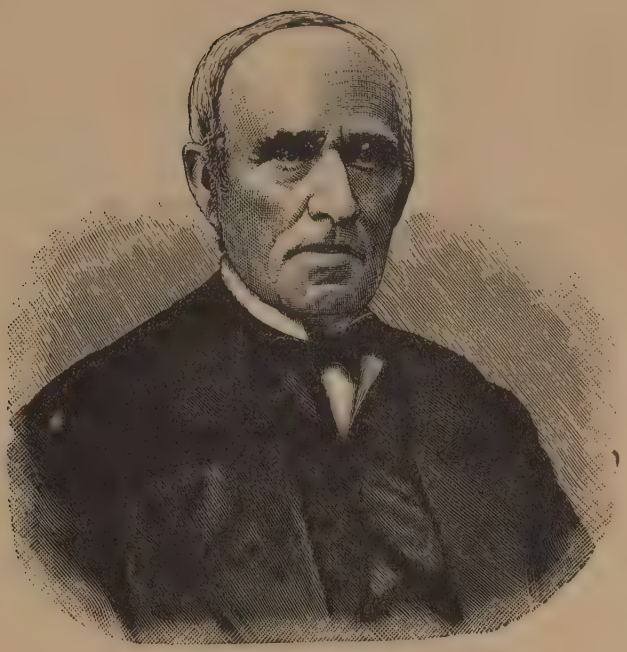
The four statues, imported from Italy, by James Emmitt, of Pike county, formerly a State senator, and by him placed on exhibition some six years ago, were not purchased by the State, and have been removed by the owner. They represented the "Prophetess of the Future," the "Muse of History," a "Bachante," and "Innocence."

W. H. Powell's famous painting of Commodore Perry's victory on Lake Erie, September 10, 1813, having been purchased by the State, was suspended, in the spring of 1865, on the northeast wall of the rotunda. Whatever defects a rigid criticism may discern in this fine painting, they are all cast into the background by its great merits. The naval launch, in the foreground, is an exact representation of the model formerly used in the United States navy. The figures of the commodore and his brave crew, are exceedingly true to life. The expression of the cockswain in the stern sheets of the launch, is that of anxiety and inquiry, as he looks up to his commodore; while the latter, with hand pointing toward the American ship, on the right of the painting, seems directing the course of the launch towards her. Above him, on the quarter-deck of the vessel he has just left, which bears the mark of solid shot upon its counter, is a sailor, with raised hat, evidently shouting for victory. The figure, attitude, and expression of Commodore Perry's little son, as he looks, with fearful gaze into his father's eye, is, for its simplicity and beauty, one of the finest features of the painting. The old tar behind the commodore, who is busily cleaning the boat with his oar, from the debris of sails, splintered masts, and rigging, shows, by his bandaged head, that he has seen hard service. A fine looking sailor, at the port oar, near the commander, is eagerly scanning his countenance, while the negro servant, with outstretched arms, is watching the leaden storm of shot as it ricochets over the surface of the lake. The rents in the old flag are impressively represented. The vessels engaged, the fire from the British ships, the sulphur smoke of the battle, and the dim, hazy clouds floating around, are all admirably represented. The interest in this painting has been deeply and sadly increased by the recent death of the artist, who died about the first of October, 1879, in the city of New York.

Not long after the close of the war, the Ohio Monument association was formed, for the purpose of placing in the rotunda of the capitol a mural monument, as a memorial of President Lincoln. In the latter part of 1865, a commission was given to Thomas D. Jones, a well-known sculptor, then of Cincinnati, for a memorial statue, to be designed by himself. The price paid was six thousand dollars, raised by the association, mostly by subscription. In about four years from the date of the commission, the work was completed and placed in its present position, in the rotunda. The memorial rests on a base of Quincy granite, seven feet four inches wide, and two feet thick. The first section above the die, contains a historical group, cut from Italian marble, in alto-relievo, the whole length of the surface upon which the figures are carved being five feet two inches, and the width, respectively, three and a half feet. The bust (which is of heroic size) of pure white Carrara marble, surmounting the monument, is three feet two inches high, making the whole height of the memorial fourteen feet. In the bust, the sculptor has preserved, with remarkable fidelity, the well-known features, and the calm majesty of expression, which characterized the immortal president. The marble group, in alto-relievo, represents the surrender of Vicksburg. There are eight figures in the group, varying from twenty-four to twenty-five inches in height, and, on the extreme right and left, are seen the heads of two horses, with appropriate trappings, their bridles being held by two orderlies in attendance. The surrender is represented as taking place under a large oak tree, from whose branches festoons of beautiful Spanish moss is hanging. To the left of the tree, and on the right of the observer, the foremost figure is that of General Grant. Next to him stands General McPherson, and next to the latter, but more in the foreground, General Sherman is seen. An orderly stands at Sherman's right. The foremost figure on the Confederate side is, of course, General Pemberton, represented as in the act of surrendering to General Grant. Next to Pemberton is Colonel Montgomery, and next to him, General Bowen. There is, in this group, an athletic, lithe-limbed, Southern orderly. The unveiling of the monument took place in the rotunda, on the evening of January 19, 1870, in the presence of a crowded assembly. The memorial, standing in the recess between the east and the south entrance to the rotunda, was veiled by large American flags. Governor Hayes called the meeting to order, and the Rev. D. H. Moore offered prayer. The choir of the First Presbyterian church—Miss Emma J. Lathrop, Miss Kate Kerr, Mr. A. H. Morehead, and Mr. H. W. Frillman—sang "America"; after which the Hon. Samuel Galloway delivered an address on behalf of the Ohio Monumental association. At the close of the address, the governor introduced Mr. Jones, who proceeded to superintend the unveiling of the monument. The flags, at a given signal, parted in the middle, like a great curtain, and were drawn aside, when the monument, with the Vicksburg surrender and the colossal bust of Lincoln, came into full view. Silence reigned for a moment, and then rounds of applause burst forth, which were followed by the hymn, "Spirit Immortal," sung by the choir. Speeches were then made by Gen. Durbin Ward, of Warren county, member of the Ohio senate, and Gen. W. H. Enochs, of the house of representatives. With another song by the choir, and a benediction pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Cory, of the Ohio senate, the exercises of the evening closed. Soon after receiving the commission for this, his last, and, in some respects, greatest, work, Mr. Jones removed from Cincinnati to this city, where he has ever since resided. Quarters have been assigned to him in the "relic room," and he is certainly the most interesting "relic" now to be found there. Few persons in the city are so familiarly known as he, and his venerable form (he is now seventy years old), and his long white hair and beard,



JUDGE THOMAS STITT.

This gentleman, one of the oldest residents of Columbus, was born in County Down, Ireland, June 24, 1804. His grandparents on one side were of the Scotch blood, but had settled in Ireland some years before the birth of Thomas. James Stitt, his father, as an elder son, inherited the paternal farm, and also married a Scotch woman, named Mary Newell. To them were born six children: Nancy, James, Archey, Thomas (the subject of this sketch), Alexander, and William. About the year 1801, he came with all his children then in his family to America, and settled in Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania, where he undertook the labors of a farm which he rented. Two years thereafter, he died. His boys all learned trades, Thomas becoming a shoemaker. William, the sole surviving brother, became a tailor, and now resides in Pulaski, Lawrence county, Pennsylvania. Thomas learned his trade with John Scott, father of Congressman and United States Senator Scott, of that State, at Fannettsburgh, Franklin county, Pennsylvania. About 1828 he left that place, and resided for a year or two at Spence Creek, Huntingdon county, same State, and thence removed in 1830, to Ohio. Stopping about a month in Cleveland, he pushed on to Newark, remained there about a year, and in 1831 he reached Columbus, where he has since most of the time resided. At first he took the superintendency of the shoe shops at the old State prison, but left the post upon the completion of the new penitentiary in 1834. He then secured the contracts for the manufacture of shoes in the penitentiary, and remained in this business five years. In 1839 he returned to Newark, and opened a clothing store, which he conducted for a year, but the business proving unprofitable, he went back to Columbus. There he engaged in the manufacture of saleratus in a factory, where his lime-kiln now stands. The article was in good demand, and he made a lucrative thing of it for five years, when he exchanged it for the manufacture of lime, which dragged somewhat in its profits until 1849, when the business improved and presented brighter prospects. In it he remained continuously until 1874, when he leased it to his nephew, Alexander Stitt, who had then recently arrived in Columbus. The elder Stitt has since almost wholly retired from business, having acquired a fortune by his industry and fidelity which enables him to live comfortably without personal labor. He resides with his son, in a handsome residence on Spruce street, Columbus, and is still hale and vigorous in both body and mind, though now well advanced in his seventy-sixth year. Twice a day, usually, he walks from his home to the business centre of the city, a mile away, and considers pedestrianism his only means of locomotion. His mind is clear, his memory good, and his hearing is but slightly impaired. The title given him by his friends, and preserved at the head of this notice, is purely complimentary. He has nothing to do with the law, except to observe it punctually as a quiet, peaceable citizen. His early education was limited, as he had but small advantages in the schools of his time, but he studied much with book before him while working at the bench, and has since improved the opportunities which the abundant literature of later days affords, to become a well-informed man. He has remained a bachelor, but redeems the lack of a family of his own by rearing and supporting a number of neices and nephews, to whom, with other members of his family, most of his surplus means go every year.

constitute one of the most picturesque objects that one meets when straying through the capitol, or about its grounds. As a somewhat tardy, and yet timely, act of justice, the legislature, convinced that he had not been fairly remunerated for his great work, made an appropriation of three thousand, five hundred dollars for his benefit, in the spring of 1878. We have not time, nor would this be the place, for an extended notice of Mr. Jones' work, but we cannot forbear to mention the following: A colossal soldier, carved in 1865, as embodying the ideal of American valor. It is executed in native freestone, about twelve feet high, and is standing on the bank of the river, at Pomeroy, Ohio. This has been copied in several other places. Duting the war, he executed, in marble, a fine bust of Secretary Chase, and about the same time, one of Thomas Ewing—another of Ohio's greatest statesmen. All of these works are greatly admired.

THE FIRST PENITENTIARY.

The present penitentiary system was introduced into Ohio in 1815. The first Ohio statute, making larceny a penitentiary offence, was passed January 27, 1815, and took effect on the first day of the following August. Previous to this, larceny had been punished by whipping. The provisions of an act regulating the punishment of this crime, provided, that the offender, upon conviction, should be whipped, not exceeding thirty-nine stripes on the bare back, and that upon a second conviction for a like offence, he should be whipped, not exceeding fifty stripes, at the discretion of the court. The act of 1815 provided that the offender, upon conviction of larceny to the amount of ten dollars and upwards, should be imprisoned in the penitentiary, at hard labor, for not more than seven years, nor less than one year. In 1821, the law was so modified as to require a larceny amounting to fifty dollars, to constitute an offence punishable by confinement; and, in 1835, the amount of the larceny was reduced to thirty-five dollars, and this has continued to be the law to the present time. The first penitentiary in Ohio was built in 1813, in the southwest portion of the town of Columbus, on the ten-acre lot conveyed to the State by the original proprietors of the town, for the erection of a penitentiary and its dependencies. The building was erected under the superintendence of William Ludlow, the State director of public buildings. The dimensions of the first building were as follows: Sixty by thirty feet, and three stories high, including the basement. The basement contained the cellar, kitchen, and dining-room for the prisoners. The second story was the keeper's residence, and was entered by high steps from the street, so constructed as to cut off all communication between the street and the basement. The upper story contained thirteen cells, four of them without light. The prison yard was about one hundred feet square, and was enclosed by a wall from fifteen to eighteen feet in height. In 1818, "the new penitentiary," as it was called, was erected, and the yard enlarged to about four hundred feet, east and west, and one hundred and sixty feet, north and south. The walls enclosing the yard were twenty feet high and three feet thick, with a heavy plank floor on the top, and a hand railing on the inner edge; and within this enclosure were the various work-shops. The new prison building was of brick, one hundred and fifty feet long, and thirty-four feet wide. It was two stories high, and formed a continued line with the old building. Two adjoining rooms on the second floor were used as a hospital. Above ground there were fifty-four cells or lodging rooms, and below ground five dark and solitary cells, accessible only through a trap-door in the hall. The old building was remodeled as a residence for the keeper. This change was made under the superintendence of Judge Jarvis Pike, acting under direction of the State officers—Ralph Osborn, auditor; Hiram M. Curry, treasurer; and Jeremiah McLene, secretary of state.

The first legislative act for the government of the State prison, and confinement of convicts therein, took effect in August, 1815, having been passed in January, preceding. Under this act, the legislature, on joint ballot, chose five inspectors, whose duty it was to appoint a keeper, or warden, and prescribe rules for the government of the prison. The inspectors appointed James Hooker, keeper, who entered upon his duties on the first day of August, 1815, and appointed Col. Griffith Thomas as clerk. In January, 1819, an act was passed, creating the office of State agent, and providing for the election of both keeper and agent for the term of three years, by the legislature. Hooker was re-elected keeper, and Thomas, agent. The keeper was required to pass all articles manufactured by the convicts to the agent, who was required to keep them in a store-house contiguous to the prison, make sales, collect out-standing debts, and pay over all cash receipts to the State treasurer. During the first years after the opening of the penitentiary, there were few convicts, and, of course, few guards needed. The keeper was very kind-hearted and lenient, when he thought leniency could be shown without a breach of official duty. At times there was little work for the convicts, and they were, very properly, allowed to amuse themselves in various ways. A favorite game was one known, in primitive times, as "barn ball." This was played against the west end of the north wing of the building, and they had a dog in the yard, so trained, that when the ball flew over the wall, he would summon the guard, pass out, get the ball, and return it to the prisoners. The office of State agent was abolished in 1822, and the legislature elected Barzillai Wright to succeed Hooker, whose second term expired at that time. Mr. Wright died in 1823, and Governor Morrow appointed Nathaniel McLean to fill the vacancy. McLean was continued in office, by the legislature, until the spring of 1830, when he was succeeded by Byram Leonard, of Knox county. Leonard was succeeded, in the spring of 1832, by W. W. Galt, of Newark, who continued in office until the removal to the present penitentiary, in the fall of 1834. The successive clerks, after the office of agent was abolished, in 1822, and before the removal, were: Cyrus Fay, Henry Mathews, George Whitmore, W. F. Martin, Nelson Talmage, Timothy Griffith, and Uriah Lathrop. Blacksmithing, wagon-making, coopering, shoe-making, gun-smithing, cabinet-making, tailoring, and weaving, were the principal trades carried on in the old penitentiary. The manufactured articles were sold, or exchanged for the raw materials, or provisions. The clerk had charge of the store and books. There were, almost every year, more or less escapes from the old prison, though but one is recorded where violence was offered to officers or employees. In 1830, about a dozen prisoners secreted themselves in a vacant room, near the outer door of the prison. Watching their opportunity, when the turnkey opened the door, the most daring of the gang sprang forward and pinioned the arms of the officer, while the rest of the party rushed out. Their leader then bounded after them, and before the alarm could be given they had gained the covert of the woods. All were, however, recaptured. The story, if authentic, shows a very reprehensible laxity in the discipline within the prison walls.

THE PRESENT PENITENTIARY.

An act was passed by the legislature, February 8, 1832, authorizing the erection of a new penitentiary. This act made it the duty of the general assembly to elect or appoint three directors, at a salary of one hundred dollars a year, to select and purchase a site for the erection of the building, and to appoint a superintendent, at a salary not exceeding one thousand dollars a year, whose duty it should be to plan and superintend the work of building. Under the provisions of this act the legislature appointed, as directors, Joseph Olds, of Circleville; Samuel McCracken, of Lancaster, and Charles Anthony, of Springfield. On the seventh of December, 1832, the first report of the directors was laid before the senate, which recommended to the State the selection of a site on the east bank of the Scioto river, in the northern part of the city, containing fifteen acres. Some difficulty occurred in obtaining a title to the site selected; but through the intervention of several public-spirited citizens of Columbus, a warranty deed was executed to the State, October 17, 1832. To secure a good landing on the river, a narrow strip of land was bought of John Brickell, for fifty dollars. The whole site cost the State eight hundred dollars. In May, 1832, Nathaniel Medbury, of Columbus, was appointed superintendent of the new penitentiary, and contracts were made for the delivery of stone and brick for the building. The contract price of the stone and lime—the stone to be measured in the wall, was one dollar and forty-eight cents per perch. The contract price of the brick was two dollars and forty cents per thousand, the contractors having the labor of such a number of convicts as they might choose to employ, not exceeding thirty-six, to be guarded at the expense of the contractors. The plan prepared by the superintendent, being approved by the proper authorities, the work was commenced in earnest in March, 1833. The main building was to be four hundred feet long, and to contain seven hundred cells, the keeper's room and guard-room being in the center. The estimated cost of the whole, including the labor of convicts, was seventy-eight thousand four hundred and twenty-eight dollars and fifty-one cents; excluding labor, fifty-eight thousand seven hundred and forty-four dollars and sixty-one cents. Before the breaking out of the cholera, which interrupted the work during the summer of 1833, from fifty to eighty convicts were employed, and when the work was resumed in the autumn, about one hundred were kept at work. Of the three hundred or more convicts then in the prison, few escaped an attack of the epidemic, though but forty cases were pronounced genuine cholera, and, of this number, only eleven were fatal.

Mr. Medbury, the superintendent, was appointed warden, October 27, 1834; and, on the two suceeding days, the convicts were removed from the old to the new penitentiary. In March, following, the directors appointed Isaac Cool, deputy warden; H. Z. Mills, clerk; Rev. Russel Bigelow, chaplain; and M. B. Wright, physician.

The prison was now in operation under a new law, new officers, and new rules and regulations. The old system of barter was abolished, and the convicts were hired by the day to contractors or large manufactures, who employed them in prison shops, as at present. At first the system of discipline was severe and rigidly enforced; but here, as elsewhere, modern, and in this instance more humane ideas have supplanted those built upon the aphorism, "An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth." Solitary confinement has been substituted for the "shower bath" and "cat;" and the convicts are supplied with regular religious instruction and the means of intellectual improvement. Continued good conduct shortens the term of imprisonment. In 1837, within the prison walls and at the east end of the main building, a separate apartment was constructed for female convicts. The cost of construction, up to December 12, 1837, when the buildings were quite completed, was ninety-three thousand three hundred and seventy dollars.

By a joint resolution, adopted May 16, 1868, the legislature authorized the directors to purchase ten acres of land lying immediately north of the grounds when occupied by the institution. A contract for this purchase was made with the representatives of Dr. Lincoln Goodale, on the first of October, following, for the sum of twenty thousand dollars, and this additional ground was enclosed by a wall twenty-four feet high. The constant increase in the number of convicts makes frequent enlargements necessary, not only in the prison proper, but also in the work-shops, in which the labor of the convicts is made available for the support of the penitentiary. It was to provide for this expansion that a change of location became necessary, when the present building was erected in 1834, and which may, at no distant day, compel the location and erection of another State penitentiary. In the last annual report of the directors and wardens of this institution, we find the statement that twenty-seven thousand six hundred and six-eight dollars and thirty-six cents had been expended during the year ending October 31, 1878, in the erection of a new cell-building; and though the added number of cells, which may be built for a little less than twenty-eight thousand dollars, does not appear in the report, the attention of the legislature is called to the fact that in view of the steady increase in the number of prisoners, the cell capacity will have to be increased, or a return to the "roost," vacated by the son of Ludwig Bruck, a saddler, was born February 28, 1807, at Zweibruchen, now in Rhine, Bavaria, which, at that time, belonged to France by conquest under Napoleon. The city was called by the French Deux Ponts (Two Bridges). After receiving the usual common-school education, which is enforced in Bavaria and other German principalities, young Bruck was apprenticed to a cabinet-maker. After serving his apprenticeship, with knapsack on his back, and passport in his pocket, he traveled eight years as a journeyman, to perfect himself in his trade, as was the custom of the country. In this manner he traveled over almost the whole of Germany, working in different cities as long as he could learn anything new at his trade. At Meinz, on the river Rhine, where the finest work in furniture is made in Germany or France, Mr. Bruck spent three years. While there, he made a small oblong table for the Duke William of Nassau, composed of three hundred and sixty-five pieces of wood, of as many varieties as could be procured; for which he was paid one Prussian dollar per week, which was then considered fair wages, although but a trifle over ten cents per day, with board for the four months occupied in working on this table. It was greatly admired for its exquisite taste and superior workmanship, and sold for seven hundred and sixty-six Prussian dollars. He also made an inlaid mosaic, or parquette, floor at the palace of the general commanding the garrison at Meinz, which, from the drawings still preserved, must have been a splendid piece of workmanship. While in this city, Mr. Bruck, after working hard six days each week, attended a drawing school on Sunday, his tuition costing him about forty cents per quarter. His natural taste for drawing soon made him a proficient draughtsman. He has preserved a scrap-book of excellent drawings of all the fine cabinet work made by him, which shows his rare skill as a workman.

A. P. Bruck

In 1834, Mr. Bruck left Germany for the United States, landing in New York. On board the sailing vessel that brought him was a young friend, George Cullman, accompanied by his sister. Shortly after arriving at New York, Mr. Bruck and Miss Caroline Cullman were married. They lived there for three years, while he worked at his trade, making fancy French chairs and sofas, such as could only be made by experienced foreign workmen, and for which the most remunerative prices were paid, there being at that time no machinery in use by which the hard work could be performed. In carved work, then new in this country, Mr. Bruck especially excelled. After his stay in New York, the young journeyman removed to Ohio, landing in the Buckeye State with one thousand dollars cash, which had been earned by his industry and skill. A part of this was expended in the purchase of the lot on South Front street, Columbus, where he now resides. On his arrival at Columbus, in 1837, Mr. Bruck commenced cabinet making, which he carried on successfully until 1844.

In 1842, he was elected justice of the peace. The city and township were both largely Whig in politics, yet Mr. Bruck was elected by a decided majority over his Whig opponent, he being the first Democrat ever elected on a party ticket in Columbus. This office he held, by repeated re-election, for nine years, when his health failed from overwork, and he was imperatively ordered by his physician to resign. During his term of office he, by his sound judgment and careful attention to its duties, gradually gathered into his court two-thirds of all the judicial business of the city, and also transacted nearly all such business as drawing deeds and powers of attorney to be sent to Germany, and was the referee in all cases of dispute among Germans not brought before the courts. In 1844, Esquire Bruck was appointed, by Governor Shannon, a notary public, which office, by successive reappointments, he continues to hold.

Since Mr. Bruck arrived in Columbus, in 1837, he has never been absolutely rich. He made money, but lost much of it in aiding in the growth of the city, by subscribing, as his means would allow, for stocks in various enterprises, some of which paid dividends, but the major part was a total loss. In most of these companies he is now a director. Whatever improvement would inure to the benefit of Columbus, and find employment for men out of work, found his purse-strings always open, to the extent of his means.

In company with the late Peter Ambos, Louis Koster, and Jacob Maurer, Mr. Bruck organized the Independent Protestant congregation of Columbus, which now numbers over three hundred members, and owns a fine large brick church, unincumbered with a dollar of debt.

At a time when there was scarcely any military organization in Ohio, Mr. Bruck, more than any other man, was instrumental in forming two independent companies of artillery, composed entirely of Germans, and with their members formed two German benevolent societies, which are still in existence. When the Mexican war broke out, the artillery companies were dissolved by the enlistment of many of their members. Among those enlisting was George Cullman, brother of Mr. Bruck's first wife, who died of sunstroke, near Vera Cruz.

After the death of Colonel Beck, one of the county commissioners of Franklin county, Mr. Bruck was appointed to fill the vacancy, and, at the next election, was elected for three years. He subsequently declined a re-election. He was very highly esteemed by his associates of the board. In 1854, Mr. Bruck was appointed one of the directors of the Ohio penitentiary, by Governor Medill, but was soon swept out by the Know Nothing furor of that day. Governor Chase, under the reorganizing law, appointed a new board, and tendered to Mr. Bruck, as the most fitting man in his knowledge, a trusteeship of the Blind asylum, and afterwards a trusteeship of the Insane asylum, both of which were declined. In 1873, Mr. Bruck was again made a director of the Ohio penitentiary, by Governor Allen, which post he held till the expiration of his term. To Mr. Bruck is principally due the action of Governor Shannon, in calling the attention of the legislature to the necessity of mixed German and English schools. There are now, in consequence, in the city of Columbus alone, more than twenty such schools.

In 1841, Mr. Bruck lost his wife, who left an infant son. In 1842, he married Miss Margaret B. Ell, of Union county, by whom he had four children—two sons and two daughters. One of the former died in California, in 1876, where he had gone for his health; the other is junior partner in the firm of Braun & Bruck, druggists, on North High street. The daughters are still living, and are both well married. His oldest son, George, a machinist by trade, enlisted among the volunteers when the war broke out in 1861, and again, in the Nineteenth United States regular infantry. He was, for a time, leader of the band at Newport barracks, and was known as a fine musician. He died at Little Rock, Arkansas, of cholera, in 1866. The whole Bruck family seemed to inherit a musical taste from their father. In 1848, he, with others, organized the Columbus Mannerchor, a singing society, which is still in existence, Mr. Bruck and Henry Treyens being the only surviving members.

The writer of this sketch has known him for almost forty years, and in that long time can say with truth that he never heard a single word uttered to his disparagement. It seldom falls to the lot of any man of positive character to command more of the undivided respect of the whole community than is allotted by all to Esquire Bruck. As a citizen he has aided much—ten times more than other men with ten times his wealth—to build up the interests of the city of his adoption, and to aid her laboring classes. As a public officer, he has been beyond reproach—honest, impartial, and with much sounder judgment than is usually possessed by public officials. A mechanic by trade, he has much feeling and sympathy for those who earn by the sweat of their brow the bread they eat. And in his liberality in aiding to improve the city of Columbus, he always took special care that the improvements he aided would inure to the benefit of the laborer, in giving him work. The men of toil love him, because he first loved them.

Michael R. Reinhard was born in Niedernberg, near Aschaffenburg, in Bavaria, Germany, on the eighth day of March, 1789. He was married in 1814 to Miss Barbara Geis, by which marriage eight children, four boys and four girls, were born, five of whom are now living, three of them dying in their infancy.

In 1832, with his wife and children, the oldest of whom was but seventeen years old, Mr. Reinhard emigrated to the United States. He purchased a farm in Prairie township, Franklin county, Ohio, and on it toiled, lived, and died. He lost his wife in 1834, and never remarried. In the latter days of his life, he lived on his farm with his son, William, during the summer months; the winter months he spent with his son, Jacob, of the firms of Reinhard & Co., bankers, and Reinhard & Fieser, editors and owners of Der Westbote newspaper. Mr. Reinhard was among the first German farmers in this State to cultivate the grape, and from it to produce the Ohio wine, so near in taste to the cheap wines of Germany, so healthy and pleasant that it has banished much of the stronger liquors from German households, and as the late Judge John McLean, of the United States supreme court, told the writer of this sketch, was the best auxiliary of temperance yet produced. Michael Reinhard led a blameless life, and had the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. He was a model husband, parent, and friend. His disposition led him, after the death of his wife, to seek a retired life. He never sought or accepted, when offered, office of any kind, nor did he seek distinction. The friends he had were knit to him as with hooks of steel. His charity was of the unostentatious kind, never allowing his left hand to know what his right hand did. He died June 12, 1879, at the ripe age of ninety, in the well-founded hope of a blessed immortality beyond the grave, leaving many to bless, but none to curse, his memory.

JACOB REINHARD,

editor, publisher, and banker, is, by birth, a German. His father, Michael A. Reinhard, emigrated to the United States when the subject of this sketch was but seventeen years of age, and died on the twelfth of June, 1879, full of years, honest, industrious, and universally esteemed as one of our most respected citizens. The education which Jacob Reinhard received in the fatherland was finished in Ohio, as far as the common schools and private lessons could accomplish it, in English tuition. When not at school, he worked on his father's farm. At the age of twenty-one, Jacob, young as he was, took a number of contracts to furnish broken stone for macadamizing the National road, east of Columbus, in the fulfillment of which he showed so much judgment and skill, that, on their completion, he was appointed assistant engineer, which responsible office he held until 1843. During his leisure hours, and on rainy days and nights, he read law with Heman A. Moore, a rising lawyer of Columbus, who died shortly after, while representing the Franklin district in Congress.

After leaving the employ of the State, young Reinhard, in company with his present partner, Frederick Fieser, started "Der Westbote," a weekly Democratic newspaper, printed in the German language. The first number of the paper was issued and printed in a frame building on east Friend street, on the lot where Isaac Eberly's fine residence now stands. The new paper soon became a pecuniary success, and in politics was a power in the State, its circulation extending into every county in Ohio, where there is a German population; and it is now, and for years has been regarded as the most successful German newspaper in the State. It is now printed in the Westbote building, one of the finest business houses on High street, the same in which the banking-house of Reinhard & Co. do an extensive and safe business. The printing office, with its steam presses, and large assortment of type, does a large and paying business in book and job printing.

In 1852, Mr. Reinhard was elected a member of the city council, and for twenty years, until he refused longer to be a candidate, he was re-elected, generally without opposition. For five years he was the presiding officer of the council; and when not president, he was either a member or chairman of the finance committee. To Jacob Reinhard, as much as, if not more than, to any other man, is attributed the fact that Columbus, a growing, populous, and wealthy city, had less taxation imposed upon her citizens than any other in the State. The effect of this low taxation was to invite business, and it was at that time that Columbus took its star. in manufacturing, which has added so much to its growth that it now stands the third in the State in population, and in substantial prosperity is excelled by none. In the development of the resources of his adopted city, Mr. Reinhard always took an active part, by aiding, to the extent of his means, every enterprise calculated to advance its interests and that of the producing classes. From his careful business habits, Mr. Reinhard was a favorite director in a number of the leading enterprises which have tended to make Columbus a large manufacturing city. Before he was a voter, Mr. Reinhard was a Democrat, and has always been considered as among the ablest and most devoted advocates of the party. For years he has been a member of the State executive committee of that party, and its treasurer. He never practiced law as a profession. Had he done so, there is every reason to believe he would have made a successful practitioner. The only speeches he has made, outside of the city council, were political ones, in defence of his party, its candidates, and its principles. In the wild excitement of 1840, the friends of General Harrison, the Whig candidate for president, challenged any supporter of Mr. Van Buren, the Democratic nominee, to debate with Mr. Lewis Heyl, in the German language, on the issues of the campaign. Mr. Heyl was then prosecuting attorney for Franklin county, and as a public speaker, especially in German, stood first among the Whig orators in the county. Colonel Medary, of the Ohio Statesman, insisted that the challenge be accepted, and that Jacob Reinhard, then working on the National road, be the Democratic champion. Knowing Mr. Heyl's talent as a speaker, it was with the greatest difficulty that Mr. Reinhard could be induced to accept. The debate came off, and was largely attended. Mr. Heyl underrated his opponent, and this gave Mr. Reinhard the advantage. The German Democrats were wild with excitement over Mr. Reinhard's victory over Heyl. Mr. Reinhard was never afterward challenged to a public discussion. On two different occasions he was the nominee of his party for secretary of State; and in 1857, out of a total vote of three hundred and thirty thousand six hundred and ninety-eight, he was only defeated by one thousand one hundred and ninety-seven votes. In his younger days, the only military companies in Columbus were German, and Mr. Reinhard was elected and served as major, a title by which his friends still call him.

In 1841 he was married to Miss Catharine Hamann, of Perry county, by whom he had eight sons and three daughters. Four of the former, and two of the latter are still living.

The writer of this sketch has known Mr. Reinhard for nearly forty years, intimately and well. In all that time never has he heard a word against his honor or his honesty as a man or citizen. His life has been energetic and active; and as a son, husband, parent, citizen, or public officer, he has not only escaped calumny, but is cited by those who know him best as pure and conscientious, as "God's noblest work, an honest man," in precept and practice, a christian gentleman.

completion of the new cells, will become necessary. The number of convicts in the prison, October 31, 1871, was nine hundred and fifty-five; number of prisoners October 32, 1878, one thousand six hundred and thirty-three. The present board of directors are as follows: A. D. Heffner, (president); D. McConville, jr., Charles W. Boyd, Charles Roose, and Isaac G. Peetrey. Officers of the prison are: James B. McWhorten, Hamilton county, warden; Joseph Quinn, Franklin county, deputy warden; Rev. John Burns, Guernsey county, chaplin; James L. Andrews, Franklin county, steward.

INSTITUTION FOR THE BLIND.

From the history of this institution, appended to the fortieth annual report of the same, it appears that its establishment is due to the suggestion of the medical profession of this State; and, in deserving this brief eulogy, the profession may well indulge a just pride.

Among the subjects suggested for consideration in a medical convention to meet in Columbus, in the winter of 1835, was the following:

"The location and erection of public asylums for the reception of the insane, and for the instruction of the blind."

Whatever may have been the connection between the discussion of these questions and the action of the general assembly, it is significant that the session of that body for 1834–35, authorized the governor to obtain statistics of the unfortunate of the State, and that in his message to the thirty-fourth general assembly, Governor Robert Lucas reported that from fifty-five counties the number of idots returned was five hundred and eight; of lunatics, two hundred and six; and of blind persons, two hundred and two. And here it may be said that, although the honor of taking the initiative step in this great work may belong to one profession, the noble men whose active and unselfish labors through nearly half a century have been given to this enterprise, have been among the most honored in every department of public life. As officers or co-workers, their lives are a part of this magnificent benefaction. And even, to those least endowed with ideality, the fine architectural forms which win our admiration in the new asylum, massive but graceful, are a fit expression of deeds that uplift, and ministries that bless.

The legislature of 1836 appointed a board of trustees, composed of Rev. James Hoge, N. H. Swayne, esq., and Dr. W. M. Awl, intrusted with the duty of obtaining information in regard to the instruction of the blind in letters and mechanical arts, and with embodying the same in a report to the next general assembly, together with an estimate of the cost of opening a school for the blind of this State.

As the readiest means of creating an intelligent interest in the new enterprise (and let it be remembered that forty-five years ago the subject of educating the blind had scarcely been recognized as a field for philanthropic effort), Dr. Samuel G. Howe, the director of the New England Institution for the Blind at Boston, visited the State, in response to the invitation of the board of trustees, and on the twenty-third of December, 1836, addressed the legislature, and exhibited the proficiency of some of the pupils of that institution, by whom he was accompanied.

Another effort was made to ascertain more accurately the number of blind in the State; and, from fifty-nine counties, two hundred and seventy-eight were reported, sixty of whom, it was estimated, were suitable in age and mental endowment to receive instruction.

By an act, passed April 3, 1837, the Institution for the Blind was established, and an appropriation of twenty-five thousand dollars was made for its equipment. On the fourth of July, of the same year, the opening exercises of the school were held in the Presbyterian church, in the presence of the teachers and pupils of the Sunday-schools of the city, who, to the number of nine hundred, had assembled to celebrate the sixty-first anniversary of our national independence. Only five blind pupils were present, and in November following there were but eleven. Mr. A. W. Penniman, a graduate of the Massachusetts asylum, was the first teacher employed. The asylum building was occupied by the school in October, 1839. In the last report of the board of trustees and officers of this institution, the present superintendent, G. L. Smead, calls attention to the fact that only sixty-four of the eighty-eight counties of the State, have been represented in it by one or more pupils. If there are any blind children in those counties, of proper age and mental capacity, they ought to be enjoying the privileges of the institution. There are in the State about fifteen hundred blind persons. Of these, probably two hundred and twenty-five are under twenty-one years of age; and of this number one hundred and twenty-five only are in the institution. Is this not an appeal to all philanthropic persons to look out the proper subjects of this beneficent institution, and to see that none lose its benefits, through their indifference or neglect? March 11, 1851, the distinction between indigent and pay pupils was abolished, and the maintenance of all pupils, resident in the State, was provided for at the public expense, parents being required to clothe, and pay traveling and incidental expenses. The institution is designed to give all the blind of the State, of suitable age and mental capacity, a common-school education, with such trades and professions as will fit them to gain an independent livelihood. The whole expenditure of the State for permanent improvements, up to the time of the report of the board of trustees, for 1876, was four hundred and sixty-one thousand, three hundred and one dollars and fifty-two cents. The total expense of maintaining the institution since its establishment, is seven hundred and forty-nine thousand, eighty-two dollars and seventy-four cents. The whole number of pupils admitted, up to the last report, 1878, is nine hundred and eighty-nine. The old house, including the outbuildings, cost about thirty-four thousand, four hundred and nine dollars and thirty-four cents. The new building, including heating aparatus, three hundred and sixty-seven thousand, eight hundred and ninety-two dollars and eighteen cents. The new building, one of the finest structures in the State, was commenced in 1870, and was first occupied by the school, May 21, 1874.

The institution has had thirty-nine trustees. The names of the first board have been given. The names appended to the annual report of the board, for 1878, are as follows: Joseph Falkenbach, W. R. Wing, C. Blaser, S. D. Houpt, and Harmon Austin. The following are the names, in the order of their succession, of the six superintendents who have given the institution faithful service: A. W. Penniman, Wm. Chapin, George McMillen, R. E. Harts, Dr. A. D. Lord, and G. L. Smead, the present incumbent.

OHIO INSTITUTION FOR THE EDUCATION OF THE DEAF AND DUMB.

In the very eloquent address of Superintendent Fay, of this institution, delivered before the convention of American instructors, in August, 1879, we find language which leaves nothing to be desired as an introduction to this brief sketch. "The germinating principle," he says, "that was to develop an institution, when needed, was really contained in the constitution of 1802, which said:

"Religion, morality, and knowledge, being essentially necessary to good government, and the happiness of mankind, schools, and the means of instruction, shall forever be encouraged by legislative provision, not inconsistent with the rights of conscience."

"This grand purpose, after fifty years of trial, was reasserted in the constitution of 1851, which says: 'Institutions for the benefit of the insane, blind, and deaf and dumb, shall always be fostered and supported by the State.' This sentiment and purpose," he continues, "reinforced by the humane and religious character of our people, was the real rock upon which the institution for the deaf and dumb was first established, and upon which it has since arisen and been sustained." Previous to any enactments in regard to this matter, several unsuccessful attempts had been made, and in different parts of the State, to establish schools for the instruction of the deaf and dumb, and in various ways had the attention of successive legislatures been called to this deeply interesting subject. It was known that two of this unfortunate class of children—fortunate in being born to fathers whose means permitted it, had been sent, one to the New England institution, and the other to that of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia. One father, made bold by his anxiety to secure this advantage for his unfortunate son, had made an application for State aid, but was unsuccessful. In 1822, an act was passed, requiring persons engaged in taking an enumeration of white persons in the several townships in each county, to ascertain the number of deaf and dumb of all ages, and make returns of the same. No returns were made in Athens and Hamilton counties. Four hundred and twenty-eight were returned, however, two hundred and eighty-eight of the number being under twenty years of age. But in the same year in which this return was made to the legislature, the subject of the canal was referred to a committee of the house of representatives, and the interest in this was all-absorbing in various sections of the State. There seemed to many, doubtless, neither time nor means to be devoted to "outside issues;" but Providence had guided the order of events. Behind this standing army, evoked by the legislature, of nearly three hundred voiceless petitioners, stood anxious fathers and tearful mothers. More potent, because mute, the appeal stirred the hearts of many fathers, to whom the questions came: What if this shadow rested upon my household? What if a child walked by my side, whose heart had never been gladdened by the voice of paternal love, and whose soul was shackled by chains which the State alone had power to strike away?

What wonder, then, that provisions for the education of the deaf and dumb could not be long delayed? The finances of the State were, it is true, taxed to their utmost in the construction of improvements imperatively demanded for the development of its resources. These must be done, but just as impossible was it to leave the other undone. The men of the Ohio of that day were converting a savage wild into the garden of to-day, but they themselves, let it be remembered, were not emerging from a state of barbarism, but were the peers of the noblest in the older communities from which they had gone out; and for them to recognize a truth, was to incorporate it in the foundations which they laid so wisely, and which we of to-day venerate and enjoy. The idea of public education once admitted, the wrong of excluding from its benefits those whose misfortunes gave them the first claim, followed naturally—inevitably. Governor Morrow, in his message to the general assembly of 1826–7, at the suggestion of Rev. James Hoge, D. D., said: "I would call your attention to a subject interesting to the feelings of the benevolent and the humane. It is to a provision for the establishing of an asylum for the education of deaf and dumb persons of this State." Dr. Hoge also drew up an elaborate memorial, addressed to the general assembly, and having the signatures of many prominent citizens, urging immediate action. In the house of representatives, December 8, 1826, upon motion of Mr. Doane, of Pickaway, a resolution was adopted referring that portion of the governor's message relating to the establishment of an asylum for the education of the deaf and dumb, to a select committee of three members, with power to report upon the same, by bill or otherwise. On the twenty-third of the same month, Mr. Higgins, of Butler, offered a resolution instructing the committee to report a bill for the establishment of an asylum. On the twenty-seventh, the bill was reported, and read the first time, had the second reading the next day, and on the ninth of January, passed the house, with little opposition. Though meeting some delay in the senate, it finally passed, January 30, 1827. By the provisions of this act, a board of trustees was to be appointed by the governor, of which he was to be, ex-officio, the president. This first board completed its organization in July, and consisted of the following named gentlemen: Governor Allen Trimble; Rev. James Hoge, D. D. (secretary), and Gustavus Swan (treasurer), both of Franklin county; Thomas Ewing, of Fairfield county; William Graham, of Ross county; Rev. William Burton, of Pickaway county; John H. James, of Champaign county; Thomas D. Webb, of Trumbull county; and Sampson Mason, of Clark county.

It was their exalted privilege to organize the first of that circle of beneficent institutions which is now the glory of the State of Ohio, and whose records shall stimulate humane effort not only in our own land, but throughout the civilized world. As always, perhaps, in grand enterprises, the first steps were slow and painful, but they have conducted at last to the realization of prouder achievements than those who toiled at the foundation were permitted even to dream of.

The first appropriation for erecting buildings was made in 1832, when the school had been three years in progress. By the year 1834, it had changed its location three times, and had received fifty-seven pupils. The buildings erected by the first appropriation were designed to accommodate eighty pupils, and were put up at a cost of fifteen thousand dollars. In 1844, the attendance of over a hundred compelled the erection of an extension, which gave room for one hundred and fifty, and that number it reached in 1853. In 1844, the odious distinction between pay and poor pupils was obliterated, by making tuition free, by law, to all Ohio mutes. In this, Ohio took a step in advance of her sister States, which they were not slow in imitating. Applications for admission multiplied. A quarter of a century had passed since the building of the first asylum. The dilapidated condition of the main building, the duty of erecting additional buildings, the distress of parents, on account of the indefinite postponement of the reception of their children, were, year after year, urged in official reports upon the State legislatures. The shock which, in 1861, was felt through the remotest arteries of public life, checked, momentarily, this pressure of the claims of the asylum, but gathering strength from the brief restraint, it triumphed in 1864, in the passage of an act without a dissenting voice, providing for the erection of new buildings, to be plain, substantial, and sufficient. Its erection was made the duty not of the trustees, but of the governors of the State. Under the direction of the successive governors, Brough, Anderson, Cox, and Hayes, the present structure, designed by James M. Blackburn, of Cleveland, with its front of four hundred feet, and a depth of nearly three hundred, was carried up, during the years from 1864 to 1869, inclusive, at a cost of six hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. Though designed for four hundred pupils, with resident officers and employes, its present attendance is four hundred and forty. This noble pile (for it is in fact not one, but eight buildings, suitably connected), said to be the most extensive and complete in the world, for its purpose, conforming strictly, as it does, to the legislative requirement, corrects the popular fallacy that architecture can not be plain, and at the same time in a high degree imposing.

With regard to the history of instruction for the deaf and dumb, there is room but for a word and, in truth, but few words to be written; as it is the comely child of modern civilization. It is significant that it, not only originated with the French, but has met its greatest successes with that vivacious people, who, to a bewildering volubility, add the most effective pantomime.

The theory and art, broached by L'Epee, and improved by Sicard, his pupil, were introduced into the United States by Laurent Clerc and the elder Gallaudet, where they found a fruitful soil, and where, in rapid succession, a long line of American institutions for the education of the deaf and dumb have arisen, that of Ohio being the fifth. The subject is worthy of volumes of tribute from the most gifted pens, and to such the task is left.

A few statements, replete with themes for those permitted to enter these inviting fields, and we turn lingeringly from this noble institution, dedicated to a noble work.

A few only of the names interwoven with the history of the institution, have been, or can be given; but they are all written in the records of Him who said:

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Horatio N. Hubbell, its first superintendent, who gave the whole of his active life in its service, and Carey and Stone, his successors, have gone to receive the reward of that welcome from the lips of the King: "Come, ye blessed of my Father." Mr. Weed, called to another field, but laboring in the same cause, and G. O. Fay, the present devoted and efficient superintendent, make the list of presiding officers complete. The time of their administration covers a half century, and the whole number of pupils received during that time is one thousand seven hundred and sixteen. We close, as we began, with the words of another:

"Men and women, however noble or favored, must pass away. But the institution itself will endure, to exercise its care and shed its light clearer and steadier from year to year, as long as misfortune shall blight human hopes, or a Merciful Father exist, to temper the sorrows of His afflicted, speechless children."

CENTRAL OHIO ASYLUM FOR LUNATICS—(OLD ASYLUM).

A State medical convention held in the city of Columbus, January 5, 1835, adopted a memorial, which was sent to the legislature then in session, asking for the erection of an asylum for the insane, adapted in all respects for the relief of mental derangement, and to be creditable to the State of Ohio. The legislature at the same session passed an act to establish a lunatic asylum for the State of Ohio, and appointed directors to secure a site and attend to the erection of the necessary buildings. The directors appointed were: Dr. Samuel Parsons and Dr. William M. Awl, of Columbus, and General Samuel McCracken, of Lancaster.

At different dates, between 1835, when the first parcel of thirty acres was bought, and 1869, when the last purchase of seven and a half acres was made, seventy-one and a half acres were purchased at a cost of something less than twenty-two thousand dollars. This land was finely situated and in a compact form, lying in the northeast corner of the city of Columbus.

In July, 1835, N. B. Kelley was appointed architect. His plans, modeled after the asylum in Worcester, Massachusetts, then thought to be the most complete institution of the kind in the United States, were approved by the trustees. The plan was that of a central building with lateral extensions or front wings; and this central building, which was the first erected, was to accomodate one hundred and twenty patients. The plans and estimates having been submitted by the directors to the legislature, the necessary appropriations were made in March, 1836, and the corner-stone was laid on the twentieth of April, 1837. The central building was completed in November, 1839, but as an enlargement was soon found necessary, the west wing was commenced in 1845. The east end was finished in 1846, and the centre wing in 1847, when the building was considered complete. The entire cost was one hundred and fifty-three thousand eight hundred and twenty-one dollars and eighty-four cents. Forty-eight thousand six hundred and seventy-one dollars and thirteen cents is to be credited to convict labor. The building had a front of three hundred and seventy feet with a depth of two hundred and eighteen feet, and covered just one acre of ground. Twenty-one years after the completion of the last building and when it was filled to its utmost capacity with this most unfortunate class of persons, the asylum was burned, November 18, 1868. The fire was discovered early in the evening while two hundred of the patients were in the amusement hall. Of the forty-two in the ward in which the fire originated, six were suffocated before it was possible to reach them, although every endeavor was made. The night was one of the most inclement of the season, and three hundred and fourteen insane patients had to be provided with suitable quarters. Fortunately, the hospital had escaped the general conflagration, and in this building and in the institution for the deaf and dumb, the patients were temporarily cared for. They were, eventually, distributed among the different asylums of the State. The superintendent, Dr. William L. Peck, says, in his report for 1869, that the fire was discovered in the clothing-room of one of the wards. The only fire in any of the wards was that of the gas-lights, and the most probable solution of the question as to the origin of the fire, was, that one of the patients had lighted some combustible substance at one of the gas-burners, and had thrown it through the open transom into the clothing-room. The city fire department was summoned by the alarm-telegraph, and reported promptly for duty; and every possible effort was made to stay the devouring flames; but the supply of water was insufficient, and nothing remained but to abandon the main building to destruction. The following is a list of the medical gentlemen who served as superintendents of the Central Lunatic asylum, from its origin to its removal beyond the city limits: William M. Awl, M. D., S. Hanbury Smith, M. D., Elijah Kendrick, M. D., George E. Eels, M. D., R. Hills, M. D. W. L. Peck, M. D., of Circleville, was appointed superintendent in 1865, and held the office at the time of the destruction of the asylum as already related. After that event, Dr. Peck was employed in attending to the interests of the Central Asylum district, and superintending the grounds and farm embraced in the new purchase, and the construction of the new asylum.

An act was passed by the legislature on the twenty-third of April, 1869, authorizing the erection of buildings on the asylum grounds, for properly accommodating four hundred patients, at a cost not exceeding four hundred thousand dollars. Under this act, Levi F. Schofield was employed as architect. The work of removing the old walls was begun, and the ground for the foundations of the new building was formally broken on the twenty-fourth of October, 1869, Governor Hayes participating in the ceremonies. On the eighteenth of April, 1870, the legislature passed an act for the sale of the old asylum grounds for not less than two hundred thousand dollars, and the purchase of other grounds in the vicinity of Columbus, for a sum not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars. By this sale seventy-one and a fraction acres which had cost the State about twenty-two thousand dollars, was sold for two hundred and five thousand dollars. A purchase was made of William Sullivant, for the minimum sum named in the act, of three hundred acres, admirably located, and in all respects adapted for the uses of an asylum for the insane. The following are the names of the last board elected previous to the removal: L. M. Smith (president), Henry Curtis, W. B. Thrall, John Hunter, Philip M. Wagenhals, and N. J. Turney. The history of the present Asylum for the Insane will be found in that of Franklin township, to which township it has been removed. The purchasers of the asylum tract from the State had the grounds platted and laid out into lots with handsome streets, avenues, and parks. To this important and beautiful addition to the city, was given the appropriate name of East Park place.

ASYLUM FOR IDIOTIC AND IMBECILE YOUTH.

An asylum for the education of idiotic and imbecile youth was established by an act of the legislature, passed April 17, 1857. By the same act the following board of trustees was appointed: William Dennison, jr., of Columbus; Asher Cook, of Perrysburg, and N. S. Townshend, of Avon. The trustees appointed Dr. R. J. Patterson, superintendent of the institution, and the asylum was opened in a house leased for five years by the board, and situated on Friend street, opposite the asylum for the blind. Prior to November 1, 1857, sixteen pupils had been received, and applications made for more than could be accommodated. Dr. Patterson resigned his position, as superintendent, November 1, 1860. At that date, he reported that the building was crowded, there being thirty-five pupils, and that during the year many applicants had been excluded for want of room. In February, 1861, Dr. G. A. Doren was appointed superintendent, and continued in that position at the time of the removal of the asylum beyond the limits of the city, in 1868. The building was enlarged during the first year of Dr. Doren's connection with the institution, and the number of pupils rose to fifty. In 1864, an appropriation of twenty-five thousand dollars was made for the purchase of a site for the permanent location, and erection of buildings thereon. The site selected is on the west side of the Scioto, on elevated ground, overlooking the city, the fine buildings constituting one of the striking features of landscape, as seen from the capitol.

THE STATE ARSENAL.

Previous to the erection of the arsenal, the State rented store-rooms for the deposit of the public arms. It is even on record that from September, 1851, to January, 1855, the State was paying rent for the occupancy of its own premises. It happened in this wise: After the removal of the prisoners to the new penitentiary, the walls of the old prison yard, and the main prison building erected in 1818, were sold by the State officers, and removed. The original building, of 1813, and the brick store-house, built by Wright, in 1823, were, however, still standing, and were used by the quartermaster-general: one as a place for the deposit of arms, and the other, as a workshop for cleaning and repairing the same. Thus, for the time, these two buildings became a State armory, and so continued until the year 1855, when both were taken down, and the material sold, or used about the new State house. About the time of the removal [1834] a question arose as to the ownership of the ten-acre lot set apart by the original proprietors for the location of the penitentiary. The legislature twice referred the question to a committee composed of members of the legal profession, and a majority of each committee reported in favor of the title of the State. In March, 1847, Elijah Backus brought suit in the name of Gustavus Swan and M. J. Gilbert, against R. N. Slocum, quartermaster-general, occupying the building, for the recovery of the old penitentiary tract. The case was continued until June, 1851, when judgment was rendered against the defendant by default. The plaintiffs were put in possession, by the sheriff, in September following; and Mr. Backus then, as the attorney of the plaintiffs, rented to the State the buildings it had occupied as its own.

In 1852, George E. Pugh, attorney-general, brought suit for the recovery of the land, in the name of the State, against S. W. Andrews, quartermaster-general, in possession under a lease from Backus, or his clients. The court of common pleas, of Franklin county, rendered judgment in the case against the State. An appeal was taken to the district court, by George W. McCook, attorney-general, and, on the twenty-first of September, the State obtained judgment; on the nineteenth of January, following, the secretary of State, as the representative of Ohio, was, by Thomas Miller, sheriff of Franklin county, formally put in the possession of the disputed territory. Whether the State recovered "back pay" (or rather "pay back"), the historian is not informed. Acts, having reference to the establishment of a State arsenal, were passed by the legislature, April 18, 1857, and March 24, 1859, but no progress was made until after the act of March 17, 1860, authorizing the governor to sell the lots on the old penitentiary grounds, reserving three contiguous lots as a site for the State arsenal, and to apply six thousand dollars of the proceeds additional to the proceeds of previous sales of lots, and the sales of old arms, to the "prosecution of the State arsenal." The act further provided, that the building to be erected for this purpose, should not cost over fourteen thousand dollars. In compliance with this act, the arsenal was erected, in 1860, and an appropriation of two thousand, five hundred dollars was made, in 1863, for grading and fencing the lot and improving the arsenal. The building is one hundred feet in length, by sixty in breadth. It has a gun room, sixty feet square, on the main floor, with the armorer's room and office, each twenty feet square and sixteen feet in height. The second story is one hundred feet by sixty, and twenty feet high, without a column, and is appropriated to the arrangement of small arms. There are lofty octagonal towers at each angle of the building, and by means of winding stairs in these, access is had to the second and third floors. In the towers are numerous windows and loop-holes, commanding all approaches to the building. To the timid, these frowning towers may seem to proclaim, "I am for war;" but when it is remembered that to be ready for war is the best guarantee of peace, the arsenal must be looked upon as one of the conservators of that good order for which the capital city is noted. A superintendent, appointed by the adjutant-general, is in charge of the premises, Frank Stible, of Sandusky, being the present incumbent. The workshop has been discontinued.

THE STATE LIBRARY.

To indulge in reminiscences is often wise and sometimes pleasant. The visitor who to-day gazes with admiration upon the elegant appointments and well-filled shelves of our State library, may find his enjoyment enhanced, and his respect for small beginnings at the same time increased, if he allow his thoughts to wander back to the "small room fitted up" to receive Governor Thomas Worthington's first purchase of books for a State library, in 1817. It will be pleasant also for him to recall the fact, that the next legislature not only approved of this use of the contingent fund, but appropriated a thousand dollars to make additions to that "small collection of valuable books" which was the nucleus of the splendid collection which now environs him.

Leaving our friend to his pleasing reverie, which links the past with the present, and remembering that the pen was placed in our hand with a warning which turns us away from the inviting alcoves and graceful galleries—from the who and the how, to the how many—we complete our allotted task under harsh limitations. One word, however, before, without figures of speech, we proceed to show how the "little one" has become, not a "thousand," but many thousands.

In those early times, when the century was adolescent, and the library in its infancy, little was seen of the younger of the twain, and very properly, outside of the governor's household—the secretary, the treasurer, auditor of State, the judges of the supreme court, members of the general assembly, and their respective clerks, constituting the favored coterie. But now that this collection has taken on such large proportions, has become comprehensive, including all departments of literature, and is no longer in any sense special, made up of codes and commentaries, who will rise and explain to us why one young miss, book in hand, trips down the capitol steps with an air that says the blood of a privileged class flows in her veins, while her companion, who has been elected to witness her triumphal march through the capitol, must walk more soberly, "with meek hands folded"? Ah! "She is the daughter, the sister, or the cousin, of a governor, a judge, or of one of their respective clerks." And her companion? "Is only the daughter, or sister, or cousin, of the man whose vote made the governor, or the judge, and whose domain furnished the revenue to spread the feast from which she is debarred." Can we say that, in all things, the century has passed from youth to manhood?

Turning at once from this incipient stage in the history of an institution that may well be the pride of a commonwealth, which, though young in years, is full of the strength and symmetry of maturity, we shall notice only the date and scope of the legislative enactments for the management and enlargement of the library. The first library law was passed by the legislature for 1823–4, and provided for the appointment of a librarian by the legislature, for the term of three years; fixed his salary at two hundred dollars a year, and required him to give bond in two thousand dollars for the faithful discharge of his duties. Previously to this act the library had been kept open only during the session of the legislature; and the first State librarian, John L. Harper, received two dollars a day for his services.

From this date to 1844, appropriations for the library were made annually, varying from three hundred and fifty to one thousand dollars, and at this last date the number of volumes had increased to eight thousand, one hundred and seventy-two. On the sixth of March, 1845, a law was passed constituting a board of commissioners, to be composed of the governor, the secretary of state, and the librarian. This board was to make rules and regulations, superintend all expenditures, and report annually to the legislature. All persons were permitted to visit the library and examine and read books. Members and ex-members of the legislature, judges of the supreme court, and State officers were allowed to take out books under the rules, but not to give any other person an order for books. The law of 1845 fixed no term of office, nor the amount of salary for the librarian. He was, however, paid four hundred dollars for 1845, and the year following, five hundred dollars. From 1842 to 1852, the appropriations to the library amounted to five thousand, six hundred dollars, and the number of volumes had increased in 1852, to thirteen thousand, six hundred and forty.

On the twenty-seventh of January, 1853, the legislature passed a library act, repealing all previous ones. This act limited the term of the librarian to two years, fixed his bond at ten thousand dollars, and required him to make an annual report to the governor. In 1854, an act was passed requiring the librarian to cause to be bound, all newspapers, periodicals, and pamphlets, received at, or furnished to the State library. The annual salary of the librarian was fixed by law, in March, 1866, at fifteen hundred dollars.

The manuscript department contains, besides miscellaneous papers, those of governors R. J. Meigs, Thomas Worthington, and Ethan Allen Brown; the celebrated St. Clair papers, purchased by authority of the legislature, containing the correspondence, messages, documents, and manuscripts generally, of Arthur St. Clair, governor of the Northwest territory for fourteen years, from 1788 to 1802. The library commissioners' report, for 1878, gives the total registered number of bound volumes at forty-six thousand and two. The library has occupied the spacious and well arranged room in the State house since January, 1858. In the language of the above report: "The main library room is one of fine taste and exceeding pleasantness, and, all in all, the Ohio State library may justly be regarded with great pride by our people."

LIBRARIANS.

The following are the names of the several State librarians, with the dates of their appointment: John L. Harper, 1817; John McElvain, 1818; David S. Broderick, 1820; Zachariah Mills, 1824; Thomas Kennedy, 1842; John Greines, 1845; Elijah Hayward, 1851; James W. Taylor, 1854; W. T. Coggeshall, 1856; S. G. Harbaugh, 1862; W. C. Hood, 1874—(died, February 2, 1875); H. H. Robinson, 1875; R. M. Stimson, 1877; H. V. Kerr, 1879;

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY, FORMERLY THE OHIO AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL COLLEGE.

On July 2, 1862, the congress of the United States, granted to each State public lands or scrip, equal in amount to thirty thousand acres for each senator and representative then in congress, "for the endowment, support and maintainance of at least one college, where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and clasical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, in such a manner as the legislatures of the States may respectively prescribe, in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life."

On the ninth of February, 1864, the general assembly of the State of Ohio passed an act to accept the grant conveyed in the act above named. Governor John Brough, in his annual message, delivered January, 1865, announced that certificates of scrip for six hundred and thirty thousand acres of land had been received and placed in the State treasury. This was followed by an act to provide for the sale of land-scrip, at the minimum price of eighty cents per acre, passed by the general assembly April 13, 1865; and another to amend this, passed April 5, 1866, to encourage sales by fixing no minimum price. On December 10th, of the same year, the commissioners reported to the legislature the sale of all the scrip, mostly at fifty-three cents per acre. The total proceeds of the sales were three hundred and forty-two thousand four hundred and fifty dollars and eighty cents. This sum was paid into the State treasury during 1866 and 1867, and interest on it was computed from the date of payment at six per cent.

In June, 1865, trustees appointed under an act of the legislature, and so chosen as to represent all the industrial classes of the State, received proposals in regard to the location of the college, from various places in different parts of the State; and in December, in accordance with the provisions of the act aforesaid, the board made its report to Governor Anderson. There were, in fact, two reports—the majority, signed by four of the five trustees, recommending that the fund arising from the

WILLIAM BELL, JR.,

was born August 23, 1828, at Utica, Licking county, twelve miles north of Newark, where his father still resides. He passed his youth there, and was educated at Martinsburg academy, in Knox county. The first official position of consequence which he held was that of sheriff of Licking county. He was elected to that office in 1852, and at the expiration of his term was appointed postmaster at Newark. He retained this position until 1858, when he was again chosen as sheriff. In 1870, he was re-elected. From 1852 to the present time, the subject of this sketch had been almost constantly in some honorable public position, within the gift either of his county or State. The people of Licking made him their county auditor for three successive terms, from 1864 to 1870, and in 1871 he was chosen to represent the county in the lower house of the State legislature. He was re elected in 1873, and in 1874 was honored with election as secretary of State, which office he held for two years. In 1878, he was appointed, by Governor Bishop, commissioner of railroads and telegraphs, which position he now occupies. While a member of the house of representatives, he was chairman of the standing committee on public works, and a member of the committee on insurance and municipal corporations. Mr. Bell's whole official career has been characterized by faithfulness, efficiency, and impartiality. He is a man of simple, sterling character, possesses many happy qualities that are seldom found in combination, is of a genial, affable nature, and has the admiration and respect of a very wide circle of friends, not simply in the party of which he is a member, but among his political opponents as well. He has been a life-long Democrat, and prominently and actively identified with the history of the party in the State for the past thirty years. Mr. Bell was married, January 1, 1856, to Lizzie O. Ocheltree, of Newark. The offspring of this union are: one son, Sam C., chief clerk in the commissioner's office, and two daughters, Virginia M. and Maggie O.

sale of the land-scrip should be equally divided, and that half should be devoted to the reorganization of Miami university, bringing its course of study into conformity to provisions of the congressional grant, and that the other half should be applied to the endowment of an agricultural and mechanical college in the northern part of the State. The minority report, presented by Miles Greenwood, recommended the acceptance of the proposition of Farmers' college. Neither report was adopted by the legislature.

A matter of so grave importance could not fail to stir the polular mind in an unusual degree. Questions growing out of the organization and location of an institution appealing to the great mass of the citizens of the State, were of necessity the subjects of earnest and prolonged discussion, not only in the legislature and by the press, but in all ranks of society throughout the State. Many, and with much reason, strenously advocated the division of the fund among institutions already founded, and in part equipped. Others, and more, with weightier reasons, opposed division. The State board of agriculture, especially, labored actively and persistently to prevent any such division. At the end of 1867, it was very generally conceded that an independent college, untrammeled by traditions, must be established upon this fund.

This noble foundation which is the financial basis of the present college, has been augmented by about forty-seven per cent. of itself, through the additions of interest, simple and compound, until at the opening of the institution in 1873, it amounted to five hundred thousand dollars. Its security is established by being made a part of the irreducible debt of the State. On March 7, 1868, a joint committee from the senate and the house of representatives, was appointed with authority to receive propositions for the location of the college, and to report the same to the legislature. This committee, consisting of four members from the senate, and eight from the house, was also empowered to receive propositions for experimental farms and proposals of donations towards the erection of suitable college buildings. At the ensuing session, the committee reported propositions from Worthington, Wooster, Oxford, Urbana, London, and Newark, with liberal offers or donations of land and money from each of the competing towns. Majority and minority reports were brought in, as in 1865, and as in the former case neither report secured favorable action in the legislature. Various attempts were made afterwards to settle the questions involved, but without success, until, on March 22, 1870, a bill was passed by the legislature, the date of which may be taken as the initial date of the present institution; though, in an important sense, all the previous history of enactment and discussion was initiatory. This act, entitled an act to establish and maintain an agricultural college in Ohio, contained eighteen sections, a portion of the first of which only, is important in this history, and is as follows:

"Be it enacted by the general assembly of the State of Ohio, That a college, to be styled the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical College, is hereby established in this State, in accordance with the provision of an act of congress of the United States, passed July 2, 1862."

Under this act a board of nineteen trustees was appointed by Governor R. B. Hayes, and his appointments were confirmed by the senate. The following gentlemen composed the board, arranged in the order of their congressional districts: Aaron F. Ferry, Joseph F. Wright, Richard C. Anderson, William B. McClung, William Sawyer, James M. Trimble, Joseph Sullivant, Thomas C. Jones, Warren P. Noble, James W. Ross, Ralph Leete, Daniel Keller, Marvin M. Munson, Norton S. Townshend, Valentine B. Horton, John C. Jamison, Cornelius Aultman, John R. Buchtel, and Henry B. Perkins. The board held its first meeting in Columbus on the eleventh of May, 1870, and effected a permanent organization, by the election of Valentine B. Horton, president; R. C. Anderson, secretary, and Joseph Sullivant, treasurer.

By a legislative act, passed April 18, 1870, the several counties of the State were authorized to raise money to secure the location of the college. An address was also issued by the executive committee to the people of the State, prepared by Hon. V. B. Horton, president of the board, and chairman of said committee, setting forth the aims, purposes, and wants of the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical college, and inviting the citizens of the State, through their counties, to raise the necessary funds for providing land, buildings, and outfit, for the college. The following named counties competed for the location under the above act: Champaign, Clark, Franklin, and Montgomery. Champaign and Clark offered the same amount—two hundred thousand dollars, in eight per cent. county bonds. Franklin offered three hundred thousand dollars, in seven per cent. bonds, and Montgomery offered, by pledges of several of her prominent citizens, four hundred thousand dollars, in eight per cent. bonds. After prolonged, and thorough discussion, the proposition of Franklin county was accepted, and, on October 13, 1870, the college was located within the limits of the city of Columbus, on a farm of about three hundred and seventeen acres of excellent land. The donation of Franklin county was increased by contributions from citizens of Columbus, and by two of the railroads entering here, to the amount of about twenty-eight thousand dollars. The railroad companies contributing were the Cleveland, Columbus and Indianapolis and the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis railroads. This sum was appropriated to the purchase of the farm, and the erection of the necessary college and farm buildings, and to the equipment of several departments of instruction. A site for the college was selected, and architects were invited to furnish plans for the building. That prepared by Mr. Jacob Snyder, of Akron, was finally adopted, and the building was put under contract, to be completed in 1872, at a cost of one hundred and twelve thousand, four hundred and fifty dollars. A boarding hall and dormitory was also ordered, at an estimated cost of twenty thousand dollars, at a later date. A second dormitory, providing accommodations for twenty students, who may desire to board themselves, has since been erected. The main building, including the projections of the buttresses, has a frontage of two hundred and thirty-five feet, and will accommodate from four to five hundred students. The dormitory and boarding hall provides accommodations for seventy-five students. The plan of study to be pursued in the college was made the subject of very earnest discussion in the board of trustees, and though quite divergent views were at first held, on January 6, 1874, they united in adopting the general plan presented by Joseph Sullivant, esq., of Columbus. This plan had for its aim the establishment of a scientific school of a liberal character. To Mr. Sullivant was also assigned the equipment of laboratories and cabinets, a fund of twenty-five thousand dollars being set aside for this purpose, including the necessary furniture of the building. In 1874, a re-organization of the board of trustees was effected by legislative enactment, reducing the number of trustees to five, to be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate. A second re-organization was made in 1877, making the board to consist of one member from each congressional district of the State of Ohio. By this act the board was increased from five to twenty. In May, 1878, a third re-organization of the board of trustees was made, and the name of the institution was also changed from the Ohio Agricultural and Mechanical college to The Ohio State university.

The act of 1878, provides that the government of the university shall be vested in a board of seven trustees, who shall be appointed by the governor of the State, with the advice and consent of the senate.

The paramount importance of a wise judgment in the selection of the faculty of the new institution, was early recognized by the board of trustees. The following named gentlemen were members of the faculty during the first year: Thomas C. Mendenhall, of Columbus, professor of physics and mechanics; Sidney A. Norton, of Cincinnati, professor of general and applied chemistry; Joseph Millikin, of Hamilton, professor of English and modern languages; and Norton S. Townshend, of Avon, professor of agriculture.

Professor Edward Orton had declined the professorship of geology, but in April succeeding, the presidency of the institution was offered to him, which he accepted in May. The professorship of geology was also assigned to him. During the summer of 1873, Professor R. W. McFarland, of Oxford, was called to the professorship of mathematics, the subject of civil engineering being also assigned to his department. Mr. John H. Wright, a recent graduate of Dartmouth college, was appointed assistant professor in the department of languages. The college was opened for the reception of students, September 17, 1873.

In January, 1874, Professor Albert H. Tuttle was appointed to the chair of zoology, and at the same time, Thomas Mathew, of Columbus, was appointed instructor in drawing, free-hand and mechanical, and also in photography and lithography.

In June, 1875, William Colvin, of Cincinnati, was appointed professor of political economy and civil polity, and the science of accounts was also assigned to his department. Miss Alice Williams was, at the time, made an assistant in the department of English and modern languages.

At a meeting of the trustees June 20, 1877, the curriculum of the college was changed, by striking therefrom the department of political economy and civil polity, and substituting therefor the department of mines, mine engineering, and metallurgy. An act to establish a school of mines and mine engineering, had been passed by the legislature in May of the same year, and the sum of four thousand five hundred dollars appropriated out of the general revenue fund, to be expended in providing apparatus, equipments, cabinets, etc. The professorship of this department was accepted by John A. Church, E. M., who entered upon his duties in January, 1878. Professor T. C. Mendenhall resigned his professorship in 1878, to accept a similar position in the Imperial university of Tokio, Japan. The board, at the request of the faculty, conferred on Professor Mendenhall the degree of doctor of philosophy.

In July following, S. W. Robinson, accepted the chair vacated by Professor Mendenhall, charged with the immediate establishment of a department of mechanical engineering. During the first year of the college, there were in attendance ninety students, and during the fifth, three hundred and nine.

In 1876, First Lieutenant Luigi Lomia, of the Fifth United States artillery, was, pursuant to the request of the board, detailed by the secretary of war, to take charge of the military instruction which the institution is required to give. The board of trustees made military drill obligatory on the part of all the young men of the college, except those who should be excused on account of religious scruples or physical disability, and the war department of the United States furnished arms, ammunition, and accoutrements. By enactment of the general assembly, passed May 1, 1878, no student will be required hereafter to take part in military drill, or provide any military or particular uniform, except those who elect to study military tactics. Under the act of May 1, 1878, reorganizing the government of the university, the following board of trustees was appointed by Governor R. M. Bishop: Hon. James B. Jamison, S. H. Ellis, Hon. Stephen Johnston, Hon. T. J. Godfrey, Alston Ellis, T. Ewing Miller and Hon. J. H. Anderson.

THE OLD UNITED STATES COURT HOUSE.

Among the buildings which first occupied the public square (besides those already described), was a United States court house, a short distance north of the first State house and State offices. It was a plain, two-story brick building, with a rough foundation of stone. It was a square structure, about fifty feet on each side, the roof rising from the four sides to an apex in the center, surmounted by a circular dome. On each side of the hall, through the center of the lower story, were two rooms for the offices of the clerk and marshal of the courts, and for jury rooms. In the second story, was the large court-room and jury-room. The greater portion of the money for the erection of the building was raised by subscription among the citizens of Columbus. This was done as an inducement to the government to remove the United States courts from Chillicothe, where they had been previously held. It was not to be supposed that Chillicothe would submit to their removal without a struggle, after having already been deprived of the State capital. But her opposition proved unavailing, and the courts were removed to Columbus, in 1821, and continued to be held there till 1855, when Columbus, in turn, was obliged to give them up to Cincinnati. Soon after this last removal, the old building was taken down. It had been used, also, for the county courts, from 1824, when Columbus first became the county seat, until 1840, when the present court house of the county was finished.

The clerks and marshals, while the United States courts were held at Columbus, were as follows: Harvey D. Evans was clerk, and Dr. John Hamm, of Zanesville, was marshal, at the time of the removal from Chillicothe; Mr. Evans died in July, 1825, and Wm. K. Bond, then of Chillicothe, succeeded him as clerk. In 1829, or 1830, Mr. Bond was succeeded by William Miner, who filled the office at the time of removal to Cincinnati, and for several years afterward. The following, after Dr. Hamm, were marshals in the order named: William Doherty, General John Patterson, of Jefferson county; John Patterson, of Adams; John McElvain; D. B. Robertson, of Fairfield county; G. W. Jones, of Knox county; and H. H. Robinson, of Cincinnati.

CANAL CELEBRATIONS.

On the fourth of July, 1825, the commencement of the Ohio canal was celebrated at Licking summit. Governor De Witt Clinton, the great canal king of New York, was present, accompanied by Solomon Van Rensselaer and Messrs. Rathbone and Lord, who made the first loan to Ohio for canal purposes. Governor Clinton, on the Wednesday following, was escorted to Columbus, by General Warner and suite, Colonel P. H. Olmsted's squadron of cavalry, Captain Hurzel's light infantry, Captain O'Harra's artillery, and Captain Andrew McElvain's rifle corps. In the State house, in the presence of a large number of citizens, Governor Clinton was welcomed, by Governor Morgan, to Ohio, and its young and growing capital. Governor Clinton, in his response, eulogized our State and its canal enterprise, closing with this remarkable, but over-sanguine, prediction, inspired, doubtless, by the great enthusiasm over the recent completion of the Erie canal, in his own State: "In five years," said Governor Clinton, "it (the canal) may, and probably will, be completed, and I am clearly of the opinion that, in ten years after the comsummation of this work, it will produce an annual revenue of at least half a million of dollars." The citizens of Columbus and Franklin county had another celebration, which concerned more nearly their feelings and interest. It took place on the twenty-seventh of April, 1827, when the first spade was struck into the ground, for the excavation of a lateral branch of the Ohio canal, to and from the State capital. On that day, nearly a thousand people assembled at the State house. A procession, preceded, by the several military organizations of the city, State officers, and citizens, marched to a place designated, near the present entrance of the lateral branch into the Scioto river. A brief, but pertinent, address was delivered by Joseph R. Swan, and General McLane, secretary of State; and Nathaniel McLean, keeper of the penitentiary, then removed the first earth taken up for the opening of the branch canal, which was wheeled away by R. Osborn and H. Brown, auditor and treasurer of State, amid the cheers and shouts of the enthusiastic assemblage. It took over four years to complete the branch canal. On the twenty-third of September, 1831, the first boat arrived at Columbus, by way of the canal, the event being signalized by the firing of cannon. The "Governor Brown," launched at Circleville, a few days before, was the pioneer boat. It was neatly fitted up, and had on board, as passengers, many prominent citizens of Pickaway county. Early the next morning, a large deputation of Columbus ladies and gentlemen repaired to the boat, to pay their respects to the visitors. A brief and appropriate address was made by General Flournoy. After the exchange of friendly salutations, the excursionists proceeded on their return to Circleville, accompanied a part of the way by citizens of Columbus, and the Columbus band of music. Two days later, the first boats loaded with freight for Columbus, the "Cincinnati" and the "Red Rover," arrived, and met a most enthusiastic reception. A national salute of twenty-four guns was fired, and Colonel Doherty, in a very neat address, welcomed the commanders of the two boats, in the name of the citizens of Columbus. On the day after their arrival, having disposed of their freight, the two boats took their departure for Cleveland, with about the same ceremonies as were observed on their arrival. A large number of ladies and gentlemen, with the Columbus band, accompanied their welcome and now departing visitors, as far as the five-mile lock. Here they boarded the "Chillicothe" and "George Baker," going to Columbus, and "returned home, highly delighted with their ride at the rate of three or four miles an hour."

THE JERRY FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW.

Happily, for the white no less than the black race, slavery no longer exists; but the impress it has left upon our legislation, our legislature, and our national life, can never be effaced. Introduced when our system of government was in its formative state, it will, like the extinct forms of animal and vegetable life embedded in geologic formations, reveal itself through all the coming centuries allotted to our national existence. The present generation will not forget the wide-spread sympathy excited by the story of "Jerry," the fugitive slave; but a thousand years hence the archæologist will find it among the relics of the distant past, a fossil more interesting for the light it throws upon a cruel institution, long since worn out, than as a record of personal wrong and suffering. Jerry Finney was a colored man who came to our city, about the year 1831 or 1832. On the night of March 27, 1846, he was (whether taken there by force, or decoyed by false representations was not known) arrested in the office of William Henderson, a justice of the peace in Franklinton, as a fugitive slave. The justice delivered him at once to the persons claiming him, one of whom, Alexander C. Forbes, held a power of attorney from Mrs. Bethsheba De Long, of Frankfort, Kentucky. Handcuffs were put upon him, he was placed in a carriage in waiting, taken to Cincinnati, and thence to Kentucky. As Jerry was well known to our citizens, his sudden disappearance, and especially the evidences of abduction, caused intense excitement, and open and bitter denouncement. Persons suspected of connivance, or participation in his capture, were arrested and held to bail on the charge of kidnapping. At the ensuing term of the court of common pleas, in July, a bill of indictment was returned against these persons, and also against Alexander C. Forbes, who had not been arrested. All the defendants in custody were put upon trial at the September term of the court. The prosecuting attorney, A. F. Perry, and William Dennison, jr., conducted the prosecution; and N. H. Swayne and F. J. Mathews, managed the defence. The trial excited much interest in the city and abroad. During its progress, one of the jurors, Dr. George Rickey, was discharged on account of serious illness. It was agreed on the part of the State, and of all the defendants, to proceed with the eleven jurors. The jury returned a verdict of "guilty," as to William Henderson, and "not guilty," as to the other defendants. The case was taken to the State supreme court on a writ of error, because of the trial by eleven jurors. The point was sustained by the supreme court, and Henderson was set at liberty. After an attempt to test certain questions of law, in a Kentucky court, it was decided adversely to the claim set up, and the money was raised in Columbus to purchase Jerry's freedom. He was restored to his home and family to end his days, dying soon after his return, from that fell disease, consumption.

KOSSUTH'S VISIT.

To those whose memory reaches back to the time when the sympathy and admiration of our people for this patriot hero were at the white heat of enthusiasm, no apology is needed for marking his visit to the capital of Ohio, as one of the events in its history, which should be handed down to posterity, conveying an instructive lesson to those who are to follow us. This man, shall our youth be told, did all that prowess and patriotism could inspire, to free his father-land from the yoke of tyranny; and when, borne down by adverse fortune, he could not live a slave in the land he would have died to liberate, he became an exile on these distant shores, beckoned by the radiance of that bright galaxy of stars, whose light, shining from afar out of the west, had first fired his soul with the patriot's hope. He came, and a nation stood waiting to welcome him, and to do him honor. It was when this feeling pervaded the country—when city vied with city in the warmth of its welcome, that Columbus called her citizens together to consider the proper steps to be taken for the reception of Louis Kossuth, governor of Hungary. At a large meeting of the citizens, held at the city hall on Saturday evening, December 13, 1851, a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a committee of one hundred citizens of Ohio, twenty of them being residents of Columbus, to invite Kossuth to visit our State, and partake of the hospitability of our people. At an adjourned meeting, held on the next Thursday evening, the names of the committee of one hundred were announced, Dr. Robert Thompson, of Columbus, being chairman. A financial committee was subsequently appointed, of which Peter Ambos was chairman, W. F. Wheeler, secretary, and Luther Donaldson, treasurer. Dr. Robert Thompson was commissioned to wait upon the distinguished foreigner in Washington, and invite him, in the name of the people of Ohio, to visit our State and its capital. Samuel Galloway was chairman of the reception committee, and C. P. Solis, secretary. The legislature, then in session, adopted resolutions, January 15, 1852, tendering to Kossuth, on behalf of two millions of freemen, a hearty welcome to Ohio. The fourth of February, 1852, was the day fixed upon for the arrival of the guest of the city and of the State.

Early in the afternoon of the fourth, though it had been announced that he would not arrive until evening, the streets were thronged with people, and all eligible points commanding a view of the coming pageant, were appropriated. An imposing procession, civic and military, met Kossuth at the depot, and escorted him to his rooms at the Neil house. The shouts of the vast multitude mingled with the boom of the cannon which announced the safe arrival of the distinguished guest. The return procession—lighted by flashing torches—headed by a fine band, playing national airs, and escorted by the military companies, bearing aloft the colors of the United States and of Hungary, after passing through the principal streets, halted at the Neil house, where Kossuth, standing upon a balcony, was presented to the people. Lifting his hat, he made a brief address, expressing the great pleasure this flattering reception had given him, for which he desired to publicly thank the generous citizens of this great commonwealth. The next day—Thursday, the fifth of February, 1852—Kossuth addressed a vast assemblage, filling the entire square between Broad and State streets. A stand was erected in front of the Neil house, opposite the old United States court house, where the address of welcome was made, by Samuel Galloway, of Columbus, to which Kossuth replied at some length, in words of stirring eloquence. After the address, he was waited upon by a committee appointed at a meeting of workingmen, with a request that he would address the workingmen of the city. This request he felt compelled to decline, on account of the constant tax upon his time and energies, while expressing gratification at the manifestations by the workingmen, of sympathy for the cause of free government in Hungary. On the evening of the same day, a large meeting was held in the city hall, at which an association of the friends of Hungary was formed, called the Franklin County Hungarian association. A constitution was adopted, and the following officers elected: W. R. Rankin, president; G. Lewis, vice-president; L. Donaldson, treasurer; M. M. Powers, secretary. On Saturday, the seventh of February, Kossuth visited the general assembly, by special invitation, where he was addressed by Lieutenant-Governor Medill,

OLIVER P. HINES.

Oliver Perry Hines, the subject of this biography, is a descendant of an old family, of Doylestown township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania. His ancestors were among the early land-holders, in Warrington, in that venerable county; and his grandfather, William Hines, was a soldier in the war of the Revolution. Oliver was the third son of John and Mary (Callander) Hines, and was born near Doylestown, on the twenty-sixth of March, 1812. His father combined the callings of farmer, saddler, and merchant, and became possessed of considerable property, which, however, was all swept away by unfortunate ventures during the last war with Great Britain. His son, born in the first year of that war, originally received another name; but, after the gallant fight and brilliant victory of Commodore Perry, at Put-in-bay, September 10, 1813, the admiration of his parents for the young hero of that action became so great as to induce them to change the name of their child; and he was accordingly named Oliver Perry Hines. He remained with his father, assisting in the labors of the farm, and also to some extent, in the saddlery shop, attending the district schools, as he could, from time to time, until the age of seventeen, when he began to learn the trade of a bricklayer. At this he worked until the early part of 1834, when, in his twenty-second year, he determined to push his way westward, to the land of promise, in Ohio, then the frontier, to which so many emigrants from the older regions along the Atlantic seaboard were looking. Columbus, then a rising young city, was his objective point, and he reached there April 26, 1834. Here he took up his trade, and many buildings still standing in the city are the monuments, in whole, or in part, of his handiwork. About 1839, in company with another young brickmason, named Crosswell, he contracted for the brickwork upon the Franklin county court house, the same edifice now occupied for county purposes on High street, in Columbus, between Mound and Court streets. Some time afterward, his ambition and success led him to extend his enterprises, and he became a brickmaker, occupying for a yard premises on, what is now, Livingston avenue, within the city limits, but was then some distance outside of the corporation. He was prospered in this business and remained at it until about 1850. A Democrat in his political convictions, and somewhat "in politics," his services to the party were recognized, in 1848, by an election as county commissioner, in which office he served until 1851, or during the full term of three years. The next year after his retirement from the brickyard, he was chosen county treasurer, and his service in that office was endorsed by a re-election in 1853. Four years afterwards he again became a county commissioner, by appointment to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Willis Mattoon, and served until the end of the term for which Mr. Mattoon was elected. About 1858, Mr. Hines, in copartnership with Mr. William Miller, built and stocked the Columbus paper mill, as their own enterprise, and conducted it successfully for a number of years, when they sold the property to its present owner, Mr. Yeatman Anderson. For a year subsequently Mr. Hines rested from active business, and then engaged in banking with the firm of Sparrow, Hines & Company, occupying the building on the corner of High and Town streets, now occupied by their successors, Messrs. Brooks, Butler & Company. Upon the dissolution of the former firm, Mr. Hines became the head of the concern, which now took the name and style of Hines, Taylor & Company. In July, 1877, the entire business was transferred to Brooks, Butler & Company, the head of which firm had been a member with their immediate predecessors. Since then Mr. Hines, feeling somewhat the weight of years and the oncoming of age, has retired altogether from the active pursuits of finance and trade, and is quietly enjoying the fruits of his long and manifold labors, in a spacious and pleasant home, at No. 454 east Rich street, in Columbus, his declining years made comfortable by the possession of a handsome property, and the attentions of many relatives and friends. He has never been much engaged in municipal affairs, but served three years (1838, 1839, and 1840), in the city council. Apart from this and the offices he filled, as before noted, he has not suffered public matters greatly to disturb the tranquillity of his private life. He has, however, for twelve years past, consented to act as a trustee for the Green Lawn cemetery, Columbus, and was for several years, until his retirement from the banking business, its treasurer.

On the seventh of February, 1837, Mr. Hines was united in the bonds of matrimony to an early friend and associate, Miss Mary Thomas, daughter of Mr. William Thomas, also an old resident of the Doylestown region, in Pennsylvania, who had emigrated to Columbus the year before Mr. Hines came. They have had five children, two of whom died in infancy. The remaining offspring are: William Thomas Hines, the oldest, a bachelor, long resident in Memphis, where he carried on a flourishing dairy business, but, driven north two successive summers by the yellow fever, he has permanently abandoned that city, and is now building upon and otherwise improving a farm given him by his father, in Mifflin township, in this county; Mary Alice, the next oldest, now Mrs. Benjamin F. Reed, of Cincinnati, wife of an employe of the Cincinnati Southern railroad; and Oliver, who owns and occupies a five hundred and fifty acre farm, in Truro towship, Franklin county.

CHARLES C. WALCUTT.

General Charles C. Walcutt, collector of internal revenue for the seventh district of Ohio, was born in Columbus, February 12, 1838, the son of John M. Walcutt and Mariel (Broderick) Walcutt. They were among the pioneer settlers of the city, where the former carried on the business of chair-making. His early education was acquired in the public schools of his native place, and at the Kentucky military institute, from which institution he graduated in the class of 1858. Returning to Columbus, he was elected surveyor for Franklin county the next year, and held that position until the breaking out of the Rebellion, when he relinquished it in order to offer his services to the government. Hastily raising a military company in the State capital, he entered the service April 17, 1861, with the commission of Captain. The next June he was promoted to the rank of Major, and served on the staff of General Hill until August, when he was appointed Major of the Forty-sixth regiment of Ohio volunteers. January, 1862, he was appointed to a lieutenant-colonelcy, and, with his regiment, joined Sherman's army at Paducah, Kentucky, where the Tennessee river expedition was then in course of organization. At the memorable battle of Shiloh, he received a severe wound in the shoulder from a musket-ball, which has never been extracted. October 16th of the same year, he was made colonel of his regiment, and participated in the campaigns against Vicksburg and Jackson, Mississippi. At the battle of Missionary Ridge he was assigned to the command of the Second brigade of the First division, Fifteenth Army Corps, and behaved with such intrepid gallantry in holding the key-point of the field against repeated charges by superior numbers, that he was recommended for promotion in General Sherman's report. From Chattanooga he moved with the column advancing to the defense of Knoxville, being still in command of the brigade, and led the assaulting party of the Army of the Tennessee at the battle of Kenesaw Mountain. After the battle of July 22nd, in which the brave McPherson fell, he was raised to the full rank of Brigadier-General. He participated in all the engagements of the Atlanta campaign, and after the destruction of the city fought the only battle—that of Griswoldsville—which occurred during the famous march to the sea. In this engagement, isolated from the main body of the army, and with his command reduced to thirteen hundred men, he sustained an attack by a body of Confederate troops over seven thousand strong, under General Coombs. He not only bore up against that overwhelming force, but finally routed it with such complete success that the number of the enemy left dead and wounded on the field exceeded that of the whole force with which he had entered the engagement. For this memorable act of gallantry he was breveted Major-General, and again distinguished by a very laudatory notice in the report of General Sherman. He then received, however, a severe shell-wound in the leg, which disabled him for several months, and he was unable to resume his command until the army entered North Carolina, when he was assigned to the command of the First division, Fourteenth army corps, and a few months later passed with the victorious troops in grand review before the President at Washington. He then took his command to Louisville, where it was mustered out, in August, 1865. He, personally, however, served in the western department until January, 1866, at which date he was mustered out, and accepted the wardenship of the Ohio penitentiary. While in this position he accepted also the appointment of a lieutenant-colonelcy in the United States regular cavalry service, and reported to General Hancock, at St. Louis, for duty. But three months later, finding that no imperative duty called him to the life of a soldier in time of peace, he handed in his resignation and returned to the pursuits of civil life, resuming his position as warden in the penitentiary. That office was held by him for three years, he being the first man under whose management the institution returned a revenue to the State treasury. In 1869 he was appointed collector of internal revenue, for the seventh district of Ohio, and still holds that position. He has always taken a zealous interest in public affairs, and in the cause of education, in Columbus. In 1868 he was presidential elector for his district, and cast his vote for General Grant. In 1872 he was chairman of the State Republican executive committee, and conducted the Presidential and State campaign, of that year, in Ohio, with distinguished success.

in a speech of welcome. Kossuth's response was regarded as one of his best efforts while in this country. By a joint resolution of the legislature, the original manuscript of both these speeches were ordered to be deposited among the archives of the State, in the State library, where they now are, bound in a handsome volume, and labeled "Welcome of Ohio to Kossuth." On Saturday evening, the first regular meeting of the Ohio Association of the Friends of Hungary was held in the city hall, which was filled to its utmost capacity. After a brief introductory speech by Governor Reuben Wood, the president of the association, Kossuth held the eager listeners spell-bound by a lofty eloquence, full of that patriotism and love of liberty, for which the addresses of the exiled hero were renowned. A brief address in German, following his speech in English, closed the public utterances of Kossuth in the city of Columbus.

OBSEQUIES OF HENRY CLAY.

Henry Clay, one of the greatest of American orators and statesmen, departed this life, at the capital of the United States, on the twenty-ninth of June, 1852. After lying in state in the senate chamber at Washington, the remains of the honored dead, in charge of the United States senate committee, and accompanied also by a committee from the State of the late senator, were taken to Ashland, henceforth a shrine to those who would do homage to departed greatness. The cortege accompanying Mr. Clay's remains arrived at Columbus on Wednesday evening, July 7th. It was met at the depot by a committee of arrangements, and a procession was formed in the following order: The remains, received by the joint committees, was transferred to the hearse, which was preceded by the fire companies, and flanked on either side by the Morgan volunteers. Then followed the committee on arrangements as pall-bearers, United States senate committee, the Kentucky and Cincinnati committees, commitees from towns and cities, the city council and citizens—all in carriages. The procession moved down High street to the Neil house, where the remains were deposited for the night. As the procession moved through the streets, the bells were tolled, and minute-guns were fired by the artillery. Many of the business houses were draped in black—the flags and omnibusses in the procession were trimmed with crape, as were the regalia of the different societies and orders, in attendance. At the Neil house, brief addresses were made by William Dennison, and Governor Jones, of Tennessee. On the same evening, there was a large meeting at the city hall, at which Joseph Ridgway presided, and C. T. Solis acted as secretary. After prayer by Rev. Dr. Hoge, R. P. L. Barber, from the committee of arrangements, reported a series of resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, after appropriate speeches by A. P. Perry and William Dennison. This ended, the public proceedings in Columbus, in honor of the illustrious senator; and the next day his honored remains continued on their mournful progress toward their final resting place.

DR. KANE'S OBSEQUIES.

Dr. Elish Kent Kane, the great Arctic explorer, died at Havanna, February 16, 1857, at the early age of thirty-seven years. His remains were taken to his former home in Philadelphia. A few minutes before noon, on Friday, March 6th, intelligence was received at Columbus, that the remains of Dr. Kane would pass through this city on their way toward Philadelphia; that they would reach this place by the 11:20 Saturday night train, and remain until the departure of the Monday morning train on the Central Ohio road. A joint committee was appointed by the legislature, then in session, to make the necessary arrangements for publicly honoring the lamented dead. The Grand lodge of the masonic fraternity of Ohio was convened by order of the grand master, and a committee appointed to co-operate with other committees of arrangement. At an early hour in the evening, a meeting of citizens was held at the Neil house, and a committee selected to act on behalf of the citizens of the capital of Ohio, in conjunction with other similar committees. A joint meeting of all these committees was held at eight o'clock in the evening, when two members from each committee were delegated to proceed to Xenia, and there meet the funeral cortege from Cincinnati, accompany it to Columbus, and thence to Baltimore. Other committees were detailed to complete the arrangements for the reception and respectful care of the remains during their stay in the city, and to secure appropriate religious exercises on Sunday. The tender of services on the part of the State Fencibles, Captain Reamy, was accepted by the joint committee. At midnight the train arrived at the Columbus depot, where the committees, the State Fencibles, and a large concourse of citizens were awaiting it. The stillness of the midnight hour, the rolling of the muffled drums, as the remains were removed from the car, the tolling of the bells of the city, the solemn strains of the dead march, the display of flags at half-mast as seen by moonlight, the hushed silence of the concourse of citizens that thronged the streets, all conspired to give the scene an air of grandeur and solemnity. The solemn procession moved to the senate chamber, where due preparation had been made for its reception; and there the remains were consigned to the custody of the Columbus committees, in a very appropriate address from Charles Anderson, on behalf of the Cincinnati committee.

William Donaldson responded in behalf of the Columbus committee, accepting the sacred trust. A detachment of the military under Lieutenant Jones, was detailed as a guard of honor, which remained on duty while the remains were in the senate chamber, except when relieved by a like guard detailed from members of the masonic fraternity. The remains lay in state in the senate chamber from one, A. M., on Sunday, until nine, A. M., on Monday. By ten o'clock on Sunday morning the citizens began to fill the senate chamber, which had been judiciously arranged by Mr. Eanshaw, for the accommodation of the greatest number possible. By eleven o'clock, the spacious hall was densely crowded, so general was the desire to join in this public demonstration of honor to one who had periled his life in the interests of science. Colonel Kane, Robert P. Kane, and Dr.

Joseph R. Kane, brothers of the deceased, and Lieutenant Morton, his faithful companion in his perilous voyages, entered, and were conducted to the seats reserved for them. The religious services consisted of prayer by the Rev. Mr. Steele, of the Congregational church; music by the choir of that church; discourse by Dr. Hoge, of the First Presbyterian church, collects and benediction by Rev. Mr. La Tourette, of St. Paul's (Episcopal) church.

Notice was given that the senate chamber would be open from two to five o'clock, to afford the citizens an opportunity to pay their tribute of respect to the ashes of the honored dead. Thousands of all classes and conditions availed themselves of this opportunity. At five o'clock the doors were closed and the silence of the chamber was broken only by the tread of the guard on duty.

At nine o'clock on Monday morning, March 9th, an imposing procession accompanied the remains to the depot with solemn music, the tolling of bells, and other appropriate tokens of sorrow. A portion of the joint committee accompanied the remains to Baltimore, where, with a fitting address by Dr. S. M. Smith, of Columbus, they were delivered to the committee appointed by that city for their reception.

WATER WORKS.

Previous to 1853, the question of a water supply for the city was agitated, and in April, of that year, ex-Governor Dennison, then a member of the city council, introduced a resolution instructing the committee on general improvements, to inquire into the practicability of the establishment of a water works system. The committee consisted of John Noble, Robert Howe, Benjamin Blake, Theodore Comstock, L. Hoster, and M. P. Howlett. This committee made its report in March, 1854, and received instructions to make further surveys, of which there appears no record.

In June, 1855, Joseph Sullivant, by invitation, delivered an address before the council, on the subject of providing the city with an adequate supply of pure water.

This question was considered and brought before the council again in 1859, at which time Joseph H. Riley presented an estimate of the cost of building such works as would be necessary for this purpose, and obtained the adoption of a resolution appointing a committee to take further steps in this direction. The waters of Alum creek and the Olentangy river were examined, and there the matter rested until May, 1863, when still another committee was appointed. This committee visited several of the most important water works in the country, and reported in March, 1865, that they had obtained much valuable information, and had also caused surveys to be made, with a careful analysis of the waters of the streams near the city, all of which had been quite satisfactory.

Some time after this, another committee was formed, consisting of Luther Donaldson, Jacob Reinhard, William Naghten, E. B. Armstrong, James Patterson, Frederick Jaeger, and C. P. L. Butler, who delivered a report in the latter part of 1868, in favor of the adoption of the Holly system of water works. A contract was ratified by the council, at a regular meeting held February 7, 1870, with the Holly manufacturing company, of Lockport, New York, by which the company was to furnish the city with Holly's patent elliptical rotary pumps, with a capacity to throw six one-inch streams of water, at the same time, to a distance of one hundred and fifty feet, without interrupting the steady supply of water for domestic purposes—the pumps to have the capacity to furnish in the aggregate four million gallons of water daily for domestic purposes. The contract also called for all the necessary machinery, couplings and gearings to make the works complete, and to set the same up, finished and complete, for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars.

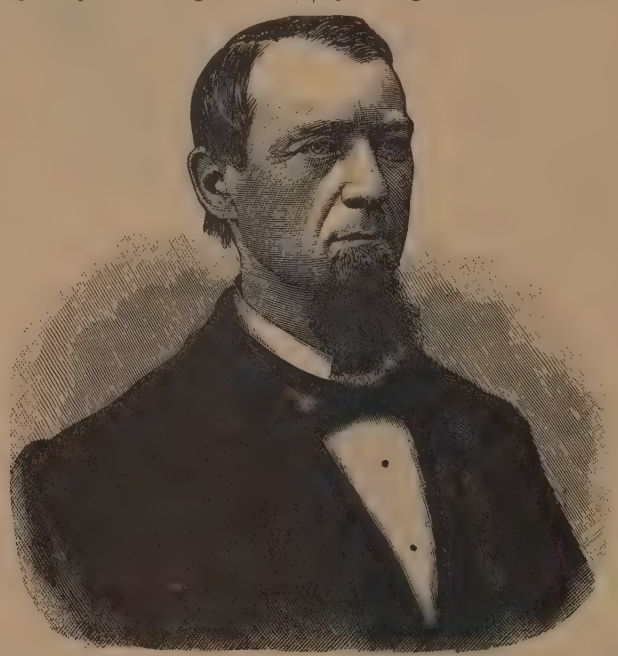
At an election held in April, 1870, William Monypeny, Richard Nevins, and Charles Ambos, were chosen trustees of the Columbus water works. They appointed J. P. Pillsbury, chief engineer of construction, and Charles M. Ridgway, superintendent of the works. The work of construction was commenced in May, 1870, and the work was vigorously prosecuted, so far, that in March, 1871, water was thrown through the hose in the State house yard. Previous to April, 1871, forty-two permits for taking water were issued by the secretary, and by the first of April, 1872, water-pipes had been laid throughout nearly the entire built up portion of the city, for use as a fire protection. There had been laid at that time, one hundred and twenty-three thousand two hundred and sixty-four feet, or twenty-three and thirty-four one-hundredths of a mile of cast-iron pipes, for distributing mains throughout the city. There had also been laid for small distributing mains, sixteen thousand nine hundred feet of wrought-iron pipe, varying from three-fourth of an inch to two inches in diameter, making a total of nearly twenty-seven miles of pipe.

The machinery was started on the first of May, 1871, on regular domestic supply, and since that time the engines have been kept in constant use day and night. Up to March 31, 1872, there had been issued seven hundred and seventy-two water permits, the water then used being taken from seven hundred and two hydrants, or stop-cocks. The total number of months for which water was paid, during the year ending March 31, 1872, was six thousand and ten. The average amount paid by each consumer during this time was fourteen dollars and eighty-two cents. For the two years ending March 31, 1872, the total receipts were nineteen thousand two hundred and sixteen dollars and forty-eight cents, and the net cost of the water works to that date, four hundred and twenty-four thousand two hundred and ninety-nine dollars and fifty-one cents. The total disbursements to March 31, 1879, were eight hundred and eighty-nine thousand nine nundred and twenty-eight dollars and ten cents; and the total receipts from all sources, two hundred and forty-two thousand eight hundred and nineteen dollars and fifty-four cents, making the net cost to that date, six hundred and forty-seven thousand one hundred and eight dollars and fifty-six cents.

There are now in use in the water works system, over three hundred fire hydrants, each having two outlets;

HENRY HEINMILLER.

Colonel Henry Heinmiller, chief engineer of the Columbus fire department, was born in that city June 11, 1842, and is the second son of Conrad and Elizabeth (Bottomfeldt) Heinmiller, both natives of Germany, but who were married in Columbus, to which place the elder Heinmiller emigrated about 1835. Henry received some education in the public schools of the city, but when scarcely more than thirteen began work in a book-bindery, which he entered two years afterwards as a regular apprentice. The opening of the war of the Rebellion found him still in his apprenticeship, and, in 1862, he decided to abandon it temporarily for the service of his country. On the fifth of August he enlisted as a private in the One Hundred and Eighth Ohio volunteer infantry, but was made second sergeant upon the full organization of his company in October; first or orderly sergeant six months afterwards, and received a commission October 2, 1864, as first lieutenant. His earlier service in the field was with the army of Kentucky, commanded by General Gordon Granger. Moving into Tennessee, he was captured, with the regiment, by the rebel general, John Morgan, at Hartsville, December 7, 1862, paroled four days after, and sent into the Federal lines just before the battle of Stone River. The regiment returned to Camp Chase to reorganize and await exchange, which was effected on the third of March, 1863. It was then kept on detached service at various points in Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama, until about the middle of October, when it joined the Second division of the Fourteenth army corps, then at Moccasin Point, in front of Lookout Mountain. With it young Heinmiller took part in the action at Mission Ridge, near Chattanooga; marched with it to the relief of Knoxville, against Longstreet, getting within sixteen miles of that place, when the relieving force was ordered back to Chattanooga, and remained there quietly in camp until the grand movement of Sherman on Atlanta began, in April, 1864. He then took part in the battles, or skirmishes, at Rocky Face Ridge, Resaca, Dallas Woods, Ackworth, Big Shanty, and Kenesaw Mountain, and was in the flank movement whereby Rome was captured. After Kenesaw, the regiment, which had become greatly depleted by the casualties of war, was ordered back to Chattanooga and assigned to duty as railway train guards. Lieutenant Heinmiller was in command of the train, bound for Atlanta, which was stopped near Big Shanty by the nearness of the rebel force, under General Hood, when that redoubtable fighter made his way to Sherman's rear. Lieutenant Heinmiller ran back to Allatoona pass, saving his train, and afterwards brought up reinforcements to the aid of General Corse, who was making the famous defence at the Pass. Had not the train been delayed by an accident, it is believed the relief would have arrived in time to capture a large part of the attacking force. Lieutenant Heinmiller was also in charge of the last train that entered Atlanta before that city was evacuated by General Sherman, and remained there many hours after the main body of the army had gone. He then shared the glories of the march to the sea, and the great raid through the Carolinas, taking part in the affairs at Black River, Averysboro, and Bentonville, in the last of which, the final fight of Sherman's army, March 19, 1865, he was wounded by a musket shot across the left hip—a flesh wound only, but quite enough to disable him from further service. After some time in hospitals, he returned home on furlough, and was honorably discharged under the general order of the war department, May 15, 1865.



He now re-entered the book bindery, for six months, to complete his apprenticeship, and afterwards labored as a journeyman in the bindery, until 1869, when he was elected by the people of Columbus, chief engineer of the fire department, to which the next year, under a different system, he was appointed and confirmed, retaining the place ever since by successive appointments—even now, although a Democrat, under a Republican city administration, a fact which speaks loudly in favor of the efficiency and fidelity of his service. His military experience, together with some native qualifications, give him eminent ability to organize and direct a force like that now in his charge, whose service is acknowledged to be among the very best in the country. His military excellences were also recognized in 1877, by a unanimous election to the colonelcy of the Fourteenth regiment of the Ohio national guard—which, however, he resigned after thirteen days' service, finding its duties would too seriously interfere with his more important public affairs. He is also the drill-master of the Columbus lodge of Knights of Pythias, which, by virtue of his thorough training, carried off the national prize at the competition drill in Cleveland, in 1875, and has also won four State prizes. Besides this organization, he is a prominent member of the Free and Accepted masons, and also of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He is now in the prime of health and vigor, and has still an eminent and useful career before him.

Colonel Heinmiller was married in Columbus, October 23, 1866, to Mrs. Adelina R. (Van Zandt) Fell, of that city. They reside in a pleasant and comfortable home, at 44 east Fulton street, in Columbus.

nearly forty miles of cast-iron pipe, from four to twenty inches in diameter; besides over ten miles of wrought-iron distributing mains, and service pipe. During the eight years that the water works have been in operation, to March 31, 1879, the pumps have raised three billion, six hundred and seventeen million, five hundred and forty-four thousand, eight hundred and thirty-three gallons of water to an average height of one hundred and sixty-six and ninety one-hundredths feet, at a total cost of one hundred and fifty-nine thousand, sixty dollars and fifty cents. There have been realized from the sale of the same, two hundred and forty-two thousand, eight hundred and nineteen dollars and fifty-four cents. The water works building is erected near the junction of the Olentangy with the Scioto river. They are now supplied with two sets of pumps, with a capacity of five million gallons each, per day, with two batteries of boilers, and all the machinery necessary for a permanent supply of water. The supply of water is obtained from a filtering gallery, a half mile in lengh, and built in 1878. This gallery is located between the two rivers, and is reached by means of a tunnel under the Olentangy. The water filters through the surface of the ground, and is received from numerous springs opening into the gallery. It is a vast filter, provided by nature, and needing but the work of man to bring it forth from its hidden source. During the present year the gallery is being extended another half mile, and when it is completed, a tower will be erected near the Scioto river, with which connection is to be made by means of valves, operated from the water works building by electricity, whereby water may be obtained if necessary.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

For many years after the first organization of Columbus, there was no paid fire department, the only dependence being placed on the hand-engines, manned by volunteers, and, in its early day, this was generally considered an adequate protection from the ravages of any ordinary fire. But, as the city increased in size and importance as the seat of the State government, and the irrepressible inventive genius of this age developed the many uses to which steam could be applied, Columbus, like other cities, wished to be supplied with the most perfect apparatus that could be obtained. The city of Cincinnati, in 1852, contracted for a steam fire engine, and put in service a paid company of firemen, and so successful and satisfactoy did this prove that, in 1853, their entire fire department was changed from hand to steam. The matter was thus brought to the attention of the city council of Columbus, and, in 1854, a committee was appointed to examine into the feasibility of providing a paid steam fire department. This committee rendered a favorable report, which, with a minority report, was printed and circulated among the citizens. The report of the committee was adopted, and it was resolved to provide steam engines, and employ a paid fire department. There was a strong tide of opposition to this project, but it was met with firmness by Luther Donaldson, chairman of the standing committee on the fire department. He took the matter in hand, faced down the opposition, and, through his exertions, Columbus was the fourth city in the country to adopt a paid steam fire department. A new ordinance regulating the fire department, was passed October 29, 1855. J. C. Kenyon was elected chief engineer, and C. M. Ridgway was elected to take charge of the new engine when it should arrive. It was manufactured in Cincinnati, and on the first trial, burst one of its steam pipes. On Friday, October 2, it arrived in Columbus, accompanied by its builder, Mr. Latta, to whom an entertainment was given, at the Neil house, in honor of its arrival. The engine was accepted by the city authorities, and was placed in the house erected for it, on Third street. The cost of the engine was six thousand dollars. During the winter of 1860–1, two additional steam fire engines were purchased from H. C. Silsby, of Seneca Falls, New York. The council selected John Miller, banker, as chief, to have charge of organizing and bringing the new department into working order. He continued as chief engineer of the department nearly three years, when he resigned. Isaac H. Marrow succeeded him from 1864 to 1868, and Wm. S. Huffman from 1868 to 1869. In 1869, Henry Heinmiller, the present chief, was elected, and has served continuously for ten years.

For a number of years previous to 1868, the locality of a fire had been designated by signals and alarm bells striking the number of a ward or district. In October, 1868, a telegraph fire alarm system was put in operation. This was greatly improved and extended in 1870 and 1871, and cost six thousand dollars. Immediately on the breaking out of a fire, the alarm is sounded from the box nearest the locality of the fire, and the engine houses are notified of the fact. The bell in the tower of the Second Presbyterian church is struck, as are the gongs at the engine houses and the water works, by which the exact locality of the fire is known. Forty-four alarm boxes are now in use. The department has been under the charge of Henry Heinmiller, chief engineer, since 1869. At the present time, there are thirty firemen under his control, who are stationed in six engine houses, and have in their care six hose reels and one hook and ladder truck for service, besides an additional truck and four steam fire engines, that can be pressed into service should occasion require. The department has eight thousand feet of hose, forty-five cisterns, and over three hundred fire hydrants, the latter supplied from the water works. The total expense for running the fire department during the year 1879, is about twenty-four thousand dollars, which includes the cost of putting in use nearly forty hydrants, besides other improvements.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE MASONIC FRATERNITY.

The first meeting of the Grand lodge of Ohio was held in Columbus, December 14, 1818. Subsequent meetings were held here annually, until 1828; again in 1831 until 1836; in 1845 to 1847, and from 1861 to 1865, and again in 1872. It is composed of —— lodges, each of which is entitled to three representatives in the grand lodge, making a total of — members.

Columbus Lodge, No. 30, was originally instituted at Franklinton (now included in Columbus), June 11, 1815, under the name of Ohio Lodge, No. 30. The first officers were Abner Lord, W. M.; John Kerr, S. W.; Alexander Morrison, J. W.; Lincoln Goodale, treasurer, and Joel Buttles, secretary.

Magnolia Lodge, No. 20, was organized under a dispensation granted by William B. Thrall, grand master, June 10, 1847. The charter for this lodge was granted October 20, 1847. The founders of this lodge were Bela Latham, B. F. Martin, Henry A. Field, John W. Milligan, D. T. Woodbury, James T. Donahoo, Nathaniel Marion, Harvey Fletcher, Harvey Bancroft, and William Harrison. The first officers were: Bela Latham, W. M.; B. F. Martin, S. W., and Henry A. Field, J. W.

Goodale Lodge, No. 372, received its dispensation from Thomas Sparrow, M. W. G. M., July 20, 1866. It was organized with twenty-three charter members, Monday, July 23, 1866, the officers named in the dispensation being James Williams, W. M.; William S. Phares, S. W., and Harry Tarbill, J. W. The charter was granted October 17, 1866. The lodge was named Goodale, in honor of Dr. Lincoln Goodale, for his eminent services to the craft in the early settlement of the State, and as the last survivor of Ohio Lodge, No. 30, as the oldest surviving master mason made in the county, and perhaps, in the State, and as the oldest officer of the grand lodge and grand chapter.

Ohio Chapter, No. 12, R. A. M., was chartered November 16, 1824. The first election of officers took place December 4th of the same year, as follows: Bela Latham, H. P.; Daniel Turney, K.; Joel Buttles, S.; A. J. McDowell, treasurer; James Pearce, secretary. The regular meetings are held the first Monday of each month.

Columbus Council, No. 8, R. S. S. M., was instituted by dispensation granted December 27, 1841. The following were appointed officers: Bela Latham, T. J. G. M.; Leonard Humphrey, D. I. G. M.; John W. Milligan, P. C. of Work. The council was incorporated under the general laws of the State, December 3, 1870.

Mount Vernon Commandery, No. 1, is the first organization of Knights Templar in the State. It was constituted by virtue of a letter of dispensation issued by Thomas Smith Webb, deputy grand master of the grand encampment of the United States of America, on the fourteenth day of March, 1818, to John Snow, authorizing him to assemble in Worthington a sufficient number of Knights to open a council and commandery in that town. An organization was effected the next day, March 15, 1818. The commandery worked under this dispensation three months, and received its charter giving it rank and precedence from the sixth day of June, 1819, though the charter is dated September 16, 1819. The charter officers were: John Snow, eminent commandery; Chestes Griswold, generalissimo; Roger Searle, captain general; Joseph S. Hughes, prelate; James Kilbourne, S. W.; Levi Penny, J. W.; Bejamin Gardner, treasurer; William Little, recorder. On the twenty-second of February, 1844, permission was granted by the grand commandery to hold occasional meetings in Columbus, since which time the commandery has continuously met in this city.

Humbolt Lodge, No. 476, was organized some eight or ten years since, and now has a good membership. The work is German.

Enoch Lodge of Perfection, A. A. S. R. met for organization April 6, 1877, under dispensation granted March 19, 1877. The first meeting held under the charter was November 2, 1877. This degree has now a membership of one hundred and twenty-one.

Franklin Council, Princess of Jerusalem, A. A. S. R. has been working under dispensation since some time in 1878. The charter has been received by the council, but has not been yet organized under it.

Columbus Chapter Rose Croix, A. A. R. R. also works under a dispensation, though the charter is now in the hands of its officers.

There are but three lodges in the State empowered to confer the ancient Scottish rites, and they are located at Cleveland, Columbus, and Cincinnati.

St. Mark's Lodge, No. 7, (colored), was organized under a warrent granted by W. S. Watson, grand master of the grand lodge of Ohio, December 15, 1851, with the following officers: H. Johnson, W. M.; D. Jenkins, S. W.; James Evans, J. W.

Johnson Chapter, No. 3, R. A. M. (colored), was chartered October 16, 1870, and soon after was organized. Meetings are held every Monday evening.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS.

Columbus Lodge, No. 9, was granted a charter, July 4, 1839, and was organized in the third story of Walcutt's brick building, opposite the United States hotel. A few years afterwards the lodge fitted up a hall in the Buckeye block. They used this some years, and have since occupied, for several years, a hall in the third story of the bank building on the southeast corner of High and State streets, also a hall in Platt's building, and one in Carpenter's building, until the temple was erected, in 1870, since which time they have occupied that. The charter members were: Nathan B. Kelly, James B. Thomas, William Flintham, David Bryden, and Charles A. Howle.

Central Lodge, No. 23, was organized December 2, 1843, with Alexander E. Glenn, Thomas Stitt, James Aston, David Overdier, Thomas Brown, Moses Altman, William K. Carr, and Francis La Chapelle, as charter members.

Excelsior Lodge, No. 145, was instituted February 22, of the same year. Charter members were: Frank H. Hulburd, James B. Stockton, A. B. Newburgh, George B. Comstock, Nathan B. Marple, Calvin Rennick, and Ira M. Gorton. This lodge was corporated under the State laws, June 11, 1862.

Capital Lodge, No. 334, I. O. of O. F., was instituted May 21, 1858, with Joseph Dowdall, F. R. Willson, Wm. McDonald, C. W. Smith, Geo. Markley, W. W. Cowling, J. H. McColm, John S. Ford, Wm. T. Cloud, G. Scott, F. A. Lesquereux, J. P. Syler, A. Stephens, P. T. Conrad, Thomas Arnold, L. G. Thrall, M. M. Powers, A.

Hudson, L. English, Geo. W. Gibson, Sol. C. Preston, Geo. F. O'Harra, E. C. Cloud, and Waldo B. Fay, as charter members. Regular meetings are held every Friday evening at Odd Fellows' temple. This is the largest lodge in the State at the present time. Rutherford B. Hayes, president of the United States, was a member during his first term as governor, and presided at the dedication of the new temple, in 1870.

Harmonia Lodge, No. 358, was organized May 26, 1860, with thirty-six charter members, and is at this time the largest German beneficial association in the city. Meetings are held every Saturday evening at the Odd Fellows' temple, of which this lodge is the one-sixth owner.

National Lodge, No. 509, was organized June 1, 1872, with thirty-one charter members. It meets every Friday evening, at the temple.

Junia Lodge, No. 474, was organized June 17, 1871, with twenty-two charter members. Meetings are held at the Odd Fellows' temple every Wednesday evening.

Stauring Lodge, No. 512, named in honor of James H. Stauring, who, on his death, gave his property, by will, to the order, for the benefit of the orphans of odd fellows, at the decease of his surviving sisters, was organized June 6, 1872, with twenty charter members, headed by John G. Thompson. Meetings are held at the temple every Tuesday evening.

Greiner Lodge, No. 540, was organized September 28, 1872. It is named in honor of John Greiner, deceased, who was a zealous worker for the fraternity during his life. Its regular time for meeting is every Monday evening, at the Odd Fellows' temple.

Capital Encampment, No. 6, I. O. O. F., was instituted December 4, 1843, by Charles Thomas, of Cincinnati, M. W. H. P. The charter members were John T. Blain, Lucien Buttles, Thomas Stockton, John S. Hall, James Milligan, John G. Altman, H. M. Hubbard, John Huffman, Samuel T. Heffner, and William Burdett. It meets every Tuesday evening, at Odd Fellows' temple. One thousand, one hundred and thirty-seven patriarchs have been instituted in the Golden Rule since its organization. About twenty new encampments have branched from it in the surrounding cities and towns. It now numbers five hundred members.

Concordia Encampment, No. 96 (German), was instituted June 4, 1867. Its meetings are held the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month, at Odd Fellows' temple.

Columbus Encampment, No. 135, was instituted May 18, 1871, with a charter membership of twenty-three. It meets at Odd Fellows' temple, every Tuesday evening.

Buckeye Encampment, No. 148, was instituted March 25, 1872, with a charter membership of forty. Meetings are held at the temple every Thursday evening.

The Odd Fellows' Beneficial association was organized January 1, 1868, and was incorporated July 1, 1872, for the purpose of affording mutual protection and relief to its members. It now has eight thousand members, and a surplus fund of over sixty thousand dollars. It is represented in nearly five hundred lodges of this State.

Naomi Lodge, No. 6, daughters of Rebekah, was instituted November 22, 1879, at Odd Fellows' temple. Meeetings are held the first and third Thursdays of each month.

Odd Fellows' temple was erected in 1869 and 1870, and was dedicated May 10, 1870. Capital encampment, Columbus lodge, Central lodge, Excelsior lodge, Capital lodge and Harmonia lodge, each contributed one-sixth of the amount required to erect the building. The temple contains five halls, each of which is carpeted and thoroughly fitted up for the purposes to which they are dedicated. They are occupied every night in the week, by twenty-two different societies. The temple cost sixty-three thousand, five hundred dollars.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

The grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias of the State of Ohio was instituted in Columbus, July 9, 1869, by Supreme Chancellor Read. The next meeting of the grand lodge was also held in this city, the third Wednesday in January, 1870. Its records and principal office are located here, with James Dowdall as G. K. R. S.

Columbus Lodge, No. 3, K. of P., was instituted in Columbus, May 17, 1869. Meetings are held Wednesday evening of each week.

Germania Lodge, No. 4, was instituted at the same time as Columbus lodge, and meets every Tuesday evening.

Franklin Lodge, No. 5, was also instituted at the same time, but has since ceased to exist.

Oriental Lodge, No. 95, K. of P., was instituted February 26, 1876. This lodge was formed from the remnant of Franklin Lodge, No. 5, after that had ceased to exist. Meetings are held in Odd Fellows' temple.

Section No. 190, Endowment rank, K. of P., was instituted with ten charter members, as follows: F. A. Marble, president; James R. Armstrong, vice-president; J. W. Lingo, chaplain; Edward J. Dowdall, secretary and treasurer; Charles H. Lindenberg, guide; Jacob Bleile, guard; L. G. Thrall, sentinel; and Henry Lindenberg, August Kuehner, and Joseph Dowdall.

Columbus Division, No. 1, of Ohio Uniform rank, was instituted November 9, 1878, by D. B. Woodruff, supreme chancellor. This is the first division of this rank ever instituted.

IMPROVED ORDER OF RED MEN.

Algonquin Tribe, No. 3, kindled its first council fire January 10, 1852. The charter members were C. P. L. Butler, T. G. Shaw, M. S. Hess, O. H. Shaw, and E. Hess. The tribe meets each Saturday night. It pays in case of sickness, two dollars a week to an initiate, and five dollars to a chief's degree member.

Scioto Tribe, No. 22 (German), was instituted in February, 1866. The charter members were Charles Zattman, Lorenz Anmiller, George Kaereber, Bernard Steinleim, Edward Streitber, A. Witter, Henry Barthold, and Philip Kromer. This tribe was formed of members, previously connected with Algonquin tribe, No. 3. That it might hold property in its own name, it was incorporated October 21, 1867

Olentangy Lodge, No. 65, I. O. R. M., was instituted at the wigwam in Odd Fellow's hall, April 1, 1872. The tribe started with thirty-two charter members, and twelve petitions for membership. Its meetings are held every Monday evening.

DRUIDS.

Columbus Grove, No. 10, U. A. O. D., working in the German language, was instituted June 15, 1857, with eight charter members. Regular meetings are held every Monday evening.

Capital Grove, No. 30, U. A. O. D., working in the English language, was instituted March 3, 1871, by Henry Kinney, noble grand arch of Ohio. Meetings are held at Druid's hall every Thursday evening.

Central Grove, No. 32, U. A. O. D., working in the English language, was instituted July 27, 1872, with twenty-two charter members. The following officers were installed: John G. Thompson, noble arch; F. A. Marble, vice arch; L. G. Thrall, secretary; G. S. Brooks, treasurer, and R. Reynolds, inside guardian.

Franklin Arch Chapter, No. 2, U. A. O. D., was instituted August 9, 1862, with sixteen charter members. Work is done in the German language. Meetings of the chapter are held every second and fourth Wednesday in the month.

Columbus Supreme Arch Chapter, No. 10, U. A. O. D., was instituted November 29, 1871. This chapter works in the English language, and meets twice in each month.

MISCELLANEOUS LODGES.

Capital Lodge, No. 132, A. J. O. K. S. B. (Hebrew), was organized in the summer of 1875, with fifteen members. Meetings are held in Odd Fellow's temple, the first and third Sundays of each month. The present membership of this lodge is about thirty.

Crystal Lodge, No. 1238, Knights of Honor, was organized October 31, 1878. An attempt had been made to organize a lodge of this order here sometime previous to this date, but it failed. This lodge was formed with thirty-two charter members, and now has a membership of forty-two. Meetings are held in Odd Fellow's temple the first and third Thursdays of each month.

The Arbeiter Verein society was organized in 1849, as Industrial Lodge, No. 11, and was composed entirely of mechanics. After the commencement of the war it ceased to exist. The organization known as the Arbeiter Verein was formed some years later. Its object is the elevation and protection of the working class, and its motto is: "United we are victorious—separated we must surrender; union makes strength; science is power, as labor is the orgin of all wealth."

Zion Lodge, No. 62, independent order of Bne Berith, was instituted August 20, 1865, with seventeen charter members. Its object is benevolence. Connected with the organization is a mutual endowment fund, to which each member pays the sum of two dollars on the death of any member.

Capital Lodge, No. 167, Knights of St. Crispin, was organized February 20, 1866. It is composed entirely of boot and shoemakers, and its object is the protection of labor. Meetings are held the first and third Mondays of each month.

Court Forest, No. 6, Independent Order of Foresters, was chartered October 15, 1875, and was organized in Odd Fellows' temple, where its meetings are held. It has a membership, at the present time, of about one hundred.

Capital Council, No. 87, Royal Arcanum, was organized the sixth of May, 1878, with twenty-seven charter members.

Capital Lodge, Ancient Order of Workmen, was organized several years since. Franklin lodge, of the same order, was organized in 1878. These are both mutual benefit societies.

Teutonia Lodge, No. 394, D. O. H. (German) [Harugari], was organized in Odd Fellows' temple, in 1877, with sixty-six members. Meetings are held each Tuesday evening.

Franklin County grange was organized by delegates from various township granges in the county, November 2, 1874. In 1878, the organization was merged into Pomona grange, by which name it is now known.

Ancient Order Knights of the Mystic Chain was organized in the fall of 1875, with some twelve charter members. There are now two lodges of this order in Columbus.

The Independent Order of Good Templars has a lodge doing active work in Columbus. Several lodges have been organized at various times, but have eventually ceased to exist.

The Theodore Parker lodge of the American Protestant association was organized May 25, 1866. Its object is to "preserve the liberty of conscience in connection with the support of its members."

Olentangy council, Order of United American Mechanics, was instituted August 1, 1872. Meetings are held every Tuesday evening.

Energy Council, No. 8, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, was instituted October 7, 1872, in Good Templar's hall.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

In all departments of human enterprise the outward expression will in time come to correspond with the inward life or appreciation. In that State, or society, where wealth is not more lavished upon social luxury than upon those institutions which have for their aim the elevation of the people morally and intellectually, we may safely look for a commonwealth in which all truly wise parents will gladly place their children. To a stranger in her midst, who is weighing these serious considerations, Columbus may, with pride, and without boasting, say: "Look at my churches and my schools." Shall we essay to honor the men who year after year have helped, by wise counsel and wiser action, to uprear these structures—dedicated to religion and learning? Lo! their works praise them. Tower, and spire, and firm foundation stone, are mute but eloquent eulogists. This, without doubt, is now, and will continue to be, one of the chief elements which conduce to her rapid growth. Her means of education are the exponents of a high degree of mental and moral culture, which cannot fail to attract as residents, a most desirable class of citizens.

The facts embodied in the following brief sketch, such only as could find place in a county history, are gleaned from elaborate tabulated reports, embracing the history of the public schools of the city.

The first public school in Columbus was opened when the town plat, with a part of Montgomery township, composed a single school district. The first meeting for the choice of directors was held November 21, 1826, in the Presbyterian church, on Front street, at which Orris Parish was chairman, and William T. Martin, secretary. The directors chosen were: Dr. P. Sisson, Rev. C. Hinkle, and Wm. T. Martin. A school was soon afterwards opened, of which a Mr. Smith was the teacher. The school fund, for several years, sufficed only to keep up a school for one quarter in each year. John Warner, Christian Heyl, and William St. Clair were chosen directors in 1830, and Wm. McElvain, Horton Howard, and Nathaniel McLean, in 1831. The name of J. M. C. Hasseltine is mentioned as first employed as a teacher, in 1832. In 1830, a public meeting authorized the opening of two schools, one to be taught by a male teacher, for the more advanced pupils, the other by a female teacher. At this time there were no public school-houses, the schools being held in rented rooms.

Previous to the year 1845, very little attention was paid to the common, or public, schools. The children of the more prosperous and influential citizens were taught in private schools. The passage of a law was obtained, on the third of February, 1845, by which the management of the public schools was committed to the board of education of Columbus, to consist of six directors. Under the same law, the city council was empowered to appoint a board of three examiners, for the examination of applicants for the position of teachers in the public schools of the city.

A tax of eight thousand dollars, for the erection of school-houses, was voted, in 1846. Three brick buildings, of six rooms each, were erected, in which the schools were opened, July 21, 1847. About this time, the board of education appointed a superintendent, to whom was intrusted the general direction of the course of study and instruction in the schools. A German school-building was erected in 1852, and the high-school building the year following. The board of education, in their report of July, 1853, made the following statement of the cost of school buildings then erected, exclusive of the sites: "Central building for the high school, sixty by seventy feet, three stories above the basement, fifteen thousand dollars; three houses, erected in 1846, one hundred and eighty-seven by twenty-four feet, twelve thousand dollars; German school house, seventy by thirty-two feet, three thousand dollars."

The following statistics will give a definite idea of the increase of the population, and consequent growth of the schools: In 1852, the number of pupils enrolled was two thousand, two hundred, and the number of teachers employed twenty-three. In 1872, the number of pupils enrolled was five thousand, four hundred and seventy-eight, and the number of teachers one hundred and five. In 1878, the number of pupils receiving instruction was eight thousand, nine hundred and seventy-four, and of teachers employed one hundred and forty-four. The value of school buildings, exclusive of sites, in 1852 was thirty thousand dollars, and the total value of school property in 1878 was six hundred and one thousand, nine hundred and fourteen dollars. The number of school buildings in 1852 was five, and in 1878 they numbered twenty-five. The whole amount paid for instruction in 1878 was one hundred thousand, nine hundred and seventy-seven dollars, and the whole expense of the public schools for that year was one hundred and sixty-four thousand, seven hundred and nine dollars. Prior to the year 1871, the schools had been under the general management of one superintendent and seven male principals, the latter having the special charge of the schools in their respective districts. It was the opinion of members of the board, that the schools could be more economically conducted, without marring their efficiency, by substituting women as principals. At a regular meeting of the board, held July 12, 1871, the committee on salaries made a report which, being adopted, led to a reorganization of the schools in accordance with the suggestions of the report. The city was divided into three school departments, each having one male principal, the sub-districts in each department being under the charge of female principals. The superintendent, at the close of the first year under the new regime, reported that the experiment of putting women at the head of all the schools below the high school had proved a success. The competency of the lady principals to teach and govern, and their devotion to the work, had kept the schools in good order and a high state of efficiency. At the same time, a new classification of the schools was adopted, together with a new course of study. The principal feature in the new course was the introduction in the grammar-school grades of natural science, instead of the disconnected lessons upon every variety of subjects, known as object lessons. The teachers, almost universally, reported deep interest on the part of the pupils, and there was no subject upon which their average standing, at the last autumnal examination, was so high.

Too much cannot be said in commendation of the wise forethought which has characterized the action of the successive boards of education. The gratifying results of their large-hearted estimate of the grave interests committed to their care, meet us at every turn. The well-chosen site, the attractive and commodious edifice, the ample and neatly enclosed grounds, are only the fair complement of unstinted provision for thorough mental, moral, and esthetic culture. Limited space forbids a minute description of any of these structures, which may well be the pride of the citizens of Columbus. The high-school building, on one of the finest streets of the city, is, doubtless, one of the best school buildings in the United States, and one of the chief architectural ornaments of the city. It is Romanesque in style, built of brick, with cut Waverly stone dressings, galvanized iron cornices, and slate roof. The main building is one hundred feet long by sixty broad, with a central transept twenty feet wide, projecting twelve feet. A beautiful tower at the northwest corner rises one hundred and fifty feet above the pavement. There was a capacity in the building as first constructed, for over three hundred pupils. In 1866 an extension was added to the building at a cost of about twenty-five thousand dollars, making its present capacity six hundred. The last official report, that of 1878, gives the number of pupils registered in the high school as four hundred and forty-eight, and the number receiving the honors of graduation at the last commencement, as seventy-two. In this connection, it would be difficult to find more fitting words with which to close this imperfect sketch than these, taken from the report of the committee on building, embodied in the annual report of the board of education for 1878.

"Beautiful surroundings will tend to refine an ennoble the lives of those who are gathered here for instruction. The school-house should be the second home of childhood—let it be in the midst of spacious and ornamented grounds, an object of beauty and delight, so that the very sight of it will create emotions of pleasure, and at the same time, satisfy that love for the beautiful and harmonious, which is universally inherent in the human mind."

COLUMBUS TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION, NUMBER FIVE.

The first typographical society of Columbus was organized about the year 1831, and incorporated by an act of the legislature passed February 25, 1834. The incorporators were: Patrick G. Hawe, Jason Case, William C. Morrow, James Mead, Thomas R. Raymond, Peter G. Bartholomew, Charles L. Murray, David B. Espy, James H. Patterson, Benjamin J. Gray, T. T. Sarchet, J. B. Halsey, Alex. E. Glenn, Theodore Langpre, Jonathan Phillips, Isaac Walton, Mathias Birck, and Samuel Martin. The object of the society, as set forth in the second section of the act, was "to afford relief to deserving indigent members, their widows and orphans; and to preserve the honor of the profession, by the adoption of such measures as shall to them appear neccessary for the encouragement of industry, sobriety, good order and morality among its members."

This society continued in existence about twenty-five years, when it disbanded and was reorganized with the title given above, under a charter received from the National typographical union; the charter members being: Thomas Wetzler, William H. Paul, R. S. McEwen, J. K. Parshall, James F. Turney, William R. Ramsey, A. G. Reynolds, and J. T. Hayes. The object of the association, as embodied in its present constitution, are "the maintenance of a fair rate of wages, the encouragement of good workmen, and the employment of every means which may tend to the mental improvement and elevation of printing in the social scale of life."

The present officers are as follows: Ed. P. Rollins, president; Wm. F. Poland, vice-president; C. C. Pell, recording and corresponding secretary; John A. Shields, financial secretary; John Pausch, treasurer; H. H. Doren, librarian; and Frank J. Turney, guardian. There are eighty-nine active members; nine apprentice members; twenty-three admitted by card; two expelled for "ratting," (i. e., working at rates below those prescribed by the union). The union has a library of several hundred volumes. Its meetings are held the first Saturday in every month.

THE TYNDALL ASSOCIATION.

The society bearing this name was organized in February, 1870. At its first meeting, George H. Twiss acted as president. The following statement of subjects discussed before the association, either in writing or orally, during the first two or three months of its existence, will show, fully, its general purpose and practical operations: The spectroscope, and spectrum analysis; ocean currents; sensitive and singing flames; climate, and its changes in the past; Homœopathy, and its principles; the Darwinian theory; decrease of the number and intensity of thunder storms by the increase of the number and extent of railroads; cause of the southern projection of the continents; cause of the explosion of steam-boilers, etc. The association recognizes three classes of members: First, active members, who pay an initiation fee, and furnish papers of a scientific character; second, contributing members, residents of Columbus, who pay an annual installment of five dollars; third, corresponding members, consisting of eminent scientific men throughout the country, who contribute original articles, written and published by themselves. Since its organization, the association has purchased a set of meteorological instruments, at a cost of one hundred and sixty dollars. It has, also, a handsome binocular microscope, imported from London, and costing two hundred and fifty dollars. By a resolution of the city council, two rooms on the fourth floor of the city hall building were appropriated to the use of the association, and have been very appropriately fitted up by the society. It is the practice of the association to arrange, during each lecture season, for a course, or courses, of popular lectures, by prominent scientists. Lectures are also given, under the auspices of the society, by men of science at home. The intention, at first entertained, of establishing a communication with the weather-signal office at the Smithsonian Institution, was abandoned, and the valuable instruments belonging to the society have been transferred to the State university. The following are the present officers of the society: A. G. Farr, president; W. H. Jennings, vice-president; C. C. Howard, secretary; D. E. Williams, corresponding secretary; Martin Hensel, treasurer; D. E. Williams, librarian; J. J. Janney, trustee; A. H. Tuttle, D. H. Towne, I. F. Stidham, R. W. McFarland, and H. N. P. Dole, standing committee.

CAPITAL UNIVERSITY.

This institution was chartered by an act of the legislature, passed March 7, 1850. It had its origin in the necessity felt, to provide increased facilities for the education of young men seeking the ministry. The German Evangelical Lutheran seminary, which it intended to supplement, had been established for twenty years, and though existing under a distinct charter, became virtually the theological department of the university.

Both schools occupied, in 1850, the Covert school property, on Town street, and remained until removed

LOUIS LINDEMANN.

Louis (christened Peter Ludwig) Lindemann is one of the oldest German residents of Columbus. He is a native of Zweibrucken, in the Rheinkreis, Bavaria, son of a grocer of that city, and born August 14, 1818. He received an elementary education in the Bavarian public schools, and took a short course in English after his arrival in this country. At the early age of eighteen he pushed out for himself, and deciding to emigrate to America, he reached Columbus in the fall of 1837. Here he met a second cousin, Mr. Peter Ambos, also for many years an active business man in Columbus, who had preceded him to this country by about five years, and was engaged in the manufacture of confectionery, in a shop on south High street.

His relative, young Lindemann, took service under him for four years as apprentice, after which he was received into partnership. They remained associated in business for some years, when Mr. Ambos retired, and Mr. Lindemann took, as partner, Mr. Ritze Glock, the firm name being Lindemann & Company. He was also connected in the same business, some time after, with a Mr. Stevenson, occupying the building Nos. 55 and 57 South High street, opposite the State house, now used for similar business by Messrs. Ruhl, Corbett & Company.

About seven years ago (1872) Mr. Lindemann finally retired, and has since engaged himself solely with the management of his handsome estate and the care of his spacious mansion and grounds on south High street, near the city limits, where he resides with a married sister, Mrs. Magdalene Klie. He has never been married, never sought or held public office, or joined any beneficiary or other societies, except the Independent Protestant (German) church, of which he is a member. In politics he was formerly a Democrat, but for many years has voted generally with the Republican party, though still retaining independence of thought and action.

CHRISTIAN ENGEROFF,

one of the most prominent citizens of Columbus, of German blood, is a native of Guntersblum, Groesherzogdhum, Hessen Dermstadt, and dates his earthly career from 1832. His father died when Christian was but eight years old; his mother survived until 1856, dying at the old home in the Fatherland, on the same day, November 23d, when her distant son's eldest child, John Albert, was born into the world. Young Engeroff attended school from six to fourteen years of age, and was then bound, for three years, as an apprentice to the turning trade. At the end of his term, although not yet arrived at his majority, he set out to make his own fame and fortune. September 4, 1852, he left his native land to find a home in the new world. He reached New York on the thirteenth of October, following, and arrived in Columbus soon after. Here he found employment at once in the exercise of his trade, and engaged in it until 1861, when he was called to the charge of the chair factory in the Ohio penitentiary, at that time managed by Messrs. Brotherlin, Halm & Stage. This firm he served until its dissolution, in 1865, when he became foreman of the large furniture factory in Columbus, owned by Messrs. Halm, Bellows, & Butler. This responsible position he has held continuously to this date (December, 1879), a fact which speaks volumes in favor of his mechanical skill, fidelity, and ability to manage large bodies of men, and of the pleasant relations long maintained between employers and employed. In 1874, his fellow-citizens, of the eleventh ward, elected Mr. Engeroff a member of the board of education of the city of Columbus, which position he now holds, to the general acceptance and approbation of his constituents. His term expires next year. He was, also, in June of the present year, a nominee, upon the Democratic ticket, for the post of county infirmary director, and at the ensuing October election was voted in by a large majority, the second largest upon the entire ticket chosen. He is still in the full vigor of his manly prime, and other positions of honor and trust doubtless await him in the near future. On Christmas eve, 1855, Mr. Engeroff was married to Miss Philena Fell, a young Buckeye lady, also of Columbus. Their union has been blessed by six children, of whom five are still living—two daughters and three sons. The family resides in a pleasant home on west Court street, Columbus.

into the university edifice. The lot on north High street, east of Goodale park, on which the college edifice stood, was donated by D. L. Goodale. The building was dedicated on the fourteenth of September, 1853, when addresses were delivered by William H. Seward, and Rev. Dr. Stohlman, of New York. The university organization includes the preparatory or grammar school, the collegiate and theological departments.

At a meeting, in this city, of the joint synod of the Lutheran church of Ohio, in 1873, it was decided to dispose of the university and grounds, and accept the generous proposition of Frederick Michael, esq., which was to donate ten acres, in a square on East Friend street, for the university proper, and five acres of ground, in one acre lots, surrounding the square, for professors' residences; and to raise five thousand dollars toward the building of a ten thousand dollar church, to be built opposite the university square. The first president of the university was Rev. W. M. Reynolds, D. D., who was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Spielman, and the latter, about the year 1857, by Rev. W. F. Lehman, who was the incumbent at the time the institution was removed. As its present location is beyond the city limits, its subsequent history will be found in connection with that of Marion township.

We append a brief history of the theological seminary, now merged in the university.

THE GERMAN EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN SEMINARY.

The institution of learning, bearing the above name, was founded in 1830. Its first location was on a lot containing ten acres of ground, in the south part of the city. This site and the buildings thereon were sold to Peter Hayden, and the Covert school property, on Town street, purchased for the use of the seminary and of Capital university, which had just been organized. After the erection of the university building, on north High street, the seminary became one of the departments of that institution.

The seminary is under the general supervision of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Ohio and adjacent States, and under the special control of a board of directors. A large proportion of the ministers of the Lutheran church in Ohio, and the borders of adjoining States, were prepared for the ministry at this institution. Its course embraces a series of lectures in exegetical, historical, systematic and practical theology.

BOARD OF TRADE OF COLUMBUS.

The board of trade of the city of Columbus, dates back only to the beginning of the present decade. A communication (over the well-known initials, J. H. S.) appeared in the leading papers of the city, on the sixth of November, 1872, stating that a call had been made, signed by many citizens, for a meeting at the board of trade room, in the city hall building, for the purpose of organizing an association, such as was contemplated by the municipal authorities, in the construction of that apartment. The writer of the article, after stating that such associations had been found of great advantage in other cities, in the advancement of their general interests, summarized with great ability the resources of Columbus: in her position in the midst of beds of coal and iron; in the wealth and enterprise of her citizens; in her facilities for manufacturing and commercial enterprises; and in her railroad connections with all portions of the country —resources which, rightly employed, would not fail to make Columbus rich and prosperous. On the other hand, the danger was pointed out of neglecting to seize upon these advantages, until more enterprising rivals should turn the tide of prosperity, which might have enriched Columbus, into other channels. United action was needed to make these great resources in the highest degree productive, and this could not be secured without organization—in short, without a board of trade, of which manufacturers, merchants, bankers, business men, professional men, and the citizens should become members, and assist in the advancement of all interests which affect the public good. This very able article closed with this statement of the primary object of a board of trade: "To collect, record, and diffuse special, as well as general, statistical information respecting manufacturing, commercial, and financial interests, and especially to guard and develop manufacturing, and other industrial resources. The public mind was evidently prepared for this movement, as, pursuant to the call, which had been sighed by nearly two hundred leading names and firms, a large meeting was held at the place appointed. The meeting was called to order by Jacob H. Studer, the author of the communication above quoted, on whose motion John L. Gill, the oldest and largest manufacturer in Columbus, was made temporary chairman, and Mr. Studer acted as temporary secretary. The following prominent business men were appointed to draft a certificate of incorporation, and a constitution and by-laws: Messrs. David W. Brooks, S. S. Rickley, T. Ewing Miller, C. P. L. Butler, and R. C. Hoffman.

By request, ex-Governor Dennison delivered an extempore speech, setting forth, in very forcible language, the urgent demand for such an association as was proposed, and its claims upon the citizens of Columbus. At the close of this very able address, the committee presented to the meeting a form of certificate of incorporation. embodying the following summary:

"The objects of said association are to promote integrity and good faith, and just and equitable principles of business; to discover and arrest abuses; to establish and maintain uniformity in commercial usages; to acquire, preserve, and disseminate valuable business statistics and information; to prevent, or adjust, controversies and misunderstandings which may arise between persons engaged in trade; and, generally, to foster, protect, and advance the commercial, mercantile and manufacturing interests of the city, in conformity with an act of the general assembly of the State of Ohio, entitled, 'an act to authorize the incorporation of boards of trade and chambers of commerce,' passed April 3, A. D., 1866."

The committe on constitution and by-laws were, on motion of Governor Dennison, instructed to insert in the by-laws a provision prohibiting the organization from contracting one dollar of debt, for any purpose whatever. At an adjourned meeting on the evening of November 14th, on motion of J. H. Studer, T. Ewing Miller, representing the largest mercantile firm in the city, was called to the chair. Mr. Brooks, from the committee, reported a constitution and by-laws, which were amended and adopted. The following committee, of six, was appointed to nominate candidates, for officers of the board: B. S. Brown, W. G. Deshler, R. C. Hoffman, Alexander Huston, D. W. Brooks, and E. T. Mithoff. This committee reported to the third meeting, held November 21st, the following names being proposed: For president, John L. Gill; vice-presidents, T. Ewing Miller, Theodore Comstock, E. L. Hinman, D. S. Gray, W. B. Brooks, and H. Mithoff. secretary, H. M. Failing; treasurer; Joseph Falkenbach. The report was accepted, and the nominations confirmed. The following are the first committees of the board of trade of Columbus: On inspection—William Monypeny, William B. Hayden, Y. Anderson, W. L. Hughes, Frank Hickox; on reference—John Greenleaf, Isaac Eberly, P. W. Huntington; on appeals—David W. Brooks, M. A. Daugherty, J. M. Westwater, Theodore H. Butler, L. Hoster; floor committee—Geo. W. Sinks, H. Brown, Charles L. Osborn.

The board is, at present (November, 1879), in a quiescent state, keeping up its organization, with occasional meetings, but not seeing, just now, how it can further the public good, or accelerate the tide of returning prosperity, by putting its hand to any public enterprise. Having secured (as, by its timely action, it undoubtedly did,) the construction of the Scioto Valley railroad, one of the most important thoroughfares leading to the city, it is resting for a while upon its laurels, waiting for the further developments of business. The present officers of the board are as follows: S. S. Rickly, president; C. P. L. Butler, D. S. Gray, Joseph Falkenbach, J. M. Westwater, J. B. Hall, vice-presidents; Jacob Reinhard, secretary and treasurer.

THE CITY HALL.

This beautiful and imposing edifice, which stands on State street, nearly opposite to the south front of the State house, presents, in its highly ornamented facade, a striking contrast to the severe, classic simplicity of the latter building. Its architecture is modern Gothic, but its style of ornamentation follows no scientific rule or model, but is an original composition of its architect. The building is one hundred and eighty-seven feet six inches long, by eighty feet in width, and ninety-eight feet in height from the ground to the roof. The front has an altitude of one hundred and forty feet, from the ground to the top of the tower, and is composed of Amherst stone of a dark cream color, very agreeable to the eye.

On the west side of the building are several entrances, affording free access to the several apartments designed for the post-office, which is situated on the right. But the main entrance is at the north side, beneath seven Gothic archways, supported by eight massive pillars, angular and irregular in shape, but elaborately ornamented with architectural mouldings. These arches extend up only to the second floor, and the space between them and the front entrances to the building constitutes a fine portico, about ten feet in width, which would be much more striking if its floor was elevated a few feet above the sidewalk. The three central archways are surmounted by a balcony; and the upper tiers of windows are of the Gothic style, corresponding to the archways.

The portion of the building assigned to the different apartments of the post-office, is ninety-eight feet long by twenty-two wide, and has a fire-proof room in the rear, thirty feet by twenty. On the opposite side of the central lobby is the library-room, one hundred and ten feet long by twenty-six feet wide. In the rear is the apartment used by the board of trade, fifty-eight feet long and forty feet wide. Between this and the other apartments of the first floor is a lobby, running east and west, on both sides of which are stairways leading to the upper stories. The grand stairway ascends from the main entrance, where it branches off to the right and left, ascending to the corridor and the public hall. On the second floor, another central hallway extends through the building, leading to the council chamber. On both sides of the central lobby of the second floor, are various rooms for the use of city officers and committees. Those on the east side are twenty by twenty-four feet, and those on the west are twenty by twenty-nine feet.

The council chamber is fifty-nine feet long, by forty wide, and twenty-seven feet high. It is magnificently furnished. The walls are frescoed in water colors; and the floor, within the bar, is covered with a carpet of brilliant colors. Each member of the council is provided with a desk and a chair; and, in the lobby, chairs are provided for spectators. Sofas are placed on the inside of the bar. The chamber is brilliantly lighted by three chandeliers, having, in all, twenty-four burners. The president's stand is on the west side of the apartment, and in front of it are the clerk's and reporter's desks. The walls of the room are ornamented with the portraits of prominent men—several of them citizens of Columbus. Directly back of the president's stand is the portrait of Dr. Lincoln Goodale, and on the south wall are the portraits of Luther Donaldson, Colonel John Noble, and R. W. McCoy. On the north wall are those of Grafton Douty, Abraham Lincoln, and Colonel P. H. Olmstead. A portrait of Washington occupies a place on the western wall.

In the third story is the public hall, one hundred and forty feet long, by seventy-four feet wide, and fifty-three feet high. It will seat about three thousand people. The stage is at the south end of the hall, and is forty-five feet wide, and thirty feet deep. The hall is lighted by five chandeliers, the central one having sixty burners, and the others thirty each. The inclined gallery at the north end will seat five hundred persons.

There is another apartment in the third story, directly over the council chamber, and corresponding with it in size. It is not at present appropriated to any special use. The building is warmed by steam, generated in the basement, and contains about two thousand five hundred feet of hot air ducts, and about the same length of pipes for ventilation.

The work on the City hall was begun in May, 1869—occupying about three years' time, and costing one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars. The architect was R. T. Brooks; the superintendent of the work, Jacob Boswell; the contractors, Messrs. Hall, Lawson, and Fornoff, and the sub-contractors for cut-stone work, Messrs. William Fish & Sons. Luther Donaldson, president of the city council, was chairman of the committee who had the erection of the building in charge. He took a deep interest in the work, and gratuitously bestowed upon it unremitting care and attention, that the structure might be complete in every respect, at the least possible cost.

The grand opening of the hall to public use took place on the evening of March 28, 1872. The building was thronged by thousands of our citizens, whose admiration and delight were unbounded, as they viewed the noble structure and promenaded through its spacious and well-arranged interior. The festivities of the evening were on a large scale; and the event will long be remembered as one of the most interesting in the history of Columbus.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

In January, 1872, an ordinance was passed by the city council establishing a public library and reading room. The ordinance provided that this institution should be under the control of seven trustees, who were to serve without compensation, to appoint their own president, secretary and treasurer, and such other officers and assistants as they may deem necessary, and to fix their compensation. They were also authorized to establish such by-laws and regulations for the government of the library and the preservation of its books and other property as they might deem proper. The mayor, the president of the city council, and the president of the board of education, are ex-officio members of the board of trustees. The council elected, on the twelfth of February, 1872, Otto Dressel and W. B. Hayden, to serve for one year, and John W. Andrews and A. S. Glenn, to serve for two years. The board, thus elected, met and organized February 19, 1872, by electing John W. Andrews, president; Otto Dressel, secretary; and Alexander S. Glenn, treasurer. By-laws were adopted for the government of the board and the regulation of the library and reading room. Any resident of the city has access to the library and reading room free of charge, and residents over fifteen years of age can take out books.

It is necessary here to give a brief history of an organization which preceded that which we have been considering. The Columbus Atheneum, a voluntary association formed in 1853, for the purpose of maintaining a library and reading room, after acquiring a library of about fifteen hundred volumes, had been compelled to close its labors for lack of the patronage necessary to its support. Their books had been boxed and stored for several years previous to the establishment of the public library. The three surviving directors of the Atheneum, Jos. Hutcheson, J. J. Janney, and W. E. Ide, united in transferring these books to the newly organized board of trustees, and they were accordingly placed in the room assigned by the city council, for the use of the public library, in the new city hall. Through the exertions of Luther Donaldson, esq., about three thousand dollars were raised and expended in fitting up the library room in this very desirable location.

The books in the library at its opening were all donated—from the Atheneum library, twelve hundred volumes; from the High school library, three hundred and fifty-eight volumes; and from the horticultural society, thirty-three volumes. By authority given in the municipal code, the council has caused a library tax to be levied upon all taxable property of the corporation, which yields an annual library fund of two thousand dollars, thus providing for its perpetuity and the gradual increase of the number of its volumes.

The following items are gleaned from the report of the librarian, dated March 31, 1879, and are, alike, creditable to the trustees, the librarian, and the reading public: The leading newspapers and other periodicals of this country, and many of foreign countries, may be found upon the convenient stands of the library reading-room. There are twenty-six dailies, including the five published in this city, and one from St. Louis in the German language. There are thirty-nine weeklies, seven from this city—five in the German language, one in French, and one in Welsh. Of this number, ten are religious periodicals. There are fifteen monthly magazines—the choicest among American monthlies, and also a number from abroad, four of them being in the German language. All the papers of this city, secular and religious, are furnished without cost. The expense of renewing the periodicals for the year is three hundred and twelve dollars and twenty-six cents. The catalogue of the Public library shows four thousand three hundred and sixty-eight volumes. Of these, about nine hundred volumes were obtained from a circulating library, which existed for several years, and was discontinued about the year 1877. There are, besides eight volumes of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, which it is proposed to complete, and about thirty volumes at the bindery, not registered. The number donated during the year, one hundred and forty-six. Forty-five of this number are public documents, from Senator Thurman and General J. Mitchell. Twenty large engravings, representing the most beautiful and costly public buildings of the country, were placed in the library by General Mitchell, and are certainly very appropriate decorations for its walls. In the public school department of the library, four thousand two hundred and forty-nine volumes are registered, the amount expended by the school board in the purchase of books during the year, being two thousand four hundred and fifteen dollars and forty-three cents. The Deshler Alcove registers eight hundred and thirteen volumes; the Noble Alcove, two hundred and nineteen, and the Hubbard, one hundred and sixty-two, making an aggregate of nine thousand eight hundred and seventy-four volumes. The number of issues from the entire library during the year is forty-five thousand three hundred and sixty-eight, an increase of seven thousand three hundred and twenty-six over the issues of last year. It is to be noticed also, as a very gratifying evidence of the good work being done by the Public library, that though the greater part of the readers do still ask for novels, the class reading books of intrinsic value is daily increasing, and among novel readers, there is a growing demand for the higher grade of light literature—the productions of the standard English and American authors.

UNITED STATES ARSENAL—NOW COLUMBUS BARRACKS.

Action having been taken in congress looking towards the establishment of another United States arsenal, a joint resolution was adopted by the Ohio legislature, April 27, 1862, instructing the senators, and requesting the representatives in congress to use all honorable means to secure the location of the contemplated armory at some suitable place in the state of Ohio. A memorial was also sent to congress at the same session, signed by W. B. Hubbard, Samuel Galloway, John S. Hall, Wm. G. Deshler, Walstein Failing, and Peter Ambos, a committee on behalf of the citizens, and by A. B. Buttles, Horace Wilson, and Luther Donaldson, a committee on behalf of the city council, setting forth the advantages of Columbus as a location for an arsenal. These efforts resulted in an appropriation by congress, for the establishment of the arsenal at Columbus. An act was passed by the legislature, at the following session, March 21, 1863, giving the United States jurisdiction over the lands that had been, or might be, purchased in the county of Franklin for the erection of a national arsenal, for the deposit and repair of arms and other munitions of war.

General Buckingham, acting for the war department, selected a site for the arsenal in the northeast part of the city, on the tract known as "Neil's woods"; and, on the seventeenth of February, 1863, prior to the passage of the above act, had purchased from Robert Neil, seventy-seven and three-fourths acres, lying in nearly a square form, for the sum of one hundred and twelve thousand, three hundred and seventy-seven dollars.

The buildings were located September 3, 1863, and their construction commenced in October following, under the direction of Captain T. C. Bradford. The architect was, at first, J. O. Sawyer, who was succeeded by N. B. Kelley. The main building and the magazine were completed in August, 1865, and the reception of military stores from eastern arsenals was at once commenced. The other buildings were completed before the close of the year. All of the structures are of brick, with substantial stone foundations, and admirably adapted to the purpose of their construction. The buildings are grouped around a square, in the centre of which is the office, the main building being on the south and in front of it.

The following is an enumeration of the different structures, with a brief description of the two principal ones: The main building is two stories high, one hundred and eighty by sixty feet, with a tower thirty-four feet square, and five stories high. This building is used for the storage of arms and accoutrements, the tower containing the stairway and hoisting apparatus. Artillery store house—two stories high, two hundred and one by fifty-one feet, used for storing artillery carriages and harness. Central office, barracks, guard-house, magazine, officers' quarters, No. 1, officers' quarters, No. 2, stable, workshop.

The arsenal is situated on elevated ground, and commands a fine view of the city and surrounding country. The grounds are handsomely laid out in walks and drives, and are interspersed with forest trees and shrubbery. Several acres of the domain are allotted to pasturage and gardening. The value of the arsenal grounds and buildings, in 1872, was estimated at four hundred and forty-two thousand, four hundred and twenty-two dollars.

The several commandants, while the post was continued as an arsenal, were as follows: J. W. Todd, captain of ordnance, took command September 3, 1863, and was relieved on the third of December ensuing by George B. Wright, colonel and military store-keeper, who resigned, February 10, 1864, and was succeeded by T. C. Bradford, captain of ordnance; relieved July 13, 1869, by Theodore Edson, major of ordnance; relieved July 30, 1869, by E. Penrose Jones, captain and ordnance store-keeper; relieved November 19, 1869, by John McNutt, major of ordnance—Captain Jones continuing as ordinance store-keeper.

By an order from the war department, issued September 24, 1875, the character of the post was changed from a depot of arms, or arsenal, to a recruiting depot, or barracks; that is, not merely a station for obtaining recruits, but a depot for concentrating recruits made at different stations, organizing and holding them in readiness for orders to any point where they may be needed. The military stores were removed to Indianapolis, only such being retained as are required in the recruiting service, and an appropriation of thirty thousand dollars was expended in building additional officers' quarters, and remodeling buildings for the purposes of barracks. The transfer of the recruiting depot from Newport, Kentucky, to Columbus, took place October 1, 1875, under the charge of Major Mason. This depot recruits for artillery and infantry only, but receives artificers, musicians and common soldiers; and commanders elsewhere make requisitions for men of these different classes, whenever and wherever needed. Major John E. Yard was in command of the barracks from 1877 to 1878, and was succeeded by the present commandant—Lieut. Col. T. M. Anderson, Ninth infantry. The general aspect of the barracks and grounds, as well as that of the men at drill and on fatigue, shows a rare administrative ability in the commander. All of our readers may not be aware that every military post has its school, and that the teachers are enlisted men. Great credit is due to Colonel Anderson, for the active interest he has shown in providing means of intellectual training, not only to the children connected with the post, but to those among the recruits who may be interested in self-improvement. Colonel Anderson has also attempted to establish a normal school at the Columbus depot, for the training of teachers for the army—a scheme which the war department would do well to encourage, by offering inducements to suitable men to enter the service. Why should not the post schools be model schools? Granted there are some difficulties in the way; we think, with the gallant colonel, that they are not insuperable.

The average number of men sent on requisition to various points differs annually. During the past year [1879] the number was one thousand and eighty-two, though for three months of the year no recruiting was

THEODORE LEONARD.

MRS. THEODORE LEONARD.

PHOTOS. BY ELLIOTT & ARMSTEAD, COLUMBUS.

"THE MEADOWS."
RESIDENCE of THEO. LEONARD, SR.,
COLUMBUS, O.

RESIDENCE & STORE OF THEO. LEONARD, JUNIOR, 8TH STREET & MOUNT VERNON AVENUE, COLUMBUS, OHIO.

done. The present commander notices this difference: now, they are getting seven out of eight native born residents; whereas, before the war the proportion was about reversed. Only about one in six applications is received, which shows that the army is not an omnium gatherum. A daily report of the number of men received, and detachments sent, is made to the general superintendent of the United States recruting service, at New York.

The following is the present detail of officers at the barracks: Lieut.-Col. T. M. Anderson, Ninth infantry; Surgeon William M. Notson, United States army; Capt. Kinzie Bates, First infantry; Capt. A. A. Harbach, Twentieth infantry; Capt. Geo. H. Burton, Twenty-first infantry; Capt. A. C. Markley, Twenty-fourth infantry; 1st Lieut. Patrick Hasson, Fourteenth infantry; A. A. Surg. A. F. Steigers, United States army; 1st Lieut. J. B. Guthrie, Thirteenth infantry.

It is worthy of note, that one of the officers of this detail is a grandson of a colonel in the revolutionary war, and of a general in the war of 1812, and also a nephew of the gallant officer who received and returned the first fire in the late war of the Rebellion; and that another of them is a grandson of General Simon Kenton, so celebrated in the annals of Indian warfare.

AMUSEMENTS.

A large frame building, designed for theatrical representations, was erected on the west side of High street, between Broad and Gay, in the year 1835. It was first opened, in the winter of that year, by Messrs. Dean and McKinney, managers, with a dramatic corps, and continued to be opened, during the winter, for six or seven years, when it was closed. The building was purchased, in 1843, by Mr. Gilbert, by whom it was remodeled, and was, for several years, known as the City hall. A second metamorphosis converted it into private dwellings. The "large" frame building, on High street, still stands, but looking particularly small, sandwiched between two towering business blocks.

THE STATE STREET THEATER.

After the lapse of more than ten years, during which time there is no reason to suppose that Melpomene and Thalia despised the Columbians for the poverty of their shrines, a second building was dedicated to histrionic art. It was erected in 1855, by John M. Kinney & Co., on State street, nearly opposite the south front of the State house. This second structure erected in the city, in the interest of popular amusement, was opened on the evening of September 12, 1855, under the name of the "Dramatic Temple;" and let no one deem the name in any degree pretentious; for is not every structure reared by man a temple, dedicated to some deity, ignorantly worshipped, alas, too often? The opening was signalized by an address, and by the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," followed by the favorite comedy, "The Honeymoon," and the farce, "State Secrets." The theater continued to enjoy a liberal patronage, until the excitement attendant upon the late war diminished, and the opening of the Opera house, near its close, divided public patronage.

THE ATHENEUM.

The State Street theater, having become the property of William A. Neil, of this city, was entirely remodeled and refitted, at an outlay of twenty thousand dollars, and took, at its second opening, the name of the "Atheneum." It was opened as a place of public entertainment, on the evening of November 13, 1871, with the opera of the "Doctor of Alcantara." Having the advantage of a central location, and great ease of access, added to its attractive stage appointments, it has continued to hold its place in the public estimation as a favorite resort for amusement.

THE GRAND OPERA.

During the summer of 1879, the Atheneum having fallen into the hands of one of the most enterprising of the business men of Columbus, E. T. Mithoff, the entire interior has again been remodeled and refurnished, and a new front of handsome design added. The building, thus reconstructed at a cost of fifteen thousand dollars, and presenting, in its interior, a most attractive tout ensemble (as the visitor, with a suddenness somewhat startling, steps from the thronged pavement into a world so entirely apart from the work and worry outside), has received its third sobriquet, spelled out upon its beautiful facade, in brilliant gas jets—"Grand Opera House." Its present capacity is eighteen hundred—this being an increase of three hundred seats. Colonel Theodore Morris is the present popular lessee; and it is fair to say that the prospect of the "State Street theater" is now most flattering—a prospect which the lessee will deserve to realize, if he shall persevere in his present laudable efforts to popularize the legitimate drama, and so make the stage what its advocates have always claimed it to be, a "school of morals."

THE COMSTOCK OPERA HOUSE.

The Opera House block, one of the finest in the city, was completed in 1864. It was called by the proprietors, "Union block," but by the public, generally, "Cotton block." Opera House building, or block, has, however, superseded the other appellations. Its situation is central, being on the west side of High street, between Town and Rich. It is four stories high, the first floor containing seven large rooms, suitable for stores or other extensive business. The grand feature of the building, however, is the opera house, occupying the three upper stories, in the rear of the southwestern portion of the structure. In dimensions, arrangement, and ornamentation, at the time of its construction, it was far in advance of any hall previously erected in the city. The frescoing and scenic decoration were the work of eminent artists from abroad.

The block was erected by H. E. Smith, Theodore Comstock, and C. P. L. and Theodore H. Butler. The opera house was built by Messrs. Smith and Comstock; under the immediate supervision of the latter gentleman, whose name it bears. This hall is not leased, but is under the control of Mr. Comstock, and enjoys now, as from the first, a large share of public patronage.

MEDICAL SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

The medical profession, in Columbus, is represented by about eighty physicians adhering to the "regular," or "old school" practice, and seven or eight adhering to Homœopathy. Among these practitioners are several of well-earned eminence in the profession, whose talents, learning, and success fully entitle them to an extended notice in a work like ours. But, partly because it might seem invidious to give biographical sketches of some, and leave others unnoticed; partly because we should be unable to draw any line of distinction; and, still more, because we have no space to notice worthily even a tithe of the deserving, we have concluded that we must content ourselves with a brief history of the medical schools and societies now existing in the city.

And, as first in the order of time, we begin with

STARLING MEDICAL COLLEGE.

Starling medical college is the successor of Willoughby medical college, located at Willoughby, Lake county, which, upon the reorganization of its board of trustees in 1846, was removed to Columbus. One course of lectures only was delivered here under this organization, and then the institution was abandoned. During this last year of its existence, Lyne Starling, one of the original proprietors of the site of Columbus, bequeathed, on the eighteenth of December, 1847, thirty thousand dollars, to be paid in installments for the purchase of a lot, and the erection of suitable buildings thereon for a medical college, and the establishment of a hospital, in connection therewith. The trustees named in this bequest, were: William S. Sullivant, John W. Andrews, Robert W. McCoy, Joseph R. Swan, Francis Carter, Samuel M. Smith, and John Butterfield. In 1848, Mr. Starling added five thousand dollars to his generous bequest, making it thirty-five thousand dollars. The trustees, on the second of January, 1848, met and accepted the trust, and on application to the legislature, Starling medical college, to be located at the State capital, was chartered by a special act, passed January 28, 1848.

The board of trustees organized under the charter, by electing William C. Sullivant, president; R. W. McCoy, treasurer; and Francis Carter, secretary. The following gentlemen were chosen, January 29, 1848, members of the faculty: Henry H. Childs, M. D., John Butterfield, M. D., Richard L. Howard, M. D., Jesse P. Judkins, M. D., Samuel M. Smith, M. D., Frederick Merrick, A. M., and Francis Carter, M. D. One hundred and sixty students were in attendance the first year, and the degree of M. D. was conferred upon thirty-two persons; six receiving honorary degrees. Immediately after the charter was obtained, in the winter of 1848, a location was secured on east State street, corner of sixth. The erection of the much admired college edifice was begun in 1849, under the superintendence of the architect, R. A. Sheldon. The first course of lectures was delivered in the partially completed college building, in the fall of 1850; Professor Carter opening the course by an appropriate inaugural address. The college has a chemical labratory of rare excellence; and is also well furnished with the means for instruction in practical anatomy, as well as other departments of medical science, and has a well stored museum. The faculty, distinguished as eminent pratictioners, are the medical advisers of St. Francis hospital, which is connected with its lecture rooms.

As the best and most concise account of its present condition we quote the following paragraph from its most recent official publication:

"The thirty-third annual announcement of Starling medical college finds it in a flourishing and efficient condition. During the past few years its classes have rapidly increased in size, and no effort is spared by the trustees and faculty to merit success. Placed in the State capital, and possessing the finest college building in the State, every advantage is offered to the student that can be found elsewhere.

The following are the names of the present faculty: Francis Carter, M. D., emeritus professor of obstetrics, and dean of the faculty; Starling Loving, M. D., professor of the theory and practice of medicine; John M. Wheaton, A. M., M. D., professor of anatomy; James H. Pooley, M. D., professor of surgery; H. G. Landis, A. M., M. D., professor of obstetrics and diseases of women and children; E. B. Fullerton, professor of materia medica and therapeutics; W. J. Conklin, A. M., M. D. (Dayton, Ohio), professor of diseases of children; Otto Frankenberg, M. D., professor of pathological anatomy; Alexander Dunlap, M. D. (Springfield, Ohio), professor of the surgical diseases of women; D. Tod Gilliam, M. D., professor of physiology; Davis Halderman, M. D., professor of surgical anatomy; Hon. J. W. Baldwin, A. M., professor of medical jurisprudence; George H. Fox, M. D. (New York city), clinical professor of dermatology; Thomas R. Pooley, M. D. (New York city), clinical professor of opthalmology and otology; T. C. Hoover, M. D., lecturer on operative surgery; Curtis C. Howard, A. B., lecturer on chemistry and toxicology; William H. Drury, M. D., clinical lecturer; A. M. Bleile, M. D., lecturer of physiology; E. C. Brush, M. D., demonstrator of anatomy. Those of the faculty whose residence is not given are residents of the city.

COLUMBUS MEDICAL COLLEGE.

This school of medicine, established in 1875, is the youngest medical college in the State. The high standing of its incorporators, however, gives the fullest assurance of the thoroughness and stability of the institution. Prominent in their several spheres of public life, their names are in themselves no mean endowment. The incorporators were J. W. Hamilton, M. D., D. Halderman, M. D., W. B. Hawkes, M. D., D. N. Kinsman, M. D., Hon. M. A. Daugherty, Francis C. Sessions, esq., and J. F. Baldwin, M. D. One hundred and forty-three students were in attendance at the last session (1878–9), making this school, though so recently established, rank second in the State, in point of numbers. Its location in the very heart of the city, and center of the street railway system (thus placing every part of the city within easy reach), may be named as one among its many advantages. The building in which the college is located, on the corner of High and Long streets, is one of the most imposing structures in the city; and though not originally designed for this purpose, its ample space has been so modified and arranged, as to leave nothing to be desired. The museum is closely connected with both the amphitheater and the general lecture-room. It is provided with carefully arranged cases; is well lighted, and will be kept constantly heated, thus rendering the extensive pathological collection of Professor Hamilton, fully available for the purposes of instruction. The course of instruction consists of didactic and clinical lectures, with daily examination in each department. The following list contains the names of the faculty and of their respective departments: J. W. Hamilton, A. M., M. D., professor of surgery, clinical surgery, and clinical opthalmology; H. C. Pearce, A. M., M. D., professor of obstetrics; D. N. Kinsman, A. M., M. D., professor of the theory and practice of medicine, and dean of faculty; Theo. Sterling, A. M., M. D., professor of chemistry and toxicology; E. H. Hyatt, A. M., M. D., professor of materia medica and therapeutics; J. F. Baldwin, A. M., M. D., professor of anatomy, and secretary of faculty; Howard E. Jones, A. M., M. D., professor of physiology; M. C. Cuykendall, M. D., professor of medical and surgical diseases of women; J. M. Dunham, M. D., professor of diseases of children; E. W. Larimore, M. D., lecturer adjunct on minor surgery; N. R. Coleman, M. D., lecturer on physical diagnosis, and the anatomy of the heart and lungs; Josiah Medbery, A. B., M. D., demonstrator of anatomy. The following are the names of the present board of trustees: W. E. Moore, D. D., president; Hon. M. A. Daugherty, W. B. Hawkes, M. D., J. W. Hamilton, M. D., H. C. Pearce, M. D., F. C. Sessions, esq., and E. H. Hyatt, M. D. With the view of maintaining cordial relations with the profession throughout the State, and also, of giving opportunity for the most searching scrutiny of the work done in the college, and for excluding unworthy candidates, a board of eighteen censors has been selected by the faculty, from the State at large, who are duly notified, and requested to be present, to witness examinations and join the faculty in passing candidates.

COLUMBUS ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

This medical society was organized November 6, 1874. Its objects, as set forth in the second article of its constitution, are: first, the cultivation and advancement of medical science and literature, and the elevation of the standard of the profession; secondly, the maintenance of union, harmony and good government among its members, thereby promoting the character, interests, honor, and usefulness of the profession; and, thirdly, the association of its members for mutual recognition and fellowship. Its membership is of three kinds: active, honorary, and corresponding members. Active members are regular practitioners of medicine and surgery in Franklin county; honorary members are regular physicians in Franklin county, who have ceased to be actual practitioners; and corresponding members are those belonging to the regular profession, outside of the county. The present officers of the society are as follows: Dr. N. S. Townshend, president; Dr. G. S. Stein, vice-president; Dr. J. C. Croesen, treasurer; Dr. H. G. Landis, secretary. The present members of the academy are the following: Doctors T. J. Farwell, O. Frankenberg, E. B. Fullerton, T. C. Hoover, C. P. Landon, Starling Loving, G. W. Mavis, Alex. Neil, F. Gorman, J. H. Pooley, C. Rashil, S. H. Steward, W. Trevitt, P. M. Wagenhals, J. M. Wheaton, G. M. White, J. B. Sensenig, M. D. Brock, R. Gundry, D. A. Morse, of Dayton insane hospital, C. B. White, N. R. Coleman, T. W. Taylor, of Grove City, S. Scott Turner, A. M. Bleile, W. A. Wilson, and H. B. Munnemaker, of Philadelphia Insane hospital.

THE COLUMBUS PATHOLOGICAL SOCIETY

was organized September 4, 1876. Its declared objects are the same as those of the Academy of Medicine, and its three classes of members are the same. The following are the present officers: Dr. J. B. Thompson, president; Dr. Norman Gay, vice-president; Dr. H. Hendrixson, secretary. The following are the present members of the society: Drs. J. F. Baldwin, J. J. Beckman, N. R. Coleman, Albert Cooper, R. M. Denig, W. H. Drury, J. M. Dunham, W. D. Gilliam, Z. F. Guerin, Davis Halderman, D. N. Kinsman, N. C. Reed, J. B. Schueller, Rudolph Wirth, C. F. Emmich, T. W. Jones, P. F. Beverly, Henry Miller, H. L. Cheeny, P. E. Blesch, and E. S. Brush. The following are honorary members: Dr. H. Culbertson, of Zanesville; Drs. G. W. Maris and William Trevitt, of Columbus, and Dr. N. S. Townsend, professor in the State university. Although the object of these societies, in the main, is individual benefit, and the advancement of the profession, yet they have sometimes exerted an influence in favor of public sanitary improvements, analagous to that exerted by the board of trade in behalf of important business improvements. Thus, we are informed, it was largely owing to their action, that a board of health was appointed by the municipal authorities, and that a new city prison has been built, partly as a sanitary measure. These two societies were originally one, and several conferences have recently been held, with a view to their reunion into one body. It would seem to be "a consummation devoutly to be wished," but all speculation in regard to it would be prophecy, and not history.

THE HOMŒOPATHISTS.

The practitioners of this school of medicine have never formed among themselves any medical association. We can not, therefore, record their names in any such relation, but, as the list is not very extended, we will give it entire, as follows: Drs. E. C. Beckwith, R. D. Connell, J. H. Coulter, J. R. Flowers, D. R. Kinsell; C. M. Savage, C. C. White, F. S. Adams, and —— Carpenter.

NORTH COLUMBUS.

The little village, with this name, up in Clinton township, which Columbus (like a toad attacking a fly) thrust out its long tongue and gobbled up, in 1871, is thus spoken of in Mr. Martin's history of Franklin county:

> "In 1852, Messrs. Solomon and George W. Beers laid out some lots on the road side, between Clintonville and Columbus, and had their plat recorded, and named the place 'North Columbus,' in which some considerable improvements have been made."

This is the only historical allusion we have ever seen to this aspiring little hamlet by the "road side."

The two brothers, named above, as proprietors of the village, were sons of David Beers, who came into Clinton township, from Pennsylvania, early in the present century. He purchased a large farm, including the land laid out in this village plat, of the Simmons heirs, their father having bought it of the original patentee, Jonathan Dayton, in 1807. The surveyor by whom the village was laid out, was Samuel Kinnear, who came to Clinton township from Pickaway county, about the year 1831. He was the brother of Judge David Kinnear, who first laid out the town of Circleville, and was for a long time a private surveyor in the employ of General Duncan McArthur, of Chillicothe.

Although the plat was recorded, the village never was incorporated. When first laid out, it contained only five or six families. It had increased, when taken into the corporation of Columbus, to thirty or forty. It is claimed that a large majority of them were opposed to annexation; and the same complaint is prevalent, as in the case of Franklinton, that the petition, praying to be taken in, was not fairly obtained, and that the act of the city council, based upon it, was an act of usurpation. But that the same effect has been realized, as in Franklinton, all admit. The population has just about doubled in eight years, and the demand for houses is much greater than the supply. A flourishing Congregational church was organized about five years ago. There is one grocery, and one store for dry goods and groceries combined, kept by Mrs. Ramlow and two sons, who are doing a very flourishing business.

There is one kind of business, however, which is sadly overdone. The place contains five drinking saloons! But it is claimed that they are patronized principally from outside of the village. A large majority of the resident young men are united in the support of the village church.

The factory of the Columbus Sewer Pipe company, one of the largest in the country, is located here, but just beyond the corporation limits.

OPENING OF THE CIVIL WAR.

A record of the alacrity and zeal with which the capital city of Ohio ranged herself among the foremost of the friends of the national government (a record so honorable to her citizens), should make a prominent chapter in any publication claiming the responsible name of a history of Columbus. Not that she differed, in this respect, from her sister cities of the State, and of other States; but that, should a like peril again threaten the Union, priceless now, surely, since this later offering of the noblest of myriads of households upon the altar of Liberty, her example may stand, a warning and rebuke, if need be, to traitors and treason; or, better still, the source from which inspiration shall be drawn to nerve the hearts of worthy sons, to emulate the deeds of noble sires.

The wave of mingled grief and indignation which was produced by the announcement, that the Nation's flag had been fired upon by fratricidal hands, inundated the entire loyal portion of the land; and everywhere but one feeling was aroused. From the farthest hamlet, as well as from the crowded mart and the centres of legislative and executive authority, came the cry of a great people—"The union must be saved!" To say that the city of Columbus made everything subservient to the one grand cause, the preservation of the government, is saying only what might be said of every corporate community in the broad land; and yet each history has its local interest its local actors; and these are the rightful inheritance of the children's children, not only to the third and fourth generation, but to all coming time.

Upon the receipt of the news of the fall of Sumter, an immense meeting of citizens was held at Armory hall on the evening of April 17, 1861. Judge Joseph B. Swan was made president, and a large number of prominent citizens were made vice-presidents. Patriotic speeches were made by judges Swan, Warden, and Rankin, General Joseph H. Geiger, and Samuel Galloway. A series of resolutions, prepared and submitted by a committee appointed by the meeting, were unanimously adopted. These resolutions called upon the citizens of Ohio, ignoring all past political differences, to yield a hearty and prompt support to the National government, in its efforts to put down (short words suffice when grave exigencies confront) treason and rebellion; affirming that to accomplish this end, no necessary sacrifice of men or money could be too great; that, if need be, the members of the meeting would pledge their lives, their fortures, and their sacred honor, to maintain the constituttion, enforce the laws, and restore the Union to its original integrity; and that the meeting pointed with pride to our own citizen soldiers, who had already tendered their services to the government. Thus, in the sacred formula of the fathers, did they consecrate themselves to the cause of American liberty. In obedience to a voluntary (or more properly speaking, an involuntary) rush to arms, rather than in response to the call for men, troops began to arrive in the city. Goodale park was selected as a military camp, called Camp Jackson, and used for the rendezvous, organization, and equipment of regiments. All troops north of Hamilton county, and south of the Reserve were to rendezvous at Camp Jackson. The quiet park, so lately the resort of groups of children feeding the fishes in the pond, or watching the frolicking of the white rabbits; or of nurses trundling their mimic phætons through the inviting shades, was suddenly transformed into a place of hurried preparation for the stern realities of war. White tents gleaming through the tender spring foliage; large wooden buildings, hastily erected, for the use of the gathering soldiers; heavily laden wagons continually going and coming; volunteers constantly arriving, and regiments departing; inspiring strains of martial music borne on every breeze; these were the sights and sounds which brought home to the hearts of our people a realization of the truth, that a great struggle had been commenced, and that the sacrifice which had been pledged, would be required at our hands.

Two days after the meeting just described, the First and Second regiments of Ohio volunteer infantry left Camp Jackson for Washington, April 19, 1861. In the Second regiment were two Columbus companies--the Videttes, Captain Thrall; and the Fencibles, Captain J. H. Riley. In the Third regiment, formed at Camp Jackson April 24th, were the following Columbus companies: A, Governor's guards, Captain I. H. Morrow; B, Governor's guards, Captain Wing; Columbus Stuben guards, Captain Schneider; Montgomery guards, Captain C. Turney. Captain Morrow was elected colonel of the Third regiment, five companies of which, including companies A and B, Governor's guards, left Camp Jackson on the twenty-ninth of April, for Camp Dennison, near Cincinnati. The Montgomery guards left a few days afterward, and the Stuben guards on the eighth of May, for the same destination. An ordinance was passed by the city, April twenty-seventh, appropriating twenty thousand dollars for the relief of the families of the volunteers, residents of the city. The relief committee, having control of this fund, consisted of Messrs. L. L. Smith, A. B. Buttles, A. O. Blair, Isaac Eberley, and J. H. Stauring. In the official list, published on the sixth of May, 1861, of the surgeons and surgeons' mates, appointed to the thirteen Ohio regiments called into the service, on the president's first requisiton, are the names of the following resident physicians of Columbus: Dr. W. L. McMillen, surgeon to the First regiment; Dr. Starling Loving, surgeon to the Sixth regiment; Dr. C. E. Boyle, surgeon to the Tenth, and subsequently to the Ninth regiment; and Dr. H. Z. Gill, surgeon's mate to the Eleventh regiment. Subsequently, when the nine additional regiments were organized, Dr. W. H. Denig was appointed surgeon's mate to the Fifteenth, and Dr. C. E. Denig, to the Sixteenth regiment. Captain C. C. Walcutt's Columbus company, which had been recruiting for some weeks at Camp Jackson, was reported, on the twenty-first of May, as assigned to the Twenty-third regiment, on an enlistment of three years. About the first of June the last recruits had joined the companies to which they were assigned, and the park was at length restored to the uses of peace. But these few discursive facts connected with the opening of the war are only the faintest outlines of histories that must remain unwritten, for who would lift the veil that conceals a sorrow so sacred as that of those who saw their young heroes go forth, but waited in vain for their return.

A camp, on a more extensive scale, was soon organized on the National road, four or five miles west of the city. Though called, at first, Camp Jackson, the name was soon changed to Camp Chase, in honor of Salmon P. Chase, ex-governor of Ohio, and then secretary of the United States treasury. From a camp for the rendezvous, organization, and drill of troops, it became, as the war progressed, the quarters for paroled prisoners of war, and the site for a huge prison, for the confinement of rebel prisoners. This camp lasted as long as the war lasted.

A second camp, called Camp Thomas, was established three or four miles north of the city. At first, it was used as the rendezvous of Col. H. B. Carrington's regiment, Eighteenth United States infantry, but soon became a camp for general war purposes.

At a later stage of the war [in 1863] Tod barracks, named in honor of Governor Tod, were built on the east side of High street, north of the Union depot. They were intended for the accommodation of recruits, and of sick, disabled, and other soldiers, and ultimately became the place where regiments and other military organizations were disbanded and paid off. The parade and drill ground inside the enclosure at Tod barracks, was four hundred and twenty-five feet long by two hundred and sixty-two feet wide.

REJOICINGS AT THE PROSPECT OF PEACE, CHANGED TO REJOICINGS FOR THE RETURN OF PEACE.

So cheering was considered the prospect of ultimate success to the armies of the Union, in the spring of 1865, that Governor Brough, by proclamation, set apart Friday, April 14, the anniversary of the fall of Fort Sumter, as a day of thanksgiving. A few hours after this official recognition of the dawn of peace had quickened the pulses of those who waited and prayed for its return, the city was aroused by a sudden peal of joy-bells. Soon, rockets traversed the sky, and bon-fires blazed in all directions. Actuated by one impulse, excited throngs gathered in the State house square. There it was soon learned that the sympathetic wires had flashed across the continent, "Lee has surrendered." The shouts of the people rang out on the midnight air, and the booming artillery ratified the glad news. Houses were illuminated, speeches made, and songs and music filled the remaining hours of the night—for who would sleep when the white-winged dove of peace brooded again over the city and the nation? The clangor of bells, and the roar of cannon, awoke the slumbering city early on the morning of Friday, the 14th. At the appointed hour, the churches were thronged; the "joyful sound of the gospel of peace" was heard, and anthems of praise ascended, like incense, before the throne of heaven. In the afternoon, throngs of citizens, from town and country, were addressed from the east front of the capitol, by George M. Parsons, of this city, John Sherman, Dr. Dorsey, and Samuel Galloway. The poems, "Sheridan's Ride," and "Where's Sherman?" were read by Evelyn Evans, the actor. The afternoon exercises were enlivened by the fine music of the Tod barracks band. At six o'clock in the evening, an artillery salute, and the sound of merry bells, announced that thanksgiving day was drawing to a close. The coming on of nightfall, however, presented a grand and beautiful spectacle. Nearly the whole city was in a blaze of light; not only were houses illuminated, but lights and Chinese lanterns shone from trees, and from every conceivable point of suspension. Roman candles, transparencies, and jets of gas, flashed and gleamed on every side. Nothing could exceed, in beauty and sublimity, the circle of light surrounding the dome of the State house. Crowning this grand illumination, came the torch-light procession, headed by the band of the Eighty-eighth Ohio regiment, preceding the orators of the evening, the State officials, the general and staff officers of the army, the city council, and both branches of the State legislature, in carriages. Then followed the One Hundred and Thirty-third regiment, National guards, with the permanent garrison at Tod barracks, and the paroled forces; the veteran reserve corps, discharged soldiers, the fire department, with gaily decorated carriage and truck, and a deputation of colored citizens bringing up the rear. The procession was nearly a mile in length, and during its march through the principal streets, cheer after cheer greeted its appearance. Arrived at the State house, speeches were made by Rev. A. G. Byers, S. S. Hencle, Colonel Granville Moody, and J. H. Geiger. A volley of musketry, and exultant strains of music, closed the public exercises of this most enthusiastic and heartfelt thanksgiving for the glorious victory won by the arms of the Republic.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S OBSEQUIES.

The gloom that shut down upon the country, like a total eclipse at noon-day, on that memorable morning which followed a day of such exultant rejoicing, to many of us is still present. It requires no effort of the memory to live over again, that sinking apprehension everywhere felt, that the Nation had received a blow from which she was staggering in that darkness, which, like a pall, seemed to envelop us. But the child born on the fifteenth of April, 1865, now a youth, contending for college honors, should, as an antidote to the possible influence of the lawless ambitions of the classic heroes of Greece and Rome, read the strong language of abhorrence and reprobation, in which the statesmen and patriots of his own republic execrate a crime which no sickly sentimentalism can disguise.

The news of President Lincoln's assassination reached Columbus at an early hour on Saturday morning, April 15, 1865. How suddenly was the festive garb of yesterday changed for the emblems of mourning! Everywhere were seen the tokens of a great public calamity. Places of business, private houses, and public buildings were draped in mourning, and flags were displayed at half-mast. The gloom and dreariness of the day seemed to deepen the sad solemnity of the occasion. On Sunday, the churches were arrayed in mourning, and the services corresponded to these outward symbols of sorrow. Military bands performed solemn dirges, and funeral hymns were sung by full choirs. The city council met at five P. M., on Sunday, pursuant to an official call. A committee of nine was appointed to prepare resolutions expressive of the sentiments of the council. The committee consisted of Messrs. Douty, Donaldson, Graham, Thompson, Reinhard, Jaeger, Ross, Miller, and Naghten. Mr. Douty, from the committee, reported a preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, and which set forth in eloquent and forcible language the abhorrence of the council for the recent heinous crime committed in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, the president of the United States—deprecating the inauguration in this country of that crime which had cursed and blighted other lands—expressing their high appreciation of the character of the chief magistrate, thus removed from a position, in which the most sanguine hopes had been raised of a speedy pacification of the country through the powerful influence of his patriotism—and affirming also, that "in this most painful hour of a nation's distress, it is most meet and proper that all official bodies, and all citizens, should solemnly express their loathing of the deeds of murder that have caused this distress; that they should deter, by their unanimity, a repetition of such deeds, and should manifest clearly to the world that the people of these States are not, and do not mean to be, involved in the horrors of anarchy, and that they will never give up the blessings of law, order, and free government."

A general meeting of the citizens of Columbus was held at the City hall, on Tuesday, April 19th. A series of resolutions were adopted, denouncing, in strong language, the infamous crime that had been committed at the national capital, eulogizing the late president, and recommending the closing of places of business in the city during the funeral at Washington, on the succeeding day. A committee of nine, consisting of W. G. Deshler, David S. Gray, J. E. St. Clair, W. Failing, Isaac Eberly, Rev. H. Mees, L. Kilbourne, C. P. L. Butler, and Dr. S. Loving, were appointed to co-operate with the city council committee in regard to the reception of the remains of the late president. The several lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, adopted resolutions, expressing profound regret at the recent great national calamity, and ordering that the hall of the several lodges and encampments in this city be suitably draped in mourning for a period of thirty days. Arrangements were made by the jointaction of these committees for a military and civic procession, for a funeral oration, and other ceremonies at the capitol, on the 29th of April, when, as had been announced, the funeral train with the remains of the president, would arrive at Columbus at half-past seven o'clock in the morning. Twenty-two leading citizens were selected to act as pall-bearers. On the morning of the day appointed, the funeral train arrived amid the tolling of muffled bells. Passing forward from the Union depot, the train stopped so that the funeral-car lay across High street. An immense throng had assembled at the depot. Bands of music played solemn dirges while the coffin was taken from the car by veteran reserves and placed in the hearse. The procession was grand and impressive. The hearse was the great center of attraction. It was seventeen feet long, eight and a half wide, and eleven and a half feet high. The main platform was four feet from the ground. On this rested a dais for the coffin, over which was a canopy resembling a Chinese pagoda in shape. Black cloth, festooned, depended from the platform, fringed with silver lace, and ornamented with tassels of black silk. Surrouning the cornice of the canopy were thirty-six silver stars, and on the apex and the four corners were heavy black plumes. On each side of the dais was the word "Lincoln," in silver letters. The hearse was drawn by six white horses with housings of black, edged with silver fringe. The horses' heads were surmounted with large black plumes, and each was led by a groom dressed in black. The coffin lay on the dais in the hearse in full view of the people who thronged every window, balcony, and house-top, as well as every inch of sidewalk on each side of High street.

The procession moved through some of the principal streets to the west front of the capitol. An arch over the western entrance to Capitol square bore the inscription, "Ohio mourns." The columns at the west front and the interior of the capitol were heavily draped; and various devices and inscriptions testified the public sorrow. The procession entered the capitol grounds through the western gateway, and proceeded to the rotunda, which, from the emblems of mourning on every hand, seemed for the time transformed into a gorgeous tomb. On a platform, ascended by five steps, was the dais, beautifully ornamented and festooned, on which the coffin was placed on a bed of white roses, immortelles, and orange blossoms.

Prayer was offered in the rotunda, by the Rev. C. E. Felton, and the people walked without noise upon a carpet to the catafalque, passing by twos on each side of the coffin, viewing the remains and passing out—those on the right at the south, and those on the left turning to the north. It was found, by actual count, that over eight thousand persons passed in and out every hour, from half-past nine till four o'clock, so that, making all due allowances, it is estimated that the remains were viewed that day by over fifty thousand people. In the afternoon a funeral oration was delivered by Job Stevenson, then of Chillicothe, before a large concourse of people, gathered at the east terrace of the capitol. At six o'clock in the evening, the doors of the capitol were closed, the procession was reformed, a national salute was fired, and the remains of President Lincoln were borne away and transferred to the funeral car at the depot of the Indiana Central railway, for transportation to Indianapolis, the capital of Indiana.

GENERAL GRANT'S RECEPTION.

America's most renowned military chieftain, who has just now [October, 1879] returned from a continuous ovation, encircling the globe; and whose return has aroused again, in the hearts of his grateful countrymen, the old enthusiasm of 1865, received one of his earliest and most flattering ovations, after the close of the war, in the city of Columbus. On the evening of September 18, 1865, the city council, on motion of Mr. Donaldson, appointed a committee, consisting of Mayor James G. Bull, G. Douty, president of the council, George M. Parsons, A. G. Thurman, Joseph R. Swan, Peter Ambos, and Thomas Lough, to whom was assigned the duty of extending to U. S. Grant, then lieutenant-general of the United States army, an invitation to visit Ohio, his native State, and accept the hospitalities of its capital. Messrs. Buttles, Donaldson, Ross, Stauring, and Patterson, were also appointed a committee to arrange for his reception, should he accept the invitation. The invitation being accepted, Tuesday, the third of October, was appointed for the reception. By noon of that day, the State house yard and the streets of the city were thronged with expectant people. At one o'clock, the cannon announced the general's arrival. From the depot, an immense procession moved to the west front of the capitol, where a novel and interesting spectacle was presented. The whole western terrace, as well as the capitol steps, was crowded with pupils from the public schools, attended by their teachers, and displaying flags and bouquets. Through this brilliant scene, the procession passed into the State house, where the general had a formal reception in the governor's room. He was then conducted back to the west front of the capitol, and introduced to the assembled multitude by Mayor Bull, in a graceful and appropriate address. The general replied, expressing thanks for his warm reception, but declining any attempt at making a speech. He then re-entered the State house, amid deafening cheers, and held a levee in the rotunda, the people passing him in double column, many of them taking him by the hand. After this ceremony, he and his staff were escorted to the asylums for the blind and for the deaf and dumb. At four o'clock, a banquet was given to General Grant and party at the Neil house. Several hundred citizens were present, including some of the most prominent men of the State. After the banquet, Governor Anderson, in an appropriate speech, introduced the general, who, as usual, made a brief response. Speeches were then made by Governor Tod, Samuel Galloway, and Gen. J. H. Geiger; and the following toast, proposed by General Geiger, was drank standing and in silence: "The memory of the illustrious dead of the war." In the evening, General Grant and party visited the opera house, which was crowded with people, more curious to see him than to witness the play. The same night, the distinguished general took his departure for Pittsburgh.

PRESIDENTIAL RECEPTIONS—THE VISIT OF PRESIDENT HAYES—A CONTRAST.

On the seventeenth of October, 1879, President Hayes and family, on their return from a western tour, paid the capital of Ohio, or rather their old friends and neighbors at the capital, a passing visit. Of course, the chief magistrate of the nation could not be received entirely en famille, and so preparations were made for a becoming reception; of which a leading Columbus paper speaks as "one of the greatest demonstrations ever known in the capital city;" and this language is, doubtless, justified, at least on the principle that "the last is always the best." There was a civic and military procession under the command of Colonel Anderson, of the Columbus barracks. There was an immense throng within the Union depot, and all the space about it was filled with carriages. On the arrival of the train, the military marched into the building, came to a front, and presented arms when the president appeared—his appearance on the rear platform of the car being greeted with repeated cheers from the vast crowd. The reception committee, with distinguished citizens, entered the parlor car, and greeted the president and party. Mayor Collins, in a few well-chosen words, welomed the president to the city:

The public having opened the way, the president, escorted by the committee of reception, and Mrs. Hayes, with a special escort, moved to the carriages. The opening of the reception was very enthusiastic, nor did the enthusiasm abate until the programme of the reception committee had been carried out in every particular. Arrived at the east entrance of the capitol, the military formed a line facing west, and a passage was opened through the immense crowd for the carriages, containing the president, Governor Bishop, Mayor Collins, and the reception committee, to enter the spacious grounds surrounding the capitol building.

As the president, arm-in-arm with Governor Bishop, ascended the east terrace, followed by the mayor and distinguished citizens, the utmost enthusiasm prevailed, and cheer after cheer from the vast concourse, mingled with inspiring strains from the Barracks band. The attendance here was estimated at eight thousand. The terrace, on which about eight thousand persons can stand, was thronged, and the eastern portion of the capitol square was filled with people; while the military and other organizations, with citizens in carriages, filled Third street from State to Broad. After the addresses—that of welcome by Governor Bishop, that in response by the president, and one, in obedience to a call from the crowd, by ex-Governor Dennison—the party returned to their carriages, the procession was reformed, and the president was escorted to the residence of General Mitchell, on east Broad street, whither Mrs. Hayes and son had preceded him, going directly from the depot.

In the evening a reception was held at the governors' portrait gallery, in the State house. But so great had the crowd become, by a general influx from all the surrounding towns, that but a very inconsiderable number of those who aspired to the honor of being presented to President and Mrs. Hayes, were gratified. To allay, as much as possible, the disappointment of the multitude, thus besieging the chief executive, Governor Bishop proposed that, inasmuch as the besiegers were not, in this instance, office-seekers, something should be done for them. And, accordingly, after the hand-shaking had continued nearly two hours in the governor's reception room, the following coup d' etat was successfully executed: The president was injected into the crowd; whether hypodermically or not, we leave to the college of doctors; but if so, it establishes "materialization" beyond a doubt. For our chief magistrate appeared bodily in the midst of the densely packed multitude, ten thousand strong, at the west entrance of the capitol; and since, as he observed, hand-shaking could not be done in detail, or by retail, as some understood him, he offered his hand "wholesale"—and suiting the action to the word, his lifted hand was the signal for a forest of waving hands, which, lifted into the broad band of electric light blazing from the top of the Hayden block, reminded one of the spears evoked by Roderic Dhu. With the hands went up a shout which no doubt would be recognized as Buckeye, in any State in the Union, from Maine to Texas. Thus ended one of the most enthusiastic popular ovations ever paid to a president of the United States.

PRESIDENT MONROE'S VISIT.

"Look on this picture and on this."

In strong, but pleasing, contrast to this last presidential reception, was that which took place in the same capital city, a little more than sixty-two years ago. In the latter part of August, 1817, Martin tells us, President Monroe and suite passed through this county on their return from Detroit, after his northern tour of inspection of the public fortifications, etc. The president and his companions, we are told, traveled on horseback, and were generally escorted from one town to another by the military, or by distinguished citizens. Now, we have nothing to say against railroads, for the good of the many, or palace cars for the convenience of the few, but for downright stateliness, commend us to a troop of mounted cavaliers, with "old-fashioned three-cornered hats," and well-bronzed faces, dashing through the country on a "canter," as the historian describes President Monroe's cavalcade to have ridden. In accordance with the prevailing custom, the citizens of Columbus sent the Franklin dragoons, under Captain Vance, the first of the six captains of that renowned troop, to meet the presidential party at Worthington and escort them to the capital, where suitable arrangements had been made to receive the distinguished guests. Then, as now, there was a reception in the State house, and then as now, appropriate speeches were made—that of welcome by the Hon. Hiram M. Currey, then treasurer of State. President Monroe, in his reply, complimented the infant city and its enterprising and hospitable inhabitants. We are not informed as to the precise moment of the arrival or departure or this knightly band, but presume, as the roads on which they traveled were not confined even to a double track, and were, therefore, free from all danger of collisions, the party owed no obligations to "time tables;" or, if one existed, it was, probably, carried in the portmanteau of the fastest rider. When all is said, however, Columbus, probably, has never received a more courtly company than that which rode through her streets under military escort, in August, 1817. Many, and eloquent, have been the laments over the decline of chivalry. But, if there is consolation in knowing the cause of a calamity, have we not, in the etymology of the word, all the alleviation of which the case admits? Man no longer curbs and controls that noble animal, without which even the name of chivalry would never have been known; whose neck is clothed with the thunder, and which smelleth the battle afar off; but, sitting upon silken cushions, he resigns himself to the steed that annihilates space and—sentiment; and, therefore, alas, has this thing come upon us.

MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

In 1872, the number of manufacturing establishments in Columbus (as we foot up from Studer) amounted to two hundred and fifty-four; the capital invested was estimated at five million and eighty thousand dollars; the annual product, at nine million, three hundred and eighty-eight thousand dollars; and the number of hands employed, at four thousand six hundred and sirty-four. Several of these establishments were not exclusively devoted to manufactures, but were engaged also in buying and selling wares produced elsewhere. Some allowance, too, must doubtless he made for estimates given in round numbers—the tendency being, in such cases, to overstate, rather than understate, the facts. But after making all allowance that can justly be claimed on these accounts, enough will remain to establish the fact that few, if any, citizens, west of the Allegheny mountains, can give a better showing of manufactures, for a population of thirty-five thousand—which was the estimated number at the close of 1872. Since that time the country has passed through a serious financial revulsion, from the effect of which it is just beginning to recover.

During the period mentioned, several manufacturing establishments here have been closed; and all have, more or less, fallen off, in the amount of their products and the number of hands employed. The influence of returing prosperity has been very generally felt; although the manufacturers of machinery still complain, that the wave of prosperity which has floated the furnaces and rolling mills into fair sailing, has not yet lifted them from the shallows in which they have been laboring for years past. It is estimated that the population of the city, now near the close of 1879, is about fifty thousand—an increase of fifteen thousand since 1872; but it is certain that the annual amount of manufactures has not increased in any such ratio, since the last mentioned date—even if it has increased at all.

As we have neither time nor space to insert in our history the names and statistics of all the manufacturing establishments in the city, we took the advice of a gentleman well acquainted with this industry, in all its branches, as to the individuals, firms or companies, most worthy of mention. He gave us the names of about ninety; and to all of them (partlyin person, and partly through the post-office) we presented circulars containing blanks for the name of the business, date of establishment, first proprietor, present ditto, amount invested, annual product, number of hands employed; together with blank space for remarks. Greatly to our surprise and regret, considerably less than half of these circulars were returned. Those that were, however, may suffice to give a fair idea of the manufacturing interests of Columbus and are, in tact, about all that we can find room for. In giving them place, we shall take no pains to observe the order of the time in which the several concerns were established, nor to classify them according to the different kinds of business. We begin with established in 1875, for the manufacture of sewer pipe, terra cotta work and fire brick. Their invested capital is sixty thousand dollars; the annual product of their business is fifty thousand dollars, and the number of hands employed, forty. G. G. Collins is president of the company; H. Converse, the secretary, and George J. Atkinson, the treasurer. Their work is sold mostly in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, though large quantities are taken to other States. Terra cotta vases, fountains, etc., are extensively manufactured; though sewer pipe is their principal product. Some of their vases are beautiful reproductions of antique models.

THE WASSALL FIRE CLAY CO.,

THE COLUMBUS SEWER PIPE CO.

was established in 1866. The capital stock of the company is sixty thousand dollars; the annual product of their business amonnts to one hundred thousand dollars, and the number of hands employed is thirty-five. The president of the company, and general manager of the business is Theo. Rhodes, and the stockholders are among the most prominent citizens of Columbus. They manufacture pipe of superior quality, from clay taken from their own grounds, just outside the city limits in North Columbus, where their factory is situated. Their wares are shipped largely, east and west, and their trade is rapidly increasing. They handle all kinds of fire-clay goods.

THE IRON FENCE MANUFACTORY of M. and D. Krumm was established thirty years ago, by Martin Krumm, sr. Their invested capital is ten thousand dollars, and the value of their annual product just about twice that amount. They employ ten hands. Their specialty is wrought iron fencing for public enclosures. They also manufacture the patent wrought iron yielding post, and the patent forged spear picket.

THE FURNITURE HOUSE OF HALM, BELLOWS AND BUTLER

was first established in 1844, under the firm name of Halm & Stiles. After several partnership changes, the present name was adopted, February 1, 1867. Their workshops are on the bank of the canal at the foot of South street, where they employ one hundred and sixty hands in the manufacture of a full line of furniture and chairs. From these shops they turn out, every year, an amount of work averaging one hundred and sixty thousand dollars in value. They also purchase, for sale, from other quarters, goods to the amount of fifteen thousand dollars a year.

Michael Halm, who has stood at the helm of this staunch business ship, through all her prosperous voyage of so many years, first came to Columbus in March, 1842. Like other old sailors, he could doubtless spin us many a yarn about the storms and calms he has encountered, and the threatening breakers through which he has steered his gallant craft in safety; and we regret that we have not room for some of them here. But we can only wish him bon voyage for the remainder of his eventful trip.

THE COLUMBUS BOLT WORKS

were established, as a joint stock concern, in 1873. Alfred Thomas is the president of the company, F. G. Waddell, Secretary; and H. A. Lanman, treasurer. Their invested capital is forty thousand dollars, the annual product of their business eighty thousand dollars, and the number of hands employed eighty-seven. Their specialty is the manufacture of carriage and fine bolts of Norway and Swedes iron; but they also make bolts of every description, and drop forgings generally. Their work is sold in nearly every State of the Union.

JACOB SCHAEFFING AND BROTHER'S FILE WORKS, located on the corner of Chestnut and Water streets, were established in 1865. They manufacture files and rasps of every description of the best double-refined cast-steel, which are sold in all the surrounding States. They employ twenty skilled workmen, and turned out, last year, an amount of work valued at twelve thousand dollars—with an increasing business.

THE TRUNK MANUFACTORY

of J. A. Vandegriff, now located at 114, north High street, was originally established in 1857. He employs twenty-two hands, and, with a capital of seven thousand dollars, turns out an annual product of thirty-one thousand dollars. He also manufactures all kinds of willow ware. His customers, outside of Ohio, are mostly in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Indiana.

THE OHIO FURNITURE COMPANY

is the successor of Ford, Stage & Co., who established the business in 1862. Their invested capital is one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and the annual product of the business is set down at the same figure. The president of the company is George Gere, and the secretary and treasurer is D. E. Phillips. They do a wholesale business in all parts of the country, and are, also, one of the leading retail houses in Ohio. Their factory is located on west Mound street.

THE COLUMBUS STEAM PUMP WORKS were established, in 1866, by Royce & Pulling, who employ a capital of ten thousand dollars, and from fifteen to twenty-five hands, in producing an amount of work every year, varying in value from twenty-five thousand to thirty-five thousand dollars. They manufacture Carrer's patent force pump, railroad steam pumps, steam engines, and machinery of all kinds.

L. BUCHSIEB AND SON'S TANNERY,

located on north Front street, was established in 1844. Their capital is eight thousand dollars, and, with nine men, they succeed in turning out an annual product of sixteen thousand dollars. The elder Buchsieb was born in 1818, in Germany, where he learned his trade; he came to this country in 1842.

THE BOOT AND SHOE HOUSE OF MILLERS AND HUSTON, manufacturers and wholesale dealers, was established in 1874. With a capital of one hundred and eighty thousand dollars, and the labor of thirty hands, they transact a business amounting to about three hundred thousand dollars. They expect to establish a branch house in Pittsburgh, January 1, 1880.

THE DOOR, SASH, AND LUMBER COMPANY, of Columbus, was established, in 1871, with a capital of eighty thousand dollars, employing fifty men—their annual product is one hundred thousand dollars. William A. Platt is the president of the company, and Frank Hickok the secretary and treasurer.

IDE AND WILLSON,

manufacturers and wholesale dealers in boots and shoes, continue the business first established by Ide, Willson, & Claypoole, in 1864. Their capital is now one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and their trade is extended over West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana.

THE CAR AND CAR-WHEEL WORKS

of John L. Gill (who also manufactures plows, stoves, etc.) was established in 1826—being the oldest iron manufacturing establishment in the city. We are sorry that we cannot gratify the curiosity of the public by letting them know how much capital is invested in this business (perhaps Mr. Gill does not know, himself); but we shall cause them to "make great eyes" when we tell them that it brings in an annual product, amounting to the snug little sum of two millions of dollars. The number of hands employed is now four hundred and fifty; and, in forty years, Mr. Gill has not had less than fifty names on his pay role. As a business man Mr. Gill is one of the oldest, if not the very oldest, in Columbus. He was the first who brought coal to the city. The first canal boat that arrived was freighted for him. He was the first commission merchant here, and the first to make coke. The benefits which the people of Columbus have derived from his various enterprises, during the last half century, are neither few nor small. But we fear he will have to look to his laurels, as a public benefactor, if the story gets abroad (which he tells himself) that the first rats that made their appearance here, came on the above named canal boat.

THE TANNERY OF G. A. SCHANWECKER, which has just been established on Friend street, near the canal, will doubtless prove one of the most important establishments of the kind in the State. The capital already invested amounts to about fifty thousand dollars, and the eighty vats have a capacity of two hundred hides per day. Mr. Schanwecker is from Loudonville, Ohio.

THE OLD FLOURING MILL,

built by William S. Sullivant, on the Scioto, just above Franklinton, in 1819, is now owned by S. S. Rickly, It seems to be doing a pretty good business in its old age—the property being estimated at twenty thousand dollars, and grinding out an annual product of twenty-five thousand dollars. From three to five hands do the work.

THE BLAST FURNACE OF THE FRANKLIN IRON COMPANY

"went into blast" in 1873, with a capital (including real estate) of one hundred and forty thousand dollars. It has a capacity of fifty tons a day; and, when in operation, employ fifty hands a day. It has been lying idle since June, 1874—which is a great pity; as it is well equipped and well located for business, just beyond the city limits, in Marion township.

THE MARBLE FACTORY

of Robey & Williams was established in 1848. Its present capital is fifteen thousand dollars; annual product, thirty-five thousand dollars; and number of hands employed, fifteen. All kinds of elegant tomb-stones and monuments are furnished at this establishment. Their marble and granite are procured from the best quarries in America and Europe; and all the work, except that of the turning-lathe, is done in their shop, at 179 north High street.

THE SPRING WAGON WORKS of William Huston were established in 1878, with a capital of thirty thousand dollars; and annual product of one hundred thousand dollars; and eighty-four hands to produce it, make up the creditable record of this establishment.

E. AND H. F. BOOTH'S CARRIAGE FACTORY was established by Booth & Minor, in 1841. The original partnership continued four or five years, when Mr. Minor retired, and Henry F. was taken in as partner by his elder brother Ezra. This gentleman, who may be called the pioneer carriage-maker of Columbus, was born in Mount Washington, Massachusetts April 16, 1814 When he was about two years old his parents moved to Columbus, where his father, Joseph Booth, who was an excellent mechanic, followed the trade of carpenter and joiner until his death, by the prevailing malarila fever, in 1825. Ezra was then apprenticed to a carriage-maker by the name of Robert Cutler, who had a large establishment, mainly devoted to the building of stages—an occupation which, like Othello's, has been "gone" in Columbus, for a good many years. The partnership of the two brothers has been very successful. They have forty thousand dollars invested in their business; employ forty men, and turn out an annual product of fifty thousand dollars. They make all varieties of buggies and light carriages, of first-class quality and style of work, and such as to suit the home trade, upon which they mainly rely.

The two brothers have occupied residences on adjoining lots, contiguous to their factory, on the corner of Gay and Third streets, for thirty-five years, each having reared a family of four children.

THE COLUMBUS CABINET COMPANY, engaged in the manufacture of furniture and chairs, was established in the fall of 1861. They employ seventy-five men, who turn out an annual product of seventy thousand dollars, upon a capital of seventy-eight thousand dollars. Henry Loewer is president of the company, L. Donaldson vice-president, and Charles Frank secretary and treasurer. The directors (besides Loewer and Donaldson) are I. S. Beekey, Charles Breyfogle and Henry Schaefer.

THE COLUMBUS BUGGY COMPANY, consisting of G. M. Peters, C. D. Firestone, and O. G. Peters, was established in 1866, under the firm name of Peters, Benns & Co. The amount invested is one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, the annual product of the concern, six hundred thousand dollars, and the number of hands employed about two hundred and twenty-five. The business has grown to its present truly gigantic proportions since 1875.

THE PATTON MANUFACTURING COMPANY

are engaged in the manufacture of enameled, turned, and ground hollow ware. The business was established in 1874 by Brooks and Patton. They employ one hundred and sixty men, and produce annually about two thousand tons of hollow ware.

THE UNITED STATES CARRIAGE COMPANY, consisting of Messrs. Schlechter, Jenkins, and Myers, was formed August 15, 1879. They expect to employ, when fairly started, from fifty to a hundred hands.

JACOB BLEILE AND SON

are associated for the purpose of supplying builders with stone and brick. From 1856 to 1870 they furnished stone only. They have six thousand dollars invested in the business, and employ forty-five hands. They complain that the low prices at present have reduced their profits almost to zero.

W. R. KINNEAR AND COMPANY are engaged in the manufacture of iron cornices, having established themselves in this business in 1878. With fifteen men, and an investment of five thousand dollars, they manage to do a snug little business amounting to twenty thousand dollars.

E. B. GAGER, BROOM-MAKER, at 106 east Town street, is the successor of W. A. Gill, who established the business in 1870. Ten hands, employed upon a capital of five thousand dollars, produce annually twenty thousand dollars.

WM. ARMBRUSTER, MANUFACTURER OF HOSIERY, established himself in business at 184 south High street, in 1873. He employs twenty hands, and produces work to the amount of fifteen thousand dollars a year, with a capital of five thousand dollars.

THE COLUMBUS PICTURE FRAME CO.,

consisting of Perkins and Humphreys, went into business January 10, 1879, and seem to be doing a thriving trade in an occupation which, as a specialty, is quite new in this city.

F. R. WILLSON, PATENTEE AND PROPRIETOR "OF THE SPRING WHIFFLETREE," manufacturers the same at 158 east Gay street, having commenced in the spring of 1879. The invention, besides being of incalculable relief to teams, will diminish, fifty per cent., the breakages of harness, plows, vehicles, etc.

THE CITY FLOURING MILLS

(C. B. Comstock, present proprietor) were built in 1857. They have a capacity of fifty barrels of flour per day.

THE NOVELTY IRON WORKS

were established in 1846, by the present proprietor, L. B. Davis. He has twenty thousand dollars invested, and employs five or six hands the year round. He has experienced dull times and light profits for some time past, but the business is improving. He makes portable engines, and the machinery for the manufacture of brooms, and buys and sells all kinds of machinery, both new and second-hand.

THE COLUMBUS MACHINE CO.

make blowing, stationary and portable engines, steam pumps, boilers and mill-gearing, etc. The business was established in 1849, and the company incorporated in 1854. Its capital stock is one hundred thousand dollars, employing one hundred men. The president of the company is Wm. Monypeny; the secretary is R. B. Collier; the treasurer, I. G. McGuier, and the superintendent, H. F. Ambos. The business is still depressed, but the prospect is brightening. It has a capacity for the employment of four hundred hands.

G. SCHREYER, is a manufacturer of steel wagon skeins, heating stoves and furnaces. The first part of the business (wagon skeins) was established in 1861, and the second part in 1874. The capital invested is about eighteen thousand dollars; the annual product, twenty thousand dollars, and the number of hands employed, from ten to fifteen.

THE TRUNK MANUFACTORY

of John R. Hughs was established in 1849. The capital invested is seven thousand dollars, and this, with seven hands employed, realizes an annual product, amounting to fifteen thousand dollars.

BANKS.

In our notice of the banks of Columbus, we shall have to confine ourselves mainly to a brief history of the State bank, and its Columbus branches; together with a mention of the national banks, and hasty sketches of a few of the pioneer bankers of the city.

The first bank established in the city was known as the Franklin bank of Columbus. It was incorporated by an act of the legislature, February 23, 1816; and went into operation in the autumn of the same year—thirteen well-known gentlemen being elected as the first directors. It had four presidents, as follows, in the order of their service: Lucas Sullivant, Benjamin Gardiner (with an unfortunate alias), John Kerr, and Gustavus Swan; and the three following cashiers: A. J. Williams, William Neil, and Jonah M. Espy. Its charter expired, by its own limitation, January 1, 1843.

The next bank established here was called the Clinton bank of Columbus—so named, doubtless, in honor of Governor Clinton, of New York, who had shown great interest in the development of Ohio, especially through her system of canals. This bank was chartered by the legislature of 1833-4, and organized in October of the last-named year, by the election of its first board of directors. It had but two presidents during the twenty years of its existence—William Neil and William S. Sullivant—and three cashiers—John Delafield, jr., John E. Jeffords, and W. G. Deshler. Its capital stock was three hundred thousand dollars, and its circulation averaged six hundred thousand dollars. It was one of the safest, and most successful financial institutions of its time, and "one of the very few banks that did not suspend specie payments."

These two banks were the only predecessors, in Columbus, of which was organized, as a body corporate, under an act of the Ohio legislature, passed on February 24, 1845. This act named five commissioners as corporators, with authority to organize banks throughout the State, which might continue in business till May 1, 1866, and afterward, for the purpose of closing up their affairs. These banks, called branches of the State Bank of Ohio, were independent corporations, except that they were under the general oversight of a body known as the board of control, and were mutually liable for the redemption of the notes of a failing branch; as security for which, each branch deposited with the central office an amount equal to ten per cent. of its circulation, which was known as the safety fund.

THE STATE BANK OF OHIO,

The board of control was a legislative body composed of members elected by the several boards, each branch choosing one member. This board met twice a year at Columbus, where the head office was located, which did no banking business, but furnished to the branches all circulating notes, signed by its president, or vice-president; and to this office all such notes had to be returned to be burned, in the presence of the president and two members of the board. During the recess of the board of control, its duties were performed by an executive committee, consisting of four members and the president.

The commissioners named in the act of incorporation were: John W. Allen, Joseph Olds, Daniel Kilgore, Alex. Grimes and Gustavus Swan. In a short time after these commissioners had entered upon their duties, forty-one branches were organized, with a capital amounting, in the aggregate, to about four million, five hundred thousand dollars. Two of these branches were located in the city of Columbus, viz: First, the Exchange bank, which went into operation as a branch of the State bank, May 24, 1845, with a capital of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. Its first president was Wm. B. Hubbard, and its first cashier, H. M. Hubbard. It was represented at different times, in the board of control, by Wm. B. Hubbard and Wm. Dennison. It was merged into the First National Exchange bank of Columbus, in December, 1864. Second, the Franklin bank, which went into operation as a branch, July 1, 1845, with a capital of one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars. Its first president was Samuel Parsons, and its first cashier, James Espy. During its existence as a branch bank, it had the following representatives in the board of control: Gustavus Swan, D. W. Deshler, A. Kelly, and Joseph Hutcheson. In January, 1865, it was merged into the Franklin National bank of Columbus, and finally wound up its affairs, and passed out of existence, in 1878. We see, therefore, that the name of "the Franklin bank" became venerable with age, being connected, during a period of sixty-two years, with three distinct organizations.

The officers of the board of control, during the entire existence of the State bank, were as follows: Gustavus Swan, John Andrews, and Joseph Hutcheson, presidents; John R. Finn, vice-president; James T. Claypoole, James Gillet, J. J. Janney, and R. C. Hull.

Judge Gustavus Swan, the first president of the board, retired from the office in 1855, after about five years of service, and died before the charter of the bank expired. Though distinguished for his great ability as a financier, he is perhaps better known as an eminent lawyer and jurist. His biography may be found in the chapter on the Franklin county bar, in another part of this volume.

Dr. John Andrew, the second president of the board, remained in that office till after the expiration of the charter; but died before the affairs of the bank were closed up—i. e. on the fourteenth of October, 1866. His successor in the office, in his first message addressed to the board, gave a brief sketch of Dr. Andrews' life and character, from which we condense a few facts for our history:

He was born in Steubenville, Ohio, April 12, 1805.

He was educated at Bethany, Va., taking a regular course of study at the seminary, established there by Alexander Campbell. He then studied medicine, completing his studies at Philadelphia. Having obtained his diploma, he entered upon the practice of his profession in Jefferson and the adjoining counties. For twenty years he had an extensive pratice, becoming distinguished both as a surgeon and as a physician. His health becoming impaired, he abandoned his profession, and engaged in farming and merchandise—continuing also the banking operation, in which he had been long and successfully engaged. He afterward became a principal stockholder in Jefferson branch of the State bank, and was made its president. As the representative of that branch, he became one of the earliest members of the board of control. Upon the resignation of the presidency of the board by Judge Swan, in 1855, the members instinctively turned to Dr. Andrews as a fitting successor; and the eminent ability, by which his administration of that office was marked, gave sufficient proof that their confidence was not misplaced. Dr. Andrews was a man in whom were combined rare qualities of head and heart. His mind was enriched with varied learning and observation. His researches were not confined to his profession or his business. He was a careful student, besides, of history and politics, and was especially fond of philosophical investigations. As a business man he had few superiors. In his dealings he was guided by high moral principle. Avoiding all hazardous speculations, he confined his operations to what was safe and legitimate; and by this course he became eminently successful in his private affairs. Prompt, exact, just, scrupulously honest, he ever maintained a character of spotless christian integrity. In his social relations he was kind, genial, and winning—his chief happiness being centered in his home, surrounded by his family, by whom he was revered and loved. It was one of his fondest hopes that the State bank of Ohio should be carried through its career, with honor, to a successful issue. And his gratification, on seeing this hope realized, is embodied in a striking passage in his last message to the board of control, delivered in May, 1866—with which passage we must close this brief sketch of his life.

"We may now feel," said he, "like the mariner who has brought his ship safely into port, after a long and anxious voyage. Sometimes with prosperous gales and fair sailing; sometimes threatened with appalling dangers, in the midst of an ocean covered with the wrecks and ruins of other vessels—still our noble ship, the State bank of Ohio, has always proved herself equal to the trials which she has been called to meet; and especially in the great storm of 1857, stood firm amidst the ruins around her. Our twenty years' voyage has been a success. The business men of Ohio have had their business interests with the bank satisfactorily done; the people have been supplied with a sound circulating medium, which commanded their perfect confidence, and by the use of which no one has ever lost a dollar; and the stockholders have received larger profits than any other system of banking ever realized in this, or, perhaps, in any other country, as the results of the legitimate business."

Joseph Hutcheson, the third president of the board of control, was born about the year 1825, in Madison county, Ohio, where he taught school in the early years of his manhood. He moved to Columbus about 1846, and obtained a situation as bookkeeper in the Franklin branch of the Ohio State bank, of which he subsequently became cashier—a position which he retained until 1867. He then left to join in establishing the banking house of Hayden, Hutcheson & Co., the predecessor of the present house of P. Hayden & Co. Becoming president of the board of control after the expiration of the State bank's charter, his only duty in connection with that office was to oversee the closing up of the bank's affairs. This he did with great credit to himself, and to the entire satisfaction of all the parties interested. His honorable and successful business career was terminated by death about the year 1875.

THE NATIONAL BANKS

which have now taken the place of the State bank with its branches, resemble it in this, that their notes are secured by a deposit of government bonds. This, however, is not, as it might seem, an "Ohio idea." Ohio borrowed it from New York, as the latter borrowed it from the Bank of England. It is, doubtless, the only system which can inspire in the public mind that sense of security, which alone can prevent bank issues from ultimate depreciation. And we might naturally expect that the feeling of confidence inspired by national banks, would be as much greater than that inspired by State banks, as the strength of the national government exceeds that of any State government. There are three national banks now doing business in the city of Columbus, named, in the order of their establishment, as follows:

The First National, organized in 1863, with a capital of three hundred thousand dollars. Wm. Monypeny, president, and Theo. P. Gordon, cashier.

The National Exchange, organized in 1864. Capital, one hundred thousand dollars; Wm. G. Deshler, president, and J. Hardy, cashier.

The Fourth National, organized in 1879, with a capital of one hundred thousand dollars; Wm. S. Ide being the president, and Wesley Richards, the cashier.

We will now bring our sketches of Columbus banks to a close, with a brief biographical notice of one whose name (either as borne by himself or his descendants) has, perhaps, been more prominently connected with the banking interests of Columbus, than that of any other man. We refer to who was born in Allentown, Northampton county, Pennsylvania, in 1792. He settled in Columbus in 1817, and for three years, worked at his trade, which was that of cabinet-maker. His first work was under a contract with the State, to build the alcoves for the State library, then recently established by Governor Worthington. These alcoves stood over fifty years (first in the old State office building, in the room over the auditor's office, and afterward in the new State house), until the remodeling of the library in its present spacious apartments. And one of them, as built by Mr. Deshler's own hand, is now standing in the city library, to which it was presented by his sons, filled with books, and endowed with a perpetual annuity of one hundred dollars to keep it replenished.

DAVID WAGGONER DESHLER,

A more graceful and appropriate monument could hardly be conceived.

At the end of three years, he relinquished his trade, and entered upon a mercantile career. This lasted for ten years, during the whole of which he served, also, in the responsible office of justice of the peace. Then (about the year 1830), he went into the insurance business—representing the old Pennsylvania fire and life insurance company, till 1834, when he was chosen cashier of the Clinton bank, of Columbus. In this position he remained twenty years—i. e., till the charter of the bank expired, in 1854. He then united with a few of the old stockholders, and established the private banking firm, called the Clinton bank, simply dropping the clause, "of Columbus," from the old name. This arrangement continued for a few years, when the "Clinton" was merged into the Franklin branch of Ohio State bank, of which Mr. Deshler was made president. After a few more years, the same parties bought out the Exchange branch, and Mr. Deshler was made president of that, also, thus holding the office of president in two banks at the same time; and when, at length, these two institutions were changed into national banks, he continued in the same relation to them, and was president of both at the time of his death, in 1869. The business career, thus hastily sketched, was certainly a very remarkable one, not only in the versatility of talent which it evinced, but also in the energy of character which was manifested through it all, and which enabled one mind to command success in so many different vocations. Mr. William G. Deshler, the well-known banker, of Columbus, succeeded his father as president of the National Exchange bank, and an elder brother, Charles G. Deshler, owns a large amount of property in this city, though residing at Bay City, Michigan.

THE CLEARING-HOUSE.

A clearing-house is a place where bankers meet daily, to collect drafts and checks, and to settle balances. Such a house is necessary, in large cities, where there are many banks, in order to obviate the loss of time and the risk, involved in sending out a runner from each bank to collect the checks on the various other banks, which may have accumulated during the day. For the performance of this work, an association is formed by the several banks that enter into the arrangement, having for its officers a president, a vice-president, executive committee, and manager. Such an association was permanently organized in Columbus, April 1, 1873, with the following officers: T. P. Gordon, president; P. W. Huntington, vice-president; Joseph Falkenbach, George W. Sinks, and J. A. Jeffrey, executive committee; Harry M. Failing, manager and secretary. The establishment of the clearing-house is said to have been one of the results of the organization of the Columbus board of trade. That it has greatly facilitated the transaction of business, is the testimony of all the bankers. It furnishes, also, an important index of the annual amount of business transacted in the city. The clearings for the year ending April 1, 1879, amounted to twenty-four million, one hundred and seventy thousand, three hundred and one dollars—an amount said to be nearly as great as the average in cities having twice the population of Columbus. The present manager of the association is J. Reinhard, jr., and the vice-president is S. S. Rickly. The other officers remain as in 1878. A writer* in the Columbus Democrat, of the eighth of June last, after giving a very readable account of the organization and subsequent operations of the clearing-house, thus pleasantly sums up:

"Suppose old Shylock and his compeers of the Rialto, who slowly doled out their ducats to their customers, and collected their bonds, to the last drop of blood, by the slow process of the time, should step into one of our clearing-houses, and see the ransom of a kingdom passed from hand to hand, and all balances adjusted, before they could agree upon the per cent. of their usury—they would come to the conclusion that the financial world had progressed considerably since Venice was 'the queen of the Adriatic,' and the Mecca 'of the world's argosies.'"

COLUMBUS PARKS.

The existence of public parks in the centers of thronged cities is a standing contradiction of the doctrine of total depravity. All else of art, science, or literature, which distinguishes between the city and the country, might be traced, through one channel or another, to the insatiate cry, which is the cry for daily bread: "Come and buy of me; come and visit my galleries, come and read in my libraries and admire my statues"—a cry which millions hear and heed, and therefore cities are. But who would cross a continent to see a park, when every ten miles in the three thousand travelled would furnish material to construct a score of those mimic continents, with their mountains and forests and lakes and islands, their streams and waterfalls?

But is the park therefore to be despised? Nay, verily; and for more considerations than can be here enumerated. But, as to our proposition, the argument is this: The space occupied by parks, to fulfiill their mission of blessing, might have been dedicated to mammon, and is not; therefore the doctrine falls. But for them, many men, aye, and sadder still, many women and children, would forget that their mother earth is not of stone and mortar built, though "rock-ribbed;" but has a lap of velvet for all her weary children.

When Columbus has multiplied her fifty thousand by a factor which shall have sent the advancing columns of business blocks marching past and beyond her parks, leaving them islands with brick-bound coasts; then will there be many whose five cent fare (the maximum ever paid by thousands of the dwellers in streets which lead to the outside world but once for them, and that when they journey to the bourne from whence no traveller returns) will buy for them a sight of growing grass and waving boughs in Goodale park on the north, or City park on the south, of what will always be the center from which her traffic and manufactures will radiate; viz. "Capitol square."

Goodale Park, located on north High street, bears the name of the public benefactor, who wisely left a portion of his accumulations in a form never to be dissipated, by presenting to the city of Columbus forty-four acres of land for a public park, by deed, dated November 8, 1851,

* Mr. Herbert Brooks.

"the same to be for the free and common use of the inhabitants of the city." This is a magnificent gift, the value of which will incsease in direct ratio with the lapse of time and the increase of population.

And here it may be interesting to note the similarity in time, amount, and aim of two of the most liberal bequests as yet made for the benefit of the city. We refer to those of Lyne Starling and Dr. Samuel Goodale; that of Mr. Starling, in 1847, to establish a school of medicine, and that of Dr. Goodale, in 1851, to preserve the health of the city, not only by creating a reservoir of pure air, but by answering that demand for relaxation and recreation, which is as imperative for the toiler in the rolling mill, as for the toiler behind the bank counter. Or, if one were inclined to be in a slight degree facetious, he might imagine a feud to have existed between these two good citizens, (and no doubt good friends, as well) and that "the ruling passion strong in death" had induced the latter to do all in his power to render valueless the intended benediction of the former, in establishing a school for the education of doctors, by opening up a health-preserving and health-giving resort which should make doctors unnecessary. But these are idle fancies; while the park and school are verities that will long find, we fear, each in its allotted channel, ample scope for the beneficent work of alleviating ills which they cannot destroy.

This favorite park has been tastefully separated into plats by the construction of fine carriage drives, without disturbing the beautiful forest of beech, maple, and oak, with which it is covered, and which makes it a delightful drive for families in the summer months, as well as a safe retreat for children, who are allowed to enjoy the green banks and sylvan shades to their hearts' content. And those superb beeches awaken a thousand tender memories in the mind of one, who, having spent his earlier years in the New England or middle States, and having long been wandering west of the great father of waters, feels, as he turns eastward to find here their well-remembered forms, that dear friends of his childhood have come to meet him in the beautiful valley of the Scioto.

City park contains twenty-three and a half acres, and was purchased by the city, in 1867, of D. W. Deshler, Allen G. Thurman, and William G. Deshler, for the sum of fifteen thousand dollars. It is a most desirable location; quite remote from the business portion of the city, its south entrance is but one square from the street railway, thus making it accessible to all, and none can fail to find its artistically cultivated grounds a charming retreat. It may go to the hearts of some to see its discrowned monarchs shorn of their former glory, or, as a friend at our side gruffly remarked, "Robbed of their crowns! better say, 'robbed of their heads.'" But, let us console ourselves, for who knows but that the block and the headman's axe might still be busy with human victims, if these innocent substitutes had not been found to satisfy that natural craving with certain ones to decapitate somebody, or something? The "city fathers" deserve great commendation for the wise fore-thought shown in securing a south park; and when they shall have granted the petition of the city mothers to soften somewhat the rigor of their "Do not step," by adding, "except children of tender age," (didn't they roll on the grass when they were boys?) there will be nothing in the way of a most cordial wish that they may live long, and enjoy the benedictions of those who have not only looked upon the green turf bordering the heated, gravelly thoroughfare, but have felt its delicious coolness bathing the tender feet—and felt thankful.

L' ENVOY.

And thus, gentle reader, we bring our history of Columbus to a close. "Would it were worthier," and, perhaps, if we had had more time and more space, we might have made it so. "But what is writ, is writ," and we must console ourselves, as best we can, for its many imperfections, by the consciousness that we have done the best we could. It has been an absolute pain and grief to us to leave so many inviting themes untouched, and to give only a mere touch to so many others that richly deserve an extended treatment. But, as we hinted in the "Prefatory," with which we set out, no intelligent reader will expect, in a volume containing the history of two such counties as Franklin and Pickaway, an exhaustive, or even a very elaborate, account of such a city as Columbus, which could furnish ample material for an entire volume of equal size. When we state that every word of this history has been written by two hands in about three months' time (with the exception of three days' labor by a third hand), we are sure that the work will bring us some credit for industry, whatever may be thought of its literary merit. And, with this assurance, we bid our readers farewell.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

OF EMINENT PIONEERS.

LUCAS SULLIVANT.

Lucas Sullivant, the leading pioneer in that territory which afterward became Franklin county, was born in September, 1765, in Mecklenburgh county, Virginia. His starting out in life reminds us strongly of the youthful career of the greatest of all the Virginians—Washington.

At the age of sixteen he joined, as a volunteer, an expedition against the Indians, who were threatening the western counties of his native State, and his good conduct and manly intrepidity were such as to gain for him the public commendation of his commanding officer. Left alone in the world by the death of his parents and only brother, he used his small patrimony in acquiring a more liberal education, and especially in mastering the science and practice of surveying, which he adopted as a profession.

The new and unsurveyed lands of Kentucky, then an outlying county of the Old Dominion, offering a wider held for his enterprise, he went thither, while quite a young man, and soon found his talent and skill in constant demand.

The officers and soldiers of the regular Continental army having, under legislative authority, met and appointed Colonel Richard C. Anderson, a distinguished officer of the Revolution, surveyor-general of the Virginia military land district, Mr. Sullivant received from him an appointment as deputy surveyor, and, at the age of twenty-two, became one of that dauntless band of pioneers who penetrated into the unbroken wilderness, and opened one of the richest portions of Ohio to the advancing wave of settlement and civilization. Defeated, in his first attempts, by the wily savage, he was compelled to organize a stronger force, which was equipped at Limestone (now Maysville), Kentucky. With a party of twenty men, he advanced into the wilderness, and, in due time, having arrived upon the banks of the Scioto, he commenced his operations in the territory of the present Franklin county. The outfit of this surveying party betokened an occupation of the disputed territory, rather than a flying assault; and, in fact, though constantly in the neighborhood of hostile villages, and passing through many exciting scenes and hair-breadth escapes, Mr. Sullivant brought his work to a fortunate conclusion.

In the summer and fall of 1797—ten years after the commencement of this adventurous and dangerous career between the Scioto and the Miami—Mr. Sullivant, having obtained possession of the surrounding lands, laid out the town of Franklinton, believing that, situated as it was in the region of the greatest fertility, on a then navigable river, and so near the center of the State, if it did not become the capital, it would be near it, and could not fail to become a great center in the progress of the State. This was five years before Ohio was set off from the great northwest territory as an independent State, and six years before Franklin was separated from Ross county.

About this time Mr. Sullivant was married to Sarah Starling, daughter of Colonel William Starling, of Kentucky, and building the first brick house in his proprietory town of Franklinton, he resided there during the remainder of his life. Though devoting himself principally to the care of his own estate, he was liberal and public spirited, and the projector of many of the most valuable improvements of those early times; and his influence, counsels, and pecuniary aid, shaped very materially the destinies of Ohio's capital. He was the builder of the first bridge over the Scioto between Franklinton and Columbus; the president of the first bank established in Columbus; built the first church of the first Presbyterian congregation, and presented it as a free gift; was one of ten to build the church for the congregation on its removal to Columbus; and was never second in any enterprise which had for its aim the intellectual or material advancement of the community in which he lived. Firm and positive in his opinions, but courteous in manner and expression; prompt and decisive to act upon his own convictions; he was altogether a man of forcible character, exercising a great influence over those with whom he came in contact.

In the full maturity of his powers, and his natural force not abated, he died, August 8, 1823, in the fifty-eighth year of his age.

From tributes written by those who knew him well, a few extracts will close this imperfect sketch:

"He possessed a great spirit of liberality, which an ample fortune, acquired by his own industry, enabled him to gratify to an uncommon extent. He was a man of strict integrity, of the most persevering industry and rigid economy. He was a kind and indulgent father, a sincere and hospitable friend, and a generous neighbor; and the poor were never turned away empty from his well-filled granaries."

"He showed, in his last illness, the same invincible fortitude which had sustained him in the midst of the privations and dangers incurred in the early settlement of the State."

Dr. John Edmiston, his physician and friend, used to say of him:

"Take him all in all, with his strong and vigorous intellect, his knowledge of human nature, his decision of character, good judgment, and high sense of personal honor and integrity, he is one of the most remarkable men I ever knew. He seemed born to be a leader, and in whatever direction he had turned his attention, he would have distinguished himself and become a man of mark."

WILLIAM STARLING SULLIVANT.

William S. Sullivant, the eldest son of Lucas Sullivant, was born January 15, 1803, in Franklinton, the village, literally in the midst of a wilderness, which his father's indomitable energy, more than that of any other one man, had set on the road to empire. His boyhood was exposed to all the real dangers, and beset by all the so-called hardships, incident to pioneer life in those early days. In 1812, when the subject of this sketch was nine years old, the shameful surrender of General Hull to the British forces at Detroit, exposed the whole frontier to an irruption of bloody savages, the allies of Great Britain. For months, the inhabitants of this new settlement, in common with others still more exposed, were harrassed with fears of such an invasion, and of the cruelties and barbarous atrocities which distinguished savage warfare. Happily, however, this danger was averted, and peace and prosperity ensued.

At a proper age, young William, mounted astride of a bag of wheat on one horse, and leading another, on which also was strapped a well-filled bag, was often sent along the blazed bridle-paths through the forest to Sell's mill, near Dublin, to Dyer's mill, on the Darby, and sometimes to Kinnikinnick, in Ross county, to procure flour for the family. These expeditions frequently involved two or three days' waiting for the grist, and necessitated sleeping in the mill, wrapped in a blanket, where he was fortunate who had a pile of corn or wheat for his couch instead of the hard floor. But, dear reader, waste no sigh of pity for our young friend, William, and doubt not that in these pilgrimages he was supremely happy, and that these and similar experiences were fruitful in producing, not only the fine physical development and graceful carriage which distinguished him in his maturity, but also in arousing those latent tastes and capacities which have made his name an honor to his family and to his country. In those quiet journeyings through the leafy aisles of "God's first temples," and in those days of "waiting for the grist," when forest and stream and bird and flower wooed him to their companionship; to such a nature as his, how entrancing must have been this sweet communion with nature! And who can say that his chosen pursuit, in later life, was not the result of the bias given in these days of his boyhood? It is said, also, that he accompanied his father upon some of his shorter surveying expeditions, where he gained that knowledge which tended to make him an expert, rapid, and accurate surveyor, when, after his return from college, and after his father's death, he had occasion to exercise his skill in attending to the large landed estate of the family.

When old enough to be sent from home, he was placed in a celebrated private school, in Jassamine county, Kentucky. Afterward he pursued his classical studies, under Professors Lindley and Dana, at the Ohio university, at Athens. Here he was prepared for Yale college, from which he graduated in 1823. Though almost immediately immersed in the cares and duties of active business life, while yet in early manhood, he found time to acquaint himself most thoroughly with the flora of central Ohio, discovering, in his botanical researches, several species hitherto unknown, to one of which his eastern botanical associates gave the name Sullivantia Ohionis. Dr. Asa Gray, the distinguished botanist, and long the intimate friend of Mr. Sullivant, speaks thus of his scientific researches: "As soon as the flowering plants of his district had ceased to afford him novelty, he turned to the mosses, in which he found abundant scientific occupation, of a kind well suited to his bent for patient and close observation, scrupulous accuracy, and nice discrimination." And it was in this field that his world-wide reputation was won; some of the most valuable contributions to the bryology and hepaticology of North America being the result of years of quiet but earnest labor. In the same article by Dr. Gray, already quoted, occurs the following estimate of the value of these labors: "His works have laid such a broad and complete foundation for the study of bryology in this country, and are of such recognized importance everywhere, that they must always be of classic authority. Wherever mosses are studied, his name will be honorably remembered. In this country it should long be remembered with peculiar gratitude." In accordance with his wishes, his bryological books, and his exceedingly rich and important collections and preparations of mosses, are to be consigned to the Gray Herbarium building of Harvard university, with a view to their preservation and long-continued usefulness. The remainder of his botanical library, his choice microscopes, and his remaining collections, are bequeathed to the State Scientific and Agricultural college of Ohio, and to the Starling Medical college, founded by his uncle, of which he was himself the senior trustee.

Did space allow an enumeration of all of Mr. Sullivant's botanical labors and publications, it would give emphasis to the reflection that such achievements in science, on the part of one whose life, so far from being given to the pursuit of literature, was marked by great business activity, are, to say the least, of very rare occurrence.

His death, which occurred on the thirtieth of April, 1873, was thus noticed in the annual report of the Council of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences of that year: "William Starling Sullivant died at his residence in Columbus, Ohio, on the thirtieth of April, ultimo. In him we lose the most accomplished bryologist which this country has ever produced, and it can hardly be said that he leaves behind him anywhere a superior."

Mr. Sullivant was thrice married. His widow and several children survive him.

MICHAEL L. SULLIVANT.

Michael L. Sullivant, second son of Lucas Sullivant and Sarah Starling, was born August 6, 1807, in the village of Franklinton, and educated at the Ohio university, and Center college, Kentucky. Very early in life, Michael manifested a very decided predilection for rural affairs, and, after leaving college, instead of studying a profession he determined to marry, and deliberately chose farming for his life-long vocation. The fine body of land which he inherited in the immediate vicinity of Columbus, afforded an opportunity for him to carry out his purpose on a then unusually large scale.

He engaged in farming at a time when there was but a limited price, as well as a limited demand and a circumscribed market for all kinds of farming products, and he at once saw that the only remunerative method was to consume the corn, hay, and grass, through the medium of stock. He consequently became a grazier and stock-feeder, "stall-feeding," as it was termed, many hundred fat cattle during the fall and winter months. This was, however, a laborious, and often uncertain, business; for cattle, when ready for market, must be driven over the mountains to Baltimore, Philadelphia, or New York, and the fluctuations in price from the time of starting until the journey was ended, was often of a most vexatious kind, making all the difference between a handsome profit and an unhandsome loss. These cattle had generally been grazed in the "Barrens," or Sandusky plains, in Ohio, or even on the praries of Indiana and Illinois, where they were picked up in lots by the enterprising feeders in Ohio, principally located in the Scioto valley.

Mr. Sullivant remained in his native State, occupying his ample inheritance, until about the year 1854, always showing himself independent and progressive, a man of large views, and taking the lead in many innovations upon fossilized ideas. He was one of the originators of the Ohio Stock Importing company, and one of the organizers of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, of which he was twice the president. He introduced new methods and machinery on his farm here, being the first to buy and put in operation a power threshing machine in Franklin county; also a reaper and a mower, and was always interested in everything that concerned agriculture.

Seeking a wider field of operations—if not marked out by destiny to inaugurate a stupendous experiment—he disposed of his large estate in Ohio, and, removing to Illinois, where he had secured a vast domain at government prices, he gave his attention to establishing the great farm of "Broadlands," which, in connection with that of "Bur Oaks," has given him fame wherever there is an English speaking people.*

"One of the most striking traits in the character of Mr. Sullivant," says one who knew him well, "was the tenacity of purpose with which he pursued his scheme, when once it was deliberately planned."

He was twice married, and his domestic relations were always happy, for, says the same friend, he was good-tempered, and of a liberal and generous disposition. Mr. Michael Sullivant died February 29, 1879, leaving a widow and several children.

JOSEPH SULLIVANT.

Joseph Sullivant, the youngest and only surviving son of Lucas Sullivant and Sarah Starling, was born in Franklinton, in 1809. In his early years he was distinguished by an ardent love of books, and, like most boys having this passion, devoured everything which came in his way. Having a retentive memory, he mastered the ordinary school tasks of his time with little difficulty, and, after attending the first two classical schools which his father was active in establishing in Columbus he was sent to the boys' boarding school in Worthington, under the management of Rev. Philander Chase, bishop of Ohio. From this school he carried away, and retained in later life, added, it is believed, to steady progress in book-lore, a keen appreciation of the motherly kindness of "that most estimable woman," the wife of the bishop. From Worthington he was transferred to the Ohio university, and from thence, about a year after his father's death, in 1823, and at the early age of fifteen, he entered Center college, Danville, Kentucky, where his course of study was completed. Having, as he says of himself, at an early age embibed a tast for, and an interest in, the natural sciences, from his father, who was "a dear lover of nature," he devoted himself to their study, and, before the age of twenty-one, was appointed, by the legislature, one of the corporators of the Philosophical and Historical society of Ohio, and was corresponding secretary and curator thereof for several years.

The limits of our article do not permit the indulgence of our wish in the free use of the abundant material for an extended biographical sketch of Mr. Sullivant; suffice it to say, that he has been for the last forty years one of the leading spirits in all of the scientific and literary enterprises which have given the city of Columbus its present enviable standing among the centers of intelligence and culture in the West.

For many years he devoted much time and attention to the public schools of the city, being first a member, and for several years president, of the board of education. Since his final retirement from that position, as a token of the esteem and regard of the large body of teachers connected with the schools, a bust of Mr. Sullivant has been placed in the hall of the beautiful high school building, and later, his old colleagues have erected the largest and finest ward school-building in the city, and, in recognition of his long, gratuitous, and efficient services, have named it "Sullivant school," an acknowledgment, and, at the same time, a monument, of which any one might justly feel proud.

Many years ago elected a member of the American Scientific association; a member and treasurer of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture; a trustee of Starling Medical college; and serving a second term as trustee and secretary of the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Ohio; a member of the executive committee, giving valuable service in the late re-organization of that institution under its present charter as the Ohio State university, he has held various positions of honor and trust, some involving much time and labor, but none of emolument. Nor have the labors of Mr. Sullivant been confined to merely scientific and literary enterprises—a pamphlet prepared by him on "A Water Supply for the city of Columbus," being greatly influential in arousing attention to this important matter. He was also the projector of Green Lawn cemetery, selected its site, was a member of its first board of trustees, and, for several years, president of the corporation.

With all these evidences of the high estimation of the community in which his life has been spent, no honor is so dear to him (according to his own affectionate confession) as the remembrance of the community of tastes and pursuits which rendered especially close the chain linking him with his distinguished brother, whose fame will increase in proportion as knowledge and culture are increased.

Mr. Sullivant has been thrice married, and has a family of several children.

LYNE STARLING.

Lyne Starling was born in Mecklenburgh county, Virginia, in the year 1784; removed to Kentucky in 1794, and came to Franklinton in 1806. Through the influence of his brother-in-law, Lucas Sullivant, he was placed in the clerk's office for Franklin county—a position for which, though young, he was well qualified by previous training. Subsequently he was appointed clerk of the circuit and district courts of the United States, and also of the supreme and common pleas courts of Franklin county. Mr. Sullivant afterward furnished the means and formed a partnership with his young relative in the mercantile business, and he became a successful merchant and enterprising trader, being the first one who ventured cargoes of produce down the Scioto, and thence to New Orleans in decked flat-boats. This venture, proving remunerative, was of great advantage, not only to himself, but to others. He was a commissary and large contractor for supplies to the Northwestern army under General Harrison, which assembled at Frankiinton and Urbana during the war of 1812.

Mr. Starling was all his life a sagacious business man, and was one of the original proprietors of Columbus, the present central portion of the city having been laid out on land owned by him. A short extract from a letter to his sister in Kentucky, dated Franklinton, July, 1809, may be of interest, as fixing the date of the purchase of this land: "I have lately purchased an elegant seat and tract of land opposite town, on the other side of the river, which I have an idea of improving," evidently as a gentleman's country seat, in the suburbs of the capital—Franklinton.

Judge Gustavus Swan, who had known Mr. Starling for forty years, speaks thus of him in an obituary, written with great apparent fairness:

"The deceased was, by nature, emphatically a great man. He had a quick and clear perception, a retentive memory, and a sound, unerring judgment. He possessed the rare faculty of annihilating, in an instant, the space between cause and effect. He arrived at conclusions, and was acting upon them, while ordinary minds were contemplating the premises. It was this peculiar intellectual superiority which rendered his efforts in business so uniformly successful, and which enabled him, before reaching the meridian of life, to amass one of the largest fortunes which have been accumulated in the West."

His health failing, he traveled extensively, both in this country and abroad. Being a man of quick perceptions, and a close observer both of men and things, he gained much practical knowledge, and, from intercourse with the best society, was much improved by his travels; his experience, during these years of leisure, compensating for his early and exclusive devotion to business.

Mr. Starling never held any political office, though an unsuccessful candidate for congress—his wealth and apparently exclusive manner being against him with the masses, who considered him an aristocrat. He finally made Columbus his permanent place of residence, when he returned to take charge, as administrator, of the large and valuable landed estate of Mr. Lucas Sullivant.

* There is less reason for noticing here Mr. Sullivant's stupendous operations in Illinois, since elaborate descriptions of them have been published in Harpers Magazine, and other widely circulated periodicals, thus giving him a reputation which is none too strongly characterized above.

Not long before his death, to show his regard for the city whose first houses he built, and in which his fortune had been amassed, he donated thirty-five thousand dollars to establish a medical school, named after him—Starling Medical college. As he was never married, at his death, which occurred in 1848, his large estate was distributed, by will, among his relatives.

At his own request, he was buried in the old graveyard at Franklinton, near his sister, Mrs. Sullivant, and other friends. When the Green Lawn cemetery was established, the remains were removed, and a fine monument marks the last resting place of one of the founders of the city of Columbus.

JOHN KERR.

John M. Kerr, one of the four proprietors of the original town plat of Columbus, was born about the year 1778, in County Tyrone, Ireland, and was educated at the University of Dublin. He came to this country early in the century, and settled in Franklinton, about 1810. His connection with the company entering into compact with the legislature in 1812, has already been given. Mr. Kerr was appointed, in 1813, the first agent of the associates, and continued until 1815, when he declined longer service. He was also a member of the first board of councilmen, elected in 1816, for the "borough of Columbus."

He died in 1823, in the same year with Mr. Lucas Sullivant. Mr. Kerr left a large fortune, at his death, which was soon dissipated. Mr. John M. Kerr, jr., now nearly sixty-two years old, is the only son living; but a sister (Mrs. Mary F. Heffner, now a widow), resides in Fremont, Ohio. There is also a grandson, a boy of ten years, bearing the family name—John M. Kerr.

Mr. Kerr was buried in the old North graveyard, and, as a result of the neglect into which the place has fallen, the headstone placed at his grave has been destroyed, and his children are not able to identify the grave of their father—and he a man whose active business life was so intimately associated with the early history of the city!

The son of Mr. Kerr, mentioned above, is now living in Columbus, with his wife and child—the latter a promising boy of about ten years. Mr. Kerr is a man of much intelligence and literary culture, who made many business ventures with the great wealth which his father left, but failed in them all. And now, at the advanced age of sixty-one, he finds himself in great affliction from the almost total loss of sight by a painful disease of the eyes, and from the pinchings of absolute poverty.

ALEXANDER McLAUGHLIN.

Alexander McLaughlin, another of the "original proprietors," though at one time looked upon as one of the wealthiest men in the State, through the depreciation of real estate occurring about the year 1820, and having entered so deeply into speculation, failed in business, and his large landed estate was sacrificed under the hammer. Though a man of no mean endowment, and with a fine business education and qualifications, he was never able to retrieve his fallen fortunes, and supported himself, in later life, by teaching a common country school. He died in 1832.

JAMES JOHNSTON.

James Johnston, one of the parties to the contract to "lay out a town" and "erect and complete a State house, offices, and penitentiary," failed about the same time, and from the same cause, as Mr. McLaughlin. He returned to Pittsburg, where he had been connected in business with Kerr, previous to their venture, where he spent the remainder of his life. He died in 1842, at an advanced age, six years prior to the death of Lyne Starling, who was several years younger than the other members of the company.

R. W. McCOY

was born in Franklin county, Pennsylvania, in the year 1787. He was brought up, from early boyhood, to the business of a merchant. In the year 1811, he removed from Mercersburg, in his native State—where he had been engaged in business—to Franklinton, bringing with him a small stock of goods, with which he opened a store. Here he continued prosperously for about five years, when he sought a larger field for his increasing business, in the new town of Columbus. During a period of forty years he followed the same occupation in this city, accumulating a handsome property. He died, January 16, 1856, in the seventieth year of his age, respected by all classes in the community, as an active, useful, and public-spirited citizen. He succeeded Mr. Buttles as president of the City bank of Columbus an office which he held at the time of his death. He was the uncle and foster-father of who died in Columbus, on the thirtieth of October, 1879, aged about sixty-eight. He (William) was born in Butler county, in this State, where his mother died in his early childhood. A few years later, his father, having removed to Portsmouth, died there, leaving William to the care of the boy's uncle (and his own brother), in this city. This was in 1818. Though but seven years old, William was taken at once into his uncle's store, at the corner of State and High streets. He received a good, substantial business education, partly in the school-room and partly behind the counter; and, on arriving at his majority, in 1832, he was taken in as a partner in the business. Ten years after this the uncle retired from active participation in the business, although he still maintained a pecuniary interest in it. Colonel James C. McCoy, son of another brother of Robert, was taken into the concern, and the firm name was changed to that of W. A. McCoy & Co. This arrangement continued till the death of the uncle, as above stated, in 1856, when the business was closed up and the goods sold at auction.

WILLIAM A. McCOY,

Colonel James C. McCoy joined the army for the suppression of the Rebellion, and was a member of General Sherman's staff when he died, in Washington, June, 1874. His remains were brought to this city, and were buried from Trinity church, with military honors, General Sherman and staff attending the funeral.

When the partnership was dissolved by the death of the uncle, William A. McCoy was made trustee of the estate, and allowed ten years for settling up the business. Having accomplished this work to the satisfaction of all concerned, he spent the remainder of his life in comparative leisure, occupying himself only with his books and papers, and the safe investment of the handsome moneyed capital which an honorable and prosperous business career had enabled him to accumulate.

DR. S. PARSONS,

from whom Parsons' avenue, in the city of Columbus, was named, was born in Reading, Connecticut, in the year 1786. Having acquired a thorough knowledge of the science of medicine in his native State, he came west, still young and unmarried, and arrived in Franklinton on the first day of the year 1811. Here he located, and commenced the practice of his profession. In 1816, seeking a wider field for the exercise of his talents, he removed to the growing town across the river, where he continued to practice till his sixty-fourth year, when he retired from the active duties of his profession. He acquired a high reputation as a physician, and as a citizen, was universally respected.

In 1843 he received the unsolicited honor of being elected as a representative of Franklin county in the State legislature, in which capacity he exhibited his usual ability. He also, for a number of years, held the important office of president of the Franklin branch of the State bank of Ohio. He died on the thirtieth of December, 1857, in the seventy-second year of his age.

RALPH OSBORN

was born in Waterbury, Connecticut, in the year 1780. Having completed his legal studies, he removed to Franklinton, in 1806, and commenced the practice of law. He remained here, however, but two or three years, when he accepted an appointment as the first prosecuting attorney of Delaware county, which was organized in 1808. Soon after he removed to Pickaway county, and, in December, 1810, he was elected clerk of the house in the Ohio legislature, which place he held for five consecutive sessions—till he was chosen auditor of State in 1815. He filled the office with much dignity and urbanity, and his great popularity was evinced by the length of time—eighteen consecutive years—during which he was retained in the auditorship.

In the fall of 1833 he was chosen to represent the counties of Franklin and Pickaway in the Ohio State senate, which place also he filled with his usual ability and success, and to the general satisfaction of his constituents. About this time he removed his residence to Columbus, where he died, December 30, 1835, in the fifty-sixth year of his age.

REV. SETH NOBLE

was born in Westfield, Massachusetts, about the year 1731. After completing his theological studies, he settled at Maugerville, Nova Scotia, and became the pastor of the Presbyterian or Congregational church at that place. At the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, his outspoken sympathy with the revolted colonies brought down upon him the denunciation of the authorities, and, along with many others, he was obliged to flee the country. He joined the party of Colonel Eddy, who, in 1776, settled a town in Maine (then a part of Massachusetts), to which they first gave the name of Muskegeag (or Sanduskeag) Meadow. Here Mr. Noble was joined by his wife and children, whom he had been obliged to leave behind him—so precipitate was his flight. He organized the First Presbyterian church in the new town, and continued its pastor for many years. It was largely through his influence that, in 1791, a decree was obtained from the general court of Boston, incorporating the aforesaid town under the name of Bangor - that name being selected on account of Mr. Noble's partiality for the old Scotch psalm tune known by the same name.

In 1805, led by the generous offer, made by congress, of a donation of land to the Nova Scotia refugees, he came to Franklinton, having located three hundred and twenty acres of land in the Refugee tract across the river, near by. On this land he built a cabin, in which a married daughter was his housekeeper—his wife having died a number of years before. Immediately after his arrival in this county, he commenced preaching—first in Franklinton, and afterward in two or three other places, which he visited at stated intervals until his death, which occurred in September, 1807—only eight or nine days after he had preached his last sermon, on the text, "Come unto me, all ye that labor, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." He was buried in the Franklinton burying-ground, but, as no headstone was erected, and as the family was for many years absent from this part of the country, all trace of his grave is lost.

The daughter, mentioned above, was the mother of the Hon. W. M. Beach, of London, Madison county, to whom we are indebted for the facts here stated. These, and other facts, are also given in the "Genealogy of the Noble family," in the Ohio State library. Mr. Beach was a member of the Ohio legislature (first in the house and then in the senate), from 1869 to 1874.

We strongly incline to the opinion that the name of Rev. Seth Noble ought to have been mentioned along with that of the Rev. Dr. Hoge, as one of the pioneer preachers and founders of Presbyterianism in Franklin county; but as none of the early chroniclers thus associate these venerable names, we have not felt authorized to mention that of Mr. Noble in the history of the Presbyterian church of Columbus; but the brief sketch which we have given here, we regard as a simple act of justice.

CHRISTIAN HEYL,

whose name, for more than sixty years, has been familiar as a household word to the people of Columbus, was born in Zeidlops, a small principality of Germany, in the year 1788. When he was about twelve years old, his father, influenced largely by the disturbed political condition of the country, joined a company, consisting of about ninety persons, to seek a home in the new world. After many vexatious delays, and a tedious voyage, lasting thirty-four weeks, they landed at Baltimore, April 9, 1800.

Young Heyl remained here some seven years, at first following the occupation of painting, and afterwards apprenticed to learn the baker's trade. This occupation he followed for several years. His parents, with one son and daughter, and perhaps more, moved to Lancaster in 1806, settling on a small farm in the midst of the forest, near that place, and the next year Christian joined them, remaining with them and assisting in clearing up the farm, till 1811, when all moved to town, and Christian entered again upon the business of baking. He has left, in manuscript, a very interesting account of their mode of life in their log cabin in the wilderness, which we would gladly insert, but want of space forbids.

In 1813 he established himself as a baker in a small cabin at Columbus, with his sister as housekeeper. The first year they had to go to Franklinton for all their supplies, but in 1814 the first store was opened in Columbus. This was during the war, and discharged soldiers, sick and destitute, were almost constantly passing through the place. All those who came to his door were fed and liberally cared for, and, on one occasion, he actually took his coat from his own back and placed it upon that of a soldier who was without one, sick and suffering from cold.

In 1814 he married, bringing his wife to the cabin, which he continued to occupy as a bakery for another year or two, when he purchased a lot on High street, and built upon it what was then, and is yet, called the Franklin house—one of the few old landmarks left standing. In this they lived twenty years, carrying on the hotel business, and accumulating a handsome property. They then exchanged the hotel for a farm.

They had six sons, one of whom died in infancy. The survivors (all living) are: Lewis, John, William, George, and Charles—all of whom are educated men. Lewis established, some years ago, the Esther institute, a female seminary, located on Broad street, and named in honor of his wife, who was one of its principal teachers during its entire existence - which, however, was not more than five or six years. It was very prosperous for three or four years, after which, in consequence of the establishment of the high school, the patronage fell off, and it had to be given up. The fine building has been sold, and is now used for a boarding establishment, called the Irving house. Lewis and John reside in Philadelphia, and have some office under the general government. William and Charles live in Columbus, the former a lawyer by profession; and George lives in Canton.

Christian Heyl enjoyed, in the highest degree, the respect and confidence of his fellow-citizens in Columbus, and was appointed by them to many places of trust. He died in December, 1878, aged ninety years lacking four months, his wife having preceded him by eleven years.

JOSEPH RIDGWAY, JR.,

was born on Staten Island, New York, April 23, 1800. His father, Matthew Ridgway, died while Joseph was in his early childhood, and he went to reside with an uncle, after whom he had been named, and who was then residing in Cayuga county. This uncle was afterward a member of congress from Ohio. His nephew received an excellent education in one of the New York academies, making a specialty of the science of engineering, for which he had a great fondness. In 1820 he came to Ohio, with his uncle, and settled in Columbus. For several years he devoted himself to his favorite pursuit, being employed as an engineer on the canal which was then in process of construction. Later, he became a partner with his uncle in a foundry at Columbus, established for the manufacture of a cast-iron plow, of which the elder Ridgway owned the patent. This plow marked an era in Ohio agriculture, and the "Ridgway foundry" was the pioneer in the Columbus iron manufacture, which has now become so important a branch of industry.

Mr. Ridgway threw his entire energy into the Ohio railroad, becoming one of the principal stockholders and a director of the Columbus & Xenia road—one of the oldest in the State. It was to furnish this road with rolling stock that he established a car factory at Columbus, and he was secretary of the company at the time of his death, which occurred August 23, 1850. In 1844, and again in 1846, he was a member of the Ohio legislature—first in the senate, and afterward in the house of representatives. He was also, for several years, a member of the board of State house commissioners.

He died greatly regretted, having been identified with almost every movement having in view the welfare of his adopted city.

He was married, November 28, 1828, to Jeannette S. Tatem, daughter of Charles Tatem, of Cincinnati.

DR. LINCOLN GOODALE

was born in Worcester county, Massachusetts, February 25, 1782. His father, Nathan Goodale, was an officer in the Revolutionary war, who, coming west, settled, first at Marietta, in 1788, and afterward at Belpre. There he was captured by the Indians, in 1794, and died near Sandusky, to which place the Indians were taking him in hope of obtaining a ransom.

Dr. Goodale having studied medicine at Belpre, settled in Franklinton, and entered upon the practice of his profession, in 1805. In 1812 he volunteered his services in the war which had just broken out, and was appointed, by Governor Meigs, assistant surgeon in McArthur's regiment. He was taken prisoner at the time of Hull's surrender, and sent to Malden with wounded men. Being released, he returned to Franklinton in October, having been in the service less than a year. Removing to Columbus in 1814, he entered upon that successful career as a merchant which he followed for more than thirty years, and in which he acquired great wealth. His death occurred April 30, 1868, in his eighty-seventh year. Several years before his death, he gave to his adopted city the beautiful park with which his name will be forever identified.

JOSEPH FOOS

was born in Chester county, Pennsylvania, in the year 1767. He moved with his parents, first to Tennessee and then to Kentucky, where, in 1797, he married Lydia Nelson, and where their first son—Nelson Foos—was born. In 1798 he came, with his wife and infant son, to Franklinton, where he became proprietor of a ferry across the Scioto river. He also established, and for several years carried on, the first hotel at that place. His early opportunities for securing an education were very limited, and his principal schooling was obtained from an Irish schoolmaster who came to his tavern in want, and spent several months with him. But with such advantages as these, by his own persistent efforts, he obtained a wide knowledge of men and things, taking an active interest in all public affairs, and corresponding with such men as Clay, Ewing, Corwin, and Harrison. He was a member of the first Ohio legislature, serving, in all, during twenty-five sessions in the house and senate. He became an effective speaker and writer. The State capital having been secured to Columbus largely by his efforts, the original proprietors of the town presented him with a square in an eligible part of the city.

He served with distinction in the war of 1812, being promoted, for meritorious conduct, from the rank of captain to that of brigadier-general. His ferry and hotel, in those stirring times, were extensively patronized, and brought him in "a mint o' money," although he was too liberal to acquire a very extensive fortune. His house was the headquarters of all the politicians, who came not only "hungry for office," but also for the meals which were furnished at his table without stint or charge. To them his latch-string was always out, and his purse always open. He ran for congress, after his career in the legislature was over, but in that campaign he met with unaccustomed defeat. Soon after this he removed to Madison county, and commenced the business of farming. In 1825 he was made major-general of militia, an office which he held till his death, in 1832.

From the interest which he felt in the canal system of Ohio, his attention was directed to the feasibility of a ship canal across the Isthmus of Darien. His views upon this subject, embodied in a pamphlet, achieved the distinction of being called "Foos' Folly." But the project, as the public are aware, has recently been taken hold of again, by parties who may yet show that the original conception was nobody's folly.

General Foos' first wife died in 1810, leaving two sons and two daughters, the eldest of whom—Nelson Foos—still lives, in a hale and ripe old age, in the city of Columbus, where he has accumulated a comfortable property as a contractor in the erection of public and private buildings.

JOHN NEWTON CHAMPION

was born near West Springfield, Massachusetts, May 29, 1797. After completing his education, he taught school for some time in the State of New Jersey. He afterward removed to Savannah, Georgia, and entered into mercantile business with his elder brother. He was married, December 29, 1831, to Sarah Ann Chadbourne, daughter of Captain Jacob Chadbourne, of Newburyport, Massachusetts. He emigrated to Ohio in 1835, making the long voyage by sea from Savanah to New York, and thence to Columbus by stage and canal. Here he opened a large dry goods store, under the firm name of Champion & Lathrop. He was a large stockholder in the Buckeye and Exchange blocks, which were built in 1838, and were indeed "enterprises of great pith and moment" in that day. He also built a large and elegant brick residence on the southeast corner of High and Long streets, the present site of the Commercial bank.

He and his young wife were soon looked up to as among the first in social circles; and such was his political influence, that his house became almost the headquarters of the Whig leaders. His business was prosperous, and enabled him to make investments in large tracts of real estate, which ultimately became very valuable. He died at Columbus, August 23, 1845, respected by all who knew him.

His wife was a leading member of the charitable societies of the city, and, during the war of the Rebellion, acted as a ward visitor in relieving the wants of soldiers' families. She died in the same city where most of her life was spent, August 30, 1873, aged sixty-one years, lamented by a large circle of friends, and by many of the poor and lowly whom her benefactions had relieved.

Mr. and Mrs. Champion left three sons and one daughter—all yet living—as follows: Reuben Ely and Aaron Burt, residing in Cincinnati; and John Newton and Isabella C. (now Mrs. Godman), residing in Columbus.

HON. WILLIAM T. MARTIN was born April 6, 1788, in Bedford county, Pennsylvania; was married in 1814, to Amelia Aschom; and, in the spring of that year, migrated to Columbus, where he resided till his death—February 19, 1866.

Like so many other Columbian pioneers who became prominent in business and politics, he came to the city as a mechanic, his particular trade being that of carpenter and joiner. He also united with this occuppation those of teacher and merchant. He held many public offices, which we have not time here to enumerate, the last being that of associate judge of the court of common pleas, in 1851.

In 1858 he published his "History of Franklin County," a very valuable compendium of pioneer history, written in a plain and unpretentious, but often very pleasing, style. He was remarkable for the evenness of his temper, his charity for the faults of others, and for his great liberality to the poor. He died greatly regretted by all classes of citizens. His widow, who still survives, resides with a daughter, now Mrs. Smithson E. Wright, of Cincinnati. His son, B. F. Martin, well and favorably known as a lawyer and justice of the peace, resides in Columbus.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

FRANCIS C. SESSIONS.

Francis C. Sessions, merchant and banker, was born in South Wilbraham, Massachusetts, on February 27, 1820. His grandfather, Robert Sessions, was a clerk in Boston in 1773, and was one of the "forty or fifty" men whose exploit at the celebrated Boston Tea Party is thus described by Bancroft:

"On an instant a shout was heard at the porch [of the Old South church]; the war-whoop resounded; a body of men, forty or fifty in number, disguised as Indians, passed by the door, and, encouraged by Samuel Adams, Hancock, and others, repaired to Griffin's wharf, * * * took possession of three tea ships, and in about three hours, three hundred and forty chests of tea, being the whole quantity that had been imported, were turned into the bay, without the least injury to other property."

His ancestor, an officer in the revolutionary war, was subsequently called to fill important official positions. He married Mary Ruggles (whose brother, Benjamin, was United States senator from Ohio, during three terms—eighteen years—being first elected in 1815), and died at the age of eighty-five. Darius Sessions, another of his ancestors, was governor of Rhode Island at the beginning of the Revolution. The historian, Bancroft, says of him:

"In the burning of the "Gaspe" (an affair like the "Boston Tea Party") Darius Sessions and Stephen Hopkins were the two pillars on which the liberty of Rhode Island depended."

The father of Francis C. Sessions, Francis Sessions, was born in South Wilbraham, Massachusetts; married Sophronia Metcalf, of Lebanon, Connecticut, and died at the age of thirty. His widow lived to be eighty years old, and was a woman of remarkable physical and mental vigor, which she retained almost to the last.

Francis C. Sessions' father died when he was about two years old, and, when old enough to work on a farm received from his uncle, Robert, with whom he lived, his first wages, the amount received being twelve dollars for four months' work. He worked on the farm summers and attended common-school winters, until he commenced preparing for college, and attended, in succession, the acadamies of Suffield, Westfield, Wilbraham, and Monson. The failure of his health preventing him from entering college, as he had intended doing, he visited Ohio, in the fall of 1840, and the following year accepted a clerkship in a store in Columbus. In 1843 he entered into a copartnership, under the form of Ellis, Sessions & Co., in the dry goods business. Purchasing the interest of his partners, after two years, he continued the business on his own account, until 1856, when he disposed of his store and engaged in the wool trade. In 1869 he became one of the proprietors, and the president, of the Commercial bank. Throughout the whole term of the late civil war, Mr. Sessions spent a large part of his time in the service of the sanitary commission. He made the memorable trip to Fort Donelson, and, to quote from the records of the commision concerning him, "went to Pittsburg Landing, immediately after the battle, where he was connected with the great work accomplished in the care of the sick and wounded during the spring and early summer of 1862. He went with Dr. Smith to Murfreesboro, upon the occasion of the battle of Stone River; visited Virginia during the second campaign in that State, as well as most other important points in our field of operations, always as an earnest, hard-working, good Samaritan." The report of the commission further records that "the establishment and success of the Columbus [Soldiers'] Home are, in a large degree, due to the efforts of Mr. F. C. Sessions, a member of the Columbus branch of the Sanitary commission, a gentleman who was one of the earliest volunteers in the cause of humanity called out by the war, and who, during its entire continuance, by his labors on battle-fields, in camps and hospitals, while he sacrificed his personal interests and his health, won for himself the admiration and respect of all who knew him." His name frequently appears on the records of the

F. C. Sessions

RESIDENCE OF F. C. SESSIONS, COLUMBUS, OHIO.

D. B. Strait

S. C. Wathen

D. S. Beckley

(PHOTOS. BY ELLIOTT & ARMSTEAD, COLUMBUS)

work of the Sanitary commission at the West, in which, though an unpaid, he was a most earnest and faithful worker. Throughout the existence of the Home at Columbus, Mr. Sessions gave it his constant supervision, and was, in fact, its outside superintendent and manager. Mr. Sessions has held many benevolent and educational trusts; has been a trustee of Marietta and Oberlin colleges, of Wilberforce university, of the Columbus Medical college and Home for the Friendless and of the Ohio institution for the blind. The erection of the magnificent new blind asylum was intrusted to Henry C. Noble and himself. He has contributed not a little to the growth of Columbus in the building of business blocks and numerous houses. He has, at different times, acted as director and president of manufacturing enterprises.

He was one of the original members of the Third Presbyterian church, and subsequently of the First Congregational church of Columbus, in which he has been an officer from the first. He has contributed very largely of his labor and treasure to the prosperity of both. He was for many years an enthusiastic and successful superintendent of the Sunday-school of the latter church, and long acted as a trustee of its ecclesiastical society. The truth of the scriptural declaration, "There is that scattereth and yet increaseth," has been vindicated in his history; for while he has constantly practiced the most munificent liberality, he has accumulated a large fortune.

Mr. Sessions married, August 18, 1847, Mary Johnson, daughter of Orange Johnson, of Worthington.

ISAAC S. BEEKEY,

county commissioner, was born in Berks county, Pennsylvania, September 28, 1825. By the death of his father, which occurred five years later, Isaac was cast upon the world. He found a home with a farmer, and here he acquired such education as could be obtained by an attendance at district school two months in the year. At the age of seventeen, he began to learn the "art preservative;" after serving one year, his employer closed out the establishment, and the boy was again left to his own resources. Believing that the West afforded superior advantages, to one without means, he started for Ohio, in April, 1845, and, on foot, in due time, reached Columbus, his present place of residence. Finding no employment, as a printer, he learned the carpenter's trade, and has since followed the vocation of contractor and builder, by aid of which he has accumulated a comfortable competency. In politics, Mr. Beekey has always been a decided Democrat, and his fidelity to the party has been rewarded by frequent elections to important and responsible positions. His first appearance in public life was in April, 1866, when he was elected to the city council, from the fourth ward. Two years later he was re-elected, and at the expiration of this term he was made real estate appraiser for the fourth, fifth, and sixth wards. In April, 1873, he was again elected to the city council, from the fourth ward, and the following year was made president of the city council. In October, 1874, he was elected to his present position, and re-elected in 1877. Mr. Beekey has always been an active and faithful official, whose acts are characterized by firmness and integrity, both in private and public transactions. He was united in marriage on April 23, 1857, to Miss Catharine, daughter of Charles and Catharine Obitz, by whom two children were born—Ida and Mary.

DENNIS B. STRAIT, county commissioner, was born in the State of New Jersey, on May 20, 1824. He is the second of a family of eleven, the children of Abraham A. and Dulcena Strait, who removed to Franklin county in 1839. They located in Plain township, and here the mother died, not long after. The father died in June, 1862.

The education of the gentleman who is the subject of this sketch, was acquired at common schools, and was quite limited, owing to the fact that his parents were in indigent circumstances, and his being obliged, at an early age, to seek his own living. At the age of twenty years he struck out to battle with fortune, having rough but strong hands, and a brave heart to aid him. Accumulating some means he sought and obtained the hand of Miss Ann, daughter of Caleb and Eliza Farber, to whom he was married on November 20, 1851. Soon after he purchased one hundred acres of land in Plain township, this county; this, by industry and economy on the part of Mr. Strait, aided by his good wife, has been added to, until he now owns six hundred and twenty-five acres, the greater part of which is under a profitable state of cultivation. His life work has been that of a farmer and stock raiser. Of the public life of Mr. Strait, the writer learns that he was first elected county commissioner in the fall of 1860, and served two terms of three years each. Upon the expiration of the second term he was appointed auditor of Franklin county, and in this capacity he served two years. In the fall of 1876 he was a third time elected to the office of commissioner, his term expiring the fall of 1879. Politically, Mr. Strait is a firm adherent to the teachings of the Democratic party. For the past twenty years he has been a member of the society of Free and Accepted masons.

His children are: Whitney, Cordelia (Mrs. B. Ranney), Ann Eliza, and Dulcena, and Edward L., who are deceased.

DANIEL MATHENEY.

The subject of this sketch has an ancestry of the old pioneer stock. He was born September 9, 1823, in Pickaway county, Ohio, and was left an orphan, at the age of eight years, by the death of his father, and about the only inheritance left him was a sound constitution and a strong physical development. The education he acquired was of the most practical and useful kind, and he soon became the main stay of his widowed mother. His early life was spent in agricultural pursuits, with its variety of sunshine and shadow, from all of which he took his practical lessons. Subsequently he became engaged in dealing in stock, and it soon became apparent that "Uncle Dan," as he was familiarly called, was as good a judge of horses, cattle, and hogs, as any man in the country. After locating in Franklin county, he was connected with the blacksmithing business for about three years, at the town of Dublin, but dealing in stock was his principal business, and many have been the droves of cattle he has taken over the mountains, when from sixty to sixty-five days were considered good time from here to New York city. He has also shipped stock, by the more modern transportation, when five or six days are regarded as moderate time, over the same route. For many years, during the war, he was engaged in furnishing horses and other supplies to the army, and in all his transactions he was regarded as a man of good judgment and strict integrity. During his life he has held many positions of trust, and has always discharged his duty with fidelity and credit to himself. In 1875, he was elected to the office of county commissioner, and at the expiration of his term of office, in 1878, he was re-elected to the same office for a second term, which was a public approval of his previous course in the office. He has been twice married, first to Martha Hutcheson, May 12, 1843, who died February 14, 1873; he was again married, to Ruth Hutcheson, March 25, 1875, with whom he is now living, at their comfortable home, near the city of Columbus. During his whole life, good faith and fair dealing have been his guiding star, and he is so regarded in this community, that his word is as good as his bond. He never engaged in wild or visionary speculations, in which there was great risk, but preferred the natural growth and legitimate profits of his business; and thus, by perseverance and industry, he has accumulated, not great wealth, but a handsome competency. He is widely known in this and adjoining counties, and is highly esteemed as one of the substantial men of Franklin county.

PHILIP WILLIAM CORZILIUS.

It is with pleasure that we present to the readers of this volume the following sketch of the life of one of the self-made men of Franklin county. Mr. Corzilius was born in Columbus, Ohio, on the first day of January, 1849. He is the eldest of a family of four, the children of Peter W. and Maria D. Corzilius, who were natives of Germany, who emigrated to America in the year 1841. They came direct to Columbus, and the mother still resides there. The father died July 10, 1866.

The subject of this sketch owes much of his education to our grand system of common schools, so purely American. The father was in poor health, and Philip was obliged, at an early age, to aid in his support. He first engaged in selling newspapers. This he prosecuted some three years. Next he entered a mercantile establishment, and from this he became assistant secretary of the Franklin Insurance company. In September, 1868, he became a clerk in the office of the treasurer of Franklin county, and served under the respective administrations of Messrs. A. C. Headley, James E. Wright, and Lorenzo English, for a period of nine years, and rising from assistant to chief clerk of the treasury. This brings us forward to the fall of 1876, when he became a candidate for the office of treasurer, and so much confidence was reposed in his ability and integrity, that his name was placed upon both the Democratic and Republican tickets, and his election was unanimous, He is, however, a member of the first named party. He was re-elected in 1878.

Mr. Corzilius is an eminent member of the order of Free and Accepted masons, having attained the thirty-second degree. He is also a member of the I. O. O. F., and Knights of Honor, and of the German Lutheran church, of Columbus, Ohio.

On October 10, 1872, he was married to Miss Catherine E. J., daughter of George and Maria Stelzer, of Columbus, and by this union three children have come to shed sunshine about the cosy home: Alma, Flora, and Leo.

HARVEY CASHATT

was born October 21, 1843, in Union township, Highland county, Ohio. He is of French origin, and the fourth child of a family of eleven children, ten of whom are living, being a son of Daniel F. and Amy C. Cashatt. His father was born in Ohio, and his mother in York State. His father is still living, at the age of sixty-five years. His mother died December 4, 1874, at the age of fifty-eight years. His grandparents, upon the father's side, migrated from North Carolina to Ohio, in 1805, and upon the mother's side, from York State, at an early day. He (Harvey) resided upon a farm up to 1861, only attending school during the winter, most of the time at a distance of three and four miles. He enlisted in the late civil war as a private in company C, Forty-eighth Ohio volunteer infantry, on the seventh day of November, 1861, and continued in the same company and regiment until April 4, 1866—long after the close of the war. He veteranized February 26, 1864, at Berwick City, Louisiana. He was engaged in the battles of Shiloh, sieges of Corinth, Vicksburg, and Jackson, Yazzoo Bottoms, Port Gibson, Champion Hill, and numerous skirmishes, forced marches of great distances, etc. March 4, 1864, he was elected one of the sergeants of Company C, by the company vote, and March 6, 1864, was detailed, with three other enlisted men and one commissioned officer, to proceed to Ohio to receive recruits and drafted men for the ranks of his regiment, but instead, were organized into a company called the "Permanent Party," with enlisted men from the old Ohio regiments, who reported at Todd barracks under the same order. Their duties were to act as guards to detachments of recruits, substitutes, and drafted men ordered by the war department to be forwarded to Ohio regiments in the field. Soon after his arrival here he was detailed as clerk in the forwarding office of Tod barracks, under Lieut. James H. Orr. He soon became chief clerk, and remained as such until the barracks were discontinued, when he was transferred to the office of James A. Wilcox, provost-marshal general and commandant of the district of Ohio. He soon succeeded to the position of confidential clerk to General Wilcox, and soon thereafter, General Wilcox remarked to Cashatt that he thought he was doing too much work for the salary of a soldier, and he (Wilcox) immediately wrote to the war department, requesting his discharge from the service, which was granted; when he again wrote to General Fry, provost-marshal general of the United States, asking that he be appointed in the office of the provost-marshal general of Ohio (Wilcox's office), which was again granted, at a salary of ninety dollars per month, proving a very agreeable surprise, making a difference of seventy dollars per month in his salary, in his favor, for the same services. Words cannot express his feelings of gratefulness to Gen. James A. Wilcox, for his kindness, in thus aiding him so materially in his first start in life, after leaving the army. His early education being very limited, laboring under many disadvantages too numerous to detail, leaving school at the age of eighteen to enter the army, he was compelled, after leaving the service in 1866, to occupy all his leisure hours in study, and for months attended commercial college of evenings, in order to sustain himself in the position of trust he occupied at that time. He resigned his position on the tenth day of October, 1866, to accept the chief clerkship at the Zettler house, Columbus, Ohio, under Capt. L. A. Bowers, and remained there until August 10, 1870, when he accepted chief clerkship of the American hotel, Columbus, Ohio, under Col. E. J. Blount, proprietor, and occupied that position until the summer of 1877, when he was nominated by the Democratic party, for clerk of the court of common pleas of Franklin county, Ohio, and was elected October 10, 1877, which position he is now occupying.

He was married December 26, 1870, to Miss Sallie E. Simonton, a teacher in the public schools of Columbus, Ohio, and a daughter of Col. Hiram Simonton, of this county. She died suddenly, with congestion of the lungs, February 12, 1878—the morning after her husband took the oath of office. It is to her, more than all others, her husband acknowledges, in a manly spirit, couched in language expressed in the kindest, tenderest, and heartfelt feeling, that he owes the success attained thus far in life, she occupying the position of one of the gentlest, kindest, most loving and devoted little wives, and a teacher at the same time. He was married on July 12, 1879, to Miss Jennie Seltzer Van Dine, a niece of Dr. Van S. Seltzer, of Columbus, Ohio.

He is now a Democrat, from the fact, as he believes, that democracy means the greatest good to the greatest number, and their legislation tends that way. He looks upon his war record as the brightest page of his life's history. He is a great reader, possesses a fine library, and takes great pleasure in his books, and can be found almost every evening buried within their folds. Mr. Cashatt holds to no particular church; gives to all; is quite liberal in his views; has great faith in the golden rule, and is a man of strong convictions.

JOHN T. GALE,

probate judge. This gentleman is the third child of Franklin and Mary J. Gale (for further of whom see sketch in another portion of this volume). The date of his birth was July 6, 1846, and the place, Zanesville, Muskingum county, Ohio. The education of Judge Gale was acquired in the public schools at Columbus, he entering upon the duties of clerk in the office of the clerk of the court of common pleas, Franklin county, just prior to graduating. After a few months he left the office and engaged in teaching school. In March, 1865, he entered the office he now occupies, as deputy, under John M. Pugh, probate judge, and remained continuously until the spring of 1878, when he became a candidate for the office of probate judge, to which he was unanimously elected the subsequent fall. Judge Gale was married on December 4, 1868, to Miss Sallie, daughter of Henry and Mary Jones, at Columbus, by whom three children were born; Frank, Cora, and Carl. The judge is a prominent member of the society of I. O. O. F., and past grand of Excelsior Lodge Number, 145, at Columbus, Ohio.

NATHAN COLE,

county recorder, was born on September 22, 1815, in West Bloomfield, Ontario county, New York. His parents were Nathan and Mary Cole, natives of New Hampshire, who located in New York in 1808. Here they remained until 1817, when they removed to Ohio, locating temporarily in Granville, Licking county. After one year's sojourn at that point the family removed to Franklinton, this county, where they passed the remainder of their lives. The mother died October 13, 1844, and the father on October 21, 1856. The subject of this sketch derived his education, as but he might, during the winter sessions of the district school, aided greatly by the teaching of his mother. When sixteen years of age he became a clerk in the store of Jacob Grubb, one of the early merchants of Franklinton. Here he remained until the spring of 1835, when he went into business for himself. He was prospering finely when the panic of 1837 struck the county, and, having but little capital, he was swept away by the rapid current, and with thousands of others, found himself, when the storm had subsided, penniless. He was engaged in teaching school, and in March, 1840, entered the office he now occupies, as clerk for his brother, then recorder. He continued here until 1846, during the winter assisting the county treasurer in the duties of that office. In October, 1846, Mr. Cole was put in nomination for the office of recorder, for Franklin county, by the Democratic party, and elected in opposition to William T. Martin, a time-honored incumbent, to the office, and no better evidence of his fitness can be given than that he has been continuously elected to the office until the present period. Mr. Cole is entitled to great credit for the able manner in which he has remedied the damage produced by the incendiary fire in his office in January, 1878, which destroyed several volumns, and he has ever been an efficient and faithful officer. On July 31, 1836, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary, daughter of David and Phebe Sayles, who were natives of Providence, Rhode Island. The children are as follows: Hannah, who is deceased, Clara, Mrs. Robert L. Willie, Lannassa, M., Mrs. Charles E. Luckhaupt, Nathan, who married Miss Ella Say, Mary, Mrs. Joseph J. Stoddart, and George, who remains at home.

Mr. Cole says he is a Democrat of the Tom Payne, Thomas Jefferson, George Washington, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln school.

PHOTO BY BAKER.

P. W. Lorzbaugh

TREASURER.

Harvey Cashatt

CLERK.

Nathan Dole

RECORDER.

PHOTO BY BAKER.

E. Kiesewetter

AUDITOR.

Jno. F. Gale

PROBATE JUDGE.

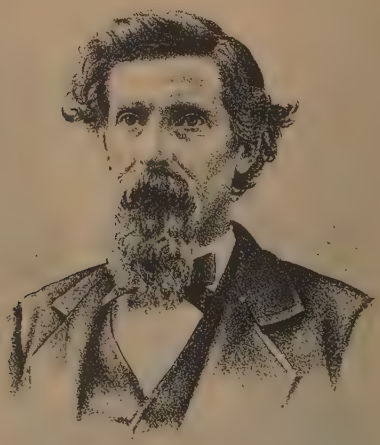
(PHOTOS BY ELLIOTT & ARMSTEAD, COLUMBUS.)

Josiah Kinnear

SHERIFF.

P. A. Egan

CORONER.



B. F. Bowen

SURVEYOR.

(PHOTOS. BY ELLIOTT & ARMSTEAD.)

ANDREW BACKUS.

E. KIESEWETTER.

county auditor, was born on the fifteenth day of May, 1845. He is the third child of Theodore E. and Joanna E. Kiesewetter, natives of Germany, who emigrated to America in the year 1844. They located temporarily in Prairie township, this county, where they resided until 1849, when they removed to Columbus. Here the mother died, August 31, 1850. The father died May 11, 1874.

The education of the gentleman whose name heads this sketch, was acquired in the public schools of Columbus, and was quite limited, from the fact that he was, at an early period, obliged to labor for his support. At the age of twelve years he engaged at the Fremont house, Columbus, Ohio, where he remained two years. He next attended a term at the Columbus commercial college, where he made book-keeping his especial study, and with what success his present position bears ample testimony. Immediately subsequent to the close of his studies at the college he engaged with F. A. Sells, and from this time until 1862 he was in constant employment. And now occurs a period in his life which the writer delights to chronicle. It is ever pleasant to speak of the brave defenders of our country's honor, during those dark and terrible days of Rebellion.

On September 30, 1862, being then a lad of but seventeen, he donned the blue, and as a private in company B, of the Forty-sixth regiment of Ohio volunteer infantry, went forth to die, if need be, for those grand old colors, the stars and stripes, and narrowly did he escape the alternative. At the battle of Resaca, Georgia, on May 14, 1864, he was severely wounded in the left hip, from the effects of which he was confined to his bed seven long, weary months. The wound became gangrenous and his life was despaired of, but, thanks to a hardy constitution and the skillful treatment of the attending surgeon (doubtless accidental), he recovered, and was discharged the service at Camp Chase, Ohio, March 31, 1865. He remained at the hospital, as clerk, until August 25th, subsequent, when he engaged with P. Hayden & Son, of Columbus, as book-keeper. This position was held continuously until the fall of 1878, when he assumed the arduous and responsible duties of county auditor. It is perhaps needless to state that Mr. Kiesewetter is an efficient and faithful officer. He is a prominent member of the orders of Free and Accepted masons, the I. O. O. F. and the Knights of Pythias.

Mr. Kiesewetter was united in marriage, on November 4, 1869, to Miss Francis, daughter of Henry and Catharine Orthafer. Two children have blessed this union—Frank L. and Henry W., the latter of whom is deceased, county coroner, was born in Ireland, Prairie county, on September 14, 1830. He is of a family of thirteen, the children of John and Bridget Egan, who died—the mother on September 24, 1851, and the father on October 24, 1852. The gentleman whose life is briefly sketched in the following lines, acquired his education in his native country. On January 16, 1850, he, in company with his two sisters, Mary and Johanna, left his home for America, that land whose flag guarantees protection and equal rights to all, and on the sixteenth day of the following March, he landed in New York, with but two dollars and fifty cents in his pocket, and a stranger in a great city. His prospects were not particularly flattering, but he was not of those who turn back, and soon found work for himself and sisters, in Washington county, New York. The subsequent fall, he secured a situation in a foundry, in Boston, Massachusetts. On May 9, 1852, he arrived in Columbus, Ohio, and soon obtained employment with Huntington Fitch, esq. This he continued until fall, when he secured a situation at the Columbus Asylum for the Insane, and in this he remained until the spring of 1855, when he took his departure for California. He remained in the "land of gold" four years, returning to Columbus on December 28, 1859. The next spring he purchased two carriages, and went into business. This he continued until October 15, 1865, when he engaged in the livery and undertaking business. Mr. Egan is one of those unassuming gentlemen, who, though modest, is energetic and tireless in his devotion to business. Courteous and obliging, he has built up for himself a trade and a reputation which are flattering to his business attainments. His prosperity and success, which are due to his untiring industry, are especially gratifying to his numerous friends, who have associated with him here for the past quarter of a century. He has the largest establishment of its kind in the city, employing twenty-seven horses.

---

P. A. EGAN,

Mr. Egan was elected coroner of Franklin county in the fall of 1869, and has held the office continuously until the present time, than which no better proof of his capability can be adduced.

On October 21, 1861, he was united in marriage to Mary, daughter of Timothy and Nancy A. Ryen. Of the eight children born of this union, seven are now living: Johanna, Mary, Maggie, John, Joseph, Alice, and Kate. Mrs. Egan died on the twenty-first day of October, 1879.

ANDREW BACKUS,

living, son of Simon Backus, was born in Middleborough, Plymouth county, Massachusetts, October 3, 1790, in the old homestead that formerly belonged to his grandfather, Rev. Isaac Backus, the Baptist minister and historian. He was a descendant of Stephen Backus, who came from Norwich, England, about 1635, and lived in Saybrook. Afterwards, in 1660, he moved to Norwich, Connecticut, with his three sons. They were among the first settlers of that place, and he was the first white man that died in Norwich. Hannah Alden, the mother of Andrew Backus, was fifth in lineal descent from John Alden, one of the Mayflower pilgrims that landed at Plymouth, December, 1620. Mr. Backus lived with his father, working on the farm and attending school, until he went to Taunton to learn the cabinet trade with William and Henry Washburn. At the age of twenty-one, having finished his trade, he remained some time with them as a journeyman. While living in Raynham, Massachusetts, he was enrolled as a soldier in the war of 1812, under Captain Chase. This company was stationed at Fairhaven. When discharged, he went to Middleborough to live, and was drafted and enrolled as corporal under Captain Greenleaf Pratt, who joined the remainder of the command at Plymouth beach, September 21, 1814. Mr. Backus received an honorable discharge, also a deed from the government of one hundred and sixty acres of land in Plymouth county, Iowa; further recognition of his services was given him in the form of a pension, by act of congress. He is the oldest living (continuous) citizen of Columbus, and voted at the October election of 1879, in his ninetieth year. He has aided some in building up the city, having built several business and dwelling houses. He came from a long-lived stock, had a strong constitution, and these, together with regular and temperate habits, have given him almost perfect health and freedom from sickness. He rarely knew, by experience, what sickness was, until late years. His brother, Joseph A. Backus, in his eighty-first year, lives in Middleborough, Massachusetts, on the old homestead of his father and grandfather.

May 25, 1815, he decided to go to Columbus, Ohio, then a great undertaking, and a long, tedious journey, full of hardship and exposure, taking several weeks to make the trip. At Chenango Point he remained several months. At Franklin, Pennsylvania, he saw the Indians spreading blankets on the river, gathering floating oil, which they sold as a cure for rheumatism. At Pittsburg he took passage on a flat-boat down the Ohio river, to the mouth of the Muskingum; there took passage on a boat to Zanesville, and thence by wagon to Columbus, through forests and over almost impassable mud and corduroy roads, arriving in Columbus the twenty-fifth of October. He immediately made arrangements for the manufacture of furniture, being the first to begin the cabinet trade in Columbus. His shop was on High, north of Mound street. He built, opposite this, a double frame dwelling, with John W. Smith, now the third house north of Mound, on the west side of High street.

May 10, 1817, Mr. Backus started, on horseback, for Middleborough, Massachusetts. He rode as far as Catskill, and then sold his horse and took the boat to Providence. The trip, which took him fifty-four days to complete, was for the purpose of marrying Miss Bathsheba King, daughter of John King, of Raynham, Massachusetts. The happy couple were united, August 24, 1817, and remained at Raynham and Middleborough, visiting with their friends, until September 14th, when they bade good-bye to kindred, and set out to try their fortunes on the frontier. They traveled with their own team, in a covered wagon well filled with necessary articles for housekeeping, and were sixty-two days, journeying towards the setting sun, before arriving in Columbus, Ohio. The time occupied gives some faint idea of the rough, uneven roads through the dense forests, with mud up to the hubs, often having to obtain help to pry their wagon out. They arrived, November 16, 1817, with thankful hearts, rejoicing to be at rest in their new home. The mail carrier, who came once a week, on horseback, was eagerly looked for, as he brought tidings from loved ones at home.

In April, 1831, there was a revival of religion, and fifty persons united with the First Presbyterian church, including Mr. Backus. Mrs. Backus united with the same church some years previous. He then took an active interest in the church, and taught a class in the Sabbath-school. The cholera came in July, 1833, and about one-third of the citizens fled from the terrible scourge. But this thought impressed him—"The path of duty is alone the path of safety," and he remained and did what he could for those needing his services. The board of health reported two hundred deaths that summer, from all causes.

The following extract is from the Ohio State Journal, 1866:

"The manufacture of furniture and cabinet ware is one of our best developed branches of trade. This is now represented by three powerful firms, whose sales aggregate in amount nearly, or quite, three hundred thousand dollars per annum. It is curious, in this connection, to trace the rise and progress of this business, now so much a specialty, and a retrospective glance will be interesting, as well as instructive. Mr. Andrew Backus, the pioneer in the manufacture of furniture in Columbus, Ohio, moved to this city in 1816, and soon after established himself in this business on High, near Mound streets. Columbus was then a village of about seven hundred inhabitats, and a majority of the buildings clustered on Front street. The great event of the season was the assembling of the legislature, for the first time, in the new State house, on the corner of High and State streets, and quite an energetic effort was made to burn up the stumps in High street, so that it might be presentable in time for the coming session. Mr. Backus, with his employes, worked in the old shop some seven years, when he moved into more commodious buildings, erected by him in the rear of where the Backus buildings now are, on the east side of High, near Town street. In 1838 he built the brick store-room adjoining, on the north of his dwelling, and occupied by his sons, Orrin and Lafayette Backus, as a family grocery store, and, in 1848, built the three-story brick business block adjoining his residence on the south. Mr. Backus carried on the business some forty years, and retired, leaving an extensive trade to his successors."

Mrs. Bathsheba Backus, his wife, the eighth child of John King, was born in Raynham, Bristol county, Massachusetts, April 26, 1794, and died January 25, 1879, at Columbus, Ohio. She was a descendant of Captain Philip King, one of the first settlers of Raynham. He came from England, where he had been contending for religious liberty, to this wilderness. The place was then not far from the ravages of the Indian war. Being a favorite with the Indians (with whom he traded extensively), he was never molested, as all his dealings with them were strictly honest. He died, and was borne to his grave, in the cemetery near Neck of Land, Taunton, attended with military honors. Mrs. Backus had a liberal education, and resided at her father's until after her marriage—August 24, 1817—with Andrew Backus. She emigrated with her husband to Columbus, in their own conveyance, with her marriage outfit to begin housekeeping. She experienced the trials and deprivations incident to a frontier life. At an early day she united with Dr. Hoge's church, and, as a teacher and laborer in the Sabbath-school, she had few superiors. For many years previous to her death she was an invalid, and confined much of the time to the house. Three of her five children survive her. She was buried in Green Lawn cemetery, near Columbus. Her sister, Mrs. Hannah King Davis, died, December, 1879, in her ninety-ninth year, in New York city.

FRANKLIN GALE

was born at Oxford, Massachusetts, August 25, 1802. He lived in Worchester, Amherst, and neighboring towns till 1821, and by his own exertions obtained a classical education. In 1833 he came to Ohio, and located at Wordsfield, where he practiced law for several years. He was married at Somerfield, Monroe county, Ohio, to Mary J. Cleveland, and shorly afterward removed to Zanesville, where he resided until 1850, following his profession, and, in this interval, holding two or three important positions of public trust. In December, 1848, he commenced the publication of a newspaper called the People's Platform, which was, in November, 1849, removed to Columbus, and subsequently merged into the Columbian, afterwards the Ohio Statesman, which he edited until his death. In 1850 his family followed him to Columbus, where he resided during the remaining twenty-five years of his life. Here Mr. Gale practiced law for several years, but the greater portion of his time, after he became a resident of Columbus, was devoted to journalism, in an editorial and reportorial capacity. Also, during this time, he prepared for publication several books, pamphlets, and political documents, which made him thoroughly conversant with the politics and events of the day, and brought him in close contact with the leading men of the country. His acquaintance extended very generally throughout the State. In the year 1867 he was elected official reporter of the senate of the fifty-seventh general assembly, which position he filled at each subsequent session of the legislature until his demise. In April, 1874, he was elected justice of the peace of Montgomery township, but died on the twentieth of the same month, in the seventy-second year of his age. His widow yet resides in Columbus.

Sylvester W., Ella, A., John T., Mary E., and Anna S. Gale, were born at Zanesville, Ohio—except the youngest, Anna S. The eldest, Sylvester, W., is associate publisher and editor of the Columbus Herald, a weekly newspaper; John T. is probate judge of Franklin county, and all reside in Columbus, Ohio.

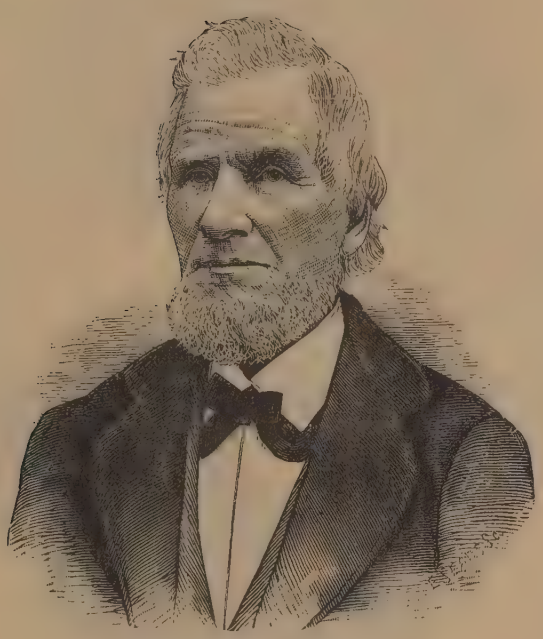
JOSIAH KINNEAR,

sheriff, is the second child of Samuel and Ellen Kinnear. He was born in Clinton township, this county, on June 27, 1834. His father came to Ohio, from Pennsylvania, in 1806, first settling in Pickaway county, where he lived until 1833. He then removed to this county, and opened a hotel in what is now North Columbus. He was a justice of the peace some thirty-eight years, and died March 6, 1867. The mother, Ellen Hill, came with her father's family, from Virginia, in 1813. She was then ten years of age, and rode the entire distance on horseback. Her parents located near Darbyville, in Pickaway county. Mrs. Kinnear is now living in Columbus. Sheriff Kinnear began his education in the Columbus public schools, attended the university at Westerville some time, and finished at the Capital university, Columbus, Ohio. He began life as a farmer and surveyor, and in the latter capacity, laid out, in 1854, North Columbus. In 1870, he was elected surveyor for Franklin county, and at the end of three years was elected city engineer. In the fall of 1877, he was elected sheriff, his term of office expiring in the fall of 1879. He is a Democrat, a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the Ancient Order of Workmen, of which he has been treasurer since its organization. His wife is Josephine, a daughter of Captain Alexander and Flora Shattuck, of Locust Grove, this county, by whom four children were born—Samuel A., William S., Edgar F., and Lizzie.

B. F. BOWEN,

county surveyor and civil engineer, is of Scotch ancestry. He was born in Wooster, Wayne county, Ohio, on the twelfth of February, 1827, and, after receiving a common-school education, "finished up," as the phrase goes, at the old academy, on the hill, in Springfield, Ohio. But, as an eminent English lawyer, who, when asked the question, at what age he had completed his studies, replied, that he had never finished them, and did not expect to do so until he died, Mr. Bowen is still a student of some of the higher branches of mathematics, and particularly so of civil engineering. He has devoted all his spare time to them, and will remain a student while life lasts. After leaving the academy at Springfield, he taught school in Clark and Madison counties for several years. Preferring a more active life, in 1852 he became a resident of Columbus, where he was a successful contractor and builder. Here he commenced business as land surveyor and civil engineer. Three years after, he became connected with the office of city civil engineer, and, in 1867, was elected chief of that office, which position he held for five years. During his connection with this office, more improvements in main trunk sewers, wood block pavements, etc., were made, necessitating the attention of the city engineer, than for any like period either before or since. In May, 1874, Mr. Bowen was appointed county surveyor to fill a vacancy, and, with it, that of county civil engineer. Since then he has been twice elected by the people as county surveyor, and is still retained by the commissioners as county civil engineer, in which latter office he has had charge of the bridges erected, and all other county matters requiring engineering skill.

At the time of the Ashtabula bridge disaster, in December, 1877, where many lives were lost, and much property destroyed, by the giving way of the bridge, while being crossed by a long train of passenger cars, a legislative examination was demanded. A jocoint committee of the senate and house of representatives was appointed, who visited the scene of the disaster, taking with them, as experts, three civil engineers of Columbus, at the head of whom was Mr. Bowen. The report of the committee, with diagrams of the bridge by the engineers, was published. The report of the engineers was credited to Mr. Bowen as the author. A prominent civil engineer, residing in Michigan, sent to the author of this for a copy, and, in acknowledging its receipt, pronounced it the clearest and plainest expose of the defects of railroad bridge building he had ever read. The report was widely commented upon in scientific papers, and always in terms of highest praise.



Franklin Gale

John U. Rickenbacker

RESIDENCE OF MRS. PETER AMBOS, (RESIDENCE OF LATE PETER AMBOS.)
COLUMBUS, O.

Peter Ambos

In land surveying, Mr. Bowen has always given satisfaction. As county civil engineer, he has much experience and a thorough knowledge of his business. As an officer, he is prompt and attentive to his duties. He is a man of positive character, good morals and strict integrity, and has the esteem of all who know him.

Mr. Bowen was united in marriage on July 2, 1868, to Miss Carrie H., daughter of Hon. Charles B. and Mary Flood, of Columbus, Ohio, by whom four children were born: Josephine, Frank, William K., and Charles, who are all living.

JOHN U. RICKENBACHER.

The subject of this brief biographical notice, John U. Rickenbacher, sheriff-elect of Franklin county, was born in Canton Bossel, Switzerland, November 30, 1822. His parents, Jacob and Elizabeth Rickenbacher, were farmers; but as they did not desire their son to follow their own calling, he was apprenticed, at the age of fifteen years, to a tailor, with whom he remained eight years.

In 1846, he emigrated to America, landing in New York August 13. On the sixth of October, the same year, he came to Columbus, where he has lived ever since, with the exception of the time he was with the United States army, in Mexico. He enlisted in the spring of 1847, in company B, of the Fourth regiment, Ohio volunteer infantry, and remained in the service until honorably discharged, after the declaration of peace, in July, 1848. He was in the engagements at Homaudla, Pueobla, and Atlisco. He enlisted as a private, and was promoted to the position of sergeant.

On the close of the Mexican war Mr. Rickenbacher returned immediately to Columbus, and resumed work at his trade. He was employed as a journeyman tailor three years, by N. Burgle, and nine years, by H. Coit & Company. After the expiration of the latter term he went into partnership with C. Hertenstein, with whom he remained for six and a half years, and severed the connection in 1866, only to engage in the same business—merchant tailoring—alone.

Politically, Mr. Rickenbacher was an independent voter, until the candidacy of John C. Fremont, when he became affiliated with the party of which he has ever since been an adherent and supporter. He was a strong Union man during the civil war, did much to help the cause, and but for circumstances, too strong to be overcome, would have been found in the fighting ranks. Although having a warm interest in the success of those principles which he deemed right, he took no very active part in politics until 1872, when he was elected councilman from the Fifth ward. His term expired in 1874, and he was re-elected, serving two years more. In the spring of 1877 he was elected police commissioner, for a term of four years, but resigned his office, when he accepted the nomination for the sheriffalty. The Republicans of Franklin county paid him the deserved compliment of this nomination, at the convention held August 1, 1879, and he was elected October 14th, following.

The subject of this sketch was married, December 6, 1848, to Miss Elizabeth Christina Schafer. The offspring who blessed this union were: Franklina (deceased); William, who is a resident of Mifflin township; Caroline (Shrader), Albert, and John M., who are living in Columbus.

About the time that he was married Mr. Rickenbacher became a member of the German Lutheran church, and in later years of the Evangelical church, of which he is one of the leading supporters.

Mr. Rickenbacher in his public and private relations has had the warmest regard and highest respect of all with whom he has come in contact. He is a man of simple, quiet tastes, careful and conscientious in business affairs, and of absolutely unsullied reputation and character. His successful career has been, and is, equally illustrative of the worth of honest, manly, personal endeavor, and of the beneficent effects of a Republican form of government, in which the foreigner and the native born, the wealthy and those of humbler condition, have the same opportunities of social or business advancement, and of political preferment.

THEODORE LEONARD

is the son of French parents—Louis Leonard and Catharine (La Valle), who lived for a time in New York State, but removed from there to Canada and located near Montreal, where Theodore was born, October 25, 1820. His father was a well-to-do farmer but lost his property, and from the time he was twelve years of age the son was obliged to look out for himself. He worked for the farmers in the vicinity of his home, getting wages which were a mere pittance, until he was twenty years of age. Although his earnings were small, he managed, by the most careful economy, to accumulate a small sum of money, and from the very first was seldom, if ever, entirely without resources. The school was a hard one, but the lessons learned were valuable, for they established the habits of prudence, industry and thrift, that have combined to make Mr. Leonard's career one of success.

When Theodore Leonard was twenty years of age, in 1840, he came to Columbus, where his father had preceeded him. He was comparatively empty handed and could not speak a word of English. He immediately went to work at brick making, being employed by W. Atcheson as a common laborer. He exhibited qualities which Mr. Atcheson admired, and after three years had passed by was taken into partnership with Mr. Atcheson and another gentleman, the firm name being Atcheson, Shuemaker & Leonard. For sixteen years Mr. Leonard remained in the same business and partnership. At the expiration of that period the firm dissolved and the partners each took an equal share of one hundred and seventy-five acres of land that they had bought in common. This was the beginning of Mr. Leonard's ownership of land. He continued in the brick-making business and engaged in farming. As his means increased he added piece after piece of land to the small tract he originally owned, until he accumulated his present possessions, nine hundred acres of land, which lies in the townships of Marion, Clinton and Mifflin. In addition to the other business which claimed his attention, the subject of this sketch, became a contractor and builder—erecting from forty to fifty houses in the city of Columbus and its vicinity. But it was in buying and selling real estate that he perhaps made the greater portion of his ample fortune. He bought and sold a great many thousand dollars worth of city and country property, and, in the main, was very successful in his ventures, though by no means uniformily so, for, like other men of varied and extensive business affairs, he met with some serious reverses, from one cause and another. The real estate lying close to the city limits increased fast, in value, as the city grew in prosperity and extended its territory. The avenue, bearing his name, was opened through Mr. Leonard's property in 1870, and did considerable towards enhancing its value.

Mr. Leonard is one of those men who, from their manner of using wealth, show themselves worthy of being its possessors. His good fortune has been to the advantage of others than himself. His public and private charites give evidence of the most whole-souled generosity of nature, and are perpetual memorials or monuments of his kind character. Among his larger donations may be mentioned one of five thousand dollars to the building fund of the Catholic cathedral, and a still more munificent gift to the seminary known as St. Mary's of the Springs. This institution, located in Mifflin township, has grounds thirty-three acres in extent, which Mr. Leonard gave outright for the use of the school, in addition to the donation of ten thousand dollars in cash. Besides these large gifts there have been many smaller, unostentatious tenders of aid to worthy objects, and many utterly unknown save to doner and recipient. Such is Mr. Leonard's reputation among those who know him well.

Mr. Leonard is the father of eight living children. His home, which stands just upon the Clinton and Marion township line, is one of the pleasantest in that part of the county. The house, of which a view appears upon another page, was built by its present owner in the year 1852.

PETER E. AMBOS.

Peter Emil Ambos, son of Henry Ambos, was born September 29, 1814, in Zweibruken, Rheinbaiern, Germany, where he remained until nearly seventeen years of age, when, in 1830, he emigrated to America, and landed at Norfolk, Virginia. He remained in Norfolk two years, and worked at making confectionery, which business he learned, and in 1832 removed to Columbus, where he ever after resided. He opened a confectionery store on south High street, in a building situated on the ground now occupied by Comstock's opera house, his place of business being located about where Miss Wilkie's millinery establishment is now conducted. There he remained about nine years, one year of which was in a partnership with George Egner, who came with him from Norfolk. He came to this country poor in purse, but rich in the possession of good habits, and by strict attention to business, and stern habits of integrity, coupled with an indomitable perseverance, he laid the foundation of a successful life, and was enabled to amass a large property. Some nine years after engaging in business here he was enabled to purchase the ground whereon the present store of Stevenson, Ruhl & Company is located, where he continued the confectionery business. This business he disposed of in 1854, when he became connected with the Columbus Manufacturing company of which he was treasurer during the presidency respectively of Samuel Galloway and John S. Hall. The name of the company was afterwards changed to the Columbus Machine company, of which Mr. Ambos was made president in 1865, from which time, and during the remainder of his life he was president and treasurer. He was one of the men who organized the First National bank of Columbus, in 1863, and was elected its first vice-president. After the death of W. B. Hubbard, in 1866, he was made president, which office he continued to hold until his death. He was also president of the old Capital Insurance company until it was merged into the Franklin Insurance company. On the first day of August, 1841, he was united in marriage to Dorothea Jaeger, of this city, who survives him. To them were born three children, Emelie, Emil, and Herman. Mr. Ambos had not had good health for several of the later years of his life, and while at Kelley's Island, in the spring of 1866, he contracted a severe cold, which resulted in catarrh of the lungs, in consequence of which he went to the Hot Springs of Arkansas, whence he returned in May much improved in health. He was a man of very regular habits, and was generous to a fault. No charity scarcely appealed to him in vain. He was a man of good business qualifications, and of sterling integrity. All who knew him missed him, and none more so than those who were intimately associated with him in his business relations. He was at the First National bank up to the closing hours on Saturday, in about his usual health, from whence he repaired to his home on south High street. Shortly after his arrival at his home he was seized with a fainting spell, from which he revived, and soon after retired to rest. About eleven o'clock he was taken with severe vomiting, and after this called once for his wife. Unconsciousness soon followed, which continued until his death, at half-past two o'clock Sunday morning, June 25, 1877. The immediate cause of his death was pronounced apoplexy. Besides his wife and their children, he had a sister in the city, Mrs. Louis Hoster, who mourn his death. As a banker, Mr. Ambos was prompt and accurate in judgment, and faithful to all interests confided to his care. Throughout his business career he was known as a man of unquestionable integrity and unblemished honor. As a citizen he was enterprising and public-spirited, and assisted much in all public improvements, besides contributing largely to charitable undertakings. As a neighbor and friend he was cheerful, intelligent, courteous, and kind, and at his death left no enemy in the community wherein he had lived nearly half a century. A portrait of Peter Emil Ambos, together with a representation of his beautiful home on south High street, Columbus, appears in connection with this sketch of his life.

CHRISTIAN F. JAEGER.

The subject of this sketch, Christian Frederick Jaeger, was born at Heiligenrode, in Hesse Cassel, Germany, August 11, 1795. His parents were Rev. John Justus Jaeger, a minister of the German Reformed church, and Maria Jaeger. When but four years of age, his father died, and his mother moved, with her children, to Hesse Cassel, where they were educated. In 1811, his mother was enabled to procure his admittance into the Westphalian Artillery school, where he pursued military studies, under able instructors, until 1812 or 1813, when the French were driven out of the city by a Russian corps, under the brave General Zernicheff. On their departure, the young artillery soldier determined to follow them, and join the allied forces of his native land, which he was able to do after the battle of Leipzig. The Kur-Hessian army was organized, and formed a part of the north German allied army, and young Jaeger was commissioned a second lieutenant. His superior officer was the celebrated Kleistfun Nollendorf. The German army pursued the enemy into French territory, but the corps to which he was attached took no active part in any severe battles. After the signing of the treaty of Paris, by which peace became assured, he returned to his native country, where he continued in the service, as an officer of the Kur-Hessian army. He was successively promoted to first lieutenant and captain, and was made commandant of the flying artillery corps, in which he served until 1832, when, by his own request, he was relieved from further service. By the document accepting of his resignation, he is granted the privilege of re-entering the service at any time. The following is an accurate copy of the acceptance of his resignation, and is signed by the reigning prince of Hesse Cassel:

FRIEDERICH WILHELM,
von Gottes Gnaden,

Kurprinz und Mitregent von Hessen, Erbgrossherzog von Fulda, Fuerst zu Hersfeld, Hanau, Fritzlar und Ysenburg, Graf zu Catzenelnbogen, Dietz, Ziegenhain, Nidda und Schaumberg, etc., etc.:

Nachdem Wir dem, in Unserer Artillerie bisher gestandenen Captain Christian Friederich Jaeger den underthaenigst nachgesuchten Abschied, nebst dessen Versetzung, a la suite der Artillerie und vorbehaltlich seines Wiedereintrittes in der dermaligen Ancienmitaet fuer den Fall einer Wiederanstellung, in derselben, gnaedigst zugestanden haben, so wird darueber das gegenwaertige Dokument ertheilt, und zugleich bezeugt: dass der genannte Captain waehrend seiner Dienstzeit von neunzehn Jahren, sechs Monaten die ihm obliegenden Pflichten, den Gesetzen der Ehre und des Dienstes gemaess, auf strengste erfuellt hat.

Urkundlich Unserer hoechsteigenhaendigen Unterschrift und des beigedruckten Staats-Siegels.

WILHELMSHOEHE, den 7ten July, 1832.

[S. S.] FRIEDERICH WILHELM, Kurprinz und Mitregent.

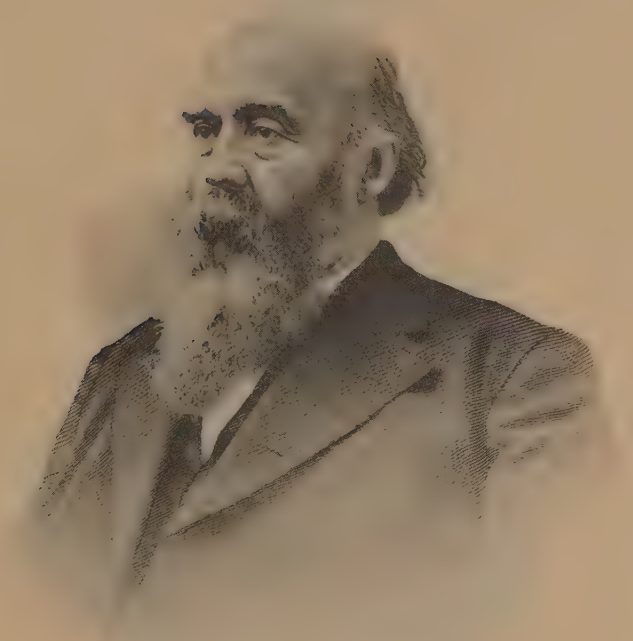
Abschied fuer den in der Artillerie getandenen Capitain Christian Friederich Jaeger.

Christian Frederick Jaeger was married in 1821, to Johanna Henrietta Brauer, who was born January 28, 1799, and died in Coulumbus, February 10, 1868. Mr. and Mrs. Jaeger, with their children, emigrated to America in 1834, leaving Germany in April, and arriving in New York the third of July. Their intention was to proceed to Missouri, and there make a home. With this destination in view, they took a steamboat on the Hudson river, after about a week's delay in New York, and journeyed to Albany. They then traveled, on the first horse railway built in the country, to Schenectady; from Schenectady, by canal, to Buffalo; then by steamer, on Lake Erie, to Cleveland, where they again embarked on a canal boat, having for fellow-passengers, a part of the way, a flock of sheep. When they arrived at Lockbourne, they found that the feeder of the canal was broken, and boats could not come up to Columbus. A large wagon was procured, in which the children and the baggage were loaded, while those strong enough to walk footed it to Columbus. The entire journey consumed three weeks. After they had arrived in Columbus, it was deemed best to proceed no farther west, as the cholera was raging with great violence at the time. Several months after arriving here, Mr. Jaeger made a purchase of one hundred and forty acres of land, on what is now the south part of the principal street of the city. Here Mr. Jaeger has since lived, in a house built and occupied by Governor Lucas, many years since. The extension of the city to the south, has brought this property within the city limits, and has largely increased its value. A considerable portion of it has since been sold, but there yet remain of the original farm sixty-five acres, which has not been surveyed into city lots.

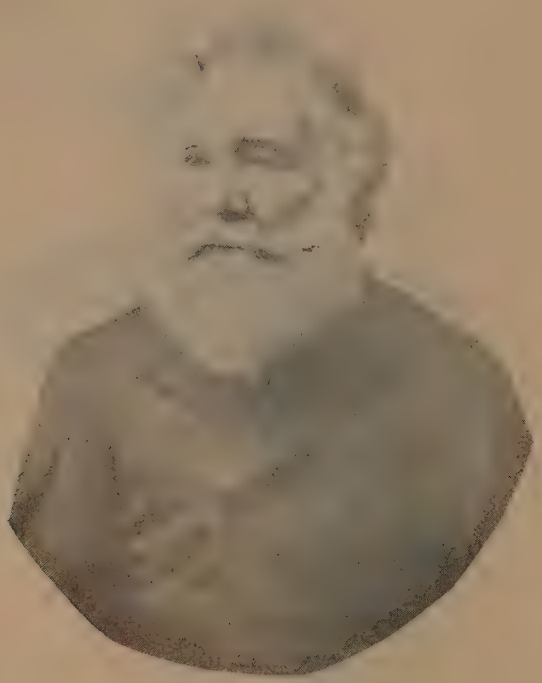
To Mr. and Mrs. Jaeger were born eleven children seven in Germany, and four after their settlement in Columbus. The names of those who grew to maturity were: Dorothea (now Mrs. Peter Ambos), Herman W., Henry, who died in 1846, Maria (now Mrs. Selbach), Joanna (now Mrs. Hoffman), Edward, who died in 1870, Frederick, Matilda (now Mrs. Lesquereaux), Emma (now Mrs. Fix); Henrietta died when about two years of age, and an infant also died. Of this large family, seven are now living, all but one (Mrs. Fix) in Columbus. Mr. Jaeger has always lived a retired life as a farmer, and has taken much interest in agricultural pursuits. He imported a number of varieties of fruit trees from Germany, among them a harvest apple that has become a general favorite. He has never taken an active part in the politics of this country, though he has always kept informed on political affairs, and has generally exercised his privilege to vote. During the late war between Germany and France, probably no person in the city took a greater interest in the result of the struggle than did Mr. Jaeger.

HON. LEANDER FIRESTONE, M. D., LL. D.,

superintendent of the Hospital for the Insane near Columbus, is one of the most remarkable and successful examples in the State of the self-made man. By his own unaided efforts he has climbed triumphantly from one of the humblest to one of the most exalted walks of life. His career affords to young men everywhere a shining illustration of the possibilities inherent in energy, pluck, and persistence of character and purpose, especially in the free life and amid the abounding opportunities of this republic. Dr. Firestone is of Teutonic extraction. His father, Daniel F. Firestone, was an immigrant in 1815, from Beaver county, Pennsylvania, to Wayne county, Ohio. In Salt Creek township, in the latter county, on the eleventh of April, 1819, the subject of



D. C. D. Finlayson



C. F. Jaeger

Yours Truly
John M. Pugh

this notice was born. His general education was received altogether in the country schools of that region, and at Salem academy, whither he went at the early age of fourteen, supporting himself while there by manual labor, a part of the time by chopping cord-wood at three shillings a cord. He began teaching district schools when in his sixteenth year, receiving, at times, but twelve dollars per month, and boarding himself. His first school was in what is now Perry township, Ashland county, but he afterwards taught nearer home—in Wayne county. He continued in his profession, if such it may be called, during about four years, and also "kept school" at intervals during his study of medicine, which he began in 1838, at the age of nineteen. Toward this branch of the world's work, he showed a decided bent while still a boy; and, determining to excel in whatever he undertook, he was frequently remarked as being studiously engaged with his books, while other juveniles were at play. In 1839, he entered the office of Dr. Stephen F. Day, in Wooster, who was renowned as one of the most skilful surgeons in the State, and to whom Dr. Firestone attributes much of his own proficiency in this line of practice. During the winter of 1840–1, the young candidate for medical honors and emoluments attended lectures at the Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia, and in 1845–6, at the Cleveland Medical college, where he was graduated in the latter year. He then located, as a practitioner, at Congress village, in Wayne county, but shortly took a vacation for special studies in practical and surgical anatomy, and the principles of operative surgery, the latter under Prof. H. A. Ashley, M. D., of Cleveland. In 1848, he was elected demonstrator of anatomy at his alma mater, the Cleveland Medical college (or medical department of the Western Reserve college). He retained this appointment until 1853, when he was called to a higher and more important duty, as the first superintendent of the Northern Ohio Insane asylum, at Newburg, now the Eighteenth ward of Cleveland. Getting this institution thoroughly organized, and well upon its feet, he retired from its superintendency, in 1856, to enter upon general practice in Wooster. In this, however, his eminent abilities and reputation did not suffer him long to remain. He was recalled to Cleveland, in 1863, by an election to the chair of midwifery in the Charity Hospital Medical college, now, in the same city, the Medical Department of the University of Wooster. In 1868, he was elected to the chair of surgery, which he held until 1872, and was then made professor of medical and surgical diseases of women, in the same institution, holding at the time, also, the position of class lecturer on anatomy, physiology, and hygiene in the University proper. In 1874, he received the honorary degree of doctor of laws, from the Ohio university, located at Athens. Four years afterwards he received from Governor Bishop, the high honor of appointment to the superintendency of the new Hospital for the Insane, occupying a picturesque and commanding site on the hills, west of Columbus. He accepted the post with much reluctance, and, after much hesitation, on account of the pecuniary and other sacrifices it made necessary; but was finally induced to take it, upon the pledge that the legislature should be influenced to increase the salary of the office by one thousand dollars. In this position he has won his crowning reputation, being now regarded as one of the first superintendents of the kind in the country.

Dr. Firestone was married August 23, 1839, when but twenty years old, to a distant relative, Miss Susannah Firestone, also of Wayne county. They have had eight children, but one of whom is now living: Dr. William W. Firestone, of Wooster—also a physician of considerable note. Another son, Melvin O., became assistant physician at the Columbus asylum, and died at his post of duty there, of apoplexy, January 23, 1879. He had previously, for some years, been a practitioner of medicine, with much success. Most of the boyhood and youth of General David S. Stanley, of the United States army, were passed in the elder Dr. Firestone's family, he having taken the boy from obscurity and poverty, out of pure goodness of heart, to rear for honorable and distinguished service, sent him to college, and secured him an appointment to the military academy.

Dr. Firestone became a mason, in 1847, and has filled many high offices in the order. He is also a member of the Ohio State Medical society, which he has served as president, and of the American, Northwestern and Wayne County Medical associations, and is an honorary member of the Gynecological society, of Boston, Massachusetts.

RICHARD J. FANNING.

Richard J. Fanning was born in Waterford, Ireland, July 31, 1845. He came with his parents to America in 1851, arriving in New York on the fifteenth of August. The family located in Cleveland, Ohio, where his father was engaged in business until his death, in 1870, and was universally respected as a reliable citizen. He was a man of fine education, and an ardent admirer of the constitution and laws of the United States, and as soon as was permissible, he secured, by naturalization, the right of franchise, and cast his first vote for James Buchanan for president.

Young Fanning passed his boyhood days in Cleveland, and made rapid progress in his studies. Physically and mentally he approached an early maturity, and so it was not strange that when the war broke out he had an intense interest and enthusiasm in the success of the Northern arms. He was only sixeeen years of age, but, having a strong desire to enter the army, he, notwithstanding the earnest opposition of his parents, enlisted, October 5, 1861, and was enrolled as a private soldier in battery C, Fifth United States artillery, at Cleveland, and was sent immediately to Camp Greble, near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, from which place the battery was ordered to the front in time to participate in the various battles before Richmond. Battery C was attached to the famous Pennsylvania Reserve, organized by Governor A. G. Curtin, of that State, and assigned to the Army of the Potomac, under General George B. McClellan, commander-in-chief.

The subject of this brief sketch was with battery C in the seven-days' battle on the Peninsula; at the second battle of Bull Run; at South Mountain; and, on September 17, 1862, at Antietam, where General McClellan defeated the combined forces of Lee and Jackson. At this battle Mr. Fanning received a painful, but not dangerous, flesh wound on the leg, yet, although urged to do so, he would not leave the front. Three months later—December 13, 1862—he met with more serious experience. Upon that date, at the battle of Fredericksburg, Virginia, he was severely wounded in the left arm. The bones and arteries were terribly shattered and cut, and the young soldier was totally incapacitated for further service; in fact, he has never fully recovered the use of his arm. He was honorably discharged from the army in June, 1863, and, returning to Cleveland, he led, for two years, a life of enforced idleness, his injury making it impossible for him to follow any vocation.

In 1865 he received an appointment as clerk in the Cleveland & Mahoning railroad office, and continued to work for that company, and the Atlantic & Great Western railroad company, for ten years, or until 1875. In that year Arnold Green, esq., clerk of the supreme court of Ohio, appointed him his deputy. His efficient and faithful service as Mr. Green's assistant, and a wide personal popularity, won for him, in 1877, the nomination, upon the Democratic State ticket, for the office of clerk of the supreme court. He made a splendid run, being elected by a large majority, and has served ever since in the office to which then chosen, giving unqualified satisfaction, and securing the warm personal friendship of all with whom he has had official relations, without regard to party proclivities.

On the eighth of November, in the same year, Mr. Fanning was united in wedlock to M. Cecilia Miller, third daughter of the late Hon. Thomas Miller, of Columbus. By this fortunate union, and the acquirement of property where, at first, he had but an official residence, he has doubtless become, as he considers himself, a permanent citizen at the State capital.

HON. JOHN M. PUGH,

ex-probate judge of Franklin county, and otherwise long a prominent citizen of Columbus, was born in Truro township, in that county, November 7, 1823, son of David and Jane (nee Murphy) Pugh, the former of whom is the subject of another notice in this history. He was educated, in the style prevalent at that early day, in the old log school houses, to which, in his case, a substantial addition was made at the Reynoldsburg high school, and subsequently at Central college. He supported himself at these schools in the summer by teaching school during the winter. His last school was taught in the summer of 1848, at Kirkersville, Licking county. September fourth, of that year, he began reading law with Major Samuel Brush, of Columbus, remaining with him until 1851, when he was admitted to practice at the November term of the supreme court, and sworn in by Hon. Peter Hitchcock, presiding judge of that court. In the spring of that year he had been elected to his first office, clerk of what was then Montgomery township, and included the city of Columbus. He was nominated on the Democratic ticket, and, although the city was then Whig by nearly six hundred majority, he was elected by a majority of one hundred and fifty-nine. In 1853, when the contest in Franklin county between the two parties was very close, he was elected auditor of the county, by the then unprecedented majority of one thousand four hundred and fifty-six.

He was re-elected in 1855, and at the close of his second term retired to form a partnership in law practice with his old preceptor, Major Bush. Upon the retirement of the latter from practice, Mr. Pugh formed a partnership with the Hon. L. L. Critchfield. In 1863 he was nominated by the Democrats for probate judge, and was triumphantly elected, receiving subsequently the honor of four successive re-elections, retiring at last in February, 1879, after fifteen years' consecutive service, being in all probability the longest term in that office to be recorded for one man in Franklin county. He also served six years upon the State board of agriculture—two years as treasurer, and one year as president. For nearly six years he has been one of the commissioners of the State Reform School for Boys, near Lancaster, having been successively appointed to that post by Governors Allen, Hayes, and Bishop, and being two years president of the board. For eleven years he was treasurer of the Franklin County Agricultural society, and three years its president. It does not often occur that a lawyer in full practice, as Judge Pugh now is, in association with his son, John C. L. Pugh, esq., manifests so hearty an interest in agricultural affairs, and is honored with so many offices of trust in connection with them. He is emphatically a Franklin county man, and also stands stoutly by the interests of Columbus. No enterprise has ever been projected for its true interest, that has not found in him a hearty supporter.

Judge Pugh was married on Christmas day, 1851, to Miss Martha F. Cook, by whom he has seven children living—four boys and three girls—one daughter having gone before.

DAVID PUGH,

father of Judge John M. Pugh, of Columbus, and other well known residents, was born in Radnorshire, South Wales, February 8, 1769. He emigrated to this country in the spring of 1801, landing in Baltimore on the fourth of May of that year. Here he engaged himself profitably, until the spring of 1802, when he came to Ohio, then, almost without exception, a wilderness, and made a settlement in what is now Radnor township, Delaware county, so called by him in memory of his ancestral home in Wales. He remained there until 1815, when he removed to Truro township, Franklin county, where he died, on the twenty-fourth of October, 1857, at the good old age of eighty-eight years, eight months, and fifteen days. His wife, Mrs. Jane Pugh, preceded him but a few months to the grave, dying on the eighth of March, next previous. They left children as follows: Judge John M. Pugh, of Columbus, David Pugh, Andrew Pugh, Mrs. May Shield, and Mrs. Jane Hutson.

DR. JOHN M. EDMISTON was born near Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, on the twenty-seventh day of November, 1790. He was graduated from Dickinson college, and afterwards from the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia. He came West, first visiting Lexington, Kentucky, where he had two sisters, and thence to Franklinton, early in 1814, with letters of introduction to Lucas Sullivant, whose family physician he became. Very soon afterwards he removed to Columbus, which had just been laid out, and was the first physician to locate in the new town.

On the twenty-second day of June, 1820, he was married to Miss Matilda A. Gwynne, a native of Alleghany county, near Cumberland, Maryland, but at that time residing with her mother in Columbus. Soon after, he erected a two-story brick residence, at the northeast corner of High street and Walnut alley. This was one of the first brick houses built on High street. It is still standing, and occupied by Dr. Tod.

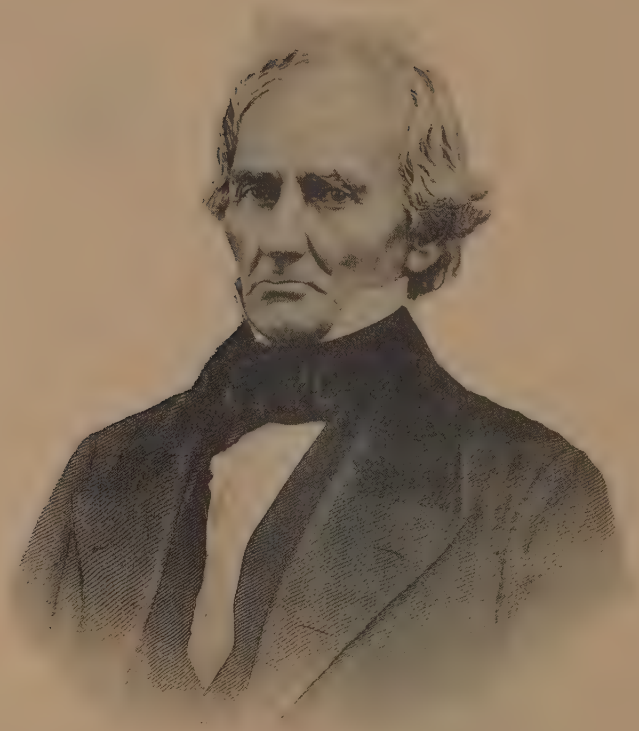
Dr. Edmiston was a fine physician, and a cultivated and refined gentleman. His professional services were greatly sought; but he was not well suited to endure the hardships of a physician's life in a sparsely settled country, where the calls were mostly at night, and the roads often almost impassable on horseback, the usual means of traveling in those pioneer days. The labor and exposure were great, and his health finally gave way. At the early age of forty-four, on the twenty-third day of July, 1834, he died, leaving a widow and five children. His family were well known in Columbus, after his death. Mrs. Edmiston died on the twenty-fourth day of November, 1874, highly beloved and esteemed by a very large circle of friends. The only survivor of the family is Elizabeth Jane, wife of Henry C. Noble, of Columbus.

FRANCIS STEWART,

the subject of this sketch, was born at York, Pennsylvania, March 2, 1788. His early life was passed on his father's farm, until old enough to be apprenticed to a carpenter. Having served his apprenticeship, while in his twentieth year, with his tools on his back, he started to walk from York to Columbus, and arrived at his destination early in the year 1808. His health up to this time had been delicate, and the journey on foot was made partly in the hope of regaining it. For a short time after settling in Franklinton he worked at his trade, but his health would not permit the violent exercise necessary to that business. When the war of 1812 broke out he, with most of the young men of the place, joined a volunteer cavalry company, known as the Franklinton dragoons. He remained with this troop as ensign until it was disbanded, in 1832 or 1833. In 1815 he was elected sheriff of Franklin county, and served until 1819, at the same time holding the post of county collector, an office long since abolished, whose encumbent's duty it was to go through the county and collect the taxes. In 1817 he married Miss Martha Sterett, a lady of much beauty and culture, who was the mother of his seven children, and who died in Columbus July 20, 1834. In the spring of 1819 he removed to Columbus and engaged in the drygoods business. His store at this time was located on the southwest corner of High and Chapel streets. Mr. Stewart here founded an extensive business, and in 1831 or 1832 removed it to its present locality, at No. 89 south High street, where it is conducted by the firm of Osborn & Company, of which his eldest grandson, M. F. Stewart Knox, is a member. Mr. Stewart was the father of seven children, and, with one exception, survived all of them. Mary, the eldest, wife of Joseph H. Geiger, died March 20, 1854, leaving two daughters—Lydiel J. and Ruth S., both of whom are living in Columbus; Olivia died September 20, 1844; Sarah, wife of Joseph E. Baldwin, died August 31, 1845, leaving one daughter; Martha S., wife of Thomas H. Kennedy, now living in Covington, Kentucky; Charles died April 13, 1846; John married Virginia Miner, and died July 8, 1856, leaving two daughters—Kate M., wife of Alpheus Cutter—died November 2, 1876—and Sarah B., wife of George M. Dewey, now living in Brooklyn, New York; Martha died May 20, 1835; Ruth married F. W. Knox, of Virginia, who died January 8, 1865, leaving two sons, F. Stewart and Archie W. She then married James Kooken, who died August 17, 1872. Mrs. Kooken, the only surviving child, is now living in Columbus. Mr. Stewart served one term in the legislature, from 1832 to 1834. In December, 1836, he married his second wife, Sarah Benfield. About 1850 he retired from active business, leaving it in the hands of Mr. J. D. Osborn, who had been associated with him from boyhood, and whose heirs are now in the firm of Osborn & Company. On his eightieth birthday Mr. Stewart entertained many of his friends, among whom he moved with so firm a step and erect carriage as made them forget he was an octogenarian. A few months later he lost his wife, the devoted companion of many years. Mr. Stewart died January 3, 1874, having reached the unusual age of eighty-six years, mourned by those who knew him and respected by all. He was a man of quiet, modest habits, hospitable, generous, honest, and possessed of strong commonsense. Though not a member of any church, he was a firm supporter of law and order. Education and charity always found in him a generous friend; and after a long and useful life he died as he had lived—a man.

JOHNSTON ELLIOTT ST. CLAIR.

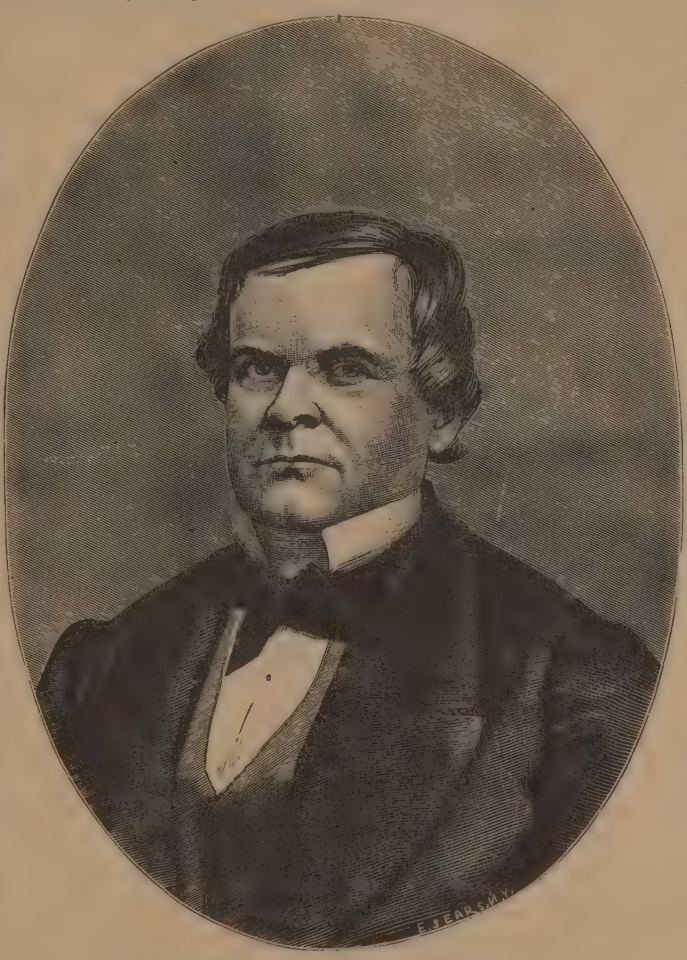
This gentleman, now sixty-three years of age, is the oldest living resident of Columbus, born in that city. He first saw the light in a humble dwelling on south High street, between Rich and Friend streets (all those streets then largely ornamented with stumps), April 24, 1816. He was the third son of William and Mary (Stuckey) St. Clair, natives of Maryland, who had emigrated from Somerset, Pennsylvania, to Columbus, in 1814. His father was a tailor by trade, but young Johnston, after such schooling as the facilities of the infant town afforded, entered, at the early age of fourteen, the tin-shop of Messrs. Gill & Green, as an apprentice, but finished his term with Captain John Haven, when about eighteen years old. The year after, in 1835, he removed, with his father and the family, to Greenfield, Highland county, Ohio, and there set up in business for himself, remaining till the spring of 1843, when he removed to Decatur, Brown county, where he remained three years, engaged in running a woolen factory, and then returned to Greenfield, where he re-entered the tin business, and stayed till October, 1849. He then spent one year in Chillicothe, and at the expiration of that period made his final remove, this time to Columbus, where he has since resided,



Francis Stewart

JAMES KOOKEN.

James Kooken, second son of Capt. James and Mrs. Gertrude Kooken, natives of this country, but of German stock, was born in western New York November 9, 1809. His father was a surveyor, and for many years followed his calling in the then new counties of the Empire State, and in 1811 determined to try his fortune further toward the setting sun. He reached the infant settlement at Franklinton, opposite the subsequent site of Columbus, the same year, where he engaged in his profession, as he found opportunity, for several years. In 1815 the first State penitentiary building at Columbus which had been commenced two years previous, was finished and occupied and Captain Kooken was appointed its first warden. He died in Columbus while his son, James, was still quite young. The lad received the elements of education in the public schools of the city, and in 1826 entered, as a clerk, the store of Messrs. Stewart & Brotherton, on High street, the senior of which firm, Mr. Francis Stewart, was father of the lady destined to become, many years afterwards, his second wife. In 1835 he became a bookkeeper in the Clinton bank, conducted by Mr. David W. Deshler upon the site now occupied, in part, by the bank managed by his heirs, on the corner of State and High streets. In 1841 he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Work, of Columbus, sister of J. C. and Frank Work, two old and prominent citizens of that place. He had no children by this or the subsequent union. He was, at that time, engaged for himself in the dry goods business at Groveport (formerly known variously as Rareysport and Work's Grove), in Franklin county, to which place he had gone in 1838. Two years after marriage, his wife's health failed. They came back to Columbus, where he entered the dry goods establishment of Messrs. McCoy, Work and McCoy, the second member of which was his brother-in-law. He lost his first wife by death in 1847, and the next year removed to New York, to take a partnership in a silk house, in which another brother-in-law, Mr. Frank Work, was a partner. In this he remained for more than twenty years, when, in 1869, his property having been sacrificed through unfortunate outside investments, he again turned his face westward, and settled this time at Logansport, Indiana, where he was appointed treasurer of the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western railroad, subsequently accepting a similar position upon the Chicago division of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis road. While occupying the latter post, March 8, 1871, he was remarried, this time being joined in matrimony to Mrs. Ruth A. (Stewart) Knox, of Columbus, whose first husband forms the subject of another sketch in this volume. His health failing shortly after, he resigned his place, and removed in May of the same year back to Columbus, where his declining years were spent in peace and comfort, and in the enjoyment of the universal respect and esteem of his fellow-citizens. He died in that city on the seventeenth of August, 1872, lamented by a large circle of relatives and a host of friends. He was not, in any sense, a noisy or obtrusive citizen, but his sterling qualities of character and kindness of heart greatly endeared him to all who knew him well. He was eminently a quiet, domestic man, and in his private and family life, as in his business, he was ever irreproachable. It cannot always be noted of a step-father, as of him, that the children of his second wife became as much attached to him as they had been to their own father. He had excellent business abilities for the places he occupied in his later life, but freely confessed that he had not the enterprise necessary for large and independent transactions. He was, however, nevertheless a most estimable citizen, and his memory will long be held in honor by the multitude whom he numbered among his friends.



John G Thompson

doing a general hardware and tin business, with the firm of St. Clair & Scott, of which he was head, and Mr. Gamaliel Scott the junior, the firm remaining the same until April, 1879, when Mr. Scott retired, the partnership then being the oldest in the city, without change, having continued unbroken for twenty-five years. The business has been continued on the same site, northwest corner of Friend and south High streets, since 1852. Mr. St. Clair has served three terms in the city council, and has been president of the society twelve of the thirteen years during which the Franklin County Pioneers' association has had an existence, which post he now holds. He was married April 7, 1842, to Miss Eliza McClelland, of Greenfield. They have had seven children: James Reed, killed by an accident, in falling from a derrick, in September, 1868; Mary A., now Mrs. Joseph Amos, of Columbus; Helen, still residing at home; William, of Columbus, in charge of his father's business; Elizabeth, now Mrs. Frances M. Clark, also at the old home, together with Misses Lucy and Kate St. Clair. Mrs. St. Clair is also still living, and, with her husband, enjoying a healthy and happy old age.

JOHN G. THOMPSON.

John G. Thompson, sergeant-at-arms of the Federal house of representatives, and one of the most active and distinguished political managers in the country, is a citizen of Columbus. He was born on Mill Creek, Union county, Ohio, February 17, 1833, son of James and Catharine (Gamble) Thompson, the former an immigrant from Virginia, the latter of Irish descent. This fortunate cross of bloods, together with his early life and athletic labors in the pure air of the country, has contributed greatly to the physical and mental vigor which has characterized his career. He remained upon his father's farm for about twenty years, save one year and a half spent at the Marysville academy, in his native county, and three "quarters" (about nine months) occupied in teaching district schools. His education was chiefly acquired in these humble, but useful, "colleges of the people," which have furnished the sole education received in a formal way of our most distinguished men. His favorite studies were mathematical, and at this early day he looked with some confidence to the profession of civil engineer. Circumstances, however, prominent among which was poor health, soon otherwise determined his career, and in his twentieth year he entered the dry goods business, as a partner with his father, at Watkins, in the same county. This connection was presently dissolved, and in March, 1854, when but twenty-one years of age, he boldly pushed to Columbus, to try his fortunes at the State capital. His first employment here was as a clerk and book-keeper, in Messrs. A. P. Stone & Company's store, in the old Commercial row, on south High street, between Friend and Mound streets, to which the business of the city was then largely confined. In the same year he accepted a partnership in the same concern, and retained it until the winter of 1859–60, when he relinquished it, upon assuming the duties of the office of county treasurer. While filling this position he engaged in banking, with others, under the firm name of Bailey, Thompson & Company, and continued in this business until 1871; meanwhile, also taking an interest in the dry goods house of A. C. Headley & Company, from which he retired at the same time, owing to the unfortunate financial complications in which the head of the firm became involved. Since then he has been mainly in public life.

At a very early age Mr. Thompson began to take an eager interest in politics, in which his chief successes have been won. A Democrat, bred in the bone, he soon became a well-recognized and energetic worker for that party, with which he has steadily been identified. At once, upon coming to Columbus, he became prominent in local politics, especially, a year or two after, in the formation and management of the "Wheatland club" (it was the year of the Buchanan and Fremont campaign), which brought the young Democracy of the city into virtual supremacy. The same year (1856) he was made a member of the Democratic county committee, and was its secretary during the next two years. He has been a member of the State Central committee of his party continuously since 1860, and the work which has principally given him name and fame has been done in connection with it. At the very outset of this service he was made secretary of the committee, and again in 1862. The next year, at the age of only thirty, he was advanced to the chairmanship, which he has retained continuously ever since, with the exception of three years; and from 1863 to 1879, save but two years, he has also been entrusted with the responsible and laborious duties of chairman of the Executive committee, becoming thus, and for so long a time, the chief manager and organizer of Democracy in the State. He was a delegate from Ohio to the Democratic National convention in New York, in 1868, and four years afterwards to the similar convention in Baltimore. Since 1868 he has been the member for Ohio of the National Democratic committee, serving continuously during that time, on the Executive committee of the same.

Mr. Thompson's eminent services to his party have not, of course, been altogether unrewarded. As already noted, he was elected treasurer of Franklin county in 1859. Two years afterwards, when the Republican party had greatly strengthened by the war agitation, he was re-elected by a majority of one thousand seven hundred, by far the largest majority received at that election in the county—Mr. Jewett, Democratic candidate for governor, receiving but five hundred and twenty. In the spring of 1862 he was chosen a member of the city council, and at once made chairman of the Police committee, which, at that time—a time of peculiar difficulty and turbulence, from the presence in and about the city of large numbers of soldiers—had sole charge of the police force. He declined re-election until 1869, when he was returned to the council, and gave his influence in that body to the overthrow of the conservatism which had long obstructed the city's growth. By this council measures were ordained for the extension of the city limits, for water works, the city hall, and street improvements, all of which have contributed immensely to the since rapid increase of the city in population and wealth. In 1871, Mr. Thompson was elected to the State senate from Franklin and Pickaway counties, and was re-elected two years after and did creditable service in that body until the spring of 1874, when he resigned to accept, by the appointment of Governor Allen, the office of State commissioner of railways and telegraphs. From this post he was called away in December, 1875, when, upon the resumption of power by the Democracy in the lower house of congress, he was elected sergeant-at-arms of that body, and has been honored by successive re-elections, by acclamation and without opposition, by the house Democrats of the Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth congresses. During the sessions he occupies himself closely and attentively with the duties of his important position, and is a popular officer with political foes as well as friends. In his official capacity, he accompanied the remains of Congressman Hartridge to their final resting-place, in the soil of Georgia.

Mr. Thompson has seen sufficient military service to afford some color of justification for the sobriquet of "colonel," sometimes bestowed upon him. Soon after his settlement in Columbus he joined a company of the State Fencibles, and remained a member until it was broken up by enlistment for the war. He was afterwards a captain in the State militia, and also served in the "squirrel-hunters'" campaign, organized in the fall of 1862 to resist the threatened invasion of the State by the rebel general, Morgan. He was a steady supporter of the war, and, with Mr. W. S. V. Prentiss closely following, gave the first one hundred dollar subscription to the twenty thousand dollars (finally forty thousand dollars), raised in Columbus, to support the families of citizens who had enlisted in the Federal service.

Upon his twenty-fourth birth-day, February 17, 1857, Mr. Thompson was married to Miss Fannie High, daughter of Mr. Hosea S. High, a farmer of Franklin county. Their union has been blessed with three sons and two daughters, four of whom are living. The family resides in a beautiful house on north High street, Columbus, at the corner of Seventh avenue.

INDEX.

HISTORY

OF

Franklin and Pickaway Counties,

OHIO.

PUBLISHED BY WILLIAMS BROS.

1880.

THE PICKAWAY COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Circleville, Ohio

History of Franklin and Pickaway Counties
By Williams Bros. - 1880

Reproduction and Indexing Committee

Rex Edwin Haecker, Chairman
Johnda Davis
Polly Miller
Ralph Woolever

Indexing Committee

Blenn Bales
Deborah Barr
Dr. John S. Caldwell
Nell Craven
Virgil Cress
Jessie Cummins
Betty Dawley
Vivian Dountz
Ellen Dunlap
Elizabeth Given
J. Ludwig Haecker
Margaret Wilmine Haecker
Elizabeth Hall
Margaret Hunsicker Hickey
Carol Higgins
Wallace Higgins
Rosemary Mader
Helen Mettler
Harriet Morris
Nelle Oesterle
Harriet Mason Patrick
Dhel Renick
Harford Renick
George Robinson
Avis Sark
Harry Sark
Dr. W. L. Sprouse
Emily Weldon
Annette Will Charlene Woolever
David Yates
Trudy Yates

A.

AARONE
Samuel (Pvt.), 142
ABELL
T. P. (Rev.), 525
ABBOT
------, 335
James M. (Pvt.), 139
Mary Ann, 344
ABBOTT
Barnett (Pvt.), 124
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 114
Deacon, 422
Harrison (Pvt.), 118
James, 421
James S., 45, 533
John, 430
John S.C., 7
Lemon (Pvt.), 139
N., 436
Nathan, 436
P. (Pvt.), 151
Samuel, 421, 426, 430
Squire, 421
Thomas (Corp.), 108
ABERNATHY
Isaac N., 47, 99, 206, 207
I. N., 206, 207
J. M., 308
J. N., 98, 206, 207
Robert, 308
ABRAHAM
Isaac M. (Cap.), 135
ABEL
Rev., 524
ABT
L., 200
ABYON
Michael (Pvt.), 143
ACHOR
Samuel D. (Pvt.), 142
ACKERMAN
John, 119
Lovilla, 403
ACKLEY
Chauncey (Pvt.), 126
James M. (Pvt.), 110
ACORD
James M. (Pvt.), 136
ACTON
Clement J., Illus. p. 512-13
Henry (Pvt.), 143
John D., 417
ADA
William (Pvt.), 125
ADAFFER
D. (Pvt.), 150
ADAIR
Joseph, 414
ADAMS
A. (Pvt.), 149
Albert W. (Pvt.), 156
A. W. (Pvt.), 151
Addison (Cpl.), 152
Anthony (Pvt.), 137
Demas, 396, 410, 423, 524, 528
Eliza, 343
Elizabeth, 377, 385
ADAMS continued
Franklin B., 385
Frank B. (Pvt.), 121
F. S. (Dr.), 567
George (Corp.), 119
George W. (Pvt.), 138
J., 189
Jacob W. (Pvt.), 142
James, 381
J. A. (Pvt.), 114
J. H. (Pvt.), 149
John J. (Pvt.), 137
John Q. (Pvt.), 144, 149, 161
Joseph J. (Pvt.), 129
Marantha, 417
Margaret, 385
Mary, 386
Mattie, 387
Nancy, 397
P., 396
Percival, 385, 391, 397
Priscilla, 434
Rachel, 389
Rebecca, 364
Robert H. (Pvt.), 158
R. G. (Rev.), 474
Samuel, 584
Sarah, 483
Susan, 102
St. Clair, 434
Thomas, 385
T. J., 385, 386, 387
W. A., 536, 537
William A. (Pvt.), 112
William S., 152
W. B., 436
William (Pvt.), 121
William D., 435
William M. (Corp.), 109
William P. (Pvt.), 137
Winnie, 416
ADAMSON
Isaac (Pvt.), 159
Joseph, 271
ADEL
George, 453
ADER
John W. (Pvt.), 158
ADERSON
Wm. M., 101
ADKESSON
Rev., 188
ADKINS
Abigail, 306
Anna T., Illus. 308-309
B., 309
Cannon, 308, 309
Charlotte, 308, 309
David, 307, 357, 345
David C., 308, 309
David C. (Pvt.), 118
Eligah, 308, 309
Elizabeth, 307, 308, 309
Eliza Jane, 345
Ezra, 307
Garrison, 308, 309
George W., 307, 308, 309
G. W., 308
Harriet, 308, 309
Louisa W., 307
Lovena E., 307
ADKINS continued
Lucy G., 307
Mahala, 307, 308-309
Mandeville (Pvt.), 157
Mary Ann, 307, 308-309
Miranda P., 307, 308-309
Melissa, 345
Noah W., 308-309
Noah (Pvt.), 118
Rachel Ann, 307, 308-309
Rhodney, 307, 308-309
Roxana, 307, 308-309
Samson (Pvt.), 127
Sarah, 307, 308-309
Stanton, 307, Illus. 308-309
Theodocia, 307
William, 345
William (Pvt.), 127
ADKINSON
Rev., 312-313
ADLER
Samuel, 527
ADLIN
------, 100
AFFLECK
Howard G. (Pvt.), 121
AGBURN
Henry (Pvt.), 115
AGIN
David (Pvt.), 130
Lewis (Pvt.), 130
AGER
William (Pvt.), 157
AGLER
Andrew, 487
Elizabeth, 484
Frederick, 413, 484
John, 413
John (Mrs.), 411
Levi (Pvt.), 133
Louise, 484
Margaret, 484
Peter, 55, 101
Samuel, 484
AHRENS
George H. (Rev.), 522
J. H. (Rev.), 522
AIVNY
John (Pvt.), 137
AIRS
William R. (Pvt.), 138
AID
Joseph (Pvt.), 156
J. (Pvt.), 151
AKERLEY
Magdalena, 329
AKINSON
William (Pvt.), 137
ALBACH
James R., 7
ALBAUGH
Charles H. (Pvt.), 126
John (Pvt.), 126
William, 183
ALBERT
John (Pvt.), 122
Nicholas (Pvt.), 137
Silas (Pvt.), 117
ALBERY
Esther, 76
Faxon F.D., 77, 95

ALBERY continued
H. B., 95, 102, 533
H. B. (Judge), 96
Julia F., 95
Julia Frances, 77
Peter, 76
William H., 77
ALBERRY
Herman B., 45, 76-77
Phebe Rochelle, 399
T. W., 465
ALBRECHT
Bernard (Corp.), 117
C. (Rev.), 186
ALBRIGHT
Charles (Pvt.), 141
George (Pvt.), 143
Jacob (Pvt.), 140, 146, 153
Jacob (Rev.), 229
John, 300, 354
Louisa A., 300
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
ALBURTIS
Samuel, 166, 167
ALDEN
Hannah, 587
John, 587
ALDER
David, 416
Henry C., 417, 418, 416
Henry, 416, 417
Jonathan, 28, 416
Paul, 417
ALDRICH
George, 64
Mary, 64
ALRIDGE
John H. (Corp.), 114
J. L. (Pvt.), 149, 154
ALEXANDER
Eph K. (Pvt.), 130
James, 400, 522
J. (Pvt.), 152
James (Pvt.), 157
John (Sgt.), 125
Joseph (Pvt.), 159
Joseph (Corp.), 121
Neely (Pvt.), 121
Professor, 89
Rev., 436
T. J., 477, 478
William (Pvt.), 118
ALFRED
C. B. (Pvt.), 147
ALGER
Amos B. Sr. (Lt.), 159
ALGIRE
G. S. (Pvt.), 149
Jacob, 447
John, 447
ALGIVE
-----, 464
Amon, 464
ALJO
Dr., 465
ALKIER
George (Pvt.), 157
ALKINS
Alexander (Pvt.), 156
ALKIRE
Adam, 364
ALKIRE continued
Abraham, 290, 293
Alexander, 293
Benjamin F., 108, 293
Catharine, 293
David, 290
Dorotha, 307
Dorothy Phebus, 292
Edward, 288
Eliza, 363
Emanuel, 363
Forbes, 288
George, 288, 291, 295, 296
Isaac, 288
Jackson, 288
James M., 293
Jesse, 363, 364
John, 288, 293
John A., 297
John J., 295
John M., 108, 166
Margaret Huffman, 434
Mary, 293
Mary Graham, 288
M. H., 48, 166
Michael, 292
Michael J. (Lt.), 156
M. J., 321
R. C., 387
R., 434
Ruanna, 293
Samuel M. (Pvt.), 114
Sarah, 293
Sarah White, 363
Susan Mantles, 288
William, 288, 477
William M., 166, 293
ALLBACH
William H. (Lt.), 145
ALLBAUGH
F. (Pvt.), 114
ALLEGRE
William E. (Pvt.), 123
ALLEN
Asaph, 380, 426
C., 478
Charles H. (Corp.), 127
Charles, 111
Cyrus, 520
Edward (Pvt.), 117, 125
F. (Pvt.), 151
Flavius (Pvt.), 155
George H., 387
Governor, 542-543, 595
G. W., 511
Henry, 524
I. G. (Dr.), 160-161
James, 419
James (Dr.), 339
John, 511
John A. (1st Lieut.), 109
J. H., 104
John W., 576
J. M., 464
Levi, 297
Lizzie, 297
M., 451
Mitchell S. (Pvt.), 138
Nathaniel (Col.), 85
Obediah, 355
Samuel B. (Rev.), 481
ALLEN continued
Silas, 352
Silas (Pvt.), 153
Smith (Pvt.), 127
Thomas, 511
Timothy (Pvt.), 146
Wilkes, 204
William, 70, 85, 89
William (Pvt.), 134, 140
ALLENDER
Nicholas (Corp.), 120
ALLER
Benjamin (Pvt.), 139
Peter (Lt.), 137
ALLINGER
L. (Rev.), 518
ALLIS
Alleazor (Pvt.), 110
Wells (Capt.), 129
ALLISON
Andrew, 399, 400
George (Pvt.), 153
George W. (Pvt.), 133
Henry (Sgt.), 134
ALLMAN
David (Pvt.), 142
ALLMEIRE
Martin (Pvt.), 141
ALLRIGHT
John, 166
ALLSPAUGH
Henry, 393
Rebecca, 393
ALLTON
John (Pvt.), 125
ALLWAYS
Joseph, 107
ALLWIN
Jerome (Pvt.), 139
ALLWINE
Barnes H. (Pvt.), 125
ALLYN
W. G. (Pvt.), 149
ALMS
Henry H. (Pvt.), 146
ALSBAUGH
Jacob, 278, 413
ALSPACH
Elizabeth Henry, 412
John, 412
Sarah Henry, 412
ALSPAUGH
Henry, 204
ALTHEN
Henry (Pvt.), 129
ALTHER
Frederick W. (Pvt.), 141
ALTMAN
Daniel (Pvt.), 112
Daniel (Corp.), 159
David A. (Pvt.), 157
Fred (Pvt.), 112
Frederick (Pvt.), 157
John G., 557
Moses, 521, 556
ALTON
Henry, 383
ALWOOD
George W. (Pvt.), 138
Josiah (Pvt.), 131
Samuel S. (Pvt.), 131

ALWOOD continued
William (Pvt.), 138
AMBACHER
Jacob (Pvt.), 122
AMBOS
------, 538
Charles, 554
Emil, 590
Emelie, 590
Henry, 589
Herman, 590
H. F., 575
Peter, 542-543, 552, 560-561, 564, 571, 589, Illus. 588-589
AMBRORHER
Matthias (Pvt.), 142
AMBROSE
George W. (Corp.), 118
George (Rev.), 335
H. (Pvt.), 152
Silas J., 47
AMBROWS
Lewis (Rev.), 255
AMERT
Henry (Pvt.), 141
AMES
J. W., 365
Sylvester (Pvt.), 159
AMLIN
Z., 373
AMMEL
C. S., 478
AMMON
David, 356
AMOS
Joseph (Sgt.), 120
Joseph (Mrs.), 593
ANDERSON
------, 255, 371
A., 413
A. (Pvt.), 151
Abraham (Corp.), 156
Ake, 486
Alex F. (Corp.), 130
A. T., 208
B., 492
Benjamin (Pvt.), 110, 132
Bethuel, 300-303
Charles, 553
Colonel, 271
Cyrus (Corp.), 109
David (Pvt.), 156
Delilah, 197
Dr., 414, 465
Elias (Pvt.), 159
Elijah M. (Pvt.), 142
Elizabeth, 300
Eliza J., 364
Emory, 256
Franklin S. (Corp.), 125
George (Pvt.), 135, 159
George A. (Pvt.), 158
Governor, 571
H., 388
Harvey K., 300
Henry (Rev.), 523, 524
Hiram, 330
Hiram (Pvt.), 137
Isabel, 300
J. (Pvt.), 152
ANDERSON continued
Jacob (Pvt.), 141
J. M., 330
James, 156, 285
James W. (Corp.), 127
James M. (Sgt.), 133
James (Pvt.), 112
J. H., 550
Joanna, 300
John, 301, 457
John J. (Corp.), 110
John N., 300-301
Joseph, 107
Joseph R., 406
H. (Rev.), 449
Isaac, 367
Katharine, 285
LeGrand (Pvt.), 156
Leah, 463
Louisa, 300
Maria, 300
Mary, 405, 409
Mary A., 300
Mary M., 300
Milton, 300
Norton B. (Pvt.), 158
R. P. (Dr.), 488
Richard C. (Col.), 36, 38, 579
Richard C., 325, 549
Robert (Pvt.), 145
Sally, 266
T. M. (Col.), 564, 565, 571
William (Pvt.), 107
W. Marshall, 209
W. C. (Rev.), 190
William, 285
William (Pvt.), 133, 141
W. Marshall (Col.), 7, 14, 17, 182, 211
Y., 562
Yeatman, 552, 553
Zeruia, 300
ANDERTON
Frank W., 209
ANDRECIC
Jacob, 440
ANDRECK
Nancy, 440
ANDRES
A. (Pvt.), 149
ANDREW
George (Pvt.), 157
ANDREWS
------, 91
A., 96
Abner (Dr.), 479
Abner L., 91
Betsy, 499
David (Sgt.), 136
Flora, 405
Frank Herman, 479
Hannah Ann, 68
Henry, 387
Hiram, 46, 96
H. P., 96
James L., 543
James M. (Corp.), 121
J. D., 295
Jeannette, 92
John (Dr.), 520
ANDREWS continued
John (Pvt.), 119, 131
John W., 44, 66, 68, 532, 533, 563, 566, 576, 577
Lewis (Corp.), 133
Louisa, 96
Lovinda E., 92
Lyman, 91
Moses, 419
Percy N., 91
Prof., 171
Mrs. Dr., 532
Samuel C., 69
Samuel S., 68
Sarah D., 66
S. H., 88
Sylvester, 91
S. W., 547
William (Pvt.), 129
William H. (Pvt.), 153
ANDRIX
R., 479
ANDRUS
A. (Dr.), 103, 471
Dr.----, 477
Hiram, 97
H. P., 97
Louisa, 97
Mary Westervelt, 471
Minor G. (Pvt.), 152
ANGLE
Christopher (Pvt.), 120
Isaac (Pvt.), 158
Joseph (Pvt.), 137
ANKENY
Rudolph (Pvt.), 133
ANNENTROUT
George (Pvt.), 118
ANTHER
J. S. (Pvt.), 147
ANTHONY
C., 426
Charles, 542
J. (Pvt.), 112
Jacob (Pvt.), 142
Peter (Pvt.), 125
ANTONATTIS
Peter (Pvt.), 110
ANTRIM
Jacob (Rev.), 255
APPLE
Peter, 42, 47, 48, 185
APPLEGATE
Harvey (Sgt.), 136
APPIL
Andrew (Pvt.), 155
ARBOKLE
John H. (Pvt.), 142
ARBUCKLE
Captain, 23
ARCHA
John (Pvt.), 127
ARCHER
Henry (Pvt.), 115
James, 527
Sarah, 412, 414-415
Watkins (Pvt.), 145
ARDEN
Charles (Pvt.), 110
AREBAUGH
John, 348

AREHART
Columbus (Pvt.), 136
ARGO
Alexander, 283
ARLEDGE
L. (Pvt.), 150
ARMBRUSTER
William, 575
ARMENTRANT
Marion (Pvt.), 137
ARMISTEAD
Julia, 372-373
William, 492, 495
ARMINTROUT
Ferdinand (Pvt.), 126
ARMON
Rindolph (Pvt.), 122
ARMSTRONG
Alexander M. (Pvt.), 111
Alice Kidd, 398
Andrew, 394
David Nelson (Mrs.), 497
E. B., 554
Ebenezer (Pvt.), 144
Elvira Dean (Mrs.), 398
George (Pvt.), 159
George W., 157
Henry, 380
Isabella, 398
Jacob H. (Pvt.), 110
James (Rev.), 296
James R., 557
James W., 121
James W.N. (Pvt.), 143
J. M. (Pvt.), 148
Jane, 513
Jeremiah, 23, 361, 507, 513
John, 39
John (Pvt.), 137
John C. (Pvt.), 157
J. S., 398
John T. (Pvt.), 145
Joseph B. (Sgt.), 137
John W. (Lt.), 157
Mary, 398
McCoy (Pvt.), 123
R. H., 379
Robert (Pvt.), 141
Rev., 463
Robert, 23, 46, 361, 507, 513, 514
Sarah, 398
S. L., 398
S. R., 171-172, 398, 400
Thomas, 466
Thomas J. (Sgt.), 157
Thomas M., 157
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 129
Thomas S. (Corp.), 123
William, 398
William C. (Pvt.), 137
William F., 466
ARNETT
B. B. (Rev.), 518
ARNHART
John (Mrs.), 267
ARNICH
Jordan (Pvt.), 159
ARNOLD
------, 404
Abraham, 458
ARNOLD continued
Abraham B., 458
A. (Pvt.), 147, 153
Amy F., 458
Anna, 458
Augusta E., 96
Bennett M. (Pvt.), 157
Charles, 458
Corella S., 458
D. C., 102
Eliza Maria, 458
Elizabeth, 458
Frank W., 96
Gertrude, 458
Harriet, 458
Hannah, 458
Horace G., 458
Jacob, 458
Jane H., 458
John, 458
John (Pvt.), 138
John H. (Pvt.), 111
John M. (Pvt.), 111
John M., 458
J. P., 102, 395-397, 453, Illus. 456, 457, 458
J. P. (Mrs.), Illus. 456-457, 458
Margaret, 458
Martha, 411
Orilla, 458
Peter, 348
Phebe, 458
Rachel, 458
Randal R., 472
R. R., 477, 479
Rev., 188
Samuel, 458
Sara, 458
Sarah, 458
Stephen, 458
Thomas, 96, 211, 556
Victor, 458
William, 447
ARON
Charles T. (Pvt.), 153
ARTER
John D. (Pvt.), 118
ARTHUR
Charles T. (Pvt.), 141
John (Rev.), 449
John (Pvt.), 141
John A. (Capt.), 162
ARTS
Abraham, 376-377
Matilda, 376-377
ARTZ
Elizabeth N., 94
George Lincoln, 94
John, 94
Jacob A. (Pvt.), 142
ARUAT
H. W. (Rev.), 184
ASBERRY
Sarah, 528
ASBURY
C. B. (Pvt.), 147
Harvey (Pvt.), 135
T. B. (Dr.), 103, 427, 431, 432
Waldo H., 137
ASCHOM
Amelia, 584
ASHBAUGH
Cyrus, 374
Hugh H. (Pvt.), 152
John, 372
John (Pvt.), 143
Sophia, 372-373
ASHBROOK
Absalom, 282
John E. (Pvt.), 127
John L. (Corp.), 130
Phebe, 282
W. (Pvt.), 114
ASHBROOM
------, 276
ASHER
James (Pvt.), 156
ASHLEY
H. A. (Prof.), 591
ASHMORE
Joseph (Pvt.), 110
ASHTON
George (Pvt.), 133
Henry (1st Serg.), 110
W. E., 465, 466
William, 461, 465
ASHUR
J. H. (Pvt.), 151
ASKINS
Jacob, 416-417
ASPINWALL
Sterne F. (Pvt.), 153
ASTON
George W. (Sgt.), 121
I. C., 531
Isaac C. (Pvt.), 147
Isaac (Mrs.), 531
James, 556
William, 46
ATCHESON
W., 589
Windsor, 406
ATCHISON
Fielding, 319
Philden, 320
William, 319
Windsor, 55
ATER
Abraham, 293
Allen, 312
Annie, 297
Catharine, 312
Charity Eveland, 293
Elias, 310, 312, 313
Eliza Brown, 293
Elizabeth Smith, 293
Elizabeth Watts, 293
George, 100, 293
George (Pvt.), 127
Gideon, 312
Ira (Pvt.), 144
Isaac, 293
Jacob, 293
Jacob (Pvt.), 127
J. W., 297
James (Pvt.), 127
Margaret Colston, 293
Margaret Hines, 293
Mary, 312
Milton (Pvt.), 156

ATER continued
Nancy Sollars, 293
Samuel, 293
Stephen D., 312
Thomas, 293
Thomas (Pvt.), 108
Thornton (Pvt.), 127
William, 293, 294, 312
William C., 295
ATHEY
Elijah (Pvt.), 121
Israel (Pvt.), 143
Mary, 434
ATKIN
Barzilla Costin, 312
ATKINS
Horace S. (Pvt.), 157
John (Pvt.), 107
J., 315
ATKINSON
------, 94
George J., 89, 97, 573
Geo. J. (Mrs.), 528
Isaac (Pvt.), 144
James (Pvt.), 129
Lewis, 215
Lizzie, 197
Madge R., 89
Oliver (Pvt.), 145
Peabody, 89
Thomas, 97
ATOR
Samuel (Pvt.), 108
ATSTALL
Charles (Pvt.), 129
ATTER
George, 42
N. (Pvt.), 151
ATWATER
------, 177, 202
Aurelia, 228
Balinda, 227
Belinda, 228
Butler, 228
Caleb, 7, 10, 19, 37, 47, 98, 227, 228
Caleb (Jr.), 228
DeWitt Clinton, 228
Ebenezer, 227
Diana, 227
Douglass, 228
George, 98, 228
Henry, 228
John S. (Pvt.), 120, 121
J. M., 196
Lucy M., 192
Lucy, 228
Moses (Judge), 73, Illus. 520-521
O. C., 196
Doctor (Pvt.), 119
Rachel Parks, 227
R. D., 233, 246, 319
Russell, 419
AUGUSTINE
Cyrus (Pvt.), 155
AUGUSTUS
Harrison (Pvt.), 144
John, 54
AUKRAM
James F. (Pvt.), 157
AUKRONE
D. (Pvt.), 150
AULD
Thomas (Pvt.), 110
AULT
Ambrose (Pvt.), 143
J. (Pvt.), 147
J. W. (Cpl.), 153
Philip N. (Pvt.), 131
V. (Pvt.), 147
AULTMAN
Cornelius, 549
David, 499
Elizabeth Otstotts, 499
William, 499
AURLACK
Henry M. (Pvt.), 158
AUSTIN
Harmon, 544
J. B., 255
Rev., 331, 364
AVERY
Daniel, 493-494
Frances, 72
P. S., 494-496
Sylvester (Pvt.), 153
William (Pvt.), 138
AVIS
John (Pvt.), 135
AWL
William M. (Dr.), 366, 543, 545
William W., 70
Wm. (Mrs.), 528
AXLEY
Rev., 448
AXLINE
Charles W. (Pvt.), 121
AYER
John (Pvt.), 114
AYERS
Thomas (Pvt.), 143
AYLE
Thomas (Pvt.), 142
AYRES
E., 489
Elizabeth, 400
E. W., 400
Mary, 400
P. K., 368

B.

BABB
John (Pvt.), 139
BABBETT
S. B. (2nd Lt.), 147
BABBITT
C. B. (Pvt.), 147
L. W., 465, 477
S. W., 477
BABCOCK
C. N. (Rev.), 520
Olive, 386
Rev., 374
BABER
James (Rev.), 79
Llewellyn, 44, 70, 79, 81, 97, 102
Maria Jordan, 79
BACH
Barbara, 320
BACHMAN
Joseph (Pvt.), 122
BACKUS
Andrew, Illus. 586-587, 587
Bathsheba, 587
Elijah, 45, 63, 73, 547
Hannah Alden, 587
Isaac (Rev.), 587
Joseph A., 587
Lafayette, 588
Orrin, 46, 588
Sarah P., 73
Simon, 587
Stephen, 587
Temperance, 73
Temperence Lord, 64
Thomas, 19, 63, 64, 73, 375, 377, 381
William W., 45, 73
BACON
C., 374
J. (Pvt.), 148, 152
John, 405
Joseph (Pvt.), 145
Molly, 66
Theodosia (Rev.), 429
Sadosa, 405
William E. (Pvt.), 133
BACUS
Thomas, 494
BADFIELD
Jane, 438
BADGER
Archie (Pvt.), 143
Joseph, 364
Joseph (Rev.), 296
Margaret, 386, 390
William, 387
William (Pvt.), 129
BADGES
Bela, 511
BAELEN
S. (Pvt.), 149
BAER
August (Pvt.), 142
John, 284
BAFFORD
B. (Pvt.), 112
W. (Pvt.), 112
BAGGS
Caleb (Pvt.), 108
David (Pvt.), 108
Rachel, 437
William (Pvt.), 155
BAGSHAW
J. (Pvt.), 147
John, 486
BAHNEY
Andrew J. (Capt.), 131
Isaac S. (Sgt.), 131
BAILEY
------, 285
Adam G. C., 310
Ann E. White, 363
David, 372
D. P. (Pvt.), 149
D. S. (Cap.), 154
Elizabeth A., 307
George S. (Pvt.), 157

BAILEY continued
G. W. (Pvt.), 111
H., 363
H. (Pvt.), 149
Henry (Sgt.), 154
Hannah, 396-397
Henry, 307
Isaac (Pvt.), 118
James (Pvt.), 137
John (Pvt.), 159
John S. (Pvt.), 135
Knowlton, 416
Lucinda, 365
Stephen (Pvt.), 125
Sylvester (Pvt.), 132
W. D., 165
William, 313
William (Mrs.), 313
BAILHACH
John (Mrs.), 528
BAILHACHE
John, 160
BAIN
James Q. (Pvt.), 123
John, 525
BAIRD
David R. (Sgt.), 155
David R. (Pvt.), 126
D. R. (Pvt.), 150
H., 184
J. (Pvt.), 150
Joseph (Pvt.), 154
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 129
W. B. (Pvt.), 150, 154
BAITER
J. (Pvt.), 148
BAKER
-----, 196-197, 316
Abraham, 184
Adam (Pvt.), 115
Albert (Pvt.), 129
Alexander (Pvt.), 145
Andrew J. (Corp.), 119
Bartholomew, 292
Chauncey, 428
Christian W. (Pvt.), 121
Daniel (Pvt.), 107
David (Corp.), 137
F. (Dr.), 218
E. (Pvt.), 154
Frederick A., 119
Hance, 333
Harriet Huntington, 293
Henry (Pvt.), 157
Henry B. (Pvt.), 143
Henry F. (Pvt.), 159
Herbert (Pvt.), 142
Jacob (Corp.), 157
James F. (Pvt.), 133
James W. (Pvt.), 131
Jerome (Pvt.), 144
John, 293, 407
John (Mrs.), 407
John R. (Pvt.), 143
John W. (Pvt.), 133
Joseph, 293
Joseph (Pvt.), 120
Joshua, 277
Ledosa (Rev.), 296
Lewis, 162
Maria, 306
BAKER continued
Martin, 292
Mary Parker, 293
Michael M., 406
Milton E. (Pvt.), 130
Nathan H. (Pvt.), 131
Peter, 293, 529
Peter (Pvt.), 142
Sarah Jackson, 293
Samuel (Pvt.), 144
Simon E. (Pvt.), 141
S. M., 199
Timothy, 207
W., 181, 199
William, 293, 295
William (Pvt.), 117, 137, 143
Wilson, 208
Z. T., 348
BALAN
Ellen, 338-339
BALDMAN
James (Pvt.), 159
BALDRIDGE
Dr., 217
BALDWIN
------, 202
Amy, 476
Charles C., 479
Clark, 470
Cornelius, 339
Hannah, 470
Henry S., 496
Isaac, 398, 400
Isreal, 470
Joseph E., 592
J. F., 566, 567
Henry, 333
Judge, 64, 102
J. W., 566
J. William, 41, 74, 78, 94, 95
J. William (Mrs.), 74
Levi, 470
Lucy, 470
Lysander S. (Pvt.), 123
Martha S., 592
Michael, 39, 40, 44, 63
Roxanna, 470
Samuel, 430
Sylvanus, 464
T. S., 525
William, 470
William (Capt.), 110
William M. (Pvt.), 117
BALE
J. H., 477
William, 477
BALENTINE
Robert, 507, 513
BALEY
N., 524
Rufus W. (Pvt.), 138
Wayman, 524
BALL
Dr., 378
Edward (Pvt.), 159
G. (Pvt.), 151
George W. (Pvt.), 155
J. D., 101
J. F., 496
John, 269
BALLAH
-----Comstock, 289
BALLARD
-----, 256, 257
A. T. H. (Pvt.), 149
Edward S., 258
Helen E., 258
J., Illus. 256-257
James, 255, 258
James Otis, 258
Lewis, 434
Mary E., 258
Nancy, 385
O., 240
O. Jr., 7, 105, 199, 201
Cyrus (Pvt.), 121
Otis, 53, 54, 182, 257
Otis (Dr.), 251, Illus. 256-257, 258, 262
Sidnie Huffman, 434
W. H., Illus. 256-257, 258
W. W., 200, 216
William, 324
BALLINGER
Samuel, 416
Robert (Pvt.), 133
William (Pvt.), 130
BALLIS
Robert (Pvt.), 145
BALS
Peter (Pvt.), 117
BALSAR
Charles (Dr.), 479
BALTIMORE
Mary A., 363
BALWIN
Samuel, 430
BAMBROUGH
Wm., 524
BAMHOME
J. M. (Pvt.), 147
BANER
Leonhardt (Corp.), 122
BANCROFT
-----, 584
Harvey, 556
Adrian L. (Pvt.), 120
Carl (Qtrmstr.), 152
Charles H. (Pvt.), 120
C. N. (Pvt.), 147
George D. (Pvt.), 120
Oliver (Pvt.), 136
Oliver P. (Pvt.), 141
BANER
Rees H. (Pvt.), 137
BANFORD
John (Pvt.), 144
William H. (Pvt.), 144
BANNER
James S. (Pvt.), 144
Samuel H. (Pvt.), 157
BANNON
Henry (Pvt.), 137
James (Pvt.), 152
BANTER
Samuel R. (Pvt.), 157
BARB
Allen (Pvt.), 131
BARBEE
Adeline, 386
Elizabeth, 385

BARBEE continued
Hawes, 386
Hawes, Jr., 386
James W., 46, 47
T., 386
William, 386
BARBER
C. W. (Cpl.), 112
Henry A. (Pvt.), 158
Jacob (Pvt.), 121
John M. (Pvt.), 143
Josiah, 37
Josiah (Lt.), 130
Nicholas (Pvt.), 121
R. P. L., 553
S. G., 475
BARCLAY
John (Pvt.), 140
BARCH
Philip (Pvt.), 119
BARCUS
G. (Pvt.), 151
BARD
Humphrey, 474
BARE
Peter (Pvt.), 137
BAREIS
George T., 449
BARGER
Jacob, 480
BARHITE
William (Pvt.), 121
BARINGER
Samuel (Pvt.), 157
BARKALOW
Derick L. (Pvt.), 125
BARKE
John H., 159
BARKER
Andrew (Pvt.), 159
Brooks, 423
Chauncey (Capt.), 426
Cynthia, 423
David F. (Pvt.), 152
Eli (Pvt.), 120
Elias (Corp.), 120
Eliphalet, 423
Ephraim, 462
Henry (Pvt.), 129
John, 308
Mary Huffman, 434
Peter, 423, 430
Samuel, 423
T., 434
BARKLEY
George (Pvt.), 135
BARKLINE
S. (Pvt.), 148
BARKMAN
David (Pvt.), 138
BARKS
D. B., 209
BARLOW
Harriet, 370
BARNCORD
S., 181
BARNEDT
Peter, 206, 207
BARNET
Abraham, 256
BARNETT
BARNETT continued
Anlee (Pvt.), 141
George W. (Lt.), 136
John, 377
Nicholas (Pvt.), 129
Wm. D., 516
William J., 157
BARNES
------, 284
B., 518
Benira, 348
I. B., 295
John (Pvt.), 139
Oliver (Pvt.), 112
O. P. (Sgt.), 112
Robert, 409
BARNEY
------, 194, 195, 197
H. H., 196
William H. (Pvt.), 144
BARNHARD
John (Rev.), 526
BARNHART
Aaron (Pvt.), 115
Charles (Pvt.), 153
Lewis (Pvt.), 125
Martin, 277
Orange (Pvt.), 139
Reuben (Pvt.), 115
BARNHILL
John, 166
BARNS
Margaret Davis, 294
BARR
Andrew (Rev.), 449
Catharine, 384
David (Pvt.), 136
Elizabeth, 266
Isabella, 241
John, 44, 50, 200, 267, 497
Nancy Nelson, 497
Samuel, 55, 101, 508
Sidney, 267
Thomas, 42, 47, 100
William, 347
BARRETT
Addison (Pvt.), 131
Gilbert (Pvt.), 142
John F., 313
Marion B. (Pvt.), 131
BARRIE
J. W. (Pvt.), 112
BARRINGER
C. M. (Mrs.), 529
George (Pvt.), 121
BARROR
Absalom (Sgt.), 121 BARRY
M. (Pvt.), 151
Martin (Pvt.), 156
BARTELMAS
George, 18
BARTELS
P. B. (Pvt.), 152
W. H. (Pvt.), 149, 152
BARTHALO
William H. (Pvt.), 144
BARTHELMESS
C., 321
Charley, 320
BARTHELMESS continued
George, 320
Jacob, 320
Rosie, 320
Sarah, 320
William, 320
BARTHMAN
V. (Pvt.), 149
BARTHOLOMEW
------, 499
Abram (Pvt.), 107
Daniel I. (6th Corp.), 107
John (Pvt.), 107
Milton, 313
Peter G., 560
Samuel (Pvt.), 107
BARTLES
W. R., 431
W. Y., 473
BARTLETT
Alexander, 481
Dewitt C. (Pvt.), 142
Dumas (Pvt.), 115
George, 486
Jesse, 270
J. O. (Pvt.), 150
P. M. (Rev.), 182
Samuel, 44
BARTLEY
E. (Pvt.), 122
Christopher, 268, 269, 270
Elizabeth, 325
Samuel (Pvt.), 158
BARTLIT
Betsey, 454
Elihu, 454
Lydia, 454
John F., 450, 454
Miner, 454
Moses (Rev.), 454
Samuel, 450, 453, Illus. 454
Statira, 454
BARTHOLD
Henry, 557
BARTON
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 146, 156
BASALMAN
Elder, 464
BASCOM
Andrew, 314
Henry B. (Rev.), 296, 321
William T., 160
BASHAW
William J., 437
BASHFOR
Isaac (Pvt.), 155
BASINGER
Jacob (Pvt.), 157
BASKER
John H. (Pvt.), 136
BASKWELL
S. (Pvt.), 153
BASSETT
Alexander, 369, 372
Anthony, 518
Ethan (Pvt.), 143
BASSERT
J. (Pvt.), 151
BASSINGER
Jacob (Pvt.), 141
BASTIAN

BASTIAN continued
John (Pvt.), 130
BASWELL
Henry (Pvt.), 157
BATCHELDER
Rev., 164
BATCHELOR
Alonzo, 463
Basil, Jr., 463
Basil, Sr., 463
Lemuel, 463
Nancy, 463
Rhoda, 463
BATEHAM
A. P., 368
J. B., 368
M. B., 164, 525
BATEMAN
J. A. (Pvt.), 150
William (Pvt.), 127
BATES
Cyrus L. (Sgt.), 114
David, 50
Dr., 343, Illus. 343
James E., 70
James L., 44, 47, 77-78, 79, 92
John W. (Corp.), 135
Kinzie (Capt.), 565
James L. (Mrs.), 528
Judge L., 90, 92, 94, 97
Maria, 77, 528
Naomi, 77, 97
Peter (Pvt.), 157
S. A. (Mrs.), 314
Stephen, 77
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
BATTEESE
John (Pvt.), 107
BATTELE
Lavelle H. (Sgt.), 155
BATTERSON
E. B. (Pvt.), 147
Chas. E., 524
BATTLEFIELD
John (Pvt.), 108
BATTELLE
C. D., 184
BATY
Samuel (Pvt.), 134
BAUDER
E. B., 208
George W., 209
William, 199, 204, 208
BAUER
Philip (Capt.), 139
H. (Rev.), 495
BAUGHFMAN
John (Pvt.), 158
BAUGHMAN
A., 452
Abraham (Pvt.), 117
Abram, 411
Adam, 411, 413
A. D., 295
Barbara, 411, 484, 486-487
C., 415
David, 411
Elizabeth, 411
Eve, 411
Catharine Turney, 485,
BAUGHMAN continued
Catharine Turney cont., 486-487
Esther Josephine, 486-487
Francis, 486-487
George, 411, 413, 484, 487
G. W. (Pvt.), 125
George F. (Pvt.), 136
G. R., 295
Henry, 411, 485
J. (Pvt.), 111, 112
Jacob, 295, 456
Jacob H., 135
Jesse, 46, 55, 101, 102, 411
Joel, 486-487, 489
John, 488
John W. (Pvt.), 136, 138
Josiah, 486
Levi, 411, 413
Lewis Clifford, 486, 487
Mary, 411, 413, 485
Mary Albery, 485, 486-487
Mary Ann, 486-487
Peter, 411
Priscilla Hoffman, 411
Reuben, 411
Samuel, 411, 413, 485
Sarah, 411
Solomon, 411
Susan, 411
William Sanford, 486-487
BAUM
Christian, 353, 354
Elizabeth, 354
George, 354
Jacob, 354
John, 354
Joseph, 354
Lewis, 105, 354
Madison, 354
Mary, 354
BAUMEISTER
Andrew (Pvt.), 108
BAUMGARTNER
Catharine, 386
Christina, 386
Elizabeth, 386
Hannah, 386
Henry, 386
Levi, 386, 387
BAUR
Adam (Pvt.), 142
BAUSMAN
Rev., 184
BAYER
C. G. (Pvt.), 150
G. Christy, 204
BAYLOR
Catherine, 397
Elizabeth, 391
John, 397
BEACH
Ambrose, 416
Amos, 206, 416
Benjamin, 256
Charlotte, 370-371, 409, 425
Chauncey, 416, 417
Dr., 404
E. C., 526
Lorenzo, 416
Malona C., 416
BEACH continued
Marova, 416
Mary, 409
Obil, 416
Obil O., 416
Orin O., 416
Rhoda, 416
Roswell, 416
Samuel, 419, 429
Sarah, 416
Susan, 416
Timothy, 254, 256
Uri, 416, 417
W. M., 583
BEACHTEL
Jacob (Pvt.), 144
Mary C., 197
Michael (Pvt.), 134
BEAL
Electa, 376
W. (Pvt.), 149
BEALL
Bruce W. (Pvt.), 121
Edward C. (Pvt.), 158
John G. (Corp.), 129
Reisin, 510
BEALS
George, 398
BEAM
Wesley (Pvt.), 146
BEAMIGUNS
George (Pvt.), 153
BEAN
Dabney, 355
Isaac, 355
Isaac Newton, 355
James, 355
Mordecai, 355
Zebulon Perry, 355
BEAR
Augustus, 386
J. (Pvt.), 150
Jackson (Pvt.), 130
John (Pvt.), 132
Lydia, 252, 305
Peter, 252
BEARD
B. F. (Pvt.), 149, 154
Charles (Pvt.), 141
Daniel, 380
George (Pvt.), 159
James J. (Pvt.), 141
James T. (Pvt.), 132
BEARDSLEY
Wm., 477
BEATEY
Joseph (Pvt.), 137
BEATHARD
------, 341
Catharine, 341
Joseph H. (Pvt.), 155
BEATHERD
J. H. (Pvt.), 151
BEATLEY
Frank, 488
BEATTY
Calvin (Pvt.), 145
Capt., 109
Edmond (Pvt.), 130
Mary Ann, 317
William H. (Corp.), 121

BEATY
Franklin (Pvt.), 159
John, 41
John (Pvt.), 107
Joseph, 418
Scott, 104
BEAUCHAMP
Henry, 269
Rachel, 269
Risdon, 269
BEAUMAN
J. B. (Pvt.), 147
BEAUTHERDS
Mat. (Pvt.), 155
BEAVER
D. C. (Pvt.), 154
Nathan, 278
R. (Pvt.), 150
BEAVERS
A. (Pvt.), 122
Isabel Seeds, 325
Margaret, 328
M. H., 330
M. V., 323, 328
Thomas, 323, 331, 332
W. B., 331
BEBEE
Sheldon (Pvt.), 107
BECHTEL
Samuel (Pvt.), 137
BECHTELL
Samuel (Pvt.), 141
BECK
Anna, 406
Colonel, 542-543
David (Pvt.), 125
Frederick, 46
Frederick (Pvt.), 142
Henry (Pvt.), 136
Joseph (Rev.), 357, 527
L. F., 280
BECKER
John A., 500
John P. (Pvt.), 142
Peter (Pvt.), 142
BECKET
Humphrey, 290
BECKETT
A. F., 330
Alexander F., 329
Caroline V., 329
Clara R., 329
Cornelia A., 329
Cynthia A., 329
Ellen G., 329
Isabel M., 329, 385
James A., 329, 330, 332
John H., 329
John O., 329, 332
Magdalena Akerley, 329
Margaret Coontz, 327, 329
Sarah J., 329
Susan, 390
Susan M., 329
Thomas J., 329, 331
T. J. (Pvt.), 155
Wiley H., 324, 328, 329, 330
BECKMAN
J. J. (Dr.), 567
BECKWITH
Bell, 280
BECKWITH continued
E. C. (Dr.), 567
John E., 465
Sophia, 486
William (Pvt.), 125
BEDELL
Benjamin, 189
Rt. Rev. Bishop, 185
BEDINGER
Henry, 284
BEEBE
J. H. (Mrs.), 531
Lewis M. (3rd Class), 119
L. M. (Pvt.), 149
BEECH
A. (Pvt.), 148
BEECHARD
W., 489
BEECHER
Frances, 72
Isaac, 314
J. J. (Pvt.), 148
Julia Ann Carpenter, 486
Lyman (Rev.), Illus. 432-433
Mordica (Pvt.), 157
Philemon, 40
Philemon (Judge), 43, 62, 63, 64, 72
William, 489
BEEKEY
Catharine, 585
Ida, 585
I. S., 575, Illus. 584-585
Isaac S., 46, 585
Mary, 585
BEEKMAN
Nancy, 312
BEEM
A. B., 414, 415
BEEPY
William (Pvt.), 147
BEER
John (Sgt.), 159
Thomas, 95
BEERS
Adam (Pvt.), 118
Catherine, 403
Conrad, 403
Daniel, 403
David, 101, 484, 568
David, Jr., 401, 402, 403
David, Sr., 402, 403, 408
Elias J. (Pvt.), 133
Elizabeth, 403
Ellen, 403
George, 408
George W., 403, 567
Gertrude, 403
J. (Pvt.), 150
James, 427
John (Pvt.), 155
Moses, 403
Peter, 403
Rachel, 403
Solomon, 54, 403, 408, 567
BEERY
David, 275
Harriet, 275
Jacob, 275
Lydia, 275
Sarah, 275
BEESHON
Henry (Pvt.), 121
BEESON
John H., 309
BEESMAN
J. T. (Pvt.), 155
Samual (Pvt.), 155
BEEVERS
Susan, 434
BEGG
Mary Jane, 456
T. (Pvt.), 148
Thomas, 456
BEGGARSTOFF
William I. (Pvt.), 125
BEGGS
------, 449
John, 452
BEHENSTAUGH
Jacob, 357
BEHLER
Frederick (Pvt.), 117
Harrison (Pvt.), 136
BEHM
A. (Pvt.), 148
E. G. (Pvt.), 148
BEHR
John (Pvt.), 157
BEIDLEMAN
Mr., 500
BEITLE
John (Pvt.), 138-157
BEKER
William (Pvt.), 159
BELCHEY
-----, 417
Joseph, 415
BELFORD
Amos, 381
Thomas (Sgt.), 119
BELKNAP
Eli S. (Pvt.), 159
BELL
-----, 205, 284, 290, 474
Amasa, 249
Andrew (Pvt.), 120
Carolina Samantha, 248
Catharine, 283
Charles, 249, 289, 337
Clara J., 249
D. (Pvt.), 150
Elizabeth, 248, 416
Flora, 249
George S., 367
H., 242
Hugh (Mrs.), 231
James, 105, 174, Illus. 248
James, 47, 53, 205, 279
James (Squire), 225
James D. (Pvt.), 140
James M., 37
Jane, 248, 272
J. C. (Pvt.), 147
John, 166
John (Corp.), 137
John (2nd Lt.), 121
John C. (Sgt.), 123
John H., 365
John W., 289
Joseph, 133
Joseph (Pvt.), 155

BELL continued
Joseph (Sgt.), 120
Joseph G. (Pvt.), 137
Justus B., 207, 208
Lewis H. (Sgt.), 132
Lizzie Ocheltree, 548-549
Lucy K., 249
Lyman A., 249
Maggie O., 548-549
Margaret, 248
Mary Ann, 248
Meta Minerva, 249
Minerva, 248
Nancy, 248
Rachel, 249
Robert, 141, 157
Ruth, 272
Sam C., 548-549
S. (Pvt.), 150
Samuel, 64
Susan Ann Henderson, 289
Susan Turney, 484
Thomas, 56, 101, 204-205, 248, 272
Thomas R., 249
Virginia M., 548-549
Wakeman (Sgt.), 129
William, 248, 283, 284, 285
William (Pvt.), 123
William J., Illus. 548-549
W., 242
BELLES
Joseph E. (Pvt.), 158
BELLINGER
James (Pvt.), 140
BELLOWS
C. C., 517
C. C. (Pvt.), 147
BELSFORD
A. S., 374
H. S., 374
BELSON
Hiram, 48
BELT
Levin, 44, 92, 205
BENADUM
Peter C., 451
BENCHMAN
John W. (Pvt.), 125
BENDELL
William H. (Corp.), 121
BENDING
Captain, 124
Henry R. (Lt.), 124
BENDUM
Daniel (Pvt.), 122
BENEDICK
Charles W. (Pvt.), 112, 142
BENEDICT
------, 400
A. D. (Rev.), 184
Asahel, 425
C. M. (Cpl.), 112
Doctor, 237
Levi, 484
Obediah, 423
BENEDUM
Rev., 255
BENFIELD
Sarah, 592
BENFORD
Cyrus, 200
BENHAM
Samuel M. (Pvt.), 141
BENJAMIN
Daniel (Pvt.), 107
Martin (Pvt.), 144
BENKLER
Baptisk (Capt.), 122
BENN
W. O. (Pvt.), 147
BENNEGHOFF
Christian (Pvt.), 142
BENNET
Joseph, 388
BENNETT ------, 255
Anna, 386
A. P. (Sgt.), 124
Caleb, 311
Charles (Pvt.), 130
Eli (Pvt.), 130
Ephraim (Pvt.), 137
George, 294
Henry C. (Capt.), 153
Henry C. (Pvt.), 145
H. C. (Pvt.), 148
Hiram M. (Pvt.), 156
H. K. (Pvt.), 111
Isaac N. (Pvt.), 144
James, 283, 294, 296
James (Pvt.), 145
Jane, 311
John, 100, 294, 311, 313
John (Pvt.), 130
John S. (Pvt.), 120
John (Mrs.), 313
John W., 311
Joseph, 386
J. M., 394
Madison, 447
Margaret Perrill, 294
Mary, 294, 311
Mary A., 312
Matilda, 283
Nancy, 311
Oliver (Pvt.), 130
Ralph (Pvt.), 130
Rebecca, 294
Samuel, 311
Sheldon (Pvt.), 152, 157
Thomas, 314, 394
Thomas C., 313
William, 40, 292, 294, 295, 310, 311, 343
BENNETTE
Thomas C. (Pvt.), 127
BENNIT
John, 42
BENNS
Robert W. (Pvt.), 141
BENSON
E. C. (Rev.), 521
Henry C. (Lt.), 136
N. W. (Pvt.), 114
BENSIL
H. C. (Pvt.), 155
BENSTON
John (Pvt.), 115
BENSYL
Henry C. (Pvt.), 144
BENSYL continued
John J. (Pvt.), 159
BENTLEY
------, 165
Alban E. (Pvt.), 126
Thomas, 492
BENTLY
John B., 43
BENTON
Abraham (Pvt.), 139
Basil, 355
Eliza, 272
Henry M. (Pvt.), 121
John, 355
John E. (Pvt.), 143
Joshua, 355
Thomas (Pvt.), 139
Walter, 355
William (Corp.), 123
BENSON
William Henry, 165
BENTZ
Frederic, 527
William (Pvt.), 136
BENUM
S. H. (Pvt.), 147
BENZ
Lewis, 315
BEREHYMER
Andrew (Pvt.), 130
BERG
Charles M. (Serg. Maj.), 111
BERGE
William P. (Pvt.), 159
W. P. (Pvt.), 150
BERGER
Jasper, 396
Jasper (Mrs.), 393
S. (Pvt.), 147
BERGIN
Charles S. (Pvt.), 153
BERGMAN
Henry (Pvt.), 129
BERGWITH
John (Pvt.), 139
BERGWITZ
John (Pvt.), 108
BERKEY
Joseph, 498
BERKI
John (Pvt.), 122
BERKSHIRE
Anson (Pvt.), 139
BERNARD
Fred (Corp.), 131
Henry A. (Pvt.), 140
BERNEY
L. D. (Pvt.), 141
BERRIS
W. W., 489
BERRY
-----, 255
Elizabeth, 281
Ellen, 450
Ezra F., 281
George W., 142
Israel, 152
J. B. (Pvt.), 146
John, 321
John (Pvt.), 115
John C., 308

BERRY continued
John W. (Pvt.), 145
Mary G., 93
Rebecca, 308
BERRYHILL
Alexander S. (2nd Lt.), 110
Capt., 109
BERRYMAN
John (Pvt.), 107
BERT
Abraham (Pvt.), 108
BERTCH
Mathias (Pvt.), 158
BERTSCH
Andrew (Pvt.), 142
John, 142
BESKHEAD
Theo. (Pvt.), 155
BESSE
John (Pvt.), 120
BESSEY
Henry, 464
BEST
Daniel W. (Corp.), 110
BESTON
John (Pvt.), 158
BETHARD
Chester (Pvt.), 120, 121
George H. (Pvt.), 120
Matilda, 377
BETHAUSER
C. M., 184
Rev., 518
BETHEL
George S. (Pvt.), 158
Joseph (Pvt.), 140
BETHELL
George W. (Corp.), 130
BETHEORD
Joseph (Pvt.), 120
BETLER
Elijah N., 126
BETS
C. S., 209
BETTLEY
James A. (Pvt.), 137
BETTS
Catharine, 262
Charles (Pvt.), 155
Elizabeth, 310
George, 295, 296
Joshua, 393, 394, 396
Richard W., 317
Thomas B. (Pvt.), 145
Walter (Pvt.), 127
BETWEEN-THE-LOGS
(Indian Preacher), 290
BETY
Solomon (Pvt.), 128
BETZ
Solomon, 53
BETZDELL
John J. (Pvt.), 140
BETZER
L. (Pvt.), 150
Samuel, 253
William, 198
BETZOLD
Francis (Pvt.), 117
BEUBAKER
John (Pvt.), 136
BEVELHEIMER
Christian, 414
Jacob, 412
BEVELHYMER
John W. (Pvt.), 143
BEVERLY
John, 345
P. F. (Dr.), 103, 567
BEYER
Cornelius, 417
Josiah W. (Pvt.), 132
BEYMER
William (Pvt.), 158 BIAS
William (Pvt.), 159
BIBB
John, 417
BIBBY
James (Pvt.), 140
BICKETT
Ebenezer E. (1st Sgt.), 120
Jackson A. (Pvt.), 130
James, 379
Jefferson (Pvt.), 121
John, 377
W. W. (Dr.), 103, 379, 427
W. W., 432
BICKNER
Peter (Pvt.), 159
BIDWELL
Elisha, 473
BIECHLER
Magdalene Wissler, 252
BIEBER
Henry (Pvt.), 108
BIEHL
Englehard (Pvt.), 139
BIERCE
Louis (Dr.), 216
W. W., 47, 180, 181, 182, 186-193, 199-202, 204
BIGELOE
Russel, 414
BIGELOW
Harriet, 364
John (Rev.), 447
Peter (Pvt.), 143
Russell (Rev.), 517, 542
T. C., 240
BIGGART
Charlotte, 433
John, 433, 435, 436
Joshua, 433
J. R., 437
Margaret Gibson, 433
Mary, 433
Mary R. Roberts, 433
Mary R. Thomas, 433
Matilda, 433
Samuel, 433
William, 433
BIGGS
Hezekiah (Corp.), 131
James, 156
BILL
C. E., 160
Thomas R., 206
BILLINGSLEY
William C. (Pvt.), 152
William H. (Pvt.), 152
BILLINGS
BILLINGS continued
H., 189
Henry (Rev.), 188
John (Pvt.), 108
Thomas (Pvt.), 107
BILLINGSLY
Barzillia, 380
Samuel, 379
Samuel (Sgt.), 131
BILLMAN
M., 436
BINDEN
Joseph, 511
BINGHAM
E. F. (Judge), 87
Edward F., 44, 86, 92
Harvey, 86
Lucy, 86
Thomas, 86
Warner (Judge), 86
BINKLEY
Henry S. (Corp.), 132
Jacob D. (Sgt.), 115
Philemon B. (Musician), 115
Ringgold (Corp.), 137
William I. (Pvt.), 115
BINNS
David, 365
William, 365
BIRCH
William, 209
William (Pvt.), 126
William A. (Pvt.), 159
BIRCK
Mathias, 560
BIRD
Alfred, 290
B. S. (Lt.), 114
BIRELY
S. (Pvt.), 122
BIRENS
William (Sgt.), 159
BIRMINGHAM
Edward (Pvt.), 117
BIRNEY
Hugh A. (Pvt.), 131
Nelson L. (Pvt.), 131
Robert M. (Pvt.), 131
BIRT
Benjamin (Pvt.), 126
Joseph (Pvt.), 125
BISH
M., 204
Magdalene, 236
Martin, 236
Susan P., 236
BISHOP
-----, 444, 447
Angeline, 424
B. (Pvt.), 147
Edward (Pvt.), 133
Elizabeth, 424
F. W., 427
Finley, 371
Gov., 572
H. N., 184, 194
Iden, 371
Isaac H. (Pvt.), 138
James D. (Pvt.), 159
John, 470, 475, 424, 452
John W. (Pvt.), 138

BISHOP continued
Nathan, 243
Noah, 394, 447
Peter A. (Quartermaster), 122
Rev., 255
R. M. (Gov.), 550, 591, 592
Samuel, 444
Sarah, 424, 470
Thankful, 374
Walter, 424
William, 355, 356, 424, 426
William H., 444
BITLER
Henry, 365
Samuel, 256, 365
BITSOR
Frank (Pvt.), 154
BITZ
C. (Pvt.), 150
Christopher F. (Pvt.), 120
Joseph (Pvt.), 156
BITZER
Conrad F., 48
C. S. (Pvt.), 149
BIVENS
Josiah, 319
Thomas, 321
Samuel (Lt.), 158
BIXLER
Henry (Pvt.), 107
BLACK
-----, 444
C. (Pvt.), 148
Cornelius, 444
C. Sr. (Pvt.), 148
Cornelius, Jr., 450, 453
David (Pvt.), 146
Edward R. (Lt.), 124
E. R. (Pvt.), 122
F. M. (Dr.), 103, 104, 339
F. M., 340
Francis M. (Capt.), 127
G. E. (Pvt.), 150
George, 494
H. G., 400
J. (Pvt.), 149
James, 54
James R., 132
J. T., 496
James W. (Pvt.), 156
BLACKER
E., 295
Henry C., 43, 283
James M. (Pvt.), 114, 144
BLACKBURN
------, 387
Harriet, 323
J. R., 209
Rebecca, 312
Robert (Pvt.), 158
BLACKSTONE
H. (Pvt.), 154
T. (Dr.), 103, 217
W. (Pvt.), 154
William, 52
William (Dr.), 217
BLACKWOOD
Barbara, 450
BLACKWOOD continued
George W. (Pvt.), 144
Henry Caleb, 450
Jacob Smith, 450
James M., 450, 545
Jennie E., 450
John, 252, 450
John (Mrs.), Illus. 450
Maggie L., 450
Mary Christine, 450
Reuben, 450
Robert, 450
Samuel W., 450
BLADE
Henry (Pvt.), 133
BLAGG
John R. (Pvt.), 140
BLAIN
Addison (Corp.), 120
John T., 557
BLAINE
James G. (Senator), 532-533
BLAIR
------, 469
Alexander, 435
Antonette, 471
A. O., 569
A. O. (Dr.), 479, Illus. 482-483, 483
Ann Marie Kroemer, 483
George, 479
General, 234
George H. (Dr.), 483
Giles F. (Dr.), 483
Giles T. (Dr.), 479
Giles S. (Pvt.), 123
James (Pvt.), 120
Jeannette, 483
John, 40, 44, 46, 361, 507
John (Pvt.), 140
Joseph A. (Lt.), 140
Luther, 483
O. G. (Dr.), 471
BLAKE
George C. (Pvt.), 137
BLAIZE
Daniel (2nd Lt.), 115
BLAKE
Benjamin, 554
Benj. (Mrs.), 528
Dr., 451
Ellen Williams, 396-397
Hattie, 396-397
H. C. (Dr.), 395, 396
Henry C., 396-397
John C., 396-397
Mary E., 396-397
Ola, 396-397
Phillip S. (Pvt.), 142
Samuel B., 396-397
Samuel D., 396-397
Samuel L., 396-397
William (Pvt.), 159
W. H. (Dr.), Illus. 396-397, 396
BLAKELY
James (Pvt.), 133
BLAKESLEY
John A. (Pvt.), 159
BLANCHARD
BLANCHARD continued
James H. (Pvt.), 145
BLAND
James, 518
John (Pvt.), 156
BLANNERHASSET
-----, 63
BLANVETT
H. (Pvt.), 147
BLASER
C., 544
BLASSER
David (Pvt.), 144
BLATCHFORD
Samuel (Rev.), 410
BLEIBLER
Lewis (Pvt.), 117
BLEILE
A. M., 566, 567
Henry (Pvt.), 142
Jacob, 557, 575
BLENKER
Frederick (Pvt.), 157
BLANKNER
George (Pvt.), 158
BLESCH
P. E. (Dr.), 567
BLETCHER
Jacob (Pvt.), 140
BLESSING
John (Sgt.), 159
BLINT
Frederick (Pvt.), 111
BLISCH
Michael (Pvt.), 137
BLISH
Dr., 373
BLISS
Ezra (Mrs.), 528, 531
James H. H., 131
J. B., 517
M. W., 517, 518, 519
BLIVEN
Ashable (Pvt.), 112
BLIZZARD
Jonathan (Pvt.), 144
Samuel (Pvt.), 134
BLOCKER
Henry D. (Pvt.), 132
Jacob, 319
BLOK
George, 208
BLOOM
Candrew S. (Capt.), 121
BLOOMFIELD
Frank (Pvt.), 157
Stephen (Pvt.), 159
William H. (Pvt.), 159
BLOSSER
D. A. (Pvt.), 125
F. (Pvt.), 150
Fred (Pvt.), 154
Noah (Pvt.), 143
William H. (Pvt.), 128
BLOUNT
------, 417
Adam, 415, 417
E. J. (Col.), 586
E. J., 367
Mary, 416
BLOWSER

BLOWSER continued
Noah (Pvt.), 157
BLOYNER
D., 105
BLUE
Absalen (Pvt.), 155
Absalom, 276
A.P.A. (Pvt.), 151
Catharine, 276
D., 315
Elizabeth, 299
Emily, 275, 276
Francina, 276
G. (Rev.), 517
Harvey A., 275, 276
John, 276, 311
Jonathan, 276, 335
Louisa, 276
Matilda, 337
Michael, 276
S.Q.A. (Pvt.), 151
Tunis, 276
William, 276
BLUM
Mathias (Pvt.), 142
BLUMALINE
Lewis (Pvt.), 139
BLYNN
W. G. (Pvt.), 147
Wm., 516
BLYTHE
Robert (Pvt.), 142
BOWMAN
Benjamin, 275
John, 275
Johnson, 274
Joseph (Mrs.), 275
Ruth, 275
BOALSE
A. N. (Dr.), 395, 396
Archibald U., 106
Mattie, 396
W. M., 396
BOARDMAN
Elijah (Mrs.), 238
George S. (Rev.), 515
Melissa, 520
BOAT
Sebastian (Pvt.), 130
BOBB
Asbury (Pvt.), 144
BOBO
L. E. (Pvt.), 147
BOBST
Mr., 271
BOCHART
Ann, 263
BOCK
Daniel (Pvt.), 114,
Daniel, 281
David (Pvt.), 134
E. E., 204, 208
BODEL
William, 388
BODKIN
Charles, 179
BODWELL
G. W., 309
BOEHME
Gustav (Pvt.), 142
BOEHMER
BOEHMER continued
Wagoner Christian, 117
BOEMER
John (Pvt.), 132
BOGARD
Ezekel, 40
BOGEN
Henry W. (Pvt.), 143
BOGGS
David, 269
George W. (Pvt.), 139
Irwin, 266-267
James, 266-267
James, 266-267
James T., 265, 266-267, 267, 270
Jennie, 233
John, 25-47; 214, 235, 266-267, 267, 269, 314
John (Capt.), 265, 267
John (Maj.), Illus. 266-267, 267, 270
John, Jr., 47
John M., 266-267
John T., 269
Lydia, 266-267
Lucy H., 266-267
Lemuel, 233, 266, 267
Mary, 266-267
Margaret Cook, 233
Moses, 266-267
Nancy, 266-267
Nellie Groce, 233
Rachel, 434
Sally T., 266-267
Samuel, 266-267
Scott C., 266-267
Sidney, 266-267
Taylor, 266-267
William, 266-267, 267
BOGLE
H. (Pvt.),150
J. (Pvt.), 150
BOGLES
J. (Pvt.), 122
BOGUET
Colonel, 21, 22
BOHL
Henry, 209
BOHLANDER
Charles (Pvt.), 137
BOHM
Louis (Pvt.), 122
BOHN
A. R., 99
BOHNERT
Conrad, 330
Martha, 330
BOHRER
------, 314
George, 312, 313
George (Mrs.), 313
Lorane, 313
BOLAN
John (Corp.), 126
BOLAND
Stanton, 493
BOLEN
Anna, 306
Dr., 453
James (Pvt.), 123
BOLEN continued
John (Corp.), 155
John H. (Pvt.), 138
John P., 435
J. P., 437
Samuel (Pvt.), 141
BOLENBOUGH
Leven W. (Pvt.), 144
BOLER
Lemuel E. (Pvt.), 158
BOLIN
A. R., 206, 207
George W., 338
J. (Pvt.), 151
McIlvaine, 338
-----Rector, 292
Seymour (Corp.), 127
W., 297
W. E., 43, 48, 209
William E., 104, 182, 206
BOLING
Nicholas (Pvt.), 114
BOLINGER
M. (Pvt.), 112
BOLSTON
W., 209
BOLYN
Peter (Pvt.), 138
BOLZA
William (Sgt.), 130
BOMBERGER
Adam (Corp.), 131
BONAM
Reuben, 45, 63
BONAPARTE
Napoleon, 253
BOND
------, 257
Cecilia, 72
Jerome (Pvt.), 135
John, 319
Lewis H., 47
L. H., 99
William Key, 72, 551
W. W. (Col.),
BONEBRAKE
Daniel, 436
Daniel (Rev.), 187, 278, 331, 349, 470, 477
Hester, 470
BONDELL
Thomas, 321
BONDINOT
Elias, 241
BONER
M. A. (Dr.), 395
BONHEIM
M.B.A. (Rev.), 527
BONNELL
William S. (Pvt.), 155
BONNER
John, 132
Joseph, 166
Martin (Pvt.), 137
Matthew, 433
Nancy Thomas, 433
Thomas, 431
William J. (Corp.), 156
BONNIN
Charles M. (Pvt.), 139
BONTECUE

BONTECUE continued
J. C., 184
BOODS
George (Pvt.), 159
BOOKER
John M., 524
Oakum A. (Pvt.), 119 BOOKS
Magdalene, 262
BOON
Andrews (Sgt.), 117
BOOTH
-----, 95
Ann A., 90
E., 575
Ezra, 575
Henry M., 90
H. F., 575, 519
H. J., 90
H. L. (Pvt.),
Howard L., 153
John A. (Pvt.), 137
Joseph, 575
Lewis D. (Sgt.), 136
Madge I., 90
Morris (Pvt.), 153
Wilbur C. (Corp.), 133
BOOTS
Martin, 327, 388
BOPP
Jacob (Pvt.), 117
BORCHE
G. (Pvt.), 147
BORDEN
F. (Pvt.), 150
George, 127
BORER
Solomon, 55
BORGESS
C. H. (Rev.), 522
BORLAND
Theodore (Pvt.), 139
William A. (Pvt.), 130
BORMAN
G. W. (Pvt.), 147
BORRER
William C. (Pvt.), 123
BORROR
Absolom, 388-389, 390
Absalom, Sr., Illus. 384-385, 386
Absalom (Mrs.), Illus. 384-385
A. C., 387
Anna, 386
Catharine, 386
Christina, 387
Christine, 390
Elizabeth, 390
Ephraim, 390
Harriet, 390
Hiram, 387, 388, 390
I. B., 387
Ichabod, 386
Isaac, 386, 390
Jacob, 386, 390
Jacob, Jr., 386
John, 387
John S., 390
Levi, 388
Louis, 390
BORROR continued
Magdalene, 386, 390
Margaret, 386, 387
Martha Jane, 390
Martin, 386, 390
Myomi, 386, 390
Olive, 386
Solomon, 386, 388-389, 390
William Martin, 390
BORTLE
A. (Pvt.), 146
BORTS
Joseph, 297
BORTZ
John H., 104, 206
BOSS
Henry (Pvt.), 130
John (Pvt.), 130
Willard (Pvt.), 136
BOSTON
J. J., 415
BOSTWICK
F. C., 288
Alma, 314
Capt., 99
Burr H., 99, 100
F. C., 287
Mary, 314
Oliver, 312-313
Perry G., 100
Roxanna, 314
William, 314
William H. (Corp.), 114
BOSWELL
Jacob, 562
BOTKIN
Charles, 48
G., 207
George (Pvt.), 115
Margaret, 183
William J. (Pvt.), 118
BOTSFORD
T. E., 530
BOUCHER
Anthony, 213
Joshua, 308
Rebecca, 252
Timothy, 434
BOURLEN
Thomas, 434
BOUSER
Benjamin (Pvt.), 129
BOUTZ
John M. (Pvt.), 144
BOVENSCROFT
A. M. (Pvt.), 149
BOWDELL
Henry, 319
Thomas, 319
BOWDLE
H. (Pvt.), 151
William T. (Pvt.), 144
BOWEN
A. J. (Col.), 163
B. F., 46, Illus. 586-587, 588
General, 540
Isaac, 319
Jacob (Pvt.), 157
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 132
John D. (Pvt.), 141
BOWEN continued
J. T., 432
Robert, 441
Susan, 441
Truman, 354, 356
William, 354
Wm. (Rev.), 521
BOWER
John, 448
Lewis C. (Pvt.), 127
BOWERS
Aaron, 381
Allen, 378, 380
Clark, 378
Daniel, 377, 378
Dr., 216
E. (Pvt.), 112
E. D., 209
E. D. (Dr.), 103, 182, 217
Eleazur, 378
George (Pvt.), 125
Jacob, 137
Jacob (Corp.), 138
John W. (Pvt.), 138
Julia, 378
L. A. (Capt.), 586
Lora, 378
Lovisa, 378
Lucius A. (1st Sgt.), 119
Lyman, 378
Newman H. (Pvt.), 153
Philena, 378
Polly, 378
Thomas (Pvt.), 146
W. H. (Pvt.), 112
Wheeler, 378
William, 378
BOWERSMITH
John (Pvt.), 140
BOWERSOX
J. G., 476
BOWIN
George (Pvt.), 130
Lewis (Pvt.), 130
BOWLER
John (Corp.), 117
BOWLING
H., 204
Thomas I. (Sgt.), 126
BOWMAN
------, 290
Adam (Pvt.), 132
Benjamin, 48, 275, 457
Henry (Pvt.), 117
Jacob L., 456
Jacob (Rev.), 449
James H. (Sgt.), 126
John, 277, 282, 289, 527
John (Mrs.), 275
John (Pvt.), 146
John W. (Pvt.), 117
Joseph, 302
Joseph (Pvt.), 140
H. J. (Rev.), 476
Mary Bell, 457
R. M. J., 280, 281
Ruth, 277, 282
Samuel, 301
Sarah Elizabeth, 456
S. K. (Pvt.), 149
William, 275, 282, 302

BOWMAN continued
William F. (Pvt.), 117
BOWSER
John G. (Pvt.), 157
John H. (Pvt.), 135
BOWSHER
Robert E. (Pvt.), 115
William, 283
William A. (Pvt.), 143
BOYCE
Eliza L., 532, 533
John, 532, 533
Wesley, 518
BOYD
-----, 376
Allen (Pvt.), 120
Bartley, 364
Charles W., 543
Electa, 376
J., 436
James, 383, 415
James M. (Pvt.), 157
Jane, 320
Lemuel (Dr.), 436
Mercy, 461
Preston, 332
Priscilla, 332
Robert, 373, 376, 380, 463
Samuel, 290
Stephen, 323, 332
William, 330
William D. (Pvt.), 122
BOYDSTON
William D. (Corp.), 159
BOYEN
John, 207
BOYER
Adam, 269
L. W., 451
John, 48, 182, 199, 206
John (Pvt.), 133
Jonathan, 451
Joseph, 255, 257
William, Sr., 280
BOYD
William T. (Pvt.), 131
BOYLE
------, 165
Andrew (Capt.), 150
C. E. (Dr.), 46, 569
James M., 162
Sylvester (Pvt.), 131
Thomas (Pvt.), 107
BOYSEL
John, 255, 256
John (Sgt.), 135
Levi (Pvt.), 125
Lewis (Pvt.), 135
BRABECK
James H. (Pvt.), 111
George (Pvt.), 111
BRABENDER
Oscar Von (Capt.), 122
BRACKENRIDGE
William (Corp.), 123
BRADDOCK
A. A., 162
General, 324
BRADEN
James (Pvt.), 107
BRADESICK
BRADESICK continued
I. B. (Rev.), 296
BRADFIELD
James, 434
Jane, 435
Joseph (Pvt.), 118
Mary, 434
Maurice (Pvt.), 144
Nancy, 383
Samuel, 383
BRADFORD
Carpenter, 511
David, 178
Madison (Pvt.), 121
N. T., 105, 199
N. T. (Pvt.), 149
S. (Rev.), 296
Samuel, 162
Samuel (Capt.), 518
T. C. (Capt.), 564
BRADIGAN
Nathaniel (Pvt.), 146 BRADLEY
-----, 355
Isaac, 105
John E., 317
BRADON
James, 347
BRADNER
Joseph, 396
BRADRICK
I. B. (Rev.), 519
BRADSHAW
-----, 200
John, 347
William, 347
BRADY
Eli (Pvt.), 107
F. S. (Corp.), 153
BRAGDON
C. A., 185
G. E. (Dr.), 103, 280
BRAIN
John (Pvt.), 139
BRAINARD
S. P., 165, 166, 167
Samuel, 100
BRAKE
Elias O. (Pvt.), 133
BRAKEMAN
Henry (Sgt.), 121
BRAND
Asher, 372-373
Martha, 372-373
Thomas F. (1st Lt.), 110
BRANDON
T. A. (Rev.), 296
BRANDRIFF
Richard, 184
BRANDSTATT
Christopher, 43
Magdalena, 43
BRANDT
Jesse, 452
BRANELT
Henry (Pvt.), 137
BRANN
John G. (Pvt.), 141
BRANNAN
B. F., 165,166
D., 202
BRANNAN continued
Patrick (Pvt.), 125
BRANNEIS
E. J. (1st Lt.), 122
BRANT
George, 111
Martin (Pvt.), 156
Mary, 416
William (Pvt.), 144
BRANTNER
John D. (Sgt.), 126
Joseph, 396
M. D., 396
BRANTOR
Joseph, 394
BRASEE
Morton E., 102
BRASKET
D. (Pvt.), 149
H. (Pvt.), 149
BRASSEE
John T., 71
BRAUCHER
Conrad, 251
BRAUER
Johanna Henrietta, 590
BRECK
William, 387
William F., 387, 389, 404
William F. (Mrs.), 389
BRECKENRIDGE
Alexander, 385
Eliza, 397
Elizabeth, 385
Isaac, 388
J. H., 368
John, 385
Lucy, 397
Margaret, 385
Mary, 385
Nancy, 385
Robert, 385, 397
Samuel, 385
William, 385, 388
BREDSFORD
Robert A. (Corp.), 152
BREEDEN
John M. (Pvt.), 121
BREIRET
Charles, 489
Jacob, 489
BREITH
Jacob (Pvt.), 108
BRELSFORD
David H. (Pvt.), 153
George W. (Pvt.), 153
William (Pvt.), 121
BREMIGAM
William, 165, 167
BREMISON
Alexander (Pvt.), 158
BREMMER
Henry (Pvt.), 122
BRENBARGER
Isaac (Pvt.), 144
John A. (Pvt.), 144
BRENEMAN
John (Rev.), 449
BRENER
Fred (Pvt.), 121
BRENESON

BRENESON continued
Frederick (Pvt.), 139
BRENNIE
John (Pvt.), 130
BRENNESTAHL
Gottleib (Pvt.), 140
BRENT
Samuel I. (2nd Lt.), 121
BRENTHOUSE
Thomas (Pvt.), 141
BRENTLINGER
John, 357
William, 383
BRERY
Samuel P. (Pvt.), 139
BRETT
B. C., 387, 477
BRETZ
Martin (Pvt.), 136
BREVERT
D. (Pvt.), 148
BREVOORT
Isaac, 404
Virgil (Corp.), 130
BREWER
Frank (Pvt.), 141
G. A., 474
George M. (Pvt.), 125
William (Pvt.), 141
BREWSTER
Dr., 210
BREYFOGLE
C., 514
Charles, 575
C. W. (Lt.), 157
George, 213
BRICE
Archibald (Rev.), 255, 256
BRIKELL
John, 23, 361, 507, 511, 533, 542
W. D., 162, 163
BRICKER
Enoch, 157
BRICKETTS
------, 430
BRICKLE
John, 517
BRIDAGUM
John, 278, 281
BRIDENTHAL
H. (Pvt.), 111
BRIDGES
Emery (Pvt.), 153
BRIDGMAN
Adam C. (Pvt.), 131
Nelson (Pvt.), 131
BRIEN
David O., 451
L., 401
BRIERLY
John (Pvt.), 139
BRIGGELMANN
John (Sgt.), 122
BRIGGS
Abner, 346
Ashton, 346
Ashton (Pvt.), 128
C. E., 93
Elisha (Pvt.), 112
E. C. (Cpl.), 112
BRIGGS continued
James (Pvt.), 128
Joseph, 346
Joseph (Pvt.), 127
J. M., 104, 365
Henry, 365
Martha E., 346
Mary L., 363
Robert M., 47
BRIGHAM
James B. (Pvt.), 112
J. B. (Cpl.), 112
J. B. (Pvt.), 112
BRIGHT
------, 202, 479
Amos C., 48
Jesse, 331
George L. (1st Class), 119
George W. (Pvt.), 153
Jesse (Rev.), 290
Nimrod, 183
Samuel L. (Chaplain), 154
S. M., 453
S. M. (Pvt.), 151
William (2nd Class), 119
BRILEY
Benjamin (Rev.), 309
BRINDLEY
Charles (Pvt.), 154
BRINER
Andrew, 43, 214, 215
C. L. (Pvt.), 149
John, 295
Martin L. (Pvt.), 117
BRINK
Gilbert W. (Pvt.), 133
Henry (Pvt.), 119
John W. (Corp.), 133
J. T., 387
Major, 267
BRINKER
Barnabas, 275, 277, 284
G. (Pvt.), 151
George, 275, 277
George, Jr., 275
Mary, 275
O. P. (Dr.), 395
BRINKERHOFF
N. (Pvt.), 152
S. (Pvt.), 149, 152
Steven, 472
BRISTOL
Adna, 370, 371, 419
Calvin E. (Pvt.), 153
David, 404, 419
BRITT
Nelson A., 538
BRITTAN
------, 235
BRITTINGER
George (Pvt.), 143
BRITTINGHAM
E., 374
Enoch (Pvt.), 120
Francis M. (Pvt.), 120
Samuel (Pvt.), 146
BRITTOM
H. (Pvt.), 151
BRITTON
------, 443
Abagail, 311
BRITTON continued
Alfred (Pvt.), 128
Amanda, 311
Benjamin, 373
Benjamin (Rev.), 491
Charles L. (Pvt.), 121
Clarence, 311
Cynthia, 311
Elizabeth, 311, 312
Frank (Pvt.), 145
Harrison, 311
Hiram, 311
Hosea, 443, 495
J. (Pvt.), 151
James S., 494, 495
Jesse, 311
Jesse (Jr.), 311
Jesse (Pvt.), 156
John, 495
Joseph, 311
Joseph (Corp.), 135
J. S., 494
J. T., 101
Letitia, 311
Lewis, 494-495
Louisa, 311
Margaret, 311
Nancy, 311
Philander C. (Pvt.), 121
Susan, 311
BROADBECK
Jacob (Pvt.), 122
BROADLAKE
W. (Pvt.), 111
BROBECK
-----, 204, 381
Eliza, 379
James, 181
Jacob (Corp.), 124
Joseph (Pvt.), 127
BROBST
Benjamin, 355
Caleb, 279
David, 355, 357
Elizabeth, 274
Gregg, 279
Jacob, 355, 357
John, 355
Joseph, 356
Mary, 355
Monroe, 356, 357
Peter, 355, 357
Rufus, 301
Salome, 355
BROCK
M. D., 567
Pleasant, 278
P. (Rev.), 187
P. (Mrs.), 262
M. D. (Dr.), 465
BROCKWAY
Hiel, 451
BRODBECK
-----, 89
F. A., 161
BRODBELT
Gersham (Pvt.), 138
BRODERICK
David S., 548
Marilla, 362
BRODRICK

BRODRICK continued
Elizabeth (Mrs.), 102
John C., 45, 520
BRODSTONE
James (Pvt.), 142
BROKAW
Francis I. (Pvt.), 115
George W. (Pvt.), 115
John F. (Pvt.), 159
BROMAGEN
William S. (Pvt.), 141
BRONDON
William (Pvt.), 159
BROOKE
A. L., 453
BROOKS
A., 184
Absalom, 307
Alfred, 341
Ancil (Rev.), 519
Chester W. (Pvt.), 123
Cyrus (Rev.), 517
David, 367
David W., 45, 561, 562
Dr., 208
Florina, 370-371
Francis P., 69
Frank, 414
G. S., 558
H. (Mrs.), 102
Harvey (Pvt.), 128
James (Pvt.), 125
James A. (Pvt.), 157
Jefferson, 313
John, 514
J. N. (Pvt.), 122
Lewis (Pvt.), 140
Martha F., 307
Randall (Pvt.), 159
R. T., 480, 562
S. (Pvt.), 151
Spencer (Pvt.), 126
W. B., 60, 61, 562, 575
William, 307
W. J., 435
BROOMBACK
Tobias, 464
William (Pvt.), 158
BROOMHALL
Eli (Pvt.), 155
I. N. (Pvt.), 151
Isaac N. (Pvt.), 155
L. M. (Pvt.), 151
Lindley N. (Pvt.), 155
BRONER
Andrew, 179
BRONNER
W. J. (Pvt.), 151
BRONSON
B. B., 465
Jane, 463
BROPHY
Frank (Pvt.), 145
BROPLEY
D. (Pvt.), 147
BROTHERLIN
Adam, 47, 384
Elizabeth, 270
James, 270
John, 207, 208
BROTHERLY
BROTHERLY continued
George (Pvt.), 129
BROTHERS
Jurl, 81
BROTHERTON
Robert, 45, 46, 47, 54, 514
BROUGH
------, 497
Charles (Col.), 108
Governor -----, 225, 242, 497, 569
BROWBECK
George (Corp.), 157
BROWER
Catharine, 189
BROWN
-----, 200
A. E., 390
Alexander (Pvt.), 153
Allen, 518
Alvert L. (Corp.), 120
Ann, 341
Anna L., 368
B. (Mrs.), 275
Basil, 371
Beverly W. (Pvt.), 110
Bruce S. (Pvt.), 121
B. S., 60, 61, 562
Catharine Case, 239
Charles H. (Pvt.), 132
David H. (2nd Lt.), 148
D. H. (Pvt.), 152
Daniel M., 372
D. M., 104
Dr., 232
E. C., 370-371, 419
Elbert C. (Pvt.), 153
Edward (Pvt.), 157
Eleanor, 312
Elizabeth, 385, 443
Esther, 357
Ethan A., 50
Ethan A. (Governor), 271
Ezekiel, 46, 375, 425-426
Ezra, 41, 418, 512
Franklin (Pvt.), 139
Frederick, 239
George, 205, 271, 436
G. (Pvt.), 112
George (Pvt.), 112, 115, 139, 155
George W., 357
George W. (Pvt.), 157
H., 51, 551
H. A. (Rev.), 189
Harriet, 385
Harrison (Pvt.), 156
Hattie, 312
Henry, 44, 54, 364, 508, 513
Henry M., 137, 450
Hezekiah, 312
Horace (Rev.), 517
Horatio A. (Pvt.), 144
H. S. (Pvt.), 111
Isaac, 312
Israel, 383
J. (Pvt.), 149
Jacob, 181
Jacob (Pvt.), 154
James, 40, 209, 312, 338, 371
BROWN continued
James (Pvt.), 107, 144
James H. (Pvt.), 123, 138
James T. (Pvt.), 125
J. C., 315
Jeremiah, 47, 294, 295, 297
Jeremiah (Sgt.), 108
J. H., 111
John, 239, 385
John (Pvt.), 124, 130, 138, 145
John F. (Pvt.), 146
John Q. A. (Musician), 152
John (Rev.), 296
Joseph, 166, 278, 436
Joseph N. (Capt.), 122
Joseph (Pvt.), 108, 155
Joseph A. (Rev.), 517
J. W., 320
Kate, 240
Lucy, 341
Lucy Atwater, 228
M., 104, 199, 201, 228
M. (Dr.), 101, 103, 105, 192
Manel (Pvt.), 159
Marcus, 53, 201
Marcus Aurelius, 240
Marcus (Dr.), 52, 199, 216, Illus. 239
Margaret, 385, 443
Martha, 385
Mary, 294, 337
Mary Ann, 385
Matthew, 443, 447
Morris, 375, 376
Nancy, 299
Noah, 516
Obed, 275
Peter (Pvt.), 108
Peter, 239, 295
Peter W., 47
Philip (Pvt.), 139
Rachel, 385
Richard, 525
Richard (Pvt.), 159
L. (Pvt.), 154
Rufus (Pvt.), 153
S. (Pvt.), 152
Samuel, 184, 385, 387, 443
Sarah, 450
Stanley, 275
S. W., 340
S. W. (Pvt.), 154
Sylvester, 417
Thomas, 208, 291, 312, 556
Thomas (Pvt.), 108, 159
William, 41, 256, 275, 312, 385, 387
William (Mrs.), 312
William (Pvt.), 108, 125, 127, 132, 144, 156, 158, 159
William (Judge), 25, 40
William (Rev.), 187
William C., 385
W. P., 46
BROWNING
Drusilla, 196-197
Isaac, 414, 415
J. N., 414
BROWNSEN
Isaac K. (Rev.), 188
BROWNSON

BROWNSON continued
I. K., 189
Orrin S. (Pvt.), 118
BROYLES
Martin (Pvt.), 144
BRUBAKER
David (Pvt.), 136
Elizabeth, 386
Franklin (Pvt.), 142
Levi (Pvt.), 117
BRUCE
A. W. (Rev.), 525
W. (Pvt.), 151
William (Pvt.), 156
BRUCH
John P., 46
BRUCK
Caroline, 542-543
Daniel, 372, 373
George, 542-543
Christ (Pvt.), 108
J. P., 526, 533
Ludwig, 542-543
Ludwig (Pvt.), 122
Margaret B., 542-543
Phillip (Pvt.), 153
S. T., 542-543
BRUCKER
Sylvester (Pvt.), 130
BRUMBACK
Jefferson (Maj.), 129
BRUMBAUGH
D. W. (Pvt.), 112
BRUMER
John W. (Rev.), 533
R. C. (Cpl.), 278
BRUNDAGE
Joseph, 278
BRUNDIG
T. (Pvt.), 150
BRUNDIGE
J. H., 475
BRUNDRIDGE
Robert N. (Pvt.), 135
Samuel (Sgt.), 135
BRUNER
D., 207
G., 207
John N. (Lt.), 134
R. C. (Pvt.), 149
T. R., 101
BRUNFIELD
William, 276
BRUNK
Daniel, 491, 492, 499
Harriet, 390
Peggy, 373
Jerome (Pvt.), 133
S., 386
William H. (Sgt.), 133
BRUNNER
Frank (Pvt.), 122
J. A. (Rev.), 183, 184
Leo F. (Pvt.), 159
T. K., 181
William (Pvt.), 125
BRUNNSHEIN
-----, 204
BRUNOT
Felix R., 243 BRUSH BRUSH continued
A. D. (Sgt.), 112
Cornelia A., 73
E. C., 566
Elizabeth, 72
E. S. (Dr.), 567
George (Rev.), 518
G. W., 184
Henry, 205
Henry (Col.), 72, Illus. 520-521
Henry (Judge), 97
Platt, 72, Illus. 520-521
Platt, Illus. 520-521
Samuel, 55, 72, 73, Illus. 520-521
Samuel (Maj.), 591
Samuel (Mrs.), Illus. 520-521; 521
BRYAN
Algemin (Corp.), 112
George (Pvt.), 140, 146
Henry W. (Corp.), 130
H. E., 514
John A., 160, 163
John L., 45
BRYANT
Charles W. (Pvt.), 141
C. W. (Pvt.), 152
Dr., 257
Henry, 314
Maria, 314
William Cullen, 257
BRYDEN
David, 556
James, 41, 46, 384
BRYSON
Charles (Pvt.), 139
BUCHANAN
C. C. (Pvt.), 111
James, 591
James (President), 99, 228
J. W. (Pvt.), 122
BUCHERMAN
John H. (Pvt.), 144
BUCHS
Magdalene, 261, 305
Sabina Fred, 229
BUCHTEL
John R., 549
BUCHSIEB
L., 574
BUCHWALTER
Henry, 230
Salome Dreisbach, 230 BUCK
David (Pvt.), 159
G. W., 451
Henry (Corp.), 115
John, 405
Joseph, 274
Samuel D. (Pvt.), 140
William, 274, 405
BUCKHALTZ
L., 388
BUCKINGHAM
Charles, 400
Ebenezer, Jr., 50
Gen., 564
James, 367
BUCKLES
BUCKLES continued
Abram, 435
Harness R. (Pvt.), 118
Minerva, 434
BUCKLEY
Edward (Pvt.), 120
George (Sgt.), 157
Joseph W. (Sgt.), 134
Oliver P. (Pvt.), 117
BUCKMAN
Samuel C. (Sgt.), 125
Watson (Corp.), 110
BUCKWALTER
Ed. L. (Sgt.), 134
Joseph, 278
BUDD
Catharine, 472
Emanuel (Pvt.), 125
George (Pvt.), 112
Homer J. (Corp.), 156
Homer J. (3rd Class), 119
John, 472, 475
Lovina, 471
Nicholas, 472
S., 471, 475, 479
Sylvanus, 472
BUELL
B. C. (Maj. Gen.), 109, 126
E. (Pvt.), 112
BUECHLER
-----, 256
BUEHNER
John W. (Corp.), 109
BUGH
J. J., 189
BUKEN
E. E. (Pvt.), 122
BULEN
Jennie, 94
J. W. (Pvt.), 149
T. E. (Pvt.), 149
Tobias, 434
William W. (Pvt.), 144
W. W. (Pvt.), 149
BULGER
James (Corp.), 158
BULL
Alanson, 54, 479
Alanson N. (1st Lt.), 148
Alonson, 404, 407, 408
Billingsly, 442
Chloe, 404
Edith, 404, 407
E. P., 464
F. A., 431, 478
Fidelia Wilson, 404
Frank, 479
H. (Pvt.), 148, 152
Hiram, 404
James C. (Mayor), 571
James G. (Lt.), 130
Jason, 403, 404, 407
Nathan, 404
Nathan T. (Dr.), 407, 408
Sylvia, 408
Sylvia Benedict, 404
Thomas, 404, 407, 408
William H. (Pvt.), 141
BULLEN
-----, 499
John, 499

BULLEN continued
Joseph (Dr.), 388, 389
Mary, 463
William, 447, 463
William E., 462-463
BULY
William (Pvt.), 119
BUMBARGER
George (Pvt.), 137
Cyrus (Pvt.), 132
BUMOR
George W. (Pvt.), 157
BUNCH
Hillery F. (Pvt.), 118
H. P., 330
James A. (Corp.), 117
Reuben P. (Pvt.), 117
William (Pvt.), 117
William R. (Corp.), 155
BUNDY
Carrie, 312-313
BUNN
Catherine, 455
Charlotte, 443, 455
Elizabeth, 443, 455, 452
Frederick, 443; Illus. 455
Henry, 390-391, 452-455
Henry (Jr.), 443
Henry (Sr.), 443, 444
Louis, Illus. 386-387; 455
Jefferson, 455
Jefferson L., 443
Margaret, 252
Mary, 443
Nancy, 443
Nelson H., 443, 455
Peter, 213
Sarah, 443, 455
Sarah Pauline, 455
BUNTES
Frank (Pvt.), 133
BURBRIDGE
James (Rev.), 295, 296
William, 295
BURCHEREDT
John (Pvt.), 122
BURCHIN
William (Pvt.), 132
BURCHNELL
W. H., 340
BURD
Rev., 188
Benjamin (Pvt.), 132
BURDELL
Harry, Jr. (Lt.), 159
BURDETT
William, 557
BURDINOO
Charles (Pvt.), 107
BURGER
J. C. (Pvt.), 147
BURGESS
Roswell S. (Pvt.), 130
BURGET
-----, 183, 281, 352
Elizabeth, 183
George, 343
Henry, 214
Jacob W., 48
James, 214
James (Pvt.), 157
BURGET continued
John, 42, 183
Joseph, 343, 344
Joshua, 343
Mary, 214
Sarah, 183, 214, 351
Washington, 214
BURGETT
-----, 335
Daniel, 335
BURGLE
N., 589
BURGWITZ
F. (Pvt.), 149
BURINER
Emanuel (Corp.), 124
BURK
Charles (Pvt.), 114
James (Pvt.), 139
John (Pvt.), 118
BURKE
Barbara Gochenour, 328
James H. (Pvt.), 130
John, 522
John (Pvt.), 140
J. W., 348
Michael, 328
BURKES
Dennis P. (Corp.), 134
BURKHAM
R. E. (Pvt.), 149
BURKHARDT
John, 527
BURKHEAD
Llewellyn (Pvt.), 118
Thomas, 331
BURKLE
Martin (Pvt.), 139
BURKLEY
James (Pvt.), 124
BURKS
John M. (Pvt.), 136
BURMAN
G. W., 456
Sarah Ann, 456
BURNETT
Giles (Pvt.), 132
Jacob, 205
J. D., 102
John D., 87, 88
Oliver H. P. (Corp.), 125
BURNHAM
-----, 314
E. A., 315
BURNLEY
Ann, 328
James H., 328, 330, 332
John C., 328, 330, 331, 332
Virginia, Illus. 291
BURNS
Frank (Pvt.), 140
Fred, 157
George W., 313
G. W. (Rev.), 519
James, 46
James (Corp.), 129
John, 251
John (Pvt.), 132
John (Rev.), 543
Joseph, 251
William (Pvt.), 140
BURNS continued
William H. (Pvt.), 159
BURNSWORTH
William, 272
BURR
Catharine, 424
Charles, 424
Charles E., 94, 424, 426
Charles E., Jr., 94
Erastus, 424
George C., 424
Henry C. (1st Sgt.), 120
John, 521
Jonathan N., 424
Levi J., 424
Ozias, 424
Philo, 424, 426
Philander, 424
Samuel, 104
Sophia R., 94
William H., 424
BURRELL
Dr., 324, 344
Thomas, 348
BURRETT
Eli (Dr.), 410
BURRIS
M. V. B., 471
BURT
Francis S., 348
Sadie, 430
BURTON
Asa (Dr.), 182
Betsey, 448
Geo. H. (Capt.), 565
Jacob (Pvt.), 126
John (Pvt.), 156
John W. (Pvt.), 120
Lewis D. D. (Rev.), 521
Lucy, 448
Nancy, 448
Sidney, 69
Thomas, 352
Walter, 465
William (Rev.), 105, 178, 182, 544
BURWELL
D. (Pvt.), 148
Julia, 345
John P. (Pvt.), 146
J. P. (Pvt.), 151
James (Sgt.), 159
John, Jr. (Pvt.), 155
W. (Pvt.), 147, 153
BURY Joseph (Lt.), 135
BUSCHER
Jacob (Pvt.), 112
BUSEY
Henry, 400
BUSH
Nancy, 448
William, 448
BUSHAWN
William (Pvt.), 130
BUSHBY
Asa, 416-417
BUSHEY
P. N. (Pvt.), 122
BUSHNELL
Andrews (2nd Lt.), 107

BUSHNELL continued
Henry (Rev.), 475, 482
John H. (Pvt.), 155
BUSHSHAWN
Aaron (Pvt.), 129
BUSICK
James (Sgt.), 114
Margaret, 308
R. A., 308
BUSK
George (Sgt.), 112
BUSSARD
Andrew, 250
Nancy, 252
BUSSERT
T., 204
BUSSEY
John (Pvt.), 107
BUTCHER
George (Pvt.), 139
Henry (Pvt.), 159
James (Pvt.), 139
Jane, 382
Richard, Jr., 518
Richard, Sr., 518
BUTLER
Aurelia, 65, 490
Belinda, 489
C. H. (Pvt.), 147
Charles, 202
Charles (Cpl.), 153
C. P. L., 61, 554, 557, 561, 562, 565, 570
David, 293
Ebenezer, 489
Esther M., 95
Flora, 490
George J. (Pvt.), 157
H. (Pvt.), 147
Henry, 521
Henry M., 95
Henry W. (Pvt.), 130
James, 388
James (Pvt.), 120, 122, 143
Jacob, 95
Judge ----, 65, 227
John (Sgt.), 124
Manley, 489
Martha, 490
Mary, 489
Michael (Pvt.), 129, 140
Nathan (Pvt.), 153
Patrick (Pvt.), 126
Rebecca Davis, 489, 490
Richard, 35
Roswell, 490
Simeon (Pvt.), 131
Theodore H., 562, 565
Washington C. (Pvt.), 139
William (Pvt.), 139
BUTOOHA
Gebhard (Pvt.), 117
BUTT
William (Pvt.), 141
BUTTERBERG
G. (Pvt.), 152
BUTTERFIELD
C. W., 27, 57
Isaac C. (Lt.), 135
John, 566
Sylvester (Pvt.), 153
BUTTERMAN
Thomas (Pvt.), 125
BUTTLER
Audory (2nd Lieut.), 107
S. (Pvt.), 147
BUTTLES
A., 521
Aaron L., 431
A. B., 81, 564, 569, 571, 582
Albert, 45
Albert B., 83, 97
Arora, 44, 46, 426, 427
Joel, 52, 83, 160, 396, 427, 513, 520, 556
L., 538
Levi, 419
Lucien, 557
Mary E., 83
BUTTON
Noah S. (Pvt.), 133
BUTTS
Anthony W. (Cap.), 131
BUZZARD
John (Pvt.), 155
Richard, 435
BUZZY
C. A., 340
BUZZENBARGER
Capt., 460
Eliza, 460
BYE
Peter (Pvt.), 133
BYERLEY
Godfrey, 156
BYERLY
G. (Pvt.), 148
BYERS
A., 184
A. G. (Rev.), 519, 570
C. H. (Pvt.), 112
J. (Pvt.),
John O. (Pvt.), 136
BYINGTON
Jesse, 411
BYME
Elizabeth, 95
Luke G., 95
William, 95
BYNNER
-----, 417
Robert, 417
BYRAM
Algernon T. (Pvt.), 138
BYRD
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 118
John C. (Pvt.), 118
BYRNE
A. H., 161
Elizabeth, 97
Luke, 97
William, 97
BYRNS
J. (Pvt.), 148
BYRUM
Wilson (Pvt.), 119
BYWATERS
J. F. (Dr.), 453
BYXBEE
Moses, 431

C.

CABLE
Dr., 103, 477
Jonathan (Rev.), 463
CADE
Abraham (Pvt.), 108
Charles, 42, 47, 100
Charles (Pvt.), 135
Isaac (Rev.), 295, 296
Phenis (Pvt.), 108
CADY
Nelson D. (Pvt.), 127
Samuel (Pvt.), 107
William, 107, 140
CAGE
William, 215
CAIN
Smith J. (Pvt.), 134
William (Pvt.), 140
CAINE
William (Pvt.), 142
CALB
Henry (Pvt.), 143
CALAHAN
Alexander (Pvt.), 124
Patrick (Pvt.), 136
William (Pvt.), 139
CALDERWOOD
A. R. (Judge), 89
CALDWELL
-----, 285
Alexander, 248, 283
Amos B., 272
Ann Maria, 272
Catharine, 248
Daniel, 272
David, 272
Dwight Calhoun, 272
Elizabeth, 272
Elizabeth Jane, 272
Henry, 283
Henry (Pvt.), 155
Isaac M., 272
James, 272
James M. (Pvt.), 136
James D., 98, 206, 207
Jane, 272, 283
Jesse P. (Pvt.), 121
John, 265, 268, 270, 272, Illus. 272-273
John D. (Pvt.), 114
John H., 283
John Wesley, 272
J. W., 489
Johnson, 272, 283
Joseph, 210-211, 272
Lovina, 210-211
O., 396
Robert, 272
Robert (Pvt.), 131
Samuel, 272
Sarah B., 272
Thomas McClennan, 272
William, 268, 271, 272
William (Pvt.), 136
William B., 17, 283, 364
William H. (Pvt.), 114
William Lewis, 272
W. L. (Pvt.), 150
CALHOUN

CALHOUN continued
-----, 447
Dr., 191
Henry (Rev.), 182
John C., 410
CALKINS
Christopher, 421
CALLAHAN
James (Pvt.), 157
R. (Rev.), 290, 340, 388
CALLAN
Hugh (Pvt.), 154
CALVERT
Aaron (Pvt.), 137
James C., 129
James C. (Pvt.), 156
John (Pvt.), 120, 158
CALVIN
Moses, 293
CAMBRIDGE
John, 462
CAMERON
-----, 444
Alexander, 356, 444, 445, 447, 448
CAMMEL
Thomas B. (Pvt.), 139
CAMP
David, 414
G. R. (Pvt.), 122
Harvey, 184
H. C., 185
Jesse (Dr.), 396-397
John, 396-397
John F. (2nd Lt.), 114
Joseph (Pvt.), 108
Polly, 396-397
CAMPBELL
Alexander, 577
Asher E. (Pvt.), 137
Cicero, 411
Daniel (Pvt.), 157
Daniel H. (Pvt.), 157
F. J. (Rev.), 449
George, 411
George (Pvt.), 114
George W. (Lt.), 123
H. (Pvt.), 149, 154
Isabella, 284
James, 56, 411
James (Pvt.), 146
Jacob (Pvt.), 112
John, 453
J. C. (Rev.), 475
Joseph, 284
Joseph (Pvt.), 119, 120
L. W., 365
Mary Quinn, 412
Matthew, 411
Peter, 49
Robert, 43, 104, 243, 284, 319
Robert C. (Capt.), 158
Richard (Pvt.), 141
Samuel, 279, 284, 319, 348
Samuel A., 53
Sophia Quinn, 412
Thomas, 48
T. J. (Rev.), 523
William, 284, 319, 411
W. C., 451
CAMPBELL continued
W. H., 122
CAMPHER
J. (Pvt.), 148, 152
CAMPNELL
John (Pvt.), 153
CANAAN
Chalmers (Pvt.), 143
John (Pvt.), 140
William (Pvt.), 117
CANADA
Luther (Pvt.), 145
CANAHAN
-----Davis, 289
CANBY
General, 129
CANELY
Peter (Pvt.), 108
CANFIELD
David, 407
Herman, 368
Milton C., 47, 98
CANNADY
Roseline (Pvt.), 145
CANNON
Alfred (Pvt.), 130
Charles B. (Pvt.), 144
Jesse (Lieut.), 108
J. H., 452
CANODE
George W. (Pvt.), 141
CANOE
(Indian), 287
CANON
James (Pvt.), 140
William W. (Pvt.), 141
CANOUSE
Daniel, 354
CANTLEBURY
John (Pvt.), 117
CANTNER
Ida, 197
CANTRILL
William, 295
CANTWELL
J. S. (Rev.), 525
CANWAY
Jacob (Pvt.), 108
Lewis (Pvt.), 108
CAPELL
Austin D. (Pvt.), 132
Henry (Pvt.), 132
CARDER
Henry, 352
John (Pvt.), 159
Peter, 310
Susan, 315
S. (Pvt.), 151
Samuel (Pvt.), 156
CARDIFF
Anna B., 306
Christopher, 295, 306
Fleming, 308
Mary, 308
M. Gordy, 306
Noah, 306
CAREY
Calvin, 40
George H. (Pvt.), 137
James K., 45
Robert (Pvt.), 118
CAREY continued
Samuel F. (Pvt.), 141
CARFREY
George, 332
Isaac (Lt.), 155
CARHART
H. G., 91
CARL
Abraham, 405
Dr., 395
James (Pvt.), 143
CARLETON
Almon (Pvt.), 107
CARLISLE
James, 185
William, 211
CARLOS
Michael (Pvt.), 117
CARMIN
George (Pvt.), 143
CARNES
John (Pvt.), 138
Leonidas (Pvt.), 142
CARNEY
Dr., 395
Elijah, 44
James, 317
Joanna, 311
CAROLUS
John, 101
CARPENTER
-----, 425, 427
Alexander, 415
Alexander (Corp.), 132
Baldwin Clifton, 333, 338
C. D. (Dr.), 367, 567
Charles, 486
Eliza, 264
Francis M. (Pvt.), 117
Henrietta, 486
Henry, 486
Julia Ann, 486
Israel, 403
James, 415
Lucy, 481
Moses, 420, 430
Naomi, 430
Olive, 420
Reuben, 426, 469, 475
Rodney, 420
Samuel, 407
Simon, 341
Susan Hess, 402
Sylvia, 481
CARPER
-----, 7
Jacob H., 48
Joseph (Rev.), 517
Mary, 209
William (Pvt.), 144, 154
CARR
-----, 257
Amos (Pvt.), 108
Anthony (Pvt.), 121
Dr., Illus. 428-429
Elizabeth Chenowith, 433
G. R., 61
James (Pvt.), 111
John, 433
Joseph, 491
Mary Snow, Illus. 428-429

CARR continued
Peter (Pvt.), 138
William K., 556
CARRAL
William (Pvt.), 140
CARRAN
John J. (1st Lt.), 120
CARRELL
Solomon (Pvt.), 139
CARRIER
Jonathan (Pvt.), 133
CARRINGTON
-----, 89
H. B. (Gen.), 94, 106, 569
CARROL
Andrew, 255
Daniel, 236
CARROLL
Dr., 465
Richard (Pvt.), 110
Vincent (Pvt.), 158
William, 408
CARRY
Henry (Pvt.), 154
CARSON
-----, 324
Alex U. (Rev.), 474, 475
B., 416
Mary, 458
Rebecca E., 439
Richard, 326
Samuel (Pvt.), 136
W. W., 436, 439
CARTER
A. J., 417
Asa (Pvt.), 145
Edward, 129
Eskridge, 486-487
Francis, 566
George M. (Pvt.), 119, 139
Isaac T. (Pvt.), 141
John, 272
John (Pvt.), 141, 145
John W. (Corp.), 133
Lafayette (Pvt.), 129
Mary Ann Baughman, 486-487
Peter, 317
Sgt., 116
CARTMELL
P. M., 196
CARTRIGHT
John W. (Pvt.), 145
CARTWRIGHT
A. (Pvt.), 149
Edward, 44
CARTY
Jacob, 450
CARVER
Cain (Pvt.), 154
Harrison (Pvt.), 131
J. (Pvt.), 152
J. M. (Pvt.), 149
W. (Pvt.), 149
CARY
James K., 520
CASE
Abiel (Captain), 420
Alfred (Pvt.), 111
Ambrose, 419
Anna, 405
CASE continued
Benjamin (Rev.), 254
C. (Pvt.), 112
David (Pvt.), 137
Daniel, 404, 430, 408
E., 202
George (Pvt.), 159
George C. (Pvt.), 146
Henry (Pvt.), 107
Hiram, 378
Isaac, 420, 426
Isaac N., 426, 430, 431
Israel P., 370-371, 419, 431
Jane, 420
Jason, 48, 111, 165, 166, 167, 207, 215, 223, 560
Jason M., 159
Job, 419, 430
John M. (Sgt.), 120
Julia, 420
Luther, 426
Marcus (Pvt.), 153
Mary Ann, 378
Marcus, 432
Matthias, 355
Melona, 420
Naman, 414
Nannie, 93
Nathan (Pvt.), 107
Nathaniel G., 137
Orlando, 420
Philander B., 93
P. B., 96
Philo, 420
Pyrene, 420
R. B. (Corp.), 124
Rodney, 404
Roxanna, 414
Thomas W. (Pvt.), 123
Timothy, 93
William, 404
William M. (Pvt.), 117
CASEY
Isaac, 416-417
James (Pvt.), 121
Robert (Pvt.), 138
CASH
Abner (Pvt.), 136
CASHATT
Amy C., 586
Daniel F., 586
Harvey, 45, Illus. 586-587, 586
Sallie E. Simonton, 586
CASHDOLLAR
Levi (Pvt.), 157
CASHNIER
S. (Corp.), 111
S. J. (Pvt.), 111
CASKEY
David P. (Pvt.), 110
T. N., 182
CASKY
T. W. (Pvt.), 125
CASPER
Jacob, 406
James, 414
T. H., 201
CASS
George W., 60
CASS continued
Lewis (Gen.), 63, 205
CASSADY
L. J. (Corp.), 124
Thomas D., 484
CASSAL
Peter (Pvt.), 114
CASSELMAN
James M. (Pvt.), 121
CASSETT
B. A., 296
CASSIDY
Alexander (Pvt.), 130
CASSIDAY
John W. (Pvt.), 120
Solomon (Corp.), 119
William (Pvt.), 132
CASTARD
Charles (Pvt.), 111
CASTEEL
Lorenzo (Pvt.), 145
CASTER
Jesse W. (Pvt.), 129
CASTLE
G. F., 94
John H. P., 94
Margaret, 94
CASTOR
Theodore (Pvt.), 144
CATRILL
William G. (Pvt.), 144
CATTEREIL
Samuel (Pvt.), 138
CAUGHLIN
Matthew (Sgt.), 140
CAVE
E., 188
Emanuel (Pvt.), 125
J. (Pvt.), 150
CAVENER
James (Pvt.), 121
CAVENDISH
J. (Pvt.), 147
John (Pvt.), 158
Thomas (Pvt.), 143
CAVES
Wesley (Pvt.), 158
CAVIN
William (Pvt.), 131
CAVNER
James (Pvt.), 112
CEIGENSPOCK
Harmon (Pvt.), 140 CELLAR
J. A. F., 516
CHADBOURNE
Jacob (Gen.), 584
Sarah Ann, 584
CHADWICK
-----, 529
George (Pvt.), 131
Robert, 157
W. B. (Rev.), 517
CHAFEE
J. (Pvt.), 151
CHAFFIN
J. (Pvt.), 149
James D. (Pvt.), 128
Reuben, 435
Richard, 437
Smith, 313

CHAFFIN continued
Vergina, 437
CHAMBERLAIN
-----, 443
J. (Pvt.), 112
Gad (Captain), Illus. 428-429
Elicta, Illus. 428-429
Jared S. (Pvt.), 115
Rev., 515
William (Pvt.), 139
CHAMBERLIN
Titus (Pvt.), 133
CHAMBERS
David (Pvt.), 159
Elizabeth, 364
Elisha, 364
Eugene H. (Pvt.), 138
H., 432
Harrison (Pvt.), 144
J. E., 365
J. (Rev.), 189
J. J. (Pvt.), 112
Lizzie, 365
Lottie, 365
Reuben (Pvt.), 159
William T. (Pvt.), 115
CHAMP
Amelie, 345
Ellen, 345
G. P., 453
John, 345
John L., 453
Nathaniel, 345
Polly, 345
William, 345
CHAMPE
Damaris R., 449
J. L. (Pvt.), 147
CHAMPION
Aaron Burt, 584
Jacob (Pvt.), 143
John Newton, 528, 584
Reuben Ely, 584
CHAMPLIN
Ezra B. (Pvt.), 156
CHANDLER
Samuel, 465
W. (Pvt.), 148
William (Qtrmstr.Sgt.), 152
CHANEY
-----, 285, 441
Elizabeth, 460
H. L., 44
Hugh L. (Dr.), 452, 453, 460
John, 452
John L. (Pvt.), 145
John, Sr., Illus. 440-441, 451
John, Sr. (Judge), 450, 458, 459, 460
Mary, 452, 460
Mary Ann, 460
O. P., 447, 450, 451, 460
Robert (Rev.), 296
William A., 209
CHAPIN
Dr., 451
John (Pvt.), 132
William, Illus. 528-529, 544
CHAPIN continued
William R. (Pvt.), 159
CHAPLIN
John W. (Corp.), 156
CHAPMAN
Albert (Dr.), 371, 421
Alfred (Pvt.), 159
Benjamin, 430
E. S., 476
George L. (Pvt.), 137
G. T., 62
Harriet, 421
James (Pvt.), 110
Lucinda, 421
Lucius, 421
Polly, 421
Ridge, 421
Riggs, 420, 421
Sally, 421
Sylvia, 421
CHAPPELL
Robert B. (1st Lt.), 114
CHARLOTTE
Camp, 282
CHASE
Barak (Pvt.), 137
Captain, 587
Chief Justice, 7, 35, 39, 51
E. B., 184
Geo. S. (Rev.), 524
Philander (Bishop), 184, 421, 422, 423, 410, 428, 431, 520, 581
Philander, Jr., 423
Secretary, 541
Salmon (Gov.), 225, 542-543
Salmon P., 68, 422, 569
CHASMAN
W. (Pvt.), 148
CHAVERS
Dilton (Pvt.), 159
CHEARS
Abijah S. (Sgt.), 156
CHEEKS
George W. (Pvt.), 141
CHEENY
H. L. (Dr.), 567
CHEESMAN
B. H. (Rev.), 296
George W. (Pvt.), 158
William (Pvt.), 138
CHEEVER
------, 476
CHELLIS
Calvin D. (Pvt.), 133
CHENEY
D. B. (Rev.), 524
H. L. (Dr.), 395
Jasper, 400
W. J., 489
CHENOWETH
Benjamin, 433
Cassandra, 438
Cassandra Foster, 433
E., 436
E. (Pvt.), 149
Elijah, 433, 435, 436, 438, 439
Elijah, Jr., 434, 435, 438, Illus. 439
Elizabeth, 434, 435, 438, 439
CHENOWETH continued
F., 435
H. S., 207, 208
J., 437
J. (Pvt.), 150
J. B., 435
Jane, 437
Jerry, 438
J. H., 434
J. H. (Pvt.), 149
J. Hill, 436
John, 433, 435
John W., 439
Joseph, 44, 290, 433, 435, Illus. 438, 438
Joseph H., 439
Lewis, 433
Margaret, 433, 438
Mary Tipton, 434
Rachel, 433, 435, 438
Rachel Morgan, 433
Rachel Foster, 433
Thomas, 433, 435, 436, 438, 439
William, 438
W. B. (Pvt.), 149
William B., 436
CHENOWITH
John F., 433, 438, 439
J. W. (Pvt.), 149
Margaret Ferguson, 433
Margaret Heath, 433
Nancy, 433, 439
Sarah, 433, 439
CHENOWORTH
J. H. (Pvt.), 149
CHERINGTON
W. D. (Rev.), 519
CHERRY
James, 344, 528, 529
John, 55
John (Pvt.), 114
Moses (Pvt.), 108
Philip, 344
R. D. (Pvt.), 155
Reuben, 42
CHERRINGTON
W. W. (Rev.), 341
CHESTER
-----, 449
Elias, 462
Simon F. (Pvt.), 112, 129
CHEW
William W. (Pvt.), 136
CHILDS
Henry H., 566
John, 355
CHIN
Luther (Pvt.), 159
CHIPMAN
John, 319
CISCO
Elizabeth, 411
George, 414
Joseph, 414
CHITBURN
James (Pvt.), 117
Mathias A. (Pvt.), 117
CHITTUM
Elbert (Pvt.), 128
J. (Pvt.), 150, 151

CHITTUM continued
W. (Pvt.), 150
CHOATES
-----, 325
CHOES
Jonathan, 465
CHRISMAN
Isaac (Pvt.), 131
CHRISTIAN
F. (Pvt.), 112
John M. (Pvt.), 143
CHRISTIE
George (Pvt.), 131
John, 372
CHRISTY
-----, 349, 373, 499
R. C. (Rev.), 523
Rosanna, 252
CHRYSLER
David E. (Pvt.), 131
Eli, 484, 489
Eli (Pvt.), 131
Elias, 489
George, 235
Lucy, 463
Susan Rochelle, 399
CHURCH
Henry C. (Pvt.), 121
James M. (Pvt.), 121
John A., 550
Joseph (Pvt.), 137
CHURCHHOUSE
George H. (Pvt.), 135
CHURCHMAN
Edward S., 496
Edward S. (Sgt.), 152
George, 373
CINSER
Solomon, 278
CLARK
James, 277
CIRTON
Effie, 341
CISCO
Elizabeth, 400
CISSNA
Dr., 416-417
CLAIRAGE
P., 309
CLAPHAM
Charles, 483
Elizabeth, 483
George, 471
John, 483
Joseph, Jr., 483
Joseph, 471, 475
Joseph, Sr., Illus. 482-483, 483
M. (Pvt.), 149, 152
Martha, 483
Mary Ann, 471, 483
Sarah, 471
Sarah Hudson, 483, Illus. 482-483
Sarah J., 483
Thomas, 483
W. (Pvt.), 152
CLAPP
Abner, 495, 496
Mercy Gillett, 496
CLAPPER
CLAPPER continued
Jacob (Pvt.), 143
Wesley (Pvt.), 144
CLAPROOD
Louis (Pvt.), 130
CLARENCE
John, 269
CLARE
Sally, 352
CLARK
-----, 213
A., 453
A. (Pvt.), 149
Abel (Dr.), 453
Abraham (Pvt.), 131
Ann Eliza, 390-391
Anna, 396
Annie M., 368
Baly E., 142
Bela B. (Dr.), 390-391
Catharine, 386
Chaney (Pvt.), 107
Charles, 431
Charles D. (Pvt.), 115
Charles F. (Sgt.), 158
D., 433
D. (Pvt.), 149
David, 144
D. M. (Dr.), 479
D. W. (Rev.), 519
E. B. (Corp.), 126
E. E. (Pvt.), 149
Ebenezer E., 125
Edward, 156
Elizabeth, 344, 486, 487
Emily Ranney, 412
Francis M., 593
George, 431
George (Pvt.), 140
George B., 469
George Rogers (Gen.), 35, 39
G. W., 478
G. W. (Pvt.), 149, 152
Harmon M. (Dr.), 390-391
Harwood, 486
Henry, 389
Henry G., 390-391, 396
Herman J., 390-391
Hiram (Pvt.), 143
Horace S. (Sgt.), 125
Isaac (Corp.), 140
Isiah (Pvt.), 159
J. (Pvt.), 147, 150
James, 486
James (Pvt.), 157
James A. (Sgt.), 157
James M. (Maj.), 146
Jemima, 471
Jeremiah, 44, 395
Jermiah (Dr.), Illus. 390-391
Jesse (Pvt.), 137
John, 40, 46, 102, 303, 390-391, 414, 478, 485, 488, 489
John Alonzo (Rev.), 238
John D., 522
John C. (Corp.), 136
John F. (Pvt.), 123
John G. (Pvt.), 136
CLARK continued
John Q. (Rev.), 517
J. M. (Capt.), 147
J. M. (Lt.), 155
John M., 255
Joseph, 486
Joseph, Jr., 486
Joseph (Pvt.), 107, 119
Jotham, 477
J. R. (Pvt.), 149, 152
Judge, 416
J. W., 296
Mary, 390-391
Mary A., 330
M. D., 368
Mary Munson, 390-391
Mary Murray, 486
Mindwell, 469
Norman (Pvt.), 136
Oliver, 471
Phebe, 486
Rachel Chenowith, 433
Ranson, 390-391
Robert (Pvt.), 136
Robert A. (Pvt.), 131
Rufus, 486, 488, 528
Rufus W. (Rev.), 520
Samuel, 394
Samuel (Pvt.), 144
Sarah Ann, 390-391
Sumner, 500
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
Thomas M., 390-391, 392
Tobias D. (Pvt.), 144
T. M., 396
Uriah, 375, 380
W. (Pvt.), 149, 152
William, 64, 314, 486
William (Pvt.), 121, 126, 144, 159
William F., 390-391
William R. (Pvt.), 143
W. S., 45
CLARKE
Anson (Rev.), 184
Charles (Pvt.), 159
E. B. (Pvt.), 154
E. C., 199
Francis, 323
Henry, 297
H. R., 206
John G., 110
Joseph M. (Maj.), 152
Lewis (Dr.), 323
Sarah Jane Dungan, 323
William J., 92
CLARY
Richard (Pvt.), 110
CLASPILL
Zachary T. (Pvt.), 143
CLASSON
H. (Pvt.), 148
CLAUDI
Peter (Pvt.), 122
CLAWSON
James (Pvt.), 120
CLAY
------, 584
Daniel (Pvt.), 117
Henry, 62, 97, 161, 204-205, 224, 257, 260

CLAY continued
James A., 340
CLAYBAUGH
Lewis (Pvt.), 157
Rev., 246
CLAYPOOL
Abraham, 44
William (Pvt.), 130
CLAYPOOLE
-----, 574, 576
CLAYTON
Jasper M. (Pvt.), 117
William A. (Pvt.), 117
CLELLEND
Andrew (Pvt.), 141
CLEMENS
Alfred (Pvt.), 120
Ann E. Welsh, 327
Dr., 451
Harry, 204
J. C., 327
J. C. (Pvt.), 148
Wilford (Pvt.), 118
CLEMENT
John R., 451
CLEMENTS
Jeremiah C. (Pvt.), 156
CLEMONS
Henry (Sgt.), 124
Samuel (Rev.), 521
CLEMMENS
Corwin (Pvt.), 141
CLEMMINS
Dennis (Pvt.), 157
CLENDENEN
Andrew (Pvt.), 125
CLENDENNIN
James H., 196
CLERMONT
Frank (Pvt.), 125
CLEVELAND
Mary J., 588
Mason, 325, 329
Sarah West, 325, 329
CLICKENGER
Catharine Merion, 501 CLIFT
M. E., 368
CLIFTON
C., 309
Isaac, 308
Peter (Pvt.), 141
Thomas (Pvt.), 110
CLIME
Anna E., 363, 365
Conrad, 363
Mary J., 363
Mary L. Briggs, 363
Rebecca Heaton, 363
William F., 363, 365
CLINCH
Charles (Pvt.), 135
CLINE
Allen, 400
C. H., 400
D. (Pvt.), 150
David (Pvt.), 117
George W., 400
Joshua D.W. (Pvt.), 143
Nancy, 400
Peter, 400
CLING
Benjamin F. (Capt.), 158
CLINGMAN
Jacob C. (Pvt.), 137
CLINTON
Dewitt, Illus. 428-429
Gov., 50, 576
Jewet, 50
CLIPPERT
Rachel, 387
CLOSE
Sarah, 240
CLOUD
E. C., 557
Francis M. (Pvt.), 133
John (Pvt.), 141, 157
Joseph H., 111
Joseph H. (Sgt.), 156
R. W. (Pvt.), 148
R. (Rev.), 196
Robert, 46
Wm. T., 556
CLOUGH
Nathan R., 52
CLOUSE
Elijah B. (Pvt.), 143
Joseph (Pvt.), 111
T. J., 488
CLOVER
------, 417
Aaron, 382
Betsey, 383
Catherine, 382, 383
D. T., 451
George M., 417
Henry, 382
Jacob, 382
John, 382
John (Pvt.), 142
Joshua, 382
Margaret, 382, 383
Mary, 382, 383
Orrin, 102
Peter, 382, 383
Philip, 382, 495
Russell B. (Pvt.), 142
Samuel, 382
Solomon, 382
Solomon (Pvt.), 142
William, 382, 383
William (Pvt.), 142
Willis (Pvt.), 129
CLOYTON
Wilbur F. (Pvt.), 146 COBB
G. (Pvt.), 111
CLUSKER
John, 535
CLUTTER
Salome, 347
CLYMER
Francis, 415, 448
John, 412
John (Rev.), 413
Mary, 413
M. F., 413
W. S., 477
Wm., 477
COAK
J. (Pvt.), 150
COAL COAL continued
John, 458
COALTRAP
David Y. (Pvt.), 139
COATS
-----, 397
Joseph H. (Pvt.), 143
COBERLY
Thomas (Pvt.), 145
William W. (Pvt.), 145
COBLE
Christian (Pvt.), 119
D. W. (Dr.), 479
COBURN
Phebe M., 97
COCHRAN
Alexander, 315
Andrew J. (Sgt.), 127
Ann, 345
Catharine, 310
Charles (Pvt.), 110
Elizabeth, 345
Fanny, 341
Findly, 345
Frank, 345
Gideon W. (Corp.), 127
Glass, 419, 426
Gustavus, 345
Hugh (Pvt.), 156
John, (Col.), Illus. 344, 345, 347, 349
John, 52, 105, 206, 285
Mary, 345
Nancy, 345
Priscilla, 345
Sarah, 345
Simon, 290, 435, 436
Thomas (Pvt.), 130
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 147
W. (Pvt.), 112
Warren (Pvt.), 112
William, 341, 345
William G. (Pvt.), 121
William J. (Capt.), 156
W. J., 47, 315
W. J. (Capt.), 151
COCKE
T. (Pvt.), 150
COCKING
Henry (Pvt.), 130
COCKRELL
Jemima, 383
COCKSELL
Gilbert (Pvt.), 139
CODNER
M., 453
Margaret, 443
Oliver, Sr., 443
COE
A. (Pvt.), 148
A. F., 403
Alvin, 403
Charles C., 132
Denman, 403
Dudley, 403
Elizabeth Beers, 403
Harvey, 101, 403
Henry, 403
James H., 403
John D., 473
L. (Pvt.), 148

COE continued
Ransom, 402, 403
Sarah Hoskins, 403
COFFMAN
David (Pvt.), 110
E. (Pvt.), 149
Fletcher, 374
Henry, 370, 372, 373
James D. (Sgt.), 158
John (Pvt.), 110, 166
Margaret Sells, 370
COFFORTH
Charles A. (Corp.), 133
COFFROTH
G. E. (Pvt.), 112
COGGESHALL
M., 476
W. T., 161, 548
COGSWELL
Frederick, 47, 183
COHEY
Thomas (Pvt.), 137
COHO
John (Pvt.), 140
COIL
J. (Pvt.), 148
J. P., 413
COIT
H., 589
H. (Pvt.), 146
COLBURN
J. F., 383
John, 354
COLCHER
D. (Pvt.), 149
COLE
-----, 277, 371, 423
Amos H. (Pvt.), 157
Broad, 276, 447
Chester P. (Pvt.), 107
Clara, 586
Cynthia A., 78
David P., 382, 383
Dimick, 352
Frederick, 45, 46, 435
George, 164, 586
Hannah, 586
J. (Pvt.), 151
James S. (Pvt.), 156
James W. (Pvt.), 159
John, 311
Joseph (Pvt.), 155
Joshua, 382, 383
J. S. (Pvt.), 151
Lannassa M., 586
Lewis A. (Pvt.), 137
L. F. (Pvt.), 151
Marcus, 423
Mary, 586
Mary Ann, 411
Mary Jane, 281
Mary Sayles, 586
Nathan, 45, 586, Illus. 586-587
Samuel H. (1st Lt.), 118
Shadrach (Rev.), 105, 277
Thomas, 281, 463, 537
T. M., 477
William (Pvt.), 114
William T. (Pvt.), 145
COLEMAN
COLEMAN continued
D. C. (Pvt.), 146
David M. (Pvt.), 139
Jacob R. (Corp.), 125
John, 448, 450
Martin (Pvt.), 124
Nancy, 307
Nelson (Pvt.), 110
N. R., 567
Rev., 188
Sarah, 320
COLES
R. W., 41
COLGATE
C., 500
COLLARD
James (Rev.), 296
COLLET
John, 513
COLLIER
A. J. (Sgt.), 124
C. F., 124
Esther Josephine Baughman, 486-487
Robert, 486-487
R. B., 575
COLLINS
------, 94
Andrew, 312
Andrew T., 89
Elizabeth, 312
Francis, 46, 90, 538
Gilbert C., 89
G. G., 514, 573
G. W., 209
Hester, 312
Holdon K. (Pvt.), 107
Isaac, 307, 312
Isaac (Pvt.), 132
J. (Pvt.), 152
Jacob (Pvt.), 159
James (Pvt.), 155
J. H., 312
John, 255
John (Corp.), 107
John (Pvt.), 118, 138
John (Rev.), 37, 296, 435
John B. (Pvt.), 146
John J. (Pvt.), 143
John M., 312
Joseph S., 208, 312
Joshua H., 312
Mary Green, 89
Mayor, 571, 572
Riley, 313
Robert (Pvt.), 138
S. A., 208
Samuel, 314
Samuel (Mrs.), Illus. 528-529
Tariton C. (Sgt.), 156
Wesley C. (Pvt.), 126
W. H. (Pvt.), 151
COLLITT
John, 520
COLLYER
Vincent, 243
COLMINE
------, 424
COLOR
David (Pvt.), 143
COLSTON
Casper (Pvt.), 135
Gladstone, 293
Henry, 293
Nancy, 293
Polly Voss, 293
COLTON
E. Van R. (Pvt.), 119
COLVIN
Moses, 295
William, 550
COLWELL
Alexander, 328
Charles F. (Pvt.), 136
George W. (Pvt.), 117
H. (Pvt.), 150
John, 495
S. (Pvt.), 150
COMEDAR
Frank (Pvt.), 132
COMLY
James M. (Gen.), 161
COMPTON
E., 171, 400
Ezekiel, 102, 401
Irvin T., 131
Joseph, 398, 399
Marshall (Pvt.), 130
Mary Stowell, 399
William (Pvt.), 146
COMSTOCK
-----, 529, 538
Buckley, 44, 54, 423
Charles S. (Corp.), 120
Cyrus, 289
C. B., 575
F. A., 483
F. A. (Pvt.), 147
George B., 556
George W., 289
Jeannette Blair, 483
R. (Capt.), 430
Rodney, 423, 424
Samuel, 289
Theodore, 46, 60, 61, 423, 554, 562, 565
William, 289
William (Pvt.), 143
CONANT
Josephus (Pvt.), 132
CONAWAY
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 130
CONELEY
James J. (Pvt.), 146
CONELLY
Patrick (Pvt.), 124
CONDIT
E. J., 477
CONDO
S. S. (Rev.), 191
CONE
Harriet, 234
CONES
William, 278
Wilson, 278
Dr., 210
CONEY
Madge I., 90
CONDON
J. J. (Corp.), 112
CONFER

CONFER continued
Jacob (Pvt.), 110
John (Pvt.), 110
CONGHENHOUR
Ralph (Corp.), 140
CONGROVE
Washington (Pvt.), 110
CONKLE
Elizabeth, 445
CONKLEY
Elias (Pvt.), 143
CONKLIN
Anna, 353
Edward B. (Pvt.), 141
John H. (Pvt.), 140
Peter (Pvt.), 112
Samuel (Pvt.), 142
William F., 353
W. J., 566
W. T., 44, 354, 451
CONN
H. J. (Pvt.), 149
James P. (Pvt.), 110
William J. (Pvt.), 157
CONNALLY
Emeline, 471
Melissa, 471
CONNARD
T. H., 475
CONNEL
Z., 184, 255
CONNELL
-----, 92
Dan. (Pvt.), 158
Dennis (Pvt.), 138
John (Pvt.), 141
John E. (Pvt.), 140
R. D. (Dr.), 567
William O. (Corp.), 115
Zach (Rev.), 296 CONNELLY
Clinton E., 468
Edward, 468
Fredonia A., 468
Henry W., 468
Jacob B., 472
J. B., 477
Russell (Pvt.), 130
Matt. (Pvt.), 143
Patrick (Pvt.), 143
CONNER
Henry (Pvt.), 159
J. (Pvt.), 112
Patrick, 372
Samuel (Pvt.), 137
William (Pvt.), 145, 159
CONNOLLY
John (Dr.), 25
CONNSELLER
L. C. (Pvt.), 122
CONOR
Jarvis, 209
CONOVER
Albert (Pvt.), 117
Garrett E., 328
Rebecca Gibson, 328
CONOWAY
Enoch W. (Corp.), 131
CONRAD
Jacob (Pvt.), 146
Joseph B., 207
CONRAD continued
P. T., 556
Solomon (Pvt.), 143
CONROD
S. (Pvt.), 122
CONROY
J. F. (Rev.), 296
CONSTANTINE
Davidson (Corp.), 157
CONVERCE
Daniel H. (Pvt.), 129
CONVERSE
Ammon P. (Pvt.), 121
Cassandra, 84
Daniel H. (Sgt.), 157
George L., 43, 44, 45, 84, 90, 93, 94, 95, 96, 102
George W. (Dr.), 84
H., 573
Sarah, 85
CONWAY
Basil (Pvt.), 132
J. (Pvt.), 111
Patrick (Pvt.), 157
CONWELL
Polly, 434
COOK
-----, 430
A. (Pvt.), 149
Alexander, 400
Amos (Pvt.), 154
Asher, 368, 546
Bradford (Rev.), 496
Chauncey, 405
Clement, 405
David, 411
Eliza, 471
Emyl, 411
G. (Pvt.), 147, 150
George C. (Corp.), 137
George W. (Pvt.), 158
Henry B. (Pvt.), 130
Henry D., 225
H. C. (Pvt.),
Hiram, 111
Isaac (Judge), 266-267
J. C. (Pvt.), 148
Jerome P. (Pvt.), 114
John, 313
John G. (Pvt.), 143
John R., 392
Margaret S., 266-267
Martha F., 77, 92, 592
Nathaniel, 411
Peter, 313
R., 314
Rachel, 407
Richmond (Pvt.), 125
Rodney, 405
Roswell, 405, 407, 477
S. (Pvt.), 148
Stanley, 193
Stephen (Pvt.), 107
Theodore F. (Pvt.), 111
Theodore T. (Pvt.), 121
Thornton (Pvt.), 126
T. J., 315
Thomas, 314
COOKE
Henry D., 160
Herman (Pvt.), 117
COOKE continued
R. R. (Pvt.), 148
COOKEN
James, 453
COOKMAN
-----Morrill, 498
COOKSON
John J. (Sgt.), 155
Van S. (Pvt.), 135
COOKUS
Eliza, 464
John T., 464, 465
COOL
Isaac, 542
COOLEY
D. (Pvt.),
John, 281
L. (Pvt.), 147
Lester (Pvt.), 157
COOMBS
Hambill (Pvt.), 143
John (Pvt.), 143
COON
Catharine, 345
Eli C. (Pvt.), 129
Emily, 351
Enos, 351
Enos (Pvt.), 135
F. R. (Pvt.), 151
Franklin, 352
George, 351, 352, 355, 357
John, 351
Julia Ann, 351
Luke, 351
COONE
John, 463
COONRAD
William (Pvt.), 134
COONROD
Catharine, 386
Elizabeth, 387
Woolery, 387
COONS
Catharine, 463
J. (Rev.), 187
O. F., 466
Robert (Pvt.), 120
William (Sgt.), 131
COONTZ
Anthony P., 327
Elizabeth, 327
Esther Dechert, 327
Jesse, 327
Margaret, 327, 329
Peter, 327
Rachael, 327
Rebecca Deckert, 327
Solomon, 327
William, 327
COONZE
Rachel Lunn, 399
COOPER
A., 518
Abram, 469, 478
Albert (Dr.), 567
Archibald, 463, 465
Benjamin, 184
David (Pvt.), 108
Eliza, 469
Hiram, 465
John, 469, 474

COOPER continued
John L. (Pvt.), 114
Margaret A., 463
Mary Ann, 469
Melinda, 469
Phebe, 469
Polly, 469, 474
Thomas (Pvt.), 131
William, 46, 469, 477
William Calvin, 469
William H. (Pvt.), 141, 159
COOUTS
Aurelia Atwater, 228
Henry, 228
COOVER
Samuel (Pvt.), 135
COPE
Alexis (1st Lt.), 114
COPELAND
Edgar J. (Pvt.), 119
G. M., 478
John, 477
Richard (Pvt.), 137
T. M., 478
COPLAND
Joseph, 460
Mary An, 460
CORBAN
Joseph, 371
CORBETT
M., 453
CORBIN
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 143
George W. (Pvt.), 130
Hezekian (Pvt.), 120, 121
James H. (Pvt.), 112
Josiah (Pvt.), 142
Joseph, 494
Norris, 381
Samuel (Pvt.), 142
William D. (Pvt.), 130
CORBINS
Stephen A. (Sgt.), 137
CORBIT
Thomas (Pvt.), 110
CORBITT
Thomas (Pvt.), 129
CORDER
James, 249
John C., 262
John (Pvt.), 140
CORDRAY
J. (Pvt.), 112
CORDRERY
Isaac M. (Pvt.), 140
COREY
James K., 66, 97, 332
Lucy Ann Lane, 332
CORKWELL
Benjamin, 308
Benjamin (Pvt.), 156
George, 308
Henry (Pvt.), 114
Leaving, 308
CORMICK
James (Pvt.), 158
CORN
Alfred, 222
G. W., 257
CORNELIUS
James T. (Pvt.), 131
CORNELL
------, 461
Angeline, 472
A. R., 480
Benjamin, 461
Briggs, 477
Elias, 472
J. B. (Pvt.), 149
J. B. (Cpl.), 152
John (Dr.), 483
John B., 472
John D., 472
Lucinda L., 472
Permelia, 467
Peter Sr. (Lt.), 159
William, 467
CORNER
Stewart, 447
CORNEY
Hurd (Sgt.), 137
CORNPLANTER
Chief, 23, 35
CORNSTALK
Chief, 23, 26, 27, 265
CORNWELL
Charles, 200
Levi (2nd Lt.), 114
Thomas (Pvt.), 121
CORRELL
Frederick (Pvt.), 142
CORRELLA
Alfred A. (Pvt.), 145
CORRY
James K., 50
CORSEY
Emer N. (Pvt.), 139
CORWIN
-----, 584
George, 101
I. (Judge), 93, 100
Thomas, 224
CORY
Abijah (Pvt.), 108
Elisha, 289
James, 396
Rev., 540
CORZILLUS
Alma, 586
Flora, 586
Leo, 586
Maria D., 585
P. W., 45, 585, Illus. 586-587
Peter W., 585
Philip William, 585
COSEY
Charles L. (Pvt.), 158
COSGRAY
D. A., 373
Elizabeth Gordon, 371
Joseph, 371
COSGROVE
Henry, 458
Nancy, 458
COSKWELL
Benj. (Pvt.), 151
COSTINE
Michael (Pvt.), 139
COTTERMAN
Benton (Pvt.), 110
COTTMAN
COTTMAN continued
Henry (Pvt.), 115
COTTON
Dr. ----, 479
E. M., 196
E. Van R. (Pvt.), 120
Francis H. (Pvt.), 117
Martimer L. (Pvt.), 139
COTTRELL
Joseph M. (Pvt.), 143
COUDON
James C. (Pvt.), 143
COUL
Isaac, 366
COULTER
James H. (Capt.), 117
J. H. (Dr.), 567
Martin V. B. (Sgt.), 136
COUNSELLAR
Leonard C. (Capt.), 124
COUNSELLOR
Otis J. (Pvt.), 126 COUNTS
Ezekiel (Pvt.), 146
Frank (Pvt.), 146
COURT
John (Rev.), 463
COURTNEY
Richard, 513
COURTRIGHT
Abraham, 281
Alice, 263
Alva B., 281
Alva P., 217, 281
Amanda C., 281
Amos, 292
Annie, 281
Anthony, 377
A. P. (Dr.), 103
Cyrus, 104, 292, 294, 296, 297
Edson B. Olds, 281
George S., 281
Jacob, 281
Jennie R., 281
Jesse D., 46, 281, 385
John, 207, Illus. 280-281, 281, 452, 453
J. D., 207, 281
John, Jr., 281
Mary, 385
M. Cornelia, 281
Minerva L., 280, 281
M. S., 280
Richard, 450
Sally, 281
Sally F., 281
Samuel W., 47, 99, 100, 206, 207, 209, 281
COVENTREE
Benjamin (Pvt.), 131
COVERDALE
-----, 203
COVERT
J. (Rev.), 475, 482
COWAN
Amanda, 454
Charles, 454
Charles B., 450, 452
David, 454
David M., 454

COWDEN
Dr., 465
George, 450
Isaac, 450
Margaret, 467
COWEN
B. R., 243
COWDELL
Thomas (Pvt.), 141
COWGILL
John, 365
COWHICK
John V., 516
COWLES
Diadamia, 405, 407
Leonard H., 428
R. W., 426, 427
COWLING
W. W., 556
COX
Barnard (Pvt.), 118
Benjamin, 182
David, 297
David (Pvt.), 136
Emmer, 392
E. J., 479
Gunor, 443
Hiram J., 380
Horatio, Jr. (Pvt.), 157
J., Jr. (Pvt.), 149
James (Pvt.), 136
John, 54, 296, 443
John W. (Lt.), 156
Louis (Pvt.), 142
Nathan R. (Pvt.), 131
Robert E. (Pvt.), 142
S. S., 162
Samuel T. (Pvt.), 131
Samuel W. (Pvt.), 141
V. C. (Pvt.), 149
William (Pvt.), 126, 136, 141
William C. (Pvt.), 129
W. K. (Pvt.), 149
COYLE
Michael (Pvt.), 110
CRABB
Asa, 308
Henderson, 399
Hester A., 328
James, 387
Joseph (Pvt.), 155
CRABILL
C. W., 295
David, 295
James (Pvt.), 127
Martin (Pvt.), 127
Mary M., 297
Thomas, 295
T. W., 297
CRABLE
J. (Pvt.),
CRADLEBAUGH
-----, 199
Andrew, 202, 205, 228, 274
John (Colonel), 44, 99, 134, 180, 199, 228, 235, 274, 332
John, 192
CRAIG
Jasper (Pvt.), 142
CRAIG continued
John (Pvt.), 129
John S. (Pvt.), 142
Lydia C., 88
William, 129
CRAIN
John (Rev.), 296
CRAMALETT
George K. (Pvt.), 144
CRAMBLETT
William A. (Pvt.), 145
CRAMER
Catharine, 413
Daniel, 413
Elizabeth, 412
Eva, 413
George, 413
J. (Pvt.), 151
James W. (Sgt.), 118
John, 373
John (Pvt.), 123, 153, 155
Lewis, 413
Margaret, 93
W. (Pvt.), 148
William (Pvt.), 154
CRAMPTON
-----, 323
Harvey (Lt.), 125
CRAMSEY
Harry (Pvt.), 138
CRANDALL
D. A. (Rev.), 524
CRANE
George W. (Pvt.), 132
Samuel E. (Pvt.), 132
Chief-Wyndot, 493, 496
Richard E. (Pvt.), 144
CRANER
William C. (Pvt.), 132
CRANFOR
Edward H. (Pvt.), 145
CRANMER
James H. (Pvt.), 143
CRANNER
Robert (Pvt.), 133
CRANSTON
Earl (Rev.), 517
CRANTLE
Jacob L. (Pvt.), 125
CRAP
Robert M. (Pvt.), 145
CRARY
George F. (2nd Lt.), 119
Holdemond, 45
CRATTY
Samuel R. (Pvt.), 137
CRAWFORD
-----, 463
Alfred, 309
Alfred (Pvt.), 118
Alfred W. (Corp.), 115
David, 463
G. (Pvt.), 150
Isaac, 463
James A. (Pvt.), 135
James R. (Pvt.), 134
James W. (Pvt.), 131
J. W., 518
Maggie E., 197
Matilda, 406
Matthew, 463
CRAWFORD continued
Norman S. (Pvt.), 115
Retter (Pvt.), 129
Samuel (Pvt.), 110
Thomas (Pvt.), 110
William, 463
William (Col.), 27, 28, 324
Wm. M. (Pvt.), 148
William M. (Adjutant), 146
CRAY
Hugh (Pvt.), 124
CRAYBILL
William (Pvt.), 128
CRAYNE
John, 202
CREA
Charles C. (Pvt.), 156
CREAGER
James C., 257
CREAL
Henry S., 257
CREAMER
Godfrey, 253
Joshua, 253
CREATH
Rev., 449
CREED
John M., 426
CREGO
George R. (Pvt.), 157
CREIGHLOW
Joseph (Pvt.), 143
William (Pvt.), 143
CREIGHTON
Henry, 276
Hugh, 42, 276, 277, 279, 341, 347
Joseph, 276
J. H. (Rev.), 519
Samuel, 188, 276
W. (Cpl.), 153
William, 40, 44, 63, 276
W. S. (Pvt.), 147
CREMENES
Blades (Pvt.),107
CRESAP
Michael (Capt.), 25, 26, 28
CRESOP
Thomas (Pvt.), 158
CRESSUP
Mary A., 307
Van, 307
CRESSWELL
Rachel, 403
CRESSY
Mary P., 528
Rev., 537
T. R. (Rev.), 188, 424
CRIDER
David L. (Pvt.), 125
Ephraim (Pvt.), 135
CRING
Conrad, 414
H. (Pvt.), 147
CRIPPIN
Minor (Pvt.), 133 CRIST
Abraham, 274, 413
Elizabeth, 412
Fanny Rigel, 412
H. (Pvt.), 149

CRIST continued
Henry (Pvt.), 154
J. B. (Mrs.), 528
CRITCHFIELD
L. L., 592
Leander J., 84, 95, 102
Sarah J., 84
CRITES
Elias, 263
Mary, 412
Samuel, 276
S. C. (Pvt.), 122
William, 257
CROAKHAM
G. L. (Pvt.), 154
CROCKER
John F. (Pvt.), 141
CROCKETT
-----, 244
CROESEN
J. C. (Dr.), 567
CROFORTH
George (Sgt.), 157
CROFT
George (Pvt.), 138
CROMAN
M. (Pvt.), 150
CROMER
Jacob (Pvt.), 139
CROMERE
R. F. (Pvt.), 148
CROMLEY
(Dr.), 291
Eliza, 354
Elizabeth, 276
George, 355
Henry, 348
James, 276
John, 276, 356
Jonas, 276
Paul, 276
Stephen, 276
William, 281
William, Sr., 276
CROMWELL
Charlotte, 364
Eliza J. Anderson, 364
Emeline, 364
Frances V., 364
John S., 364, 365
Joseph, 363
Josephine, 364
Mary Ann, 363
Oliver, 323
Sarah, 364
CRONT
L. (Pvt.), 152
L. B. (Pvt.), 149
CROOK
B., Illus. 428-429
Elizabeth N., 94
George, 52, 181, 198, 204
I., 184
J. (Rev.), 518
CROOKS
Alexander (Pvt.), 128
CROOKSON
I. I. (Pvt.), 151
CROSBIE
George (Corp.), 158
CROSBY
CROSBY continued
David (Pvt.), 107
Margaret, 522
Otis, 522
Phebe W., 522
Samuel, 522
CROSLEY
Joseph, 289
CROSS
D. (Pvt.), 149
Frederick (Pvt.), 117
George W. (Pvt.), 131
Hiram (Sgt.), 119
John W. (Corp.), 140
Samuel (Pvt.), 145
Truman (Pvt.), 131
CROSSET
Jeanette, 441
Samuel, 441
CROSSLEY
Henry, 355
Isaac, 355
John, 353, 355
Joseph, 355
CROSSOM
John J., 159
CROSSWELL
P., 552-553
S. (Pvt.), 147
CROTHERS
Crothers', 445
Delilah, 445
Sylvester, 445
William (Pvt.), 114
CROUCH
William R. (Pvt.), 142
CROURMAN
Josiah (Pvt.), 117
CROUSE
-----, 197, 256
Catharine, 196-197, 271
Christian, 486
Daniel, 266-267
David, 52, 196-197, 268
D. W. (Capt.), 124
D. W. (Lt. Col.), 149
Farus, 207, 208
George (Pvt.), 134
John, 271, 272
Nancy, 268, 271, 272, 343
Nelson, 47
Tanus, 174
W. S. (Pvt.), 154
CROVIN
Charles (Pvt.), 112
CROW
Conrad (Pvt.), 117
David, 269
James B. Jr. (Corp.), 136
John, 47
J. M. (Pvt.), 150
L. M. (Pvt.), 150
Oliver W. (Pvt.), 132
Phillip A. (Capt.), 120
Susannah, 270
Thomas, 270
CROWN
Henry (Pvt.), 137
CROWNOVER
H., 316
CROWTHER
CROWTHER continued
C. L. (Rev.), 476
CRULL
John, 319
CRUM
Cornelius, 44
George C., 255
Geo. C. (Rev.), 518
Ira H., 96
Samuel, 495
W. A., 102, 104, 494, 496
William, 96
CRUMLEY
Daniel (Pvt.), 138
Harrison (Pvt.), 145
W. D. (Dr.), 365
CRUMNEL
Fifer Alfred, 117
CRUSAND
Thomas (Pvt.), 117
CRUSE
Henry (Pvt.), 158
CRUTCH
James (Pvt.), 125
CRUTHERS
Samuel (Rev.), 314
CUBBAGE
Peter (Pvt.), 123
CUFFALO
George W., 500
CULBERTSON
Andrew, 40, 392, 498
Combe (Pvt.), 140
David, 285, 300
Elizabeth, 509
H. (Dr.), 217, 567
James, 392, 394
Margaret R., 300
Robert, 507
CULL
D. B., 191
G. (Pvt.), 154
John, 204
CULLEN
James (Pvt.), 125
CULLER
John J. (Pvt.), 136
Malangthon (Pvt.), 136
CULLINS
P. (Pvt.), 122
CULLMAN
Caroline, 542-543
George, 542-543
George (1st Lieut.), 108
CULLUM
H. (Pvt.), 149
CULP
-----, 276
Amos, 355, 392
Catharine, 355
Elijah, 102
Harriet, 355
Henry, 355, 495, 496
Leah, 355
Levi, 355
Lewis, 355
Lorene, 355
Lucinda, 355
Mahala, 355
Minerva, 355
Naomi, 355

CULVERTSON
Robert W. (Pvt.), 130
William H. (Pvt.), 130
CUMBERTORTH
Lydia Davison, 293
CUMMINGS
-----, 420
George, 355
Gideon, 277
John W. (Pvt.), 131
Margaret Williamson, 324
Thomas, 324
William J. (Pvt.), 131
CUMMINS
Alexander, 296
Edward, 434, 436
Ed. W. (Pvt.), 154
Edward W. (Pvt.), 141
Francis M. (Pvt.), 126
G. F., 413
H., 489
James, 383, 434
John, 434, 436
John (Pvt.), 144, 154
Margaret Henderson, 434
Margaret Williams, 434
Mary May, 434
Patrick (Pvt.), 135
Rev., 429
William, 434
CUNNING
John, 283
Mary, 283
CUNNINGHAM
John (Pvt.), 138
John T. (Pvt.), 138
L., 479
William (Pvt.), 118
William M., 206
CUPP
Hannah, 354
Philip (Pvt.), 114
Sylvanus (Pvt.), 117
CURB
Ephraim F. (Pvt.), 144
CURL
John W. (Musician), 114
William B. (Pvt.), 140
CURRIER
L. M. (Pvt.), 112
CURREY
Hiram M., 572
CURRY
Aaron, 385
Amos, 385
Catharine, 385
Elizabeth, 385
Hiram M., 541
James, 108, 319, 385
John, 385
Nancy, 385
O. T., 435, 437
Owen T., 290, 385
Sarah, 385
William, 319
CURTAIN
Clarence, 100
John (Pvt.), 115
CURTIN
A.G. (Gov.), 591
CURTIS
CURTIS continued
Benjamin (Pvt.), 139
Frederick A. Illus., 428-429
Henry B., 367
Henry, 546
Jeremiah, 419
Joseph (Rev.), 268-269
Katy, 474
Rachel, 474
S. (Dr.), 164
William (Pvt.), 159
CURTISS
Frederick A., 431
John, 55
Pliny, 103
CURTS
Hector, 302
Margaret, 302
CUSH
John (Pvt.), 144
CUSHING
Benjamin T., 533
CUSHMAN
Charles A. (Pvt.), 110
CUSTER
H., 479
I. N., 478
John W. (Pvt.), 144
L. E., 479
CUTLER
Artemas, 471, 475
Edward, 352
------Davis, 289
Enos, 345, 349, 352
Ephriam, 37
Henry H. (Pvt.), 136
James, 345, 352
John, 345, 352, 513, 517
Nancy, 352
Rachel, 352
Robert, 575
Sarah, 351, 352
Susan, 352
Wm. P., 61
CUTMORE
William (Pvt.), 138
CUTRIGHT
Leonard A. (Pvt.), 143 CUTTER
Alpheus, 592
Kate M., 592
CUYKENDALL
M. C., 567

D.

DABISS
Adam (Pvt.), 111
DABUS
Hartman (Pvt.), 142
DADT
William (Pvt.), 108
DAGEN
Charles (Pvt.), 158
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 126
DAGUE
-----, 500
Daniel, 398, 399, 411
Cyrus A. (Pvt.), 144
E. (Pvt.), 147
George, 411, 413
DAGUE continued
L. (Pvt.), 147
Matthias, 411, 413
Matthias, Jr., 411
DAILEY
David (Pvt.), 145
G. (Pvt.), 147
J. (Pvt.), 148
Owen (Pvt.), 135
T. (Pvt.), 151
W. (Pvt.), 148
DAILY
Benjamin (Pvt.), 107
George, 411, 413
Rebecca, 444
Timothy (Pvt.), 156
DALANY
Patrick (Pvt.), 124
DALBY
I. N. (Dr.), 289
Israel, 289
Joseph, 289
Scribner, 289
S. V., 435, 436
DALES
Silas (Pvt.), 144
DALGARRA
John (Pvt.), 117
DALL
Alexander H. (Pvt.), 140
John B. (Pvt.), 130
DALLAS
Erastus F. (Pvt.), 134
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 134
John W., 297
DALTON
Abigail, Illus. 528-529
Albert Foster, 528-529
Dorothy, 528-529
G., 190
Hannah, 528-529
Isaac, 528, 530
Isaac (Col.), Illus. 528-529
Isaac, Sr., 528-529
John, 528-529
John Calvin, 528-529
Jonathan, 528-529
Jos. Merrill, 528-529
Lucy, 528-529
Meriam, 528-529
Meriam II, 528-529
Mary, 528-529
Mollie, 528-529
Moses, 528-529
Philemon, 525, 528-529
Ruth, 528-529
Samuel (Mrs.), 528-529
Samuel, 528-529
Samuel, Sr., 528-529
Samuel, Sr. (Mrs.), 528-529
Sarah Elizabeth, 528-529
Sarah Foster, 528-529
Wm., 528-529
William (Pvt.), 146
William S. (Sgt.), 120
DALY
J. (Pvt.), 112
James (Rev.), 522
John (Pvt.), 140
DALZELL
Catharine, 486

DALZELL continued
James, 44, 395
John, 395, 486
Rachel, 485
William, 485
DAMRISON
Eli (Pvt.), 129
DANA
Adam (Pvt.), 137
Asa (Pvt.), 154
Francis, 215
Prof., 580
Sylvester, 105, 106
DANBERT
Gustavus (Pvt.), 142
DANCE
J. (Pvt.), 154
DANIEL
Charles (Pvt.), 145
DANIELS
Howard, 533
I. (Lt.), 114
James, 411
John, 411
John (Pvt.), 140
John B. (Pvt.), 130
John, Jr. (Pvt.), 140
Joseph (Pvt.), 140
Lida, 529
Morris M. (Pvt.), 153
Paul (Pvt.), 137
Theodore (Pvt.), 146
DANNELLS
E. W. (Rev.), 189
DANTEL
Charles (Sgt.), 152
DANTERMAN
Jacob (Pvt.), 144
DARAH
Jefferson (Lt.), 152
DARBY
Charles (Pvt.), 118
John, 320
William, 314
DARING
Emil (Pvt.), 139
DARLIN
Smith (Pvt.), 129
DARLING
Robert (Pvt.), 136
Stephen B. (Pvt.), 111
DARLINGTON
Joseph, 510
Ruse E. (Pvt.), 143
DARMOR
John E. (Pvt.), 144
DARNELL
Alva J. (Pvt.), 132
H. C., 387
H. C. (Pvt.), 147
S. A., 453
William, 55, 453
DARRETT
William H. (Pvt.), 155
DARROW
Nathaniel (Pvt.), 110
Taylor (Pvt.), 123
DARTMUNT
Charles (Pvt.), 137
DARST
-----, 204
DARST continued
Anna B., 189
Elizabeth C., Illus. 194-195
Gideon, 337
Harrison, 353
Henry, 337
I. (Pvt.), 152
Ira, 337
Isaac, 200
Israel, 174
J., 200, 348
Jacob, 200
Joseph, 200
Lillie C., 105, 167, 200
T. (Pvt.), 152
Thomas, 337
William, 337
William P., 47, 53, 200
William P. (Mrs.), 199
Wm. P., 104, 174
DASSON
John (Pvt.), 139
DATON
Noah S. (Pvt.), 142
DAUBERT
George (Corp.), 122
DAUGHERTY
-----, 84
Ann, 83
Daniel (Corp.), 120
David, 356
James, 383
M. A., Illus. 83-84, 562, 566, 567
M. A., 91
Patric, 83
Sarah, 315
DAUGHTY
Richard, 255
DAUM
Peter (Pvt.), 142
DAUP
Jacob, 255
DAVALL
Isaac (Pvt.), 125
DAVENPORT
A. S., 105
George, 182
J. (Pvt.), 150
John, 398
John (Mrs.), 266-267
John P., 178
J. T., 184
John T., 48, 105
J. W. (Pvt.), 154
Lewis (Pvt.), 138
Louis, 398
S. G. (Lt.), 154
DAVID
Benjamin (Pvt.), 145
L. (Rev.), 188
DAVIDSON
Alexander, 496
C. K. (Pvt.), 146
Constantine (Pvt.), 141, 154
David, 184
George, 526
Isaac, 380, 493
James H. (Pvt.), 142
James M. (Pvt.), 131
James R. (Pvt.), 141, 154,157
DAVIDSON continued
John (Pvt.), 157
John E. (Pvt.), 142
William, 60
DAVIES
John, 525
M. (Pvt.), 112
DAVIN
Thomas (Pvt.), 121
DAVIS
-----, 129
A. A. (Rev.), 524
Abednego, 444
A. J. (Adj.), 114
America, 382
Ann, 376
Anson, 492
Asa, 389, 491, 492, 494, 495
Asa (Pvt.), 153
Alvey (Pvt.), 115
August, 291
Augustus A. (Pvt.), 159
Beniwell L. (Corp.), 131
Benjamin, 289, 418
Benjamin R. (Dr.), 316
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 115
Buriah, 492
Catherine, 376-377
Charles, 376-377
Charles (Pvt.), 153
Charles S. (Pvt.), 140
Charles L. (Pvt.), 118
Christopher, 382
Christopher (Pvt.), 130
Cicero (Pvt.), 121
Cornelius S. (Pvt.), 135
Creighton (Pvt.), 135
David, 287, 291, 525
David (Pvt.), 135, 157
Dr., 395
Ebenezer, 294
Ebenezer S., 294, 295, 297
E. F. (Pvt.), 152
Edith, 376
Edward (Pvt.), 130, 143
Electa, 494, 495
Elizabeth, 310, 311, 371, 376, 492
Elizabeth Crabb, 291
Elizabeth Smith, 491
Elza Z. (Sgt.), 158
Emily Thompson, 326-327
E. S., 297
F. (Pvt.), 150
Felicia Scott, Illus. 290-291, 291
Fletcher, 291
Francis, 376
F. S. (Rev.), 296
Franklin (Pvt.), 141
George, 283, 285, 492
G. (Pvt.), 148
H. (Rev. Dr.), 189
Hannah King, 588
Henry (Pvt.), 124, 136
Harry (Pvt.), 119, 121
Henry (Rev.), 524
Isaac, 291, 311
Jacob, 376, 477
J. (Pvt.), 150
James, 417, 492

DAVIS continued
James (Pvt.), 134
James E. (Rev.), 516
James Grieve, 326-327
James H. (Pvt.), 135
Jannett McIntosh, 326-327
Jephtha (Dr.), 217
Jesse (Sgt.), 107
John, 347, 375, 289, 376, 291, 377, 413
John (Pvt.), 146
John D. (Pvt.), 136
John David, 326-327
John J. (Pvt.), 137
John R., 326
John R. (Pvt.), 155
John W., 291, 376
Joseph, 290, 291, 376, 377
Joseph W., 376, 380
Joshua, 376, 376-377, 493
Joshua E., 376
Justin C. (Pvt.), 137
J. S., 475
J. S. (Rev.), 187
L. (Rev.), 187
L. B., 575
Lewis, 475, 480
Lewis (Rev.), 475, 476
Lewis R. (Pvt.), 128
Lewis S. (Pvt.), 134
Lora B., 291
Lot, 464
Lucinda, 376
Lucy J. McDowell, 492
Luke (Pvt.), 121
Margaret, 183, 297
Marilla, 376-377
Martha Jane, 376
Mary Ann, 376
Mary E., 338-339
Matilda, Illus. 376-377, 376
Mrs. ----Merion, 498, 501
Moses, 372, 373, 374, 492, 494
Murry (Pvt.), 130
Nancy, 376
Orange, 371, 492
Permelia, 312
Rachel Ater, 293
Rebecca, 475, 489
R. K. (Rev.), 388
Robert (Corp.), 120
Robert (Pvt.), 138
Samuel, 491, 492, 494, 495
Samuel (Pvt.), 125
S. B., 55
Samuel S., 46, 374, 376, Illus. 376-377, 380
Sedalia McFarland, 294
Smith, 492
Smith W. (Pvt.), 142
Thomas, 291
Thomas (Pvt.), 117, 120, 121, 145, 133, 138
Thomas E. (Pvt.), 139
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 120, 141
Vincent, 291
Virginia Burnley, 291, Illus. 291-292
Walter McIntosh, 326-327
W. B. (Rev.), 526

DAVIS continued
Wesley, 294
Wesley (Pvt.), 114, 140
Wilkin H. (Pvt.), 145
William (Pvt.), 129, 140
William A. M. (Sgt.), 133
William B. (Corp.), 125
William B. (Pvt.), 135
William, 291, 349, 376, 376-377
William (Rev.), 481
Wm. B., 297
William B. (Capt.), 295
W. W., 413, 475
W. W. (Rev.), 187
DAVISON
Edward, 293, 294
John, 293
N. A., 257
Rachel Ater, 293
W. (Rev.), 188
William, 293
DAVISSON
Joseph (Sgt.), 122
DAVY
William (Pvt.), 140
DAWLEY
Moses, 185
DAWSEY
Sumerset (Pvt.), 108
DAWSON
Barton (Pvt.), 110
B. Z. (Pvt.), 147
James, 48, 309
J. O. (Dr.), 479
John (Dr.), 47
N. (Rev.), 296
Perry, 309
Robert (Musician), 153
Smith (Pvt.), 135
S. R., 47
William (Pvt.), 137, 153
W. P., 489
DAY
-----, 203
Alonzo (Pvt.), 159
Elder, 191
John (Pvt.), 145
Leonidus (Pvt.), 136
Stephen F. (Dr.), 591
Thomas B. (Pvt.), 126
Wesley O., 348
DAYLONG
-----, 445
DAYTON
H., 48
Hyman (Lt.), 125
James (Pvt.), 117
John (Pvt.), 126
Jonathan, 401, 512, 568
Jonathan (Gen.), 418
Lemuel V. (Pvt.), 143 DEAL
George, 347
Joseph (Pvt.), 117
Rebecca, 456
Silas, 456
DEAN
-----, 565
Aaron, 345
Charles, 188

DEAN continued
Charles A. (Pvt.), 157
Ebenezer, 485, 486, 489
E. (Pvt.), 147
Francis B., 477, 485, 489
Frank B., 104
F. B. (Pvt.), 147
George, 485
Henry (Pvt.), 145
James (Pvt.), 115
John, 485
John D. (Pvt.), 130
Lebious, 485
Mary, 463
Miner H. (Corp.), 136
R. D. (Pvt.), 147
Rachel Dalzell, 485
Rhua, 485
Robert D., 485
Sally Maria, 485
William, 399
DEARDORF
Perry H. (Pvt.), 125
DEARDORFF
George P., 374
DEARDUFF
-----, 507
Amy, 376
Anthony, 376
Isaac, 376
Paul, 376
Peter, 376
Susan, 376
DEARDURF
Samuel, 364
DEATORS
Charles (Pvt.), 145
DEAVENPORT
S. A., 197
DEBORA
Charles (Pvt.), 132
DECHERT
Jesse, 327
Peter, 326, 327
Rebecca, 327
William, 327
DECKER
-----, 538
Agnes, 442
Andrew, 442
Annie, 442
Augustus S., 46
Catharine, 442
Coonrod, 442
C. H. (Pvt.), 147
Charles H. (1st Sgt.), 153
E. B., 449
Effie, 442
Elias, 442, 444, 450
Elisha, 353, 442
Elizabeth, 346, 349, 442
Ellen, 442
E. P. (Pvt.), 148
Esau, 442
Eve, 444
George (Pvt.), 159
Hannah, 351
Isaac, 442, 450, 451
Isaac F., 442
John, 351, 356, 442
John G. (Pvt.), 130

DECKER continued
Luke, 346, 351, 356, 443, 445
Luther, 350
Martin (Pvt.), 142
Mary, 442
Penelope, 442
Sarah A., 400
S. A. (Pvt.), 147
Samuel A. (Cpl.), 153
Susan, 351, 357
Thornton, 349
Vause, 351, 356, 357, 443, 447
V. S., 356
W. R. (Pvt.), 149
William T., 351
DECKERT
Clay (Pvt.), 110
Daniel B., 331
William (Mrs.), 330
DEEDS
Abraham (Fifer), 107
Joseph, 285
DEEKER
Fred (Pvt.), 108
DEEMS
Gilbert, 364
Jerusha, 364
Lavina, 364
Mary Sims, 364
Melissa, 364
Sarah, 364
Stephen F., 364
Thomas, 364
DEFENBACH
S., 256
DEFENBAUGH
Adam, 251, 256, 263
Andrew, 264
Jane, 256
Stephen (2nd Lt.),
DE FORD
Edith A., 376
DEGENHARDT
J. C. (Pvt.), 122
DEGMEIER
Julius (Rev.), 481
DEHNER
Wendelin (Pvt.), 117
DEIMER
Jacob B., 387
DEIS
George (Pvt.), 117
DEISLER
Mickel (Pvt.), 122
DEITZ
Joseph, 279
DELAFIELD
John, Jr., 576
DELANEY
E. T., 45
DELANGEN
John (Pvt.), 138
DELANO
-----, 407
Amosa, 520
Columbus, 43, 243
L. G., 62
DELANY
Alex. D., 197
DELANY continued
Patrick (Pvt.), 143
DELAPLAIN
Charles J. (Pvt.), 159
DELAPLAINE
-----, 200, 204
DELAPLANE
-----, 167
Charles J., 47
J. T., 199
Patrick H., 48
DE LASALLE
Cavalier, 35
DELASHMUT
Elias N., 45
E. H., 45
DELASHMUTT
Edwin R. (Corp.), 152
Harriet C., 380
John K., 380
Lois, 380
Maria, 89
Porter B., 380
Sarah, 380
Van B., 380
William, 380
DELAY
Henry (Pvt.), 159
Jacob, 184
Jacob (Rev.), 296
Joseph N. (Pvt.), 159
DELDINE
Catharine, 96
G. H. (Pvt.), 148
DELEPLANE
Charles, 100
W. E., 199
DELLINGER
William, 132
DELLIPLANE
Michael (Pvt.), 133
DELMAR
------, 371
DELONG
-----, 253
Amelia, 253
Andrew, 253
Augustus J. (Pvt.), 144
Bethsheba, 552
Caroline, 253
Isaac, 253
Jacob, 253
John A. (Pvt.), 128
Richard (Pvt.), 144
Sarah, 253
DELSELL
N. (Pvt.), 112
DELZ
David (Pvt.), 117
DELZELL
Nelson (Pvt.), 112
DEMHAM
R. M. (Rev.), 400
DEMOREST
Amos (Pvt.), 140
J. P. (Pvt.), 112
Michael, 465
Milton, 383
R., 365
DEMOSERT
Leah, 364
DEMOSERT continued
Giliom, 364
DEMPSEY
William (Pvt.), 123
DEMUTH
Elizabeth, 250
DENBOW
Wm., 516
DENEY
Edward D. (Sgt.), 111
DENIG
C. E. (Dr.), 47, 569
R. M. (Dr.), 567
W. H. (Dr.), 569
DENIS
F. (Pvt.), 151
DENMAN
-----, 204
George, 188, 202
Samuel, 105, 188
DENNEY
James (Gen.), 235
Jeanette, 235
DENNIS
Daniel (Corp.), 135
David (Pvt.), 155
Elisha, 325
Elizabeth Haynes, 325
George, 325
George (Pvt.), 155
George W. (Pvt.), 127
Henry, 309
Isaac (Pvt.), 110
L., 330
Martin (Pvt.), 117
Noah B. (Corp.), 158
R. J. (Pvt.), 112
Rufus, 328
Susan Miller, 325, 326
T. (Pvt.), 151
W. (Pvt.), 148
William H. (Pvt.), 123
William J. (Pvt.), 143
DENNISON
------, 89
Anne Eliza, 94
Governor, 7, 561, 572
William, 61, 78, 79, 103, 553, 576
William, 94, 368
William Jr., 44, 546
William Jr. (Atty.), 552
Wm. (Mrs.), 531
William Neil, 62, 94
DENNY
-----, 214, 349
Ann, 344
David, 34, 100, 266, 269, 343, 344
Elizabeth, 344
Hiram B., 208
James, 42, 47, 164, 205, 341, 344
James (Gen.), 226, 241
Jane, 97, 270, 344
Janet Stirling, 226, 241
John, 48, 344
Letitia, 344
Margery, 344
Mary, 337
Nancy, 344

DENNY continued
Nathan, 47, 344, 326
Samuel, 266, 343
Samuel S., 47, 48
S. S., 204-205, 206
S. S. (Pvt.), 150
William A. (Lt.), 127
W. H. P., 165, 167
DENT
Jonathan (Pvt.), 121
Joseph M. (Pvt.), 136
Michael (Rev.), 255
Robert (Corp.), 129
DENTLER
John H. (Pvt.), 143
DEPEW
John (Pvt.), 157
DEPUTZ
Joseph L. (Lt.), 140
DERBY
H. M., 164
H. W., 162
DERBYSHIRE
Josie, 312-313
DE REAMEY
Jean, 82
Pierre, 82
Ravol, 82
DEROTS
Louis (Pvt.), 145
DERRENDINGER
Daniel (Pvt.), 131
DERRICK
Jacob (Pvt.), 157
Jacob R. (Pvt.), 142
Lewis P. (Pvt.), 142
Richard, 447
DERRY
John (Pvt.), 122
DERSOM
Joseph (Pvt.), 144
DE RUSH
John, 512
DESELLEM
Solon (Pvt.), 136
DESHLER
Ann Eliza, 528
Charles G., 578
D. W., Illus. 432-433, 539, 576, 579
David W., 49, 592, 593
David (Cpl.), 146, 153
Elizabeth Greene, 528
John G., 528
John G. (Mrs.), 528
Kate, 528
Mary E., 528
W. G., 538, 562, 564, 570, 576, 577, 578, 579
William G., 60, 61
Wm. G. (Mrs.), 528, 531
DESSUM
William (Pvt.), 137
DE STEIGNER
R., 93, 97
DETLISER
Nelious (Pvt.), 123
DETWILER
Daniel, 445, 452
Solomon, 445
DEUERAUS
DEUERAUS continued
James (Pvt.), 117
DEVAL
Gilbert, 256
John A. (Pvt.), 132
DEVAULT
Enos (Pvt.), 142
DEVER
Zadakiah (Pvt.), 145
DEVERS
George W., 255
George (Rev.), 255
DEVINE
Michael (Pvt.), 143
DEVIT
Patrick (Pvt.), 123
DEVON
Samuel (Pvt.), 135
DEVORE
Enos (Pvt.), 107
Morgan (Pvt.), 143
N. C. (Pvt.), 122
DEVOSS
John, 313
John (Mrs.), 313
DEWAULT
Leonard (Pvt.), 135
DEWEY
George M., 592
Lemuel (Sgt.), 156
Sarah B., 592
DE WITT
Daniel, 400
E. L., 92
Henry (Corp.), 133
John, 424
Lewis (Pvt.), 157
Miles H., 415
Wesler (Pvt.), 139
DE WOLF
-----, 18
DEYO
Edson, 290
Jeremiah, 290
Jonas, 289
Sarah, 434
DEZO
A. (Pvt.), 149
DIBBLE
H. H., 451
Leroy (Pvt.), 144
Marander S. (Pvt.), 144
DICE
Benjamin (Pvt.), 145
Elizabeth, 259
DICK
Comstock, 289
Elizabeth, 311, 312-313
J. P., 290
Milton T. (Pvt.), 135
William, 43
William (Pvt.), 131
DICKENS
Matthew (Pvt.), 130
Silas S. (Pvt.), 121
DICKENSHERTS
Thomas (Pvt.), 110
DICKERSON
B. (Pvt.), 149
James E. (Pvt.), 159
John, 208, 209
DICKERSON continued
John M. (2nd Lt.), 149
Silas (Pvt.), 140
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
DICKEY
Albert F., 472
Alfred S., 47
Alma, 470
Courtland M., 472
J., 524
James H., 472
John, 465
John (Lt.), 132
Joseph, 472
Joseph L., 472
Lovinia, 472
Michael, 435
Moses T., 472
DICKINSON
John, 340
DICKSON
Adelbert (Pvt.), 153
James H. (Rev.), 187, 526
John (Pvt.), 119
Mary, 214
DIEMER
Jacob, 388
Leah, 384
DIENORE
Lorenzo J. (Pvt.), 138
DIESTEIZWIG
Benedict (Pvt.), 109
DISTOEL
Frank (Pvt.), 157
DIETZ
George, 449
DIFFENDAFFER
S., 207
DIFFENDERFER
G., 166
S., 48
Samuel, 166, 174, 291
DILDINE
Andrew, 354, 444
Catharine, 440
Daniel, 444
Elizabeth, 354
George H. (Pvt.), 154
Harmon, 443, 444
Henry, 443, 444, 456
John, 354, 444
Nancy, 354
Perry, 449
Robert F., 444
DILL
Andrew, 46
Augustus, 486
David, 486
D. G. (Pvt.), 147
Edward, 486, 488
Elizabeth Turney, 486
George, 486
Gill (Pvt.), 137
G. W. (Pvt.), 147
J. (Pvt.), 147
James, 486
Jane, 488
Joel W., 486
John, 40, 44, 55, 63, 361, 391, 486, 507
John (Pvt.), 130

DILL continued
John B., 486
Joseph, 486
Mary Turney, 484, 488
Sophia Beckwith, 486
W. (Pvt.), 147
William, 486
William A., 486
DILLEHAY
John W. (Pvt.), 158
DILLEN
John (Pvt.), 126
DILLISON
Ire (Pvt.), 122
DILLMAN
Sylvester S., 481
DILLON
-----, 205
John, 184
Rebecca J., 263
DIMMETT
Jacob, 184
DIMMICK
Harris (Sgt.), 153
DIMMITT
J. G. (Rev.), 296
DIMMOCK
T. J. (Pvt.), 151
DIMPSEY
Andrew, 388
James M. (Sgt.), 121
John (Corp.), 112
DINLEY
John (Pvt.), 125
DINNE
C. L. (Pvt.), 146
DIPPER
Peter H. (Pvt.), 131
DIRTH
D. (Pvt.), 112
DISCOM
George, 158
DISTER
Peter (Maj.), 121
DITSLER
Cornelius (Pvt.), 157
DIXON
C. (Pvt.), 149
David, 450
Daniel (Pvt.),
E. H., 315
E. H. (Rev.), 296
George (Pvt.), 122, 158, 159
H. H. (Corp.), 122
I. W. (Pvt.), 149
Jacob, 184
Joseph, 47, 361, 513
Joseph (Pvt.), 137
Margaret, 423
Richard, 423
DIXSON
Norman (Pvt.), 157
DOAN
G. W., 52, 53, 98
George W., 43, 52, 53, 98, 100
DOANE
-----, 165, 200, 205, 544
Gerry W., 47
Guy W., 105, 164, 184, 206,
DOANE continued
Guy W. continued, 220
William, 7, 47, 48, 166, 167, 181, 182, 196, 197, 199, 208, 209
DOBB
Alex. F. (Rev.), 520
DOBIE
James C. (Pvt.), 140
DOBYNS
John W., 494
Thomas, 495
DODD
A. J., 162
C. N. (Pvt.), 154
Charles N. (Sgt. Maj.), 154
J. (Pvt.), 150
T. C. (Pvt.), 147
DODDRAE
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 134
James E. (Pvt.), 134
DODDRIDGE
J. G., 53, 184
Joseph G., 192, 206
M. W., 165
N. W., 53
P. B., 105
Philip, 62
Philip B., 53
DODDS
Moses (Corp.), 158
DODGE
-----, 428-429
Cynthia, 370
Wm. E., 243
DODRIDGE
J. G., 204
Joseph Q., 294
P. B., 204
DODSON
W. H. C., 190
DOERING
Henry (Pvt.), 117
DOGERAUS
J. (Pvt.), 148
DOHERTY
Colonel, 51, 551
Eliza, 65
J. (Pvt.), 151
William, 44-45, 65, 551
DOLAN
William (Pvt.), 121
DOLBEE
S. R., 165
DOLBOW
John P. (Sgt.), 110
DOLBOY
Lafayette (Pvt.), 129
William (Pvt.), 129
DOLBY
Albert (Pvt.), 127
T. (Pvt.), 151
DOLE
H. N. P., 560
DOLIN
Joseph (Pvt.), 155
DOLL
Enrigs S. (Pvt.), 134
E. S. (Pvt.), 150
DOLLY
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
DOLPH
Henry (Pvt.), 145
DOMIGAN
Abijah, 362
Eden, 362
Enoch, 362
Marib, 362
William, 45, 46, 47, 507
William, Jr., 362
William, Sr., 361, 362, 364
DOMINY
Harriet Barlow, 370
Jeremiah, 370
DOMKE
Rudolph (Corp.), 122
DON
C. B. (Pvt.), 151
DONAHOE
J. T., 184
DONAHOW
J. T., 296
DONALDSON
-----, 349, 373, 529
Cynthia Dodge, 370
David M., 370
George, 104, 347
Israel C., 370
James, 370
James Ewing, 370
J. Werden D., 370
J. W. D. (Pvt.), 154
Luther, 552, 554, 555, 562, 563, 564, 570, 571, 575
Nancy, 311
Rev., 463
William, 553
DONAHOO
James T., 556
DONAHUE
Rev., 463
DONELLY
M., 202
DONELSON
Charles (Pvt.), 143
DONEVAN
John (Pvt.), 131
DONEY
James B. (2nd Lt.), 114 DONLEY
Charles (Pvt.), 143
Jeremiah B. (Pvt.), 157
DONNELL
John O. (Pvt.), 143
DONNER
H. (Pvt.), 114
DONNEHOE
O., 313
DONNOHOE
J. G. A., 313
DONOHOE
J. G. W., 315
Thomas (Pvt.), 117
DONOHUE
Michael (Pvt.), 145
DONOUGHUE
Timothy (Pvt.), 142
DONOVAN
Emily, 399
William C. (Pvt.), 137
DOOD
C. N. (Pvt.), 154

DOOLAN
-----, 495
Smith, 493
DOOLEY
S. H., 164
DOOLITTLE
Nelson (Rev.), 524
DORAN
A. (Pvt.), 148
John (Pvt.), 133
Michael (Corp.), 137
S. (Pvt.), 148
S. G. (Pvt.), 148
DORBERT
George (Pvt.), 142
DORCY
J. (Pvt.), 149
DOREN
H. H., 560
J. A. (Dr.), 367, 368, 546
James (Pvt.), 123
L. N. (Mrs.), 368
Mary, 462
DORMADY
James (Pvt.), 125
DORNSIFER
David, 340
DORR
Benj. Dalton, Illus. 528-529
DORSEY
Albert (Pvt.), 157
Dr., 569
Isaac E. (Pvt.), 117
Tyler (Pvt.), 156
William (Pvt.), 129
DORWART
Henry (Pvt.), 158
DOTEN
Edward, 234
DOTSON
Isaac (Pvt.), 141
DOTY
Frank (Pvt.), 111
Isaac (Pvt.), 137
Josiah M. (Pvt.), 143
DOUGAN
William (Pvt.), 141
DOUGHERTY
Harrison R. (Pvt.), 157
John (Pvt.), 155
M. A., 92
William T. (Pvt.), 135
DOUGHTY
Rev., 388
Richard (Pvt.), 135
W. A., 374
DOUGLAS
Albert, Jr., 97
Albert, Sr., 97
Eliza Walcutt, 362
Eri, 362, 373
James (Pvt.), 159
Jerry (Pvt.), 153
R., 184
Richard, 97
Samuel, 160
Sarah Davis, 294
DOUGLASS
Mary Butler, 490
Richard, 47, 205, 490
Samuel (Pvt.), 140
DOUTHTY
Henry, 209
DOUTY
------, 570, 571
Charles W. (Serg. Maj.), 111
DOVE
Henry, 450
Jacob, 388
Reuben, 448, 450
DOWDALL
Edward J., 557
Joseph, 432, 489, 533, 556, 557
Peter (Pvt.), 119
DOWDELL
Sampson G. (Pvt.), 157
DOWDNA
Elisha (Pvt.), 121
DOWE
Charles B. (Pvt.), 155
DOWLAR
J. (Pvt.), 150
DOWLER
J. (Pvt.), 150
DOWNEY
Harvy (Pvt.), 154
Thomas (Rev.), 463
Thomas J. (Lt.), 132
DOWNING
Albert (Pvt.), 144
Elleanor, 416
Francis, 383
John E. (Pvt.), 135
Richard W., 211
William C. (Pvt.), 135
DOWNINGS
John (Pvt.), 143
DOWNS
Francis M. (Pvt.), 145
George W., 203, 209
G. W. (Pvt.), 149, 154
John (Pvt.), 158
Rev., 449
William (Pvt.), 127
Z., 268
DOYLE
Dennis (Pvt.), 110
J. G. (Pvt.), 150
John L. (Pvt.), 144
Michael, 145
S. (Pvt.), 151
DRACE
Robert (Pvt.), 123
DRAHDT
John (Pvt.), 142
DRAKE
Archibald (Pvt.), 117, 125
C. (Pvt.), 147, 151
Christopher, 117
Franklin (Pvt.), 123
F. (Pvt.), 147, 152
James, 448
Jacob (Rev.), 188
Jesse, 117
L. F. (Rev.), 296
Rev., 321
DRAKELY
Thomas, 204
DRANDT
Henry (Pvt.), 142
DRAPER
DRAPER continued
Asa (Pvt.), 107
DRECHER
Anthony (Pvt.), 133
DREISBACH
Abner, 262
Abner Scott, 262
Abraham E., 230, 269
Abram, 252
Allen, 256
Amanda, 262
Anna Eve, 229
Benjamin, 253, 262
Catherine, 229, 261, 269
Catharine E., 230
Catharine Eyer, 230
Catharine Wagner, 230
Clifton, 231
Daniel, 178, 179, 180, 183, 210, 214, 270
Edward, 105, 261
Elizabeth, 229, 230, 262
Elizabeth Reedy, 230
Fannie E., 231
Fannie Eyer, 230
George, 165, 186, 253, 254, 255, 262
Hannah, 262
Harriet, 262
Henry, 229, 253, 254, 261, 262, 274
Isaac, 105
Isaac B., 230, 261, 269
Jacob, 229
Jacob E., Illus. 192-193, 230, 261
James A., 262
Jemima, 262
John, 231, 253, 254, 261, 262
John (Rev.), 184, 228, 229, Illus. 228-230; 230, 269
John E., 231
Jonas, 253, 262
Jonathan, 165, 186, 250, 253, 262
Kate, 262
Leah, 229
Leah E., 230
Lydia Hittel, 230
Margaret, 261
Martha E., 231
Martin, 229, 253, 261, 262
Martin E., Illus. 192-193, 230, 261
Mary, 262
Mary J., 262
M. E., 105
M. E. (Pvt.), 154
Milton, 262
R. P., 181
Rosalie H., 232
Sabina Fred Buchs, 229
Salome, 230
Samuel, 166, 253, 262
Sarah, 262
Solomon, 262
Sophia E., 230, 269
Susannah, 229
Susannah E., 230
William, 253, 254, 256, 261, 262

DREISBACH continued
William (Mrs.), 253
DRESBACH
-----, 396
Angeline, 305
Anna Eve, 305
Daniel, 47, 48, 395
Edward, 305
Eliza, 305
Eliza Ann, 305
Elizabeth, 305
Esther, 305
George, Illus. 260-261, 305
Henry, 305
Isaac E., 53, 232
Jacob, 305
Joannah, 305
Jonathan, 480
Josephine, 305
Louisa, 305
Magdalene B., 305
Manuel, 262
Martin, 305
Mary, 305
Mary S., 305
M. E., 53, 104
William, Illus. 260-261
DRESBACK
J. A. (Pvt.), 150
DRESCHER
F., 201
DRESEL
Otto, 97, 192
DRESHER
Louis F., 182
DRESSEL
Adolph, 74
Caroline, 74
Louisa M., 75
Otto, 44, 74, 75, 563
DRIESBACH
H. (Pvt.), 150
DRIESZICHACKER
Jacob (Pvt.), 137
DRITSCHE
Leop (Pvt.), 132 DRODDY
-----, 402
DRUM
Allen, 252
Ella C., 197
Emma, 252
Henry, 252
I. C., 209
Josephus, 252
Mary Ann, 252
William, 209, 250, 252
William M., 240
W. M., 182
DRUMMOND
Lorenzo J. (Pvt.), 138
DRUMOR
Joseph (Pvt.), 145
DRURY
John (Pvt.), 157
William H., 257, 566, 567
W. H. (Dr.), 47
DRYER
Caroline, 528
I. G. (Mrs.), 528 DUBOIS
DUBOIS continued
Ezekiel, 473
DUDGEON
Joseph W. (Pvt.), 137
DUDLESON
Albert L. (Pvt.), 140
DUDLEY
George (Pvt.), 159
Robert (Pvt.), 146
William B. (Pvt.), 110
DUEKS
Andrew, 319, 321
DUSENBURY
C., 478
DUESENBURY
George, 447, 479
G. S., 472
DUFF
Catherine, 387
David (Pvt.), 144
Jane, 385
John, 385
John (Pvt.), 123
Margaret, 385, 387
Nancy, 385, 387
William, 385, 388
William B., 385
William C., 387, 388
DUFFEY
James M. (Drummer,)117
James C., 204
DUFFIELD
Thomas (Pvt.), 155
DUFFY
I. D., 191
T. (Pvt.), 112
DUFLIEGER
------, 96
DUGAN
Thomas (Pvt.), 156
DUGANE
John (Corp.), 107
DULGAR
Elizabeth, 330
DULIN
Atwel (Pvt.), 118
Charlotte, 457
S. (Pvt.), 129
Thomas B. (Pvt.), 157
William, 457
DULING
-----, 493
DUMOND
T. W. (Pvt.), 125
DUMM
A. R., 202
Isreal (Mrs.), 253
DUMMONDS
Isaac, 320
DUN ------, 371, 372
Mary, 85
Walter, 85, 370
DUNAN
Sarah, 264
DUNAVAN
John (Pvt.), 126
DUNBAR
A. B. (Pvt.), 146
Charles R. (Pvt.), 146
Edward H. (Pvt.), 137
DUNBAR continued
James S. (Pvt.), 140
DUNCAN
Aaron (Pvt.), 136
Benjamin, 192-193
C.C.B. (Rev.), 474
Daniel, 43
Isaac, 288
J. T., 207
J. Y., 199
Lee (Pvt.), 140
Mary, 92
Rebecca, 270
Thomas, 92
Thomas J., 92
DUNDARE
John (Pvt.), 110
DUNDEN
D. L., 313
DUNDON
D. L. (Pvt.), 151
Daniel L. (Pvt.), 156
DUNGAN
Catharine, 385
Elizabeth M., 319
Elizabeth Nancy, 323
George, 43, 319, 320, 323
George Francis, 323
Hannah Ettie, 323
Harriet, 323
Harriet Blackburn, 323
Jane, 322
Jemima King, 323
John, 319, 322, 323
John Titus, 323
Mary Ann, 322-323
Mary Florence, 323
Margaret, 319, 322
Nancy, 322
Patterson, 319, 322
Rebecca, 319, 322
Samuel Jefferson, 323
Sarah Jane, 323
Titus, 319, 322
William, 319, 322
William Allen, 323
William King, 322
DUNHAM
James W., 136
J. M., 567
J. M. (Dr.), 517, 567
Rachel, 306
Walter (Pvt.), 107
DUNKEL
Abigail, 251
George, 250, 256, 263, 264
Hannah, 251
John, 251
Kelson, 251
Kilion H., 256
Mary, 251, 264
Mary M., 253
Susan, 251
DUNKIN
-----, 206
DUNKLE
-----, 202
Amos, 208
Daniel (Pvt.), 150
John, 213
P. (Pvt.), 150

DUNLAP
Abagail, 312
Alexander, 566
Elizabeth, 312, 318
Harriet, 312
James, 44, 312, 318
James C. (Sgt.), 135
James W. (Pvt.), 132
Jesse, 312
John, 312
Joseph, 312
J. B. (Pvt.), 154
Joseph B. (Pvt.), 117
Joseph B. (Sgt.), 154
J. M., 365
Letitia, 312, 315, 318
Lorane, 312
Mary E., 297
Peter (Pvt.), 138
R. B., 313
Robert B., 312
S. W., 296, 297
Samuel W., 306, Illus. 306-307, 309
DUNMORE
Lord, 22, 23, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 100, 265, 282, 322, 362
DUNN
Asa, 392
Daniel, 348
Charles B. (Pvt.), 138
George W. (Pvt.), 159
James (Pvt.), 140
John (Pvt.), 144, 147
Samuel (Corp.), 124
DUNNICK
Catharine, 96
Joseph, 96
W. H., 96
DUNNING
Charles (Pvt.), 131
Martin V. (Sgt.), 131
DUNNUCK
Alma B., 282
Benjamin, 282
Catharine, 440
Diana, 282
George T., 282
Grace B., 282
Henrietta, 282
John, 282
Joseph, 440
Joshua, 282
Milton C., 282
Minerva, 282
Phoebe, 282
Ruth, 282
Sarah Ruth, 282
Thomas J., 282, Illus. 282-283
William, 440
DUOSAKEL
Rudolph (Pvt.), 140
DURALL
G. F. (Pvt.), 147
DURANT
Barton (Pvt.), 130
James (Pvt.), 130
J. W., 479
William S. (Corp.), 132
DURETT
J. W. (Corp.), 155
DURHAM
J. A.F. (Pvt.), 129
DURKIN
Michael (Pvt.), 110
DURRETT
Anna W., 329
Cornelia A., 329
Emily, 329
Isabel, 329
James, 331
James (Mrs.), 405
James D., 323
Jane Martin, 329
John M., 329
J. W., 329
Louisa Innis, 329
Minnie, 329
Sarah A., 329
T. H., 329
Thomas H., 329
Viola, 329
William W., 329
DURYEA
Charles, 276
Nancy, 276
Thomas, 276, 278, 279
DUSENBURY
Daniel, 475
D. (Pvt.), 152
George (2nd Lt.), 149
Nancy, 475
DUSSEL
Paulus (Pvt.), 108
DUSTMIND
Jacob (Corp.), 134
DUTCHER
W. O. (Pvt.), 148
DUTTON
E. M., 453
DUVALL
Andrew H., 357
Andrew R., 351
Benjamin, 344, 351
Catharine, 351
George, 351
Jeremiah, 351
Jeremiah (Mrs.), 346
Job P. (Corp.), 125
Margaret, 351
Nancy Reed, 344
Robert, 351
Sarah, 344, 351
Thomas, 351
William, 344, 351
DUYEA
Thomas, 166
DWAULT
Joseph W. (Pvt.), 123
DWINELL
Helen F., 258
DYAS
Fenley E., 47, 204
DYER
Adam, 354
John, 433
Samuel, 408, 435
Thomas (Pvt.), 115
William, 435
William (Mrs.), 435
DYSART
Hiram, 464
DYXON
C., 478, 479
C. (Pvt.), 152
H., 475, 479
I. W. (Pvt.), 152

E.

EACHES
Jesse L. (Pvt.), 131
EAGAN
William (Pvt.), 145
EAGER
James (Pvt.), 145
Patrick, 47
EAGLE
Jacob T. (Pvt.), 144
William S. (Pvt.), 159
EAKIN
J. J., 364, 365
Creighton, 427
EALEY
Martin, 415
EALY
M. (Pvt.), 147
Peter (Pvt.), 132
EANSHAW
-----, 553
EARHART
Adam, 499, 500
Edmiston, 499
Dr., 396-397
George H., 45, 499
George W. (Pvt.), 146
John H., 46, 499, 500
Josiah Irvin, 499
Mary (Mrs.), 392
Maxwell K., 499
Peter (Pvt.), 115
Susannah, 499
William S. (Pvt.), 146
EARL
George (Pvt.), 157
EARLDS
Matthew (Pvt.), 108
EARLY
Jacob, 365
Peter, 400
EARNEST
Captain, 234
Christopher, 302
Cyrus A. (1st Sgt.), 116
H. C. (Pvt.), 150
Henry C. (Pvt.), 144
Lewis M. (Sgt.), 135
EARNHART
-----, 185
EARNHEART
Jane, 262
Margaret, 262
William, 262
EASTEP
------, 278
EASTER
Mary, 228
Mary Ann, 302
Susanna, 228
EASTERDAY

EASTERDAY continued
D. (Pvt.), 148
H. (Pvt.), 148
Willard E. (Pvt.), 114
EASTMAN
Alonzo (Pvt.), 118
Ezekiel F. (Dr.), 222
James H. (Pvt.), 144
Leonard (Pvt.), 118
EASTWOOD
Henry (Pvt.), 135
EATER
Abraham (Pvt.), 108
EATON
------, 203
Bros., 235
Charles L., 44
Joseph, 376, 377
Marcus (Pvt.), 125
Rev., 524
Thomas I., 134
William H. (Pvt.), 126
W. H. (Pvt.), 150
EBERHARD
Julius G. (Capt.), 117
EBERLE
Dr., 536-537
EBERLY
Cyrus, 467
David (Rev.), 481
Edward, 372
H. G., 374
H. T., 374
Isaac, 500, 525, 542, 543, 562, 569, 570
Isaac (Mrs.), 531
Jacob, 500
John, 372, 373
Margaret J., 467
Samuel, 500
Thomas, 373
EBERSON
Christine, 299
EBEY
Barbara, 370
Betsey, 370
George, 371, 373
George (Mrs.), 372, 373
George, Jr., 370
George, Sr., 369, 370
Henry, 370
Jacob, 47, 370, 375
John, 370
Mary, 370, 376
Rose Ann, 370
Sally, 370
Susan, 370
EBRIGHT
Isaac, 451
Michael, 448
Michael A., 400
Rev., 255
EBRITE
Michael A. (Sgt.), 131
EBY
Columbus (Pvt.), 138
Franklin (Pvt.), 144
ECKHART
Henry S. (Pvt.), 117
John (Pvt.), 110
Valentine, 143
ECKINRODE
Martin (Pvt.), 144
ECKLES
Joseph C. (Pvt.), 145
ECORD
Aaron H. (Pvt.), 128
Cornelius, 310
J. C. (Pvt.), 151
Peter, 314
Peter W. (Pvt.), 128
EDDY
Augustus, 255
Col., 582
Jonathan, 511
EDGAR
Abigail Ogden, 398
Albert, 398
Albert (Sgt.), 131
Alexander (Pvt.), 129
Calvin, 398
Esther, 398
Frank, 398
Franklin M. (Pvt.), 131
George, 398
Harvey, 398
Jacob (Pvt.), 157
Jeannette, 398
James, 398
John, 398, 461, 511
Joseph, 398, 400
Louis, 398
Margaret Lunn, 398
Martha, 398
Silas, 398
William, 398
EDGINGTON
J. (Pvt.), 149
EDMISON
W. G., 55
EDMISTON
Elizabeth J., 81
Elizabeth Jane, 592
John (Dr.), 580
John M. (Dr.), 81, 513, 592
Marietta, 307
Matilda J., 81
EDMONDSON
Thomas, 311
EDSON
D. B. (Pvt.), 112
Luther (Corp.), 107
Theodore, 564
EDWARDS
(Bishop), 349
Charles (Pvt.), 159
D. (Pvt.), 148
D. (Rev.), 187
David N. (Pvt.), 139
David (Rev.), 166
E. W., 453
George, 445
George (Mrs.), 445
George W. (Pvt.), 129
H. (Pvt.), 148
James (Pvt.), 159
J. R. (Rev.), 517
John, 445
John G., 44, 46
R. (Pvt.), 148
Robert (Pvt.), 145
Stephen S., 445
EDWARDS continued
William (Pvt.), 131
William B. (Pvt.), 157
William H. (Pvt.), 138
EELS
George E. (Dr.), 452, 453, 546
EGAN
Alice, 587
Bridget, 587
Johanna, 587
John, 587
Joseph, 587
Kate, 587
Maggie, 587
Mary Ryen, 587
P. A., Illus. 586-587, 587
EGER
Jacob (Pvt.), 122
EGGLESTON
Beroth B. (Capt.), 156
C. B., 315
Franklin (Pvt.), 134
George (Pvt.), 135
Robert (Pvt.), 135
EGNER
George, 589
EHRENHART
P. E., 449, 452
Peter (Mrs.), 452
EICHALT
Z. (Pvt.), 147
EICHER
John (Pvt.), 135
EICHNER
Charles (Pvt.), 142
John (Pvt.), 142
EICKER
J. C. (Pvt.), 150
EINHART
G. W. (Pvt.), 147
EINSEL
Aaron D. (Pvt.), 134
Catherine B. Dreisbach, 230
Louis, 192-193
Louis (Rev.), 230
EISINEIMER
John (Pvt.), 131
EITEL
John Adam (Pvt.), 108
EIRICH
Peter (Rev.), 357
Rev., 447
EITHAUER
Charles (Pvt.), 117
EKENS
Thomas (Pvt.), 120
ELBERT
John (Pvt.), 134
ELDER
-----, 434
Margaret, 316
P., 448
Thomas I. (Pvt.), 143
William, 444
ELDRICK
David (Pvt.), 153
ELDRIDGE
Daniel (Rev.), 524
James W. (Lt.), 129
Malander (Corp.), 129
ELFERT

ELFERT continued
John (Pvt.), 158
ELI
John, 183
ELKRIDGE
George W. (Sgt.), 124
ELL
Margaret B., 542-543
Samuel (Pvt.), 129
ELLARS
William (Pvt.), 146
ELLENBERGER
Rev., 256
ELLINIPSCO
-----, 23, 26
ELLINGER
Joseph (Pvt.), 107
ELLIOT
-----, 27
Robert, 492, 494
ELLIOTT
A. C., 475
A. H., 396
Alexander M.G., 479
Benjamin, 383
Benjamin (Pvt.), 129
Calvin (Pvt.), 147
Chaplain (Pvt.), 144
D., 495
David, 492
Davis (Pvt.), 129
Eliza, 390-391
George R. (Sgt.), 129
Henry B. (Rev.), 525
J. (Pvt.), 151
J. A. (Pvt.), 151
Jackson (Pvt.), 153
James W. (Corp.), 155
James (Pvt.), 139
John A. (Pvt.), 156
John W. (Pvt.), 129
Mary, 383
Matthew (Pvt.), 143
Miranda, 97
Monroe (Pvt.), 110
R. F., 383
William H. (Sgt.), 121
William H. (Lt.), 129
ELLIS
Alston, 550
Ann Maria, 68
Benjamin, 255
Daniel W. (Pvt.), 129
David (Pvt.), 139
Ezra T. (Pvt.), 135
Ezra F. (Pvt.), 156
George R. (Pvt.), 138
J. (Pvt.), 111
James, 414
James (Corp.), 133
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 154
John Q. (Pvt.), 157
Jonathan, 48, 268
Michael, 184
N., 496
Robert, 68
Robert (Pvt.), 110
S. H., 550
ELMORE
C. W. (Pvt.), 125
ELMOSE
ELMOSE continued
James (Pvt.), 140
ELMER
Casper (Pvt.), 140
ELRICH
Barney, 370
Charles (Pvt.), 122
ELSAERSER
Lawrence (Pvt.), 117
ELSEISER
Lorenso (Pvt.), 137
ELSESSOR
Frank (Pvt.), 125
ELSEY
Edward, 441
Rebecca May, 441
William (Pvt.), 126
ELSON
Joseph (Pvt.), 158
ELSTER
A. C., 189, 190
ELSGUATAWAY
Prophet, 22
ELVIN
George J. (Pvt.), 123
ELY
Ezra S., 410
Heinrich, 185
John, 48, 211
L. (Pvt.), 150
Seneca W., 165
William H. (Pvt.), 128
ELZTER
C. A. (Pvt.), 112
ELZY
William (Pvt.), 140
EMDLEY
-----, 241
EMERICK
John (Pvt.), 110
EMERSON
Catharine, 266
C. T., 190
George, 268
Lettita, 266
Margaret, 268
Thomas, 268
EMERY
Abigail, 296
Nathan, 414
R. A. (Pvt.), 146
Thomas, 296
EMMERSON
William (Pvt.), 159
EMMERY
Nathan, 479
EMMETT
-----, 269
George, 497
William Y., 207
EMMICH
C. F. (Dr.), 567
John W. (Capt.), 158
EMMITT
James, 540
EMPIE
W. A., 204
EMRICH
C., 527
Charles (Pvt.), 137
Henry (Pvt.), 153
EMRICK
John (Pvt.), 158
John R. (Pvt.), 158
ENDER
John (Pvt.), 153
ENGEROFF
Christian, Illus. 560-561
John Albert, 560-561 ENGLAND
Asa, 277
David (Pvt.), 144
George F. (Pvt.), 130
Isaac S. T. (Pvt.), 130
J. W. (Corp.), 124
John W. (Pvt.), 130
Joseph (Pvt.), 130
T. (Pvt.), 149
Thomas (Pvt.), 125
William (Pvt.), 127
ENGLE
Christian (Pvt.), 145
George (Pvt.), 137
Henry (Pvt.), 157
Homer F. (Pvt.), 115
Jacob, 325
John (Pvt.), 121
J. E. (Pvt.), 151
Philip M. (Corp.), 115
Rebecca Widener, 325
William (Pvt.), 153
ENGLEHART
George (Pvt.), 142
William F. (Pvt.), 144
ENGLER
J. (Pvt.), 149
ENGLISH
-----, 95
Albert (Pvt.), 129
Cynthia, 78
David T., 311
John, 78, 292, 311, 313
John (Mrs.), 313
John C., 62
Laura, 78
L., 557
Lorenzo, 45, 78, 89, 94, 96, 585
Mary, 78, 311
Phebe, 445
William, 445
ENGROFF
C. (Pvt.), 147
ENLOW
James (Sgt.), 130
ENLOWS
Elizabeth B., 466
J. J., 466
James, 462, 466, Illus. 466-467
Jane, 462
Margaret E., 466
Mary A.E., 466, Illus. 466-467
Mary E., 466
Prudence R., 466
Rachel, 466
Rebecca J., 466
Sarah P., 466
Sarah, 466
Thomas, 462, 466
ENNHISER

ENNHISER continued
A. (Pvt.), 154
ENOCHS
W. H. (Gen.), 540
ENOEX
Nancy, 268-269
ENSICK
Henry (Pvt.), 139
ENSWORTH
-----, 190
Andrew, 183
W. A., 200
ENTREKIN
Creaton, 272
Dan Crouse, 272
Diantha, 272
Elizabeth, 271, 196, 197, 272
Ester, 271
Flora Bell, 272
James, 272
Jane, 271, 272
John, 47, 53, 54, 196, 197, 268, 271
John Rockwell, 272
Martha, 268, 271
Nancy, 196-197
Nancy Crouse, 272
Pheraby, 272
Tacy Crouse, 272
William, 268
William W., 265, 268
W. W., Illus. 270-271, 271, 272
ENTRIKIN
John C. (Pvt.), 134
ENY
John, 527
ENZEL
Michael (Pvt.), 122
EPHLAUD
George W. (Pvt.), 144
EPPS
George W. (Pvt.), 117
T. J., 204
William (Pvt.), 159
ERICK
Thomas E. (Pvt.), 143
ERLENBUSH
Herman (Pvt.), 153
ERNHEART
A. W. (Pvt.), 154
ERNST
Adam, 495
ERSKINE
J. (Pvt.), 151
John (Pvt.), 156
Samuel B. (Pvt.), 128
ERSTINE
P. (Pvt.), 150
ERU
Samuel (Pvt.), 142
ERWAY
Mark (Pvt.), 112
ERWIN
George W. (Pvt.), 126
Isaiah (Pvt.), 112
James (Pvt.), 129
John L. (Sgt.), 131
ESCH
Charles (Corp.), 122
ESHELMAN
E. B., 162
ESKRIDGE
Lovena, 307
William (Pvt.), 146, 154
ESPY
David B., 560
James, 576
Jonah M., 576
Maria M., 528
ESTEL
Edward (Rev.), 296
ESTILE
Catharine, 96
ETHERINGTON
George (Pvt.), 155
Parcus (Pvt.), 155
ETHERTON
P. J. (Pvt.), 151 ETT
Conrad, 251
EUBANK
Elizabeth, 89
EUSMINGER
Wellington (Pvt.), 123
EVANS
-----, 200, 203, 270
A., 269
A. (Rev.), 278
A. J. (Pvt.), 146
Abraham J. (Pvt.), 143
Albert N. (Pvt.), 131
Alexander (Pvt.), 135
Archibald, 266
B. (Rev.), 525
Benjamin, 310
Caleb, 266, 269
Charles (1st Lt.), 151
Charles C. (Lt.), 156
Col., 292
Daniel, 47
David, 266, 319
David (Pvt.), 129, 132, 139
David E. (Pvt.), 117
David M., 417
D. S., 397
Edward, 417
Eli P., 44, 87, 92, 96
Elizabeth, 266, 269
Enoch, 372
Ephraim, 310, 314
Ephraim (Mrs.), 314
Evan (Pvt.), 129, 145
Evelyn, 569
George W., 87, 373
Harvey D., 551
Hettie, 311
J. (Pvt.), 151
James, 556
James B., 445, 446, 450, 451, 452
James B. (Corp.), 130
James H., 451
Jacob H., 396
John, 44, 184, 266, 310, 314
John (Mrs.), 314
John (Pvt.), 107, 138, 141
John B. (Pvt.), 138
John E. (Corp.), 120
John W. (Pvt.), 135
EVANS continued
Jonas, 266
Joseph, 266
Joshua (Pvt.), 145
Lewis (Pvt.), 144
Lewis D. (Pvt.), 143
Maurice (Pvt.), 131
Mier (Pvt.), 136
Morris, 465
Mary R., 87
Mary Ann, 266-267
Mary, 266, 269, 414
Mark, 465
Margaret, 416
Nancy, 269
O. F., 525
Rev., 256
R. H. (Rev.), 516
Roland, 414
Ruth, 266
Sarah, 310
Samuel, 53, 266
Samuel B., 206
Samuel H., 53, 266, 269
S. B., 197, 205, 207, 208
S. H., 17
Simon (Pvt.), 145
Thomas J. (Sgt.), 116
Washington (Pvt.), 119
W. K., 414
W. K. (Pvt.), 148
Willard, 270
William, 266, 346
William (Pvt.), 135, 146
William W. (Pvt.), 139, 146
EVERETT
Eve, 188
Jacob (Pvt.), 156
P. (Pvt.), 151
EVERHARD
Henry H. (Sgt.), 131
EVERHART
J. (Rev.), 187
EVERILL
J. W., 477
EVERITT
Josephine B., 90
Zephaniah, 90
EVERTS
E., 193
EWING
-----, 584
Congressman, 532-533
James, 40
Jordan (Pvt.), 141
Joshua, 41
Judge, 64
M. R. (Dr.), 465
P. B., 54
P. B. (Judge), 532-533
Thomas, 43, 50, 62, 71, 235, 541, 544
William (Lt. Col.), 148, 152
William (Mrs.), 531
EYCKE
C. O., 295, 297
Philip, 297
P. R., 297
P. R. (Mrs.), 297
R. W., 297
EYER

EYER continued
Catherine, 230, 412, 413
Fannie, 230
EYMON
Samuel, 320
Samuel (Mrs.), 321
EXBY
Thomas E. (Pvt.), 145

F.

FADDEY
Sylvester (Pvt.), 145
FAGAN
Patrick (Pvt.), 139
FAGE
Catherine, 484
FAHEY
Michael, 523
Patrick (Pvt.), 124
FAHUSTOCK
Rolando (Pvt.), 144
FAID
John (Pvt.), 107
FAILING
H. M., 562, 578
Walstein, 564, 570
FAIRBANKS
Alpheus (Pvt.), 118
Gersons (Pvt.), 144
Horace (Pvt.), 118
John (Pvt.), 155, 159
John W. (Pvt.), 144
Mahlon (Pvt.), 118
FAIRCHILD
Jane Williams, 412
S., 477
FAIRFAX
Lord, 231
FAIRFIELD
Hannah, 378
Jabez, 425
Jacob, Sr., 420, 422
Jacob, Jr., 420
John, 420
William, 378
FAIRMAN
Abraham (Pvt.), 157
James H. (Pvt.), 120, 121
Junius H. (Pvt.), 119
FAIT
George, 308
FALK
Martin, 278
FALKENBACH
Joseph, 45, 544, 562, 578
FALKENBUSH
William (Corp.), 117
FALKNER
George W. (Pvt.), 142
FALKS
John (Pvt.), 143
FALLEN
S. M. (Pvt.), 152
FALLER
Henry (Pvt.), 120
FALMER
John H. (Pvt.), 136
FANCHER
Amy, 465
Evaline, 465
FANCHER continued
David, 465
George, 465
Henry, 465
Isaac, 465
James, 465
John, 465
Joseph, 465
Josephine, 465
Lorenzo Dow, 465
Mary Havens, 399
Mary Salina, 465
Nancy, 465
Nehemiah, 465
Polly, 465
Rebecca, 465
Salina, 465
Samuel, 465
Sarah, 399
Ulysses Grant, 465
William, 465
William C., 465
William, Jr., 465
FANK
John A. (Pvt.), 156
FANNING
Cecilia, 532-533
Richard J., 532-533, Illus. 590-591, 591
FARBER
Ann, 585
Caleb, 585
Eliza, 585
Elizabeth, 458
FARMER
George W. (Pvt.), 114
John (Pvt.), 114
I. N., 475
FARMGER
Alfred (Pvt.), 143
FARNHAM
Rev., 373
FARNAM
Henry (Pvt.), 120
FARNER
Solomon (Pvt.), 115
FARNERBERNER
N. (Pvt.), 150
FARR
A. G., 560
Bertha V., 197
FARREL
Thomas (Pvt.), 159
FARRINGTON
C. W. (Pvt.), 148
Charles W. (Cpl.), 154
FARRIS
D. (Pvt.), 151
Lewis (Sgt.), 136
FARSHI
William H. (Pvt.), 157
FARTHINGHAM
E. (Pvt.), 147
FARVER
Amanda, 411
Caleb, 411, 413
FARWELL
John V., 243
T. J. (Dr.), 567
FASSIG
William (Pvt.), 108
FAST
Abraham (Pvt.), 138
FATE
Samuel B. (Pvt.), 158
FATLIG
Reuben R. (Pvt.), 140
FATINAN
Jonas (Pvt.), 110
FAUCETT
John (Pvt.), 158
FAULKHAVEN
L. (Pvt.), 147
FAULKNER
-----, 441
Elizabeth, 441
Thomas, 512
FAULTER
John (Pvt.), 158
FAUMAN
Abraham R. (Pvt.), 158
George M. (Pvt.), 137
FAUSNAUGH
A. (Pvt.), 151
Andrew (Pvt.), 155
Fenis (Pvt.), 155
FAUSNOGHT
Mary, 536-537
FAUST
Isaac (Pvt.), 125
FAVEL
A., 399
FAWVER
Isaac (Pvt.), 144
FAXON
J. M., 104
Mina Seuter, 95
FAY
Cyrus, 520, 541
Supt., 544
Waldo B., 557
William, 218
FEARIGU
Aaron (Pvt.), 140
FEARING
William E. (Pvt.), 133
FEARN
J. H. (2nd Lt.), 148
FEARNS
C. W., 185
FEASEL
Jacob, 456
Susan, 456
FEATHERLF
Tillman J. (Pvt.), 136
FEAZIER
John W. (Pvt.), 140
FECHNER
St. Clair J. (Lt.), 157
FEDDER
Henry (Pvt.), 143
FEENY
Frank, 202
FEIDLE
John A. (Pvt.), 146
FEISHMANN
George (Pvt.), 132
FELGER
-----, 353
FELKER
Conrad (Pvt.), 123
FELL

FELL continued
Adalina R. (Mrs.), 554, 555
J., 518
John, 463
John E. (Sgt.), 129
Philena, 560-564
FELLER
Philips (Pvt.), 112
FELLERS
Philip (Pvt.), 130
FELLOWS
Eliza, 352
Henry C. (Pvt.), 155
Mary, 352
Thomas, 291
T. B. (Pvt.), 149
FELTNER
Christian (Pvt.), 122
FELTON
C. E., 184
C. E. (Rev.), 199, 255, 321, 518, 571
FENEE
William (Pvt.), 153
FENELL
Dr., 103
FENTON
Jesse, 434
FERBERT
James, 105
FERGUSON
Ann, 268
Charles (Pvt.), 136
Eliza Ann, 449
Frank M. (Pvt.), 125
George M. (Pvt.), 118
James, 40, 408
John, 270
Joseph (Pvt.), 136
J. M. (Pvt.), 148
Lawrence (Pvt.), 140, 154
Margaret, 433
Matthew, 268
Matthew, Jr., 270
N. R., 313, 316
Phillip Anna, 196-197
S. (Pvt.), 148
Sarah, 315
Thomas, 297
W. B., 524
Willis E. (Sgt.), 135
FERNANDES
H. S. (Rev.), 517
FERNOFF
------, 562
FERRAND
Hezekiah (Sgt.), 129
FERREE
James, 414
John, 184, 255
FERRELL
John (Rev.), 296
FERRES
Cyrus D. (Pvt.), 138
FERRIS
Catherine, 378
E. (Pvt.), 152
Joseph, 169, 378, 381
Leroy, 378
Mary J., 416
N. E., 416, 417
FERRIS continued
Sarah, 378
Sherman, 378
FERRY
Aaron F., 549
FERSON
D. L. (Pvt.), 147
J. J., 531
James, 407
FETEER
Frederick (Pvt.), 135
FETHEROLF
Elizabeth, 259, 260
Leahan, 263
S. S., 291
FETTEROLPH
Samuel, 252
FEUSTERMAKER
Aaron, 451
FICHARDT
Fred W. (Sgt. Maj.), 127
FICHTNER
Fredericka, 94
FICKARDT
George H., 105, 182, 192, 205, 208, 240
Z. H., 200
FICKEL
Marsellas (Pvt.), 123
Robert (Pvt.), 153
FICKLE
Alfred (Pvt.), 157
Nelson (Pvt.), 157
FIELD
Albert, 406, 409
Albert (Corp.), 133
Andrew, 409
Artamissa, 409
Carrie A., 409
Charles H. (Pvt.), 146
Edward G. (Pvt.), 147
E. H., 255
Elijah H. (Rev.), 296
Elizabeth, 409
Frederick, 409
George B. (Sgt.), 123
Henry A., 556
Henry W. (Musician), 153
Huldah R., 409
Jason B., 409
John, 51, 524
Linda J., 409
Louisa A., 409
Mary, Illus. 408-409
N. S. (Pvt.), 147
T. G. (Pvt.), 147
Walter, Illus. 408-409, 409
Zenas C., 409
FIELDING
James (Pvt.), 120
John, 406, Illus. 408-409, 409
John (Pvt.), 137
John W. (Pvt.), 121
J. W. (Pvt.), 111
Presley (Pvt.), 157
Thomas N. (Pvt.), 155
Walter, 406
FIESER
Frederick, 163, 542-543
FIGGE
Daniel (Pvt.), 117
FIGLER
J. M. (Pvt.), 147
FIKE
Andrew (Pvt.), 144
Henry (Pvt.), 133
FILCOMB
Jannett,
FILKALL
Daniel (Pvt.), 107
FILLER
Frederick E., 371
Joseph, 371
W. C., 255
FINCH
H. A. (Pvt.), 111
Henry H. (Corp.), 157
R. (Pvt.), 112
Thompson S. (Serg.), 111
FINDLAY
James, 510
FINDLEY
James B., 182
Dr., 182
FINK
-----, 255, 280
Elias (Pvt.), 156
George, 320
Magnus (1st Sgt.), 122
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 129
Wm. E., 81
FINKEL
W. C., 207, 279
William C., 47, 281
FINKS
A. C., 396
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 120
FINLEY
Dr., 216
James, 289, 290
James H., 246
J. D. (Pvt.), 111
J. W., 184, 204
James W., 207
Robert, 289, 290
R. W. (Rev.), 296
FINN
Adelmar (Pvt.), 117
John R., 576
FINNELL
James D., 297
FINNEY
Aadline Shade, 363
Alvin, 416-417
Jerry, 551
Jonathan, 420
R., 363
FIPPIN
A., 365
James, 365
S., 365
FIRESTONE
C. D., 575
Daniel, 590
Henry, 96
Jason W., 96
Leander M. D., LL. D. 367, 590, Illus. 590-591
L. (Mrs.), 367
Mary, 96

FIRESTONE continued
Melvin O., 591
Susannah, 591
William W. (Dr.), 591
FIROR
Jacob, 48
FIRST
James M. (Sgt.), 136
FISCHER
Adam (Pvt.), 122
August (Pvt.), 142
FISH
C. E., 522
R. (Pvt.), 149
William, 508
FISHBAUGH
Charles, 466
FISHEL
-----, 389
Jacob, 323
FISHER
-----, 446
Absalom, 284
Alexander (Pvt.), 110
Ann, 352
Christina, 363
Betsey, 391
Conrad, 345
Coonrod, 352
D. (Pvt.), 148
David, 345, 352
Dr., 465
E., 496
Edward, 391
Edward (1st Lt.), 148
Edward (Capt.), 153
Elizabeth, 352
Ephraim, 492
Felix (Pvt.), 144
Gabriel, 352
Garrison (Pvt.), 139
George, 352, 492, 496
George (Mrs.), 493
Henry (Lt.), 137
Henry (Pvt.), 143
Hiram, 345, 352
Hiram H. (Pvt.), 126
Iva, 352
J. (Pvt.), 148
J., Sr. (Pvt.), 152
Jacob, 361, 364, 446
Jacob (Pvt.), 143
J. F. (Pvt.), 151
John, 284, 345, 352, 494
John G., 284
John G. (Pvt.), 135
John J., 352
John R., 496
Joseph H. (Cpl.), 152
Josiah, 421
Luke, 352
M., 481
M. (Pvt.), 151
M. Jr. (Pvt.), 148
Mary, 352
Maxamillia, 393, 395
Michael, 46, 362, 391, 393, 395
N. N. (Mrs.), 326
Philip, 54
Rev., 373, 449, 491
FISHER continued
Samuel (Mrs.), 406
Sarah, 393, 395
Sarah Latimir, 492
Siron (Pvt.), 153
Timothy (Dr.), 421
William, 278, 476
William (Rev.), 187, 303
William (Pvt.), 154
William H. (Pvt.), 120, 140
W. M. (Pvt.), 148
Wilson (Pvt.), 118
FISHINGER
F. (Pvt.), 129
Frederick, 494
Joseph (Pvt.), 129
FISHPAW
Elijah, 400
Mordecai, 400
FISHPOW
J. L. (Pvt.), 147
FISK
Abraham J. (2nd Lt.), 107
Minerva, 483
Roswell, 407
FISMER
Charles, 204
FISSEL
John, 309
Katy, 341
Wesley T. (Pvt.), 117
FISSELL
George (Pvt.), 118
Joseph (Drummer), 118
FITCH
Dr., 343
E., 487
Edwin W. (Pvt.), 145
Lucy, 419
FITZGERALD
-----, 324, 389
Abraham, 325
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 117
Edward, 44, 191, 325
Edw. M. (Rev.), 522
Jesse, 295
John, 325
Joseph (Rev.), 522
Martha Williamson, 324
Miranda Mantles, 288
Peter J. (Pvt.), 144
Thomas, 324, 325
FITZGERARD
James A. (Pvt.), 142
FITZPATRICK
Ed. (Pvt.), 154
Thomas (Pvt.), 130
FITZWATER
Isiah (Pvt.), 155
Joseph, 518
FIUBELY
George J. (Pvt.), 117
FIX
-----, 590
A. J., 415
FLACH
William M. (Pvt.), 129
FLACK
Peter, 480
William H. (Pvt.), 157
FLADT
FLADT continued
Matthias, 495
FLAG
Edmond (Pvt.), 130
FLAGO
William C. (Pvt.), 110
FLAHERTY
Hugh (Pvt.), 145
FLAHERY
Edmund D. (Rev.), 522
FLANAGHAN
Patrick (Pvt.), 129
FLANEGAN
Archibald (Pvt.), 138
John (Pvt.), 130
FLANEGIN
J. (Pvt.), 148
FLANNAGAN
Hiram, 263
FLANNAGEN
------,499
FLANNER
Henry B. (Pvt.), 133
FLANNIGAN
Judge, 391
FLARIDA
Alpheus (Pvt.), 123
FLATHERY
Jonathan, 488
FLAVEL
Sereno (Corp.), 131
FLECK
Henry (Pvt.), 132
P. E., 95
FLEETWOOD
W. (Pvt.), 151
FLEISCHMANN
George (Pvt.), 123
FLEISHLER
Charles (Corp.), 122
FLEMING
-----, 312
Alexander, 320, 453
Archibald (Rev.), 496
Charles (Pvt.), 159
Colonel, 26
Cynthia, 320
Daniel (Pvt.), 129
Daniel S. (Pvt.), 125
Edmond F. (Pvt.), 159
Elizabeth, 320
Fergus, 320
George (Pvt.), 136
Hannah, 320
Henry, 320
John, 235, 283, 285, 319, 320, 321
L. (Pvt.), 149
Mary, 320
Minerva, 320
Robert, 320
Sarah, 320
William, 17, 47, 319, 320, 321, 361, 442, 507
FLEMMING
Ferguson, 214
FLENIKEN
John, 402
FLENNER
David, 354
FLENNIKEN

FLENNIKEN continued
-----, 41
Dorcas J., 406
Eliza S., 406
Samuel G., 44, 46, 406
Samuel W., 406
Sarah, 406
FLETCHER
-----, 447
E. B., 165
Harvey, 556
Rolin, 48
Thomas (Pvt.), 137
FLICK
George E. (Pvt.), 141
FLICKENGER
S. H., 161
FLICKIGER
Jacob (Pvt.), 158
FLICKIKER
John (Pvt.), 157
FLICKINGER
John (Pvt.), 157
FLING
George (Pvt.), 115
John (Pvt.), 155
Thomas I. (Pvt.), 115
FLINN
H. J. (Pvt.), 111
James, 464
Michael (Pvt.), 157
Samuel W. (Pvt.), 135
Thomas (Pvt.), 115
W. P., 464
FLINNKE
Charles (Corp.), 122
FLINTHAM
William, 556
FLOOD
Carrie H., 589
Charles B., 589
Charles B. (Col.), 162
G. B., 537
James (Pvt.), 114
John W. (Pvt.), 146
Mary, 589
FLOOR
Levi (Pvt.), 146
FLORA
James (Pvt.), 140
FLORENCE
Betsey, 336
Chrissie, 341
Elias, 44, 53, 104, 200, 336
Elias (Col.), 333, 335, 340, Illus. 341
Ezra, 283
Fanny, 341
G. A., 282
Gustavus, 283
Isobel, 341
Judge, 328
Kittie, 336
Mary, 336
Nancy, 336
Robinson, 336
Sally, 336
Sarah, 283
William, 47, 100, 205, 285, 286, 333, 336
FLORENCE continued
William (Judge), 335, 336
FLOURNOY
General, 551
Thomas C., 44, 97
FLOWERS
John L. (Sgt.), 133
J. R. (Dr.), 567
John W. (Pvt.), 128
W. A., 297
FLOYD
George (Corp.), 110
George (Pvt.), 118
Thad (Pvt.), 110
FLUKE
George H. (Corp.), 159
FLYNN
James (Pvt.), 138
Michael (Pvt.), 145
FOBERTS
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 140
FOBEY
William H. (Pvt.), 129
FOCKE
E. C. (Pvt.), 125
FOERST
Peter, 202
Peter (Pvt.), 126
FOGEL
John (Pvt.), 131
FOGLE
Jacob, 407
J. S., 376, 379
John Adam, 379
Leah, 379
Mary Ann, 407
Rachel, 379
Rebecca, 379
Sarah Jane, 379
Savina, 379
FOGLESANG
C., 375
FOLAY
Barney (Pvt.), 156
FOLEY
Bishop, 523
Dennis (Pvt.), 142
Lucy, 397
FOLKERTH
Luman A.P. (Capt.), 141 FOLKS
J. H., 315
FOLLAND
Sophia, 471
Thomas, 471
FOLLETT
Foster M. (Capt.), 136
G. P. (Dr.), 103, 367
Howard (Pvt.),
FOLSOM
Joshua, 43, 47, 66, 98
FOLTZ
Andreas, 198
Ervin (Corp.), 138
FOLZ
Jacob (Pvt.), 137
FONSMORE
A. (Pvt.), 149
FONTS
J. N. (Pvt.), 152
FOOR
FOOR continued
Cyrus (Pvt.), 146
Erwin (Pvt.), 146
FOOS
Amelia Ray, 362
Clara, 362
Eliza, 362
Ellen, 362
Frank, 362
Gustavus, 362
Jane, 340
Jane Price, 362
John, 40, 362
John W. (Pvt.), 130
Joseph, 40, 44, 63, 507, 513, 583
Joseph (Mrs.), 509
Joseph (Gen.), 361, 362, 364, 441, 584
Lewis, 362
Lydia Nelson, 361, 362
Lyne Starling, 364
Nelson, 101, 362, 583
Nelson (Corp.), 133
Nelson (Capt.), 510
William, 362
FOOT
Daniel, 454
George, 454
Jehiel, 454
John, 454
Nathaniel, 454
Ruth, 454
FOOTE
Henry S., 69
FOPE
John B. (Sgt.), 138
FORBES
Alexander C., 552
FORCE
James (Pvt.), 136
FORD
Cory (Pvt.), 140
D. S. (Pvt.), 114
George (Pvt.), 129
Henry A., 7
Jackson V.B. (Pvt.), 121
James (Pvt.), 114
John S., 556
J. S. (Pvt.), 147
Louisa (Mrs.), 262
Michael, 191
Sarah, 385
William R. (Pvt.), 131
FOREGRAVES
Dr., 465
FOREMAN
Edward R. (Pvt.), 154
Gorden (Pvt.), 115, 137
John M. (Pvt.), 143
William, 105
FORERMAN
W. E. (Pvt.), 150
FORESMAN
-----, 204-205, 268, 270, 294
Agnes, 268
Alexander, 214, 268
Alexander (Pvt.), 144
Bennett, 233
C. M., 208
Elizabeth Bennett, 294

FORESMAN continued
Henry, 214, 215
Hy, 174
Jane, 268
Jane L., 214
John, 268
John Philip, 233
Jonathan, 268
Judith, 268, 270
Mary, 268
Mary Elizabeth, 233
Nancy, 345
R. A., 199
R. A. (Pvt.), 150
Robert, 214, 235, 268, 345
Ruth, 204-205, 268
Sarah Jane, 214
William Bennett, 233
William, 268, 319, 322, 345, 348, 435
William K., 214
FORESSMAN
A. (Pvt.), 154
FOREST
James, 308
FORGHAN
John W. (Pvt.), 144
FORMAN
David (Pvt.), 136
FORNEY
Daniel, 487
George D. (Pvt.), 142
Adam (Pvt.), 117
FORNOFF
-----, 41
Fred, 46
FORREST
Samuel W. (Sgt.), 135
FORRESTER
Rev., 463
William A., 464
William A. (Pvt.), 131
FORROR
Samuel, 50
FORSHEE
A.M.A., 495
FORSHER
Joseph (Pvt.), 142
FORST
Jane, 386
John (Pvt.), 144
FORSYTH
Thomas (Rev.), 278
William, 436
William (Pvt.), 144
FORSYTHE
Caleb (Pvt.), 143
John (Pvt.), 107
William (Pvt.), 154
FORTNER
J. N. (Pvt.), 150
William (Pvt.), 134
FORTUNE
-----, 388
FORTUNBOCKER
Casimere (Pvt.), 119
FOSS
George F. (Pvt.), 111
FOSTER
Aaron (Pvt.), 157
FOSTER continued
Benjamin, 433, 436
Benjamin (Mrs.), 436
Cassandra, 433
Charles J., 162
Cynthia J., 434
Daniel W. (Corp.), 115
Dr., 176
Elizabeth, 434, 435
Eliza J., 424-425
Elijah, 434
Emily, 434
George W. (Pvt.), 143
H. K. (Rev.), 519
James, 164
John (Mrs.), 308
John B. (1st Sgt.), 120
Joseph (Pvt.), 139
L. R., 479
M. (Rev.), 394
Mary, 434, 435
Mary Athey, 434
Margaret, 434
Millia M., 434
Nancy, 434
R. A., 192
Sarah, 434
Thomas, 435
W. H., 161
William F., 434
William L., 434
FOSTOR
H. K., 184
FOTTRELL
Jacob (Capt.), 109
FOUGHT
Simon (Pvt.), 157
Simon J. (Pvt.), 120
FOUNCE
J., 479
FOUST
Andrew, 253
David, 253
Jacob, 253
Joseph, 252, 253, 302
FOWLER
Isiah (Pvt.), 131
Joseph C. (Pvt.), 131
Samuel, 251
Silas H. (Sgt.), 159
FOWLS
Daniel W. (Pvt.), 123
FOWNS
Benjamin H. (Pvt.), 155
FOX
Alexander (Pvt.), 110
Chas. (Rev.), 520
George H., 566
Iva, 351
John (Pvt.), 141, 124
John (Corp.), 129
Richard H. (Pvt.), 159
FOY
Sylvester (Pvt.), 134
FOZ
Julia Ann, 390-391
FRAAF
Henry (Pvt.), 147
FRAGANS
Williams (Pvt.), 143
FRAGEE
Thomas B. (Pvt.), 127
FRAME
George, 296
FRAMPTON
S. C. (Rev.), 519
Stephen (Rev.), 388
FRANCES
Jacob, 416
FRANCIS
Anna Walter, 434
Eli (Pvt.), 138
Elizabeth, 416
Elizabeth Heath, 434
F., 435
Frederick (Pvt.), 140
Frederick F., 434
George, 435
Henry, 416, 417
Hestep, 416
Jacob, 416
James, 416
John, 416
Joseph, 416
Mahala R., 307
Martha J., 307
Mary, 416, 434
Nancy, 416
S. (Pvt.), 147
Samuel, 417
Samuel (Pvt.), 134, 141, 157
Sarah, 416
William, 307
Winnie, 416
FRANCISCO
A. W., 161
Mary C., 456
Peter, 398
Uriah, 456
FRANK
Andy (Pvt.), 157
C. A. (Rev.), 500
Charles, 575
Elizabeth, 392
Jacob, 392-393
Julia Ann, 392-393
Sarah Jane, 390-391
FRANKENBERG
Albert J. (Cpl.), 153
Col., 499
Dorothy, 499
George, 46
Otto, 526, 566, 567
FRANKENBURG
A. J. (Pvt.), 147
George (Corp.), 120
Walter (Pvt.), 142
FRANKFORD
Henry (Pvt.), 125
FRANKLIN
Benjamin, 221
James T., 206, 227
J. T., 185
Joel, 183, 200
M. H. (Pvt.), 110
Nelson, 48, 53, 104, 166, 199, 207, 319
N., 206
FRASIER
Alexander, 275
FRASS

FRASS continued
Henry (Pvt.), 153
FRAVEL
C. (Pvt.), 147
C. H. (Pvt.), 147
Clay (Pvt.), 123
Q. (Pvt.), 147
William (Pvt.), 130
FRAVELL
Samuel (Pvt.), 157
FRAZELL
Alonzo (Pvt.), 118
Oscar (Pvt.), 157
FRAZER
John (Rev.), 518
FRAZIER
-----, 463
Albert (Pvt.), 121
J. A., 465
John, 463
S. A. (Pvt.), 111
Susanna, 307
William, 477
FRECH
Tillman (Pvt.), 142
FREDERICK
Jacob, 254
Peter, 254
William, 254, 256
William of Prussia, 259
FREELAND
William (Pvt.), 146
FREEMAN
Benjamin, 108, 295
C. H. (Pvt.), 149
Charles (Pvt.), 141
Jerrett (Pvt.), 129
Jonathan (Pvt.), 123
Moses, 517
T. W. (Pvt.), 149
Uz, 76
FREESE
A. J. (Pvt.), 149
Pearce (Pvt.), 108
FREMAN
William, 187
FREMONT
John C., 161, 589
Major-General, 123
FRENCH -----, 463
Dr., 332
E. (Pvt.), 111
George (Pvt.), 134
Henry (Pvt.), 155
John, 463, 464
John (Pvt.), 140
Lois, 396-397
Lucius (Pvt.), 157
Oscar L. R. (2nd Lt.), 154
Otis E., 134
S. L. (Pvt.), 112
William (Pvt.), 134
FRETWELL
Sarah A., 329
FREUDENBERGER
Peter (3rd Corp), 108
FRIDLEY
Catharine, 277, 352
Charles, 352
Clinton, 352
FRIDLEY continued
Diana, 352
George, 352
Hannah, 277
Iva, 352
Jacob, 352
Joanna, 352
John, 352
Joshua, 352
Lewis, 277
Louis, 352
Peter, 352
Phebe, 352
Polly, 352
Stephen, 352
Susannah, 352
FRIE
John (Pvt.), 132
FRIED
Joseph B. (Pvt.), 136
FRIEDCHEN
William (Pvt.), 137
FRIEND
Andrew (Pvt.), 115
FRIESE
-----, 256
FRIETWELL
John, 328
FRIEY
John (Pvt.), 157
FRILLMAN
H. W., 540
FRISBIE
------, 498
FRISTOE
Edward (Pvt.), 132
FRITCH
Benjamin F. (Corp.), 126
FRITCHEY
Alexander H., 95
Francis Xavier, 95
Lydia Ann, 95
FRITTER
-----, 92
T. E. (Pvt.), 148
Thomas A. (Sgt.), 138
FRITZ
Franklin (Pvt.), 122
Lewis (Musician), 117
Michael (Pvt.), 110
FRIZZELL
Lemuel, 364
FROMKHOUSER
George A. (Pvt.), 129
FRONTMAN
Henry (Pvt.), 157
FROST
J. A., 465
FROTHINGHAM
Ebenezer, 423
Stephen M., 423
FRY
George, 57
General, 586
Charles, 165, 166
James (Corp.), 159
John, 409
J. S. (Pvt.), 114
Mayland (Pvt.), 112
Peter J. (Pvt.), 142
S., 479
FRY continued
William C. (Pvt.), 143
FRYBACK
Ann, 266
Catharine, 266
Elizabeth, 266
George, 266
John, 266
Lydia, 266
Mary, 266
Sally, 266
Susannah, 266
FRYE
Sylvester (Pvt.), 133
FRYER
John R. (Pvt.), 120
FUCHS
G. A. (Sgt.), 108
FUHN
A. (Pvt.), 150
FUIKS
George W. (Pvt.), 119
FULCHER
J. A. (Pvt.), 148
B. F. (Pvt.), 155
FULI
Stephen (Pvt.), 122
FULK
Margaret, 303
Peter (Pvt.), 107
FULKERSON
Henry (Pvt.), 110
FULLEN
F. (Pvt.), 151
Franklin (Pvt.), 155
J. (Pvt.), 152
Jackson, 337
Jackson (Corp.), 155
James, 337
Richard, 338
Samuel M. (Pvt.), 155
William, 337
FULLER
-----, 404
Alden, 420
Clinton (Pvt.), 130
Elizabeth, 356
Erskine A., 405
Flavel, 101
Henry K. (Sgt.), 130
J., 434
J. (Pvt.), 151
Joseph, 526
Lucy M., 92
Mary McKinley, 434
R. (Pvt.), 150
Reuben H. (Pvt.), 153
Sarah P., 73
FULLERS
-----, 430
FULLERTON
E. B., 566, 567
Humphrey, 511
Thomas, 331
W. (Dr.), 367
FULLWELER
John (Corp.), 137
FULSOM
Joshua, 184
FULTER
Ransors (Pvt.), 137

FULTON
Dr., 465
Elijah, 402
Hugh, 402
James W. (Pvt.), 135
John A., 54
John M. (Rev.), 449
Robert (Pvt.), 141
Robert C., 93
W. H., 309
William H. (Pvt.), 142
FULTZ
-----, 400
Casper (Pvt.), 123
FUNK
B. (Pvt.), 150
Daniel, 185
David (Pvt.), 139
Elizabeth Catherine, 390-391
Francis M. (Pvt.), 118
Frederick, 312
Henry, 388
Hiram (Pvt.), 108
Jacob, 108, 295
J. A. (Pvt.), 151
Israel, 127
Marcus (Pvt.), 135
FUNKHOUSER
John, 354
FUNKS
James N. (Pvt.), 128
FUNN
John (Pvt.), 125
FURGESON
James, 63
FURGURSON
John (Pvt.), 121
FURGUSON
Frank M. (Pvt.), 159
J. (Pvt.), 111, 152
James A. (Pvt.), 140
S. (Pvt.), 152
T. T. (Pvt.), 149
Thomas T. (Pvt.), 144
FURLONG
John (Rev.), 522
FURNACE
Erastus (Pvt.), 127
William J. (Pvt.), 127
FURNES
Janus (Corp.), 108
FURNI
Marion (Pvt.), 138
FURNIS
Henry (Pvt.), 125
FURROW
James H. (Pvt.), 142
FUSON
James M., 431, 432, 477
W. W., 432
FYKE
William P. (Pvt.), 130

G.

GABEL
John (Pvt.), 142
GABER
Wm. H., 104
GABLE
Edward (Pvt.), 145
GADSEN
Christopher E., 410
GAGE
J. L. (Rev.), 374
John L. (Rev.), 430
GAGER
E. B., 575
GAGLE
Joseph (Pvt.), 122
GAIGER
Michael (Pvt.), 110
GAILEY
J. (Pvt.), 152
GAILS
John (Pvt.), 159
GAINES
L., 209
GALAGHER
George (Pvt.), 144
GALBRAITH
------, 446
R. G. (Sgt.), 151
Anna, 446
Elizabeth, 379
Georgiana, 380
Henry (Corp.), 134
Robert (Sgt.), 155
Samuel, 380
Samuel, Jr., 380
William (Dr.), 380
GALBREATH
-----, 335
Andrew, 327
Robert, 333, 335, 341
Sarah, 337
GALE
Judge, 586
Anna S., 588
Benjamin, 375, 377
Carl, 586
Cora, 586
Ella A., 588
Frank, 586
Franklin, 586, 588
John T., 45, 586, Illus. 586-587, 588
Mary E., 588
Mary J., 586
Mary J. Cleveland, 588
Richard, Jr., 380
Sallie Jones, 586
Sylvester W., 129, 588
GALES
Joseph (Pvt.), 139
William H. (Pvt.), 157
GALIGER
P. (Pvt.), 152
Pat (Pvt.), 148
GALL
J. M. (Pvt.), 147
GALLAGHER
James (Pvt.), 131
John F. (2nd Lt.), 109
John M., 160
N. A. (Rev.), 449, 552
Peter (Pvt.), 125
W. D., 537
GALLAHER
J. (Pvt.), 154
GALLAUGHER
William (Pvt.), 136
GALLER
Amelia, 232
GALLIFORD
Mary, 397, 402
GALLION
Mary, 385
GALLOWAY
George R. (Pvt.), 120
John, 75
Margaret, 75
Ovis B., 153
Samuel, 43, 75, 81, 190, 528, 540, 552, 564, 568, 569, 571, 590
GALT
W. W., 541
GAMBLE
G. C., 314
Henry C. (Pvt.), 117
GAME
Philip, 449, 452
P. (Mrs.), 452
W. M., 451, 452
GAMES
Sarah, 95
GANDER
John, 444
GANEL
James M. (Pvt.), 137
GANGENER
A. M., 160
GANTZ
Adam, 386, 389
Adeline, 386
Albert, 386
Andrew, 386
Catharine, 386
Elizabeth G., 386
George H., 387
George W., 386
Hannah Dalby, 289
J., 473
John, 383, 386, 387
Jonathan, 386
Lydia, 386, 434
Mahala, 386
N., 363
Nancy, 386
Sarah J., 439
T., 436
Theodore, 436
Theodore (Corp.), 133
V. C., 439
GARAGHTY
Edward P. (Sgt.), 127, 240
GARAUGHTY
John, 83
GARDEN
T. D. (Elder), 464 GARDENER
Garnett (Pvt.), 154
Joseph C. (Pvt.), 154
GARDINER
Benjamin, 428, 520, 556, 576
James B., 364, 508
GARDNER
-----, 382, 424
Althina, 424
Anthony (Pvt.), 125
A. (Mrs.), 531
Betsey, 434

GARDNER continued
Catharine, 383
Charles (Pvt.), 130
Cyrus (Pvt.), 130
Dr., 332
Ellen, 430
G. W. (Dr.), 434
George W., 437
Harriet, 424
J., 435
James, 163, 382, 383, 434
James F. (Pvt.), 130
James H. (Surgeon), 114
Jennet S. (Pvt.), 141
Jonathan T., 374
Joseph, 383, 424, 434
Joseph (Pvt.), 145
Joseph C., 382
Joseph H., 436
J. T., 432
Leonidas H., 424
Lucy J., 424
L. S. (Pvt.), 150
Mahala, 382, 434
Mary, 383, 434
Matthew (Rev.), 296, 309
Michael, 383, 434
Nancy, 383, 434
Nathaniel, 382, 434
Ozem, 420, 424, 430
Paryntha, 424
Polly Conwell, 434
Robert (Pvt.), 118
Samuel W., 424
Susan, 383, 434
Susan Beevers, 434
Thomas H. (Pvt.), 145
Vilinda J., 434
W. (Cpl.), 111
William, 382, 434
William H. (Pvt.), 138, 144
William T. (Pvt.), 145
GARES
A. Bennett, 446
Catharine, 446
Edmund, 446
Mary Ann, 446
Samuel, 446
Snyder, 446
GARFIELD
James A., 234
GARGROVE
R. G. (Pvt.), 152
GARHART
John A.B. (Pvt.), 117
GARLAND
Edmund (Rev.), 475, 482
GARNER
C. (Pvt.), 148
John S. (Corp.), 120
John (Mrs.), 405
W. (Pvt.), 148, 152
GARNES
Abner (Pvt.), 159
James (Pvt.), 159
GARON
Charles (Pvt.), 131
GARRARD
Israel, 164
GARRES
Edmund, 453
GARRES continued
Edward, 453
Samuel, 465
GARRET
Simeon (Pvt.), 127
GARRETT
Edward (Pvt.), 158
Edward H. (Pvt.), 120
Isaac H. (Pvt.), 136
Isaac R. (Pvt.), 157
J. C., 61
Joseph M. (Pvt.), 120
Solomon M. (Pvt.), 140
GARREY
George W. (Pvt.), 143
GARRISON
E. (Pvt.), 151
John G., 290
Philip (Pvt.), 128
Thomas (Corp.), 156
GARST
Henry (Rev.), 481
GARTLIN
Andrew (Pvt.), 117
GARVIN
T. D. (Rev.), 527
GARWOOD
Samuel, 516
William H. V. (Pvt.), 118
GARY
Peter (Corp.), 107
GASKELL
Samuel (Pvt.), 119
GASKILL
Green (Corp.), 119, 121
GASKINS
Frederick (Corp.), 159
GASNELL
Peter J. (Sgt.), 121
GASSON
Charles (Pvt.), 157
GAST
Philip (Rev.), 394
GASTON
Joseph, 166, 167
GATES
Bailey (Corp.), 137
DeWitt, 475
O. (Pvt.), 147
Wilson L. (Pvt.), 107
GATEWOOD
Philip, 277, 345
GAUGE
William (Corp.), 119
GAULT
John (Pvt.), 142
William (Corp.), 156
GAUNT
Moses (Pvt.), 120
GAUSE
Samuel (Pvt.),
GAVER
Elias, 47
Samuel, 312
W. H., 46
GAVIN
Wilmot (Pvt.), 155
GAW
Alexander N. (Pvt.), 139
GAY
David, 501
GAY continued
John, 267, 304
Louis, 407
Lydia, 501
Norman (Dr.), 47, 567
Susannah, 304
GAYLORD
Charles (Pvt.), 112
N. M. (Rev.), 524
GAYMAN
-----, 454
Christian, 450, 451
Daniel, 450
David, 450, 451
Israel, 450
Jacob, 306
Mary V., 306
Moses, 450
GAYMON
Israel (Pvt.), 132
GEAR
Ezekiel (Pvt.), 130
GEARHART
Franklin C. (Pvt.), 134
George, 192, 193, 194, 215
Harriet Dungan, 323
Henry, 323
Henry (Mrs.), 251
Webster S. (Pvt.), 134
Washington K. (Pbt.), 117
GEARY
George L. (Pvt.), 120
Harding C. (Capt.), 120
John T. (Corp.), 146, 153
William W. (Pvt.), 136
GEBHART
George (Pvt.), 131
GEDDES
James, 50
John F. (Pvt.), 144
GEEHR
John, 213
GEER
Augustus (Pvt.), 140
Milton, 423
GEESEMAN
Johnson (Pvt.), 127
GEFFS
Robert (Pvt.), 143
GEHEN
Henry (Pvt.), 130
GEHLER
John (Pvt.), 110
GEHM
John, 451
GEHNING
George (Pvt.), 125
GEIGER
George, 435
Joseph H. (Gen.), 91, 100, 568, 571
J. H., 570
Joseph H., 47, 79, 592
Joseph (Gen.), 73
Lydiel, 592
Noah, 400
Peter, 400
Ruth S., 592
GEIS
Barbara, 542-543
GEISLER

GEISLER continued
W. W. (Pvt.), 148
GEISY
Henry H. (Capt.), 120
GEISZLER
John A. (Pvt.), 142
GENNY
W. J. (Pvt.), 148
GENSELL
Samuel, 303
GENSINGER
Paul C. (Pvt.), 146
GEOHEGAN
Silas S., 165
GEORGE
Dr., 465
Archibald (Pvt.), 114
Isaac, 340
Isaac (Pvt.), 128
Isaac V. (Pvt.), 155
I. B., 151
James (Pvt.), 122
J. E. (Pvt.), 151
Jackson (Pvt.), 141
John B., 208
Lydia A., 197
Parnick, 336
W. (Pvt.), 149
W. B. (Sgt.), 151
William (Pvt.), 142
GEON
John (Pvt.), 158
GEPHANT
Noah (Sgt.), 134
GEPHART
D., 202
Emanuel (Capt.), 134
G. C., 206
George C., 174, 206, 207, 214
George W. (Corp.), 125
Jacob (Corp.), 126
Mary F., 317
GERDON
Ransom S. (Pvt.), 156
GERE
George, 531, 574
GERERIN
Lovett F. (Pvt.), 157
GERLACH
August (Rev.), 518
GERMAN
------, 392
George, 392
Gray, 392
J. P., 465
Jesse, 392
Malinda N., 390-391
William E. (Pvt.), 123
GESSELLS
Elizabeth, 302
Obediah, 302
GESSLEY
Samuel, 281
GESTER
Anthony (Pvt.), 133
Samuel (Pvt.), 133
GETSCHEUS
A. (Pvt.), 148
GETZ
George, 527
GETZENDAMEE
J. (Pvt.), 149
GETZENDANNA
J. (Pvt.), 152
GETZENDANNER
J. H. (Corp.), 130
GFALZFRASS
George (Musician), 120
GHILD
F. (Pvt.), 148
GIBBARD
Joseph (Pvt.), 137
GIBBONS
Mankin J. (Pvt.), 121
N., 518
Newton, 46
Rev., 188
Thomas H. (Pvt.), 140
William (Pvt.), 117
GIBLIN
Patrick (Pvt.), 117
GIBSON
Alwir (Pvt.), 155
Andrew B. (Pvt.), 110
Anna, 311
Eleazer W., 328
E. W., 324
George, 100, 351, 356
Geo. W., 557
Harrison, 142
Hester A. Crabb, 328
J. (Pvt.), 150
James A., 328
John (Col.), 28
John (Pvt.), 155
John R., 340
Joseph (Pvt.), 107
Louisa Walker, 328
Margaret, 433
Martha, 328
Mary, 63
Mary J., 328
Rebecca, 328
Robert, 324, 328
Ruhama Williamson, 324, 328
Sarah, 328
T. H. (Dr.), 216
Thomas (Col.), 63, 351
Thomas (Dr.), 351
GIDDINGS
Thomas (Pvt.), 129
GIESE
Christian (Pvt.), 122
GIESY
Emanuel (Qtrmstr.), 119
GIFFORD
Henry (Rev.), 464, 524
GILBERT
------, 565
Henry (Pvt.), 153
C. C. (Gen.), 132
James A. (Pvt.), 129
M. J., 72, 226, Illus. 520-521, 547
Mary A., 481
Matthew J., 73
Rebecca, 435
Rufus A. (Pvt.), 141
William R. (Pvt.), 141
GILBERTSON
GILBERTSON continued
John W. (Pvt.), 157
GILBREATHE
Henry, 48
GILCHRIST
Dr., 414
GILDERSLEEVE
W. C. (Dr.), 231
W. C., 190
GILES
Cicero (Pvt.), 136
GILKINSON
John (Pvt.), 138
GILL
-----, 592
H. Z. (Dr.), 129, 569
J. (Pvt.), 149, 152
Jacob (Pvt.), 143
James, 215
John L., 61, 561, 562, 574
Susan (Mrs.), 441
W. A., 575
W. C. (Pvt.), 148
W. I., 152
W. J., 149
William, 47, 53, 166
William A. Jr. (Pvt.), 147
William C. (Pvt.), 143
William M., 494
W. M., 496
GILLAND
W. H. (Pvt.), 151
GILLELAND
Charles (Pvt.), 145
GILLEN
C. W. (Pvt.), 147
James (Corp.), 156
Lucy (Mrs.), 404
Mark (Pvt.), 145
GILLESPER
M. P. (Sgt.), 152
GILLESPIE
Baker, 278
Chloe, 468
Cornelius (Pvt.), 137
Hannah A., 532-533
Harriet, 470
J. W. (Pvt.), 151
Menzes, 470
M. P. (Pvt.), 149
William (Pvt.), 146
GILLET
James, 576
GILLETT
------, 162
Mercy, 496
GILLIAM
D. Tod, 566
W. D. (Dr.), 567
GILLIFILLEN
J. (Pvt.), 150
GILLILAND
Andrew, 289
J. (Pvt.), 149
H. (Pvt.), 149
John, 289
Samuel, 289
Susan, 336
W. S. (Pvt.), 111
GILLINWATERS
Alexander, 312-313

GILLIS
Samuel N. (Pvt.), 115
GILMAN
Charles (Pvt.), 155
GILLMORE
John (Pvt.), 126
GILMORE
Francis M. (Pvt.), 136
Murcus (Pvt.), 156
William H. (Pvt.), 145
GILNETH
James, 414
GILPIN
E. P. (Pvt.), 122
William (Pvt.), 145
GILRUTH
James (Rev.), 448, 476
GILTZ
John (Pvt.), 145
GILWORTH
James (Rev.), 277
GINDER
William (Pvt.), 157
GINTER
George (Corp.), 122
GINTHER
C. (Pvt.), 147
GINTNER
H. A. (1st Lt.), 152
Harry A. (1st Lt.), 149
J. E. (Pvt.), 149
W. O. (Cpl.), 152
GINWALD
Ezra, 410
GIREMAN
Lewis (Corp.), 137
GIRTEN
William (Pvt.), 156
GISHPAN
J. L. (Pvt.), 152
GIST
Moses B. (2nd Lt.), 116
GIRTON
------, 337
Susan, 297
William, 297
GITTINS
David (Pvt.), 133
GIVEN
Jeannette, 92
Joseph, 92
GLADITCH
Louis (Pvt.), 159
GLADMAN
Martin (Pvt.), 123
GLAIZE
Thomas (Pvt.), 156
GLANVILLE
Joshua, 387
GLASO
George W. (Pvt.), 140
GLASS
James R. (Pvt.), 146
GLASSCOCK
-----, 495
GLASSFORD
John (Pvt.), 142
GLAZE
Eva, 284
George, 284
George W., 448
GLAZE continued
Henry (Pvt.), 135
John, 284
Mary, 284
Richard, 284
Samuel (Rev.), 296
Thomas, 283
T. (Pvt.), 151
GLAUNER
Jacob F. (Pvt.), 108
GLAZIER
John N. (Pvt.), 158
GLEASON
A. J. (Sgt.), 114
Andrew J. (Sgt.-Maj.), 114
George W. (Pvt.), 147
GLEIGH
G. (Pvt.), 150
GLENN
Alexander E., 102, 532, 556, 560
A. S., 563
Charles S., 161
George (Pvt.), 146
John A. (Corp.), 133
R. S. (Pvt.), 129
William (Pvt.), 140
GLENTZER
John, 278
GLEWER
Lucy, 307
GLICK
------, 204
Ann Williams, 412
Caleb (Pvt.), 134
Daniel, 351, 353
David, 279
Delilah, 354
Eliza, 352, 354
Enos, 354
Jemima, 354
Jesse, 354
Judith, 393
Lucinda, 354
Maria, 354
Mary, 351, 354, 476
Monroe, 354
Monroe (Pvt.), 146
Nancy, 275
Philip, 199
Solomon, 354
William (Pvt.), 122
GLISNER
Casper (Pvt.), 138
GLOCK
Ritze, 560-561
GLOVER
Clark, 496
Elijah (Capt.), 161, 163
G. (Pvt.), 148
J. (Pvt.), 147
James (Cpl.), 153
GOALEY
H. T. (Pvt.), 151
J. H. (Pvt.), 151
N. (Pvt.), 151
GOBLE
Dr., 380
Frank, 371, 372-373
Mary, 372-373
Thomas H. (Pvt.), 142
GOCHENOUER
Daniel (Pvt.), 127
GOCHENOUR
Barbara, 328
Elzy, 328
George, 328
Henry, 328
Henry (Pvt.), 155
Isaac, 328
James (Pvt.), 121
Joseph, 327-328
L., 323
Littleton, 328
Margaret Beavers, 328
Maria Smith, 328
Sarah A., 328
GODARD
John H. (Pvt.), 158
Thos. B., 188
GODDARD
Charles C. (Gen.), 71
Eliza, 312-313
GODFREY
Thomas (Pvt.), 125
T. J., 550
GODICK
Powell (Pvt.), 144
GODMAN
Isabella C., 584
GODOWN
John, 495
Joseph W. (Pvt.), 129
GODWIN
George W. (Pvt.), 156
GOEBEL
Henry (Pvt.), 108
GOECHES
Nicholas, 364
GOEHL
Earharell (2nd Lt.), 122
GOETCHIUS
Elizabeth, 364
Henry, 364
GOETSCHIUS
J. W., 435
John, 363, 364
Nancy, 364
GOETSCHIUS
J. W., 435
GOFF
Abner, 414
J. W., 209
Lucas B. (Corp.), 152
Thomas (Corp.), 156
GOLDEN
Isaac (Pvt.), 120
GOLDRICK
William (Dr.), 465
GOLDSMITH
J. (Pvt.), 152
J. E., 387
John E. (Pvt.), 144
Joseph J. (Pvt.), 144
Sarah Jane, 471, 483
Thomas (Pvt.), 133
William H. H. (Pvt.), 133
GOLERS
James (Pvt.), 108
GOLLIDAY
Reuben, 364, 383, 435
GONESSE

GONESSE continued
Father, 522
GONIG
Ezra (Rev.), 188
Jonathan (Dr.), 188
GOOD
James (Pvt.), 144
John (Rev.), 449
Stephen, 472
William A. (Pvt.), 118
William E. (Pvt.), 159
GOODALE
Cynthia,
D. L., 561, 562
Lincoln, 45, 52, 556
L. (Dr.), 365, 508
Lincoln (Dr.), 242, 528, 542, 583
Nathan, 583
Samuel (Dr.), 579
GOODE
George H. (Pvt.), 159
James L., 161
Solon L., 161
GOODERN
William J. (Pvt.), 141
GOODHART
William, 411
GOODHU
Walters (Pvt.), 145
GOODLANDER
Charles W. (Pvt.), 146
GOODMAN
-----, 52
Harvey (Pvt.), 135
Rev., 527
C., 489
GOODNOUGH
Teacher, 394
GOODRICH
A. (Pvt.), 154
Aaron, 396-397
Austin, 520
Bela, 470
Corella, 396-397
Deacon, 422
Elias (Rev.), 396-397
Emerson, 396-397, 458
G. B., 432
George, 414, 435, 436
Hannah II, 396-397
Henry, 414
Horace, 396-397
J. G. (Pvt.), 148
Jane, 396-397
John, 422
John W., 415
John, Jr., 426
Joseph, 414
Levi, 422, 470
Lucy, 396-397
Sarah, 396-397
GOODSALL
David (Pvt.), 142
GOODSON
Eliza Huffman, 434
G., 434
Robert W. (Pvt.), 154
William J. (Pvt.), 154
GOODSPEED
L. R., 473, 475, 478, 479
GOODSPEED continued
Rebecca, 471
GOODWIN
Edw. P. (Rev.), 525
G. W. (Pvt.), 151
Oliver J. (Pvt.), 143
GOODY
J., 295
GOOLEY
Catharine, 312
G. W., 315
George W., 312, 313, 314
H. T., 313, 315
Henry T. (Pvt.), 156
Jacob, 312, 314
Jacob (Pvt.), 135
Jacob (Mrs.), 314
Joseph H. (Corp.), 156
Nation (Pvt.), 128
W. W. (Pvt.), 151
GOON
Jacob (Pvt.), 136
GOOSEMAN
Abraham M. (Pvt.), 128
GOOSMAN
A. J., 348
GORDON
G. W. (Pvt.), 148
George W. (Pvt.), 121
James M. (Pvt.), 143
Jene B. (Pvt.), 145
R. S. (Pvt.), 151
GORDY
W. N. (Pvt.), 151
GORMAN
George W. (Corp.), 120
GORNERSON
I. C. (Pvt.), 149
GORRELL
Levi (Pvt.), 121
GOSARD
Jeptha (Pvt.), 146
GOSS
Alanson (Pvt.), 145
George (Pvt.), 117
James M. (Musician), 153
GOTEHALL
John (Pvt.), 154
GOTSCHALL
J. (Pvt.), 150
GOULD
James M. (Pvt.), 143
Marcellus (Pvt.), 141
William (Pvt.), 145, 146
GOWANS
James E. (Corp.), 121
GRAFFIS
M. (Pvt.), 150
GRAHAM
Christopher M., 119, 121
Delos R. (Pvt.), 117
Henry R. (Pvt.), 142
James (Pvt.), 115
John (Pvt.), 144
Michael, 146
Robert H. (Pvt.), 142
Samuel, 467
Samuel (Pvt.), 127
Sarah, 383, 467
Sarah J., 467
Susan, 467
GRAHAM continued
T. L., 333
Thomas, 129, 155, 383, 384
William (Lt.), 155
William, 373, 374, 467, 544
William B., 467
William G., 467
GRAINER
Coonrad, 383
GRAKUN
George W. (Pvt.), 118
GRAMLICH
Sebastian (Pvt.), 108
GRAMMAR
Julius E., 520
GRAND-GIRARD
H. E., 200, 209
GRANDSTAFF
Harriet, 275
John (Pvt.), 156
GRANEL
Archer, 209
GRANGER
Ebenezer, 71
Gordon (Gen.), 554-555
J. (Pvt.), 111
John (Pvt.), 121
J. S. (Pvt.), 147
GRANNIS
Charles (Pvt.), 137
GRANOR
M. (Pvt.), 146
GRANT
A. G., 387, 388
Alexander, 384
Catharine, 384
George H., 387
Henry (Corp.), 126
Henry I. (Pvt.), 159
Hugh, Sr., 387
Hugh, 102, 384, 388
Isabella, 384
J., 202
Jacob, 125, 384
John, 196-197
John (Pvt.), 122
Leah, 384
Lucy, 384
Mary, 384
Nancy, 384
Nelson (Pvt.), 144
R. D., 387
Robert (Pvt.), 140
Sarah A., 489
Thomas R. (Pvt.), 157
Tillie N., 409
U. S. (Gen.), 118, 134, 161, 186-187, 242, 376, 540, 571
GRAPHIS
McE. (Pvt.), 151
McElvene (Corp.), 155
GRASEMAN
Augustus W. (Pvt.), 121
GRASGHOLZ
Adolph, 142
GRASHNER
Conrad (Pvt.), 144
GRASS
Mahlon (Pvt.), 128
GRASSMAN

GRASSMAN continued
Frank (Corp.), 131
GRATE
G. S. (Pvt.), 147
Gustavus S. (Pvt.), 137, 153
Joseph, 45-46, 364, 508
GRAU
Jacob, 46
GRAUL
Frederick (Pvt.), 157
GRAUMLICH
Levi, 280
GRAUMAN
William (Pvt.), 142
GRAVE
John, 414
GRAVENNA
Dr., 465
GRAVES
David (Pvt.), 159
GRAVINA
C. F. (Pvt.), 147
Edwin, 472
Harriet, 472
GRAVIND
F. E. (Pvt.), 152
GRAVING
F. E. (Pvt.), 149
GRAY
-----, 312
A. H., 495
Alfred, 442
Anna, 444
Asa (Dr.), 580
Benjamin, 312
Benjamin J., 560
Caleb (Pvt.), 133
D. S., 562, 570
Daniel (Pvt.), 112
David, 313
Elizabeth, 312
Harriet, 442
Isaac, 312
Isaac H. (Pvt.), 127
Jacob, 377
James C., 496
James P. (Pvt.), 159
Jedediah, 442
Jesse, 312
J. F. (Pvt.), 149
J. T. (Corp.), 154
John, 303
John (Pvt.), 140
Jonas B. (Pvt.), 145
Littleton, 144
Mary, 457
Nancy, 311
P. (Pvt.), 112
Percy, 312
Philomel, 325
Philomel M., 393
Rachel, 495
Rachel M., 442
Rebecca, 442
S. B. (Pvt.), 112
Theodosia, 442
Thomas, 442, 457
Unettie, 312
Walter (Mrs.), 252
William, 381
GRAY continued
William (Pvt.), 146
William E. (Corp.), 152
Zebulan, 392
GRAYBILL
John S. (Pvt.), 157
GRAYHAM
William (Corp.), 108
GREATHOUSE
Daniel (Capt.), 26, 28
GREEN
-----, 288, 324, 513, 592
Aaron, 466
Allen W. (Pvt.), 123
Ann, 344
Andrew, (Pvt.), 139
Arnold, 591
Bazil (Pvt.), 133
Charles, 313
Charles (Pvt.), 131
Charlotte Cromwell, 364
Daniel (Pvt.), 126
David (Pvt.), 118
David J. (Pvt.), 133
David L. (Pvt.), 132
Edward (Pvt.), 125
Elizabeth, 466
Elizabeth Jane, 466
Frederick W. (Corp.), 125
Gilbert, 461, 465, 466
Gilbert Merwin, 466
Gen., 174
H. F. (Rev.), 296
Henry (Pvt.), 140
Henry F. (Pvt.), 139
I. N. (Corp.), 155
Ira (Pvt.), 138
Isaac (Pvt.), 129
Isah (Pvt.), 155
Jacob (Pvt.), 117
J.S.B., 162
James, 47, 100
John, 138, 157, 159
John C. (Pvt.), 132
John Covert, 466
John L. (Rev.), 296
John L., 44, 47, 92, 99, 184, 215, 450
John L. (Judge), 79, 99
L. E., 364
Lewis (Pvt.), 159
M. M., 60, 61, 76
Marion Elizabeth, 450
Martin (Pvt.), 110
Mary, 89
Mary B., 466
Mary O., 466
Melinda, 466
Milton, 422
Robert, 466
Robert S. (Pvt.), 145
Sarah, 319, 466
Sarah Jane, 466
Susan, 461, 466, 466-467
William H. (Pvt.), 142
GREENE
Charles (Pvt.), 156
G. (Pvt.), 149
John, 208
GREENFIELD
T. (Pvt.), 151
GREENFIELD continued
Thomas (Pvt.), 126
GREENLEAF
John, 45, 46, 533, 562
S. K., 189
GREENOUGH
Andrew, 301
Jacob, 266, 301, 303
Jacob, Jr., 301
John Roger, 266
Phillip, 301
GREENWADE
Nancy, 326
GREENWOOD
John, 524
Lawrence (Pvt.), 130
Miles, 549
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
William B. (Pvt.), 130
GREER
Henry, 204
James (Pvt.), 125
Thomas (Pvt.), 125
GREGG
------, 213
G. W., 199
George W., 104, 180-181
Israel, 199
Mary F., 186-187
N. S., 53, 182, Illus. 186-187, 199, 200, 201
Noah H., 246
Romeo (2nd Lt.), 141
Thomas, 279
GREGORY
David, 44
Elnathan (Pvt.), 107
Moses, 101
Walter (Pvt.), 158
GREINER
Charles (Pvt.), 138
John, 161, 557
GREINES
John, 548
GREN
M. M., 174
GRENNELL
N. P. (Pvt.), 149
GRENO
James, 178
GREY
-----, 188
GRIDER
John (Pvt.), 145
GRIEST
Isaac M., 48
GRIFFE
R. (Pvt.), 112
GRIFFETH
M. (Pvt.), 147
GRIFFEY
Mary, 320
GRIFFIN
Thomas, 518
GRIFFITH
-----, 441
Eleanor, 441
Henry C. (Pvt.), 145
James M. (Sgt.), 127
John W., 451-452
Justice, 328

GRIFFITH continued
Thomas W. (Corp.), 138
Timothy, 541
W. R. (Prof.), 475
W. R. (Mrs.), 475
Walter (Rev.), 296
William, 481
GRIFFY
Alfred (Pvt.), 125
James A. (Pvt.), 125
GRIGGS
John C., 348
GRIGSBY
A. J., 209
S. L., 209
Stephen L., 99, 104
Stephen, 100
GRIM
William (Pvt.), 128
GRIMES
Abraham A. (Pvt.), 153
Alex, 576
B. A. (Pvt.), 151
Ephraim (Pvt.), 107
F. M., 313
Frank M., 313
Henry (Pvt.), 141
J. (Pvt.), 151
Jefferson (Pvt.), 156
John W., 315
Thomas (Pvt.), 145, 159
J. Wesley, 313
William, 313
William J., 156, 313
GRIMKE
Frederick, 44, 47, 64, 92
Judge, 64
GRIN
Tilghman, 496
GRINDLE
Ellen W., 307
John G., 307
Louisa, 307
Rachel Ann, 307, Illus. 308-309
William H. (Pvt.), 125
GRINER
E. P., 280
John (Pvt.), 114
W. A., 280
William A., 206
GRINNELL
Celia, 471
N. W. (Pvt.), 152
GRINOLD
Russell, 383
GRISSMER
Casper, 232
Eve, 232
Rebecca, 232
GRISWOLD
------, 406
Chester, 423, 428, 431
Chestes, 556
Christine, 486
Cicero P., 469
Ezra, 65, 419, 425, 426, 428, 431, 432
Ezra (Jr.), 160, 163, 428
Fredus N., 469
G. H., 101, 427
GRISWOLD continued
George H., 426-427
Isaac, 468, 476, 486
M. M. (Pvt.), 146
Mila Thompson, Illus. 426-427
Roselpha, 379
Salina, 473
S. T. (Rev.), 189
Ursilla, 469
W. F., 426-427
Wayne (Dr.), 164, 194, 210-211, 216, 217
Wayne, 199
Whiting, 210-211
GROCE
Allen, 276
Amos, 276, 301
Bentley, 208, 233, 234
Catharine, 276
Caroline, 233
Charles, 233
Charles E., 181, 182, 209, 234
Charles Erastus, 233
Elizabeth, 233
Ellen Gillett, 233
Elizabeth Ann, 233
Elizabeth Ellen, 233
George, 276
Jennie, 233, 266-267
John, 185, 199, 202, 203, 214, 232-233, 233, 276
John H. (1st Lt.), 116
John H. (Capt.), 234
Lydia, 233
Mahlon, 233
Margaret, 233
Mary Elizabeth, 233
Matilda Y., 234
GROFF
Edward B. (Pvt.), 141
GROFT
Michael (Pvt.), 153
GROOM
Benjamin (Pvt.), 124
B. F. (Pvt.), 151
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 159
D. R., 448
Daniel, 443
Elizabeth, 443
Ezekiel, 351, 394, 442, 443, 447, 448, 450
Harmon, 492
J. C., 192
John C., 47, 88
Mary, 448
Minerva, 88
Noah, 355
Rhoda, 394, 442, 443, 447
Sarah, 448
Susannah, 88
Thomas, 442, 448
GROOMS
Benjamin (Pvt.), 129, 140
James W. (Pvt.), 138
GROOVER
John (Pvt.), 144
GROSSMAN
Charles (Pvt.), 144
GROVE
GROVE continued
-----, 327
Abraham, 294
Hannah Ettie, 323
Hannah Lackey, 294
Henry, 294
John, 155, 294
Polly, 294
Sarah, 294
Thomas (Pvt.), 118
William, 294
William (Sgt.), 133
GROVENBURG
Joseph (Pvt.), 131
GROVER
Elijah, 518
James L. (Rev.), 521
J. L. (Rev.), 518, 519
John B. (Pvt.), 146
GROVES
Adam (Pvt.), 155
Daniel C. (Pvt.), 110
Isaac (Pvt.), 110
William D. (Pvt.), 146
GROWE
John (Pvt.), 159
GRUBB
Jacob, 44, 45, 46, 361, 364, 507, 516, 586
Peter, 516
GRUBBS
John D. (Pvt.), 135
GRUBS
William H. (Sgt.), 131
GRUMMET
Emory (Pvt.), 149
GRUNDY
-----, 324
GRUVER
W. H. (Pvt.), 150
GUARD
B. F. (Dr.), 443, 452
Elizabeth, 443, 452
GUCHES
J. M., 495
GUCKERT
Frank (Pvt.), 122
GUERIN
G. F. (Dr.), 516
L. T. (Pvt.), 148
W. E., 94
Z. F., 414, 567
Z. F. (Pvt.), 148
Z. T., 414
Z. F. (Dr.), 103
GUESMAN
O. H. (Pvt.), 150
GUGENHAM
John (Pvt.), 110
GUGLE
George, 146
GUIBERSON
John, 355
GUIHNANN
Jean (Pvt.), 122
GUILFORD
N., 37
GUILLOUME
John (Corp.), 124
GUISINGER
Elias (Pvt.), 143

GUITION
John (Pvt.), 141
GUITNER
George W. (Pvt.), 130
Henry A. (2nd Class), 119
J. E. (Prof.), 476
John E., 481
Joseph, 404, 408
P. E., 477, 479
GULICH
William, 46
GULICK
Jesse, 18
Seymour, 338
T. N., 514
GUMMERE
Alonzo E. (Pvt.), 138
GUMP
Henry (Pvt.), 135
GUNDERMAN
J. H., 489
John A. (Pvt.), 130
GUNDERSHEIMER
Joseph, 527
GUNDRY
M. M. (Mrs.), 367
R., 567
Richard (Dr.), 367
GUNDY
Jacob, 435
Simon C. (Sgt.), 157
GUNN
Hiram (Pvt.), 146
GURLEY
J. (Rev.), 296
James, 414
GURO
Adam (Pvt.), 108
GUSEMAN
A. J. (Pvt.), 150
GUSHART
Susannah, 393
GUSMAN
A. J., 328-329
Cornelia M. Stiverson, 328-329
GUSTAVUS
Adolphus, 259
GUSTIN
Joseph, 125
GUTHIG
George (Pvt.), 141
GUTHRIE
J. B. (Lieut.), 565
James C. (Pvt.), 131
H. W., 314
GUTSHALL
D. (Pvt.), 148
GUTTERDAM
Casper (Pvt.), 117
GUY
Nelson (Pvt.), 143
Mary, 306
GWYNN
William, 207
GWYNNE
Louisa, 528
Matilda, 530, 592
Thomas (Corp.), 111
GORDON
------, 391
GORDON continued
Dr., 430
Becky, 407
Elizabeth, 371
G. W., 389
George (Pvt.), 158
J. P., 400
James R. (Pvt.), 134
Oliver S. (Corp.), 123
Theo. P., 577, 578
GORDY
George, 294
Sarah, 355
GORELEY
Samuel, 348
GORLEY
------, 325
GORMAN
F., 567
James (Pvt.), 114
Thomas (Pvt.), 108, 114
Thomas (Rev.), 525
GORMLEY
Daniel (Pvt.), 138
GORNES
Lorrence, 208
GORRELL
Calvin (Pvt.), 136
Lawrence (Pvt.), 123
GORTON
Ira M., 556
Joseph, 364
GORTNER
-----, 255
GOSS
Michael (Pvt.), 128
GOSSIN
George W. (Pvt.), 135
GOTTSHALL
David (Pvt.), 131
GOUGAR
Margaret Ann, 251
Mary, 267
Sarah, 304
William, 304
GOULD
C. M., 452
Charles (Pvt.), 129
Emerson (Pvt.), 131
Harvey, 396
John, 419
William B. (Dr.), 270
GOVENCH
Russell (Corp.), 126
GRAANGE
R. W. (Rev.), 521
GRABIL
Elias (Pvt.), 140
Jacob, 330
Josiah, 330
William, 330
GRACE
Benjamin, 373
Catharine, 373
Isaac, 373, 491
William (Pvt.), 133
GRAELL
Charles G. (Pvt.), 135
GRAFF
Casper (Pvt.), 123 GRAFTON
GRAFTON continued
Douty, 562
GRAHAM
------, 570
A. J., 465
A. T. (Elder), 463
Amos, 467
Ann, 467
Anna, 467
Anna M., 467
Clark (Corp.), 131
David, 462, 467
David L., 467
Elizabeth Ellen, 233
Emily, 439
Francis J. (Pvt.), 135
George, 313, 462, 463, 467
George B. (Pvt.), 131
George Mc B., 467
George (Mrs.), 313
Isaac, 467
James, 45-46, 364, 462, 463, 467
James (Pvt.), 134
James McLean, 467
James W. (Pvt.), 131
Jemima, 383
John, 45-46, 383, 467
John (Pvt.), 138
Joseph P. (Pvt.), 136
Leonard, 489
Levi, 467
Margaret, 462, 467
Maria, 467
Mary, 467
Mary Elizabeth, 374
Mary G., 439
Mary McBurney, 467
Matilda D., 467
Nancy, 221, 462, 467

H.

HAAS
A. S. (Pvt.), 112
Harriet, 280
H. D. (Mrs.), 280
John, 274
John C., 280
HABARATH
Andrew (Corp.), 122
HABESTICH
Rudolph (Pvt.), 142
HACKET
George, 208
HACKETT
David (Pvt.), 138
Thomas (Pvt.), 112
HADDOCK
William, 125
HADLEY
Aaron C., 45
Chester (Pvt.), 145
Uriah (Pvt.), 157
HAEFER
William (Pvt.), 114
HAEFY
John (Pvt.), 120
HAERRING
Jacob, 514
HAFER

HAFER continued
Charles N. (Pvt.), 157
HAFEY
Joseph (Pvt.), 133
Morris (Pvt.), 155
William (Pvt.), 155
HAFFEY
J. (Pvt.), 152
M. (Pvt.), 152
HAGAR
John, 472
Luther P., 472
HAGER
A. S., 496
John, 278, 279
L. P. (Corp.), 152
Peter, 278
HAGERTY
Catharine, 96
George J., 96
James (Pvt.), 107
Lorenzo D., 96
HAGGARD
T. C. (Pvt.), 151
Thomas (Pvt.), 157
Thomas C. (Pvt.), 156
HAGN
L. P. (Pvt.), 149
HAHN
Gustav (Pvt.), 108
John (Pvt.), 145
Lewis (Pvt.), 145
HAIGLER
William M. (Pvt.), 128
HAIN
J. B. (Pvt.), 149
John B. (Corp.), 159
HAINE
J. (Pvt.), 150
HAINES
Amos, 386
D. (Pvt.), 148
Jacob, 386
Joel, 386
John, 89, 386, 390, 433, 435
John (Pvt.), 154
Joseph, 386
Levi, 386
Joseph (Pvt.), 121
Peter (Pvt.), 121
Nancy, 386
Robert, 386
Samuel, 386
Sarah Chenowith, 433
Susan, 386
William, 386
HAINESH
David (Pvt.), 138
HAINS
Henry, 364
Silas Q. (Pvt.), 126
HAIRE
John H., 396
HAIRMOUNT
George B. (Corp.), 135
HAITHCOCK
A., 209
HALAMS
Madison (Pvt.), 130
HALBERT
HALBERT continued
George (Pvt.), 145
HALDERMAN
Davis, 566, 567
George, 252
HALDY
C. W., 365
F., 365
Louisa, 365
HALE
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 143
Elizabeth, 311, 312
John, Jr., 312
John, Sr., 312
Isaac (Pvt.), 110
John L. (Pvt.), 142
Margaret, 312
Mary, 312
Nancy, 312
Sarah, 312
Shepard, 312
Thomas, 312
HALFIELD
Abraham (Pvt.), 143
Felix R. (Pvt.), 135
HALFHILL
R. (Pvt.), 111
HALL
------, 255, 562
Amelia, 321
Anthony, 283, 284, 285, 286, 335
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 124
Caleb, 48
Cass A. (Pvt.), 145
Christian, 351
Christine, 351, 352
David, 351, 357
E. (Pvt.), 112
Edd (Pvt.), 150
E. L., 297
Edward L., 321
Elizabeth, 283
E. P. (Rev.), 184
F. (Pvt.), 111
George, 18
G. W. (Pvt.), 150
Hannah, 351
Henry, 351
H. H., 424-425
Isaac, 351
J. B., 562
J. F. (Pvt.), 111
J. H. (Pvt.), 154
J. L. (Pvt.), 112
James, 283, 285
Jeremiah, 99
John, 283
John (Pvt.), 107, 122
John A. (Pvt,), 144
John S., 477, 557, 564, 590
John W. (Pvt.), 144
Joseph, 283, 285
Josephus H. (Pvt.), 143
Louis, 351
Lucy, 283
Lyman (Pvt.), 146
Margaret, 351
Martha, 283, 319, 351
Mary, 283, 351
Mary A., 321
HALL continued
Mary E., 321
Nancy, 283
Nelson H. (Pvt.), 153
Peter, 351
Philip, 351
Polly, 351
Rachel, 283, 285
Robert, 205
Sally, 285
Samuel, 351
Sanford (Pvt.), 159
Sarah Robison, 327
Susannah, 351, 353
Tacy A., 321
Thomas, 255
Thomas F. (Pvt.), 126
T. J. (Pvt.), 151
Tracy Amanda, 311
W. A., 320
William (Ensign), 107
William, 283, 474
William H., 100
William H. (Pvt.), 118
W. P. (Pvt.), 150
HALLEDAY
William (Corp.), 132
HALLER
Henry, 54
William H. (Corp.), 115
HALLIDAY
L. (Pvt.), 151
William C. (Rev.), 269
HALLONI
Thomas F. (Pvt.), 143
HALLSTEAD
Jacobus (Pvt.), 108
John, Jr. (Pvt.), 108
HALM
M., 518, 519
Michael, 573
Michael (Lt.), 156
HALSEY
J. B., 560
Mary, 90
W. F. (Rev.), 184
HALSTEAD
Abraham, 166
Eliza Terwilliger, 294, 296
Elliot, 47, 166
John, 511
Nancy Alkire, 293
HAM
Michael (Pvt.), 129, 142
HAMAN
M. (Pvt.), 148
HAMANN
Catherine, 542-543
HAMBLETON
Edith, 93
Samuel, 93
Thomas C., 93
HAMILTON
-----, 321
Alanson (Corp.), 136
Dr.-----, 494
Elizabeth, 336
Elizabeth Reed, 498
George O., 93
Hans, 192
Hugh (Pvt.), 158

HAMILTON continued
I. N. (Dr.), 93
Isaac, 314
Israel, 97
James, 111
J. F. (Rev.), 516
John W.L. (Pvt.), 135
J. W., 525, 566, 567
Margaret, 93
Matthew P., 143
R. (Pvt.), 148
Rev., 349
S., 184
Samuel (Rev.), 517
Thomas, 181, 351, 498
Thomas H. (Pvt.), 126, 158
Wallace (Pvt.), 157
William, 314, 497, 498
William (Pvt.), 134, 135
HAMLER
James (Pvt.), 141
Jacob, 390
HAMLEY
Marie A., 69
HAMLIN
E. S., 164
Isaac (Pvt.), 143
John (Pvt.), 140
Leonidas L., 479
Nathaniel, 498
L. L. (Rev.), 517 HAMLINE
L. L., 428
HAMM
John (Dr.), 551
Michael (Pvt.), 121
HAMMEL
George, 48, 199, 185
H. (Pvt.), 148
John N. (Pvt.), 124
Jonathan (Pvt.), 140
Levi, 209
L. M., 208
Madison (Pvt.), 134
M. (Dr.), 217
HAMMER
Charles, 303
HAMMON
John, 430
John (Pvt.), 131
HAMMOND
Harvey, 430
Henry, 395
Judge, 62
Leander (Pvt.), 159
Lucian H., 481
Michael W. (2nd Lt.), 142
HAMMONS
William (Pvt.), 108
HAMNER
Ralph (Pvt.), 143
HAMPSON
Lewis W. (Pvt.), 158
HANA
W. O. (Pvt.), 147
HANAWALT
-----, 255
George N. (1st Class), 119
HANAWAY
P. (Pvt.), 150
HANBY
HANBY continued
S. M., 479
William, 166, 475, 480
Wm. (Bishop), 413
HANCE
Jacob S. (Pvt.), 123
Wilson (Sgt. Maj.), 152
HANCOCK
E. T., 525
John, 584
HAND
Frederick (Pvt.), 140
Thomas (Rev.), 296
HANDIBOE
A. H., 162
HANDLEN
John O. (Pvt.), 115
HANDLEY
David, 499
Elizabeth Wallace, 499
HANDY
Elizabeth Ray, 237
Naomi, 97
William (Rev.), 448
HANE
Betsey, 302
HANEL
H. (Pvt.), 152
HANEY
George A., 315, 316
HANGER
A. C. (Rev.), 296
HANGS
John D. (Pvt.), 138
HANING
G. (Pvt.), 151
HANISTINE
Christopher (Pvt.), 126
HANK
Henry (Pvt.), 154
John, 527
HANKEY
Rev., 256
HANKINS
Nathaniel (Pvt.), 144
Norville R. (Pvt.), 144
HANKINSON
Daniel, 355
G. (Pvt.), 150, 151
George (Pvt.), 155
Robert (Pvt.), 127
HANKS
John (Pvt.), 136
HANLAN
Edith, 93
HANLEY
-----, 312
Thomas C. (Pvt.), 143
William (Rev.), 186, 187
HANN
Hilton (Pvt.), 142
Jacob (Pvt.), 144
Levi (Pvt.), 142
Maurice H. (Pvt.), 142
Phillip, 157
HANNA
John, 165
William C. (Sgt.), 158
HANNAGAN
Hugh, 192, 270, 277
HANNER
HANNER continued
Robert W. (Pvt.), 138
HANNIG
-----, 204
HANNIGER
Samuel, 53
HANNUM
J. C., 453
HANOVER
Elder, 463
HANRAM
Daniel (Pvt.), 139
HANS
William H. (Pvt.), 146
HANSEL
John Martin (Pvt.), 108
HANSHEN
L. (Pvt.), 148
HANSON
A. (Pvt.), 150
J. (Pvt.), 150
Jane, 466
John (Capt.), 461, 467
Miles, 466
Samuel, 292
Wm. D. (Rev.), 520
HANTZ
Charles (Pvt.), 109
HAPP
Charles W. (Pvt.), 145
HARBACH
A. A. (Capt.), 565
HARBAGE
Joseph (Pvt.), 130
HARBAUGH
S. G., 548
HARBERSON
John (Pvt.), 107
HARBINE
Mary, 443
HARBOR
T. J. (Sgt.), 155
HARCOURT
H. (Pvt.), 112
Henry (Pvt.), 112
HARD
Aaron, 407
Ansel, 407
Jemima, 407
Louis, 414
Melissa, 407
Myron, 407
HARDEN
Markus (Pvt.), 122
HARDESTA
George (Pvt.), 114
HARDESTY
E. G., 465
James (Pvt.), 127
John (Pvt.), 135
HARDING
Charles M. (Pvt.), 139
George W. (Pvt.), 159
J. W. (Pvt.), 150
Nathaniel (Pvt.), 123
Seth, 511, 512
W. A. (Pvt.), 150
William W. (Pvt.), 138
Winfield S. (Pvt.), 138
HARDLINE
John (Corp.), 138

HARDMAN
Peter (Pvt.), 110
Peter (Capt.), 143
HARDSOCK
Elias, 353
HARDY
Albert R. (Pvt.), 137
A. K., 111
J., 577
Jackson, 386
Samuel, 36
HARE
Abraham (Elder), 463
B. F., 499
Daniel (Pvt.), 131
Jacob, 499, 529
John (Pvt.), 138
Louisa, 183
HARGRAVE
-----, 416-417
HARGRO
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 159
HARGUS
Samuel, 187
HARING
Jacob (1st. Lt.), 122
HARKER
William (Pvt.), 134
HARKINS
Michael (Pvt.), 125
HARKLEROAD
Lewis (Pvt.), 114
HARKNESS
L. G., 538
HARLECHER
Uriah H. (Corp.), 130
HARLOCKER
Peter, 55
HARLOR
Augustus (Pvt.), 118
Joseph (Pvt.), 118
Thomas, 331
Thomas (Pvt.), 155
William, 323, 328
Wm. (Corp.), 155
HARLOW
-----, 495
Alonzo, 132
HARMAN
Charles (Pvt.), 112
Erastus W. (Pvt.), 114
John, 54
HARMON
Catharine, 302
David, 252
Dorothy Gift, 302
Elizabeth, 252, 441
George, 302
H., 527
Jacob, 302
John, 252, 302
Leah, 252
Lewis (Pvt.), 120
Rachel, 252
Samuel, 252, 302
Susan, 252
Thomas, 256, 441
HARMOUNT
A. L., 295
C. T., 295
Emmett (Pvt.), 115
HARMOUNT continued
George (Pvt.), 154
John, 294
Mento, 297
HARNER
Henry L. (Pvt.), 131
HARNESS
-----, 283
HARNEY
John (Pvt.), 157
HARNISH
William H. (Pvt.), 138
HAROFF
Peter, 408
HARPER
Anna, 394
Benjamin (Pvt.), 115
Charles, 388
Charles D. (Pvt.), 144
Daniel, 326
Edward M. (Pvt.), 144
George, 494
John, 97
John L., 548
Robert Goodloe, 98
Samuel, 378, 380
Thomas V. (Pvt.), 156
William, 448
HARPET
William (Pvt.), 138
HARPSTER
Mary, 302
HARR
John F. (Pvt.), 110
HARRAS
Fredr. (Pvt.), 108
John (Pvt.), 108
HARRELL
John (Pvt.), 135
Nathan (Pvt.), 135
HARREMON
John L. (Pvt.), 135
Levi (Pvt.), 135
HARRIGAN
Daniel (Pvt.), 126
HARRIMAN
Aaron (Dr.), 290, 315
Edward, 313
G. G. (Rev.), 189
HARRINGTON
-----, 423
Catharine, 383
Daniel, 361, 383
Delilah, 383
D. W., 426
Elijah (Pvt.), 157
George (Pvt.), 141
George (Sgt.), 159
Mary, 383
Nicholas, 383
Peter, 383
W. A., 331
HARRIS
Abraham, 443
Alfred (Pvt.), 159
Ananias, 416
B. W., 297
C. (Pvt.), 148
C. K., 524
D. (Pvt.), 148
David (Rev.), 516
HARRIS continued
Dimmick, 390-391
E. (Pvt.), 147
Edwin, 485, 489
Eleanor, 311, 316
George, 416
H. (Pvt.), 149
Harvey D. (Pvt.), 143
Henry (Pvt.), 154
J. (Rev.), 296
James (Rev.), 526
J. N., 150, 154
John (Rev.), 524
Joseph, 518
Joseph E. (Pvt.), 143
J. T., 206
L. (Pvt.), 147
L. (Musician), 153
Malcom (Pvt.), 126
Margaret, 311
Mary, 297
Nathaniel, 485, 487, 488
S. D. (Col.), 164
Sophronia, 487
Stephen, 484
Thomas (Pvt.), 141
T. J. (Mrs.), 531
W. (Pvt.), 148
William, 373
William M. (Pvt.), 121
HARRISON
-----, 93, 96, 99, 584
Alexander, 393
Andrew, 313
Anna, 363
Charles, 363
Charles E. (Pvt.), 138
Gen., 106, 108, 351, 370, 581
George, 270
John, 312-313
Helen Sisco, 363
Isaac, 469, 474
J., 414
James, 363
James (Rev.), 463
Jane, 270
Jennie (Mrs.), 474
J. R. (Pvt.), 148
Mahlon T. (Pvt.), 131
Martha, 363
Peter (Pvt.), 124
R. A., 99
Richard A., 86
Richard B. (Pvt.), 132
R. D. (Mrs.), 531
Samuel (Pvt.), 117
Sarah, 363
William, 55, 101, 363, 394, 556
William (Gen.), 23, 24, 508, 509, 542-543
William H., 393
William H. (Pvt.), 153, 159
William Henry (Pres.), 161
HARROD
Mills (Rev.), 527
HARROLD
Mary, 275
HARSCHL
L. (Pvt.), 148
HARSH

HARSH continued
Eli, Illus. 322-323, 323, 330, 331, 332
Martin L. (Pvt.), 140
HARSHA
J. (Pvt.), 149
James, 48, 197, 204, 209
HARST
Cornelius, 388
M. L., 388
HART
Allen (Pvt.), 142
Candace S., 470
Gideon W., 470
Henry C., 470
Isaac (Pvt.), 145
J. A. (Pvt.), 149
James A. (1st Sgt.), 154
John, 496
Mary P., 470
Moses, 492
Nancy, 470
Sarah, 470
Sarah L., 470
Theodore, 365
Thomas (Pvt.), 141
Wm. (Mrs.), 251
HARTER
David (Pvt.), 136
Elizabeth, 409
George (Pvt.), 133
Hiram (Pvt.), 112, 133
Jacob (Pvt.), 136
John (Pvt.), 107
Mathias (Corp.), 136
HARTMAN
Ellen, 345
Frederick (Pvt.), 107
George (Pvt.), 135
John (Pvt.), 139
John E. (Pvt.), 143
William, 324
HARTMEYER
-----, 200
G. Jr. (Pvt.), 149
G. A., 204
Charles F., 48
HARTNEDY
M. A. (Rev.), 523
HARTOLD
Daniel (Pvt.), 118
HARTRIDGE
Congressman, 593
HARTRING
Anton (Pvt.), 142
HARTS
R. E., 544
HARTSHA
A. (Pvt.), 151
HARTUNG
Carl W.A. (Pvt.), 143
HARTWELL
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 144
Oliver, 395
HARTZ
-----, 206
J. (Pvt.), 147
HARTZELL
Hiram (Pvt.), 129
HARVEY
Elihu P. (Pvt.), 130
HARVEY continued
Enoch (Rev.), 296
George B., 46, 513, 517
H., 209
John, 435
Mary A. (Mrs.), 438
R. L. (Rev.), 309
S. (Pvt.), 112
W. T., 184, 255
HARWARD
Alvin, 486, 492
Arthur, 492
Carrie E., 492
Charles, 486, 492
Christine Wilking, 486, 492
Ellen, 486, 492
Emma May, 492
George P., 486, 488, 492
Thomas, 486, 492
HARWELL
-----, 97, 162
HARWOOD
Benjamin, 486
Eleanor, 488
Eliza, 486, 488
Harriet, 486
Henry (Pvt.), 138
John, 486
T. J. (Pvt.), 148
HASE
John (Pvt.), 123
Samuel (Pvt.), 123
HASELTON
J. P. (Pvt.), 149
HASIE
Adam (Pvt.), 157
HASKINS
Ebenezer (Pvt.), 138
HASLEM
Richard (Pvt.), 157
HASS
Daniel, 301-303
HASSELTINE
J.M.C., 559
HASSELTON
-----, 183
Jacob, 312
Samuel, 312
HASSENPFLUG
-----, 204
HASSON
Patrick (1st Lt.), 565
HASTINGS
C. (Pvt.), 151
Charles (Pvt.), 155
Elias (Pvt.), 119, 121
R. (Rev.), 187
W. (Pvt.), 151
William, 413
HASWELL
-----, 202, 204
A. J., 199
J., 188
J. R. (Pvt.), 149
HATCH
Mary, 238
HATFIELD
A. A., 309
Albert A., 119
Arthur, 308
Elijah, 308
HATFIELD continued
John D., 306
John W., 307-308
John W. (Pvt.), 155
J. W. (Pvt.), 151
Maria B., 306
Margaret, 306-307
Seth, 306-307
Susanna F., 307
HATHAWAY
A. (Pvt.), 155
C. H. (Pvt.), 146
Elizabeth, 448
George, 475
George (Rev.), 331
Nancy, 448
P. (Pvt.), 114
Rev., 388
HATTAN
John W. (Pvt.), 143
HATTON
Mary A., 385
William, 496
HAUCK
Soloman (Pvt.), 158
HAUFF
J. M. (Musician), 153
HAUGHEY
Henry (Pvt.), 143
HAUGHN
George (Pvt.), 121
Hannah, 386
HAUK
H. (Pvt.), 150
HAUSE
Albert (Pvt.), 135
HAVELEY
Adam, 444
HAVEN
John (Capt.), 592
Jesse D. (Pvt.), 112
HAVENFIELD
Henry L. (Pvt.), 131
HAVENS
Elias (Pvt.), 111
Elizabeth, 399
Henry, 399
John, 399, 400
Louisa Baughman, 411
Margaret E., 400
Mary, 400
Rhoda Ann Alberry, 399
Sarah J. Doren, 399
Theodore F. (Pvt.), 138
Thomas, 399, 411
William, 398, 399
HAVEY
John (Pvt.), 158
HAVSEHOLDER
P. M. (Pvt.), 154
HAWES
Rev., 525
HAWK
John (Pvt.), 121
HAWKEN
Henry, 484
HAWKES
Chas. H. (Dr.), 199, 216
James A., 53
J. A., 182, 199
J. A. (Col.), 49

HAWKES continued
Dr., 180
W. B., 566, 567
William B. (Dr.), 49, 264
HAWKINS
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 131
Elizabeth, 498
W. (Pvt.), 152
HAWKS
Franklin M. (Pvt.), 126
George W. (Pvt.), 159
Isaac, 251
Joseph, 251
Wm. (Dr.), 251
Wm. B., 533
HAWMER
R. (Pvt.), 149
HAWN
A. (Pvt.), 112
HAWS
A. S. (Pvt.), 111
HAWTHORN
John, 499
HAWTHORNE
Susannah Earhart, 499
HAY
David (Pvt.), 136
Diana, 437
George, 436
Francis (Dr.), 389
John (1st Lt.), 150
Jonathan, 280
Rebecca (Mrs.), 280
Richard, 437
Sarah, 482
HAYCOOK
Joseph (Pvt.), 145
HAYDEN
-----, 417
Alice DeForrest, 82
Charles (Mrs.), 531
David, 415
David M. (Sgt.), 129
Elizabeth, 415
George N. (Pvt.), 146
George W. (Adj.), 152
Hannah, 415
Isaac, 415, 417
Jeremiah, 415
Joab, 369, 372
John, 415
Joseph, 415
Nancy, 415
P., 487
Peter, 61, 82, 561, 577
Rachel, 415
Sarah, 415
Thomas (Pvt.), 112
William B., 415, 562, 563
William H. (Col.), 146 HAYES
-----, 571, 572
Albert C. (Pvt.), 115
------(Gov.), 225, 227, 243, 367, 592
Gen., 260
James, 268
John, 202
Joseph, 285
Joseph F. (Pvt.), 111
J. T., 560
HAYES continued
J. T. (Pvt.), 146
John W. (Pvt.), 146
R. B. (Pres.), 234, 571, 572
R. B., 161
Robert, 205
R. B. (Col.), 416-417
Rutherford B. (Gov.), 540, 557
W. F. (Rev.), 523
HAYMI
Marcus A. (Sgt.), 157
HAYNES
Carey T. (Pvt.), 156
Catharine, 253
Edward D. (Pvt.), 146
Elizabeth, 325
HAYNIE
John W. (1st Class), 119
Marcus N. (3rd Class), 119
Melissa A., 481
HAYS
-----, 174
Ann W., 311, 317
Brice, 372
Bruce, 314
Brunette, 317
Charles, 311, 316
Charles W., 317
Cora, 317
Cynthia Kirk, 317
Edward, 434
Eleanor, 311
Eleanor R. A., 317
Elisha, 370
Elizabeth, 317
Ellen, 317
Emma Alice, 317
E. Z., 165, 207
George, 314, 392
George C., 296
George L. (Lt.), 136
George W., 317
Hannah W., 317
Henry (Pvt.), 121
Hiram F. (Pvt.), 111
Jesse, 295, 296, 311, Illus. 316, 317
Jessie Lee, 317
J. M., 220
Jesse McIlvain, 317
John (Pvt.), 121, 136
Joseph, 47, 295, 296, 307-308, 311, 312-313, 316
Joseph H., 317
Joseph M., 164
L. (Pvt.), 111
Lee, 317
Levi, 310, 311, 316, 317, 419
M. (Pvt.), 147
Mariam H., 317
Mariam W., 317
Martha Ann, 317
Mary, 311, 312, 317
Mary F., 317
Mellin (Sgt.), 132
M. S., 435
Nancy, 311, 317, 374
Norris, 311, 316, 317
P. C. (Col.), 165
HAYS continued
R. (Pvt.), 111
Rachel, 311, 317
Richard, 371
Robert, 185
Samuel, 311, 317
Sarah, 312-313, 317, 433, 438
Sarah E., 311
Thomas (Corp.), 159
Thomas (Pvt.), 159
Wesley, 297, 314
Wesley (Pvt.), 125
Wesley H., 317
Wesley W., 314
W. B., 380
W. H., 297
William, 477
William B., 374
William C. (Capt.), 136
Zilpha Ann, 317
HAYWARD
Elijah, 548
HAYWOOD
Harrison, 332
J. (Prof.), 476
J. (Pvt.), 149
John, 477, 478, 481
Lucy Ann Lane, 332
HAZLETT
Calvin (Sgt.), 136
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 131
HEAD
Frank, 204
HEADINGTON
D.,
Jane, 471
HEADLEY
A. C., 453, 585, 593
David, 398
Harriet Ranney, 412
Jacob (Pvt.), 107
Mary Havens, 398, 399
Simon, 342, 347
William, 398, 400, 401
HEADLY
Smith (Corp.), 107
HEAFY
John E. (Pvt.), 158
HEAGLER
Ellis H. (Capt.), 152
E. H. (Rev.), 519
HEALEY
Thomas, 332
HEARD
George H. (Pvt.), 159
HEARN
John W. (Pvt.), 135
HEART
David (Pvt.), 143
HEARY
James (Pvt.), 144
HEASTON
Samuel (Pvt.), 119
HEATH
Amos, 438
Asahel, 48
Asahel, Jr., 100
Daniel, 381
Elizabeth, 434
John (Pvt.), 146
Jonathon, 286

HEATH continued
Louisa, 425
Margaret, 433, 438
Rebecca Tanner, 288
Richard, 435
Uriah, 414, 424
Uriah (Rev.), 381, 428, 476
Urich, 407
HEATON
Amos W. (Pvt.), 118
Lionidas C. (Capt.), 158
Rebecca, 363
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 118
HEBERTON
Edw. P. (Rev.), 515
HEBVERING
W. L. (Pvt.), 151
HECK
Jacob (Pvt.), 158
HECKEWELDER
------, 24
HECKMAN
-----, 281
Alba (Pvt.), 135
Lewis, 280
Louis, 279
Lewis (Pvt.), 122
HEDDAEUS
Christian (Rev.), 526
HEDDON
Edward, 47
HEDGES
-----, 200, 257
Andrew, 279
Ann, 345
Ann D., 277
Cynthia, 274, 277
Cyrus, 276, 277, 284
Diana T., 310
Ezra, 275, 276, 280, 348
Henry (Pvt.), 159
Henry F. (Judge), 7
H. N. (Judge), 97, Illus. 190-191, 192
H. N. Sr., 99, 166, 199
H. N. Jr., 48, 199, 206, 207
Henry N., 49, 165-166, 181, 201, 348
Jabes, 342
Jabez, 273, 274, 279
Jacob, 104
Jacob D., 208
James, 268
James H., 255
James H. (1st Lt.), 115
Jane, 277
Jennie, 197
John, 48, 274
John (Pvt.), 155
Joseph, 47, 48, 255, 268, 271, 348
Joshua, 273, 274, 280, 281, 334
Joshua (Mrs.), 274
Judge -----, 228
Julia, 274
Mary, 344
Matilda, 264
Matthias, 250
Morgan, 274
HEDGES continued
Obed, 274, 348
Obed N. (Pvt.), 155
O. N. (Pvt.), 151
Perry, 352
Phebe, 274, 275
Philip, 268
Rhoda, 274
Thomas W. (Corp.), 156
Thomas (Sgt.), 138
William, 274
HEDRICK
Joseph (Pvt.), 143
L. (Pvt.), 148
HEEBER
Andrew (1st Lt.), 117
HEENAN
Thomas (Pvt.), 155
HEES
John (Pvt.), 155
HEFFLEY
J. (Pvt.), 146
James, 451, 452
James (Mrs.), 452
James (Rev.), 449
Joseph, 407
HEFFNER
-----, 204
Abraham, 252, 253, 305
Abram, 251
A. D., 543
Catharine, 305
David, 252, 305
Eliza Ann, 305
Henry, 278
H. R., 181
Jacob, 251
Lydia, 305
Mary F., 582
Samuel T., 557
HEFLEBOWER
Add M. (Pvt.), 110
HEFLEY
Isaac, 208
HEGE
William, 125
HEGGINS
E. (Pvt.), 154
HEIDE
Charles (Pvt.), 146
HEINE
Jacob (Pvt.), 146
HEILL
Frank X. (Pvt.), 137
HEIM
D., 281
P., 281
Philip, 280, 281
W. S., 279
HEIMILLER
John (Pvt.), 139
HEIN
Patrick (Pvt.), 125
HEIMLECT
Lewis (Pvt.), 122
HEINLEIN
John G. (Pvt.), 135
HEINMILLER
Conrad, 554-555
Elizabeth, 554, 555
Henry, 514, Illus. 554-555
HEIRY
Thomas, 181
HEISCHMAN
Nicholas, 487
Theodore, 400
HEISE
Betsey H., 302
George, 302
Joseph, 300
Maria A., 300
Sarah S., 302
Simon (Pvt.), 135
HEISERMAN
Chris. (Pvt.), 156
HEISLER
John, 269
HEISEMAN
C. (Pvt.), 151
HEISTAND
Lewis W. (Pvt.), 144
Samuel (Bishop), 413 HEISTER
Joseph (Gov.), 232
HEITMANN
John H., 44
J. H., 95
HELD
Otto (Pvt.), 142
HELLER
Emil (Pvt.), 117
Henry (Pvt.), 119
John W. (Pvt.), 146
HELLRIGLE
Robert C. (Pvt.), 114
HELLWAGON
Charles B. (Pvt.), 135
HELMAN
Jacob, 233
HELMICK
George W. (Dr.), 435, 436, 437
G. W. Jr., 437
J. (Dr.), 437
Jane, 437, 438
HELMICK
Joseph (Dr.), 436
Samuel C. (Dr.), 103, 331, 332
HELMS
John S., 110
HELPMAN
Eve, 444
John, 448, 449, 451, 452, 526
Simon, 444
HELSEL
Demeris, 397
John, 396
John (Pvt.), 147, 153
Philip, 394
HELSER
Frank, 416
John, 416
Levi W., 416
HELVERING
David S. (Pvt.), 117
Harmon H. (Pvt.), 117
John W. (Pvt.), 128
William (Pvt.), 155
HELWAGEN
C. A., 105, 181, 182, 209
Edwin (Pvt.), 125
F., 295

HEMBY
Lizzie, 102
HEMELICH
George (Corp.), 137
HEMLEIN
John (Pvt.), 142
HEMPHILL
James, 284
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 129
HEMPSTEAD
Charles, 475
C. P., 470
HEMPSTED
C. B., 478
HEMPY
Catherine, 456
Elizabeth, 456
Frank E., 456
George L., 456
Ida R., 456
John C. F., 456
Lilly F., 456
Maggie Luella, 456
Nora May, 456
Olive Rebecca, 456
Oliver P., 456
Peter, 456
Rebecca, 456
S., 444
Samantha Jane, 456
Samuel A., 456
Samuel, Illus. 456, 457
Samuel (Mrs.), Illus. 456, 457
William H. (Pvt.), 120
William Henry, 456
HEMSTEGER
J. B. V. G. (Very Rev.), 522
HENAN
T. (Pvt.), 151
HENBER
H. (Pvt.), 111
HENCLE
S. S., 570
HENDALL
Elizabeth, 416
HENDERLICK
Jacob, 463
HENDERSHOT
Samuel (Pvt.), 143
HENDERSON
------, 312-313
Abner (Pvt.), 154
Abner B. (Pvt.), 141
Charles, 289
Charles W. A. (Pvt.), 159
George, 209
G. L. (Pvt.), 148
G. W., 161
H. T., 472
James (Pvt.), 128
James A., 93
John, 290
J. H., 475
John S., 380
Joseph, 375, 380
Margaret, 434
Martha, 380
Mary, 380
Mary Josephine, 93
Robert C., 380
HENDERSON continued
Samuel, 40
Thomas A. (Pvt.), 135
William, 364, 449, 551
William O., 93
HENDLEY
John B. (Pvt.), 120
HENDREN
------, 442
Daniel, 445, 456
Daniel (Mrs.), 445
Daniel C., 442
Helen, 456
Hiram, 407
Isaac, 442
Louisa, 443, 456
Mary Turner, 497
Mordecai, 442
Nancy, 456
Rebecca, 456
Robert, 442, 456
Samuel O., 442, Illus. 456, 456
Sarah Ann, 442, 456
Thomas, 456
Thomas C., 442
William, 442, 456
W. A., 456
William D., 442
William D. Sr., 449, 456
HENDRICK
William (Corp.), 127
HENDRICKS
Daniel (Pvt.), 112
HENDRICKSON
D. (Pvt.), 147
John (Pvt.), 120
HENDRIXSON
H. (Dr.), 567
Hugh (Dr.), 103
HENDRON
Elder, 463
Hiram, 44
W. T. (Pvt.), 148
HENKEL
Charles (Rev.), 394, 487
HENIG
John (Corp.), 124
HENLEY
Anna Lackey, 294
HENMAN
Benjamin, 307
Louisa C., 307
HENNESEY
Samuel (Pvt.), 153
HENNINGS
William (Pvt.), 139
HENNISS
George (Pvt.), 144
Wagoner William, 122
HENRY
Austin, 254
Christina, 413
Dr., 410
Enoch, 327, 356
Enoch (Pvt.), 126
F., 372
Frederick, 412, 413
George, 332, 412
Jacob, 412, 413
James G. (Pvt.), 138
HENRY continued
John, 206
Jos., 63
Louis, 412
Martin (Pvt.), 136
Michael (Pvt.), 142
Mike, 283
Montraville (Pvt.), 144
Nicholas, 136
Samuel, 412
Theren (Pvt.), 137
W. F., 495
HENSEL
George, 355
L. W. (Pvt.), 149
Martin, 560
William S. (Sgt.), 123
HENSELL
Frederick (Pvt.), 143
HENSINGER
John (Pvt.), 117
HENSLINE
August (Pvt.), 144
HENSON
John, 294
John (Pvt.), 125
Thomas, 294, 295
HENTHORN
John, 463
Ruth C., 463
HENTON
J. W. (Pvt.), 150
HENVON
John, 526
HERBERT
Edward, 516
William, 323
HERBIG
Thomas (Sgt.), 122
HERBST
Charles (Pvt.), 139
R. (Rev.), 526
HERBSTER
Peter, 185
HERDORFF
-----, 402
HEREL
Capt., 109
HERELRYX
George W. (Pvt.), 145
HERIE
James (Pvt.), 156
HERMAN
Christian (Pvt.), 142
John, 53
Robert (Pvt.), 138
HERMINGTON
David (Pvt.), 140
HERN
Philip (Pvt.), 158
HERNER
Joseph (Pvt.), 120
HEROD
Captain, 271
HERR
C. S., 392-393
Frank B., 390-391
John, 395
Lewis (Pvt.), 117
Peter (Pvt.), 121
Wm. (Rev.), 428, 517

HERRICK
Charles R. (Pvt.), 132
H. J., 114
HERRIGAR
Theodore (Sgt.), 132
HERRING
Jacob (Corp.), 131
HERRINGTON
George (Pvt.), 121
HERRON
Jeremiah S. (Pvt.), 123
Otho M., 207
HERROON
Edmond (Pvt.), 129
HERRMAN
August (Pvt.), 122
HERRMANN
Adolph (Corp.), 122
HERRON
John (Pvt.), 120
HERSEY
S. B. (Pvt.), 150
Thomas (Dr.), 450
HERSH
Henry H. (Pvt.), 156
HERSHISER
Rev., 255
W. A., 526
Wm. (Mrs.), 531
HERTENSTEIN
C., 589
HERTZELL
Joshua, 397
Joshua (Pvt.), 156
HERZER
H. (Rev.), 171
HESHER
Frederick (Pvt.), 158
HESLER
Levi W., 417
HESNAUER
-----, 442
HESS
-----, 408, 529
Adam, 402
Albert (Pvt.), 145
Alexander, 402
B., 379
Balser, 402
Betsey, 402
Catherine, 402
Daniel, 46, 402
Daniel (Rev.), 407
David, 402
E., 557
Eve, 402
Henry H. (Pvt.), 110
James H., 102, 401
J. H., 365
Joseph (Lt.), 124
Mary, 402
Mary A., 314
M. S., 557
Moses, 402
P., 104
Philemon, 46
Polly, 402
Rev., 527
Rosa, 197
Samuel, 402
Sarah, 402, 407
HESS continued
Susan, 402
T., 314
Thomas, 402
William (Pvt.), 135
HASSAN
John (Pvt.), 156
HESSINGER
Elias (Pvt.), 125
HESSLER
Peter (Pvt.), 145
HESTER
J., 202
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 117
HETENHOUSER
Frederick (Pvt.), 125
HETHERINGTON
George, 48
HEUSER
Conrad (Pvt.), 117
HEUSTON
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
HEUTON
J. H. (Pvt.), 150
HEWES
Joseph, 85
HEWETON
Walter (2nd Lt.), 114
HEWETT
W. T. (Pvt.), 151
HEWITT
A. P. (Pvt.), 155
D. D., 104, 309
J. Q., 331
W. T. (Corp.), 155
HEWSTAD
Isaac (Pvt.), 159
HEY
George (Pvt.), 139
HEYL
A. A. (Pvt.), 147
C., 51
Charles, 583
Christian, 44-45, 55, 513, 559, 583
E. W. (Pvt.), 147
George, 583
John, 583
John K., 536-537
Judge -----, 488
Lewis, 45, 542-543, 583
Matilda, 536-537
William D. (Pvt.), 129
HIBBENS
A., 297
HIBBS
A. G., 395, 396, 397
A. G. (Pvt.), 111
Adin G. (Capt.), 44, 46, 55, 363
Pamelia Shade, 363
HICKEY
Edward (Pvt.), 157
HICKLE
-----, 355
C. (Pvt.), 151
HICKMAN
Ann, 382
Cyril R. (Pvt.), 157
Effie, 382
Elan, 382
HICKMAN continued
Ellen, 390-391
George W. (Pvt.), 131
Jane, 382
John, 382
Joseph, 382
Joseph Shelton, 382
Mary Ann, 399
Richard (Pvt.), 130
Sarah, 382
Susannah, 382
Tacey, 382
Tobias (Pvt.), 130
William (Pvt.), 133
HICKOK
Frank, 574
Sarah, 470
HICKOX
Chas. V., 520
Frank, 562
HICKS
John F. (Pvt.), 129
Joseph (Pvt.), 131
Zachary S. (Pvt.), 123
HICKSON
William (Pvt.), 157
HIELS
Lorin, 411
Zimri, 411
HIENBARGER
Daniel (Pvt.), 138
HIFF
James H. (Pvt.), 141
Zephaniah, (Pvt.), 141
HIGEN
Adam (Pvt.), 142
HIGGANS
John W. (Pvt.), 137
HIGGINBOTHAM
Charles (Corp.), 131
HIGGINS
-----, 544
C. (Pvt.), 147
Charles W. (Pvt.), 129
Richard S. (Pvt.), 111
Samuel, 382
S. C. (Pvt.), 112
Wallace, 423
William (Pvt.), 112
HIGGY
R., 388
HIGH
Andrew (Pvt.), 136
Elias (Pvt.), 156
Fannie, 593
Hosea S., 593
J. (Corp.), 111
Jacob, 415
N. R. (Rev.), 521
HIGHLAND
John, 314
Matilda, 314
HIGHS
James (Pvt.), 115
HIGHWARDEN
Abraham (Pvt.), 159
HILBERT
Paulus (Pvt.), 122
HILBOURNE
Lincoln G., 521
HILDENBRAND

HILDENBRAND continued
George (Pvt.), 122
HILDRETH
Abel,
S., 475
HILE
P. (Pvt.), 111
HILER
Daniel (Pvt.), 133
HILL
Albert, 336
Albert (Pvt.), 118
Ally Ann, 306-307
Ann, 336
Benoni, 411
Benjamin, 306
Catharine, 336
Clemens (Pvt.), 118
Coleman, 336
Dr., 216, 336
Elizabeth, 306, 336
Ellen, 588
Frank, 336
Francis, 335, 337
Francis (Pvt.), 125
George, 335
George (Pvt.), 119
H. (Pvt.), 148
Haton (Sgt.), 112
Henry, 524
Henry (Pvt.), 153
Henry C., 336
Henry C. (Pvt.), 118
Henry H. (Pvt.), 138
Hiram, 330
Hiram (Pvt.), 155
James H. (Dr.), 427
James P. (Pvt.), 146
James W. (Pvt.), 138
John (Pvt.), 130
John E. (Pvt.), 121, 158
John F., 306
Joseph (Pvt.), 118
Joseph J., 184
J. P., 335
Joshua, 330
Kitura V., 306
Leroy, 336
Mahala, 306
Margaret, 336
Margaret Florence, 336
R. C., 333
Rev., 255
S. (Pvt.), 149
Richard A. (Pvt.), 136
Robert, 336
Roger, 411
Roswell, 106
Samuel, 178, 213, 306, 307
Sarah, 336, 337
Sarah A., 306
Thomas, 134, 336, 337
Thomas (Rev.), 186
William, 306, 330, 333, 336
William (Pvt.), 123, 135
William, Jr., 336
William (1st Lt.), 151
William, Sr., 335
W. C. (Pvt.), 151
HILLARY
L., 519
HILLER
Jacob F. (Pvt.), 108
HILLERY
John C., 331
Robert H. (Corp.), 111
HILLIARD
John M., 494
John R., 494, 495
HILLS
Jacob (Pvt.), 127
Loren, 415
R. (Dr.), 546
HILLYARD
Simon (Pvt.), 126
HILLYER
Henry (Pvt.), 131
John H. (Pvt.), 131
HILY
Thomas (Corp.), 129
HIMANN
Peter (Pvt.), 122
HIMROD
E. (Pvt.), 149
Elisha (Pvt.), 132
HINDER
William (Pvt.), 132
HINDERER
Frederick (Pvt.), 142
HINE
G. (Pvt.), 151
L. (Pvt.), 147
Lewis (Corp.), 123
Louis, 415
HINER
John, 378
HINES
Andrew, 302
Betsy, 352
Catharine, 352
Delilah, 352
Eli, 277, 352
Elias H. (Pvt.), 127
Enoch, 352
J. (Pvt.), 151
Jacob, 275, 352
Jacob (Pvt.), 108
John, 308, 552-553
Henry, Jr. (Pvt.), 108
Henry, Sr. (Pvt.), 108
John (Pvt.), 108, 127, 155
L., 415
Marion Isaac, 352
Mary, 352
Mary Alice, 552-553
Mary Callander, 552-553
O. P., 45-46
Oliver, 552-553
Oliver P., 533
Oliver Perry, 552-553
Sarah, 352
Smith (Pvt.), 131
William, 552-553
William F. (Pvt.), 131
William Thomas, 552-553
HINKLE
C. (Rev.), 559
Robert H. (Pvt.), 125
HINKLEY
Josiah (Pvt.), 107
HINMAN
E. L., 562
HINMAN continued
E. L. (Mrs.), 531
HINSON
Henry (Capt.), 252
Mason (Pvt.), 139
HINTHE
Matilde, 499
HINTON
Francis (Pvt.), 157
James W. (Corp.), 135
J. C. (Pvt.), 150
George L. (Pvt.), 115
Richard (Pvt.), 135
HINZMAN
Charles (Pvt.), 157
HIRSCH
L. H., 163
HIRSCHBERG
------, 163
Rudolph, 527
HIRST
A. C. (Rev.), 518
HIRT
A. (Pvt.), 149
HIRTMANN
Gustav (Corp.), 122
HISCHE
J. W., 452
Mary, 452
HISE
James (Pvt.), 130
HISER
Benton (Pvt.), 133
James (Pvt.), 133
John, 493
HISLER
Joseph (Pvt.), 157
HISSNER
Adam J. (Pvt.), 131
Henry (Pvt.), 131
HITCHCOCK
Henry L. (Rev.), 414, 516
Peter, 368, 591
HITCHENS
James (Pvt.), 142
HITE
J. (Pvt.), 148
HITES
George W. (Pvt.), 115
John (Pvt.), 118
HITLER
Abraham, 267, 231, 304
Caroline, 304
Catharine, 192-193, 267
Daniel, 267, 304
Eleanor, 192-193
Eli (Pvt.), 154
Eliza, 192-193
Elizabeth, 266, 267
Ellen, 304
George, 57, 192-193, 265, 304
George, Sr., 267
George W., 192-193
Hannah Ludwig, 192-193
Jacob, 17, 25, 47, 53, 57, 192-193, 265, 267, 270, 301, 304-305
John, 267
Joseph, 267
Lina, 231
Mary, 192-193, 267

HITLER continued
Nelson, 304
Peter, 267
Sarah, 267, 304
Susan, 304
Susannah, 192-193, 266, 267, 304
Susannah Gay, 192-193
Thomas Ludwig, 192-193
HITTEL
Lydia, 230
HITTEMEYER
John (Pvt.), 138
HITTLE
John, 278
HITTLER
Jacob (Pvt.), 108
HITTSHUMER
William (Pvt.), 142
HITZ
Jacob (Pvt.), 131
HIVELY
Samuel, 526
HIXON
Elijah (Corp.), 136
HOAG
James (Rev.), 373
HOAGLAND
Monroe (Pvt.), 156
HOAK
George W., 124
HOARD
Mary Jane, 376
Peyton, 376
HOBBS
Elizabeth, 329
Luther M. (Pvt.), 139
HOBILL
Isaac N. (Pvt.), 133
HOCKENMILLER
John (Pvt.), 142
HOCHSTEDER
John M. (Pvt.), 142
HODGDEN
P. (Pvt.), 146
HODGE
Albert A. (Pvt.), 132
HODGES
Joseph (Pvt.), 140
Thomas W. (Sgt.), 118
William J. (Sgt.), 127
HODSON
Henry (Pvt.), 153
HOEFFLEY
Louis (Pvt.), 144
HOEY
James, 369
HOFFER
John (Pvt.), 138
HOFFEY
W. (Pvt.), 151
HOFFHINE
Adam, 351
Amelia, 358
Elizabeth, 351
George, 351
Harriet, 358
Isaac, 351
Jacob, 351
Joseph, 351
Mary, 351
HOFFHINE continued
Sarah, 351
Susannah, 351, 352
William, 351
HOFFHINES
James (Pvt.), 126
HOFFINCHTER
George A. (Pvt.), 139
HOFFMAN
-----, 204, 590
Amos, 192-193
Anna Eve, 229, 261, 305
Charley (Pvt.), 138
Daniel, 94
Elizabeth, 411
Elizabeth L., 302
F., 202
Frank, 92
George, 302-303, 449
Henry, 411, 413
J. (Pvt.), 150
J. F., 215
Jacob, 209, 302
James F., 92
John, 302, 411
John (Pvt.), 108, 132, 146
Joseph (Rev.), 255
Julia, 94
Lucy M., 92
Lyman H. (Pvt.), 134
Mary A., 412
Mary Ann E., 302
Mary H., 302
Peter, 302-303
Peter S., 207
R. C., 92, 561, 562
Ripley C., 94
HOFMICHTER
Henry (Pvt.), 119
HOFTZGER
C. (Pvt.), 148
HOGAN
R.L.M., 208
HOGBIN
J. M. (Pvt.), 147
HOGE
B. (Pvt.), 112
Dr., 74, 323, 588
James, 70
James (Dr.), 190
James (Rev.), 436, 463
James (Rev. Dr.), 37, 64, 87, 285, 395, 449, 500, 515, 527, 528, Illus. 528-529, 533, 537, 538, 543, 544, 553, 583
HOHLMS
W., 202
HOISENGTON
John G. (Pvt.), 110
HOISINGTON
H. R. (Rev.), 182
HOLBERT
Eli P. (Corp.), 131
HOLBROOK
Dr., 395
HOLCOMB
B., 314
Lorenzo, 372
Lucinda, 421
Perlin (Pvt.), 107
HOLDEN
Edward B. (Pvt.), 111
Elizabeth, 403
HOLDERMAN
Angeline, 263
Christopher, 251
David, 53
George, 251
HOLLAND
Mathew (Pvt.), 120
S. C. (Corp.), 155
HOLLEDAY
W. C. (Rev.), 296
HOLLEN
D., 489
HOLLENBACK
Joseph, 326
Martha E., 346
HOLLIDAY
George, 465
Lewis (Pvt.), 155
HOLLINGSHEAD
Moses (Pvt.), 114
HOLLINGSWORTH
Levi (Pvt.), 131
Mary, 78
Sarah, 191
HOLLISTER
Isaac (Pvt.), 159
Juliet M., 246
HOLLOWAY
A. S., 315
James B. (Pvt.), 131
HOLLOWOOD
T. (Pvt.), 150
HOLM
Reuben (Rev.), 474
HOLMES
Abigail, 387
Alexander, 50
Anna, 417
Asa, 90
Charles A., 416
Dr., 414
F. T., 95
Gary (Pvt.), 129
Geo. W., 415
George W. (Lt.), 133
Henry (Pvt.), 146
Isaac, 343, 391
J. (Pvt.), 152
James (Pvt.), 112, 130
James A. (Pvt.), 157
Jane, 343
J. P. (Col.), 92
J. T., 90, 97, 102
Jonathan, 40, 42, 336, 343
Joseph (Col.), 90
Julia, 343, 391
Lovinia, 272
Maria, 343, 391
Mary, 343, 90
Matthias (Pvt.), 143
Nancy M., 417
Wilber C., 417
William B. (Pvt.), 141
William H. (Pvt.), 133
Willis (Pvt.), 140
HOLSON
Jacob (Pvt.), 139
HOLT

HOLT continued
C. (Pvt.), 147
C., 365
Chas., 473
Francis M. (Pvt.), 118
Hiram C. (Lt.), 159
Jackson (Corp.), 114
James (Pvt.), 130
John H. (Pvt.), 135
M., 96
Richard (Sgt.), 112
Richard C. (Corp.), 159
S. R. (Mrs.), 432
Theodore (Pvt.), 129
HOLTER
Mary M., 316
HOLTON
David L., 46
D. L., 385
John, 363
Margaret, 385
Margaret J., 385
Martha, 385
Rachel, 385
Mary E., 363
Sarah Stimmel, 363
HOMEL
John (Pvt.), 130
HOMER
Elizabeth, 319
HOMON
J. H., 496
HOMMONS
Jonathon, 493
HOMYER
George, 90
Laura C.N., 90
HONCH
John (Pvt.), 157
HONE
Henry, 469
Peter (Pvt.), 138
HONK
Amasiah (Pvt.), 136
HONKLE
Jacob (Pvt.), 156
HONSEY
Stephen G. (Pvt.), 144
HOOBER
J. H. (Cpl.), 154
HOOD
-----, 128, 129
Charles C., 50
Dr.-----, 494
F. (Pvt.), 150
Fred (Pvt.), 154
John (Pvt.), 135
Robert (Pvt.), 158
W. C., 548
HOOK
G. J. (Pvt.), 148
J. S., 400
John, 281
John W. (Pvt.), 127
Martha E., 400
HOOKEN
Capt., 514
HOOKER
General, 109
James, 541
Richard, 274
HOOPER
-----, 394
Henry (Pvt.), 128
J., 524
Jacob, 184
Lewis L. (Pvt.), 136
Jacob (Rev.), 517
James (Rev.), 464
Philip, 447
Thomas J. (Corp.), 136
HOOVER
-----, 204, 209, 442
Abraham, 385
Ann M., 275
Ann Robison, 327
Catharine, 385
Charles (Pvt.), 143
Christian, 275
E. (Pvt.), 150
Elias, 275, 357
Elizabeth, 275, 345, 385
Enoch P., 129
Enoch (Pvt.), 110
George, 279, 345, 385
G. W., 387
Henry (Pvt.), 143
Holmes H. (Pvt.), 119
Homer K. (Pvt.), 121
Homer (Pvt.), 157
J. (Pvt.), 150
Jackson, 47, 345
Jacob, 275
Jacob P. (Pvt.), 144
J. H. (Pvt.), 149
John, 385
John (Pvt.), 143
L. S. (Dr.), 388, 389
Magdalena, 345
Margaret, 385
Martha, 275
Mary, 276
Mary Magdalene, 357
Michael, 181, 182
Nannie E., 345
Nicholas, 385
Peter, 275, 276, 385
Peter (Pvt.), 142
Phebe, 355
Polly, 385
Samuel (Pvt.), 132
Sanford (Pvt.), 117
Sarah, 275
T. C., 566, 567
Trevitt, 365
William H. (Pvt.), 111, 119
HOPELTON
J.K.P. (Pvt.), 154
HOPKINS
Comfort, 233
George (Pvt.), 139
Mary, 311
Mary B., 441
Nicholas, 441
R. H., 184
Stephen, 584
W. S. (Pvt), 148
William S. (Cpl.), 154
HOPPER
Edward, 383
George (Pvt.), 157
Peter (Pvt.), 145
HOPPER continued
T. J. (Pvt.), 112
HOPWOOD
M.V.B. (Corp.), 115
HORCH
Henry (Pvt.), 142
HOREMAN
Rawson (Pvt.), 139
HORLOCKER
Anna, 412
Barbara Wagner, 412
Betsey Williams, 412
C. (Pvt.), 148
Christian, 411, 412, 414
Christopher, 415
D. (Rev.), 519
Daniel (Rev.), 412
David, 412
Elizabeth Agler, 484
George, 411
John, 412
Mary Jane, 412
Mary Myers, 412
Milo, 477
Peter, 412, 484, 487
Samuel, 412
Sarah, 412
William, 412
HORN
Daniel O. (Pvt.), 125
J. P., 478, 479
John, 251
Morris (Pvt.), 120
O. W. (Pvt.), 114
W. E., 45
William E., 500
HORNBACK
C., 295
Isaac, 295
Simon, 295
HORNBAKER
Catharine, 385
Henry, 392, 394
John, 394
HORNBECK
B. F., 297
C., 297
Claris, 308
I. C.Sr., 297
Isaac, 293
Jesse, 295
John, 312-313
Michael, 290, 293
Simon, 293, 295
HORRBAGE
William E. (Pvt.), 143
HORRIG
George, 97
Laura C.N., 97
HORSEY
Arterbridge, 319
Elizabeth, 321
Nancy, 321
Stephen, 319, 321
Stephen C. (Corp.), 135
Henry (Rev.), 495
HORTON
Valentine B., 549
HOSACK
Adam, 45, 46, 48, 364, 508, 513

HOSFORD
Daniel E., 43
HOSKINS
-----, 312
Adam, 310
Caroline, 310
D. (Pvt.), 151
Deming (Sgt.), 156
Job R., 310, 313
Job R. (Mrs.), 313
John, 310, 313
John (Pvt.), 128
John (Mrs.), 313
Joseph, 310
Josiah, 313
J. R. (Mrs.), 311
Mary A., 310
Nancy, 310
S. (Pvt.), 151
Samuel, 310, 313
Seth, 310
Susan, 310
Thomas, 310, 313
William, 310
William H. (Pvt.), 135
HOSKINSON
L. N. (Corp.), 112
HOSLER
-----, 256
Daniel, 192-193
Geo. S., 251, Illus. 252-253
John, Jr., 251
HOSSELTON
George, 313
Jacob, 213, 313, 315
Jacob (Mrs.), 313
Mary, 313
Samuel, 313
HOSSINGER
Henry D. (Pvt.), 136
HOSTER
L., 554, 562
Louis, 526
Louis (Mrs.), 590
HOSTERMAN
Albert (Pvt.), 145
HOSTTETON
Abraham, 187
HOTCHKISS
S. M., 526
HOTSTEAD
Alexander (Pvt.), 108
HOTT
A. (Pvt.), 151
Almira Robison, 327
Catharine, 345
Christena, 345
Flora C., 330
Francis (Pvt.), 117
George, 345
George, Jr., 330
George, Sr., 330
Henry, 276, 345
J. (Pvt.), 151
Jackson, 330
Jacob, 345
John H. (Pvt.), 155
Julia, 345
Julia Ann, 352
Mary A., 330
HOTT continued
Mathias, 331
Mathias (Corp.), 155
Matilda Robinson, 330
Peter, 345
W. (Pvt.), 150
William, 330, 345
William (Pvt.), 144, 154
HOUCK
William (Pvt.), 117
HOUGHN
Abraham, 387
Elizabeth, 387
Frances, 387
George, 389
Henry, 387, 389
James, 389
John, 387
Philip, 387
S. P., 387
William, 389
HOUGHTON
D. S., 477
G. L., 474
T. F., 477
HOUPT
S. D., 544
HOURIGAN
James (Pvt.), 133 HOUSE
Anna, 370-371
Charles, 370-371
E. D. (Pvt.), 147
Elitha D. (Capt.), 123
Elitha (1st Lt.), 111
George W. (Dr.), 291
Nathan, 377
Richard, 364
Ruhamah, 377
Sarah, 364
William, 364, 365
HOUSEHOLDER
P. M. (Pvt.), 150
HOUSELL
William H., 263
HOUSEMAN
Marion (Pvt.), 136
HOUSER
Alfred, 313
Mary, 315
Parley C. (Pvt.), 159
HOUSEWORTH
Nelson G. (Pvt.), 142
HOUSTON
C., 524
Caleb, 513
Cyrus W. (Mrs.), 251
Henry, 269
Leonard (Pvt.), 138
HOWARD
-----, 202, 255
Albert (Pvt.), 142
Brice, 335
C. C., 560
Caleb, 428
Curtis C., 566
David, 383
David (Pvt.), 141
Edward D., 472
Henry H., 48
Horton, 47, 383, 559
HOWARD continued
Jacob B. (Pvt.), 159
James, 372, 373
James L. (Sgt.), 120
John, 496
John W., 494
Joseph (Pvt.), 140
J. Q., 161
Joseph (Pvt.), 153
M. C., 477
Mary Rogers, 496
Mitchell C., 472
Nancy L., 472
Peter (Pvt.), 159
R. (Pvt.), 150
Richard (Pvt.), 135, 143, 155
Richard L., 566
R. L. (Dr.), 299
S. M. (Pvt.), 150
Steward (Pvt.), 143
Thomas, 204
Vichel, 100
W. (Pvt.), 150
William (Pvt.), 154, 158
HOWD
T. (Pvt.), 151
HOWE
-----, 50
Abraham, 329
A. P., 208
B. H. (Pvt.), 147
Elizabeth, 325
Hannah, 328-329
Henry, 7
Nancy, 343
Patrick G., 560
Richard, 46
Robert, 554
Samuel G. (Dr.), 543
HOWELL
Benjamin, 352
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 145
Eli (Pvt.), 120
Ellis (Pvt.), 129
James G., 449
Jesse (Pvt.), 144
S. H. (Pvt.), 149
T. N. (Judge), 167
Robert (Pvt.), 157
HOWELLS
Seth (Rev.), 417
HOWER
Amos (Pvt.), 131
Rev., 255
HOWLAND
John W. (Pvt.), 131
HOWLE
Charles A., 556
Charles A. (Pvt.), 153, 157
James N. (Pvt.), 147
HOWLETT
M. P., 554
P. L., 393
HOWSE
E. D. (Sgt.), 112
HOWSER
A. J. (Pvt.), 151
John H. (Pvt.), 143
HOY
Daniel, 412
E. (Pvt.), 154

HOY continued
Francis (Dr.), 388
J. (Pvt.), 154
Sarah, 358
HOYL
Christian, 101
HOYMAN
James, 277
HOYT
-----, 430
Joab, 425, 429
Stephen, 422
HOZLAND
Jackson (Pvt.), 135
HUBBARD
Anna, 321
F. (Pvt.), 150
George (Pvt.), 143
Herman M., 521
Herman M. (Mrs.), 528
H. M., 557, 576
John, 319, 321
John H. (Pvt.), 153
Mary, 321
Thomas, 321
W. B., 564, 576, 590
William B., 57, 206, 532
HUBBELL
James R., 43, 94
John M. (Sgt.), 111
Noble, 312
HUBBLE
Sanders V. (Pvt.), 110
HUBER
Mathias (Pvt.), 138
Peter, 48
HUBERT
John (Pvt.), 144
HUDDLE
Columbus (Pvt.), 119
Daniel (Pvt.), 126
T. M., 396
HUDDLESON
William C. (Corp.), 137
HUDSON
A., 557
David (Pvt.), 125, 133
Edward L. (Pvt.), 144
Harriet, 89
James (Pvt.), 121
James R., 344
Jane, 462
John W. (Pvt.), 123
Matthews (Pvt.), 137
Nancy, 344
Peter N., 390-391
R. (Pvt.), 148
R. D. (Pvt.), 155
Sarah, 483
William (Pvt.), 126, 131
William A. (Pvt.), 110
William D. (Sgt.), 127
HUFF
James, 131
James M. (Pvt.), 139
John, 392
John (Pvt.), 140
J. M. (Pvt.), 122, 158
Theodosia, 442
HUFFER
R., 303
HUFFINE
Joseph, 278
HUFFMAN
-----, 396
Alexander (Pvt.), 118
Andrew, 494
Barbara, 362
Catharine, 362
Christine, 317
Eliza, 434
Elizabeth, 362
Elizabeth Reel, 434
F. (Pvt.), 150
George W., 45, 362, 387, 388
Henry, 362, 398
Isaac (Pvt.), 157
Jacob, 55, 362
Jacob (Sgt.), 154
John, 362, 388, 410, 434, 557
John, Jr., 362
John D. (Pvt.), 141
John H. (Pvt.), 127
John B. (Pvt.), 130
Joseph (Pvt.), 121
Lewis (Pvt.), 112, 121
Lydia, 434
Margaret, 434
Mary, 362, 434
Minerva, 434
Nimrod, 290, 434
Oliver P. (Pvt.), 110
Peter, 362
Peter (Sgt.), 130
Philip, 434
Priscilla, 362
Rachel, 434
Rebecca White, 362
Sarah, 434
Sarah Deyo, 434
S. C. (Mrs.), 320
Sidnie, 434
Susan Dague, 398
William (Pvt.), 139
William S., 555
HUFFSTOTT
Mary, 96
HUGGETT
-----, 417
James, 416, 417
Robert (Pvt.), 138
HUGH
Anton (Pvt.), 117
N., 308
HUGHART
Henry H. (Pvt.), 125
HUGHES
A. B., 309
A. B. (Pvt.), 151
Albert (Pvt.), 136
Charles, 314
C. M. (Pvt.), 151
David (Pvt.), 107, 141
Edward (Pvt.), 122
Harriet, 442
Ivor, 93
J. (Pvt.), 148, 149
Jackson (Sgt.), 115
Jacob, 182
John, 414, 463
HUGHES continued
John (Pvt.), 114, 136
John R., 519
Joseph, 431
Joseph S., 556
J. S. (Pvt.), 149
Peter (Pvt.), 121, 141
Robert, 348
Samuel A. (Pvt.), 129
Samuel A. (Lt.), 133
S. J., 387
Walter, 446
William, 199, 235, 400
William (Pvt.), 140
W. L., 562
Whitfield, 184
HUGHEY
W. F. (Rev.),
HUGHS
G. H., 315
John R., 576
Samuel, 315
HUHN
F. F. (Pvt.), 150
HUKELS
John F., 145
HULBURD
Frank H., 556
HULBURT
H. (Rev.), 430
P., 480
HULET
James H. (Pvt.), 136
HULFEILD
Anderson G. (Corp.), 138 HULL
George B. (Pvt.), 142
General, 401, 580
Lewis O., 136
Mary Ann, 363
P. K., 104, 206, 207
Peter K. (Dr.), 216, 226, 227, 339
R. C., 576
William (Gen.), 508
HULSE
-----, 284, 288
A., 53
Aristeus, 284
Hepzibah, 284
J. R., 297
James R. (Capt.), 207
James R., 43, 53, 201, 205, 284
James R. Jr., 284
Jonas, 284
Rebecca, 284
HULVA
Catherine, 452
Josiah, 394, 396, 452
Josiah, 394
HUMBARGER
John (Pvt.), 144
HUMBLE
Elkanah, 275
HUME
Robert, 103
W. (Pvt.), 147
Wilson (Pvt.), 153
HUMES
E. J. (Rev.), 521

HUMMEL
Charles (Pvt.), 122
Madison (Dr.), 103
HUMMELL
Carl (Pvt.), 137
Lewis (Pvt.), 144
HUMPHREY
John (Pvt.), 120, 141
Lemuel G., 419
Leonard, 556
Lester, 415
Thomas (Corp.), 129
HUMPHREYS
-----, 575
Robert (Pvt.), 155
HUMPHRIES
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 153
E. W. (Rev.), 296
HUMPHRY
Mary M., 307
HUMPLMAN
Nathaniel, 278
HUNSACKER
Jerome (Pvt.), 144
HUNSICKER
Cyrus (Pvt.), 135
E., 296
Henry H. (Pvt.), 135
Jerome (Pvt.), 154
John N. (Corp.), 135
J. W. (Dr.), 295
S. G., 296, 297
HUNT
-----, 321
Andrew, 191
Caroline A., 87
Charles (Pvt.), 139
Henry (Pvt.), 139
J. T. (Pvt.), 111
John (Pvt.), 107
Samuel, 353, 355
Samuel (Pvt.), 136
Stephen B. (Pvt.), 125
William, 465, 466
HUNTER
Benjamin (Pvt.), 119
Charles, 435, 436
Charles O., 91
E. S. (Pvt.), 151
Elenathan S., 91
Elizabeth, 416
George (Pvt.), 137
H. H., 54
Hocking, 71, 91
Hocking H., 83
I. C. (Rev.), 296
Isaac, 357
Isaac C., 184
James (Pvt.), 133
J. C., 207
John, 367, 402, 546
Johnson, 48, 205, 295
Johnston, 192
Joseph, 40, 41, 418, 512, 515
Joseph (Capt.), 91
Julius (Pvt.), 159
Kate, 528, 531
Mary, 91
Moses M., 91
Samuel, 284
HUNTER continued
Samuel F. (Pvt.), 146
S. S., 383
Thomas W. (Sgt.), 157
William H. (Pvt.), 155, 159
W. H. (Pvt.), 151
HUNTINGTON
P. W., 61, 262, 533, 578
Samuel, 39, 271
HUNTLEY
George (Corp.), 129
William (Pvt.), 130
HUNTOON
J., 62
HUNTSBARGER
John (Pvt.), 110
HUNTSBERRY
Abram (Pvt.), 124
HUP
John (Pvt.), 143
HUPP
George W. (Pvt.), 134
HURD
Edward (Pvt.), 153
Thomas (Rev.), 277
T., 308
HURDLE
D. (Pvt.), 150
G. W. (Pvt.), 150
R. R. (Pvt.), 125
HURLEP
Samuel (Pvt.), 143
HURLY
Dennis (Pvt.), 143
HURST
-----, 289
Betsey, 317
Catharine, 321
David, 436
Elizabeth, 311, 284
Ellen, 343
George W. (Dr.), 294-295, 296, 297, 321
George W. (Capt.), 135
James, 166
Joseph, 47, 296
Sarah, 311
Wesley, 343
W. F., 100, 104
William F., 206
Winfield S. (Pvt.), 144
HURTT
F. W., 160
John M. (Pvt.), 121
Thomas W. (Pvt.), 121
HURZEL
Captain, 551
HUSHEY
J. (Pvt.), 147
HUSHOUR
-----, 442
HUSSY
John, 365
HUSTED
Sarah, 365
HUSTON
-----, 205
Alexander, 562, 574
Andrew, 43, 47, 52, 53, 180, 182, 200, 206, 207
Ann, 284
HUSTON continued
C. J., 465
Chas. J., 104
George G. (Pvt.), 136
Hugh, 371
James, 284, 330
Jonathan W., 283, 284
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 136
John, 374
Jonathan W., 329
Luvanne, 284
Phebe, 371
Renick (Pvt.), 117
Robert E. (Pvt.), 118
Sarah, 284
Sarah Trimmer, 330
Thomas, 104, 190, 235
HUTCHES
J. N. (Pvt.), 149, 152
Nathan, 477
HUTCHESON
George E. (Sgt.), 119, 121
Jos., 563, 576, 577
Martha, 585
Robert, 44
Ruth, 585
HUTCHINS
Robert G. (Rev.), 525, 528
Wells A., 62
HUTCHINSON
Amaziah, 369, 494
Ira, 531
Joseph (Pvt.), 138
HUTCHISON
Almira, 376
Amaziah, 376, 380
Betsey Ann, 376
Charles A., 376
Daniel, 376
George M., 376
Laura, 376
Mary, 376
Mary Jane, 376
O. S., 376
Susan Ruth, 376
Zenas, 373, 374
HUTSINPILLER
S. D. (Rev.), 519
HUTSON
Charles G., 464
Jane, 592
John (Sgt.), 126
Vincent, 464, 465
William (Pvt.), 120
HUTTENLOCKER
Chris. (Pvt.), 138
HUY
-----, 258
Elizabeth, 251
HUZZY
Mary A., 300
Joel, 300
HYATT
E. H., 567
John (Pvt.), 115
HYDE
Alvan, 522
Marie, 493
N. A. (Rev.), 525
HYME
John (Pvt.), 117

HYMROD
Albert (Pvt.), 153
HYRE
H., 431

I.

ICE
George, 355
Jacob, 353, 355
Samuel, 355
IDE
Appleton, 95
H. E. (Mrs.), 531
Harriet E. (Mrs.), 528
Katharine B., 528
Julia, 528
William, 529
W. E., 563, 574
W. S. (Pvt.), 147
Wm. S., 577
IDEN
D. L. (Pvt.), 154
M. (Pvt.), 154
IGO
A. (Pvt.), 123
I. (Pvt.), 150
IJAMS
John F. (Capt.), 156
IKE
John (Pvt.), 146
Powel (Pvt.), 108
William (Pvt.), 108
ILES
Mary, 92
IMHOFF
Rev., 255
IMLER
Joseph (Pvt.), 135
Moses, 256
IMMEL
Peter (Pvt.), 138
INDIAN
Between-the-Logs (Indian), 403
Cherokee Tom (Indian), 282
Captain Johnny (Indian), 282
INE
Paul (Corp.), 135
INERGENS
Lewis (Corp.), 137
INGALLS
Anna M., 471
Elizabeth, 470
Pearl P. (Corp.), 123
Thomas, 470, 475, 479
INGALS
George R. (Pvt.), 111
INGERSOLL
Samuel (Pvt.), 159
INGHAM
A. C., 404
Abraham, 404
George W., 404
Jordan, 404
INGLAND
Joseph, 307
Lydia R., 307
INGLE
Harry (Pvt.), 146
INGLES
INGLES continued
-----, 409
INGMAN
H. J., 308
William (Pvt.), 146
INGMIRE
Franklin (Pvt.), 143
INGRAM
Samuel F. (Pvt.), 135
INKS
John, 398, 399
INNIS
-----, 498
A. R., 405
A. R. (Pvt.), 148
Adam R., 405
Col., 498
Elias P., 405
Elizabeth, 405
G. S., 102
G. S. (Lt.Col.), 146, 148
Gustavus S. (Col.), 152, 405
Harry, 211
Henry, 403, 405, 407
Henry (Mrs.), 406
H. M. (Pvt.), 148, 153
Isabella C., 405
J. (Pvt.), 148
Jacob (Pvt.), 157
J. W. (Pvt.), 148
Louisa, 329
Mary, 405, 406
Minerva, 405
R. (Pvt.),
Robert, 406, 407
William H., 405
W. Jr., 148
INSKIP
Rachel V., 482
IRELAND
Richard F. (Pvt.), 110
Thomas (Pvt.), 110
IRISH
W. Norman (Rev.), 521
IRVIN
-----, 202
Rev., 449
J. C. (Rev.), 314
Washington (Pvt.), 156
IRVING
Palestine (Pvt.), 159
R. H., 208
IRWIN
Ann, 65
Bascom C., 140
Cyrus E. (Sgt.), 124
D. S. (Pvt.), 147
G. A. (Pvt.), 149
G. O., 154
Jane, 266-267
J. W., 208
J. W. (Pvt.), 149
John, 48, 166, 193
John C. (Pvt.), 135
Joseph (Pvt.), 142
Judge, 62, 64
Louisa, 81
Rachel, 397
W. B., 517
William (Judge), 99
IRWIN continued
Wm. W., 40, 50, 63, 81
ISANHEART
Jacob, 484
ISBAN
-----, 528
ISENBERG
-----, 373
ISLER
A. H., 161
Charles H. (Pvt.), 144

J.

JACK
James (Pvt.), 143
JACKSON
-----, 174, 202
Aaron (Pvt.), 154
A. (Gen.), 163, 257
Andrew (Pres.), 98, 161
Andrew, 586
Andrew (Pvt.), 125
Ann, 266
A. M. (Judge), 95
Charles E. (Pvt.), 136
Dick, 308
George, 178
H. A., 182
Hosea (Pvt.), 141
J., 202
J. C. (Rev.), 519
James (Pvt.), 107
John (Pvt.), 124
John (Sgt.), 125
Mary Jane Dalby, 289
S., 436
T. P. (Dr.), 416-417
William (Pvt.), 125
W. P. (Pvt.), 150
William P. (Pvt.), 143
William P. (Drummer), 154
JACOB
Henry, 416
Henry (Pvt.), 112
JACOBS
Charles (Pvt.), 146
Charles F. (Pvt.), 143
Elizabeth, 233
F. A., 500
Henry (Pvt.), 117, 125
John (Musician), 117
John (Pvt.), 141
John F., 53
Lydia Saul, 485
Martha, 25
Samuel (Rev.), 254
William (Pvt.), 146
William T. (Pvt.), 139
JACOBSON
W. S., 200
JAEGER
-----, 570
Christian F., 590, Illus. 590-591
Dorthea, 590
Edward, 590
Emma, 590
Frederick, 554, 590
Henrietta, 590
Henry, 590

JAEGER continued
Herman W., 590
Joanna, 590
H. W., 61
John Justus (Rev.), 590
Maria, 590
Matilda, 590
JAGGER
Rt.Rev. Bishop, 185
JAGGERS
Mary F., 316
JAMERSON
Frederick (Pvt.), 159
JAMES
Edward (Pvt.), 158
Frederick (Pvt.), 146
John (Pvt.), 140
John H., 544
John T. (Pvt.), 134
King 1st, 35
Samuel, 378
Thomas, 52
Vine, 321
William, 453
William (Pvt.), 112
JAMESON
Albert (Pvt.), 159
David, 40
Elizabeth, 482
Frederick T. (Pvt.), 120
J. M., 184
James W., 102
JAMIESON
Thomas (Pvt.), 120
JAMISON
-----, 255
Charles C. (Pvt.), 110
David, 44, 46, 62
John (Pvt.), 115
J. W., 478
James B., 550
James M. (Rev.), 517
James W., 470, 474
John C., 549
John S. (Pvt.), 112
Oscar H. (Pvt.), 140
Robert, 470
William, 45
JANAWAY
Samuel (Pvt.), 130
JANES
Bishop, 184
JANNEY
J. J., 61, 560, 563, 576
William (Dr.), 489
JAPISSON
James (Pvt.), 157
JAQUITH
B. F., 376
Harriet, 376
JARVIS
S., 479
W. B. (Rev.), 187
JAY
John, 241
JAYNES
------(Dr.), 324, 332
JAXON
P. (Pvt.), 148
JEE
John (Pvt.), 107
JEFFERS
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 121
H. P., 395
JEFFERSON
B. L. (Rev.), 296
Thomas, 28, 29, 36, 63, 511, 586
Thomas (Pvt.), 115
JEFFORDS
John E., 576
JEFFREY
J. A., 578
J. A. (Pvt.), 147
JEFFRIES
-----, 408
George, 47
George (Rev.), 523
J. F., 151
JEIGER
Philip, 166
JELLEFF
Alfred M. (Pvt.), 146
JENKINS
-----, 575
Andrew (Pvt.), 139
Charles H. (Pvt.), 133
Cornelia A., 73
D., 556
Francis (Pvt.), 139
Lewis, 73
Richard, 166
R. W. David, 208
Samuel (Pvt.), 130
W., 526
Warren (Rev.), 475
Warren, 163, 525
JENKS
Ahab (Rev.), 50, 474
Liberty (Pvt.), 110
JENNEY
Mary, 365
N., 436
JENNING
B. F. (Pvt.), 149
JENNINGS
-----, 408
Eli F., 46
F. H. (Rev.), 296
H. (Pvt.), 149
Mary, 285
W. H., 560
JERMAN
Thomas (Pvt.), 138
JEROLAMAN
Nicholas (Sgt. Maj.), 111
JEROME
Edward (Pvt.), 127
JESLEY
John (Pvt.), 143
JESSUP
William H. (Pvt.), 117
JESTER
Henry (Pvt.), 156
Manlove (Pvt.), 135
Samuel (Pvt.), 140
Thomas (Pvt.), 135
William (Pvt.), 132
JEWELL
Clayton G. (Capt.), 158
JEWETT
-----, 593
JEWETT continued
Betsey, Illus. 432-433
E. P., 93
Hugh J., 43, 81
Jerry O., 381
John E. (Sgt.), 111
John T., 496
Leonidas (Judge), 93
Mary G., 93
Moses (Mrs.), 528
William H., 496
W. H. (Dr.), 494, 495
JIMESON
-----, 405
JIMISON
Eliza, 377
James, 377
JINKS
David (Pvt.), 143
JOHN
Peter (Pvt.), 159
Wyatt R. (Pvt.), 115
JOHNS
A. (Pvt.), 150
Augustus, 512
David (Pvt.), 157
David W. (Pvt.), 157
H. C. (Dr.), 216
JOHNSON
-----, 378, 500
Abraham, 101
Achsa Maynard, 432-433
Adam (Gen.), 50
Annie Mitchell, 370
Arthur T. (Pvt.), 118
Cloyd (Pvt.), 157
C. W. (Pvt.), 148
Charles W. (Pvt.), 121
D. (Pvt.), 111, 149
David (Pvt.), 128, 139
Edward J. (Pvt.), 138
Elihu, 94
Eliza, 365
Elizabeth A., 300
Ezekiel (Pvt.), 125
F. M. (Pvt.), 152
Frank, 411, 415
G. (Pvt.), 148, 150
George (Pvt.), 117
George W. (Pvt.), 133
George W. (Lt.), 136
H., 556
Hanson, 518
Harlan, 373, 374
Harlan F., 370
Harvey (Pvt.), 123
H. C., 427
Henry (Pvt.), 136
H. M., 427
H. W., 427
I. R. (Pvt.), 155
Isaac, 413, 486
J., 524
James (Pvt.), 122
J. A. (Pvt.), 150
J. T., 314
J. T. (Pvt.), 149
Jacob T. (Pvt.), 114
James, 325, 327, 582
James (Pvt.), 138, 159
James J. Jr. (Pvt.), 155

JOHNSON continued
James M., 323
James W. (Pvt.), 155, 159
John G. (Pvt.), 126
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 143
Jerome (Pvt.), 144
Jos., 174
Joseph (Pvt.), 140
Joshua, 184
Levi, 300
Lewis (Pvt.), 138
Louis, 421
Margaret, 462
Mary, Illus. 432-433, 585
Mary Ann, 88
Mary E., 380
Michael, 145
Moses (Pvt.), 120
O., 103
O. (Dr.), 427
Oscar E. (Pvt.), 138
Orange, 54, 421, 422, Illus. 432-433, 585
P. C., 162
Peter, 303
Rev., 436
Roxalene, 314
Robert, 524
Samuel (Pvt.), 117, 118
S. D., 314
Sarah, 314
Sarah A., 314
Silas (Pvt.), 140
T. (Pvt.), 148
Thomas, 277, 394, 406, 520
Thomas, Jr., 392
W. (Pvt.), 114
William, 463
William (Pvt.), 144, 145, 146, 155, 156, 159
William F. (Pvt.), 159
William P. (Pvt.), 138
W. R. (Pvt.), 159
W. W., 465, 466
W. Elizabeth, 314
William T. (Surgeon), 114
JOHNSTON
-----, 534
Abraham, 465
Anna, 372-373
Edwin, 379
Eliza, 379
Eliza Jane, 397
F., 415
Francis, 395
Harlem F. (Pvt.), 153
H. F., 379
Harlan F., 372-373
Harlow G. (Sgt.), 126
James, 510, 511
James A., 154
John (Pvt.), 107, 155
John (Col.), 21, 22
J. W. (Pvt.), 151
R. R., 465
Robert (Pvt.), 108
R. R. (Pvt.), 147
S. A. (Pvt.), 155
Stephen, 550
Thomas, 44, 378, 379
W. A. (Pvt.), 123
JOHNSTON continued
Wm., 415
William, 46
JOHNSTONE
D. A. (Rev.), 187
JOICE
Ambrose (Pvt.), 107
JOINER
David (Pvt.), 141
Richard (Pvt.), 143
Vincent (Pvt.), 141
JOLIFF
John, 282
JOLLEY
Agnes, 412, 414-415
Cynthia, 412
Wm. H., 412
Wm. H. (Rev.), 414-415
JONES
-----, 331, 417, 441, 536, 537, 540, 541
-----(Dr.), 325, 427
Aaron, 251
A. F. (Pvt.), 147
Abel, 266-267, 268
Abraham, 267
Abram, 272
A. G., 105, 348
A. G. (Pvt.), 150
Alva, 266-267
Amasa (Pvt.), 146
Andrew (Pvt.), 145
Ann Amelia, 357
Ann A., 90
B. F. (Pvt.), 151
Benjamin (Pvt.), 145
Caleb, 143
Daniel W., 115
D. H. (Pvt.), 112
D. M., 100
Daniel S., 516
David, 270
David N. (Pvt.), 111
DeWitt C., 90, 97
Ebenezer (Lt.), 139
Edward (Pvt.), 130
Edward A. (Pvt.), 158
E. I. (Rev.), 519
E. M. (Mrs.), 348
E. O. (Pvt.), 147
E. Penrose, 564
E. S., 518
Erwin, 215
Esther, 96
Evan, 417
Evan R. (Rev.), 516
Francis, 417
Genevieve E., 210
George E. (Pvt.), 158
G. W., 551
George Dudley, 93
Grayson, 191
H., 94
H. (Rev.), 187
H. C., 396
H. E., 396
Henry, 475, 586
Henry (Dr.), 290
Henry (Pvt.), 140
Henry C. (Pvt.), 146
Howard E. (Dr.), 103, 210,
JONES continued
Howard E. (Dr.) continued, 217, 567
I. G., 428
Isaac, 313
Isaac (Mrs.), 313
Israel, 117
J. B. (Dr.), 216
James (Pvt.), 107, 138
James H. (Pvt.), 135
James K., 96
James R. (Pvt.), 131
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 158
Jesse (Pvt.), 115
Jesse M. (Pvt.), 115
J. K. (1st Lt.), 111
John, 417
John (Pvt.), 114, 115, 121, 129, 139, 159
John (Rev.), 516
John C., 90, 93
John H. (Pvt.), 130
John H. (Rev.), 525
John J. (Pvt.), 145
John M. (Pvt.), 139
J. N. (Pvt.), 150
John T. (Dr.), 280
J. T. (Dr.), 103
John W. (Pvt.), 145
Josephine Williams, 325
Joshua H. (1st Lt.), 114
Judge, 521
L. (Dr.), 266-267
Lamar B. (Pvt.), 120
Laura C. N., 90
Lewis E. (Rev.), 463
Lewis S. (Pvt.), 140
(Lieut.), 553
Lorenzo D. (Pvt.), 142
Marmassa (Corp.), 153
Mary, 96, 251, 586
Mary A., 531
M. S. (Pvt.), 147
Milton (Pvt.), 119
N. E. (Dr.), 103, 217
N. H., 315
N. L., 313
Noah, 277
O. S. (Pvt.), 147
R. (Pvt.), 146
R. D., 400
Rev., 407
Richard, 417
S. (Pvt.), 112
S. K., 397
Sallie, 586
Samuel F. (Sgt.), 125
Samuel P. (Pvt.), 125
Sarah H., 90, 93
T. (Pvt.), 149
T. C., 53, 99
Theodore, 512
Theodore (2nd Lt.), 118
Thomas, 228, 418
Thomas (Corp.), 138
Thomas (Pvt.), 137, 139, 143, 157
Thomas C., 100, 549
Thomas C. (Judge), 165, 234
Thomas D., 540
Thomas F. (Pvt.), 157

JONES continued
T. J. (Corp.), 124
Thomas L., 96
Thomas P., 129
Thomas W., 417
Thompson (Pvt.), 136
Toland (Dr.), 103
T. W. (Dr.), 348, 567
William (Pvt.), 141, 143
William (Rev.), 331, 347
William H. (Pvt.), 129
William S. (Pvt.), 153
Wm., 525
JORDON
------, 326
Andrew, 326
George W. (Pvt.), 139
John, 319
JOSEPH
Germain, 206, 207
G. W. (Pvt.), 147
Henry (Pvt.), 159
John T. (Pvt.), 145
JOSHUA
William E. (Pvt.), 120
JOSINSKI
-----, 204
JOSLIN
John (Pvt.), 153
JOWITT
William (Pvt.), 120
JOY
Henry B., 214
J., 149
JUCKSCH
Charles, 47
JUDDE
H. P. (Pvt.), 146
JUDKINS
Jesse P., 566
JUDSON
Charles (Pvt.), 138
H. S., 374
JUDY
Barbara, 251
Caroline, 251
Catharine, 251
Diana, 251
Elizabeth, 251
Henry, 251
Henry (Dr.), 315
J. B., 251, 256
John, 251, 472
John B., 251
John H., 477
Mary, 251
Peter, 251
Sarah, 251
William, 251
JULIAN
Aaron (Pvt.), 146
J. W., 207
Israel, 450
Norman, 104
Stephen, 250, 257
William, 257
William N., 255
William W., 256
JULIEN
N., 17, 101, 105
JULION
JULION continued
Leonard (Pvt.), 123
JULIUS
Samuel (Pvt.), 159
JUNCKER
J. D. (Father), 522
JUNGST
Henry (Pvt.), 142
JUNIGAL
Henry (Musician), 122
JUNKER
Father, 191
JUSEN
Theodore (Pvt.), 117
JUSTI
H. (Pvt.), 151
JUSTICE
Aquilla, 179, 198
Griffith, 328
H. (Pvt.), 150
James (Pvt.), 125, 134
John, 198, 213
Leonard E. (Pvt.), 118
Margaret, 198
Robert, 372
Stephen (Pvt.), 118
JUSTUS Aquilla,
Elias (Pvt.), 127
John M., 127
Margaret, 198
Stephen E. (Pvt.), 134
William, 124

K.

KAARAN
J. W. (Pvt.), 133
KACHNER
William (Pvt.), 109
KADERLEY
Mary, 365
KAEFER
John F. (Pvt.), 142
KAEREBER
George, 557
KAETZEL
Martin (Pvt.), 119
KAHLER
S., 473
KAHN
Louis, 527
KAIN
Edward (Corp.), 131
KAISER
John (Pvt.), 138
KALB
Albert (Pvt.), 154
Anna, 441
Caleb, 44
Catharine, 441
Elisha, 441
George, Jr., 441, 455
George, Sr., 440, 441, 446, 455
George, Sr. (Mrs.), 440, 441
George L. (Rev.), 190
Henry (Pvt.), 130
Isaac, 441
Jeremiah, 441, 445, Illus. 456
KALB continued
John, 440, 441, 455
J. P., 452
Mahala, 455, Illus. 456
Margaret, 441
Mary, 441, 455
Susan, 441
KALEY
Simon (Pvt.), 131
KALTEIMAN
Franklin (Pvt.), 141
KAMMERER
Louis (Corp.), 119
KAMP
George L., 230
Susannah E. Dreisbach, 230
KANARY
Martin (Pvt.), 120
KANE
Henry O. (Corp.), 153
J. O. Jr. (Pvt.), 147
Morgan (Pvt.), 145
KANFELT
Henry (Pvt.), 157
KANIER
Andrew, 184
KANNEMACHER
Henry G. (Pvt.), 142
KANODE
H., 416, 417
KAPPAS
Paul (Pvt.), 139
KARG
Bartholomew (Pvt.), 158
KARNS
William (Pvt.), 112
KARRHER
Henry, 374
KARSCHNER
John, 249, 250
KARSHNER
Margaret, 440
Samuel, 257
KARST
Charles (Pvt.), 117
Ernst (Pvt.), 142
KARTZELL
Frederick (Pvt.), 111
KASSON
James (Pvt.), 138
KATTERMAN
R. S., 489
KAUFFMAN
Florentine, 358
KAYLOR
Alban, 394
KEARNES
George (Pvt.), 140
John M. (Pvt.), 142
KEARNS
B. H., 449
Gideon, 145
KEATING
-----, 90
Thomas J., 94
KECK
Isaac (Pvt.), 140
KEELER
J. (Pvt.), 147
L. B., 474
KEEN

KEEN continued
Mary, 78
S. A. (Rev.), 519
KEENE
O. B., 396
S. A. (Rev.), 518
KEES
C. P., 451, 452
George W. (Sgt.), 156
John W., 166, 167
KEFFER
Catharine, 228
Valentine, 165, 166, 179, 185, 204, 215
Valentine (Col.), 228
KEHL
John (Pvt.), 122
KEIFER
J. W. (Maj.), 111
John H. (Pvt.), 110
KEIGER
George, 276
KEIM
John, 486
Mary, 486
Philip, 486
Susan, 486
KEISER
C., 464
J. (Pvt.), 112
John (Pvt.), 112
KEITH
John H., 47
KELCH
David B. (Pvt.), 110
J. R. (Dr.), 103, 257
William B. (Pvt.), 126
KELCHER
Cornelius (Pvt.), 121
KELL
Elizabeth, 386
S., 386
Samuel, 383
KELLAR
Jacob, 364
John, 364
KELLENBERGER
George, 268, 270
Jemima, 268
Nelson, 267, 268
KELLER
Catharine, 482
Charles F. (Pvt.), 140
Daniel, 549
Eli (Rev.), 449
Frederick (Pvt.), 138
George (Pvt.), 122
Harrison (Pvt.), 133
Jacob, 45, 508
James, 205
James (Pvt.), 138
John (Pvt.), 138
Leonard (Pvt.), 159
KELLEY
-----, 52
Alfred, 44, 50, 77-78, 535, 538
A. C., 313
D. W., 297
James (Pvt.), 111
Jerome B. (Pvt.), 142
KELLEY continued
John (Pvt.), 135, 145
John H. (Maj.), 134
Margaret, 443
Mary, 528
Maria, 77
Matthew, 277
N. B., 43, 365, 545, 556, 564
Oliver (Pvt.), 157
P. (Rev.), 517
Thomas, 445
Wm. (Rev.), Illus. 528-529
William (Pvt.), 141, 143
KELLOG
Daniel, 396
Ezra B. (Rev.), 184, 521
Ira, 423
KELLSTADT
M., 199
KELLY
A., 576
A. C., 447, 448
Alfred, 70
Anna, 96
Edward (Pvt.), 138
Hannah, 354
James (Pvt.), 117
John, 354
John (Pvt.), 110
Joseph, 354, 356
Michael (Pvt.), 137
N. B., 538
Nathan B., 556
Patrick (Pvt.), 121
William, 354
William (Pvt.), 135
KELSEY
P., 475
William, 532
KELSING
Jacob (Pvt.), 133
KELSNER
William P. (Pvt.), 126
KELSO
John, 398, 399
L. B. (Sgt.), 151
Levi B. (Sgt.), 155
KELTE
John W. (Pvt.), 125
KELTON
Miles (Pvt.), 137
KEMBLE
David (Dr.), 400
KEMERLE
Frederick (Pvt.), 142
KEMMEL
Joseph (Pvt.), 145
KEMP
Elizabeth, 312-313
W.E.R., 209
KEMPER
J. (Rev.), 463
J. R. (Rev.), 400
KENADA
William (Pvt.), 145
KENDALL
James (Rev.), 519
John F. (Rev.), 516
William, 52
KENDRICK
KENDRICK continued
Elijah (Dr.), 546
J. Mills (Rev.), 521
KENFIELD
Melvin (Pvt.), 110
KENNARD
James, 364
Melissa Deems, 364
KENNEDY
Edward, 279
Henry S., 289
John, 289, 291
Martha, 295
Mary E. Taylor, 289
M. J. (Pvt.), 112, 130
Samuel W., 289
Thomas, 548, 592
William J. (Dr.), 103, 289
William T. (Dr.), 280, 281
KENNEL
Susan Lackey, 294
KENNEY
Benjamin, 378
Chriswell, 378
Eliza Jane, 378
Hannah, 378
James, 375, 376, 378
John, 378
Miles (Pvt.), 124
KENNY
James, 407
John, 407
John (Pvt.), 112
Nancy, 407
KENT
J. (Pvt.), 150
Jesse, 213
John L. (Pvt.), 117
James (Pvt.), 154
L., 105
KENTON
Simon, 27
Simon (Major), 491
Simon (Gen.), 565
William (Pvt.), 136
KENYON
J. C., 555
D., 479
KEPHART
George P., 185
KEPLER
-----, 324, 376
Daniel (Pvt.), 146
James, 185, 290
KEPNER
Benjamin, 100, 251
KERCHIVAL
Robert, 205
KERKENDALL
J. T. (Dr.), 103
KERN
Jacob (Pvt.), 123
John (Sgt.), 108
Leroy (Pvt.), 123
Philippi (Pvt.), 122
William, 278
KERNS
Margaret, 392
W. F. (Pvt.), 150
William (Pvt.), 112
KERR

KERR continued
-----, 534
H. V., 548
James H.C. (Pvt.), 130
John, 44, 510, 511, 513, 514, 533, 556, 576, 582
John M., 582
John M. Jr., 582
Joseph, 44
Kate, 540
Mortimore C. (Corp.), 156
Samuel, 433, 435, 436
U. P., 185
KERSHNER
David, 277
J. J., 279, 281
Rebecca, 277
KESLING
George, 163
KETCHUM
Charles, 291
KETNER
Rufus (Pvt.), 120
KEYES
Horace, 47, 284
James, 48
John, Jr., 386
William, 408
KEYS
C. W., 148
Horatio, 335
John, 387
O. A. (Pvt.), 112
Polly, 345
KIBBEY
Jonah (Pvt.), 143
KIBBY
Francis (Pvt.), 133
KIDD
John (Pvt.), 143
Newton R. (Pvt.), 143
S. H., 399, 400
KIDDE
William (Pvt.), 146
KIDNEY
Amy, 296
KIDWELL
Amos, 370, 493
J. H., 496
KIENTZ
Christian (Pvt.), 142
John (Pvt.), 142
KIESEWETTER
E., 45, Illus. 586-587, 587
Francis Orthafer, 587
Frank L., 587
Henry W., 587
Joanna E., 587
Theodore E., 587
KIGER
Mary H., 393
KILBELL
Javier (Pvt.), 115
KILBOURN
Dr., 430
Ann Eliza, 421
Arias, 420
Byron, 419
Charlotte, 420
Cynthia, 419
KILBOURN continued
Eliza, 419
Elizabeth, 416
Harriet, 419
Hector, 419
James, 419, 420, 425, 426, 431
James (Col.), 419, 420, 422, 427, 428
James (Rev.), 419, 426, 431
Lemuel, 419
Lincoln, 420
Lucy, 419
Orrel, 419
Phebe, 420
KILBOURNE
Col., 160
James, 43, 44, 46, 420, 500, 556
James (Col.), 370-371, 396, 408, 513, 514
James (Lt.), 130
John, 54, 163, 520
L., 570
Lemuel, 370-371
William, 371, 372
KILBURY
A. F. (Pvt.), 149
KILE
Hiram (Pvt.), 131
Ira B. (Corp.), 119, 121
J. A. (Pvt.), 148
J. T. (Pvt.), 149
James A. (Pvt.), 154
John, 444, 447
John F., 453
John W. (Sgt.), 132
Robert A. (Pvt.), 154
R. A. (Pvt.), 149
S. E., 45
W. (Pvt.), 148
William (Corp.), 154
William (Pvt.), 139
W. W., 453
KILGORE
Daniel, 576
Elizabeth, 416
John, 416, 417
John (Mrs.), 416
Sarah, 416
Thomas, 416
KILLIAN
C. (Pvt.), 148
KILLMON
William (Pvt.), 126
KILPATRICK
-----, 376
Elizabeth, 436
KILROY
Francis J. (Pvt.), 139
KILSMILLER
Job F. (Pvt.), 155
KIMBLE
John, 273
William (Pvt.), 143
KIMBROUGH
Owen (Pvt.), 145
KIMES
-----, 257
KIMMORE
William (Pvt.), 139
KINCADE
William (Rev.), 296
KINCAID
Jonas (Pvt.), 107
Thomas, 47
KINDER
F. (Pvt.), 152
KINE
J. F., 450
KINER
Casper, 406
Henry, 406
Jacob, Jr., 406
John, 406
KING
-----, 353, 375
A., 199
Abram, 319
Acker, 188, 189, 207
Amy A., 188
Bathsheba, 587
C. A., 199
Caleb, 319, 320
C. W. (Dr.), 367
Christian, 244, 490
Ellen, 312
Flora Butler, 490
George, 63, 319
George (Mrs.), 63
George W. (Pvt.), 138
Henry (Rev.), 105, 254, 278, 388
Henry D. (Pvt.), 121
I. M. (Rev.), 475
Isaac F., 255
I. F. (Rev.), 314, 517
J., 209
J. (Pvt.), 148
Jacob, 370
James S. (Pvt.), 110
J. B., 478
J. C. (Dr.), 190
J. F. (Rev.), 519
Jemima, 319, 322
John, 587
John (Pvt.), 143, 154
John S., 209
John C. (Dr.), 218
John A. (Pvt.), 153
John J. (Pvt.), 139
John W., 63
Lucinda, 434
Matthew, 534
M. D. (Sgt.), 112
Philip, 445, 588
Polly, 372
R. T. (Pvt.), 148
Rezon, 317
Robert, 364
Rufus, 95
Samuel, 102, 493, 514
Samuel M., 493
Sarah, 319
Sarah Green, 320
Theresa, 416
Thomas, 71
William, 47, 48, 244, 319, 320, 322
William (Pvt.), 138, 141
KINGERY
Dr., 332

KINGERY continued
Rev., 449, 516
J. M. (Pvt.), 155
KINGSBURY
Andrew P., 156
KINGSLEY
Betsey, 236
J. C., 479
KINIMAN
Samuel (Pvt.), 107
KINKEAD
David, 205
KINMORE
------, 271
KINNEAR
------, 205, 336
Albert, 127
A. C. (Dr.), 348
D., 206, 207
David, 42, 47, 48, 166, 179
Daniel, 48
David (Judge), 568
Edgar F., 588
Ellen, 588
Francis, 48, 180
Josephine, 588
Josiah, 45-46, 407, 586-587, 588
Lizzie, 588
Samuel, 48, 409, 568, 588
Samuel A., 588
Sheriff, 588
William J. (Sgt.), 124
W. R., 575
William S., 588
KINNELL
Adam (Pvt.), 153
KINNEWELL
David (Pvt.), 137
KINNEY
A. (Pvt.), 151
Adam, 48
Cassius E. (Pvt.), 143
Henry, 558
John M., 565
KINNIAR
A. (Rev.), 296
KINNINGER
G., 394
KINNZEL
Ernst (Pvt.), 122
KINSELL
D. R. (Dr.), 567
KINSER
Mahala, 255
KINSMAN
D. M. (Dr.), 217, 465
D. N. (Dr.), 196, 210-211, 566, 567
Henry B. (Pvt.), 134
KINZEL
-----, 204
KIONS
Adam (Pvt.), 140
KIOUS
Catharine, 385
KIPFER
Peter (Corp.), 139
KIRBY
Moses H., 45
KIRK
KIRK continued
C. H. (Sgt.), 152
George (Pvt.), 138
J. B., 517, 518
Samuel L. (Pvt.), 157
KIRKBRIDE
E., 207
Eleazur, 48
KIRKENDALL
Archibald, 319
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 134
Henry, 319
J. T., 333, 340
John, 18, 319, 321, 322-323
Margaret, 319
Mary Ann Dungan, 322-323
Polly, 319
Sarah J., 323
W. H., 340
KIRKHAM
E. W. (Rev.), 519
William (Pvt.), 112
KIRKMAN
-----, 255
KIRKPATRIC
J. G. (Pvt.), 148
KIRKPATRICK
-----, 494
Abram, 312
A. W., 314
J. (Pvt.), 148, 152
J. W. (Pvt.), 151
James, 53, 312
John W., 314
Joseph, 312
Joseph W. (Sgt.), 156
J. W., 313, 314
W. (Pvt.), 151
KIRKWOOD
William H. (Sgt.), 124
KIRN
Philip (Pvt.), 137
KIRSHNER
Adam (Pvt.), 138
KIRTS
George, 475
KISER
Maria, 406
KISK
C. H. (Pvt.), 149
KISLER
John (Pvt.), 107
KISSAL
Andrew (Pvt.), 131
KISSEL
Jacob (Musician), 120
KISSINGER
George (Pvt.), 107
KISTLER
Betsey, 351
KITCHEN
Thomas, 321
KITSMILLER
H. (Pvt.), 150
J. F. (Pvt.), 150
KITTSMILLER
Jonathan (Pvt.), 107
KITTSWATER
Frederick (Pvt.), 157
KITZELMAN
Leonard E. (Corp.), 133
KITZMILLER
------, 400
Elizabeth, 400
KLEEMAN
M. (Pvt.), 146
Moses, 527
KLEIM
Rev., 255
KLEIN
John (Corp.), 122
Wagoner Frank, 122
KLEINDIENST
John (Pvt.), 117
KLICK
E. (Pvt.), 147
KLICKENGER
-----, 403
George, 393
John B.,393
Louisa Jane, 397
KLIE
Magdalene, 560-561
KLIMPETTER
M. D. (Pvt.), 154
KLINE
Conrad, 250
Franklin, 110
Frederick (Pvt.), 110
John A. (Corp.), 159
Jonathan H. (Pvt.), 110
KLING
Henry (Pvt.), 158
Jacob (Pvt.), 146
KLINK
John (Pvt.), 122
KLIPPART
-----, 539
KLITTICH
George (Pvt.), 158
KNADELEN
George (Pvt.), 124
KNAPP
-----, 164
Shepherd M. (Lt.), 131 KNEES
Phillip (Pvt.), 142
KNEPPER
Emanuel (Pvt.), 141
G. A., 356
KNIGHT
Betsey, 277
John, 277
John Henry, 284
Mary, 284, 310
Robert (Pvt.), 120
KNOBLOCH
John (Pvt.), 122
KNODE
Albert (Pvt.), 125
Joseph (Pvt.), 135
Oliver C. (Pvt.), 145
KNODERER
George (Corp.), 120
James K. (Pvt.), 141
KNOGI
John (Pvt.), 144
KNOWLES
D. L., 295
Julia, 321
Sarah, 321
William, 105, 321

KNOX
Archie W., 592
F. W., 592
James J., 478
John, 478
Joseph, 478, 479, 100
M. F. Stewart, 592
Ruth, 592
Ruth A., 592-593
KOAG
Peter, 451
KOBERGER
H. (Pvt.), 111, 112
KOCH
Jacob (Corp.), 117
KOCHENDOERPEN
Jacob (Pvt.), 122
KOCHER
J. N., 396
KOCK
Alfred (Pvt.), 121
KOEHL
Lewis (Pvt.), 142
KOEHLER
Conrad, 494, 495
John, 496
KOENER
John, 495
KOERNER
John M., 46
KOERSKLING
Jacob (Pvt.), 117
KOHLEPP
George (Pvt.), 108
KONIG
Adam (Pvt.), 142
KONNS
Lafayette, 312
Mary E., 312
Millie A., 312
Moses, 312
Sarah, 312
Stephen, 312
Virginia, 312
Wesley, 312
KOOKEN
Gertrude, 592-593
James, 44, 592, Illus. 592-593
James (Capt.), 592-593
KOONS
Frank (Pvt.), 158
KOONTZ
Jacob (Pvt.), 131
KOPP
Frederick (Pvt.), 119
George (Pvt.), 123
Henry (Pvt.), 111
KORINER
Charles (Pvt.), 138
KORNINN
Charles, 156
KOSTER
Louis, 542-543
KOSCIUSKO
Thaddeus, 375, 377, 378
KOUNCH
Moses (Pvt.), 135
KOUNTS
William, 105
KRAFT
KRAFT continued
John, 269
Thomas F., 269
William (Pvt.), 111, 142
KRAMER
-----, 256
Adam, 440, 448
Burton (Pvt.), 130
Christina, 412
Daniel, 414, 440, 448
David, 448
Elijah, 452
Frank (Pvt.), 142
George, 440
Henry, 449
Henry H. (Pvt.), 132
Jacob, 440
John, 440, 448, 449
Laura Walcutt, 362
Louis, 440, 450
Louis (Rev.), 255, 395
Ludwick, 448
Martin (Pvt.), 130
Michael, 440
Philip, 440
Stauffel, 440
Thomas, 362
Zachariah, 486, 487
KRAMM
Lois (Pvt.), 131
KRANER
A. D. (Pvt.), 148
Andrew D. (Pvt.), 154 KRAUSE
Conrad B. (2nd Lt.), 122
KRAY
W. A. (Pvt.), 147
KREBST
Julius (Pvt.), 142
KREITZER
Frank (Pvt.), 158
KREMER
-----, 500
KRENK
Jacob (Pvt.), 114
KRETSINGER
Isaac (Rev.), 187, 278, 475
KRIEDER
M. G. (Dr.), 49
KRIM
George, 208
KRIMMEL
-----, 200, 204
A., 202
Charles F., 196, 206
Jacob, 209
J. Z., 208
KRIMMELL
C. F., 44, 99, 100, 208
KRINE
Isaac M. (Pvt.), 145
KRING
L. (Pvt.), 148
KRINN
George, 181, 208
KRITZINGER
G. W. (Pvt.), 152
KROEMER
Ann Marie, 483
KROENER
Catharine, 476
KROMER
Andrew (Pvt.), 133
Philip, 557
KRONINGER
Betsey, 352
Catharine, 352, 356
Daniel, 352
Jacob, 352
Maria, 352
Mary, 352
Peter, 352
KRUG
George (Pvt.), 142
KRUM
D. (Pvt.), 147
G. (Pvt.), 147
Henry, 464
P. (Pvt.), 147
KRUMM
Alexander W., 94, 514
D., 573
Frank, 535
Fredericka, 94
Frederick (1st Lt.), 117
Herman (Pvt.), 142
M., 573
Martin, Sr., 94, 573
Mary Lunn, 399
KUCHLER
Charles (Pvt.), 122
KUCHULE
Jacob (Pvt.), 117
KUDER
George, 56
KUEHN
J. (Rev.), 523
KUEHNER
August, 557
KUHN
Adam (Pvt.), 154
M. (Pvt.), 148
Nicholas, 125
KUHNHEIM
Daniel (Pvt.), 142
KUHNS
Elijah (Rev.), 463
KULLENBAYER
Jacob (Pvt.), 145
KUMLER
Frank M., 451
Henry (Rev.), 255
KUMMER
J. U. (Pvt.), 149
KUNE
H. O. (Pvt.), 147
KUNKLE
George O. (Pvt.), 138
KURTZ
Jacob (Pvt.), 142
John (Pvt.), 119
W. M., 500
KUTERS
Thomas A. (Pvt.), 138
KYLE
J. (Pvt.), 149
J. (Rev.), 189
William W., 46, 55

L.

LABOLD

LABOLD continued
George (Pvt.), 114
LABOURNE
James S. (Pvt.), 139
LACEY
Anderson P. (Pvt.), 108
Anderson P. (Lt.), 131
LA CHAPELL
Francis, 556
LACHEUMAER
Gotleib (Pvt.), 142
LACHMAN
John R. (3rd Class), 119
LACKEY
Hannah, 294
Ira, 294
John, 294
Reason, 294
Richard, 294
Sanford, 294
Thomas, 294
LACKORSIN
J. (Pvt.), 152
LACLAIR
Daniel (Pvt.), 131
LACROIX
J. P. (Pvt.), 147
LACY
Robert (Pvt.), 123
Elzey (Pvt.), 123
LADD
John W., 426, 479
James H., 207, 208
LADLEY
James (Pvt.), 115
LAFERTY
Alexander, 327
LAFF
Charles W. (Pvt.), 158
LAFLER
John E. (Pvt.), 133
LAFUVERS
William (Pvt.), 110
LAIDLAW
Robert (Rev.), 515
LAIRD
John, 493
J. (Pvt.), 152
LAKE
David (Pvt.), 111
LAKIN
Benjamin (Rev.), 296, 414, 448
Daniel, 406, 407
Daniel C. (Pvt.), 153
Geo. W., 406, 407
Geo. W. (2nd Lt.), 152
G. C. (Pvt.), 148
J. Q., 414
J. Q. (Rev.), 296
J. W. P. (Pvt.),
Rebecca, 407
Samuel W., 406
Samuel W. (Sgt.), 152
LAMB
------(Dr.), 427
E., 189
Eliza, 188
Enoch, 188
Joseph L. (Pvt.), 129
Pricilla, 188
LAMBERT
-----, 392, 394
Aaron, 437
James, 353
Martha, 437
William, 383
William (Pvt.), 132
LAMOND
Thomas H. (Pvt.), 146
LAMP
John J. (Pvt.), 144
LAMPSON
Wm. K., 520
LAMSON
-----, 97
LANCASTER
Benjamin I. (Sgt.), 126
John (Pvt.), 115
LANCE
Ezra (Pvt.), 143
Isaac (Pvt.), 127
LAND
T. (Pvt.), 112
LANDAKER
J. P., 495
Nathan, 495
LANDECKER
Nathan, 495
LANDEN
D. (Pvt.), 147
Coriolanus S. (Pvt.), 143
LANDER
C. L. (Rev.), 430
Charles, 370-371
Glendora, 370-371
Samuel (Pvt.), 142
Wm. (Rev.0, 518
LANDERS
B. (Pvt.), 149
J. Q. (Pvt.), 149
S., 149
LANDES
John, 44
Joseph, 185, 205
Samuel, 55
LANDIS
Emanuel (Pvt.), 139
H. G., 566, 567
I. P. (Pvt.), 129
Mary E., 363
LANDON
C. P., 567
C. P. (Pvt.), 147
C. P. (Dr.), 103, 477, 479
Chauncey P. (Surgeon), 152
Daniel, 415, 472
G. W. H. (Dr.), 479, 480
H., 152
Hamlin (Pvt.), 130
J. D. (Pvt.), 148
Louisa, 414
Orrin, 412
W. (Pvt.), 149, 152
W. C. (Pvt.), 148
Wellington, 414
LANE
-----, 267
Amelia, 378
Benjamin F., 332
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 153
D. C., 473
LANE continued
David A., 328, 332
Daniel, 319
Elijah (Pvt.), 144
Emma J., 332
Harry H., 332
Horatio H., 332
James, 328, 332
James Edwin, 332
James M., Illus. 332-333
James (Pvt.), 127
Jo. (Gen.), 88
John D. (Pvt.), 153
John Monroe, 332
John W., 328, 332
John W. (Mrs.), 328
Joseph, 213
Lemuel (Rev.), 517
Louis, 381
Lucinda Wheeler, 332
Lucy Ann, 328, 332
Martha Wheeler, 332
Nancy, 434
Powell, 319
Sarah V., 328, 332
Solomon, 105
T. J. (Rev.), 449
William A., 332
William F., 332
William (Pvt.), 144
LANES
Dennis (Pvt.), 139
LANG
John D., 243
LANGHAM
Elias, 44
G., 271
James, 477
LANGHORN
Lemon (Pvt.), 141
LANGHRY
James, 186-187
LANGPRE
Theodore, 560
LANGSTAFF
William H. (Pvt.), 133
LANGWORTHY
James (Dr.), 451, 458, 465
LANING
Hulda, 460
Samuel Reid, 460
LANMAN
H. A., 573
H. A. (Pvt.), 147
Henry (Mrs.), 531
LANSING
Richard C., 410
LANSON
John (Pvt.), 139
LANTZ
Isaac (Pvt.), 140
LAPAIGE
A. (Pvt.), 111
LAPE
George (Pvt.), 123
Zachariah, 157
LARCON
John (Pvt.), 144
LARGE
Ryan (Pvt.), 144
LARICK

LARICK continued
Jacob, 255, 256
LARIMER
J. E. (Lt.), 114
William (Pvt.), 143
LARIMORE
E. W., 567
Joseph (Pvt.), 107
LARKINS
Joseph W. (Pvt.), 130
Thomas (Pvt.), 117
LARNARD
Thomas H. (Pvt.), 143
LARNEY
Cephas (Pvt.), 140
LARREY
James, 309
LARRICK
Wesley (Pvt.), 135
Frederick (Pvt.), 135
LARRIMER
Robert M. (Pvt.), 143
LARRIMORE
Robert, 184
LARRISON
Sylvester A. (2nd Lt.), 117
LARRY
Allen, 308
LARY
Ira (Pvt.), 142
LASARNS
D. (Pvt.), 146
LASAFF
Michael (Pvt.), 155
LASURE
Jeremiah, 489
LATHAM
Alfred, 493
Allen, 36, 371
Bela, 556
Bela H., 242
David, 496
James A. (Pvt.), 123
James P. (Pvt.), 157
Milton S., 242
Nelson A. (Sgt.), 157
William S. (Pvt.), 157
LATHERE
Frederick (Pvt.), 107
LATHHOUSE
Francis (Pvt.), 135
LATHROP
-----, 528
Ebenezer, 238
Eleazer, 238
Eliza Maria, 238
Elizabeth, 238
Emma J., 540
Ezra, 238
H. D. (Rev. Dr.), 239
Henry D., 238
Hopestill, 238
Horace (Dr.), 238
Ichabod, 238
John Mason, 238
Josiah, 238
Martin, 238
Mary Hatch, 238
Mary Mason, 237
Melatiah, 238
Philander, 238
LATHROP continued
Simon, 238
Uriah, 46, 541
Walter, 238
William H. (Sgt.), 123
LATIMER
David B. (Pvt.), 144
Elizabeth, 491
Ezekiel, 493
Harriet, 491
Horace (Pvt.), 121
John, 491
L. L., 494
Lines, 493
Naomi J., 491
Peter, 491, 495
Sallie, 491
Sarah, 492
LATOURETTE
Rev., 554
I. A. M. (Rev.), 521
LATTA
Alfred (Pvt.), 143
Elizabeth, 485, 487
Hannah, 485
James, 485
James, Jr., 485
John, 485
Martha, 485
Mary, 485
Sarah, 485
William, 485
LATTIMER
Daniel D., 493, 496
Thomas (Pvt.), 154
LATTISON
Edward I. (Pvt.), 157
LAUDERBAUGH
Frank (Pvt.), 137
LAUER
William (Pvt.), 137
LAUGHAM
Sarah Jane, 411
LAUGHFERTY
Alexander, 40
LAUGHLIN
John (Pvt.), 144
LAURENCE
H., 174
LAURENS
Henry, 241
LAUTIS
Nancy, 443
Samuel, 443
LAW
James (Pvt.), 159
LAWER
J. (Pvt.), 111
LAWLER
Timothy (Pvt.), 115
LAWRENCE
A. B., 524
H. J., 202
Henry (Gen.), 247
Hoel, 200
Hoel K., 200
Jerome B. (Pvt.), 135
Jesse (Pvt.), 131
Sarah, 368
T. (Rev.), 188
W. (Pvt.), 114
LAWRENCE continued
Wesley, 440
LAWS
J. (Rev.), 296
James, 255, 297
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 158
LAWSON
-----, 562
Albert (Pvt.), 142
Catharine, 471
David, 471
Ellen, 470
Eliza, 471
Francis, 471
H. (Pvt.), 111
Helen, 471
I. A. (Cpl.), 152
Irvin, 471
J. A. (Pvt.), 149
Jacob (Pvt.), 153
James, 470, 471
Jane, 471
John, 471
John N. (Pvt.), 120
Julia, 471
Julia Ann, 471
Orris (1st Lt.), 112
Orris A. (Capt.), 111
Peter, 471
Peter P. (Capt.), 471
Seeley Ann, 471
Susan, 471
LAWYER
-----, 371
LAY
J. S. (Corp.), 115
LAYCOCK
Mary, 343
LAYLOCK
William, 343
LAYMAN
Amos, 162
LAYTON
David (Pvt.), 142
David T. (Pvt.), 121
Frank, 321
James, 417, 465
William, 321
William R. (Pvt.), 159
LAZALIER
Jane, 385
LAZARUS
S., 527
LAZELL
Jeannette, 92
John A., 44, 163
John A. (Judge), 92
LAZELLE
John A., 160
LEACH
John, 156
John V., 435
Nancy, 312-313
Robert, 312-313
William, 309
William N. (Pvt.), 138
William S. (Pvt.), 131
LEACHMAN
George W. (Pvt.), 131
Isaac (Pvt.), 131
John (Pvt.), 131

LEADY
Amos (Pvt.), 132
David D. (Pvt.), 130 LEAF
Jacob, 380
LEAHMAN
Samuel (Pvt.), 140
LEAMON
I. (Pvt.), 147
LEAMONS
John (Pvt.), 140
LEARN
Wagoner Jefferson, 120
LEASONBEE
Joshua, 308
LEASURE
James, 314
John, 314
Sally, 314
LEATHERLIPS
Chief, 23, 24
LEAVITE
Richard H. (Cpl.), 153
LEAVITH
John (Rev.), 518
LEAVITT
R. H. (Pvt.), 147
Richard H. (Pvt.), 142
LE BARON
C. S., 105
LEBY
Amanda, 310
Mary, 314
LECHER
Lewis, 256
LECHLER
Daniel (Pvt.), 123
LECKRONE
J. (Pvt.), 147
John, 400
LEE -----, 463
Arthur, 35, 36
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 110
C. L., 295
Clinton, 297
Horace (Pvt.), 140
James H. (Pvt.), 125
Jesse (Pvt.), 110
John (Pvt.), 157
John C. (Pvt.), 138
John W. (Pvt.), 159
Joseph, 94
Joseph V., 94
Joshua (Pvt.), 154
Nancy, 94
Rhonda, 470
T. (Rev.), 519
Timothy, 46, 55, 481-482, 470, 474, 475
William H. (Pvt.), 157
LEECH
Frederick (Pvt.), 135
G. W. (Pvt.), 148
Jonas A. (Pvt.), 145
LEEDS
Carlisle (Corp.), 121
Frank G. (Sgt.), 121
Perry (Pvt.), 144
LEEDY
Levi B. (Pvt.), 158
LEEF
Henry H. (Pvt.), 132
LEEKLITER
Henry (Pvt.), 144
LEEPER
George M. (Pvt.), 138
LEERS
James (Pvt.), 133
LEES
Jonas (Pvt.), 156
LEESHITE
Augustus (Pvt.), 133
Henry (Pvt.), 133
LEESMAN
Joseph, 277
LEETE
Ralph, 549
LEFFLER
Jacob (Pvt.), 143
William (Pvt.), 145
LEGG
Amelia, 379, 378
Ann, 379
Col., 89
Elias, 379
Elijah, 378
Elizabeth, 379
Hannah, 379
J., 364
James, 46
John, 379
Josephine Cromwell, 364
Lewis, 409
Louis, 379
Lucinda, 379
Mary, 362
Minerva, 379
Nancy, 379
Orrell E., 409
Orrell E. (Mrs.), Illus. 408-409
Susan, 362, 376
Thomas, 378
LEGNER
Theodore, 157
LEHMAN
Abraham, 449
Clarinda Elizabeth, 457
Clauda E., 457
F. W. (Rev.), 526
Hulda O., 457
Isaac, 452
J. S., 449
John, 452
John R., 457
Joseph S., 457
W. F. (Rev.), 561
LEHMANN
Wm. F. (Rev.), 500
LEIB
Clara L., 481
David, 478
Elias N. (Pvt.), 145
LEIBFARTH
August (Pvt.), 142
LEIBY
-----, 205
Anna M., 297
Jacob, 214
John, 178
Joseph, 45
LEIBY continued
M. S., 294
William, 206
LEIGH
Amy, 460
Charles, 445, 460
Daniel, 445, Illus. 460
Elias, 445
Elisha, 460
Huldah, 445
John S., 445
Joseph S., 460
Louisa, 445
Margaret E., Illus. 460
Mary Amanda, 460
Mary Ann, 445
Matilda, 445
Olin, 460
Phebe, 445
Samuel, 445, 460
Watrous, 460
Zebulon S., 445
Zebulon S. (Mrs.), 445
Zabulon Stout, 460
LEIGHNER
J. M. (Pvt.), 112
LEILY
Manly S. (Pvt.), 135
LEINARD
Solomon (Pvt.), 115
LEINPINSEL
Charles (Corp.), 117
LEIRD
James M. (Pvt.), 144
William (Pvt.), 144
LEIST
A. (Corp.), 122
Amos A., 302
Amos S. (Sgt.), 127
Andrew, 301, 302, 304
Andrew (Mrs.), 302
David, 47, 179, 301, 302
Elias T., 53
Elizabeth, 302
George, 302
George (Pvt.), 135
J. P., 280
Jacob, 281, 303
Jacob (Rev.), 105, 185, 254
John, 53
John A., 302
John D., 301
Lemuel (Pvt.), 143
Philip, 278
Susanna, 302
Wesley, 303
LEITER
D. D. (Pvt.), 149
Zacheus T. (Pvt.), 142
LEITH
Henry (Pvt.), 117
LEITNER
August (Pvt.), 132
C. (Pvt.), 148
LEMAR
Samuel H. (Pvt.), 146
LE MAY
John (Pvt.), 118
LEMERSON
George B. (Pvt.), 133
LEMON

LEMON continued
F. L., 189, 190
George (Pvt.), 133
James M. (Pvt.), 117
LEMRICH
Charles (Pvt.), 144
LENAL
Robert E. (Pvt.), 133
LENKER
B. M. (Rev.), 186
William N. (Dr.), 185
LENNOX
J. C., 398
James, 538
W. H. (Pvt.), 147
LENOX
J. (Pvt.), 150
Julius (Pvt.), 143
LENT
Reuben (Pvt.), 140
LENTNER
Augustus (Pvt.), 132
LEONARD
Abner (Rev.), 449
Abraham, 319
Amos (Pvt.), 107
Anderson (Pvt.), 142
Byram, 541
Catharine, 589
David, 207, 208
F., 451
Francis M. (Pvt.), 157
Jacob A. (Sgt.), 109
John (Pvt.), 139
Louis, 589
Preserved, 425
Rebecca, 252
Theodore, 500, 564, 589
Theodore (Mrs.), Illus. 564
LEONARDSON
Hezekiah, 134
LEPPS
G. (Pvt.), 148
John (Pvt.), 120
LERCH
Jesse (Rev.), 191
Luther, 328
Sarah Gibson, 328
Thomas (Pvt.), 131
William (Pvt.), 155
William C., 323
LERMERT
Domini (Pvt.), 139
LEROY
Thomas (Pvt.), 117
LESCOE
Samuel (Pvt.), 123
LESHER
Lewis R., 260
LESGNERAUX
L. Jr. (Pvt.), 147
Leo, Jr. (Sgt.), 153
LESQUEREUX
F. A., 556
Leo., 521
LESQUEREAUX
-----, 590
LESSLIE
Robert L. (Corp.), 118
LESTER
Henry (Pvt.), 144
LESTER continued
Stephen A. (Pvt.), 138
LESTMAN
Henry, 134
LEUTHSTROM
William, 165
LEVELL
John, 48
LEVELY
Godrill, 315
LEVERING
Joseph, 236
Robert, 187
LEVITRE
J., 511
LEVY
Benedict (Pvt.), 121
Isaac, 209
LEWIN
John, 347
LEWIS
A., 524
A. J. (Pvt.), 151
A. P. (Pvt.), 147
Andrew (Gen.), 26
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 156
Charles (Col.), 26
Charles W. (Pvt.), 140
Daniel, 313, 314
Daniel (Mrs.), 312
David, 184, 255, 414
David (Rev.), 296
Dr. -----, 427
Edward (Corp.), 120
Elias, 422, 427
Eliza, 422, 424
F. V., 209
G., 552
General, 22, 25, 27
George, 432
George (Mrs.), 432
J., 313
J. Jr., 151
Jacob (Corp.), 118
James (Pvt.), 123
James M. (Lt.), 156
James (2nd Lt.), 151
Jedediah, Jr., 422
Jedediah, Sr., 420, 421, 425
John, 349
John (Pvt.), 120
John Sr. (Pvt.), 156
Josiah, 312
L. A., 389
Lewis (Pvt.), 140
Lucy, 422
Martin, 163
Martin (Pvt.), 159
M. H., 195, 196, 197
Maggie A., 197
Margaret, 311
Martin, 422
Mary, 310, 311
Milley, 311
Milton, 311
Noah, 311, 314
Peter, 311, 314
Peter (Mrs.), 314
Prudence, 422
Reason (Pvt.), 141
Rev., 388
LEWIS continued
S. M., 209
Sabra, 420, 422
Samuel, 192
Solomon, 311
T. (Pvt.), 151
Uriah (Pvt.), 159
W. R. (Pvt.), 151
W. (Rev.), 188
Walter, 311, 314
William, 44
William (Pvt.), 153
William J. (Pvt.), 139
William R. (Pvt.), 156
Winson (Pvt.), 159
Zadoc, 311, 313
Zadoc (Mrs.), 311, 313
LEZANDER
Elleck (Pvt.), 159
LIBBENBURG
Hamer (Pvt.), 142
LICKLETER
Francis (Pvt.), 130
LICKLITER
George W. (Pvt.), 136
LIDDY
William (Pvt.), 158
LIEBETRAN
August (Pvt.), 122
LIEF
Henry (Pvt.), 107
LIENDER
Frederick (Pvt.), 142
LIFF
John (Pvt.), 145
LIGET
James (Pvt.), 108
LIGHT
Joshua C. (Pvt.), 110
LIGHTBURN
General, 234
LIGHTER
J. (Pvt.), 149
LIGHTY
Adam (Pvt.), 142
LIKES
George C. (Pvt.), 136
LIKENESS
James (Pvt.), 141
LILLEY
Catherine, 393
John C. (Corp.), 120
M. C., 88
Michael (Pvt.), 112
Robert M. (Sgt.), 156
LILLIS
William L. (Pvt.), 141
LILLY
Edward (1st Sgt.), 108
Jacob, 357
James (Pvt.), 154
Michael A. (Sgt.), 120
Mitchell L. (Capt.), 120
Phillip (Pvt.), 154
Robert M. (Pvt.), 121
William R., 208
LINCK
D. F., 400
LINCOLN
Abraham (Pres.), 161, 540, 562

LINCOLN continued
Samuel (Pvt.), 111
LIND
James A. (Corp.), 131
James S. (Pvt.), 143
John H. (Pvt.), 131
LINDENBERG
Charles H., 557
Henry, 557
LINDER
August (Sgt.), 122
LINDEMAN
Louis, Illus. 560-561
Peter Ludwig, Illus. 560-561
LINDLEY
Prof., 580
LINDNER
Frederick (Pvt.), 137
LINDSAY
-----, 313
A. (Pvt.), 151
Nancy, 313
William (Corp.), 110
LINDSEY
-----, 314
David (Pvt.), 128
David E. (Pvt.), 143
Jacob, 47, 105
James (Pvt.), 128
John J., 17
John L., 208
M. V. B., 104, 208
Martha A., 192-193
Martin S. (Pvt.), 146
Martin V. B. (Lt.), 135
Rev., 463
Samuel S. (Pvt.), 114
Stephen W., 166
LINDZSEY
James E. (Pvt.), 138
LINEBAUGH
Abraham, 389
Abraham L., 389
Daniel, 389
Henry, 388, 389
Jesse, 389
John, 387, Illus. 388-389
Mary, 389
William, 389
LINGERELL
J. H. (Pvt.), 150
LINGGO
S. S. (Pvt.), 134
LINGO
Elizabeth, 306
J. W., 557
LINK
Gottleib (Pvt.), 108
LINN
D. B., 94
F. E., 418
Talfourd P., 94
W. H., 517
William, 475
LINTON
J. F., 162, 163
LINVILLE
Benjamin, 297
W. H. (Pvt.), 125
LIPPERT
Samuel (Pvt.), 133
LIPPMAN
Rev., 527
LIPPS
John (Pvt.), 119
LIRCH
Jacob (Pvt.), 131
LISCO
Daniel (Pvt.), 130
Henry F. (Pvt.), 130
Peter F. (Pvt.), 130
LISH
David (Pvt.), 131
LISK
Cornelius (Pvt.), 153
David, 319
James, 319
John, 319
T. C., 321
LISLE
Elizabeth, 397, 402, 407
George W., 397
Harvey, 392, 397
J. O., 397, 402
James, 397, 402
Jane, 397, 402
John, 361, Illus. 394-395, 396, 397, 402, 507
John (Mrs.), 394-395
Louisa Jane, 397
Margaret, 397, 402
Rebecca, 397, 402
Robert, 397, 402
Samuel Harvey, 397
LISTER
John (Pvt.), 128
LITCHFORD
Pleasant, 379
LITERY
Caroline Spangler, 434
D., 434
LITLER
Elisha, 42, 100
LITTEN
G. (Pvt.), 151
LITTLE
Benjamin, 297
Francis M. (Pvt.), 138
George, 396-397
J. P., 406
Martin Van Buren, 512
Mary, 297
N. B. (Rev.), 185
Nathaniel W., 419, 425
Nathan B. (Rev.), 255
Rev. Mr., 185
Patrick (Pvt.), 146
Van B. (Pvt.), 133
William (Pvt.), 157, 556
LITTLETON
Clara, 197
Creth (Pvt.), 159
Flora, 197
George (Pvt.), 110
J. R. (Pvt.), 149
James (Corp.), 137
John, 295
Leah, 306
Matthew, 204
Sarah, 434
William, 48, 285
LITTLEVILLE
John H. (Pvt.), 144
LITTON
Daniel, 278
George (Pvt.), 155
LIVINGSTON
-----, 463
Adaline, 499
Alexander W., 463
Angelica, 498
Edward, 44, 46, 498
Edward C. (Col.), 497, 498, 499
Elizabeth Hawkins, 498
G. (Pvt.), 154
George, 498
James, 498, 512
John, 463
Judge, 497, 498
Martha Nelson, 497, 498
Margaret, 91, 93
Robert, 498
Robert N., 500
LOBAUGH
S. (Pvt.), 112
Simon (Pvt.), 112
LOCHER
Gottleib (Pvt.), 131
LOCK
J. W., 296
Lorenzo (Pvt.), 130
LOCKWOOD
Lucretia, 368
LOEFFLER
Henry C. (Pvt.), 144
LOEHR
Joseph, 396
LOEWER
Henry, 575
LOFFER
Christian, 353, 354
Daniel, 353
Ellen, 353
Henry, 353
Jacob, 353
John, 353
Simon P., 353
Sarah, 353
Solomon, 352, 353
Susannah, 353
LOFFLAND
George (Pvt.), 135
LOFLAND
Lewis (Pvt.), 121
LOGAN
Americus (Pvt.), 137
Bennington (Pvt.), 131
Chief, 22, 23, 25, 26, 100, 322
Gen., 119
J. (Pvt.), 148
James, 231
James (Pvt.), 143
John, 462
John (Pvt.), 123, 131
John (Capt.), 26
Lewis (Pvt.), 158
LOGIE
J. H., 185
LOHRER
Jacob (1st Lt.), 119

LOHRER
Jacob (Sgt.), 158
LOMASNY
William (Pvt.), 156
LOMIA
Luigi (1st Lt.), 550
LONDENSLAGEN
William (Pvt.), 157
LONDONSLAGER
Philip (Pvt.), 158
LONG
-----, 436, 446
Conrad H. (Pvt.), 139
C. P., 453
Caroline D., 307
David (Rev.), 296
David (Pvt.), 125
Edward, 461, 464
Elias (Pvt.), 158
Elizabeth, 443, 461
Ellen A., 536-537
George, 445, 461
George (Pvt.), 139
Henry, 448, 453, 461
Henry F. (Pvt.), 118
J. H., 465
J. M. (Pvt.), 151
Jacob, 536, 537
Jacob A., 48
James, 205
James H. (Corp.), 131
James M. (Corp.), 155
Joseph H. (Pvt.), 118
J. M., 126
John, 309, 461
John (Elder), 463
John (Pvt.), 157
John W. (Pvt.), 137
Joseph, 303
Joseph (Bishop), 269
Joseph (Pvt.), 158
Kendall, 308, 309
Lydia, 461
Margaret, 461
Mary Ann, 446
Matthew, 461, 464
Major C., 307
O. (Pvt.), 150
Peter, 288, 445
Rebecca E., 469
Rebecca, 441
Richard, 443
Robert, 461
Sarah, 344
William, 45, 514
LONGABAUGH
Enos, 280
Jacob, 277
LONGBERRY
Anthony, 306
Charles, 306
Jacob (Pvt.), 135
John W. (Pvt.), 135
Leah L., 306
Margaret, 306
Mary V., 306
LONGERBONE
Abraham, 312
LONGHENRY
Henry (Pvt.), 108
John (Pvt.), 142
LONGHRY
J., Jr. (Pvt.), 150
LONGMAN
Charles, 102
LONGNECKER
Daniel (Pvt.), 156
LONGSHORE
Dr., 217
LONGSTREET
General, 132
LONGWORTH
Thomas, 274
LONGWORTHY
Emerson (Pvt.), 144
LONNEN
R. W., 521
LONTREL
Alfred M. (Rev.), 521
LOOFBURROW
Mary, 266
LOOKER
Jonathan, 464
Jonathan (Pvt.), 133, 153
Levi (Pvt.), 121
Martha, 464
Noah (Pvt.), 120
Samuel (Pvt.), 132
LOOMIS
-----, 529
B. J., 524
H. C., 517
Horace, 299, 472
Jannett, 299
Jannette, 472
Miranda, 299, 434
Orris (Mrs.), 469
Samuel, 472
LOOS
Adam (Pvt.), 142
Eli, 230
John C. (Pvt.), 154
Sophia E. Dreisbach, 230
LOPE
Emanuel (Pvt.), 146
LORAIN
Alfred (Rev.), 517
LORD
-----, 50
A. D. (Dr.), 544
A. D. (Mrs.), 528
Abner, 44, 431, 520, 556
Charles G., 521
D. A. (Dr.), 193
Eliza, 514
Temperance, 64, 73
Willis (Rev.), 515
LORING
Stadwig (Mrs.), Illus. 512-513
S. (Pvt.), 147
LORISH
Samuel (Pvt.), 136
LORRAIN
A. M. (Rev.), 297
LORRAINE
A. M., 184
LORSE
E. (Pvt.), 149
LOSIER
Marion (Pvt.), 158
LOSSHIG
LOSSHIG continued
August (Sgt.), 117
LOTSPEICH
Ralph (Rev.), 296
LOTSSPEECH
Rev., 448
LOTT
George (Rev.), 296
George V. (Pvt.), 157
G. W., 297
William H. (Pvt.), 129
LOUCKS
Christine, 449
Samuel, 449
LOUDERMAN
John, 282
LOUGH
Thomas, 525, 571
LOUGHRIDGE
Edward (Pvt.), 156
LOUGHSBAUGH
Susannah, 252
LOUIS
Frank (Pvt.), 122
Jacob, 396
LOUP
Jacob L. (Pvt.), 125
LOUSIN
J. (Pvt.), 152
LOUTHER
William (Pvt.), 107
LOUX
Charles, 348
LOVE
Cynthia, 351
John (Pvt.), 131
William H. (Corp.), 137
LOVEJOY
E. L. (Mrs.), 531
LOVELAND
Merinas M. (Pvt.), 107
William, 313
William (Mrs.), 313
LOVING
Starling, 566, 567, 569, 570
LOVRING
Jacob (Pvt.), 143
LOW
Jacob (Mrs.), 397
LOWE
Esther Ann, 307
Isiah E. (Pvt.), 159
J. K., 365
J. Wheeler, 100, 181
Jacob, 453
P., 207
Palmer, 47, 207, 297
Parmer, 215
Phebe, 385
LOWER
John (Pvt.), 145
LOWERY
B. (Pvt.), 147
LOWRIE
J. M. (Rev.), 190
LOY
Jacob, 405
M. (Rev.), 500
LOYD
John A. (Pvt.), 156
J. K. (Pvt.), 111

LUAHEY
Michael F. (Pvt.), 110
LUASADDER
Joseph (Pvt.), 138
LUBBOCK
Sir Charles, 505
LUBER
Frederick (Pvt.), 110
Jacob (Pvt.), 110
LUCAS
I. N., 209
Isaac (Pvt.), 159
John (Sgt.), 156
Robert, 52
Robert (Gov.), 69, 543, 590
W. (Pvt.), 150
LUCHTENBURG
G. (Pvt.), 146
LUKENS
James, 434
LUCKEY
Dr., 174, 182, 335
Ester, 280
Josiah (Dr.), 280
William N. (Dr.), 215, 216
LUCKHAUPT
Charles E. (Mrs.), 586
LUCKY
Dr., 395
LUDDEN
Benjamin M., 192
LUDINGTON
Charles C. (Sgt.), 116
LUDLOW
Israel, 432
S. W. (Pvt.), 147
William, 44, 534, 541
LUDWICK
Daniel, 336
John (Pvt.), 137
LUDWIG
Amelia, 232
Catharine, 192-193, 232
Christena, 232
Daniel, 25, 47, 211, 213, 232
David S., 232
Eliza, 232
Elizabeth, 232
Eve, 232
Evelina, 232
George, 232
G. W. (Pvt.), 123
Henry O., 232
Isaac, 232
Isaac (Pvt.), 128
Jacob, 25, 53, 198, 213, 232, Illus. 232-233, 233, 266-267
John, 48, 178, 179, 185, 215, 232
Joseph, 232
Mary, 232
Mary Elizabeth, 232
Rachel, 232
Rosalie H., 232
Susannah, 232
Thomas, 192-193, 198, 232
LUFT
Conrad (Pvt.), 142
LUGH
LUGH continued
D. (Pvt.), 148
LUJEANE
Romani (Adj.), 122
LUKENS
Alfred (Pvt.), 154
Benjamin S. (Corp.), 140
Hiram (Pvt.), 131
John H. (Sgt.), 131
LUMLEY
Catharine, 96
LUMM
Benjamin (Pvt.), 131
LUMP
Jacob (Pvt.), 145
LUMPER
Christopher (Pvt.), 158
LUNCEFORD
John J. (Pvt.), 140
LUNDENBERGER
John (Pvt.), 125
LUNDERGAN
William (Pvt.), 143
LUNN
-----, 462
Dr., 462
Benjamin V. Jr., 462
Benjamin V., 462
Benjamin Vastine, 467
Elizabeth, 399, 467
J. C., 104
Jesse, 399
John, 399
Joseph, 399
Josiah C., 399
Josiah R., 462, Illus. 466-467, 467
Josiah R. (Mrs.), 462, Illus. 466-467
L. T. (Dr.), 465
Margaret, 399, 467, Illus. 466-467
Thomas, 465
William, 399
LUSE
Charles (Pvt.), 122
LUSHT
Charles (Sgt.), 122
LUSK
John, 394
William, 364, 508
LUST
Valentine (Pvt.), 124
LUTHER
Alfred G., 129
LUTTELL
James M. (Pvt.), 144
LUTZ
-----, 198
A. D. (Sgt.), 156
Baron Von, 259
Benedict, 259
Catharine, 260
Elizabeth, 250
Elizabeth Demuth, 250, 258
F. P. (Pvt.), 150
George, 260
George H., 264
Harriet, 260
Harry E., 260
Ida, 192-193
LUTZ continued
Isaac, 260
J. A., 53, 165, 368
Jacob, 250, 257, 258, 259
Jacob D., 47, 48, 53, 250, 259
Jacob H., 181
Jacob M. (Pvt.), 136
Jesse B., 268
John, 250, 256
John A., 99, 105, 259, 260, 261
John D., 250, 259
Joseph, 250, 259
Lever E. (Pvt.), 144
Levi, 263
Lewis, 43, 304
Lydia, 260
Mary, 260
Michael, 259
Minerva, 264
Nelson L. (Capt.), 115
Otis, 268
Ovid, 256, 260
P. S. (Pvt.), 150
Peter, 48, 250, 259, 260
Peter (1st Lt.), 150
Peter (Major), 149
Rachel, 260
Samuel, 48, 53, 213, 248, 249, 250, 258, 259, 260, 261
Samuel G., 252, 260
Susan H., 43, 304
Thomas H. (Pvt.), 144
Ulrich, 258, 259
LUZADER
Henry (Pvt.), 136
LUZADOR
John (Pvt.), 143
LYBRAND
Archibald, 256
Archibald (Lt.), 125
C. C., 184
C. C. (Rev.), 296
Charles C., 255
Charles L. (Capt.), 121
Samuel, 47, 48, 200, 251, 256, 257
LYDAY
S. G., 437
LYDNEY
Curtis (Pvt.), 144
LYLE
Susannah, 66
LYLES
C. W. (Pvt.), 111
LYMAN
Ed (Pvt.), 112
Edwin (Pvt.), 121
Edward (Pvt.), 112
Samuel, 42
LYNAS
James (Pvt.), 145
LYNCH
-----, 197
Andrew, 190, 235
Balithe, 319
Cornelius, 461
Daniel, 461
Dennis (Pvt.), 142

LYNCH continued
Elizabeth, 235
James H., 203
James R. (Pvt.), 110
John, 105, 194, 196, 199, 461, 465
John (Capt.), 134
John H., 461, 465, 466
Jonathan, 461
Mercy, 461
Nancy (Scott), 461
Sarah A., 235
Terence C., 48
William, 461
LYNDERS
Frederick (Sgt.), 115
LYNE
Booker, 211
Dick, 211
Edmond, 211
James, 211
Jemima, 211
Lucy, 211
Matt, 211
Mill, 211
Sarah, 211
LYNN
Hugh, 269
N., 524
LYON
A. J. (Rev.), 189
Harriet B., 210-211
L. D., 105
Mortimer (Pvt.), 142
LYONS
D. (Pvt.), 140
E. (Pvt.),
Edward, 189
John (Pvt.), 114
L. D., 190
Michael (Pvt.), 114
LYSLE
Eli M., 46
John, 46, 102
Robert, 41, 46
LYTLE
Andrew, 374
Christine, 400
David P., 400
Frank M., 400
John, 400
John (Pvt.), 131
Nathaniel (Pvt.), 153
Rebecca, 400
LYTLER
Nathaniel (Pvt.), 146

M.

MAARZ
Henry O. (Pvt.), 140
MABEE
A. B. (Rev.), 518
C. (Rev.), 519
MABERRY
W. (Pvt.), 151
MACAN
John G., 260, 261
MACE
Nancy, 310, 317
MACFIELD
James (Corp.), 157
MACHIR
C. F., 47, 104, 204-205
MACHLIN
D. W., 436
James, Jr. (Corp.), 124
MACK
J. (Pvt.), 148, 150
Michael (Pvt.), 115
P. (Pvt.), 150
William E. (Rev.), 463
MACKEY
Isaac, 255
Isaac (Rev.), 495, 496
John, 344
Joseph, 344
MACKULL
Samuel (Pvt.), 159
MACREADY
George, 209
MADDEN
John C. (Rev.), 522
John M. (Pvt.), 144
MADDIN
Rarewed, 100
MADDUX
Benjamin, 308
C., 309
Collins, 306
Corlinda, 307
David, 306
David M., 306
Elizabeth L., 306
John, 295
John H., 309
Julia, 320
Mary, 311
Rachel, 306
Severen, 308
Tomsy Ann, 306
William, 306
MADER
Jacob, 199, 204
John, 204
MADERIA
John (Col.), 49, 101
J. R. (Pvt.), 149
James R. (Pvt.), 154
MADISON
James (Pres.), 160, 161, 260, 391
MAER
Leopold (Pvt.), 145
MAGEE
George W., 257
James, 257
MAGG
Ludwig, 209
MAGILL
James, 335
H. T. (Rev.), 296
William (2nd Lt.), 151
MAGINTY
Daniel (Pvt.), 143
MAGLEY
Ellen G. Beckett, 329
John M. (Pvt.), 137
W. H., 329, 331, 332
MAGNESS
Hiram (Pvt.), 142
MAHANNA
B. (Pvt.), 111
MAHARD
Charles (Pvt.), 129
MAHLMAN
H. A., 514
H. W. (Dr.), 47
MAHOFFIN
William, 312
MAHONEY
W. A. (Mrs.), 528 MAIDEN
John, 208
MAILON
Thomas (Pvt.), 143
MAIN
Rufus, 46
MAINE
J. (Pvt.), 154
MAINS
Henry (Pvt.), 107
MAINY
Michael (Pvt.), 157
MAJOR
John, 418
Robert (Pvt.), 130
MAKARD
Charles (Pvt.), 111
MALE
Charles (Pvt.), 140
D. (Pvt.), 148
MALLIKEN
Harriet, 88
MALLON
F. C. (Rev.), 522
MALLORY
E., 430
Ogden (Pvt.), 153
MALONE
David (Pvt.), 159
Michael (Pvt.), 131
Patrick (Pvt.), 145
Thomas (Pvt.), 146
MALONY
John (Pvt.), 121
MALOTT
Hiram, 387, 390
MALOY
Daniel (Pvt.), 138
Peter (Pvt.), 126
MAM
Reuben (Pvt.), 123
MANAHAN
John (Pvt.), 126
MANEL
William (Pvt.), 138
MANGER
S. (Rev.), 413
MANGINS
J. (Pvt.), 114
MANGOLD
John (Pvt.), 122
MANGUES
Emanuel (Pvt.), 128
MANGUS
Lewis (Pvt.), 126
E., 348
Emanuel, 346
Jacob, 346
Lois (Pvt.), 133
MANIFOLD

MANIFOLD continued
John C. (Pvt.), 159
MANLER
Robert (Pvt.), 143
MANLEY
Ann, 296
Harriet Tanner, 288
Lewis, 296
Robert C. (Sgt.), 156
Samuel W., 135
Samuel, 296
MANLY
Marcellus (Pvt.), 146
R. W. (Rev.), 519
W.E.L.,
MANN
A., 489
Amba, 400
Austin A., 400
Cal T., 44
Cordon, 400
David (Rev.), 296
George M., 400
Horace, 318, 75
Kelton S., 400
Kesiah, 400
Lucy, 400
Manning F., 400
Milton H., 45
Nancy, 400
O. A., 400
Permelia, 400
Shuah, 399, 400
William (Pvt.), 112
MANNING
Henry, 435
J. (Pvt.), 149
J. R., 437
MANNON
William, 382
MANOR
George (Pvt.), 142
MANPIN
I. N. (Pvt.), 155
James N. (Pvt.), 140
MANSFIELD
Adison M. (Pvt.), 119
G. (Pvt.), 148
Oron (Pvt.), 119
O. R., 453
O. R. (Pvt.), 148
MANSUR
Sarah J., 84
MANTLE
Jacob W. (Pvt.), 144
MANTLES
David, 288
Duncan, 288
Duncan, Jr., 288
Isaac, 288
Jacob, 288
John, 288
John, Sr., 288
Matilda Noland, 288
Peter, 288
MANYPENNY
George, 367
George W., 162
William, 394, 396
MAPES
Thomas (Pvt.), 107
MARANDER
David F. (Pvt.), 143
MARBLE
F. A., 557, 558
Wm. H. (Rev.), 525
MARCH
Catherine, 386-387
David (Pvt.), 138
Drusella, 387
Elizabeth, 387
Hannah, 386-387
John, 386-387, 387
Rebecca, 386-387
Zachariah H., Illus. 386-387, 387
MARCY
Zebulon, 396
MARDER
Jacob F. Jr. (Sgt.), 124
MARFIELD
Catharine, 186-187
Delano, 186-187
Dwight S., 186-187
Elliott, 186-187
Elizabeth, 186-187
George R., 186-187
Hannah, 186-187
Harriett, 186-187
Henry, 186-187
James, 186-187
James T., 186-187
James T. (Lt.), 134
John, 185, 186-187
Mary, 186-187
Nannie, 186-187
Penelope, 186-187
S., 174, 182
S. Jr., 98, 165
Samuel, 186-187, 199, 207, 208
Samuel, Jr. Illus. 186-187
William, 186-187
W. B., 105, 209
Wm. B., 182, 185, 186-187
William T., 186-187
MARGHIM
G. W. (Pvt.), 151
MARION
Elijah Livingston (Mrs.), 498
G. (Pvt.), 152
Nathaniel, 556
Oliver (Lt.), 152
MARIS
G. M. (Pvt.), 147
G. W. (Dr.), 567
MARK
J. W., 313, 315
Theodore, 315
MARKEL
Jacob, 250
Wm. C., 264
MARKLE
William, 254
MARKLEY
A. C. (Capt.), 565
George, 556
George W. (Pvt.), 127
Henry R. (Sgt.), 127
MARKLY
John (Pvt.), 122
MARKS
MARKS continued
J. W., 315
Lovinda E., 92, 97
Sheldon, 92
MARKWOOD
-----, 257
Jacob, 304
MARLIN
I. A. (Pvt.), 147
MARLOW
John (Pvt.), 130
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
MAROM
James (Rev.), 296
MARPLE
Nathan B., 556
N. B. (Pvt.), 146
MARQNART
George (Pvt.), 158
MARQUIS
William, 42, 100, 283, 285
MARREL
Corydon (Pvt.), 129
MARRETL
Lorenzo, 91
MARRIOTT
G. J., 94
Jennie, 94
MARROW
Isaac, 555
MARS
Lyman W. (Pvt.), 132
MARSH
-----, 96
Benjamin, 378
Cornelius (Pvt.), 140
Esther, 378
Eugene (Pvt.), 130
George P., 238
Joel, 378
John (Pvt.), 112
Josiah, 378
Lucinda, 378
Patsy, 378
Sarepta, 428
Solomon (Pvt.), 145
W. (Pvt.), 152
William, 332
William (Pvt.), 127, 155
MARSHAL
Ed. M. (Pvt.), 135
James, 41, 46
MARSHALL
-----, 417
D. H., 309
David H., 308
E. M., 308
George (Corp.), 118
James, 40, 295, 296, 361, 364, 507, 513
James M. (Pvt.), 134
James (Rev.), 308
J. R., 44, 373
John (Pvt.), 137
J. R. (Dr.), 372, 373, 395, 396
M. K., 208, 209
M. K. (Pvt.), 149
Margaret M., 308
Mary, 308
Thomas (Pvt.), 143

MARSHALL continued
W. H. (Rev.), 515
MARTBERGER
Daniel (Pvt.), 125
MARTENS
August (Pvt.), 108
MARTIN
-----, 92, 507, 509, 567, 572
A. C. (Pvt.), 146
Adam, 301
Amelia, 82
Andrew (Pvt.), 145
Benjamin F., 81-82
Benjamin (Pvt.), 128
B. F., 7, 45, 78, 102, 556, 584
Catharine P., 301
Charles, Jr., 427
Comfort, 233
Daniel M. (Sgt.), 127
David, 335, 397, 440, 449
D. M. (Pvt.), 151
Dr., 332, 383
G. W. (Pvt.), 123
H. D. (Pvt.), 130
H. F., 525
Hosen (Pvt.), 114
Jacob, 277, 278, 304
James, 100, 274, 329, 344, 425
James (Pvt.), 108, 117, 118
James F. (Pvt.), 159
James H. (Pvt.), 130
Jane, 329
J. L., 330
John, 96, 329, 335, 344, 413, 517
John (Pvt.), 128
John D., 54, 61
John P. (Sgt.), 108
Joseph, 518
Joseph (Pvt.), 124
Mary, 383
Matt Shaw (Mrs.), 497
Matt (Squire), 497
Mathias, 45, 512
Oren S., 331
O. S. (Pvt.), 155
Ransselen (Pvt.), 157
Rev., 394, 429
Robert, 284
Robert G. (Pvt.), 143
R. H. (Pvt.), 147
Samuel, 560
Sarah Pursell, 329
Silas, 119
Simeon B. (Pvt.), 130
S. T., 427
Susan, 383
T. (Pvt.), 152
Thomas (Pvt.), 155
William, 202, 232, 246, 329
William F., 514
Wm. F., 517, 541
W. T., 361
William T., 45, 46, 82, 382, 529, 559, 584, 586
W. W., 313
Z. R., 181, 186
MARTINO
John, 387
Joseph, 387
Joseph (Pvt.), 144
MARTLING
James A., 481
MARTZ
Abraham, 302
Catharine, 302
MARVIN
Francis (Pvt.), 110
John J., 60
Susan J., 414
MARX
Peter (Pvt.), 108
MARZEAND
A. M., 191
MASBWIGH
J. (Pvt.), 112
MASGROVE
Watson (Pvt.), 125
MASON
-----, 465
Bette, 383
C. B., 47
Columbus B. (Capt.), 144
Daniel, 238
Elijah E., 458
Elizabeth, 238
Ira, 451
Isabelle, 383
Jeremiah, 238
John (Major), 238
John P. (Pvt.), 126
John W. (Pvt.), 131
Lafayette (Pvt.), 138
Lewis A. (Pvt.), 159
Lizzie, 383
Lucretia, 383
Major, 564
Margaret, 268-269
Mary, 383
Nathan, 423, 427
Nathaniel N. (Pvt.), 132
N. C., 464
Rodney (Lt. Col.), 110
R. H., 452
S. (Pvt.), 148
Sampson, 544
S. J., 400
Thomas (Pvt.), 144
William D., 383
William H. (Pvt.), 131
W. M., 464
MASSEY
General, 491
MASSIE
Helen, 48
Henry, 44, 48, 333
Nathaniel, 38, 39, 44, 485
MASTERS
Daniel (Pvt.), 120
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 141
William H. (Pvt.), 141
MATEER
James, 408
Samuel (Pvt.), 153
Washington (Pvt.), 153
MATER
D., 297
MATERE
-----, 375, 381
MATHELE
Emery (Pvt.), 130
MATHENEY
D., Illus. 584-585, 585
Daniel, 585
Martha, 585
Ruth, 585
MATHENY
Daniel, 46, 374, 376
Susan Ruth, 376
MATHER
D., 255
Daniel D. (Rev.), 517
George (Rev.), 518
MATHEW
Thomas, 550
MATHEWS
-----, 377
A. F., 7
Augusta, 81
Charles, 161
Edwin Parrott, 81
Elizabeth, 81
Fitch James, 41, 77, 81, 83
F. J., 521
F. J. (Atty.), 552
George, 377
George Thomas, 81
George W. (Pvt.), 117
Henry, 517, 521, 541
Irwin (Sgt.), 130
John, 39, 381
Louisa, 81
Lucy Kilbourn, 81
M., 520
Mary, 381
Mathew, 46, 81
Patrick (Pvt.), 158
Patt (Pvt.), 124
Samuel (Dr.), 465
MATHIAS
Henry, 251
Thomas P. (Pvt.), 111
MATHIS
James (Sgt.), 110
MATICS
Bendigo, 374
MATNEY
William (Pvt.), 123
MATOON
Calvin, 469
Edwin, 469
John, 469
Ora C., 469
Stebbins, 469
Thankful, 469
Willis, 469
MATSON
George H., 314, 315
James F. (Pvt.), 135
MATTES
Alfred (Pvt.), 139
MATTHEWS
-----, 493
Charles H., 163
Eliza, 314
Garrett (Pvt.), 138
Harvey, 423
Henry (Rev.), 423

MATTHEWS continued
Hiram, 423
Jane, 314
John F. (Pvt.), 159
Margaret, 314
Mathew, 423, 513
Melinda, 314
Robert L. (Pvt.), 159
Samuel, 314
Samuel (Rev. Mr.), 314
Vincent, 423
William, 495
MATTHIAS
Martin S. (Pvt.), 144
MATTHILE
E., 473
MATTOON
A. (Cpl.), 149, 152
Ansel, 374, 427, 431
John, 475
Willis, 46, 479, 552-553
MATTOX
Simon P. (Pvt.), 130
MATZ
Peter (Pvt.), 157
MAUGER
S. P. (Rev.), 449
MAUGHMER
George W. (Pvt.), 156
MAUK
Benjamin F. (Corp.), 115
Matthew (Pvt.), 143
MAUPEN
J. M. (Pvt.), 151
MAURER
Jacob, 542-543
N., 526
MAVIS
G. (Pvt.), 151
G. W., 567
MAXWELL
Andrew (Pvt.), 125
Henry C. (Pvt.), 131
Patrick (Pvt.), 142
J. (Rev.), 521
James (Pvt.), 157
J. F., 451
James M. (Pvt.), 136
John L. (Pvt.), 129
Matty, 326-327
O. C. (Capt.), 109
Samuel A. (Pvt.), 136
MAY
C., 477
Catharine, 277, 320
Charles, 277, 320
Christian (Pvt.), 119, 120
Edward D. (Pvt.), 146
Elizabeth, 320
Francis, 320
George, 181, 320
G. W., 313
Henry, Sr., 54
Henry H. (Pvt.), 135
Ira, 208
Jack, 109
James H. (Dr.), 316
John, 250, 277, 278, 303, 320, 324
John B. (Dr.), 103, 315, 316
John G., 465
MAY continued
John G. (Sgt.), 131
John W., 316
John W. (Dr.), 315
Jonathan B. (Corp.), 135
Lydia Williamson, 325
Magdalena, 320
Mary, 320, 434
Mary A., 326-327
Michael, 53, 174, 185, 320
William (Pvt.), 155
MAYER
John G. (Pvt.), 117
Morris, 527
MAYHEW
George (Pvt.), 138
MAYLE
W. P. (Pvt.), 125
MAYNARD
-----, 421
Achsa, 421, 422, Illus. 432-433
Apollos, 405, 421
Asa, 421
Betsey, 422
Burris, 518
Eber, 421
Electa, 421
Ezra (Pvt.), 158
George Clinton, 405
Horatio B. (Lt. Col.), 134
H. J., 517, 518
James, 422
Joel, 421
Joshua, 422
Laura, 405
Louisa, 422
Lovisa, 421, Illus. 432-433
Moses, 405, Illus. 432-433
Moses, Jr., 421
Moses, Sr., 421
Nathan, 422
Samuel, 397, 402, 422, 425
Stephen, 405, 408, 426, 428, 431
Stephen, Jr., 422, 426
Stephen, Sr., 422, 426
Thankful, 397, 402, 422
W. (Rev.), 449
MAYSE
William (Corp.), 110
MEACHAM
D. (Pvt.), 150
L. L. (Capt.), 152
F. W. (Pvt.), 111
Lawrence L. (Capt.), 149
MEACHEUM
George W. (Pvt.), 157
MEACHUM
Dempster L. (Pvt.), 126
MEAD
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 131
James, 560
MEADE
-----, 416-417
MEAGHER
James (Rev.), 522
MEALHEIM
Jacob (Pvt.), 117
MEANS
Jane, 482
MEANS continued
R. R. (Surgeon), 111
MEARA
Father, 533
M. M. (Rev.), 523
MEASY
Jacob, 335
MECHENY
Joshua (Pvt.), 141
MEDARY
C. S., 162
Colonel, 542-543
F. H., 163
Jacob, 65, 162, 163
Samuel, 103, 162, 163, 223, 537
W. W. (Pvt.), 146
MEDBERY
A. B., 567
MEDBURY
Caroline E., 522
Nathaniel, 44, 51, 438, 522, 542
MEDCRAFT
William, 207
MEDFORD
Charles, 461
John, 461
MEDICK
George W. (Pvt.), 141
MEDILL
Governor, 92, 542-543, 552
MEDLER
George (Pvt.), 123
MEDLEY
Elias (Pvt.), 156
MEDSKER
A., 262
MEDZGER
David (Pvt.), 156
MEEKER
Ananias (Pvt.), 118
George W., 96
Hannah, 96
Henry W. (Sgt.), 125
James, 330
Joshua, 96
Lemon, 396
Z. A., 208
MEEKS
B. (Pvt.), 148, 152
Elias (Pvt.), 142
Jesse, 191
Nancy C., 264
MEETER
David (Pvt.), 157
MEES
Conrad (Rev.), 526
H. (Rev.), 570
Theo (Rev.), 500
MEESEY
W. (Pvt.), 151
MEFFORD
John (2nd Lt.), 107
MEGATH
Samuel (Pvt.), 108
MEHAMEY
Alexander, 414
MEHANY
Alexander (Rev.), 296
MEIER

MEIER continued
John B. (Musician), 122
MEIGS
Governor, 583
MEILEY
Hiram (Pvt.), 142
MEILING
Charles (Pvt.), 159
MEISSE
-----, 256
Esther D., 305
Joseph, 305
MELCHER
-----, 162
MELLEN
Joseph (2nd Lt.), 120
MELLING
Wesley (Pvt.), 157
MELLOW
Joshua (Pvt.), 107
MELON
William (Pvt.), 133
MELSON
Michael (Pvt.), 139
MELVIN
Catharine, 383
Gibson S. (Pvt.), 115
MENCH
W. P., 388
W. R., 388
MENDENHALL
Jacob, 69
T. C., 102
Thomas C. (Prof.), 550
MENEAR
Agatha, 188
MERANDER
Samuel (Pvt.), 143
MERCER
John E. (Pvt.), 146
Leander (Pvt.), 120
MEREDITH
H. G. (Corp.), 114
MERHMAN
Jacob F. (Corp.), 137
MERICA
Timothy (Pvt.), 143
MERION
Adaline Livingston, 499
Calvin, 499
Catharine Clickenger, 501
Charles, 501
C. S. (Pvt.), 148
David, 501
Edwin, 501
Elijah, 499, 501
Elijah, Sr., 499
George, 498
George (Pvt.), 157
Hanna, 501
H. C. (Pvt.), 148
Henry, 501
James, 501
Levi, 501
Lydia, 501
Lydia Gay, 501
Martha Sheldon Uncles, 501
Mary, 501
Millie, 501
Nathaniel, 102, 498
Nathaniel (Capt.), 458, 498
MERION continued
O. (Pvt.), 148
Oliver, 501
Oliver (Pvt.), 142
Oliver P. (2nd Lt.), 141
Sally Waite, 498
Thankful Withrington, 501
William, Jr. Illus. 498, 501
William, Sr., 498
MERRELL
Jacob, 307
John, 307
Milly S., 307
Sarah A., 307
MERRIAM
Nathaniel, 54
MERRIC
J. W. (Pvt.), 151
MERRICK
Franklin (Pvt.), 143
Frederick, 566
MERRIL
Hosea (Pvt.), 107
MERRILL
George (Pvt.), 157
Governor, 368
John E., Illus. 528-529
John E. (Mrs.), Illus. 528-529
S. M., 184
S. M. (Rev.), 525
S. P., 309
Wm. (Mrs.), Illus. 528-529
William C. (Pvt.), 140
MERRIMAN
J. M., 494, 495
MERRINGER
J. (Pvt.), 148
MERRITT
-----, 382
Ephraim (Pvt.), 145
Oliver (Pvt.), 130
Rachel, 320
MERROW
C. (Pvt.), 150
MERRYMAN
Dr., 493
MERTZ
A. J. (Pvt.), 150, 154
George (Pvt.), 158
MERWIN
E. B., 205
MESION
Nathaniel, 55
MESSER
T. (Pvt.), 112
William (Pvt.), 140
MESSICK
John, 348
John W. (Pvt.), 126, 140, 155
MESSMORE
R. W., 295
MERWIN
William, 102
METCALF
Ira, 426
Sophronia, 584
William P. (Pvt.), 141
METEER
METEER continued
W., 171
METHENEY
Jacob S. (Sgt.), 156
METHERS
James W. (Pvt.), 138
METOCK
Joseph (Chaplain), 114
METS
Joseph (Pvt.), 146
METSER
David (Pvt.), 142
METTLE
Andrew M. (Pvt.), 142
METTLER
Andrew (Pvt.), 143
METZGAR
George, 104, 202
METZGER
Andrew, 319, 320
Benjamin, 319
Elizabeth, 319
G. (Pvt.), 149
J. (Pvt.), 149
Jacob (Pvt.), 135, 154
Jones (Pvt.), 149
Jonas (Pvt.), 154
John, 166, 319
Leaih, 319
Salome, 319
METZLER
J., 256
MEYER
George, 315
John (Pvt.), 145
Joseph (Pvt.), 108
Lewis T. (Rev.), 487
Napoleon (Pvt.), 109
Philip (Pvt.), 157
MEYERS
Franklin (Pvt.), 142
George E., 315
J. (Pvt.), 150
Louis, 215
MICHAEL
Frederick, 561
James W. (Sgt.), 152
John H. (Pvt.), 144
Philip, 312
MICHAELS
Lavina, 312
T. C. (2nd Lt.), 114
MICHELBACH
Henry (Pvt.), 119
MICKEL
Elijah (Pvt.), 136
James, 516
Peter, 285
MICKEY
Anna, 377
Betsey, 377
Daniel (Capt.), 377
Daniel, 377
John, 377
Nancy, 377
N. F. (Pvt.), 114
Polly, 377
Sally, 377
Thomas (Capt.), 377
William, 377
MICKLE

MICKLE continued
William (Pvt.), 143
MIDDLETON
John H., 465
Joseph (Pvt.), 145
Samuel (Rev.), 296
William, 465
MIESSE
Abraham, 305
Angeline D., 305
Daniel, 305
Mary D., 305
MILBORN
James A. (Pvt.), 156
MILBURN
Harriet, 442
J., 399
John, 442
T. (Pvt.), 151
MILES
Albert R. (Pvt.), 141
G. (Pvt.), 147
Gideon (Pvt.), 134
James A., 95
James H. (Pvt.), 135
John D., 95
O. E., 166, 167
Sarah, 95
MILEY
John (Rev.), 517
MILFULM
J. (Pvt.), 148
MILHISER
Jacob (Pvt.), 139
MILKENS
Joseph W. (Capt.), 115
MILL
George M. (Pvt.), 131
Lt., 124
Philip (Pvt.), 130
MILLAR
Adam, 342, 343, Illus. 346-347
Alice, 355
Anna H., 390-391
Daniel, 349
DeWitt Clinton, 358
Elizabeth, 343, 357, 358
Elizabeth Ann, 351
Filmore, 343
Franklin, 351, 357
George, 343, 355
Hannah, 357
Hannah Rebecca, 358
Hattie, 343
Isaac, 343, 351, 355, 356, 357
Jackson, 353
Jacob, 351, Illus. 356-357, 357, 358
John, 351, 356, 357
Kate, 355
Lucinda, 343
Mary, 343
Mary Catharine, 343
Mary Frances, 358
Mattie, 355
Mellissa, 355
Michael, 343, 351, 355, 357
Nancy Howe, 343
Rebecca, 357
MILLAR continued
Sarah, 357
Sarah Ann, 343
Susan, 357
Susan Elizabeth, 357
Taylor, 343
Tecumseh, 343
W. (Pvt.), 149
William, 278, 343, 351, 357, 476
Z. T., 343
MILLARD
Raper, 435
MILLEGAN
John W. (Pvt.), 139
MILLEN
D. (Pvt.), 148
Michael (Pvt.), 130
MILLER
-----, 202, 204, 385
Aaron P. (Dr.), 161
Abraham, 386, 388
Absolum, 388
Adam, 55, 363, 381
Adam (Pvt.), 158
Albert (Pvt.), 137
Alpheus (Pvt.), 142
Amanda, 388, 464
Amanda Wilson, 482
Andrew (Pvt.), 107, 138
Anthony, 483
Anthony (Pvt.), 115
Anthony W. (Pvt.), 136
Appelona, 232
A. R., 308
Augustus, 369
Augustus (Pvt.), 137
Belle, 532-533
Caroline, 386
Catharine, 386
Charles (Corp.), 124
Charles (Pvt.), 120, 142
Chauncey (Sgt.), 107
Christina, 386
Christina Fisher, 363
Christopher C. (Pvt.), 143
Clara, 532-533
Cynthia A., 386
Cyrus (Pvt.), 132
Daniel (Pvt.), 157
Daniel W. (Pvt.), 126
David S. (2nd Class), 119
E. (Pvt.), 152
Edwin (Pvt.), 142
E. E., 387-388
E. S., 464
Eliza L., 532-533
Emma, 341
Ezra (Pvt.), 121
Fisher, 363
G. A. W. (Pvt.), 150
George, 229, 363, 386-387
George R., 207
George R. (Mayor), 209
G. R., 149
G. W., 333, 452
G. W. (Pvt.), 147
George W., 483
George W. (Pvt.), 121
H. (Pvt.), 147, 151
Hanna, 386-387
MILLER continued
Hannah A., 532-533
Harriet, 386
Harvey, 463
Henderson, 447
Henry, 160, 435, 437, 532-533
Henry (Pvt.), 137
Henry (Dr.), 567
Henry Y. (Pvt.), 144
H. B. (Rev.), 186
Hiram (Pvt.), 155
I. (Mrs.), 387
I. D. (Pvt.), 150
I. F., 436
Isaac, 55, 387, 388
J. (Pvt.), 148, 150
J. (Sgt.), 111
J. A. (Pvt.), 151
Jackson (Pvt.), 138
Jacob, 108, 340, 363, 380
Jacob (Pvt.), 139
Jacob W. (Pvt.), 125
J. Al., 315
James, 326, 331, 532-533
James (Pvt.), 123
James A., 341
James D., 335, 338
James W., 127
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 139
Jerome B. (Pvt.), 110
J. H., 465
J. H. (Pvt.), 148
J. J. (Pvt.), 152
J. K., 451
J. L. (Sgt.), 155
J. N. (Pvt.), 147
J. R. (Pvt.), 147
J. T. (Rev.), 519
Joash, 100, 275, 276
John, 160, 414, 464, 465, 524, 532, 555
John (Pvt.), 137, 146
John B. (Pvt.), 121, 126
John G., 163
John H., 101
John H. (Pvt.), 121, 157, 158
John M., 483, 489
John S., 414
John T., 255
John W. (Pvt.), 127, 130
Jonathan (Dr.), 532-533
Joseph, 86, 275, 355
Joseph (Pvt.), 132, 155
Joshua (Pvt.), 140
Julia, 532-533
Justice, 372
Lawrence (Pvt.), 141
Levi F. (Pvt.), 138
Lizzie K., 481
M. Cecelia, 532-533
Magdalena, 388
Mar (Pvt.), 117
Margaret, 338-339, 363, 532-533
Margaret E., 483
Martin, 492
Mary E., 363
Mary, 344, 532-533
Mary F., 386
Mary Wolf, 363

MILLER continued
Michael, 232, 347
Noah, 511
Nicholas, 301
Oscar (Pvt.), 143
O. R., 452
Perry W., 483
Peter, 47, 105
Peter (Pvt.), 119, 152
Rachel, 386-387
Rev., 255
R. H., 264
R. N. (Pvt.), 155
S., 105
S. (Pvt.), 151
Sallie, 532-533
Samuel (Pvt.), 140, 155, 156
Samuel J. (Pvt.), 119, 120, 140
Samuel M., 280
Samuel W. (Corp.), 136
Sarah, 386, 388
Sebastian, 280, 281
Stephen, 188
Stephen J. (Pvt.), 138
S. S., 314
Stephen (Sgt.), 122
Susan, 325, 326
Susannah, 232
T. Ewing, 62, 550, 561, 562, 570
T. I. (Pvt.), 152
Thomas, 45, 162, 182, 436, 547, 591
Thomas Ewing, 532-533
Thomas, 532-533
Thomas J., 340
Thomas, Jr., 532-533
W. (Pvt.), 150, 152
Walter, 463
Wesley P., 386
West, 42, 100, 213
William, 42, 44, 46, 104, 327, 363, 387, 388, 532-533, 552-553
William (Mrs.), 284
William (2nd Lt.), 144, 150
William (Pvt.), 156, 159
William Avery, 338
William H. (2nd Lt.), 153
William J. (Corp.), 123
William W. (Corp.), 120
MILLETT
John (Pvt.), 114
Joseph H., 134
MILLHIZER
Henry I. (Pvt.), 137
MILLIGAN
Alvan (Pvt.), 118
James, 373, 557
James (Pvt.), 118
J. M., 207
John W., 556
MILLIKIN
Joseph, 550
MILLINGTON
Levi (Pvt.), 120
Otis, 371
Otis (Pvt.), 120
Peter, 373, 376
MILLIS
MILLIS continued
James C. (Sgt.), 156
MILLS
H. Z., 542
Henry, 321
Isaac (Pvt.), 158
J. (Pvt.), 147
Jacob, 419
James, 129
James (Pvt.), 108, 145
James C. (Capt.), 141
John, 47, 214, 295
John (Pvt.), 108
Joseph, 302
J. M. (Rev.), 188
J. S., 476
Lydia, 321
Mary, 302, 321
Nancy, 386
Peter, 399, 511
Pritchard, 319, 321
P. R., 451
R. P., 415
Roswell, 37
R. R.,
Thompson (Pvt.), 139
W. A., 61
W. C. (Rev.), 185
William W. (Asst. Surgeon), 114
Zachariah, 45, 163, 548
MILNER
Nathan E. (Pvt.), 141 MILNES
Alonzo (Pvt.), 141
MILTON
Matthew (Pvt.), 143
MINEAR
Solomon, 184
MINER
David, 442
H. (Pvt.), 150
Isaac, 44, 50, 363
Jeremiah, 363
Maria, 442
Samuel L. (Pvt.), 126
S. L. (Pvt.), 148
Virginia, 592
William, 83, 551
William L., 55, 103
MINGUS
Oscar W. (Corp.), 129
MINOR
-----, 575
C. P. (Pvt.), 148
Edward (Pvt.), 136, 153
James A., 162
Samuel D. (Pvt.), 141
MINOT
-----, 210
Jonas C., 511
MINSEN
Charles (Pvt.), 141
MINTON
Jonathan (Pvt.), 127
MIRES
-----, 324
William, 325, 331
MISKELL
Isaac (Pvt.), 159
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 159
MITCHEL
Charles (Pvt.), 153
Cynthia, 386
General, 521
J., 184
J. B., 425
W. D. (Rev.), 188
MITCHELL
-----, 254, 291
Andrew, 372-373
Ann, 73
Anna E., 372-373
Annie, 370
A. O. (Capt.), 111
Calvin, 372-373
Capt., 109
Catharine, 386
Charles, 370, Illus. 372-373
Charles F., 331
Charles W., 372-373
David, 40, 370, 372-373
David (2nd Lt.), 118
D. D. (2nd Lt.), 111
Dilmer D. (Adj.), 110
Dr., 414
E., 209
Elijah (Pvt.), 135
Eliza, Illus. 372-373
Eliza D., 370
Elizabeth, 91, 370, 372-373, 386
E. W., 197
F., 524
G., 135
George (Dr.), 367
Hugh, 370, 372-373
Hugh H. (Pvt.), 133
H. S., 387
J. (Gen.), 563, 572
J. (Pvt.), 149
J. (Rev.), 183, 429
J. B., 387, 388
J. G., 102
James K. P., 331
James M. (Pvt.), 110
Jane, 370, 372-373
John, 308, 370, 372-373, 386
John (1st Lt.), 144, 154
John G., 62, 91
John G. (Lt. Col.), 132
Jonas (Pvt.), 135
Joseph B., 386
Julia, 372-373
Luther R., 372-373
Malvina, 372-373
Martha J., 372-373
Mary F., 372-373
Mary M., 308
Moses G., 91
Nathan D. (Pvt.), 121
Olive H., 372-373
Orlando (Pvt.), 159
Orsmby, 81, 428
O. W. (Gen.), 109
Samuel (Pvt.), 135
Sarah, 370, 372-373
Sophia, 372-373
Thomas, 370, 372-373
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 121
Thos. W., 185

MITCHELL continued
William, 102, 209, 215, 370, 372, 372-373, 373, 380, 453
MITCHENER
Charles E. (Maj.), 396-397
Jennie, 396-397
Martha, 396-397
Mary, 396-397
MITCHUM
Worthy, 400
MITHOFF
E. T., 62, 562, 565
H., 562
MITKE
Joseph (Pvt.), 122
MITTEN
-----, 213
MITTHOFF
Henry, 499
Henry Ochs (Mrs.), 499
MITZGER
William (Pvt.), 117
MIX
Casper (Pvt.), 142
Emmett, 365
Emmit, 104
N. A., 365
N. P., 364, 365
MOATER
Jacob (Pvt.), 136
MOATS
Jonathan (Pvt.), 133
Lansing B. (Pvt.), 143
William H. (Pvt.), 143
MOBERRY
John, 498
William (Pvt.), 156
MOCCABEE
Henry (Pvt.), 157
MOCCABEL
Charles, 123
MOCHEL
Rev., 447
MOCK
Ezra (Pvt.), 158
J. (Pvt.), 152
John G. (Pvt.), 117
Joseph, 405
John L. (Pvt.), 129
John W. (Pvt.), 130
William E. (Rev.), 474
MODERN
George (Pvt.), 158
MOEHL
John (Pvt.), 142
MOELLER
Franz, 204, 209, 275
L. J. (Dr.), 46-47
MOERSCH
Christian (Pvt.), 122
MOESSNER
Daniel (Pvt.), 122
MOFFETT
Samuel W. (Pvt.), 144
MOFFIT
Benjamin (Pvt.), 134, 137
James P. (Pvt.), 134
John (Pvt.), 137
John C. (Pvt.), 128
MOFFITT
MOFFITT continued
Frederick (Pvt.), 136
R. D., 202
Robert D. (Pvt.), 143
MOHLER
Catherine, 387
MOHN
Jacob (Pvt.), 132
MOLAY
Daniel (Pvt.), 123
MOLER
I. Douglass (Capt.), 140
G. G. (Pvt.), 147
John, 55
MOLING
J. E., 496
MOLL
John R. (Pvt.), 146
MONAHAN
N. (Pvt.), 112
William, 236
MONETT
Abraham, 250, 255
MONEYMAKER
David C. (Pvt.), 144
MONEYPENNY
William, 62
MONFOOT
Elias R. (Lt.), 125
MONGALD
J. (Pvt.), 151
MONGOLD
Jacob (Pvt.), 156
MONNETT
Elizabeth, 272
Isaac, 272
MONOGHON
Rody (Pvt.), 145
MONROE
James (Pres.), 161, 514, 572
James, 36
James (Pvt.), 138
L. C., 345
Thorton (Pvt.), 145
MONSER
David (Pvt.), 130
MONTBRUN
Timothy, 39
MONTGOMERY
Ann, 337
Colonel, 540
E. (Pvt.), 147
Edward (Pvt.), 140
J. M., 368
John, 93, 413
Joshua, 278, 448
Joshua (Rev.), 255
Landon H. (Pvt.), 135
Lemuel, 278
Mary, 414-415
Mary S., 93
R. B., 93
Rebecca, 411
Richard (Gen.), 497
T. (Pvt.), 151
Thomas (Pvt.), 146
MONTOUR
Capt., 28
John, 28
MONYPENY
MONYPENY continued
William, 554, 562, 575, 577
Wm. (Mrs.), 531
MOOBERRY
Alexander, 498
David, 397
David (Mrs.), 391
Lydia, 499
Margaret Williams, 498
William, 498
MOOBERY
Alexander, 101
M. (Mrs.), 102
MOODEY
James, 187
MOODY
Benjamin, 482
Granville (Col.), 570
Granville (Rev.), 517
Ira, 252
James H., 280
Melissa Shrock, 482
MOOK
Moses (Pvt.), 117
Thomas, 452
MOON
Silas R. (Pvt.), 121
Thomas (Corp.), 130
W. H. (Sgt.), 153
MOONEY
Clarine, 93
David C., 93
John (Pvt.), 143
J. W., 93
Martin (Pvt.), 110, 134
Michael (Pvt.), 133
MOOR
Elizabeth, 319, 320
Fergus, 319
James, 320
Polly, 321
Simon (Pvt.), 112
Thomas, 321
Zadock (Pvt.), 139
MOORE
-----, 288
A. (Pvt.), 151
Abram, 477
Addison (1st Lt.), 147
A. J., 464
Albert (Pvt.), 137
Alfred M., 469
Andrew (Pvt.), 157
Augustus, 356
Benjamin, 413, 473
B. H., 53, 105, 192-193, 200, 206, 207, 208
C. H., 104
Cordelia, 469
Rev. Dr., 285
D. H. (Rev.), 518, 540
E. H., 61
Elias (Pvt.), 134
Elizabeth, 455
Emmerette, 469
Emmerett (Mrs.), 290
Ervin, 449
G. A. (Pvt.), 147
G. H. (Pvt.), 114
Harvey B. (Pvt.), 138
Heman A., 43

MOORE continued
Herman A., 542-543
Horace, 469
I. (Pvt.), 148
Isaac (Pvt.), 144
Jacob (Pvt.), 145
James, 47, 48
James (Pvt.), 117
John (Pvt.), 142, 157
John A. (Pvt.), 111, 120, 121
John B., 48, 271
John B. (Mrs.), 354
John H. (Corp.), 135
John W. (Pvt.), 131, 146
J. L., 437
J. L. (Pvt.), 154
J. L. (Rev.), 188
Joseph, 411
Joseph (Pvt.), 157
Laura Ann, 392, 469
Laura Patterson, 469, 485
Louisa, 437
M. F. (Lt. Col.), 114
M. H., 208
Mary, 300
Missouri, 349
Nathan, 356
Oscar A. (Sgt.), 118
Robert (Pvt.), 117
R. H. (Pvt.), 149, 154
Roswell, 341
Roxanna, 469
S. A., 53, 183, 192, 197, 206, 207
S. A. (Col.), 193, 194, 203
Samuel, 47
Samuel (Pvt.), 111
S. H., 199
Simeon, 392, 413, 469, 485
Thomas, 44, 215
Thomas (Pvt.), 110
T. J., 397
Treadwell, 421
Virgil D., 469
W. (Pvt.), 147
Wallace, 469
Wallace H. (Pvt.), 121
W. E., 567
Wesley (Pvt.), 132
W. H., 50
William, 100, 183, 455
William (Pvt.), 124, 155
Wm. E., D.D. (Rev.), 516
W. H. (Pvt.), 112
W. S. G. (Pvt.), 148
MOORHEAD
A., 112
Alexander (Pvt.), 112
MOORMAN
Thomas J., 46, 383
MOOTS
Conrad, 213
George, 213
Philip, 213
MORAN
Martin (Pvt.), 117
Sallie, 197
MORAWACK
Theodore (Pvt.), 143
MORDEN
MORDEN continued
Dr., 453
MORE
Cornelius, 251
Daniel L. (Pvt.), 146
Frances, 272
G. (Pvt.), 150
James, 400
MORECRAFT
Thomas (Pvt.), 135
MOREHEAD
-----, 495
A. H., 76, 540
Elizabeth, 406
Ferguson, 391
Louis (Pvt.), 154
Maria, 343
Mary, 76
Samuel, 267
MORFORD
David (Pvt.), 131
MORGAN
Ann, 345
Ben (Capt.), 125
Charles (Pvt.), 133, 145
Daniel, 385
Daniel T., 135
David B. (Pvt.), 144
Edward F., 437
George, 250, 367
George W., 43
George W. (Pvt.), 143
Governor, 235
Harriet McKinley, 434
Isaac, 373
John, 106, 260, 435
John (Gen.), 320
John C. (Lt.), 136
John E., 184
J. F., 290
John H. (Pvt.), 139
Joseph, 435
P., 434
Rachel, 433, 435
Samuel (Pvt.), 143, 159
S. G., 257
S. M., 184
William, 269
W. H. (Pvt.), 123
Z. N., 47
MORGANTHALER
Peter (Sgt.), 131
MORGRAFT
Henry (Pvt.), 139
MORICE
Clem (Pvt.), 135
MORIS
A., 188
MORISON
James (Pvt.), 155
MORNINGSTAR
Joseph (Pvt.), 137
MORRAL
Fidelia, 275
Jesse, 275
Martha, 275
R. J., 280
Robert J., 275
William, 275
William H. (Pvt.), 117
MORRALL
MORRALL continued
R. J., 105
Robert J., 278
MORREL
Milton (Corp.), 155
MORRELL
M. (Pvt.), 151
MORRILL
-----, 498
Millie, 498
Moses, 498
MORRIS
-----, 321, 377, 417
A. (Pvt.), 149, 154
Alonzo M. (Pvt.), 145
A. M. (Pvt.), 147
Amos (Pvt.), 126, 140
A. V. (Pvt.), 147
Benjamin, 377, 416
Benedict, 270
Bethuel, 377
Bishop, 518
B. W., 204
Charity, 232
Chas. E., 100
C. S., 401
C. M., 162
Daniel, 355
David, 354, 355
D. E. (Pvt.), 148
E. B. W. (Pvt.), 125
Edward D. (Rev.), 516
Elisha, 354
Ellery, 377
Evelina, 232
Ezekiel, 42, 47, 100, 166, 274, 302
H. (Pvt.), 150, 151
Hannah, 355, 377
Henry, 166, 232, 268-269
Henry (Corp.), 158
Henry (Pvt.), 120
Henry B., 48
Isaac (Pvt.), 130
Jacob (Pvt.), 127
Jacob L. (Pvt.), 150
James, 166, 274
James (Pvt.), 158, 159
Jane, 391
Jane C., 390-391
John, 47, 166, 274, 278, 377
John, Jr., 43, 166
John (Pvt.), 115, 117, 130
John S., 303
John S. (Pvt.), 118
Joseph, 255
Joshua (Pvt.), 125
J. L. (Pvt.), 150
Lemuel (Pvt.), 124
Lucinda, 377
Mahlon (Pvt.), 144
Marcus M. (Pvt.), 118
Mary, 264, 321
Milton, 100, 209
Moses, 166
P., 386
Perrin (Pvt.), 157
R. H. (Rev.), 188, 340
Robert, 206
Sally, 377
Samuel, 105, 355

MORRIS continued
Samuel (Pvt.), 112, 143, 155
S. L. (Pvt.), 150
Sophronia, 272
Stanton, 377
Theodore (Col.), 565
Thomas, 48, 390-391, 394
Thomas (Pvt.), 115
Thomas A. (Rev.), 517
T. W., 166
W. (Pvt.), 150
Washington (Pvt.), 155
William (Rev.), 296
William, 348, 377
William H. (Pvt.), 140
MORRISON
-----, 411
Alexander, 44, 556
Alexander, Jr., 370-371, 419, 426
Alexander, Sr., 419
Andrew (Corp.), 131
Andrew, 399
Ann, 399
Caroline Livingston, 498
Capt., 393
Dallas G. (Pvt.), 139
David, 412
E. (Pvt.), 112
George, 348, 349
George (Pvt.), 155
Isabella, 399
Jane, 399
John, 399
John (Dr.), 498
Joseph (Pvt.), 133
J. T. (1st Sgt.), 122
Justin, 520
Marsden H. (Sgt.), 138
Nancy Mann, 412
Orill, 421
Polly, 370-371, 425
Robert (Pvt.), 153
Robert (Sgt.), 126
Samuel, 399
Samuel M. (Capt.), 122
Solomon S. (Pvt.), 136
William, 370-371, 399
W. T. (Pvt.), 123
MORRITY
Joseph (Pvt.), 117
MORRITZ
Jacob (Corp.), 121
MORROW
Alexander, 255
Alice, 197
Charles (Pvt.), 154
Charles W. (Pvt.), 144
Governor, 537, 541, 544
I. H. (Capt.), 112, 569
Isaac H. (Col.), 111
Jacob (Pvt.), 142
Jeremiah, 43, 50, 64
Jeremiah (Rev.), 418
John A. (Pvt.), 158
R. (Pvt.), 151
Robert, 48
T. V. (Dr.), 428
William, 308
William C., 560
MORROW continued
William M. (Pvt.), 158
W. L. (Rev.), 296
MORSE
-----, 401
C. A. (Rev.), 296
Caleb (Rev.), 308
D. A. (Dr.), 367
D. A., 567
James, 289
Lewis (Pvt.), 125
MORSON
-----(Dr.), 427
MORTON
Abner, 308
John R. (Pvt.), 159
Mary J. Neff, 289
Robert H. (Pvt.), 153
Seth, 289
Sidney, 289
Thomas (Pvt.), 158
MOSE
James (Pvt.), 107
MOSER
George (Pvt.), 122
MOSS
Andrew T. (Corp.), 130
Perry L. (Sgt.), 110
Thomas C. (Pvt.), 143
MOTHERSPAW
John, 347
MOTTER
Andrew, 295, 312, 313
Andrew (Mrs.), 313
Jonathan, 313
Jonathan (Mrs.), 313
MOTTESTER
John, 295
MOULTON
William P. (Pvt.), 157
MOUNJOY
Henry (Corp.), 122
MOURY
Jacob (Pvt.), 130
MOUSER
Allen, 313
Catharine, 310, 317
Eliza, 310, 317
Elizabeth, 310, 317
Jacob, 310
Jacob P., 317
John, 310, 317
Mary, 310, 317
Peter, 295, 310, 317
William, 310, Illus. 310-311, 316, 317
William (Mrs.), Illus. 310-311
MOWEN
Mathias (Pvt.), 136
MOWERS
Henry H. (Pvt.), 136
John H. (Pvt.), 136
MOWERY
-----, 213
Allen S., 257, 264
Byron, 263
Catharine, 263
George D., 263
John, 263
John F., 249, 257, Illus.
MOWERY continued
John F. continued, 262-263, 263
John, Sr., Illus. 262-263
Leannah, 252, 263
Louisa Jane, 263
Mary, 263
Rachel, Illus. 262-263
Susannah, 263
William H., 257, 263
MOWRY
A. S., 316
MOYER
Henry (Pvt.), 123
Jacob, 495
John, 303
Peter, 278, 303
William, 185
MOYES
C. L. (Pvt.), 146
MOYST
W. H., 207
MUELLER
Frederick (Pvt.), 122
MUHLENBERG
Francis, 333, 337
Peter (Gen.), 333, 337, 341
Major, 337
MUHLHEIM
George (Pvt.), 142
MUIR
James (Pvt.), 143
Soveren (Pvt.), 108
MULFORD
Enoch E. (Pvt.), 133
MULL
David (Pvt.), 133
MULLEN
Alexander (Corp.), 120
D. (Pvt.), 149
Joseph (Pvt.), 120
Martin Van B. (Pvt.), 120
Oliver (Pvt.), 120
MULQUEEN
Thomas (Pvt.), 159
MUMFORD
John D., 83
MUMMEL
George (Pvt.), 120
MUNDELL
Christine, 332
Emily Thompson, 326-327, 328
James (Pvt.), 134
J. D. (Capt.), 155
J. G., 331
J. G. (Sgt.), 155
James Grieve, 326-327
Janet, 331
John, 326-327, 328, 331
John David, 326-327, 330
Mary A. May, 326-327
Mary Renick, 326-327
Matty Maxwell, 326-327
Walter (Pvt.), 134
Walter M. (Pvt.), 134
Walter McIntosh, 326-327
MUNGER
Warren, Jr., 95
MUNN
Rev., 256

MUNNEMAKER
H. B., 567
MUNSON
E., 477
Marvin M., 549
MURCH
George W. (Pvt.), 131
MURDOCK
D. V. (Rev.), 519
MURLIN
John A. (Pvt.), 120
MURPHEY
Andrew, 414
MURPHY
Andrew, 448
B. (Pvt.), 150
Charles (Pvt.), 142
Daniel (Pvt.), 124
Ed, 341
F. M., 445
Hugh, 142
Jacob C. (Mrs.), 320
James, 308
James (Corp.), 135
Jane, 591
John (Corp.), 121, 146
John (Pvt.), 130
J. W., 308
Mariner M. (Sgt.), 137
Martha J., 308
Mary, 308
Michael (Pvt.), 114, 157
Nancy, 307
Peirson R. (Pvt.), 145
Peter (Pvt.), 140
Rachael A., 308
Samuel, Jr., 445
Samuel, Sr., 445
Thomas, 308
Thomas (Pvt.), 135, 159
William, 308
William (Pvt.), 130
Wilson, 307
Wilson, Jr., 308
MURRAY
Charles L., 560
Charles F. (Pvt.), 142
Edward (Pvt.), 115
John (Rev.), 522
Joseph, 395
Mary, 486
Reuben (Pvt.), 115
Theodore (Pvt.), 153
William E. (Pvt.), 141
MURRELL
W. R. (Pvt.), 125
MURREY
John (Dr.), 64
Reuben D. (Dr.), 64
MURRY
Bruce (Pvt.), 120
Jacob (Pvt.), 159
Joseph (Pvt.), 159
William (Pvt.), 140
MUSSELMAN
Jesse, 351, 357
Joseph E. (Pvt.), 125
MUSSER
Joseph M. (Pvt.), 138
MUSSEY
Dr., 272
MUSSEY continued
R. D. (Prof.), 236
MUSSULMAN
Jesse (Pvt.), 133
MUTTER
Joseph (Pvt.), 142
MUZZY
George (Pvt.), 133
MYERS
-----, 575
Allen, 181
Allen O., 161
Anna, 197, 303
Benjamin, 367
Charles (Pvt.), 139
Christopher, 250, 253, 257
C. W. (Corp.), 122
Dr. -----, 388-389
Ebenezer (Pvt.), 137
F., 205
Frank (Pvt.), 158
George, 190, 303
George (Pvt.), 139
George W., 194
G. W., 205
H. N. (Sgt.), 122
J. A. (Pvt.), 123
Jacob (Pvt.), 144
Jacob L., 293, 297
James (2nd Lt.), 150
Jane, 343
Joanna A., 300
Joseph, 300
Joseph (Pvt.), 135
Kate Noble, 91
L. D., 524
L. D. (Capt.), 162, 163
Louisa, 178
Martha, 324
Martin (Pvt.), 121
Mary A., 297
Matthias, 166
Peter, 263
Reason Y. (Pvt.), 141
Rev., 255
Richard, 343
Samuel, 129, 131
Samuel (Pvt.), 110
Thomas (Pvt.), 159
William (Pvt.), 144
William H. (Pvt.), 143

MC

MAC MULLIN
Mary J., 197
MC AFEE
Benjamin (Pvt.), 135
MC ALEER
Hugh (Pvt.), 156
MC ALLISTER
John, 124
W. S. (Pvt.), 154
MC ARTHUR
-----, 38, 205
Duncan, 42, 44, 50, 485, 491
Duncan (Gen.), 568, 583
Ex-Governor, 494, 495
J. T. (Pvt.), 148
Rev., 463
MC ARTHUR continued
Thomas J., 52
William, 47, 48, 181, 215, 356
William (Judge), 183
MC ATEE
Massy Ann, 322
MC ATER
Mary Ann, 319
MC BRIDE
H. C. (Rev.), 463
John (Pvt.), 107
William D. (Pvt.), 125
MC CABE
Casper, 200
H. (Pvt.), 150
Thomas (Pvt.), 126
William (Rev.), 278, 304
William K., 395
MC CAFFERTY
-----, 312, 463
Charles, 315, 316
Jason L. (Pvt.), 134
John, 307
John (Pvt.), 114
MC CAIN
William (Pvt.), 140
MC CALISTER
William (Pvt.), 126
MC CALLISTER
Gus L. (Pvt.), 135
I. W., 340
Joanna, 167
J. W., 333
William (Pvt.), 158
Winfield S., 167
MC CALUM
-----, 84
MC CAMMEL
William (Pvt.), 153
MC CAN
John, 493, 494
John G., 48
MC CARL
J. H. (Pvt.), 111
MC CARTHY
Cornelius, 395
John, 395
MC CARTNEY
W. H. (Pvt.), 112
MC CARTY
Albert (Pvt.), 120
Eugene (Pvt.), 138
Charles R. (Pvt.), 158
John, 531-532
Margaret, 531-532
S. (Pvt.), 115
MC CAULEY
Malvina, 372-373
MC CAULY
Ezra W. (Pvt.), 139
MC CAW
N. (Pvt.), 137
MC CEESE
John (Pvt.), 144
MC CHAN
J., 474
MC CLAIN
Andrew (Rev.), 296
John (Pvt.), 155
William (Pvt.), 107

MC CLANE
George W. (Pvt.), 120
MC CLAREY
W. H. (Pvt.), 112
MC CLARY
George (Pvt.), 143
James (Pvt.), 139
MC CLEARY
John H. (Pvt.), 144
Thomas (Rev.), 517
MC CLELAN
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 133
MC CLELLAN
Ann, 272
George B. (Gen.), 591
Maj. Gen., 94
Mark (Pvt.), 157
Rebecca, 272
Thomas, 272
MC CLELLAND
Eliza, 593
Henry C. (Pvt.), 147
MC CLENCHEY
Patrick (Pvt.), 130
MC CLINTICK
Joshua (Corp.), 156
MC CLINTOCK
-----, 94, 255
E. S., 309
Joseph, 312
Margaret, 311
Mary, 307
Rev., 430
MC CLISH
Henry (Pvt.), 154
James, 355, 444
William, 444
MC CLOUD
C. (Pvt.), 148
Catharine, 411
Casaden (Pvt.), 141
C. W. (Pvt.), 152
Francis (Pvt.), 107
George W., 393
Thomas, 475
W. (Pvt.), 147
MC CLUNG
Catharine Rigal, 483
Frederick (Pvt.), 159
John (Pvt.), 107
Joseph (Pvt.), 107
Samuel, 483
William B., 549
MC CLURE
Dr., 396-397
MC CLURG
Catharine Rigel, 412
John (Dr.), 103
MC CLUSKY
Joseph (Rev.), 519
MC COFFREY
William (Pvt.), 138
MC COLLISTER
-----, 204, 215
Anna, 320
Eliza, 320
Eliza Tanner, 288
Elizabeth, 321
Jacob, 319
John, 320
John (Pvt.), 125, 128
MC COLLISTER continued
Margaret, 320, 321
Maria, 320
Nelson, 320
Polly, 320
Robert, 320
Sarah, 320
Thomas, 285
William, 320
W. S., 208
MC COLLOCH
Samuel W. (Pvt.), 117
William M., 48
MC COLLOM
Dr., 453
MC COLLOUGH
William, 47
MC COLLUM
Miller (Pvt.), 158
Thomas, 401
William E. (Pvt.), 143
MC COLM
J. H., 556
MC COMB
-----, 449
Harriet J., 312
William, 461
MC COMBS
John R. (Pvt.), 131
John T. (Pvt.), 131
Samuel (Pvt.), 131
MC COMSEY
William A. (Pvt.), 110
MC CONKEY
John (Pvt.), 107
MC CONNEL
John G., 100
MC CONNELL
-----, 324
Andrew W. (Sgt.), 120
Dr., 497
John (Pvt.), 107
William (Pvt.), 139
MC CONVILLE
D., Jr., 543
MC COOK
George W. (Atty. Gen.), 547
Gen., 109
MC COOMBS
Samuel F., 131
MC CORD
Alexander (Pvt.), 107
Samuel (Pvt.), 142
MC CORMICK
Amos G. (Pvt.), 140
Charles (Pvt.), 145
F. A., 383
George, 45, 453, 516
George (Mrs.), 517
Nicholas (Pvt.), 139
R. Allen (Sgt.), 131
Thomas (Pvt.), 123
William (Corp.), 159
MC COURT
John, 100
MC COWEN
Joseph (Pvt.), 140
Miles M. (Pvt.), 140
Taylor J. (Pvt.), 140
MC COY
-----, 202, 375
MC COY continued
Alexander, 196-197, 312, 314, 416
Alexander (Mrs.), 314
Alexander (Pvt.), 126
Archibald, 465
Burt, 111
Burton, 196-197
Capt., 109
Catharine, 196-197
Colmore, 416
Drusilla, 196-197
Eliza, 378
Elizabeth, 196-197
George, 158
Hannah, 416
Harriet Ann, 196-197
Hugh P., 378
J. (Pvt.), 151
Jacob, 416
James, 105, 190, 196-197, 272, 378, 416
James (Pvt.), 126, 155
James C. (Col.), 582
Jane, 416
J. D., 315
John, 196-197, 380, 416
John (Corp.), 130
John (Pvt.), 158
John B. (Pvt.), 130
John E., 196-197
Joseph, 196-197
Joshua, 196-197
Martha, 196-197
Martha Jane, 196-197
Mary, 90
Mary A., 416
Mary Ann, 378
Milton, 196-197
Milton (Capt.), 110
Nancy, 196-197, 378
Phillip Anna, 196-197
Rebecca, 196-197, 378
Reed (Corp.), 158
Robert, 378
Robert W., 52, 508, 514, 5
R. W., 363, 562, 566, 582
Sallie Latimer, 491
Sally, 378
William, 196-197, 271, 416
Wm. A., 582
William (Pvt.), 130
Zippora, 378
MC CRACKEN
-----, 192
Henry, 492
Henry (Rev.), 516
Henry C. (Pvt.), 121
M., 495
Samuel, 542
Samuel (Gen.), 366, 545
Sam C. (Col.), 50, 54
Sam F. (Col.), 50, 54
William H. (Pvt.), 118
MC CRAE
Adam, 199, 204, 205
Eveline Amanda, 204-205
Fannie Delano, 204-205
George, 204-205
Isabella, 204-205
Janet Denny, 204-205

MC CRAE continued
Joseph, 204-205
Nelson Turney, 204-205
William, 204-205
MC CRARY
Hiram (Pvt.), 136
MC CREA
A., 190
Adam, 105, 268
Agnes, 199, 204, 205, 268
C. (Pvt.), 151
Evaline, 227
George, 268
Isabella Turney, 241
J. C., 315
Maria, 314
Martha, 204-205
Mary, 312
Matthew, 47, 104, 105, 182, 190, 204-205, 233, 268
William, 268
MC CREARY
Davis (Pvt.), 137
Robert (Pvt.), 142
MC CROBY
M. (Corp.), 111
MC CUE
Ferrel (Pvt.), 110
Martin (Pvt.), 158
MC CULLEN
-----, 450
MC CULLIC
Solomon (Pvt.), 123
MC CULLOCH
-----, 113
Henry A., 207
Samuel (Pvt.), 130
Samuel W., 165
W., 174
William, 184, 201
MC CULLOUGH
Fletcher (Lt.), 131
Harvey (Pvt.), 125
James (Pvt.), 118
John (Dr.), 465
Peter (Rev.), 296
Roette M. (Pvt.), 131
Samuel W. (Capt.), 240
Solomon, 495
William (Pvt.), 110
MC CULLUM
Samuel (Pvt.), 135
MC CUNE
Catharine, 96
Edward L., 96
James (Pvt.), 138
Joseph, 213
MC CURDY
H. H., 412-413, 415
J., 415
Lewis (Pvt.), 125
Robert Jr. (Corp.), 156
Sarah Jane Quinn, 412-413
MC CURTNEY
John, 522
MC CUTCHEN
John, 271
Thomas, 271
MC CUTCHEON
-----, 255
Elizabeth, 470
MC CUTCHEON continued
Hodge, 470
James, 470
Jane, 488
John, 268
John William, 470
Margaret, 470
Mary, 470, 474
Reed, 470
Robert, 470, 474
Robert, Jr., 470
Samuel, 470
William, 488
MC DANIEL
Charles, 344
MC DANNALD
Ada M., 468-469
Alexander C., 468-469
Bella, 468-469
C. E., 475
John Calvin, Illus. 468-469, 469
Lila, 468-469
O. C., 475
Samuel, 468-469
MC DERMITH
Emery (Sgt.), 156
MC DERMITT
John (Pvt.), 110
MC DERMOT
Clark (Surgeon), 110
MC DEVITT
Luke, 349
MC DONALD
Abraham (Pvt.), 121
Colonel, 26
G. (Corp.), 112
George (Pvt.), 121, 146
George A. (Pvt.), 143
George O. (Pvt.), 112
George (Mrs.), 531
J., 363
John (Pvt.), 127
Margaret Miller, 363
Nessley V. (Pvt.), 143
Rev. Dr., 238
Roderick (Pvt.), 129
Thomas, 319
W. A. (Pvt.), 112
William, 556
William (Pvt.), 136, 140, 157
MC DONNELL
Peter (Pvt.), 157
MC DORMAN
William (Pvt.), 115
MC DOWEL
James (Pvt.), 123
MC DOWELL
Abram I., 45
A. J., 556
Abram J., 45, 50, 54, 514
Abram J. (Col.), 50
A. J., Jr., 520
Amanda Davis, 291
Ann Irvin, 65
Catharine H. Nett, 289
Irwin (Gen.), 514
J. A., 46
James (Pvt.), 114
J. Adair (Judge), 64
MC DOWELL continued
John A., 65, 92
John A. (Judge), 44, 45, 47
J. C. (Corp.), 114
John H., 44
Joseph, 364, 508
Lucy J., 492
Lucy Todd, 65
Mary, 69
Robert, 289
Samuel, 65
MC ELERY
F. (Pvt.), 155
MC ELLER
Elles (Pvt.), 158
MC ELRAIN
Andrew, 489
MC ELROY
C. H. (Maj.), 93
MC ELVAIN
-----, 507
A., 361
Andrew, 45, 48
Andrew (Capt.), 551
Andrew (Col.), 51, 285, 507, 508, 513
James, 397, 402
John, 45, 548, 551
Joseph, 45, 47
Joseph (Col.), 515
Samuel, 402, 513
S. P., 47
William, 44, 46, 559
MC ELWAYNE
John (Pvt.), 107
MC EWEN
Boston M. (Pvt.), 157
R. S., 560
W. S. (Pvt.), 129
MC EWING
J. (Pvt.), 149
MC FADDEN
John, 319
Thomas, 477, 479, 481
Thomas (Surgeon), 119
William (Pvt.), 143
MC FADEN
John C. (Pvt.), 125
MC FALL
Charles (Pvt.), 110
MC FARLAND
A., 165
Clark M. (Pvt.), 141
George W. (Pvt.), 130
Isaac (Pvt.), 137
James, 296
R. W., 560
R. W. (Prof.), 550, 560
William, 510
William H. (Pvt.), 130
MC FEETERS
John (Sgt.), 125
W. K. (Corp.), 134
MC FETERS
Charles, 335
MC FETRIDGE
Michael (Pvt.), 110
MC GAFFEY
Neil, 98, 184
MC GARRITY
William, 355

MC GARVY
Morris (Pvt.), 107
MC GATH
-----, 385
A., 295
Babel (Pvt.), 108
Henry, 295
John L. (Pvt.), 117
S., 315
Samuel, 313
Samuel W. (Pvt.), 128
William (Pvt.), 108
Willis (Pvt.), 156
MC GEE
M., 524
MC GHEE
Joseph, 332
MC GILL
Anthony (Pvt.), 120
Anthony (Corp.), 129
Dr., 414
Goodhue, 383
John F. (Pvt.), 130
William H. (Lt.), 155
MC GINNIS
-----, 323
Andrew N. (Corp.), 157
MC GIVEN
Charles (Dr.), 389
MC GLOCHLIN
Abram (Pvt.), 115
MC GOVERN
P. (Corp.), 115
MC GOWAN
John, 498, 511, 512
MC GRADY
Thomas, 53
MC GRAH
Madge R., 89
MC GRANAHAN
Elizabeth, 403
MC GRATLE
W. (Pvt.), 114
MC GREGOR
Capt., 245
MC GREW
Alice, 368
James (Mrs.), 531
W., 365
MC GROOM
Elizabeth, 386
MC GUFFEY
Jane, 87
John, 87, Illus. 450
John G., 89, 428-429
Linda, 87
May, 87
Pamalia, 87, Illus. 450
Lida H., 428-429
Wm. H., 87
MC GUIER
I. G., 575
MC GUINNESS
Michael (Pvt.), 144
MC GUIRE
Andrew (Pvt.), 140, 143
Frank (Pvt.), 130
John (Pvt.), 127, 130
Z., 400
Zachariah, 415
MC GWIRE
MC GWIRE continued
Patrick (Pvt.), 139
MC HENRY
David, 104
D. H., 433
Isaac, 288, 290
Margaret Chenowith, 433
MC HORTON
Thomas (Pvt.), 123
MC HUGH
John (Corp.), 117
MC ILVAIN
David (Pvt.), 130
William, 366
MC ILVAINE
-----, 406
Rt. Rev. Bishop, 185
G. (Corp.), 111
MC ILVANE
John F. (Pvt.), 120
MC INTIRE
Henry (Pvt.), 145, 146
Mary, 461
Sarah, 461
William, 461
MC INTOSH
Jannett, 326-327
MC INTYRE
Abigail, 397, 402
Joseph, 464
MC KEE
Addison G. (Pvt.),
Addison G. (Corp), 153
Calvin (Pvt.), 136
George C. (Corp.), 155
Lawrence (Pvt.), 124
Walter (Pvt.), 114
William (Pvt.), 131
MC KEEVER
Elliott B. (Pvt.), 157
MC KEIRNAN
L. P. (Rev.), 449
MC KELVEY
Jemima, 441
James (Sgt.), 123
MC KENNON
-----, 190
MC KENZIE
Duncan (Pvt.), 158
William (Pvt.), 153
William (Sgt.), 118
MC KILIPS
Alexander (Pvt.), 114
MC KILVER
Peter (Sgt.), 120
MC KINAHAN
Thomas (Pvt.), 158
MC KINLEY
A. S. (Pvt.), 149
Abel S. (Pvt.), 144
Able Seymour, 338-339
Alexander, 337, 338
Alexander, Sr., Illus. 338-339
Alexandra, 338-339
Cornelius, 338-339
Cornelius (Pvt.), 155
D. (Pvt.), 149
David, 434
Edward (Pvt.), 134
Elias (Pvt.), 119
MC KINLEY continued
Ellen Balan, 338-339
Elizabeth Chenowith, 434, 438
Harriet, 338-339, 434
J. (Pvt.), 150
James, 338-339, 434
John, 337, Illus. 338-339, 434
John (Pvt.), 138
John (Rev.), 331, 340
John Wesley, 338-339, 434
Joseph, 290, 338-339, 434
Joseph (Pvt.), 155
Joseph Hill, 338-339
Lizzie Wilcoxson, 338-339
Margaret Millar, 338-339
Mary, 338-339, 434
Mary Ann Williamson, Illus. 338-339
Mary E. Davis, 338-339
Marcus, 338-339
Nancy, 393
R. B. (Pvt.), 151
Robert, 338-339
Russell, 434
Russell B., 338-339
S. (Pvt.), 151
Samuel (Pvt.), 155
Sarah J., 338-339, 434
Sarah Jane, 338-339
Seymour, 434
Sophia Williamson, Illus. 338-339, 434
Stephen, 338-339
Susan, 434
Susan T., 338-339
W. (Pvt.), 151
William, 434, 127, 155
William H., 338-339
MC KINLOY
William (Corp.), 155
MC KINNEY
-----, 565
James (Pvt.), 119
John (Pvt.), 159
Jonathan (Pvt.), 155
Samuel C. (Corp.), 131
Theodore T., 131
Westley (Pvt.), 139
MC KINSEY
John R. (Pvt.), 129
Joseph (Pvt.), 139
MC KITRICK
Israel (Pvt.), 140
MC KNIGHT
Albert (Pvt.), 155
Elizabeth, 441
Jacob (Pvt.), 110, 135
Sarah, 310
William P. (Pvt.), 125
MC KOWN
C. (Pvt.), 112
MC LAIN
Charles, 182
Charles L. (Pvt.), 131
James (Pvt.), 135
Thomas J., 431
MC LANE
-----, 93, 257
Elizabeth, 353
G. (Pvt.),

MC LANE continued
George, 353
General, 551
Jacob, 353
John, 190, 353
Mary, 353
Nancy, 353
Rev., 463
Robert G. (Dr.), 395, 458
Washington, 285, 353
William (Pvt.), 110
William H. (Corp.), 115
Zachariah, 353
MC LAUGHLIN
-----, 40, 534
Alexander, 510, 511, 582
George (Pvt.), 117
James (Pvt.), 139, 140
Wm., 166, 167
MC LEAN
-----, 513
Charles, 201, 202
J. (Pvt.), 114
Jeremiah, 43, 63
John (Judge), 542-543
Nathaniel, 51, 517, 541, 551, 559
R. G., 331, 396
Washington, 17
MC LEARY
William (Pvt.), 144
MC LEOD
Alex (Rev.), 184
MC LENE
Eliza, 65
Jeremiah, 40, 44, 541
John, 49
General, 46, 51
Jeremiah (Gen.), 65
MC LEOD
A. L., 482
Alfred, 475
Charles, 475
Dr.-------, 479
Rebecca, 475
MC MAHAN
Thomas (Pvt.), 121
MC MAHON
Samuel (Pvt.), 141
T., 162
Timothy (Pvt.), 142
MC MAINES
Robert (Corp.), 124
MC MAINS
R. S., 517
MC MANANNY
David (Pvt.), 124
James (Pvt.), 124
MC MANAWAY
Judy, 486
MC MANIS
John (Pvt.), 125
MC MANN
George (Pvt.), 159
J., 202
John (Pvt.), 159
MC MANUS
James (Pvt.), 133
MC MASTER
Hugh, 101
Hugh (Pvt.), 143
MC MASTERS
-----, 283
John C. (Pvt.), 134
Kate, 285
MC MATH
A. (Pvt.), 114
MC MELLIN
J. H. (Pvt.), 155
MC MICKEN
Sarah, 266-267
MC MILLAN
Dr., 182
William (Rev.), 190
MC MILLEN
Alfred (Pvt.), 156
George, 544
John (Pvt.), 130
Samuel M. (Pvt.), 142
W. L. (Dr.), 569
William L. (Col.), 129
William W. (Sgt.), 123
MC MULLEN
-----, 204
Richard (Pvt.), 157
Thomas (Pvt.), 145
William (Pvt.), 121
MC MULLIN
S. H. (Rev.), 182, 228
MC NALLEY
James (Corp.), 129
MC NALLEN
James (Pvt.), 122
MC NALLY
Anthony (Pvt.), 115
MC NARY
Rev., 463
MC NAUGHTEN
Tunis, 465
MC NEAL
-----, 92
Anna, 283
Elijah (Pvt.), 121
Erastus R. (Lt.),
J. (Pvt.), 150
James (Pvt.), 121, 141
John, 42, 48, 213
Julia, 364
Martin (Pvt.), 143
Reese, 283
Thomas, 213
Thomas (Pvt.), 121
William, 213
William F. (Pvt.), 136
MC NEIL
John, 98
John H. (Pvt.), 130
MC NELLIS
John (Pvt.), 125
MC NEMAR
Philip, 319, 320
MC NIEMER
Jacob (Pvt.), 157
MC KNIGHT
A. (Pvt.), 151
MC NINCH
Joseph, 364
MC NORTON
T. R., 495, 496
MC NULTY
P. (Pvt.), 147
Rob Roy, 516
MC NUTT
John, 564
MC OWENS
Daniel (Pvt.), 133
MC PHERSON
Alexander (Pvt.), 129
Daniel W., 47
General, 540
W. D., 165
MC RILL
Harvey A. (Pvt.), 130
Joshua L. (Pvt.), 120
MC ROBERTS
J. B. (Sgt.), 111
John B. (Corp.), 112
MC ROSS
Samuel (Pvt.), 157
MC SHOALER
J. G., 44
MC SCHOOLER
Justus G. (Capt.), 125
MC UTCHEN
-----, 120
Henry (Pvt.), 120
MC VAY
Homer (Rev.), 463
MC VEIGH
Joseph P. (Pvt.), 135
MC WHIRK
George, 479
MC WHORTEN
James B., 543
MC WILLIAMS
James (Pvt.), 130
Marshall (Pvt.), 145
MC YATH
William (Pvt.), 127

N

NABOL
Henry (Pvt.), 125
NABOR
Andrew (Pvt.), 122
NADEN
Elder, 463
NAGHTEN
-----, 570
William, 554
NAGLE
S. (Pvt.), 151
NALES
Leo (1st Lt.), 114
NAPER
William (Pvt.), 107
NAPP
George (Pvt.), 132
NAPPER
Richard (Pvt.), 159
William H. (Pvt.), 159
NASH
-----, 96
D. H., 427
George K., 45, 93, 96, 102
J. (Pvt.), 111
Rev., 407
R. L., 185
William, 191
NASHEE
George, 160
NATION

NATION continued
P., 184
Philip, 255, 308
Philip (Rev.), 296
NAU
Jacob, 457
Mary, 457
NAY
Jeremiah, 462
NEAFANG
Adam (Pvt.), 142
NEAL
David (Pvt.), 133
John C. (1st Lt. & Adj.), 114
John W. (Pvt.), 142
M. H., 104
Thomas (Corp.), 110
NEALY
George (Rev.), 383
Joseph A. (Pvt.), 135
NEDDS
Henry (Pvt.), 153
NEDLEY
John (Pvt.), 158
NEEDELS
Andrew, 444
Anna, 444
C. F., 453
Cubbidge, 454, 444, 446
Eliza A., 444, 456
Enoch A. (Pvt.), 132
George, 444, 447, Illus. 449, 454
John, 444
Laura Alice, 457
Philemon, 444, 447, 457
Rachel, 444, 455, 456
Rebecca, 444, 454
Sarah, 454
Thomas, 454, 456
Thomas Stanton, 457
NEEDHAM
John (Pvt.), 154 NEEDLES
George W., Illus. 456, 457
Isaiah, 414
J. H. (Pvt.), 148
Joel (Pvt.), 131
NEELY
J. W., 331
NEERCAMER
Otis (Pvt.), 153
NEEREAMER
Jonathan, 47
O. M. (2nd Lt.), 146
NEETER
Loyd (Pvt.), 144
NEFF
-----, 285
Abraham, 302
Benniwell (Pvt.), 130
Clarissa, 386
E. G., 365
Elizabeth, 386
George, 291
George S. W. (Pvt.), 127
J. S., 47
John, 386
John G., 383, 386
Joseph (Pvt.), 127
Leonard, 386
NEFF continued
Martin (Pvt.), 127
Martin V. (Pvt.), 134
McDowell, 386
Nathaniel (Pvt.), 127
Philip (Pvt.), 118
Scott, 386, 387
NEIBERLINE
George (Pvt.), 142
Lenhart (Pvt.), 142
NEIBLING
C. C., 47, 181, 192
John (Sgt.), 107
NEIGHLOR
George (Pvt.), 137
NEIL -----, 242
Alex, 567
Alexander (Dr.), 103
Anne Eliza, 78, 94
Hannah, 106, 530
Henry M. (Capt.), 159
J. (Pvt.), 112
John (Pvt.), 112
John B. (Adj.), 119
Rev., 527
Robert, 44, 49, 55, Illus. 432-433, 522, 564
Robert E., 55, 538
William, 49, 54, 57, 60, 78, Illus. 432-433
William A., 565, 576
NEISWANDER
Adam, 412-413
Eliz. Quinn, 412-413, 488
NEISWENDER
Barbara, 399
Frederick, 400, 484
G., 487
Godfrey, 399
H. (Pvt.), 147
Mary Ridenaur Turney, 484
Michael, 399, 487
Peter, 488
Polly, 385
R. (Pvt.), 147
Samuel, 399, 487
T. (Pvt.), 147
William, 385
NEISWERNER
Thomas H. (Pvt.), 138
NEISWINDER
Wagoner T., 153
NELSON
Alexander (Rev.), 296, 297
Charles H. (Musician), 121
David, 40, 515
David, Sr., 497, 499, 500
David, Jr., 497, 498, 500
General, 109, 126
John, 526
John (Sgt.), 156, 157
John H. (Pvt.), 159
John J., 497
John, Jr., 500
Lydia, 361, 583
Martha, 498
Mary Taylor, 497
Robert, 497
Thomas (Pvt.), 158
NENDING
NENDING continued
J. T., 208
NEPP
Hiram (Pvt.), 130
NERSMITH
C. J. (Pvt.), 151
NESBETH
-----, 335
NESLER
A. (Pvt.), 111
NESSLER
William (Lt.), 120
NESTEY
Martin V. (Pvt.), 157
NEVELS
S. (Corp.), 112
NEVIL
Henry, 42, 48
NEVILL
Henry, 56, 218, 268, 270, 322
Margaret, 268
NEVILLE
-----, 351
Henry, 204, 205, 347
Henry (Pvt.), 135
James, 344
Morgan (Pvt.), 153
NEVINS
John, 326
Louisa, 531
Richard, 162, 554, 163
Samuel (Pvt.), 112
NEVITT
Thomas A., 111
Thomas A. (Corp.), 112
NEVY
John, 281
NEWBERRY
Dr., 169, 170, 171-173
NEWBOLD
Mary Henry, 412
NEWBURGH
A. B., 556
NEWCOM
Rudolph (Pvt.), 137
NEWCOMB
J. (Pvt.), 149
James A. (Sgt.),
Lottie, 479
NEWELL
-----, 251
Benjamin, 257
John W. (Pvt.), 159
Newell (Pvt.), 139
Ransom H. (Pvt.), 130
NEWHOUSE
John (Pvt.), 141
NEWLAND
William H. (Pvt.), 121
NEWLOVE
John (Pvt.), 110
J. W., 101
NEWMAN
Eliza, 275
Henry (Pvt.), 140
Ignitious (Sgt.), 159
NEWPARK
John A. (Pvt.), 130
NEWTON
Adelaide, 188

NEWTON continued
E. (Pvt.), 151
George (Pvt.), 159
Isaac, 420
James B. (Pvt.), 126
J. D., 206
N., 189
Nahum, 188
NEWZERN
David P. (Pvt.), 143
NICELY
C. W., 465
William J. (Pvt.), 129
NICHOLAS
G. (Pvt.), 111
H. H., 201
W. H., 181
NICHOLS
Harvey, 465
Mary, 262
Susan, 437
Townsend, 47
W. H., 208
W. R. (Pvt.), 151
William, 388
William R. (Pvt.), 156
NICHOLSON
Levi (Pvt.), 145
Theophilus, 273
W. H., 101
William, 279
NICK
Christian (Sgt.), 137
NICKENS
Henry, 208
Lewellyn (Pvt.), 145
NICKERSON
Isachar (Pvt.), 107
John (Pvt.), 130
NICKLE
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 135
Henry (Pvt.), 125
Philip (Pvt.), 125
NICKLES
Joseph (Pvt.), 130
NICKOLI
Frederick (Pvt.), 145
NICKSON
Catharine, 306
NICLE
Aaron (Pvt.), 137
NICOL
Reuben (Pvt.), 145
NICOLS
Franklin (Pvt.), 124
NIEBLING
C. C., 204, 209
NIESEAMER
John F. (Pvt.), 146
NIESLEY
Christian B. (Pvt.), 146
NIGH
Adams, 47
NIGHTENGALE
-----, 181
NIHIGER
Joseph (Pvt.), 156
NILES
O. E., 193
Orsamus E., 48, 279
NISWANDER
NISWANDER continued
Mary, 102
NISWARNER
Frank (Pvt.), 143
NITHARD
George (Pvt.), 108
NOACKER
Catharine, 356
Clarissa, 356
Diana, 356
Henry, 353, 356
John, 352, 356
Mary, 356
Peter, 356
Phebe, 356
Sophronia, 356
William, 356
NOBLE
-----, 538
Catharine, 81
Catharine Turney, 484
Elizabeth J., 81
Dr.------, 339
H. C., 95
H. P. (Pvt.), 149
Henry C., 7, 81, 93, 102, Illus. 512-513, 585, 592
J. (Pvt.), 149, 152
John, 81, Illus. 512-513, 554
John (Col.), 562
J. H., 313
Jonathan, 471
Luther (Pvt.), 130
Phebe Turney, 484
Samuel, 251, Illus. 512-513
Samuel (Mrs.), Illus. 512-513
Seth (Rev.), 511, 512, 582, 583
Simon J. (Pvt.), 140
W. H. (Pvt.), 146
Warren P., 549
NOBLES
Edward, 482
Sarah J. Shrock, 482
NODROR
David (Pvt.), 156
NOE
Andrew (Pvt.), 153
Andrew J., 467
Daniel M., 467
Daniel M. Sr., 467
David Pugh, 467
Isabella, 467
Mary, 467
Permelia, 468
Williams, 467
NOEL
John, 52
NOEMAN
Nelson F. (Pvt.), 115
NOFZGER
Polly, 488
NOGEL
Jacob (Pvt.), 117
NOGLE
Isaac (Pvt.), 115
NOICE
George W. (Pvt.), 159
NOLAN
NOLAN continued
Cornelius (Pvt.), 124
NOLD
Jacob (Pvt.), 108
NOLEN
Anna, 96
Edward (Pvt.), 140
Martin J., 96
NOLIN
Susan, 311
NOLLENDORF
Kleistfun, 590
NONAMAKER
A., 105
NONEMAKER
John (Pvt.), 137
NONNAMAKER
Andrew, 192-193
NONNEMACHER
Joseph (Pvt.), 122
NOONAN
William, 215
NORICK
David (Pvt.), 136
NORMAN
J., 202
Jonas (Sgt.), 158
M. (Pvt.), 154
William (Rev.), 191
NORRIS
Anna, 297
Benjamin, 307
Eleanor, 307
Elizabeth, 307
F. W., 465
Frederick W. (Pvt.), 120
Henry, 158
Joseph (Pvt.), 159
T. B., 383
T. B. (Dr.), 383
Thomas (Pvt.), 136, 139, 140
William (Pvt.), 108
NORTH
Henry, 257
NORTHROP
William W. (Corp.), 159
NORTON
E. D., 257
G. H. (Rev.), 520
Greenleaf C. (Asst. Surg.), 119
Henry, 370
James, 370
Jedediah, 419
J. S. (Mrs.), 531
Sydney A., 550
T. I. (Pvt.), 148
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
William, 434
NOTHSTINE
Absalom, 353
A. C., 280
Anna, 353
Christine, 353
Daniel, 353
David, 353
E. A. (Mrs.), 280
Eliza, 353
Frank, 353
Henry, 351
Henry W., 353

NORTHSTINE continued
Jacob, 353
John, 353
Jonathan, 353
Joseph, 353
Louis Lafayette, 353
Mary, 353
Peter, 353
Susan, 353
Tina, 353
NOTSON
William M., 565
NOTT
D. D. Samuel, 238
NOURSE
----, 424
C. C. (Gen.), 95
J. D. (Dr.), 465
John D., 465
NOWELL
J. (Pvt.), 111
Robert G. M. (Pvt.), 141 NOXON
Jos. G., 184
NOYER
Benjamin, 355
Catharine, 355
Jacob, 355
John, 355
Samuel, 355
Rachel, 355
NOYES
Gov., 94, 227
NUFF
William, 55
NUNEMAKER
H. B. (Dr.), 367
NUSBAUM
Judah, 527
NUTT
Edward, 472
John, 475
Sally, 475
NUTTER
B. S. (Pvt.), 151
Benjamin (Pvt.), 127
L., 434
L. (Pvt.), 149
Rachel Huffman, 434 NYE
Adam J., 257
Captain, 282
C. C. (Musician), 122
F. W., 257
George, 449
George (Pvt.), 145
H. R. (Rev.), 525
J. Adams, 54
John A., 54
John H. (Pvt.), 142

O.

OAKLEY
David, 463
E. (Pvt.), 112
William E. (Pvt.), 159
OAKS
Oliver S. (Pvt.), 146
OATS
John (Pvt.), 157
O'BANION
Margaret, 343
OBERDIER
William (Pvt.), 119
OBITZ
Catharine, 585
Charles, 585
O'BRIEN
John (Pvt.), 121
O'BRYAN
Richard (Pvt.), 140
OCHL
Albert (Pvt.), 122
OCHS
Gustavus, 499
Herman, 499
Mitalda Henthe, 499
O'CONNEL
Michael (Pvt.), 133, 139
O'CONNELL
John (Pvt.), 125
William (Pvt.), 125
ODALL
John (Pvt.), 130
O'DANIELS
Edmund (Pvt.), 110
O'DAY
George W. (Pvt.), 141
O'DAY
James, 434
ODELL
Edward (Pvt.), 131
Moses (Pvt.), 131
ODEN
Lewis N. (Pvt.), 159
ODENTHAL
J. (Pvt.), 148
ODERFELD
Henry (2nd Lt.), 122
ODIN
Marwin (Pvt.), 110
O'DONNEL
David (Pvt.), 125
O'DONNELL
James, 162
OEHLER
Reuben (Capt.), 137
OESTRINGER
Peter (Pvt.), 108
OFF
George (Pvt.), 111
OFORDAPOR
Robert (Pvt.), 108
O'GARRA
Thomas (Pvt.), 125
OGBORN
John H. (Pvt.), 120
OGBURN
Wilkins, 315
OGDEN
A. (Capt.), 114
Clara L., 91
C. S., 415
F. (Pvt.), 147
John (Prof.), 91, 428, 429
Moses, 398, 399
Nelson (Pvt.), 142, 157
S., 415
T. W. (Pvt.), 114
OGILVIE
William N. (Pvt.), 145
OGLE
Henry (Pvt.), 126
Van M., 134
William (Pvt.), 157
OGLEBEE
Layton (Pvt.), 140
OGLESBEE
Joseph D. (Pvt.), 141
O'HAIL
James (Pvt.), 138
O'HANERS
Charles H. (Pvt.), 159
O'HARA
-----, 373
Arthur, 46, 361, 364, 394, 395
Benjamin, 346
Jacob, 346
Mary, 344, 345, 346, 395
Priscilla, 346
Susan, 330
O'HARRA
Bartley, 362
Captain, 551
Gates, 55
George W., 557
Harvey (Sgt.), 158
H. B. (Lt.), 140, 155, 332
Hugh, 395
Hugh (1st Sgt.), 118
Irvin (Pvt.), 158
James, 130, 417
James G., 130
James I., 157
John (Pvt.), 117, 130
John C. (Sgt.), 156
Joseph, 103, 346, 417
M. (Corp.), 112
M. M. (Pvt.), 138
Nancy, 392
Nathan (Pvt.), 140
Rhoda Walcutt, 362
Thomas, 383
William (Pvt.), 130
William H. (Pvt.), 140
O'HERN
Daniel (Pvt.), 110
OHL
Frank McK., 237
Frederick Robertson, 237
J. F. (Rev.), 237
Josiah K., 237
Louisa R., 237
Mary, 237
O'KANE
Henry, 519
James, 465
OKEY
George B., 96
J. W. (Judge), 96
OLAHAM
James (Pvt.), 153
O'LARY
Daniel (Pvt.), 158
O'LAUGHLIN
A. (Pvt.), 151
Anthony (Pvt.), 156
OLDFIELD
William, 101
OLDHAM
-----, 382

OLDHAM continued
A. (Pvt.), 152
A. W. (Pvt.), 149
Cumberland (Pvt.), 139
OLDS
-----, 93, 96, 202
C., 199
C. A. (Pvt.), 150
C. A. (Sgt.), 154
Chauncey N., 65, 82, 83, 90, 92, 93, 95, 98, 99, 102, 194, 318
Chauncey U., 182
Chester (Dr.), 182, 192, 196, 197, 208, 216, 217, 290
Edson B. (Dr.), 43, 166, 174, 180, 181, 192, 200, 206, 208, 216, 234
Joseph, 43, 44, 47, 53, 82, 98, 99, 105, 174, 181, 192, 200, 216, 220, 221, 234, 239, 347, 542, 576
Joseph C., 165
Joseph E. (Corp.), 115, 117
Joseph H., 92
Lemuel (Pvt.), 121
Lyman N., 199, 206, 208
S. H., 208
OLIPHANT
Jane, 321
Perry, 321
Thomas, 321
William, 319
OLIVER
John T. (2nd Lt.), 149
J.Q.A., 202
J. T. (2nd Lt.), 154
Thomas (Pvt.), 140
OLLINGER
John (Pvt.), 146
OLMSTEAD
Farin, 405
P. H., 101, 427, 551, 562
P. H. (Col.), 160
OLMSTED
Charles H., 515
Chloe, 469
Francis, 469, 514
Philo, 514
Philo H., 44, 520
OLNEY
Frederick (Pvt.), 143
OLSTAT
Daniel (Pvt.), 153
OLSTATT
William (Pvt.), 111
OLSTOT
Daniel (Pvt.), 139
O'MAN
Emanuel (Pvt.), 155
S. (Pvt.), 151
OMAN
Levi (Pvt.), 117
Moses, 277
OMBAUGH
-----, 89
OMELIA
Patrick (Pvt.), 133
OMEN
Emmanuel (Pvt.), 146
ONAAS
Augustus (Pvt.), 130
O'NEAL
Fanny, 385
George W. (Pvt.), 133
J. (Pvt.), 151
James, 207
J. M., 309
Marshall (Pvt.), 139
O'NEIL
James (Pvt.), 119, 155
ONG
Joseph, 365
Lewis, 365
ONIO
Joslah, 123
OPPERMAN
Ernst (Pvt.), 117
ORAHOOD
J. D., 315
ORBARISKE
David (Corp.), 122
ORDERS
Allen, 385
Fanny, 385
George W. (Pvt.), 140
Jonas, 384
Jonas (Pvt.), 133
Joshua, 385
Mary, 385
Michael, 385
Phebe, 385
Sarah, 385
OREBAUGH
E. G., 161
O'REILEY
Patrick (Pvt.), 139
ORESBACK
M. E. (Pvt.), 150
ORFWOOD
Thomas, 105
ORGAN
W. H. (Pvt.), 114
ORIHOOD
Abraham, 496
O'RILEY
John (Pvt.), 120
ORISON
Samuel, 319
ORMSBY
Oscar, 47
O. (Pvt.), 149
ORNST
Simon K. (Pvt.), 142
ORORAK
Minnerva J., 456
William, 456
ORPWOOD
T. (Pvt.), 149
Thomas, 204
Thomas (Pvt.), 154
ORR
-----, 204
Abraham S. (Pvt.), 156
James H., 586
Noah, 373
William (Pvt.), 135
ORRISON
Anthony W. (Pvt.), 146
ORTHAFER
Catharine, 587
ORTHAFER continued
Francis, 587
Henry, 587
ORTMAN
Bartholomew (Pvt.), 130
D. (Pvt.), 147
David, 400
J. H. (Pvt.), 147
ORTON
Edward (Prof.), 550
ORWIG
W. W. (Rev.), 229
OSBORN
Catharine, 248, 97
Charles L., 562
E. L. (Pvt.), 147
Ezra, 52
Frank (Pvt.), 146
George (Pvt.), 107
James, 98
J. D., 592
J. D. (Mrs.), 238
Jane Denny Turney, 97
Jennett, 235
J. R., 98
Peter (Pvt.), 145
R., 47, 51
Ralph, 44, 46, 97, 205, 235, 248, 363, 431, 508, 541, 551
Sarah, 235
Seth (Pvt.), 145
William H. (Pvt.), 145
OSBORNE
George (Col.), 469
J. W. (Rev.), 524
Ralph (Mrs.), 528
OSBOURN
Usual, 40
OSBOURNE
Catharine, 283
Ralph, 283
OSBURN
Wilton (Pvt.), 132
OSBURNE
Thompson E. (Pvt.), 133
OSGOOD
-----, 164
Elijah R. (Pvt.), 141
James W., 524
Joel (Rev.), 296
Richard H. (Sgt.), 156
Richard H. (1st Lt.), 141
W. (Pvt.), 147
O'SHAY
Bryan (Pvt.), 145
OSMAN
John W. (Pvt.), 123
OTIS
James, 234
John, 234
W. D. (Dr.), 103
OTSTOTTD
J. (Sgt.), 111
OTSTOTTS
Daniel (Pvt.), 146
Elizabeth, 499
OTT
Christopher (Pvt.), 122
J. F. (Pvt.), 150
OTTERBEIN

OTTERBEIN continued
Phillip William, 480
OUTCULT
Harrison, 465
OUTHWAITE
Ellen R., 89
George, 89
Harriet Hudson, 89
Joseph H., 45, 89, 500
OVERDIER
David, 556
Henry (Pvt.), 131
Jacob, 361, 507
OVERMIRE
Benjamin, 364
OVERS
George W. (Pvt.), 139
OVERTERF
William (Rev.), 296
OWELY
Benjamin (Pvt.), 159
OWEN
A., 475
Alexander (Rev.), 481
Frederick (Pvt.), 127
Mary Davis, 291
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 110
OWENGS
Perry (Pvt.), 134
OWENS
Gabriel (Pvt.), 139
George, 285
James, 285
John (Pvt.), 121
John D. (Pvt.), 137
Mary, 264
Mary A., 319, 322
Richard (Pvt.), 140
Samuel, 319
Samuel M., 319, 322, 323
William, 319, 322
OYER
David (Pvt.), 124
Jonas (Pvt.), 124
William (Pvt.), 124
OZMAN
T. (Pvt.), 154

P.

PACE
John M. (Pvt.), 153
PACELLS
J. (Pvt.), 111
PACKMAN
C. (Pvt.), 150
PADDOCK
-----, 428
----- (Dr.), 427
PADGET
Aaron (Pvt.), 159
PAFTS
Joseph (Pvt.), 146
PAGE
Charles A. (Pvt.), 146
Clem (Pvt.), 146
Henry F., 98, 190
J. (Pvt.), 149
James (Pvt.), 123
Walter B., 95
PAGE continued
William, 422
William F. (Dr.), 103
PAINE
Gustavus (Pvt.), 145
Joseph (Pvt.), 141
Roswell (Pvt.), 107
PAINTER
E. (Pvt.), 150
Isaac, 398, 399
John (Pvt.), 131
Lewis, 399, 465
Louis, 400
Peter (Pvt.), 131
PALACHER
H. C., 299
PALEM
James O. (Pvt.), 138
PALENTINE
A. D. (Pvt.), 150
PALIN
Eugene H. (Pvt.), 133
PALM
John T. (Pvt.), 125
PALMER
C. F., 477
Enoch (Pvt.), 130
Ethan, 468
Joshua (Corp.), 110
Levilla, 473
Loretta, 469
Luther (Pvt.), 107
Peter, 396
Peter (Pvt.), 114
Samuel C. (Pvt.), 143
T. (Pvt.), 149
Theodore (Pvt.), 154
Thomas, 461
William, 498
PALSGROVE
Daniel (Pvt.), 136
PANCAKE
-----, 188
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 130
Isaac, 319
John, 319
Joseph, 319
PANCOST
Isiah, 316
Samuel, 316
PANGBURN
Charles E. (Pvt.), 138
PARAMORE
Eliza, 422
PARCELL
Peter, 205
PARCELLS
J. (Pvt.), 150
PARCELS
Peter, 104
PARISH
Arris, 44
John, 65, 66
John R., 44-45, 66
Levi, 65
Lucy, 384
M., 385, 387
Mary, 66
Nancy, 385
Orris, 65, 66, 92, 363, 428, 508, 513
PARISH continued
Roswell, 66
Rubin, 65
Zurilla, 65
PARK
Abner, 473
Abraham, 166
Amos, 478, 486
Charles K. (Pvt.), 156
David P. (Pvt.), 123
Edward, 321
Ezekiel, 412, 413
Horton (1st Lt.), 141
I. (Pvt.), 147
J. (Mrs.), 102
Hulburt H., 421
James, 55, 484, 486, 488, 489
J. E., 413
John, 321
Jonathan, 421
Julliette, 421
Margaret Agler, 484, 486
Prentiss, 319, 321
Rev., 463
Rodney J., 421
Rufus H. (Pvt.), 121
S. (Pvt.), 149
Silas W., 45
Sarah, 486
S. M., 477
Sophia A., 421
Sylvia M., 421
W. F., 413
William S., 421
Z. (Pvt.), 147
PARKE
William H. (3rd Class), 119
PARKER
-----, 300
A. H. (Pvt.), 147
A. J. (Pvt.), 151
Alfred (Corp.), 132
Allen, 269
Andrew J. (Pvt.), 156
B. F., 307
Charles (Lt.), 158
Cyrus, 81, 520
David W. (Pvt.), 135
E., 314
Eden, 315
Edwin (Pvt.), 130
Francis S. (Capt.), 114, 125
George (Pvt.), 135
George W. (Pvt.), 156
J. B., 315
John, 302, 309
Mary D., 307
Reason B. (Musician), 121
Richard, 63
Samuel (Rev.), 321
S. (Pvt.), 150
Sheldon, 414
Stephen W. (Pvt.), 145
T. W. (Pvt.), 151
Thomas (Pvt.), 135, 155
William (Pvt.), 130, 156
PARKERSON
Samuel, 464
PARKHURST
Benjamin (Pvt.), 107

PARKINSON
Anna Yoakum, 327
Robert, 327
Thomas K. (Capt.), 158
PARKISON
John (Pvt.), 120, 158
PARKS
-----, 430
George (Pvt.), 107
H. (Mrs.), 412
Horace (1st Lt.), 117
James (Mrs.), 271
James W. (Pvt.), 158
John, 302
Jonathan, 410
Rachel, 227
R. B., 435
Samuel (Rev.), 296
Samuel (Pvt.), 153
Sarah Stygler, 485
PARNUS
Samuel, 52
PAROTT
Joseph T. (Pvt.), 135
PARR
Andrew (Pvt.), 136
Thomas (Corp.), 133
William (Pvt.), 121
PARRISH
Aurelia Butler, 490
John (Pvt.), 118
John R., 97
Orris, 45, 54, 559
Orris (Judge), 490
William (Corp.), 117
PARROTT
Augusta, 81
Elijah, 296
Henry (Pvt.), 125
Samuel, 296
PARRY
August C. (Maj), 110
PARSELS
Thomas, 342
PARSHALL
J. K., 560
PARSONS
Charles H. (2nd Lt.), 147
Edwin (Mrs.), 70
Elias H. (Sgt.), 119
Frank R. (Pvt.), 153
George M., 44, 61, 65, 569, 571
Geo. M. (Mrs.), 528
James, 255
Jane, 65
John, 269
Samuel, 44, 576, 582
Samuel (Dr.), 324, 365, 366, 508, 513, 545
W. R., 477
William (Pvt.), 114
PARTLE
William (Pvt.), 130
PARTRESS
Jacob (Pvt.), 141
PASCHEL
John E. (Pvt.), 118
PASKER
T. (Pvt.), 151
PASKINSON
PASKINSON continued
J. (Pvt.), 111
PATERSON
Isaac (Pvt.), 140
PATRICK
Christopher, 260
PATTERN
Erskine (Pvt.), 145
PATTERSON
-----, 417, 571
A. (Pvt.), 147
C. B. (Pvt.), 147
E. (Pvt.), 148
Elizabeth, 416
C. L. (Pvt.), 156
E. (Mrs.), 102
Elisha (Pvt.), 123
Ellen, 343
George A., 106, 207
Hoffman, 411
James, 554
James H., 560
James R. (Pvt.), 127
Jane, 416, 449
John, 54, 415, 551
John (Mrs.), 528
John (Gen.), 551
John (Pvt.), 132, 140
John P., 196
Joseph C. (Sgt.), 131
Laura, 485
Luther, 485
Nelson A. (Sgt.), 127
Noble (Pvt.), 130
Philander, 485
R. J. (Dr.), 368, 546
Robert, 53
Robert (Pvt.), 157
Samuel, 417, 418
Samuel (Pvt.), 159
Sarah, 85
Thomas, 445, 447
Thomas B., 411, 413
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 141
Wesley L. (1st Lt.), 111
Wesley L. (Ensign), 112
William, 445, 449
William (Pvt.), 137, 144, 146
William H. (Pvt.), 120
William (Sgt.), 112
PATTINSON
Robert (Pvt.), 117
PATTON -----, 575
Michael, 513, 517
Richard A. (Sgt.), 127
William, 44
PATTS
Isaac B. (Lt.), 129
PATZER
H., 387
PAUIK
Thomas N. (Pvt.), 129
PAUL
-----, 461
George (Col.), 106
John, 461
John G. (Pvt.), 120
S. (Pvt.), 112
W. H. (Pvt.), 146
PAUL continued
William, 449
William H. (1st Lt.), 142
William H., 560
Zachariah, 461
PAULL
Harriet, 485
Phebe T., 485
Robert, 485, 486, 488
Walter, 488
Zachariah, 485
PAULY
Isaac (Rev.), 296
PAUSCH
John, 560
John (Pvt.), 111
PAVEY
Isaac (Rev.), 517
PAWL
A. W. (Pvt.), 148
PAWPAW
Jacob, 372, 373, 379, 380
PAXSON
William (Pvt.), 144
PAXTON
Amy Wilcox, 493
Samuel, 493
PAYNE
Bishop, 518
Edmond (Pvt.), 153
J. (Pvt.), 151
Jane,
J. C., 102
Jefferson (Pvt.), 155
Miles V. (Capt.), 118
Olney, 223
Tom, 586
Volney, 513
William (Pvt.), 135
William T. (Capt.), 144
PAYTON
Sarah, 277
PEABODY
Ellen R., 89
PEACOCK
James S. (Pvt.), 159
PEACE
Thomas (Pvt.), 122
PEAL
George (Pvt.), 156
PEALER
George A. (Pvt.), 136
PEARCE
H. C., 567
James, 520, 556
James R., Illus. 428-429
James W. (Pvt.), 142
PEARSE
Harding, 376
PEARSON
Samuel (Corp.), 159
PEASLEY
M. L. (Pvt.), 145
PEBLES
William P. (Pvt.), 110
PECK
-----, 431
Eugene (2nd Class), 119
Henry (Pvt.), 108
Isaac (Pvt.), 133
Jacob (Pvt.), 108

PECK continued
Jesse (Pvt.), 108
L. W. (Mrs.), 367
William C. (Capt.), 133
William L., 134, 199
William L. (Dr.), 217, 367, 546
PECKHAM
R. M. (Corp.), 153
R. M. (Pvt.), 147
PEDRICK
Alfred, 208
Alice, 197
Thomas, 174, 193, 215
PEEBLES
Ida, 197
John, 52
Robert C., 47
PEEL
F. M. (Pvt.), 155
Francis M. (Pvt.), 144
William (Pvt.), 144
PEEPLES
K. C., 208
PEER
William (Mrs.), 453
PEET
E. (Pvt.), 147
PEETREY
Isaac G., 543
PEGG
A. P. (Sgt.), 152
E. W. (Pvt.), 148
Elias, 406, 492
Elias, Jr., 406
Isabella Clifford, 405
Joseph, 406
L. L., 102, 406
L. L. (Pvt.), 148
O. (Pvt.), 148
PEGGS
-----, 401
PELL
C. C., 560
PEMBERCHY
John (Pvt.), 131
PEMBERTON
General, 540
PEMBROKE
William L., 214
PENBROKE
A. J. (Sgt.), 124
PENCE
David M. (Pvt.), 119, 120, 121, 153
E. W., 209
Joseph, 388
P. (Dr.), 280
Rev., 394
William H. (Pvt.), 158
PENDELTON
George H., 78
Nathaniel G., 78
PENDLETON
James B. (Pvt.), 146
PENGSEE
W. W. (Pvt.), 159
PENIGLE
Catharine, 471
PENINGER
John, 275
PENN
Abraham, 268
James, 374
John, 374
PENNAL
S. (Pvt.), 150
PENNIMAN
A. W., Illus. 528-529, 543, 544
PENNINGTON
John W. (Pvt.), 143
PENNIWELL
J. (Pvt.), 151
John D., 316
William, 312
PENNTZ
William (Pvt.), 143
PENNY
Levi, 556
W. F. (Pvt.), 146
PENSE
Ira (Pvt.), 110
PENY
Silas (Pvt.), 122
PEOPLES
Margaret, 387
R. C., 209
Robert (Pvt.), 133
William (Pvt.), 138
PERCIVAL
C. S. (Rev.), 7
PERCY
F. M. (Mrs.), 489
PERDEN
William A. (Pvt.), 126
PERDUE
Elizabeth (Mrs.), 476
PERFECT
N., 477
PERIN
Martha A., 481
PERKINS
-----, 323, 575
Andrew, 414
Andrew (Pvt.), 141
Henry B., 549
John G. (Pvt.), 133
John L. (Rev.), 296
Mary A., 425
William L. (1st Class), 119
PERNAN
Peter (Pvt.), 146
PERREL
Gustavus, 336
PERRILL
A. L., 104, 106, 446
Augustus L., 44, 48, 350, 354, 355
Catharine, 354
Christina, 354
Fraces, 354
Jennie, 446
Mary, 349
Mary E., 354
Nathan, 166, 354, 356, 357
Zebulon H., 104, 354, 357, 393
PERRIN
Polly, 382
PERRY
A. F., 44, 532
PERRY continued
A. P., 553
Aaron F., 532, 533, 552
Alonzo (Pvt.), 139
G. (Pvt.), 149, 152
George (Pvt.), 139
J. R. (Pvt.), 156
Leonora, 533
Oliver H. (Com.), 375, 540
Thomas (Pvt.), 133
Walter (Pvt.), 126
William (Pvt.), 120
Wm. (Rev.), 516
PERSONS
Wagoner Henry W., 121
PETER
Ezra (Pvt.), 130
George A., 209
Louis E. (1st Sgt.), 115
W. E. (Pvt.), 150
PETERMAN
Daniel, 145
PETERS
-----, 444
A. A., 281
Absalom A., 274, 276, 280, 442
Adaline, 278
A. L., 280
Andrew, 276
Aurelius V. (Lt.), 130
Catharine, 278
Clara R. Beckett, 329
David M. (Pvt.), 140
Ebenezer, 276
Edward A., 275, 352
Edwin (Pvt.), 157
Edwin A., 358
Elizabeth, 276, 282, 464
E. P., 189, 190
Fama, 442
Francis J., 275, 352
G. M., 103, 188, 189, 190, 575
George M., 319
George S., 93, 275, 352
Gersham M., 55, 185, 188, 320
Gideon, 276
Harriet A., 275, 352
H. N. (Capt.), 151
Harvey, 365
Henry, 276
Henry W. (Capt.), 155
J. A., 189
James (Corp.), 112
James D., 352
James P., 275
Jason (Rev.), 331
J. B., 62
J. C., 275, 352
Jefferson (Pvt.), 141
John, 319, 329
John A., 355
John A. (Rev.), 187
John N., 275, 352
John S. (Pvt.), 136
Joseph N., 462
L., 531
Leah, 276
Lewis C., 280

PETERS continued
Lewis S., 277
Louis S., 276
M. (Pvt.), 151
Mahlon, 381
Maranda, 188
Martin H. (Sgt.), 111
Mary, 91, 276
Mary Jane, 275
Milton, 188
Nathan, 276
Newton (Pvt.), 135
Norman, 277
O. G., 575
O. S., 147
Rachel, 276
Robinson J., 276
S. A., 453
S. S., 162
Samuel, 276
Samuel (Pvt.), 153
Samuel (Sgt.), 125
Samuel A. (Corp.), 131
Samuel S. (Pvt.), 157
Simon (Rev.), 517
Stevenson, 274, 276
Susannah, 275
Tunis, 276
W. E., 348
W. M. (Pvt.), 151
Wesley, 276, 277
William, 282
William (Pvt.), 155
William H. (Pvt.), 157
William L., 275, 351, 352
William M., 275, 279
PETERSON
Alexander (Pvt.), 143
Alvin (Pvt.), 141
Frederick, 441, 442
John (Pvt.), 136
Mary, 441, 442
R. B., 202
Russellas (Pvt.), 136
PETTIT
Charles, 414
PETTY
Ebenezer, 100, 284
Joseph, 284
Sarah, 391
PEYTON
Chambers W. (Pvt.), 114
Charles, 493
Charles H. (Pvt.), 129
James, 493
Thomas, 355
William F. (Pvt.), 129
PFAFF
C. F. (Pvt.), 147
PFEIFER
Adam (Pvt.), 142
Mathies (Pvt.), 139
Peter (Pvt.), 139
PHARES
William S., 556
PHEBUS
C. C., 295
D. C., 297
George, 293
George (Sgt.), 108
Samuel, 293
PHEBUS continued
Samuel (Pvt.), 108
S. H., 297
Vespacian (Pvt.), 156
PHELAN
Patrick (Pvt.), 129
PHELPS
-----, 164
Abram (Col.), 468
Azubah, 468
Betsey, 468
C. W. (Pvt.), 149
C. W. (Corp.), 152
Caroline, 470
Chauncey, 469
Edward, 468, 474, 482
Edward, Jr. (Capt.), 468
Elizabeth G., 468
Elizabeth Jameson, 470, 482
Gustavus, 469
Harriet, 469
Homer, 469
Homer M., 468
Lauretta C., 482
Lucinda, 468
Perry, 469
R. (Pvt.), 148
Rowland, 414, 415
Thomas T., 419
Timothy, 469
William, 468, 469
Wm. J., 477
William E. (Pvt.), 143
PHENEGER
Elizabeth, 379
Rudolph, 379, 380
PHERIS
Joseph, 207
PHIFER
Mary Josephine, 93
PHILIPS
E., 435
Howard, 184
T. A. G., 184
T. H., 184
PHILLIPPI
Francis M. (Pvt.), 158
Henry (Pvt.), 137
PHILLIPS
-----, 278
Aaron, 470, 471
Abraham, 280
Benj., 517
Calvin (Pvt.), 145
Charles A. (Pvt.), 117
D. E., 574
David (Corp.), 135
Ellen H., 304
Evan, 304
George W. (Rev.), 525
Gibson (Pvt.), 159
Henry E. (Pvt.), 131
Henry W. (Sgt.), 130
John, 45
John B. (Pvt.), 136
Jonathan, 560
Luther R. (Pvt.), 110
Mary, 66
Rev., 331
O. B., 478
Osborn (Pvt.), 127
PHILLIPS continued
Sarah, 514
T. H. (Rev.), 296, 297
PHINEGAR
Elizabeth, 407
Rodolfus, 407
PHINNEY
John B. (Sgt.), 120
T. O. (Pvt.), 148
PHIPPS
John, 54
PHISTER
Samuel (Pvt.), 138
PHLEEGER
Rosetta, 358
PHLIEGEL
Prof., 90
PIATT
Catherine, 404
John B., 54, 408
John J., 404
PICKARD
Joseph (Pvt.), 139
PICKERAL
James H. (Pvt.), 129
PICKERIENG
J. A., 340
PICKERING
Amos J. (Pvt.), 153
Emma,
Frederick (Lt.), 124
Jacob, 466
John, 204
John, Jr. (Sgt.), 135
John A. (Sgt.), 118
Lou J., 341
S. W., 61
William F. (Pvt.), 140
Wm. H., 105
W. H. (Sgt.), 151
PICKET
Myron (Pvt.), 159 PICKETS
-----, 255
PICKETT
Charles T. (Corp.), 157
Dr., 473
PICKLE
Miner, 494
Rosmond (Pvt.), 121
Russell (Pvt.), 121
S., 295
PIER
Ira W., 205
PIERCE
Andrew J. (Sgt.), 129
Arzel (Pvt.), 107
Darius, 206
Darius (Mrs.), 253
D., 199, 200
Grafton (Pvt.), 157
Jacob W., 60
J. B. (Dr.), 451
J. G. (Pvt.), 111
Joshua (Sgt.), 107
L. A. (Dr.), 451
Philip, 262
Stephen (Pvt.), 153
PIERPONT
John, 410
PIERR

PIERR continued
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 136
PIERREPONT
Edwards, 74
PIERSON -----, 479
PIKE
Jarvis, 513, 514, 535, 541
Samuel, 165, 166
PILCHER
-----, 445
PILEYR
John (Pvt.), 118
PILGER
Anton, Jr., 388
J. (Pvt.), 149
John (Pvt.), 157
PILLSBURY
J. P., 554
PINDAR
C. L., 191
PINGREE
George A. (Pvt.), 133
PINGSEE
Parker P. (Pvt.), 153
PINKERTON
Theodore (Pvt.), 146
W. L. (Corp.), 112
William (Dr.), 383
PINNEO
Cynthia, 272
Margaret, 272
PINNEY
Abner (Lt.), 107
Abner, 419, 425
Abner Henry, 370-371
Abner P., 370-371, 419
Abner Putnam, 370-371
Anna Amanda, 370-371
A. H., 426
Azariah, 419, 426, 431
Betsey Mehetabel, 370-371
Charles Lyman (Dr.), 370-371
Charlotte, 370-371
Dorcas, 405
Eli Morrison, 370-371
Eli Morrison (Dr.), Illus. 370-371, 371, 372, 374
Frank Davis, 370-371
Florina Lodamia, 370-371
Glendora Cameron, 370-371
Grove, 472
H. D. (Pvt.), 147
Holmes Sells, 370-371
J. H. (Pvt.), 149
Jonathan, 430
Levi, 101, 370-371, 409, 419, 425
Lovisa, 96, 370-371
Lyman Gillett, 370-371
Marilla, 370-371
Marilla Antoinette, 370-371
Mary, 370-371, 409
Miles, 374
Nathaniel N. (Pvt.), 142
P. (Pvt.), 149
Polly, 370-371
S. S., 431, 432
Sally, 430
Wilbur, 370-371
William (Capt.), 120
PINNEY continued
William Chester, 370-371
PINNEX
Catharine, 386
PINNIX
Edward (Pvt.), 135
PIPER
-----, 93, 95
Conrad, 345
Eleazur, 377
George R., 348
Henry, 53
Ruth, 345
S. B. (Sgt.), 111
PIRRIGO
David (Pvt.), 130
PITT
John (Pvt.), 145
PITZER
Richard (Rev.), 400
PIZGER
William, 414
PLACE
M. H. (Pvt.), 147
PLAETGER
Adolf (Pvt.), 108
PLAFF
George (Pvt.), 117
PLAINSTEAD
James, 105
PLANFT
John (Pvt.), 108
PLANT
Stephen (Pvt.), 158
PLATT
Alonzo (Pvt.), 145
Cyrus (Sgt.), 133
Cyrus G. (Pvt.), 125
John W. (Pvt.), 137
Thomas L. (Lt.), 120
William, 513, 532, 533
Wm. A., 53, 60, 538, 574
PLATTER
Andrew, 351
J. C., 396
John C., 390-391
Sarah, 355
PLEASANT
Samuel (Pvt.), 145
PLEIL
Ulrich (Pvt.), 108
PLEINHARD
Andrew (Corp.), 108
PLESSING
Frank (Pvt.), 122
PLESSLER
Edward (Lt.), 108
PLESSNER
Henry (Capt.), 157
PLETTNER
August (Pvt.), 142
PLICKENBACHER
Adam (Pvt.), 109
PLIMPTON
Henry (Lt.),
PLINESMITH
Caroline, 353
PLUFF
Frederic (Sgt.), 108
Mathias (Sgt.), 108
PLUM
PLUM continued
Henry, 392
Jacob, 392, 394
John, 392
Maria, 442
Michael, 442
Susan, 392
PLUMB
Ichabod, 419
Ralph, 368
Sarah Jane, 214
PLUMBER
Henry (Pvt.), 119, 121
PLUMER
Thomas (Pvt.), 135
PLUMMEL
Christopher (Pvt.), 141
PLUMMER
A. W. (Lt.), 110
Harrison, 312, 314
Henry C., 340
Milton (Pvt.), 115
William (Pvt.), 140
William B. (Pvt.), 137
POAST
Michael (Pvt.), 110
POCK
Herman (Pvt.), 137
POE
Adam (Rev.), 296, 349, 517
Daniel, 255
PHLE
Charles (Pvt.), 137
POINDEXTER
Rev., 524
E. (Pvt.), 150
POISEL
Susan, 433
POLAND
Charles A. (Lt.), 138
Charles A. (Sgt.), 156
George (Pvt.), 128
John (Pvt.), 140
William F., 560
POLANG
Harvey (Pvt.), 134
POLIN
Peter (Pvt.), 159
POLING
John, 388
POLK
President, 49
POLLARD
W. W., 46
POLLAY
Elizabeth B. (Mrs.), Illus. 454
Lewis, 454
POLLOCK
John, 178
John P. (Pvt.), 158
POND
Samuel, 450, 454
PONLSON
W. (Pvt.), 149
PONTIOUS
Adam, 185
Benjamin (Pvt.), 155
B. O., 346
Daniel M., 53
D. M., 17

PONTIOUS continued
George, 250, 278
G. W. (Pvt.), 125
Harrison (Pvt.), 136
Henry, 188
James (Pvt.), 136
John (Corp.), 110
Lew, 215
Michael, 185
Philip, 356
R. (Pvt.), 150
PONTIUS
-----, 443
Ann A., 452
Betsey, 301
Catherine, 301, 441, 443, 452
Charles, 443, 444, 448, Illus. 452, 453
Charles L., 452
Conrad, 301-302
Christine, 443
Daniel, 301, 303
David, 301
Elizabeth, 443, Illus. 452
Fannie C., 452
F. G., 448
Franklin G., 452
Frederick, 452
George, 301
Henry, 278
John, 452
Margaret, 301-302
Mary E., 452
Philip, 441, 443, 444, 452
Samuel, 301
William H. (Pvt.), 123, 134
POOL
Simeon, 430
POOLE
Abijah, 423
Henry (Pvt.), 140
Jackson (Pvt.), 130
Joseph, Jr., 423
Joseph, Sr., 423
Joshua, 423
Simeon, 423
Thomas, 423
POOLEY
James H., 566, 567
J. H., 226
Thomas R., 566
POPE
Major General, 123
John E. (Pvt.), 117
Leopold (Pvt.), 144
PORLEN
Wm. (Rev.), 518
PORSEL
Jacob L. (Pvt.), 130
PORTE
J. H. (Pvt.), 151
PORTER
Ally Ann, 306-307
Almer (Pvt.), 128
C. J. (Pvt.), 151
Charles (Pvt.), 118
Charles W., 311
C. M., 396
Clinton, 314
Daniel R., 313
PORTER continued
David R., 311, 314
David R. (Pvt.), 128
Henry (Pvt.), 139
James, 47
James (Pvt.), 139
J. B. (Pvt.), 111
J. H. (Pvt.), 151
John, 307-308
J. M., 314
John M., 311
Joseph, 314
Joseph H., 158, 311
Joseph M. (Sgt.), 135
Margaret, 310, 317, 314
Margaret J., 311
Mary A., 311
Noble, 47, 312, 314
Noble, Sr., 311
Permena C., 311
T. B. (Pvt.), 151
Thomas (Pvt.), 143
William, 311, 414
William J., 309
POSEY
Samuel, 354
William H. (Pvt.), 143
POST
W. A., 7
William (Pvt.), 130
POSTE
C. (Pvt.), 151
POSTLE
David, 102
Franklin, 383
George, 383
Job, 384
Shadrick, 382
Smith, 365, 383
W. S., 365
Zadoc, 383
POTTER
Alfred, 430
Clark A., 396-397
C. E. (Pvt.), 112
Daniel (Pvt.), 157
Elizabeth, 430
Emily D., 458
Jane, 430
J. D., 452
John, 424, 430
Joseph B. (Dr.), 451, Illus. 459
N., 431
N. (Dr.), 103
Nancy, 458
Stephen H. (Dr.), 190, 451, 458
POTTS
Dr., 319, 321
George (Sgt.), 129
Isaac B. (Lt.), 158
John C. (Pvt.), 129
Joseph (Sgt.), 125
POULSON
-----, 289, 290
A., 55, 436
Andrew, 48, 288, 290
Betsy England, 288
Cornelius, 288, 335
David, 288
POULSON continued
Elias, 288
Elijah, 288
John, 288, 290, 335
Mary Francis, 434
Nancy Tanner, 288
Phebe, 288
Rachel Spangler, 434
Sarah, 288
T., 434
Thomas R., 288
Wesley S. (Corp.), 131
William, 288, 335, 434
POWELL
-----, 465
Andrew J., 465
Archibald, 442, 447, 462, 464, 465
Clarissa A., 465
Clement M., 465
David, 465
Elizabeth, 443, 462, 464, 465
Elizabeth J., 465
George (Pvt.), 143
George, 147, 462, 465
Gerda M., 465
Jacob, 443, 464, 465
J. B., 466
Jeffrey, 524
John, 465
John (Pvt.), 155
John E. (Pvt.), 153
Jonathan, 465
Joseph, 462, 465
Joseph B., 462, Illus. 464-465
L. R., 451
Lucinda T., 465
Malinda A., 465
Mary, 465
Mary S., 465
Matilda, 486
Michael (Pvt.), 157
M. S. (Mrs.), Illus. 464-465
Nancy, 465
Rachel, 465
Rachel M., 442
Rebecca, 442
Reese (Rev.), 525
Richard (Pvt.), 143
Robert, 465
Samuel, 486, 489
Sarah, 465
Seth (Rev.), 525
Susannah, 465
Thomas, 465
Thomas E. (Pvt.), 125
W. H., 540
William, 91, 442, 465
William C. (Pvt.), 130
William G. (Pvt.), 139
POWER
John H. (Rev.), 296, 309, 517
POWERS
E. (Sgt.), 112
Henry V. (Pvt.), 125
Isaac, 464
Isaac (Corp.), 156
John W. (Rev.), 447
Luther, 397, 402

POWERS continued
M. A., 556
Michael (Pvt.), 156
M. M., 552
Martin (Pvt.), 141
Michael (Pvt.), 145
Noah, 464
Samuel, 373
PRAT
Lemuel (Pvt.), 107
PRATER
John (Pvt.), 108
PRATT
Deacon, 219
E. H., 103
Elias, 345
Elizabeth, 345
Greenleaf (Capt.), 587
James M., 208
Lucinda, 345
William, 345
PREBBLE
Barnard, 302
PRENTICE
Charles G. (Sgt.), 119
PRENTISS
Jesse, 271
Jos., 63
W.S.V., 593
PRESCOAT
W. (Pvt.), 150
PRESCOTT
John H. (Pvt.), 138
PRESLEY
Charles (Pvt.), 153
PRESSETT
Jasep (Corp.), 155
PRESSLER
Joseph (Pvt.), 110
PRESTON
Abraham, 378, 381
Catherine A., 387
David L., 387
Ezra C., 387
Ezra C., (Pvt.), 144
G. (Pvt.), 148
G. S., 332
George W., 387
Ira A., 378
James H., 387
John D., 387
Lora M., 378
Lovisa, 378
Margaret, 385
Maria S., 528
Mary Ann, 378
Martin L., 387
Milligan A. (Pvt.), 153
Sol C., 557
S. D., 46
Solomon C., 387
Thomas (Pvt.), 145
W., 385
W. (Pvt.), 148
Wesley, 387
Wesley H., 387
W. B., 364
Wm. (Rev.), 520
Wm. (Mrs.), 66, 528
William (Rev.), 66
PRETTYMAN
PRETTYMAN continued
W. A. (Rev.), 296
PREZRIMINISKY
C. R., 514
PRICE
-----, 204, 479
Adam H., 371
Adam F. (Pvt.), 146
Barnett (Pvt.), 118
Benjamin, 434
David, 525, 526
David F. (Corp.), 121
Eliza, 485, 487
Foster, 434
H. (Pvt.), 147
Harriet, 485
Hugh, 484, 485, 487
Hugh (Rev.), 525
Isiah, 388
J., 479, 484, 485, 487, 488
Jacob (Pvt.), 139
James, 511
James (Pvt.), 130
James (Rev.), 525
Jane, 362, 485
John, 434, 436
John (Pvt.), 139, 145
John A. (Pvt.), 133
John B. (Pvt.), 142
John E. (Sgt.), 152
John F. (Pvt.), 110
John H. (Pvt.), 133
John J. (Pvt.), 143, 146
Joseph, 434
Kitura, 434
Levi M. (Pvt.), 145
Mary McComb, 485, 487
O. P. (Pvt.), 147
O. P. (Sgt.), 153
Oliver P., 485
Peter L. (Corp.), 115
Phebe Huston, 371
Sarah, 471
Samuel, 111
Samuel B. (Pvt.), 110
Stephen R., 485
Tamsey, 434
William, 485, 492
William (Pvt.), 139
PRICHARD
David (Corp.), 127
George W. (Pvt.), 133
James H. (Pvt.), 144
Jesse H. (Pvt.), 127
PRICHT
V. B. (Lt.), 151
PRICKENBACKER
John (Sgt.), 108
PRIEST
D. (Mrs.), 416
G. (Rev.), 517
Joshua (Pvt.), 133
S. (Pvt.), 147
PRIME
George (Pvt.), 121
PRIMMER
M. (Pvt.), 150
PRINDLE
Rebecca, 416-417
PRINNEY
J. H. (Pvt.), 152
PRINNEY continued
H. D. (Pvt.), 152
PRINTZ
Noah (Pvt.), 143
PRITCHARD
-----, 29
Edward, 336
Effie, 341
Jesse, 308
J. A. (Pvt.), 151
John (Pvt.), 124
Joseph A., 338
Joseph B. (Pvt.), 136
Joseph H. (Sgt.), 155
Matilda, 338, 341
PRITCHET
Van B. (Lt.), 155
PRITCHETT
Zachariah, 276
PRITTINGHAM
Samuel P. (Pvt.), 142
PROBERT
Fred R. (Pvt.), 156
PROCESS
John (Pvt.), 125
PROCTOR
Ethelbert (Pvt.), 139
General, 65
PRONATT
W. W. (Corp.), 134
PRONTY
F.D., 527
PROPECK
H. (Pvt.), 155
PROPS
Jonah (Pvt.), 108
PRUGH
A. A. (Pvt.), 149, 154
PRY
Alvin (Pvt.), 139
Henry (Pvt.), 145
PUCKET
James (Pvt.), 114
PUGH
Albert (Pvt.), 120
Andrew, 592
David, 77, 462, 466, 467, 591, 592
David S., 462
Elizabeth, 462
George E., 547
Hannah, 462
Isabel, 462
J., 297
Jane, 77, 462, 591, 592
John, 467
John C.L., 77, 92, 97, 592
John M., 45, 77, 92, 462, 586, Illus. 590-591, 591
Judge, 462
Margaret, 462
Martha F., 77, 92
Thomas, 120
PULLING
J. (Pvt.), 147
PUNTNEY
Samuel, 469
PURCELL
Archbishop, 522
Charles (Pvt.), 145
Cyrus (Pvt.), 134

PURCELL continued
Edward (Pvt.), 110
Harvey (Pvt.), 136
J. B. D.D. (Rev.), 523, 533
PURDUE
George H. (Pvt.), 159
PURDY
William, 447
PURPLE
Harriet F., 368
PURPUS
Wm. (Rev.), 527
PURSEL
Samuel, 392
PURSELL
Cyrus, 323, 329, 331, 332
Daniel, 329
Eli, 329
Elizabeth Hobbs, 329
George, 329
Jacob, 323, 329
Jacob (Pvt.), 127
Jerry T. (Pvt.), 127
J. T., 329
Lanson (Pvt.), 155
Morris (Pvt.), 133
Sarah, 329
PUTHUFF'S
William H., 48, 179, 421
PUTMAN
Solomon, 383
PUTNAM
Franklin (Rev.), 182
Horace (Pvt.), 123
J. H. (Capt.), 161, 162
James (Capt.), 123
Rev., 190
Rufus, 400
Thomas (Pvt.), 123
PUTOFF
Major, 271
PYLE
William, 448

Q.

QUAN
David (Pvt.), 159
QUEEN
Asa (Pvt.), 158
Dennis, 385
Margaret, 251
Sarah, 251
QUICK
James, 184, 319
QUIGLEY
Lewis F. (Pvt.), 139
QUIN
Joseph (Pvt.), 146
QUINBY
Joseph (Pvt.), 158
QUINICOTT
William (Pvt.), 159
QUINN
Abram, 412
Angeline, 412-413
Cicero, 412
Daniel (Pvt.), 114
David, 412, 412-413, 414, 415
Elizabeth, 412-413
QUINN continued
Isaac (Rev.), 296
J. (Pvt.), 149
Jackson, 412
James (Pvt.), 156-159
James (Rev.), 269, 394, 436, 448
John, 412
Joseph, 543
Louis, 489
Loh, 412
Martin (Pvt.), 143
May, 489
Peter, 412, 413, 414
Rosa Anna, 235
Samuel, 412
Sarah, 412
Sarah A. Grant, 489
S. L., 489
S. S., Illus. 496, 497
William (Pvt.), 140
QUIREN
Andrew (Pvt.), 135
QUITMAN
John A. (Gen.), 72, Illus. 520-521

R.

RABER
J. (Pvt.), 147
John (Pvt.), 140
Oswald (Pvt.), 138
William S., 104
RABURN
John G. (Pvt.), 144
RACE
George C. (Pvt.), 131
RADCLIFF
A. D., 294, 295, 297
B., 295
Felix, 340
George, 53, 104
Isaac, 47
J. I., 333
John I., 127
Mark B. (Sgt.), 134
M. B., 208, 209
Seymour, 341
RADCLIFFE
Elizabeth, 341
Matilda, 341
RADER
G. (Pvt.), 147
James, 17
John (Pvt.), 139
RAFE
Doctor, 335
RAFSTOK
C. (Pvt.), 150
RAGER
Catharine, 445
Elizabeth, 445
George, 491
John, 301, 445
John (Pvt.), 132
Lanah, 445
Mary, 445
Nancy, 445
Sophia, 445
William, 445
RAINEY
J. W. (Pvt.), 112
RAINIER
-----, 448
Abraham, 353, 452
Christine, 452
Daniel, 353
Hester, 353
Isaac, 353, 357
John, 353
John F., 448
Mary, 353
Sarah, 353
RAINS
-----, 290
Patrick H. (Pvt.), 125
Thomas (Lt.), 127
RALB
George L., 127
RALEY
Hiram (Pvt.), 129
RALL
William (Pvt.), 122
RALPHE
John C. (Pvt.), 159
RALSTON
Elizabeth, 81
James, 494
RAMER
H. (Pvt.), 112
RAMEY
James W. (Pvt.), 128
RAMLOW
-----, 568
RAMSEY
-----, 444
Alexander (Pvt.), 134
Amos L., 46
James, 391, 440
James (Pvt.), 135
Jesse (Pvt.), 135
Joel, 486
John, 486
John (Lt.), 120
Margaret, 440
Robert, 391, 440
Ruth, 440
Samuel, 391, 440
Sarah Crouse, 486
Susan, 440
Thomas (Pvt.), 143
William R., 560
William R. (Capt.), 142
William W. (Pvt.), 138
RAMSLY
John, 158
RAMY
James A. (Pvt.), 156
RANDAL
Joseph (Pvt.), 139
RANDALL
Abraham (Pvt.), 135
D. A. (Rev. Dr.), 189
D. A. (Mrs.), 528
Rev., 164
T. B., 427
RANDOLPH
M., 524
Phillip (Pvt.), 145
W. J. C. (Pvt.), 159 RANK

RANK continued
Samuel, 394, 395
RANKE
Henry (Pvt.), 142
RANKIN
David (Pvt.), 142
Enoch P. (Pvt.), 121
William R., 44, 45, 77, 81, 95, 102, 552, 568
RANNEBERGER
Adam M. (Pvt.), 133
RANNEY
B. (Mrs.), 585
C., 479
D. (Pvt.), 149, 152
Dr., 103
J. (Corp.), 152
J. (Pvt.), 149, 152
J. C. (Pvt.), 148
J. F. (Pvt.), 149
J. H. (Pvt.), 148
Joel C., 412
Joel, Jr., 412
John H., 412
Mary, 409
Mary B., 412
Mary E., 411, 412
Rufus P. (Judge), 78
S. W., 412, 414, 415
S. W. (Lt.), 147
RANSOM
Calvin (Rev.), 331
RAPE
Peter (Pvt.), 125
RAPP
Charles (Pvt.), 140
RAREY
A. M., 453
A. M. (Pvt.), 148
Adam, 441, 450, 452
Adam (Sgt.), 153
Amelia, 446
Benjamin, 441, 450, 455
Catherine, 441, 452
Charles, 452
Charles, Jr., 441
Charlotte, 443
Christina, 441
Elizabeth, 441
Flora, 297
F. S., 297, 453
George, 441
John, 441
John S., 441, 458
Margaret, 452
Miner A. (Pvt.), 139
Paricer, 441
W. H., 103
William, 441
William H., 55, 452, 453
RARY
Adam M. (Corp.), 132
RASE
C. C. (Pvt.), 152
RASHIL
C., 567
RASOR
J. G. (Pvt.), 150
RATHBONE
Eliza, 410
John, 401
RATHBUN
John (Dr.), 415, 417
Lemuel, 417
RATHBURN
-----, 50
Rei (Pvt.), 144
RATHMELL
John, 394
Thomas, 450, 390-391
RAUB
J. (Pvt.), 150
RAUNY
J. W. (Dr.), 103
RAWL
John, 269
RAWLINS
Daniel (Pvt.), 117
Ezekiel, 328
Moses, 328
M. V., 315
Nathan, 323
RAY
Amelia, 362
Betsey, 236
David Brainard, 237
Edward Mason, 237
Elizabeth L., 237, 238
Frances Jane, 237
George, 435
Janette Miller, 237
John, 291
John E., 165, 167
John Eleazer, 237
John (Dr.), 236
John (Pvt.), 107
Ovid M. (Pvt.), 136
Kingsley, 427
Kingsley (Dr.), 216, 236, 238, 427
Leigh Richmond, 237
Louisa, 237
Mary Mason Lathrop, 237
RAYBURN
John (Pvt.), 154
RAYMOND
Frank W., 162
Lydia, 320
Thomas R., 560
RAYN
Edward (Sgt.), 155
RAYPOOLE
William (Pvt.), 158
REA
Rollin (Pvt.), 133
Thomas N. (Pvt.), 146
REAB
Jacob, 396, 397
Mary, 396
READ
Adam, 484
George, 486
John M., 79
W. A. (Pvt.), 151
William, 484, 486, 487
READER
A. W., 47
Henry, 274
J. (Pvt.), 148, 152
Joseph A. (Rev.), 296
READY
Conrad, 253
REAGAN
M. (Pvt.), 140
REAM
Tobias, 111
REAMEY
Alice B., 82
Alice DeForrest, 82
Daniel (Col.), 82
James Overton, 82
Susannah Lyne, 82
REAMS
Elizabeth, 404
J. G., 522
REAMY
Captain, 553
REASON
Williams (Pvt.), 129
REBER
H. W. (Pvt.), 151
Henry W. (Pvt.), 155
James, 44, 47
John, 274, 276
Minerva, 249
Thomas (Lt.), 126
Thomas N., 248
Valentine, 278
W. (Pvt.), 151
RECK
-----, 255
RECTOR
A. D., 297
Belle F., 297
Edward, 292, 295
Edward (Pvt.), 108
Elizabeth Hotsenpiler, 292
Emily Yates, 293
Frank (Pvt.), 128
George, 349
G. B., 297
G. W., 348
Henry, 292, 297
Henry (Pvt.), 108, 128
Henry E. (Corp.), 156
H. L., 296
J. A., 297
James R., 292
John, 297
John P. (Pvt.), 128
J. W., 297
L., 295, 297
M., 297
Martha, 297
M. F., 297
M. L., 297
Miranda Wiggins, 292
Newton, 208, 296, 297
Peggy Brown, 292
R., 293
Sophronia H., 292
S. R., 297
Sue McCoy, 292
W. S., 297
RED HAWK
Chief, 23, 26
RED JACKET
Chief, 35
RED
Travis, 356
REDD
J., 207
Joseph L., 207

REDDICK
Jonathan, 63
Jonathan W., 40
REDDING
C. A., 477
C. A. (Pvt.), 149
Charles A. (3rd Class), 119
David (Pvt.), 145
J. C., 479
W. O., 479
REDENHOUSE
Henry (Pvt.), 143
REDHEAD
Joseph (Pvt.), 118
REDMAN
J. C., 208
Elizabeth, 327
James, 327
REDMON
Hannah Sage, 327
Hannah Seeds, 325
John, 327
Susan, 327
REEB
Jacob (Pvt.), 142, 148
REECE
Abram, 416
David, 416
Robert, 416
Wilson, 416
REED
-----, 204, 498, 501
Adam, 44
Alexander, 313
Andrew, 351
Catharine, 351
Clark (Pvt.), 146
Daniel (Pvt.), 118
David (Rev.), 296
Dr., 518
Eleazur M., 326
Elias, 269
Eliza, 372-373
Eliza D., 370
Elizabeth, 326
George, 100, 289, 326, 351, 356, 396
George (Pvt.), 134
J. (Pvt.), 150
James, 213, 326, 354
James (Pvt.), 130, 158
Jesse, 356
John, 188, 213, 326, 351, 356
John D. (Pvt.), 121
Joseph G. (Pvt.), 136
Joseph, Jr., 326
Joseph, Sr., 326
Margaret, 326, 351, 355
Martha Ann, 326
Nancy, 344, 351
Nelson, 351
N. C. (Dr.), 567
Oliver (Pvt.), 129
Philip (Pvt.), 125
Robert, 351
Samuel, 372-373, 101
Samuel H. (Pvt.), 156
Samuel N. (Sgt.), 135
Victor, 351
W. P. (Pvt.), 147
REED continued
William, 44, 277, 326, 498, 515
William (Pvt.), 107, 118
William D. (Pvt.), 124
REEDER
J. A., 184
John L. (Rev.), 314
REEDFORD
L. R. (Rev.), 525
REEDS
William A. (Pvt.), 156
REEDY
Elizabeth, 230
Henry, 47
REEF
Frederick (Pvt.), 156
REEHL
Christian (Corp.), 122 REEL
Elizabeth, 434
John (Pvt.), 131
REEMELIN
Charles, 530
REES
Amor, 392-393
Benjamin, 453
B. L., 104
B. W., 500
C. F., 451
Isaac (Pvt.), 143
J. H. (Corp.), 153
J. H. (Pvt.), 147
Jacob H. (Lt.), 148
John (Pvt.), 146
W. T., 390-391, 392-393, 395
REESE
Asa L. (Sgt.), 156
Benjamin L., 44
David, 496
Eliza J., 363
George (Pvt.), 139
I. (Pvt.), 112
R. K., 417
Robert K., 417
W. C., 478, 479, 481
W. T., 363
William H. (Pvt.), 143
William J., 207
REESOR
Jacob, 268-269
REEST
Earnest (Pvt.), 140
REEVES
-----, 186-187
Ann, 312-313
Anna, 311
James M., 311
Jane, 311
Jared, 311
Jesse, 312-313
Josias, 294, 311, 317
Mary, 311
Newton (Dr.), 315
Owen T., 101, 311, 314, 317
Owen T. (Mrs.), 314
Pensey, 311
Samuel, 311
Thomas, 311
REGAL
Henry, 354
REGNER
Martin (Pvt.), 121
REHL
John (Pvt.), 142
REIBEL
August (Pvt.), 144
Charles (Pvt.), 144
REICHELDERFER
Amos, 263
Barbara, 251
Catharine, 251
Christian, 252, 256
Elizabeth, 250, 252
Henry, 250, 252
James (Pvt.), 135
Jacob, 252
John, 251, 256
Mary, 263
Noah, 135
Samuel, 252
Venus, 252, 263
REICHELDORFER
John, 250
REID
George, 294
Henry (Pvt.), 125
James (Pvt.), 159
John H. (Pvt.), 125
Robert, 47
Robert (Pvt.), 144
Whitelaw, 106, 242
William P., 95
REIDER
Joseph A. (Pvt.), 135
REIF
Gideon, 204
H. A. (Pvt.), 150
REIGEN
Edwin R., 214
REIGER
Jacob (Pvt.), 117
REIGLE
Soloman, 43
REILEY
B. (Corp.), 111
REILY
L. R. (Pvt.), 152
REIN
Angarl (Pvt.), 122
REINHARD
-----, 538
Barbara, 542-543
Catherine, 542-543
Jacob, 163, 542-543, 554, 562, 570
J, Jr., 578
Michael A., 542-543
William, 542-543
REINEHOLD
C. M. (Rev.), 269, 278
REINEHOLT
C. M., 303
REINMUND
H. (Pvt.), 123
REISDORF
John (Pvt.), 137
REISER
Henry (Pvt.), 137
REISMAN

REISMAN continued
David, 346
REITZE
John (Pvt.), 137
REMALY
Elias (Pvt.), 132
REMISMITH
Simon (Pvt.), 134
REMPLE
Ferdinand F. (Lt.Col.), 121
RENCH
John (Pvt.), 133
RENICK
-----, 282, 285
Abel, 205, 283
Anna, 283
Asahel, 283, 285
Benjamin E., 47
Benjamin F., 283, 289, 290
Catharine, 97, 283
Daniel, 364
Dorothea, 242
Ellen, 343
Eliza, 343
Felix, 25, 53, 100, 104, 231, 283, 343, 364, 393
George, 48, 52, 231, 242, 343
Harness, 104, 199, 231
Harriet, 283
Helen, 294
Hiram, 343
J. N., 53
J. O. B., 46
James, 42, 48, 205, 283
James (Gen.), 164, 229
Job, 283
John, 17, 97, 283, 285, 320, 335
Jonathan, 34, 47, 53, 100, 200, 205, 228, 283, 335
Jonathan (Judge), 285
Jonathan (Mrs.), 284
Joseph, 343
Joseph B., 104
Joseph (Gen.), 220
Joseph O.B.,101-102, 364
Josiah, 98, 199, 231
Julia McNeal, 364
Juliet E., 364
Lucinda, 283
Margaret, 283, 343
Martha, 343
Mary, 283
Mary Taylor, 289
Mary W., 326-327
McNeal, 364
Nancy, 343
Philip, 335
Rachel, 283
Rebecca Adams, 364
Sarah, 283, 341
Sarah Williams, 289
Seymour, 283, 335, 393
Seymour G., 47, 201, 207, 343
Tabitha, 283
Thomas, 42, 48, 53, 100, 104, 231, 283, 343, 344
Thomas (Judge), 290
W. B., 343
RENICK continued
William, 7, 42, 100, 105, 199, 205, Illus. 230-231, 231, 232, 283, 343, 349, 392
William, Jr., 104, 200, 364
William, Sr., 200, 364
RENICKE
George (Pvt.), 146
RENIX
Thomas, 40
RENNER
Andrew (Pvt.), 146
RENNICK
-----, 231
Calvin, 556
RENO
James (Corp.), 155
RENWICH
-----, 231
RERK
Harlow (Sgt.), 126
RESLER
J. B., 413, 476
J. B. (Rev.), 477
RESNER
Peter (Pvt.), 158
REUBENS
George H. (Pvt.), 137
REVES
Peter (Pvt.), 132
REVNAUGH
Doctor, 323, 332
REY
Richmond (Pvt.), 125
REYBURN
J. G. (Pvt.), 150
REYNOLDS
-----, 290
A. G., 560
B. (Pvt.), 147
Edward H. (Sgt.), 118
Harrison, 129
Chas. (Rev.), 520
Clara, 387
Erastus, 253
Evan, 516
George, 464
J. B., 320
James C., 44, 465
James (Gen.), 464
John, 464
John (Pvt.), 125
P., 558
Ransom (Pvt.), 131
Rev., 449
Roger, 516
Sackett, 162
T. C. (Rev.), 523
Thomas, 289
William, 184
W. J., 297
W. M. (Rev.), 561
RHINEHART
William (Rev.), 166
RHOADES
-----, 462
A. B. (Pvt.), 150
Lewis, 275
Mary, 275
RHOADS
RHOADS continued
Adam (Pvt.), 145
Daniel (Pvt.), 108
Elizabeth, 462
Emanuel, 465
Isaac, 462
Jacob, 444
John, 444, 450, 462
L. P., 465
Lambert, 398
Lambert P., 462
M. H., 465
Matthew H., 462
Philip, 398, 462
R. A., 465
R. J., 401
Richard, 398, 462, 465
Sarah, 462
W. (Pvt.), 147
William, 465, 466
RHODES
Addie, 93
Allen (Pvt.), 144
Charles H. (Pvt.), 110
George (Pvt.), 123
Isaac N. (Pvt.), 144
Joel (Pvt.), 119
Louis, 357
Richard, 398
Ruth, 306
Theo., 573
D. W. (Dr.), 410
RHOUDES
A. (Pvt.), 150
RIBERMEN
Frederick (Pvt.), 110
RICE
A. (Pvt.), 123
A. C. (Pvt.), 150
Aaron (Pvt.), 144
Caleb, 403
Charles H. (Lt.), 120
E., 415
E. (Pvt.), 111
H. S. (Pvt.), 111
I. N., (Pvt.), 150
J. (Pvt.), 150
James, 268-269, 335
James E., 201
John (Pvt.), 122
John E. (Pvt.), 133
L. L., 164, 525
Merritt (Pvt.), 157
Robert B. (Pvt.), 127
Thomas J. (Pvt.), 120, 121
W. (Pvt.), 150
J. Wesley, 48
Zenas M. (Pvt.), 123
Zenis (Pvt.), 158 RICH
Amos (Pvt.), 133
RICHARD
Benton (Sgt.), 109
Charles (Sgt.), 158
Ebenezer, 492
James H. (Pvt.), 135
Joseph (Pvt.), 145
William (Pvt.), 114
RICHARDS
-----, 417
C.A.L. (Rev.), 520

RICHARDS continued
Ebenezer, 466, 494
George V. (Pvt.), 123
Hiram, 89
H. L. (Rev.), 521
John (Pvt.), 130
Joseph B. (Pvt.), 144, 157
Josephine B., 90
Julius C., 89
Maria DeLashmutt, 89
Mathias H. (Pvt.), 153
Rev., 407
Wesley, 577
Zippora, 378
RICHARDSON
-----, 319
Aaron P. (Pvt.), 158
Abram (Pvt.), 139
Amos (Pvt.), 110
C., 524
J. P. (Pvt.), 154
James (Pvt.), 115
James P. (Pvt.), 126, 146
M., 241
R. N., 431
Robert D., 164
V. L., 416-417
William, 47, 204
RICHART
Philip (Pvt.), 131
RICHAY
Andrew, 307
RICHCREEK
John N. (Pvt.), 140
RICHENBACHER
John W., 527
RICHERS
William (Pvt.), 122
RICHEY
Catharine, 308
George, 307
George (Dr.), 383
Welch, 472
RICHIE
Lucius (Pvt.), 133
RICHISON
William (Pvt.), 110
RICHMOND
J. M. (Rev.), 516
RICHTER
Casper (Pvt.), 139
Charles (Pvt.), 142
RICKENBACKER
Albert, 589
Elizabeth, 589
Caroline, 589
Franklina, 589
Jacob, 589
John M., 589
John U., Illus. 588-589, 589
William, 589
RICKETTS
Catherine Phillips, 399
Charles V. (Pvt.), 153
Edward, 399
Elizabeth, 385, 399
James S. (Pvt.), 144
Jeremiah, 399
Salina Bell, 399
W. (Pvt.), 111
RICKEY
George (Dr.), 552
RICKLEY
John (Pvt.), 142
S. S., 366, 561, 562, 574, 578
RICKS
Augustus J. (Lt.), 131
J. W., 368
Theodore A., 131
RIDDELL
Bazil, 364
RIDDLE
August (Pvt.), 130
James (Pvt.), 110
Marib Domigan, 362
Michael (Pvt.), 124
Samuel (Pvt.), 121
Thomas, 362
RIDENHOUR
W. S. (Lt.), 153
RIDENOUR
Catharine Fage, 484
D. (Pvt.), 147
David, 484, 487, 488
David (Mrs.), 411
Elizabeth, 476
George, 55, 484, 487
H., 473, 477
Henry, 101, 102, 476
J. (Pvt.), 147
John, 484, 487, 489
Mathias, 484
Mary, 484
Susan, 484
RIDENOUS
David (Pvt.), 138
RIDENOW
James (Corp.), 130
William S. (Sgt.), 130
RIDER
Levi (Pvt.), 136
RIDGEWAY
Geo., 477
Joseph, 83, 202
Mary E., 83
RIDGWAY
A. P. (Pvt.), 152
Alexander (Pvt.), 155
Charles M., 554, 555
Eliza Mattson, 289
J. (Pvt.), 151
James (Pvt.), 155
Joseph, 43, 44, 51, 52, 55, 553
Joseph, Jr., 528, 532, 536, 537, 538, 583
Joseph (Mrs.), 528
Joseph (Pvt.), 133
Mathew, 583
Rebecca Smith, 289
S. B. (Pvt.), 146
Samuel, 289
Thomas D., 289
William S. (Pvt.), 153
RIDIN
John, 294
RIDINOUR
David (Pvt.), 107
RIE
George (Pvt.), 132
RIEGEL
Elizabeth, 264
Emma C. D., 264
George, 253, 264
George D., 264
Harvey D., 264
H. D., Illus. 258-259
Jane D., 264
Jesse, 264
L. D., 104
Mary Elizabeth D., 264
Samuel D., 101, 264
Sarah Ann D., 264
S. D., 105
Solomon, 53, 251, 253, 254, 264
Solomon D., 253, Illus. 258-259, 264
RIEMENSNYDER
John (Corp.), 120
RIENWICH
-----, 231
RIETHER
Christian (Pvt.), 142
RIFE
David (Pvt.), 124
E. K., 104, 215
Emanuel, 208
J. B. (Pvt.), 149
J. R. (Pvt.), 150
Jacob, 192-193
John, 278
John (Pvt.), 128
John H. (Pvt.), 128
J. M. (Rev.), 349, 448
Jonathan B. (Pvt.), 124
Joseph (Pvt.), 128, 143
S. E. (Rev.), 256
William A. (Pvt.), 145
RIFFLE
Joseph (Pvt.), 114
William H. (Pvt.), 155
RIGAL
Amanda, 476
Amanda Wilson, 482, Illus. 482-483
Catharine, 483
Catharine Keller, 482
Daniel, 483
Diana, 483
Fannie, 483
J. (Pvt.), 148
Joseph, 483
Philip, 482
Samuel, 482, Illus. 482-483
Sarah Hay, 482
RIGBY
George C. (Pvt.), 155
RIGEL
Daniel, 412
Joseph, 412
Miller (Mrs.), 412
Samuel, 412, 414, 476
Sarah Hoy, 412, 414
RIGEWAY
John (Pvt.), 115
RIGG
J. (Pvt.), 149
RIGGAN
Joseph E. (Pvt.), 128

RIGGIN
Albert W. (Pvt.), 115
Charles, 307
Corlinda M., 307
Emeline, 307
Isaac, 307
Jeremiah J., 307
L. (Pvt.), 150
Lorenzo D. (Pvt.), 144
Mary J., 307
William, 307
RIGGINS
Lorenzo D. (Pvt.), 155
RIGGLE
James (Pvt.), 131
RIGGS
-----, 417
Benjamin (Pvt.), 110
R. F. (Pvt.), 148
RIGHT
Charles W. (Pvt.), 157
Jackson D. (Pvt.), 135
RIKER
S. C. (Pvt.), 148
Samuel C., 414
RILEY
Barnard, 190, 235
Benjamin F. (Pvt.), 113
Elizabeth, 362
Francis, 46
George (Pvt.), 115, 145
J. H. (Capt.), 110, 569
James (Pvt.), 135
John (Pvt.), 121
John E. (Pvt.), 138
Joseph H., 554
Robert, 364
Rev., 309
Samuel, 392
Vincent (Pvt.), 140
William, 392
RILSON
J. B. (Pvt.), 147
RINEHART
Silas (Pvt.), 144
T. H. (Pvt.), 147
W. R., 187
W. R. (Rev.), 186
William R., 215
RINEHOLT
Rev., 256
RINER
F. M. (Pvt.), 148
RING
Daniel (Pvt.), 134
John (Pvt.), 115
RINGER
William L. (Pvt.), 145
RINGLER
Eugene (Surg.), 122
RINGSHAUSEN
Free (Pvt.), 132
Henry (Pvt.), 132
RINIER
James, 416
RIODEN
G. H. (Pvt.), 141
RIORDEN
Robert, 46
RIORDNERE
Robert (Pvt.), 157
RIPLEY
C. H., 61
Christopher, 520
RISHER
-----, 202
RISK
James, 330
RISKENBASHER
Martin (Pvt.), 117
RISLEY
W., 364, 508
RISSER
D., 185
RITCHEY
Maria Lackey, 294
Doctor, 479
RITCHIE
Conrad, 204
RITSON
A. (Pvt.), 147
Alfred (Sgt.), 153
RITTENHOUSE
Jemima, 311
William R. (Pvt.), 136
RITTER
-----, 281
Barnhart (Pvt.), 157
Betsey, 351
Catharine, 476
Daniel (Sgt.), 113
George, 476
George H. (Pvt.), 138
George S., 476
Hannah, 351
Henry, 351, 353
John, 351, 354, 356
Joseph, 351
Lydia, 351
Mary, 351
Peter, 351
William (Pvt.), 142
RITTS
Charles S., 209
RIVES
Joseph (Pvt.), 140
ROACH
Mary, 200
ROADS
John (Pvt.), 108
William, 448
ROAF
Christian (Pvt.), 125
ROAN
John (Pvt.), 154
ROANEN
Thomas (Pvt.), 115
ROANES
James (Pvt.), 140
ROBB
Enos W. (Pvt.), 133
J. T. (Pvt.), 144
William (Pvt.), 143
ROBBERTS
W. C. (Pvt.), 123
ROBBINS
Chandler (Rev.), 85
Doctor, 315
Daniel (Dr.), 317
H., 174
Henry (Pvt.), 132
J. W., 477
ROBBINS continued
M., 207
Matthias, 206, 207, 215
Minerva, 88
ROBBINSON
George T. (Pvt.), 145 ROBE
William, 426, 427
ROBELIN
William G. (Pvt.), 111
ROBERSON
J. N. (Dr.), 394
ROBERT
George, 372
ROBERTS
-----, 417
A. (Pvt.), 150
B. J., 518
Daniel, 493, 494
Daniel H. (Pvt.), 141
Daniel O., 492
David A. (Pvt.), 145
Elijah (Pvt.), 144
George E., 500
Griffin (Pvt.), 153
Hugh (Rev.), 516
J. (Pvt.), 148
J. B., 400
J. S. (Pvt.), 147
Jackson (Pvt.), 126
Jeremiah (Pvt.), 141
John (Pvt.), 159
John S. (Corp.), 153
Mary R., 433
Rev., 407
Robert, 493
Susan Poisel, 433
Thomas, 339, 433, 455, 436
William, 492, 493, 496
William (Pvt.), 114
Wm. (Rev.), 515
William C., 257
W. H., 396
ROBERTSON
Asa, 484
D. B., 551
Doctor, 465
General, 116
George (Pvt.), 108
James D. (Pvt.), 141
James M., 463
H. M. (Rev.), 474, 475, 516
Maria, 463
Martha S., 380
ROBEY
-----, 574
ROBINS
Charles (Pvt.), 157
J. (Pvt.), 148
J. W. (Sgt.), 152
John (Pvt.), 157
ROBINSON
-----, 52, 93, 95
Ann, 530
A. B., 525
Ann Waters, 412
Benjamin (Lt.), 130
E. S. (Pvt.), 147
Edward S. (Pvt.), 131
G. W. (Corp.), 152
G. W. (Pvt.), 149

ROBINSON continued
Godfrey (Mrs.), Illus. 512-513, 528
G. W., 479
Geo. W., 412
H. H., 548, 551
Higgins N. (Pvt.), 143
I. N. (Dr.), 395
J. (Pvt.), 114
James (Pvt.), 137
James (Rev.), 182, 269
J. F., 309
John, 42, 130, 327, 343, 411, 412
John Q. A., 512
Judge, 416-417
J. W., 93
Lancet S. (Corp.), 127
L. O. (Mrs.), 296
Margaret, 327
Mary Ann, 383
Rebecca, 412
Sarah, 102
Scott, 288
Ralf (Pvt.), 112
Susannah, 266
S. W., 550
Thomas M. (Pvt.), 131
Tinman (Pvt.), 142
Van (Pvt.), 126
William, 26
W. L. (Corp.), 112
ROBISON
Albert H. (Pvt.), 159
Alfred W. (Pvt.), 159
Almira, 327
Ann, 327
Caroline, 327
D., 309
David, 327
Elizabeth, 327
Ellen S., 307
Isaac, 327
James, 327
Jane, 327
John H., 323
John R., 307
Joseph, 327
Marietta E., 307
Martha, 327
Matilda, 327
Michael, 327
Samuel, 327
Sarah, 327
Thomas P., 307
Tubman (Pvt.), 108
William, 327
ROBSTOCK
C. (Pvt.), 154
ROBY
G. W. (Dr.), 161
William (Lt.), 122
ROCHELL
Benjamin (Pvt.), 145
ROCHELLE
John, 399
Lucinda, 399
Martin, 399
Scott, 399
William, 399
ROCK
ROCK continued
David (Pvt.), 134
Hanson, 201
Henson, 105
ROCKEY
Henry S. (Pvt.), 117
John, 353
John W. (Pvt.), 133
Lewis L. L. (Pvt.), 126
ROCKHILL
Frampton (Pvt.), 125
Joel (Pvt.), 125
Joseph S. (Pvt.), 125
ROCKWELL
Maria, 222
Milo, 101
Russell D., 272
Sarah, 68
Wm., 520
RODEL
Jacob (Pvt.), 123
RODENBARGER
David (Pvt.), 138
RODEBAUGH
H. A. (Dr.), 465
RODER
Frederick, 405
RODGERS
N. P. (Pvt.), 150
S. C. (Pvt.), 150
Wm. A. (Judge), 88
ROE
E. D., 184
Mary, 73
Peter (Rev.), 73
Richard, 465
Wesley, 255
Wesley (Rev.), 296
ROESE
J. H., 348
ROFF
Rev., 190
J. A. (Rev.), 185
ROGERS
-----, 417
Apollos, 493, 496
Asa Moore, 496
Chandler, 372, 375, 376, 380
David, 380
Ela, 496
Eli, 496
Elijah (Pvt.), 107
Emula, Illus. 496, 496-497
George (Rev.), 524
Isaiah, 539
James C. (Pvt.), 157
James L. (Corp.), 131
Jacob S., 417
Julia E., 496
J. J. (Pvt.), 140
Laban (Corp.), 126
Lester Asa, 496
Marcellus, 493, 494, 496
Martin, 493
Mary, 496
Milton, 493, 496
Patrick (Pvt.), 130
R. V. (Rev.), 184
Samuel, 199, 200, 201, 202, 233, 235, 244, 245, 246,
ROGERS continued
Samuel continued, 247
William H. (Rev.), 463
Wm. K., 247
ROHER
Frederick (Pvt.), 131
ROHR
Absalom, 396
Absolum, 390-391
Charles, 390-391, 444, 457
Eliza Jane, 390-391
Elizabeth, 457
Floretta, 457
George, 390, 391, 444, 457
George (Mrs.), 444
Hulda Catherine, 457
Jacob, 390-391, 444, 457
Job, 396
John, 390-391, 444, 457
John, Jr., 444, 446, Illus. 456-457
John (Mrs.), 444
J. J., 396
Lewis, 390-391
Louisa Ellen, 390-391
Mary Ann, 390-391
Matthias, 390-391
Michael, 390-391, 444, 457
Rachel Catherine, 390-391
Samuel, 444, 457
Sarah, 444, 457
Sarah Elizabeth, 390-391
William, Illus. 390-391, 392, 393, 444
William Henry, 390-391
ROHRER
Samuel B. (Pvt.), 153
ROLAND
M. C., 328
ROLER
Elizabeth, 385
ROLESON
Charles (Pvt.), 136
ROLING
Anton (Pvt.), 132
ROLLINGS
Nathan, 40
ROLLINS
-----, 325
Ed P., 560
Letitia, 344
ROMASIER
William (Corp.), 133
ROMESBERG
Samuel (Pvt.), 158
ROMICK
Hosea, 496
Jacob, 494
RONE
William (Pvt.), 143
RONEY
Wm. H., 524
RONT
William, 344
ROOCH
James P. (Pvt.), 141
ROOF
Adam (Sgt.), 122
Christopher, 209
Elizabeth, 354
George (Pvt.), 135

ROOF continued
J. A., 206
Joseph A. (Rev.), 356, 357
Martin (Corp.), 134 ROOFING
Nicholas (Pvt.), 111
ROOSE
Charles, 543
Rebecca, 253
ROOT
-----, 446
Catharine, 446
William (Pvt.), 115
ROPHY
George (Pvt.), 107
ROPP
Gregory (Pvt.), 153
RORICK
William (Pvt.), 140
ROSABOAM
Jane, 311
ROSE
Asa (Pvt.), 107
Augustus, 251
George (Pvt.), 154
J. B., 295
Jacanias, 411
James, 294, 296, 297, 320
James (Rev.), 388
John (Pvt.), 122
Jonas (Pvt.), 127
Jonathon, 294, 296, 297
Justus, 218
L. C. (Pvt.), 149
Lemuel, 219
Levi, 294
Levi (Pvt.), 108
L. P., 526
Lucy, 296
Mabel, 218
Mary, 297
Peter, 44, 294, 297
Reuben (Sgt.), 135
Rosewall B. (Pvt.), 111
Sarah, 294
S. H., 414
Stephen (Pvt.), 127
William, 297
ROSECRANS
Sylvester Horton (Bishop), 522, 533
Wm. S. (Gen.), 87, 109, 113, 115, 127, 226
ROSENBAUM
Hermann (Corp.), 117
ROSENBURG
D. H. (Rev.), 527
ROSENFELT
Charles (Pvt.), 134
ROSENFIELD
Joseph, Sr., 450, 453
ROSENTHAL
Rev., 527
ROSEWALT
-----, 57
ROSS
-----, 255, 570, 571
A. (Pvt.), 147
A. (Sgt.), 153
A. H. (Rev.), 526
Alexander, 192-193, 462
ROSS continued
Daniel, 450, 461, 462
Daniel, Jr., 462
Edward, 462
Ezekiah (Pvt.), 159
Fulton, 462
George E. (Capt.), 118
George H. (Col.), 162
Geo. M. (Col.), 161
Hugh, 462
I. N., 44
Isaac N. (Col.), 127
J. G. (Pvt.), 150
J. W. (Pvt.), 150
James, 39, 462
James W., 549
John, 414, 416
John A. (Pvt.), 144
L. S. (Pvt.), 150
Levin, 315
Mason (Pvt.), 144
Nelson (Pvt.), 158
R. (Pvt.), 149
Robert, 327
Rev., 407
S. M. (Pvt.), 147
Shepherd (Pvt.), 125
T. G. (Rev.), 296
Tobias (Sgt.), 109
W. H. (Pvt.), 147
W. Y. (Pvt.), 150
William, 101, 489
William (Pvt.), 125
William L., 44
ROSSANE
William, 69
ROTH
Charles, 209
George, 202
William, 202
ROTHS
Adam (Pvt.), 155
Adam B. (Pvt.), 155
ROTHWELL
Thomas, 444
ROULAND
A. H., 208
ROUNDHEAD
Chief, 24
ROUP
Oliver P. (Pvt.), 135
ROURK
Matthew (Pvt.), 143
ROUSE
George B. (Pvt.), 146
ROUSH
-----, 213
ROUT
Mary, 274
ROW
Betsey P., 301
David, 302
E. F. (Pvt.), 151
G. (Pvt.), 151
George, 302
George (Pvt.), 123
George T. (Dr.), 210-211
John, 185
John, Jr. (Pvt.), 135
John W. (Corp.), 122
Peter, 301, 302
ROW continued
Samuel, 302
Samuel (Pvt.), 158
ROWE
A. (Pvt.), 151
Absolam, 307
Ausmons (Sgt.), 156
David, 166
Ezra F. (Corp.), 155
Frank, 331
George, 307, 333, 336
George (Pvt.), 155
George A. (Dr.), 218
George W. (Corp.), 128
G. T. (Dr.), 103, 217
J. (Pvt.), 151
James (Pvt.), 156
John, 213, 307
Lydia, 307
Matilda, 307
Mahala, 307
Nancy C., 307
Silas A., 307
W. C., 48
William, 477
W. O., 478
ROWELL
J. E. (Pvt.), 147
ROWEN
Alexander, 285, 315
ROWER
Nancy, 445
ROWLAND
James (Dr.), 182
John, 417
Samuel (Pvt.), 154
Thomas, 516
ROWLEN
Samuel, 309
William H., 309
ROWLENS
Samuel (Lt.), 135
ROWSKE
Charles O. (Pvt.), 143
ROYAL
Robert S. (Pvt.), 133
ROYCE
Mortimer (Pvt.), 120
ROYPOLE
Samuel (Pvt.), 144
ROYSE
Emanuel (Sgt.), 122
RUARK
Shadrick (Rev.), 296
RUBY
F. (Pvt.), 150
James, 362
Mary Walcutt, 362
RUCKENBROD
J. K., 368
RUDEL
Andrew, 182
RUDISILL
Peter (Sgt.), 116
RUDLE
Andrew, 200
RUDOLPH
Colier F. (Pvt.), 111
Wardman (Pvt.), 130
RUDY
-----, 198

RUDY continued
F., 105
Fred (Pvt.), 154
RUFF
John (Pvt.), 138
RUFFERIG
Jean (Pvt.), 122
RUFFING
Nicholas (Pvt.), 159
RUFFINY
Nicholaus (Pvt.), 122
RUFFNER
Samuel (Pvt.), 131
RUFING
Peter (Pvt.), 142
RUGG
Dayton, 471
Orin, 471
RUGGLES
Anna, 247
Benjamin, 584
F., 368
Fannie M., 248
Lizzie, 248
Mary, 584
Nelson J., 248
S. A., 199
Samuel H., 53, Illus. 246, 247, 248
S. H., 201, 202
S. H. (Mrs.), 98
Samuel Turney, 248
RULE
H. (Pvt.), 154
Charles, 538
RULLER
J. (Corp.), 115
RUMENSNYDER
John (Pvt.), 139
RUMINSNYDER
John (Pvt.), 111
RUMMEL
Robert V. (Corp.), 138
RUMMELL
Wesley I. (Pvt.), 137
William L. (Pvt.), 137
RUMSEY
James (Pvt.), 127
RUNDIE
Elijah (Pvt.), 155
Jacob (Pvt.), 155
RUNKLE
Ben P. (Maj.), 113
Jacob, 352
Noah, 348
RUNNELL
Amanda, 400
David C., 400
RUNNELS
John (Pvt.), 108
Joseph (Sgt.), 117
RUNNER
George, 381
RUPPESBERGER
J., 527
RUPRECHT
John (Pvt.), 117
RUSCHE
George, 452
RUSE
Joseph A. (Corp.), 157
RUSE continued
Margaret, 441
William (Pvt.), 141
RUSH
A. C., 331, 435, 436
Betsy Spangler, 434
Cyrus (Pvt.), 125
David (Pvt.), 131
Francis, Jr., 326
Francis, Sr., 326
George (Pvt.), 133
George M., 264
J., 434
Jacob, 326, 434
Jacob (Pvt.), 141
John, 264, 268, 285, 326, 336
John (Pvt.), 159
John D., 271, 366
Josiah, 291
Margaret, 300
Mary A., 264
Melinda, 264
Nancy Greenwade, 326
Nelson, 325, 326
Peter, 348
Sarah, 326
Susan McKinley, 434
Sarah, 435, 439
W. (Pvt.), 150
William, 268, 326, 331, 439
RUSK
James B. (Capt.), 157
James B. (Pvt.), 157
J. Y. (Rev.), 313
RUSLINS
John (Pvt.), 122
RUSSEL
D. (Pvt.), 150
James, 205
John (Rev.), 186
RUSSELL
Aaron (Pvt.), 139
Francis C. (Capt.), 158
Granville (Pvt.), 158
Hiram, 310
Hiram N. (Pvt.), 140
Holman, 420
James, Sr., 420
James, Jr., 420
Jerusha, 420
John, 413, 448
John (Rev.), 165, 255
Martin (Pvt.), 158
Mary Ann, 420
Otis, 420
Robert, 364, 507
Salome, 420
RUST
Jonah, 295
RUTH
John, 47, 348
P. S. (Rev.), 407, 428
RUTHRAUFF
J. M. (Rev.), 186
RUTLEDGE
J. W., 451
RUTTER
C. (Pvt.), 149
Jacob, 192, 207
RYAN
RYAN continued
Jaumier (Pvt.), 126
John, 400
John (Pvt.), 118, 138, 158
John O. D. (Sgt.), 126
M. (Pvt.), 112
T. (Pvt.), 150
Thomas (Corp.), 127
Thomas (Pvt.), 137
RYDER
Henry L. (Pvt.), 131
RYEN
Mary, 587
Nancy A., 587
Timothy, 587
RYNE
Alexander (Pvt.), 119
David (Pvt.), 119
William (Pvt.), 145
RYON
W. M. D. (Rev.), 296

S.

SABIN
Josiah, 520
(Rev.), Levi P., 475
SABINS
(Rev.), 429
SACKET
Wm., 516
SACKETT
(Rev.), Milton A., 190
William, 397, 402
SACKREIDER
Henry, 303
SADDLER
(Rev.), 524
SAGAR
Abram, 399
Catharine, 400
Ephraim, 400
Henry, 400
John, 399, 400
Sophroma, 400
SAGE 206, 349
Emily, 343, 345, 346
Hannah, 327
Harleigh, 345
(Col.), Harley H., 114, 117, 154
H., 174
H. H., 356
(Col.), H. H., 149
Henry, 205, 206, 207
Lucinda, 345
Lt. Wilbur H., 111, 112
SAGER
(Pvt.), John W., 157
(Pvt.), Salmon, 142
SAGES
(Pvt.), John W., 141
SAILER
(Pvt.), James, 158
SAILOR
(Pvt.), James, 115
(Pvt.), Madison, 145
(Pvt.), William H., 145
SAIN
Anna L., 197
SAINT
(Pvt.), David B., 135
(Corp), William, 138
SALESKIE
(Pvt.), John SALMON
(Pvt.), James, 111
SALLEE
Kalita, 440
Susan, 440
SALT
Conrad, 357
SALTGAVER
(Pvt.), William, 136
SALTS
(Pvt.), Hugh, 139
(Pvt.), John, 139
SALZMAN
(Pvt.), Conrad, 137
SAMLANO
(Pvt.), Edward, 122
SAMMIS
SAMMIS continued
C. M., 478
(Pvt.), E., 149
Ezra, 470, 475
(Pvt.), Marsden H., 157
Sarah, 471
Selah R., 470
W., 479
SAMPLE
John, 326
Pvt. Thomas, 155
SAMPSON
(Lt.), A. J., 159
J. D., 315
SAMS
David, 111
SAMSON
66
(Pvt.), J., 147
SAMUEL
(Pvt.), Peter, 130
S. E., 526
SAMUELS
417
Maria L., 416
(Pvt.), S. E., 146
W. R., 477
SANDAY
(Pvt.), Harry, 158
(Pvt.), John, 158
SANDERS
280
(Pvt.), Charles, 115
(Rev.), E. W., 186
(Pvt.), George, 117
(Pvt.), H., 148
(Pvt.), John, 117
(Pvt.), John H., 130
(Pvt.), Lucius, 158
(Pvt.), W., 149
SANDERSON
427, 497
(Capt.), George, 106, 107
(Pvt.), George W., 135
(Sgt.), Robert, 107
SANDFORD
(Pvt.), George W., 138
Sally Stoel, 399
SANDS
(Pvt.), Gaston, 141
(Pvt.), J., 150
(Pvt.), Jacob, 146
(Pvt.), Joel, 117
(Pvt.), Lyman, 157
(Pvt.), Richard, 117, 158
(Pvt.), R., 150
(Pvt.), Thomas, 156
(Pvt.), W., 150
(Pvt.), William H., 118
SANDUSKY
Pally Pesrin, 362
Rebecca, 362
Samuel, 382
Susannah Walcutt, 362
SANDY
Albert, 445
Anna, 457
Charlotte, 445
Delilah, 457, 445
Eliza, 445
Erastus, 445
SANDY continued
Ermine, 445
Genora, 457
Hattie, 457
Isaac A., 445
(Pvt.), J., 148
James, Jr., 445, 457
James, Sr., 445, 457
Luada, 457
Wagoner, James, 154
Philip, 445
Rebecca, 445
Sarah, 457
Sarah, 457
Seabury, 457
Uriah, 445
Wesley, 445
William, 445
William Henry, 457
SANFORD
321
(Pvt.), H., 149
SANGER
B., 399
SAPP
204
(Pvt.), C. W., 150
George W., 205
James, 204
Margaret, 320
(Corp), John N., 135
(Pvt.), William, 110, 125, 127
SARBER
Adam, 444, 445
Christian, 445
D., 453
J. A., 396
Leonard, 450, 453
SARCHET
T. T., 560
SARDON
(Pvt.), Jonathan, 107
SARGENT
(Rev.), D. H., 296
David H., 255
(Major) Winthrop, 39
SASS
(Pvt.), George D., 122
SATCH
(Pvt.), R. A., 155
SATTERFIELD
John, 331
SAUER
J., 228
Judith, 228
SAUL
John, 101, 102, 485, 487
SAUM
Jacob, 480
SAUNDERS
Miskell, 494
Nancy Yates, 293
SAVAGE
(Dr.), C. M., 567
(Pvt.), E. G., 147
Samuel, 460
Sarah, 460
SAVIER
(Corp), Jacob, 138
(Pvt.), John, 138
SAVIGNO

SAVIGNO continued
(Pvt.), Albert, 139
SAVILEY
(Pvt.), J., 149
SAWYER
A. P., 396
Ellen, 307
J. O., 537, 564
John, 355
(Rev.), L. A., 475, 481-482
Sarah, 311
(Rev.), W. W., 189
William, 311, 549
SAWYERS
(Pvt.), Samuel, 110
SAY
Ella, 586
SAYERS
(Pvt.), S., 112
SAYLE
Jacob, 102
SAYLER
262
Adam, 253
Jacob, 253, 257, 269
Orlando, 253
SAYLES
David, 586
Phebe, 586
SAYLOR
(Doctor), 453
Elizabeth, 443
Jacob, 250
Michael, 269
Milton, 69
SAYNE
(Pvt.), William, 121, 142
SAYRE
(Rev.), W. H., 436
SAYRES
Adaline, 326
Lemuel, 326
SAXON
Silas, 268, 269
SAXTON
(Pvt.), J., 151
SCANLIN
(Pvt.), P., 150
SCANLON
(Pvt.), William, 141
SCANTHIRE
(Pvt.), P., 150
SCARRETT
Erasmus, 132
SCARTH
(Sgt.), Francis O., 132
SCASSELL
(Pvt.), C., 147
SCATTERWAITE
John, 207
SCHAEFER
(Pvt.), George, 122
Henry, 575
SCHAEFFER
L., 535
SCHAEFLER
Thaddeus A., 138
SCHAFER
Elizabeth Christina, 589
SCHAFFER
(Pvt.), Anton, 122
SCHAFFER continued
Dr. J., 400
(Pvt.), James, 128
Jacob, 464
(Dr.), Jacob, 465 SCHALLERN
(Pvt.), Eugene, 122
(Surg.), Rainer, 122
SCHAN
(Sgt.), Charles, 122
SCHARLACT
(Pvt.), Frederich, 122
SCHANTZ
(Pvt.), Abraham, 133
SCHANWECKER
G. A., 574
SCHARTZMAN
(Pvt.), George, 108
SCHAUB
(Pvt.), John F., 142
SCHEAF
(Pvt.), John, 121
SCHELL
(Pvt.), John, 142
SCHENCK
100, 375
(Sgt.), Alexander, 109
(Dr.), C. F., 47
(Pvt.), G. R., 110
SCHENK
Aaron, 396, 397
(Pvt.), Conrad, 130
(Sgt.), Jacob, 117
Mary, 396-397
Susan, 396-397
SCHENKEL
(Pvt.), Jacob, 108
SCHENKET
(Pvt.), John, 132
SCHENNGER
(Pvt.), Peter, 111
SCHERMERHORN
(Pvt.), George, 144
SCHERZER
(Pvt.), John B., 108
SCHEUFRMAN
(Pvt.), L. V., 108 SCHICK
(Pvt.), Adam, 131
(Pvt.), Christian, 142
H., 478
SCHIEFERDECKER
(Corp), William, 117
SCHILB
(Pvt.), Jacob, 142
SCHIMMEL
(Pvt.), Nicolaus, 122
SCHIRRE
(Pvt.), Jeremiah, 142
SCHISLER
(Pvt.), Floyd, 144
SCHLALF
(Pvt.), George, 142
SCHLECHTER
575
SCHLEICH
(Pvt.), Jacob, 144
John, 48
Jacob, 355
Isaac, 355
SCHLESINGER
SCHLESINGER continued
(Pvt.), David, 122
SCHLEYER
200
SCHLIECH
(Pvt.), George, 141
SCHLIK
(Pvt.), Adam, 143
SCHLOTTE
(Pvt.), Samuel, 131
SCHLOTMAN
J., 251
SCHMAN
(Pvt.), Solomon S., 138
SCHMELL
(Pvt.), Louis, 142
SCHMERY
(Pvt.) Sacob, 108
SCHMID
(Rev.), E., 394, 500
SCHMIDT
(Lt.), Frederic, 108
(Corp.), George, 117
(Pvt.), George, 108
(Sgt.), John, 122
(Pvt.), Leonhard, 122
(Pvt.), Philip, 123
SCHMUESSER
(Pvt.), John G., 146
SCHNEIDER
(Capt.), 112, 569
SCHNEIDER
(Pvt.), Henry, 137
John, 46
(Pvt.), John J., 142
(Pvt.), Joseph, 142
(Corp), Joseph L., 135
P., 527
(Pvt.), William, 109
SCHNETTE
Rev. C. H. L., 500
SCHNIED
(Pvt.), Louis, 117
SCHNULZ
(Pvt.), George C., 142
SCHOCH
(Sgt.), Samuel, 154
SCHOCK
J. M., 451
(Corp), Jacob, 120
(Pvt.), W. H., 150
(Pvt.), William H., 138
SCHODER
(Corp), Rudolph, 122
SCHOEFER
(Pvt.), Joseph H., 122
SCHOELE
(Pvt.), S., 150
SCHOENBAUB
(Pvt.), Jacob, 108
SCHOERBERG
(Rev.), 527
SCHOFIED
Reuben, 464
SCHOFIELD
(Rev.), 449
Levi F., 546
Mary, 416
SCHOLEY
George W., 328
Martha A. Gibson, 328

SCHOLEY continued
William, 329
SCHOLL
(Pvt.), George, 108
SCHON
(Rev.), Edw. W., 517
Mrs. E. W., 528
SCHONANT
Father Wm., 522
SCHONBERG
J., 527
SCHOONOVER 463
John, 465
SCHOOTS
Joseph, 251, 254
SCHOTHORN
(Sgt.), Frank, 155 SCHOTT
(Pvt.), Adam, 158
L., 473
SCHOULER
William, 160
SCHRAEDER
(Pvt.), John, 141
SCHRANGER
(Pvt.), John, 144
SCHRANTZ
(Pvt.), Urias, 131
SCHRAWGES
(Pvt.), Augustus, 141
SCHREINER
(Pvt.), Florenz, 122
(Pvt.), Henry, 108
SCHRENSKEISEN
(Pvt.), John, 117
SCHRESERDERKER
(Pvt.), Fred, 117
SCHRECKENGAUST
(Pvt.), William H. H., 117
SCHRIEVER
(Pvt.), Robert S., 139
SCHROCK
A., 472
Alfred T., 472
Christiana, 469, 472, 486, 488
Clara C., 472
Editha, 486
(Pvt.), George W., 129
George W., 472
(Pvt.), H., 149, 152
Isaac W., 486
(Pvt.), J., 149, 152
James, 472
Lacylum, 486
Mary Ann, 472
Meliessa C., 472
Orenlia, 486
Rachel V., 472, 472-473
Sarah Jane, 472
Thomas, 469, 472
Ursula Jane, 486
(Pvt.), V., 152
Vause, 472
William, 452, 472, 486
SCHROEIZER
(Pvt.), Philip, 122
SCHROLL
George P., 527
(Pvt.), John, 108
SCHROOK
(Pvt.), I., 147
SCHRUM
(Pvt.), Samuel, 130
SCHRUMM
Joseph, 403
SCHRYVER
(Pvt.), Ebon M., 134
Elizabeth, 321
(Pvt.), George J., 135
Jacob H., 321
Jacob J., 47
SCHUBERT
(Pvt.), Nichals, 141
SCHBLUK
(Corp), F., 117
SCHUCKERT
(Pvt.), Henry, 111
SCHUELLER
(Dr.), J. B., 567
SCHUERKERT
(Pvt.), Henry, 122
SCHUH
(Rev.), H. J., 447
SCHULTZE
(Rev.), A. H., 186
(Rev.), 394
SCHULLY
(Pvt.), John, 135
SCHULZE
(Corp), Frederick A., 159
SCHUNANSKY
(Pvt.), Lewis, 121
SCHUPP
(Rev.), Noah, 527
SCHURN
A. D., 204
SCHWARTZ
203
Amelia, 406
W., 202
Pvt. William, 112
SCHWARZ
Andrew, 527
(Pvt.), Gottleib, 117
SCHWIN
(Pvt.), J., 150
(Pvt.), John, 154
SCHWINE
(Pvt. E., 150
SCHWINN
(Rev.), George, 518
SCHYRER
J. H., 105
SCLEICH
Jacob, 275
SCOBY
(Pvt.), G., 149, 152
(Pvt.), Henry, 130
SCOFIELD
Benjamin, 492
(Pvt.), David, 129
Elias, 492
(Pvt.), James, 144
Levi T., 367
(Pvt.), Milton, 129
(Pvt.), Myers, 157
Nathan, 496
SCOTHAM
(Pvt.), F. A., 151
SCOTHOM
SCOTHOM continued
(Pvt.), H., 151
SCOTHARN
(Pvt.), T. D., 151
SCOTHORN
Hannah, 275
(Pvt.), J. D., 155
Joseph, 275
Lewis, 275, 277, 280
Lewis Jr., 275
Susannah, 275
Monroe, 277, 281
SCOTT
(Doctor), 270, 335
Abram, 362
Andrew, 485
(Pvt.), Andrew E., 158
Catharine Ridenour, 484
Charles, 160
(Pvt.), Charles J., 110
David, 65, 66, 513
Elias F., 341
Li. Elias F., 118
Elizabeth, 464
(Pvt.), Francis M., 115
G., 556
Gamaliel, 161, 165, 593
Jorge W., 364
Gustavus, 100
(Pvt.), Hamilton, 157
Rev. H. B., 475
(Pvt.), Henry, 153
J., 484
James, 364, 413, 486, 507, 513
(Pvt.), James, 140
(Corp), James C., 159
John, 69, 413, 484, 485, 495, 540, 541
(Pvt.), John, 118, 108
John (Jr.), 485
(Rev.), John, 449
(Pvt.), John W., 154
Dr. J. W., 395
Pvt. Joseph, 121
Joseph, 413, 467
Lydia Huffman, 434
Maggie, 197
Mary, 285
Mary J., 384
Mary Huffman, 362
Marybee, 470
Samuel, 335
(Pvt.), Samuel, 134
William, 110, 292, 341, 435, 436
(Capt.), William, 151, 155
Winfield, 161
(Capt.) W. F. H., 140
(Rev.), W. H., 517
SCOVIL
181
L. E., 53, 208
L. S., 190
SCOVILE
(Pvt.), Lyman E., Jr., 115
SCOVILL
(Pvt.), Henry, 117
SCOVILLE
George W., 119
SCRAGGS

SCAGGS continued
(Pvt.), Isaac, 117
SCRAWGER
(Pvt.), Joseph, 128
SCRINGER
Albert, 493
SCULPER
(Pvt.), John, 114
SCUTT
(Lt.), Chauncy, 150
SEABOURN
William, 320
SEABURN
John, 325
Mary West, 325
SEABURY
(Rev.), George, 521
SEALBY
(Pvt.), John, 133
SEALL
198
George, 267
John, 267
John L., 48
Samuel, 267
SEALS
Samuel, 53
(Pvt.), Vincent, 124
SEANNAN
(Pvt.), John, 133
SEARCH
(Pvt.), Sackria, 139
SEARFASS
Peter, 413
SEARLE
Roger, 556
SEARS
C. E., 203
(Rev.), Clinton W., 517
Clinton W., 129 SEAS
(Pvt.), Hiram, 121
SEATZER
(Pvt.), H., 151
SEBEL
H. T., 478
SEBRING
(Pvt.), Charles, 130
(Corp), Edward, 120
Lydia, 475
(Pvt.), McKendice, 130
SEBURN
(Pvt.), George W., 135
(Pvt.), Henry, 157
SECHEVERELL
J. H., 7
SECOR
Joseph K., 367
SECURS
(Pvt.), James, 159
SEDGWICK
Theodroe, 238
Timothy, 407
SEEBOLES
(Pvt.), John, 118
SEEDS
393
Aaron, 385
(Pvt.), Aaron, 123
Angel ine, 390
Asenath Britton, 494, 495
SEEDS continued
C., 395
Catharine, 385
Cyrus, 325, 385
Elizabeth, 325, 385, 390
Harvey, 325, 385
Henry, 325, 385
Isabel, 325
Isabella, 385
J. W., 395
James, 325, 385, 388
John, 325, 385
Dr. John, 494, 495
J. R. D., 154
Margaret, 385
Martha, 385
Mary, 385
Mary A., 385
Mary Ann, 325
Moses, 385
R. G., 496
(Dr.), R. Zenas, 494, 495, 496
Robert, 323, 325, 385, 387, 388
Samuel, 325, 385
(Dr.), S. M., 331, 332, 494, 495
William, 325, 385, 387
William W., 385
Woods, 325
SEEGUR
John R. L., 495
SEELEY
C. R., 380
SEEVERS
(Rev.), Benjamin, 296
SEGNER
Eli, 477
SEIBOLD
Pvt. Charles, 110
SEIDEL
(Pvt.), Gottleib, 122
SEIDNER
Musician John, 115
SEIGLES
(Pvt.), George, 110
SEIGWALD
H., 215
SEIGWALT
L., 202
SEIM
(Pvt.), Henry, 123
SEITZ
(Pvt.), Sebastian, 130
SELANDERS
(Pvt.), Samuel A., 140
SELBACH
590
SELBY
(Pvt.), A. T., 158
(Pvt.), Nehemiah, 145
SELCOTT
(Pvt.), Henry, 143
SELF
Stephen, 288
SELIG
Michael, 348
(Pvt.), Samuel, 122
SELLER
John, 420
SELLERS
SELLERS continued
(Rev.), A., 296
(Pvt.), Franklin, 141 SELL
Cyrus, 64
SELLS 507
Abraham, 372, 492, 493, 494, 496
Abram, 102
Benjamin, 46, 102, 369, 371, 492, 494
Charles, 370, 371, 372
Daniel, 375
Elivd, 370, 371, 372
Elizabeth David, 371, 492
F. A., 587
Fletcher, 102, 370, 371
George, 370
Holmes, 374
John, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 327
Louis , 465
Ludwick, 369, 371, 373
Marilla, 370-371
Margaret, 370
Orange, 494, 495
(Capt.), Orange, 157
Peter, 46, 369, 371, 372
Samuel, 369, 371, 375
Susan, 375
(Pvt.), W. S., 149
W. W., 496
William, 101, 369, 371, 372
SELTSAM
(Pvt.), John G., 117
SELTZER
Elizabeth, 536, 537
Ellena, 536, 537
George, 536, 537
(Pvt.), George B., 157
George D., 536, 537
John Z., 536-537
Mary, 536, 537
Matilda, 536, 537
Samuel, 536-537
(Dr.), Samuel Z., 536-537
(Dr.), Van Swieten, 47, 536-537, 586
Wilhelmina, 536-537
SEMPLE
Carrie, 428
Hugh, 450
SENDELBACK
(Corp), Andrew, 121
SENEY
Joshua, 101
SENFL
(Pvt.), Gottleib Ernst, 122
SENIOR
(Pvt.), John, 120
SENNET
John A., 133
SENSEL
(Pvt.), William, 133
SENSENIG
J. B., 567
SENTER
F. M., 453
Mina, 97
(Sgt.), O. A. B., 147, 153

SEPTER
(Pvt.), Jared, 127
(Pvt.), Levi, 127
SESSIONS
Darius, 584
F. C., 62, 432, 433, 525, 531, 584-585
Mrs. F. C., 421, 422, 528
Francis, 584
Francis C., 566, 567, 584
Mary, 585
Robert, 584
SESSLER
(Pvt.), Conrad, 117
SEUTER
Mina, 95
SEVERS
(Pvt.), John, 107
SEWARD
Sophia, 309
William H., 561
SEXGLER
Harriet, 102
SEYMOUR
Abel, 336
Able, 338
Adam, 336
(Pvt.), Andrew, 135
Catharine, 301
(Pvt.), 145
Cora, 341
Elizabeth, 336
Ellen, 442
George, 445
(Pvt.), H., 151
Hannah, 336
(Pvt.), Henry, 155
(Sgt.), Henry D., 156
Isaac, 338
Jesse, 445
John, 445, 447
Jonathan, 336
(Judge), 327, 333
L. R., 368
Margaret, 336
Mary A., 338
(Pvt.), Martins, 143
Miner, 445
Minerva, 336
Moses, 445, 450
Phillip, 301
Polly, 336
Renick, 343
Richard, 336
(Pvt.), Thomas, 139
William, 42, 47, 100, 184, 205, 285, 444, 445
(Judge), William, 336
SEYPART
(Pvt.), Julius, 114
SEYS
(Surgeon), Henry H., 111
SHABE
(Pvt.), Jonah, 108
SHACKLEFORD
(Pvt.), James, 108
(Pvt.), John W., 140
SHADE
396
A. H., 363
Aadline, 363
SHADE continued
Adin H., 363, 365
Ann E., 363
Ann White, 363
Jacob, 363
James, 332
Pamelia, 363
SHADLEY
(Pvt.), Henry, 107
SHADRACK
(Pvt.), Oliver K., 143
SHADRICK
(Pvt.), Lafayette, 156
SHADWICK
(Pvt.), George, 108
(Pvt.), Reynolds, 158
SHAEFFER
(Dr.), A. H., 103, 217
Ezra, 313
(Pvt.), George, 108
SHAFER
354, 416-417
(Pvt.), B., 148
(Pvt.), Barnett, 158
Ezra, 314
(Pvt.), Henry, 129
(Pvt.), Hiram, 139
Jacob, 356
(Pvt.), John, 125, 159
(Pvt.), John G., 159
(Pvt.), T., 148
SHAFF
(Pvt.), D. A., 149, 152
SHAFFE
(Pvt.), M., 151
SHAFFER
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 133
(Pvt.), George E., 131
Jacob, 275
(Pvt.), John, 125
(Pvt.), S. M., 123
SHAFTER
Philip, 364
SHAIN
(Pvt.), P., 150
SHAIT
(Pvt.), Henry, 134
SHAMBAUGH
(Pvt.), George, 136
SHANAHAN
(Pvt.), Thomas, 156
SHANCK
Moses, 119
SHANEHAN
(Pvt.), John, 135
SHANER
James, 215
SHANIHAN
(Pvt.), T., 151
SHANK
(Pvt.), Abner, 135
(Pvt.), G., 150
John A., 368
(Pvt.), Joseph, 135
SHANKLAND
(Pvt.), T. G., 112
SHANKS
Ann Saul, 485
George, 400, 465
George, 477
SHANNEN
SHANNEN continued
(Pvt.), Henry, 127
SHANNON
496, 497
Ada, 266, 267
(Pvt.), D., 146
(Governer, 542-543
Hugh, 392
(Pvt.), Jacob L., 143
James, 392, 484
Jane, 450
John, 392, 397
Joseph, 392
Margaret, 326, 327, 331
(Sgt.), Minard, 117
Neil, 450
Robert, 44, 392
Samuel, 45, 46, 392
William, 392
SHANTON
Abraham, 34
SHAPPELL
(Pvt.), Jeremiah, 135
SHARKEY
Elizabeth, 235
Thomas, 202
SHARMAN
(Pvt.), James, 145
SHARP 444
(Pvt.), A. J., 149
(Capt.), A. G., 119
Abigail, 458
Abraham, 449, 452
(Corp), Alonzo G., 111
(Pvt.), Alonzo R., 111
Andrew, 470
Ann, 452
Anna, 469
(Dr.), C. C., 217
Catherine, 452
Clara, 470
(Sgt), Clinton E., 123
Mrs. Cornelius, 407
(Doctor), 217
Elizabeth, 443
Garrit, 469, 475
Huldah, 452
(Pvt.), Jacob, 130
(Pvt.), J. G., 148
John, 267, 269, 270, 394, 443, 450, 452
John D., 265, 267
John, Jr., 452
(Corp), John P., 154
(Pvt.), J. T., 150
John Wesley, 470
Joseph, 443, 452
(Pvt.), Martin L., 136
Mary, 443
Mary, 443
Mary C., 452
Mary Elizabeth, 452
Nancy, 358
Patience, 449
(Pvt.), S. C., 150
Samuel, 449, 452, 453
Sarah Rush, 326
Stephen, 470
(Pvt.), Thomas, 107
William, 470

SHARP continued
William P., 444
(Pvt.), William, 157
SHARPE
(Sgt.), Jacob, M., 159
SHATTS
(Corp), Joseph W., 125
SHATTUC
Harriet, 376
Rebecca, 376
Samuel S., 376
SHATTUCK
Alexander, 405, 408
(Captain), Alexander, 588
Flora, 588
Josephine, 588
Mary, 434
Rebecca, 434
Simon, 308, 381, 405
William, 405
SHAUGEART
(Pvt.), Thomas E., 145
SHAUGHNISSEY
Andrew, 207
SHAW
Andrew, 326
(Corp), Adrian, 157
(Pvt.), Adrian V., 158
(Pvt.), Charles C., 158
(Pvt.), Edmond, 140
Hugh, 326
(Pvt.), James, 118
(Pvt.), James A., 121
John, 326
O. H., 557
Robert A., 453
S. P., 184
Samuel, 332, 414
Sarah V. Lane, 328, 332
(Pvt.), Strother N., 146
T. G., 557
V., 431
(Pvt.), Virgil R., 126
William, 46, 497, 512
(Pvt.), William, 158
SHAWHAN
R. W., 421
Thomas, 357
SHAWHN
(Sgt.), Levi, 155
SHAWN
(Pvt.), Levi, 151
SHAY
(Pvt.), Charles, 143
(Pvt.), P., 115
SHBROOK
Mahlon, 348
SHEA
(Pvt.), Patrick, 143
SHEANOR
(Pvt.), Solomon, 107
SHEARER
Andrew W., 383
SHEARS
(Pvt.), David, 156
(Pvt.), Mynder, 107
SHEDD
(Corp), W. E., 114
SHEDDE
(Pvt.), S. M., 146
SHEDY
SHEDY continued
(Pvt.), John, 110
SHEEDERS
C. V., 437
SHEEKS
Christopher, 157
SHEELZE
(Pvt.), Frank M., 134
SHEETERS
Elizabeth, 438
SHEETS
J. W., 289, 290
(Pvt.), John R., 141
(Corp), John W., 127
SHEFLET
(Pvt.), H., 151
SHELBEY
(Gov.), 97
SHELBY
Benjamin, 268-269, 270
Charity, 268-269
Daniel, 42
David, 42, 44, 100, 268, 269, 270
Elizabeth, 268-269
Evaline, 268-269
Evan C., 268-269
Mrs. F., 266-267
Hannah, 268-269
Isaac, 268, 269
John, 50, 268-269
Joseph, 268-269
(Pvt.), Julius, 158
Malinda H., 268-269
Mary, 268-269
Mary, 268-269
Rachel, 268-269
Rezon, 268-269
SHELDON
(Pvt.), B., 152
(Pvt.), George, 143, 146
(Sgt.), Robert B., 153
(Pvt.), Robert E., 147
Martha Uncles, 501
R. A., 566
SHELENBURGH
(Pvt.), C. C., 123
SHELL
(Pvt.), Gillead M., 141 SHELLEY
(Governor), 65
SHELLHAMMER
Jonas, 303
SHELT
(Sgt.), Moses, 114
(Lt.), Moses, 125
(Rev.), 309
SHELTON
James, 524
Wallace, 191
(Pvt.), W. R., 114
SHENABARGER
(Pvt.), Elias, 136
SHENCK
Surgeon W. L., 114
SHENEFELT
Henry, 435
SHEPARD
Abram, 335
Alexander, 377
David, 336
SHEPARD continued
Elizabeth, 377
(Pvt.), G., 148
Jane, 377
John, 335, 336, 337
John B., 336
Ruhamah, 377
Sarah, 377
(Pvt.), William, 108
SHEPHARD
A. J., 439
Asa, 434 - 435
Elizabeth, 439
(Pvt.), John, 159
SHEPHERD
441
(Pvt.), J., 151
(Capt.), Abraham L., 134
(Doctor), 486, 488
(Pvt.), Henry W., 138
(Dr.), Roswell, 291
William, 484
SHEPLEY
(Pvt.), A., 111
SHEPPARD
(Pvt.), Joseph, 117
(Pvt.), William A., 144
SHERDON
(Pvt.), Avery A., 119
SHERICK
Polly Saul, 485
SHERIDAN
(Pvt.), Andrew, 120
J., 202
Mary B., 197
SHERLOCK
373
SHERMAN
Alonzo, 400
(Pvt.), B. F., 124
(Pvt.), Charles, 143
(Pvt.), John, 121
John, 569
Joseph, 400
Mary, 400
(Pvt.), S. M., 148
(Sgt.), Sylvester M., 153
Timothy, 392, 394
(Pvt.), William, 119, 120
(Pvt.), William S., 38
(General), W. T., 118, 124, 128, 132, 186-187, 234, 494, 495, 532, 533, 540, 582
SHERRICK
(Rev.), W. W., 476
SHERRON
(Pvt.), T., 150
SHERRY
(Corp), James, 130
SHERWOOD
(Pvt.), Aaron, 139
Jeremiah, 416
(Pvt.), William H., 157
SHESK
(Pvt.), John, 139
SHESLER
John, 411
SEHVIER
Mother Francis, 532
SHEWCRAFT
James, 524

SHEWRY
(Pvt.), C. W., 147
(Pvt.), Charles W., 153
SHIELD
May, 592
Robert, 465
SHIELDS
James, 37
John, 373, 513
John A., 560
Mrs. Robert, 462
SHIFFLER
(Pvt.), G., Jr., 147 SHILLING
(Pvt.), Charles, 141
John, 489
Wagoner, Jacob, 120
SHINN
Levi, 392
SHIPE
Daniel, 478
SHIPLEY
(Pvt.), Camden B., 134
Evans, 313
G. L., 209
(Pvt.), G. W., 151
John, 313
(Pvt.), Samuel, 136
(Corp), Thomas S., 114
SHIPLIN
(Sgt.), Philip, 125
SHIPMAN
(Pvt.), John, 158
Wagoner, Charles, 120
SHIREFF
(Pvt.), A. J., 125
SHIREY
(Pvt.), Jacob, 121
(Pvt.), William, 119
SHIRK
(Pvt.), John H., 144
SHIRLEY
Elizabeth, 272
SHISLER
(Pvt.), Floyd, 127
(Pvt.), John, 115, 124
SHIVELY
Margaret, 312
SHIVER
(Pvt.), George, 130
SHLUP
(Pvt.), John, 139
(Pvt.), Stephen, 139
SHOAF
395, 404, 498, 500
(Pvt.), A., 148
Emma, 396
G. W., 396
(Pvt.) H., 148
(Pvt.), I., 148
(Pvt.), J., Sr., 148
(Pvt.), J., Jr., 148
(Pvt.), J. R., 148
Joseph, 390-391
John, 392
John, 396
SHOCK
John M., 450
(Pvt.), William H., 130
SHOCKLEY
D. C., 453
SHOCKLEY continued
Comstock, 289
(Pvt.), Serome, 135
(Pvt.), P. M., 148
SHOECRAFT
Virilla, 272
SHOELLAR
(Sgt.), John, 110
SHOEMAKER
179
A., 453
Abraham, 456
Ann Eliza, 264
(Pvt.), A. J., 158
Benjamin, 452
Charles, 53, 54, 183, 251
Cynthia S., 264
(Pvt.), Edwin, 141
Elizabeth, 254, 258, 264, 456
Ezra, 348
Isaac, 264
Jacob, 47, 100, 200, 251
James, 105
(Pvt.), Job M., 159
John, 42, 250, 251, 256, 257, 258, 264
John William, 264
Joseph, 104, 251, 264
Judge, 179, 254
Mary, 264
Mary E., 264
Otis B., 264
Susannah, 18
Dr. W. W., 437
SHOFF
(Pvt.), Jacob, 145
SHOLL
(Doctor), 332
SHOM
(Pvt.), William, 157
SHOOF
395
SHOOK
Abraham, 393
Eli, 395, 396
Elias, 393
Jacob, 356, 393
Jeremiah, 393
Margaret, 354
Philip, 393
Rebecca, 396
Sarah, 354
SHORK
Abraham, 353
Catharine, 353
Elizabeth, 353
George P., 353
Isaac, 353
Jacob, 353
John, 353
Joseph, 353
Margaret, 353
Mary, 353
Philip, 353
Sarah, 353
Susan, 353
SHORM
(Lt.), William P., 138
SHORN
(Pvt.), William P., 137
SHORT 221
(Dr.), A. A., 451, 458
James, 40, 342, 347, 351
John, 519
(Pvt.), John, 158
(Pvt.), John P., 146
Miller, 307
(Pvt.), R. D., 146
Stepheu, 351
William, 357
SHORTON
Daniel, 50
SHOTTS
(Pvt.), Henry, 140
SHOTWELL
(Lt.), Hudson B., 139
SHOUP
John, 48, 214
SHOUT
Henry, 372
SHOVER
Ashford, 386
Caroline, 386
Eli, 386
Elizabeth, 386
G. W., 388
George W., 386
Harriet, 386
Henry, 386
Jane, 386
John, 386
Mrs. F., 387
Sidner J., 386
Valentine F., 386
SHOWD
(Pvt.), Jacob, 138
SHOWER
(Pvt.), John B., 139
(Pvt.), Rollin, 139
SHOWMAN
(Pvt.), J., 148
SHERM
(Pvt.), J. R., 148
SHRINER
(Pvt.), J., 114
SHRIVER
W. J., 373
SHROCK
Alfred Taylor, 482
Clara Arabell, 482
George, 482
George W., Jr., 482
George Washington, 482
James, 482
Jane Means, 482
John, 449
Melissa, 482
Margaret E., 483
Perez, 482
Rachel V. Inskip, 482
Sarah J., 482
Thomas G., 486
Vause, 482
William, 450, 482
SHROEDER
(Pvt.), James W., 141
SHROUP
(Pvt.), Jacob, 107
SHRUM
W. S., 402, 403, 404

SHRUM continued
William S., 102, 104
SHUCK
(Pvt.), A. W., 123
(Corp), Samuel A., 122
SHUFF
(Pvt.), Benjamin F., 134
SHUGART
(Pvt.), Reuben, 156
SHUH
(Pvt.), Weutling, 142
SHULER
(Pvt.), Andrew, 139
SHULL
Abraham, 466
David, 486
Isaac, 488
(Pvt.), James M., 141
(Pvt.), John, 141
(Pvt.), John H., 141
Rebecca, 446
SHULSE
Charles Groce, 233
Ellen Gillett, 233
Emanuel Edgar, 233
Frank M., 233
SHULTY
(Pvt.), Jonathan, 128
SHULTZ
Catharine, 384
E. G., 199
SHULTZE
Eliza J., 210
SHULZE
(Sgt.), Charles E., 134
Frank M., 48
(Maj.), Will H., 134
SHUMM
(Pvt.), John, 123
SHUMWAY
(Pvt.), James, 118
(Pvt.), Homer, 121
SHUPE
Jonathan C., 107
SHUPERT
Elizabeth, 232
John, 232
SHURTLIFF
(Maj.), Roswell, 154
SHUTERS
(Pvt.), J. R., 149
SHYHAWK
Pri. Christian, 107
SIBEL
Hiram, 465
H. F., 478
H. T., 473
SIBLEY
255
SIBRAY
William, 388
SIEBERT
Charles M., 204
Henry L., 46
SIEGEL
(General), 123
SIEGLE
(Pvt.), William, 158
SIELLER
(Pvt.), Godfred, 142
SIETIEST
SIETIEST continued
(Pvt.), Charles, 153
SIEVERS
(Rev.), Benjamin, 309
SIEVERT
(Pvt.), Lewis, 153
SIFERT
L. W., 435, 437
SIGMAN
(Pvt.), Joseph, 119, 121
(Pvt.), H., 151
Musician David M., 121
SILBAUGH
(Pvt.), Herman, 134
SILBERNAGEL
Louisa, 75
Jacob, 526
SILL
William, 54
SILLIMAN
W., 510
Willis, 50, 63
Wyliss, 92
Wyllys, 40
SILLIMMAN
Wyllis, 44
SILLS
Benjamin, 465
Samuel, 40
SILTER
(Pvt.), G., 111
SILVER
John, 297
SIMCOX
(Pvt.), Michael, 158
SIMMES
James, 215
SIMMOND
G. E., 414
Thomas, 414
SIMMONDS
(Pvt.), I., 148
SIMMONS
402
(Pvt.), Isaac, 141, 157
(Pvt.), James W., 135
(Pvt.), John D., 136
Madalena, 345
Solomon, 119
Stephen, 346, 349
(Pvt.), Thomas V., 159
(Pvt.), William, 133
(Rev.), William, 296
SIMMS
(Pvt.), Lewis, 135
N. A., 104
William, 453
SIMON
(Pvt.), John, 157
SIMONDS
(Pvt.), George W., 145
(Pvt.), Milton, 148
(Pvt.), Wilson, 138
SIMONS
(Pvt.), John, 114
(Pvt.), John J., 155
Wilmer, 108
SIMONTON
(Col.), Hiram, 586
Sallie E., 586
SIMPKINS
SIMPKINS continued
F. A. B., 165
Harvey, 495
(Pvt.), John A., 129
J. H., 494
SIMPSON
396
Ann, 376
(Rev.), E. Owen, 185
(Pvt.), George, 156
(Pvt.), Henry, 143
Isobel, 341
Mrs. L. W., 396
(Rev.), Owen, 341
Reuben, 312
Sarah, 405
(Pvt.), William, 130
William, 208, 209
(Pvt.), William R., 143
SIMS
B. C., 450
(Pvt.), F., 150
(Pvt.), J., 150
James, 188
Mary, 364
N. A., 518
(Rev.), ___, 364
William, 450, 451
SIMSON
(Pvt.), Thomas, 108
SINCLAIR
(Lt.), George, 133
SINER
(Pvt.), Adam, 107
SINES
(Pvt.), John, 156
(Pvt.), Samuel, 156
Samuel, 285
SINGLETON
257
SINKS
George W., 578
G. W., 525
SINNION
(Pvt.), William, 142
SINSIBAUGH
(Pvt.), Isaac, 158
SISCO
Helen, 363
SISSON
Martha, 74
(Dr.), P., 74, 559
SISSONS
(Pvt.), Joseph S., 130 SITES
(Pvt.), John A., 147
Louisa, 531
SITLER
(Pvt.), 115
SITTING BULL
Chief, 243
SITZON
(Pvt.), J., 147
SIVINGER
(Pvt.), Christ, 115
SKATES
(Pvt.), William, 120
SKEELS
Belias H., 408
(Pvt.), Charles, 120
Reuben, 378

SKEHAN
(Corp), Patrick, 156
SKELLS
(Sgt,), John S., 133
SKIDMORE
George, 507
(Capt.), George, 361, 363
SKILLS
(Pvt.), Henry, 107
SKINNER
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 128
John, 290
(Sgt.), Joshua, 127
(Pvt.), Lemuel, 128
W. N., 207
SLADE
(Capt.), John B., 138
(Pvt.), John S., 157
SLADER
(Pvt.), Samuel H., 111
SLADLE
Jacob, 370
SLAGLE
285
Maria, 285
SLATZER
(Pvt.), Henry, 155
SLAUGHTER
Ezekiel B., 119
James A., 119
(Pvt.), Lewis D., 157
Robert, 44, 92
Robert F., 178 , 213
SLENEROCK
(Pvt.), J., 151
SLIFE
(Pvt.), Daniel D., 146
(Pvt.), Edward, 158
(Pvt.), Jacob J., 146
SLOAN
Israel, 475
(Rev.), T., 187
SLOCUM
Agnes, 204-205
Judith, 268
R. N., 547
SLOCUMB
Isaac, 633
SLOOP
(Pvt.), Isaiah, 138
SLOPER
Samuel, 419
SLOSSEN
James, 370
SLOTHERD
(Pvt.), Joseph, 108
SLOUGH
Mathias, 407
SLOW
(Pvt.), John, 115
SLUSHER
Susannah, 353
SLY
(Pvt.), Henry C., 130
Mrs. Henry, 320
SLYH
Catharine, 284
D. M., 379
Elizabeth, 284
Emeline, 407
Frederick, 284
SLYH continued
Henry, 402
Henry Jr., 284
Henry Sr., 284
Jacob, 285, 286, 379, 402, 406, 407
Jacob E., 379
John, 284
Louisa, 379
Mary, 284
Mary E., 379
Rebecca, 379
Roselpha, 379
Sarah, 416
William, 406
SMALL
(Pvt.), Andrew E., 141
John, 449
(Pvt.), Peter, 146
SMALLEY
(Pvt.), William M., 143
SMART
402
C. S., 194, 195, 196, 197
James, 348
Joseph, 407
SMEAD
G. L., 543, 544
SMECK
(Pvt.), Henry, 126
SMELTZER
(Pvt.), Charles W., 142
(Pvt.), Henry C., 142
Minerva, 536-537
SMERL
(Pvt.), S., 151
SMETHERS
(Pvt.), David, 159
SMIELT
(Pvt.), William, 140
SMILEY
494
(Judge), ___, 227
Andrew S., 485
David, 364, 493, 494, 496
(Pvt.), James, 133
Polly, 486
Robert, 111
(Pvt.), Samuel N., 143
(Pvt.), Theodore, 119
SMILLIKIN
Mrs. P., 102
SMITH
94, 559
A., 204, 207, 208, 374
(Pvt.), A., 155
(Maj.), Gen., A. J., 90
Abigail, 442
(Pvt.), Albert, 120, 139
(Pvt.), A. J., 149
Alexander, 293, 474
(Pvt.), Alvaro, 110
(Pvt.), Andrew, 138
(Pvt.), Andrew J., 154
Anna, 235, 352
Anna E., 236
Archibald, 411, 414, 415
(Pvt.), Austin, 145
(Pvt.), B., 150
B. E., 60, 61
SMITH continued
(Pvt.), Bernard G., 126
C., 479
(Pvt.), C. H., 146
C. W., 478, 556
(Sgt.), C. W., 149, 152
Catharine, 352, 353, 404
Charles, 236
(Pvt.), Charles, 107
(Pvt.), Charles E., 143
(Pvt.), Charles H., 136
Cecelia, 236
(Pvt.), Christian B., 107
Christine, 352
Clara, 77
Coleman C., 159, 524
(Pvt.), Cyrus, 110
D. Lord, 100
(Pvt.), Daniel, 114
(Pvt.), Daniel H., 119
(Pvt.), D., 152
(Pvt.), Samuel O., 120
David, 44, 65, 163, 352, 372, 377, 411, 513
(Pvt.), David, 110, 119, 122, 135, 140, 146
(Pvt.), David M., 111
(Rev.), David, 296, 388
(Pvt.), D. O., 147
(Pvt.), David V., 120
Daniel, 389, 411, 520
Deborah, 276
(Doctor), 453, 584
E., 235, 330
(Pvt.), 152
E. L., 453
E. R., 243
Edward, 17, 62, 181, 190, 203, 234-245, 518
(Pvt.), Edward, 129, 134
Edward E., 235
Edwards, 236
Edwin, 538
Elizabeth, 65, 235, 293, 311, 352, 491
Elizabeth C., 404
Emanuel, 352
(Pvt.), Felix, 141
(Pvt.), Frank A., 111
Francis C., 236
(Pvt.), Francis M., 120, 142
(Pvt.), Frank, 146
Frederick L., 289
(General), 119, 128
G. L., 453
G. T., 465
G. W., 290
George, 290, 411, 442
(Pvt.), George, 115, 143, 145, 159
(Pvt.), George B., 117
(Pvt.), George S., 157
Gerritt, 490
Gertrude, 353
(Pvt.), H., 148, 151
H. E., 565
(Dr.), H. B., 103, 349
(Dr.), H. H., 348
(Dr.), Hanbury, 367
Handy, 434
Harriet, 234

SMITH continued
(Pvt.), Harvey A., 130
Henry, 94, 280, 352, 353, 388, 411, 413
Pri. Henry, 137, 155
Henry W., 234
(Pvt.), Hocking H., 157
Homer, 414, 415
(Pvt.), Howard, 138
(Pvt.), Howard C., 153
(Pvt.), H. C., 148
(Pvt.), H. H., 147
Juldah, 319
Ignatius, 234
Isaac, 327, 414
(Pvt.), Isaac, 119
(Pvt.), Isaiah, 128
I. N., 414
(Pvt.), I. N., 147
J., 385, 389
J. C., 348
(Rev.), J. D., 449, 495
J. E., 452
J. L., 388, 437
J. N., 414
Jacob, 278, 352, 398, 399, 413, 450
(Pvt.), Jacob, 122, 127, 158
(Rev.), James, 300
James, 293, 411, 414
(Pvt.), James, 108, 110, 124, 143, 145
(Pvt.), James B., 140
James H., 44-45, 162
James I., 235
(Pvt.), Jasper, 138
(Sgt.), Jasper, 120
Jeremiah, 276
(Pvt.), J. W., 147, 148, 152
John, 65, 276, 352, 353, 378, 387, 390-391, 404, 408, 411, 413, 420, 430, 435, 444
(Pvt.), John, 107, 123, 127, 138, 140, 143, 144, 145
John A., 404
(Pvt.), John A., 145, 146
John B., 404
(Lt.), John B., 155
(Pvt.), John C., 138
(Pvt.), John G., 139
John H., 398, 399
(Pvt.), John H., 138, 147
John I., 411
(Pvt.), John J., 133
(Pvt.), John M., 117
(Pvt.), John W., 140, 144, 155
John W., 587
(Corp), Jonas, 156
(Pvt.), Jonah H., 108
Jonathan, 352
(Pvt.), Jonathan, V. M., 120
Joseph, 236, 377, 378, 404
Joseph Otis, 234
J. O., 435
Joseph P., 234-235, 367
J. P., 203
(Pvt.), Joseph, 159
(Pvt.), Joseph R., 120
Joseph S., 235
(Rev.), Josiah D., 190, 516
Josiah O., 434
SMITH continued
(Pvt.), Judson, 121
Julia F., 95
Julia Frances, 77
Julietta, 197
J. T., 464
Kirby, 128
(Gen.), Kirby, 91, 159
(Pvt.), L. C., 147
L. L., 524, 569
L. M., 546
Lemuel, 434
(Sgt.), Lewis, 157
Lois, 380
Lot I., 512
Lucinda King, 434
Lydia, 183
Lyman, 374
Magdalene, 352, 353
Margaret, 385
Margaret Hill, 289
Maria, 293, 328
Mark H., 234
Mary, 235
Mary M., 236, 404
Matilda, 377
Manesseh, 352
Melinda, 311, 312-313
Michael, 389
Milburn, 307
Moses, 46, 352
(Pvt.), W., 125
N. B., 512
Nancy, 320
Nancy Foster, 434
Nancy Lane, 434
Nathan G., 396
Pvt. Nathan H., 133
Nathaniel, 278, 406
Orlando, 61
P. C., 53, 199, 228, 234-235
(Pvt.), P. C., 149
Mrs. P. C., 98
P. H., 7
Palmer C., 47, 53, 99
Patrick, 235
Pency, 293
Phebe, 293
(Pvt.), Philip H., 110
(Pvt.), Phocian, 125
Polly Ater, 293
(Pvt.) R., 149
R. B., 94
Mrs., R. S., 68
Ralph, 474
Rebecca, 400
Rebecca Marsh, 293
Reuben, 352, 354, 357
Robert S., 57
(Pvt.), Robert S., 136
Rosa, 235, 236
Rosanna, 387
Rose Anna, 235
S., 431
(Pvt.), S., 148
(Pvt.), S. G., 148
(Dr.), S. M., 161
S. M., 367
(Dr.), S. M., 531, 554
(Dr.), S. Hanbury, 546
SMITH continued
Sabrina, 94
Sampson B., 289
Samuel, 40, 319, 320, 352, 357
(Pvt.), Samuel, 121
(Rev.), Samuel, 404
Samuel M., 566
(Rev.), Samuel D., 389, 463
Sarah, 214, 235, 289, 302, 352, 378, 385
Sarah Littleton, 434
Solomon, 431
Stanford, 434
(Capt.), Sumner T., 144
Susan, 236
Susan B., 236
Susan Havers, 399
Susannah, 352
Talmer Cone, 234, 235
Taylor W. 409
(Pvt.), Thomas, 114, 138
(Corp), Thomas, 135
Venice, 183
(Pvt.), Willard C., 110
William, 236, 276, 485, 487
(Prof), William, 394
(Pvt.), William, 110, 134, 133, 140
William A., 331, 401
Pri William A., 129
William D., 214
(Maj.), William, 118, 119, 141
(Pvt.), Wilson P., 121
(Pvt.), W. P., 158
SMOCK
(Pvt.), Ira, C., 110
SMOLTZ
Euias, 448
SMOOTS
(Pvt.), Josiah, 139
SMOTHERS
(Pvt.), Alexander, 139
Christian, 473
(Pvt.), Henry, 131
SMOUSE
(Sgt.), Josiah, 114
SMUCKER
Isaac, 7, 16, 19, 28, 39, 176
SMYTHE
(Rev.), Anson, 475
SNEAD
(Pvt.), John, 141
SNELL
(Pvt), George R., 121
SNELLBAKER
(Pvt.), Levi, 131
SNIDER
(Pvt.), Charles, 130
David, 199
(Corp), Frank M., 125
(Pvt.), J., 147
Jacob, 209
John, 46, 313
(Pvt.), John W., 125
SNITH
Eleazer, 335
SNODDY
J. F., 479
(Pvt.), J. F., 149
SNODGAR

SNODGAR continued
Robert, 209
SNOFFER
(Pvt.), Sommerset R., 119
SNOKE
(Pvt.), David, 146
SNOUFFER
Musician David, 152
(Pvt.), George B., 153
(Pvt.), John B., 153
(Corp), John H., 152 SNOW
A. J., 383
Elica Chamberlin, 428-429
Dr. George R., 427, 428-429
Jennie D., 428-429
John, 423, 427, 428-429, 431, 483, 556
John W., 428-429
Julia C., 428-429
Lida H., 428-429
Linda H., 87
Mary, 428-429
Nettie J., 428-429
Susan B., 428-429
W. T., 184
(Rev.), William T., 87, 428-429
SNOWDEN
(Pvt.), Preston R., 117
SNOWDY
477
SNYDER
273, 277
(Pvt.), B., 150
D. J., 465
(Pvt.), D. T., 150
Daniel, 277
Delilah, 275
Emanuel, 277
(Sgt.), F. M., 151, 155
(Pvt.), F. T., 146
(Pvt.), Francis T., 153
(Pvt.), Frank, 143
(Pvt.), Godfrey, 133
Henry, 108
Isaac, 345
(Corp), Isaac, 156
(Pvt.), J., 151
(Maj.), J. T., 113
Jacob, 549
(Pvt.), Jacob, 131
(Pvt.), James, 134
(Pvt.), Jesse H., 145
(Pvt.), John, 156-158
(Corp), John, 111
(Pvt.), John A., 142
(Pvt.), John C., 144
(Pvt.), John D., 141
(Pvt.), L., 150, 151
R. J., 463
Ruth, 345
Sarah, 277
William, 277
SNYSER
(Pvt.), John A., 139
SOHNER
(Pvt.), Jacob, 142
SOLASKI
(Pvt.), John, 117
SOLIDAY
(Pvt.) J., 148
SOLIDAY continued
(Dr.), Joseph, 103
SOLIS
C. P., 552
C. T., 553
SOLLIDAY
Albert, 134
J., 199
SOLOMON
Christina, 441
John, 184
(Rev.), John, 383, 388, 441
(Pvt.), William, 142
SOMERS
Annie, 102
(Pvt.), G., 152
(Pvt.), George, 153
James, 524
(Pvt.), R. S., 147
SOMERVILLE
400
James H., 451
SOMONTON
Tinley T., 131
SOPER
Edward, 348
SOUDER
A., 397
J. H., 400
Isaac, 400, 487
Jonas, 487
John, 487
Serenus, 487
(Corp), William P., 133
SOULE
Bishop, 184
SOUR
(Corp), Henry, 125
SOUSER
John, 353
SOUTH
(Pvt.), Eli P., 140
(Pvt.), Daniel, 120
SOUTHERN
Elizabeth, 345
SOUTHWARD
Agigail A., 306
Catharine, 306
(Rev.), John, 309
Henry, 306
John, 308
Mary C., 306
Pleasant, 306, 308
Sebastian, 306
SOUTHWORTH
(Pvt.), John S., 137
SOWERS
(Pvt.), Abraham, 131
(Pvt.), Christopher, 133
(Pvt.), G., 148
J., 228
Judith, 228
SOYERS
George W., 123
SPADE
Adam, 280
(Pvt.), Andrew, 135
Elizabeth, 278
Henry, 278
Rosanna, 280
Stacy, 102
SPAHR
B., 255
SPALDING
(Judge), 62
SPANGER
(Pvt.), Adam, 108
SPANGLER
A., 434
(Pvt.), A., 149
Adam, 434
(Pvt.), Adam, 118
Alexander, 434
(Pvt.), Alexander, 144
(Pvt.), Amos, 135
(Pvt.), B., 148
Betsy, 434
(Pvt.), 149
Calvin, 434
(Pvt.), Calvin, 144
Caroline, 434
David, 391
David Jr., 391
David Sr., 391
Eliza, 403
Esther, 352
(Sgt.), F., 147, 153
(Pvt.), Franklin, 141
(Pvt.), J., 149
J. M., 475-476
(Rev.), J. M., 187
Jacob, 251, 352
James, 434
Jesse, 355
John, 434
(Pvt.), John, 108
Joseph, 434
Julia, 343
(Pvt.), M., 148
Minerva Huffman, 434
Rachel, 434
Rachel Tanquarry, 434
Samuel, 256
Sarah Huffman, 434
(Pvt.), W., 149
W. T., 391
(Pvt.), W. T., 148
William, 434
SPARKSMAN
William, 383
SPARR
George, 352
Jacob, 352
John, 352
Peter, 352
Susan, 353
SPARROW
Ann, 73, 74
Edward, 73
Martha, 74
Mary, 73
Samuel, 73
Susan, 73
Thomas, 45-46, 73-74, 102, 521, 532, 556
(Dr.), Thomas, 307
(Rev.), Dr. William, 73
SPAULDING
(Rev.), W. S., 192
SPAYD
A., 479
SPEAKS

SPEAKS continued
C. W., 46, 451, 452
SPEARS
(Pvt.), Nelson, 159
SPECHT
(Rev. Father), F. H., 522
SPECK
(Pvt.), John, 123
SPEEK
(Pvt.), Anton, 108
SPEGIL
(Pvt.), A., 148
SPEICE
(Pvt.), Peter, 145
SPEILMAN
(Pvt.), John, 121
(Rev.), 394
SPELLMAN
(Pvt.), John A., 157
SPENCER
376, 403
(Corp), Ason, 156
Aurelia, 65
Elihu, 156
(Pvt.), George, 138
(Pvt.), James F., 159
(Pvt.), James M., 118
(Pvt.), John A., 157
John C., 65
(Pvt.), Leroy, 112
Olive O., 414
(Pvt.), Oscar H., 115
(Sgt.), Mortimer P., 129
(Pvt.), Nelson, 115
(Pvt.), Robert, 129
Robert O., 255
(Rev.), Robert O., 517
(Pvt.), Thomas, 138
(Rev.), W. H., 526
William, 426
SPENS
(Pvt.), J., 154
SPERRY
(Pvt.), Ambrose, 157
Frank, 365
SPHAR
(Rev.), B. N., 517
SPICKLER
Mrs. L. C., 231
SPIELMAN
John H., 451
(Rev.), 561
SPIES
Elizabeth, 186-187
SPILLMAN
Jacob, 388
(Pvt.), John S., 123
(Pvt.), Lemuel, 133
(Pvt.), Samuel, 133
(Pvt.), Thomas, 133
SPINDLER
276
(Pvt.), G., 1515
(Pvt.), George, 155
John, 277, 279, 280
John M., 105, 280
Matthias, 495
(Pvt.), William, 123
SPINK
(Corp), Thomas, 156
SPOHR
SPOHR continued
(Pvt.), Conrad, 137
SPONOGLE
(Pvt.), Jacob O., 115
(Pvt.), John L., 115
SPOON
(Pvt.), Daniel, 137
(Pvt.), David, 137
SPOONER
Jaspar, 479
SPRAGUE
Addie, 464
(Pvt.), Alfred D., 158
Austin, 464
(Pvt.), Charles, 133
Eliza, 464
Georgia, 464
Harvey, 464
Leroy, 464
Levi, 464
Mary, 464
Polly, 464
Silas, 119
W. P., 464
William, 464
SPRATES
Charles, 204
SPECHER
(Rev.), 255
SPRING
Artemus, 483
(Pvt.), Barney, 125
Charles, 472
Elizabeth, 472, 483
Frederick, 472
(Pvt.), H., 149, 152
Homer, 472
Horace, 472, 482-483, 483
Minerva, 472
Minerva Fisk, 483
Sarah Adams, 482-483
Ralph, 472
SPRINGER
Cornelius, 184
SPRINGMAN
416-417
SPURGEON
Ada, 207
M. R., 478
SPRY
(Pvt.), Perry, 107
SPYKER
Peter, 253, 262
SQUAW
Grenadier, 265
SQUIRES
(Pvt.), Charles, 141
(Rev.), E. K., 526
(Corp), Jeremiah, 129
J. H., 517
SRACKENGAST
(Pvt.), Dunham, 110
SROEYER
(Pvt.), H. M., 149
STAFFORD
(Pvt.), C., 112
STAGE
268-269
Isaac W., 208, 267, 268, 269
Jacob, 346
STAGE continued
John H., 396
Richard, 347, 348
William, 347
STAGG
(Pvt.), A., 148
(Pvt.), Abraham, 153
Abraham, 398
David, 398
G. W., 400
George, 398, 400
L., 489
(Pvt.), L., 147
(Pvt.), M., 111
Michael, 398
STAHL
(Pvt.), H. R., 149 STAIRS
(Pvt.), C., 150
STALEY
462, 466
(Capt.), 109
(Pvt.), David H., 110
James, 489
Jane, 466
Melkire, 284
(Corp), Stephen B., 110
STAMBAUGH
Frederick, 391
John, 391
Samuel, 488
STANBERY
Cecilia, 72
Elias M., 96
Frances, 72
George, 72
Henry, 70-72
Jonas, 71, 419
Philemon B., 72
William, 43
STANBERRY
(Dr.), Jonas, 418
STANDEN
(Pvt.), William, 156
STANFIELD
(Pvt.), Francis M., 138
STANLEY
430
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 141
(Gen.), David S., 591
E. M., 432
Ed., 477
Ella, 432
Edward 405, 407
Edward A., 44
Edward, Sr., 405
(Pvt.), George, 141
(Pvt.), Henry C., 135
(Pvt.), Jasse, 143
(Col.), Timothy R., 114
(Rev.), T. W., 519
STANNING
(Pvt.), William H., 159
STANSBERRY
498
(Judge), Recompense, 44, 420, 426, 427, 428
STANSBURY
(Pvt.), Theodore, 110
STANTON
(Pvt.), John, 145

STANTON continued
(Pvt.), Michael, 145
STARBILL
Homer, 292
STARK
(Pvt.), Charles, 142
G. M., 436, 437
(Pvt.), Henry, 132
(Pvt.), John W., 142
STARKEY
(Pvt.), John T., 144
Thomas, 123
STARKS
Mary, 434
STARLING
534
John L., 207
(Dr.), Loring, 47
Lucy Todd, 65
Lyn, 69
Lyne, 45, 364, 415, 507, 509, 510, 511, 566, 579, 581, 582
Lyne, Jr., 45, 46
Mary, 69
Sarah, 580
Susannah Lyle, 66
Susannah Lyne, 82
William, 69
(Col.), William, 66, 580
STARR
421, 422
(Dr.), A., 451
(Dr.), Augustin, 468-469
(Corp), Augustine, 156
James, 422, 423
John, 512, 497
M. B., 414
Martha C., 469
(Rev.), Milton B., 414
(Corp), Samuel C., 130
Samuel Craig, 468-469
William L., 404
STARRETT
James, 485
John, 380, 487, 489
Margaret, 385
(Corp), N., 147, 153
STARRITT
Martha, 487
Mary, 488
STUAFFER
Daniel, 414
(Pvt.), F., 111
Mary, 302, 305
STAURING
529
J. H., 569, 571
James H., 45, 557
STCHOULEPNIKOFF
Sergius, 191
STEADMAN
(Pvt.), Timothy M., 133
STEARNS
Fanny S., 266-267
STEBBINS
Roland, 348
STEBZIG
(Lt.), John L., 141
STEDMAN
Matilda, 414
STEDSON
J., 44
STEED
(Pvt.), J., 111
STEEL
N., 453
(Pvt.), R., 112
STEELE
Barbara, 486-487
(Corp), E. F., 124
J. W., 256
James, 204, 308
John W., 255
Margaret, 272
Mary Williamson, 324
Nancy, 255
(Reverend), 554
Robert, 324
(Sgt.), William R., 120
STEELEY
321
Benjamin, 230, 268
Edmund, 268
Eliza, 269
Elizabeth Dreisbach, 230
Gabriel, 268
Jane, 268
John, 268
John P., 232
(Capt.), Jospeh, 148, 152
(Sgt.), Joseph, 112
Julia, 232
Lemuel, 243, 268
Margaret, 268
Meek, 268
Nancy, 268
(Corp), Reuben, 122
Silas, 268
STEELY
(Pvt.), John, 123
(Pvt.), J. P., 150
STEIGER
Baron, 539
STEIGERS
A. F., 565
STEIN
(Pvt.), Edwin, 117
(Dr.), G. S., 567
John, 210, 213
STEINBRECHER
(Pvt.), John C., 117
STEINLEIM
Bernard, 557
STEINLEIN
(Pvt.), Burchard, 109
STEINMAN
(Pvt.), George, 108
STEINMEITS
(Pvt.), Charles, 138
STEINMETS
(Pvt.), Henry, 137
STEINMITZ
(Pvt.), Henry, 108
STELLE
(Pvt.), James K., 144
STELZER
(Pvt.), A., 147
Catharine E. J., 586
(Pvt.), D., 147
(Corp), D., 153
George, 586
STELZER continued
(Pvt.), J., 147
Maria, 586
(Pvt.), John L., 142
STEMEN
B., 452
STENDBARKER
(Pvt.), Aphus, 157
STEPHANY
(Corp), Charles, 108
STEPHEN
Zachariah, 40, 41, 364
STEPHENS
(Pvt.), Aaron, 127
A., 556
(Pvt.), C. R., 146
(Pvt.), E., 150
(Pvt.), James, 153
(Pvt.), James P., 142
(Pvt.), John W., 158
Jonathan, 525
L. P., 162
(Capt.), T. J., 154
T. J., 208
(Lt.), Thomas I., 134
Thomas, 425
(Pvt.), William A., 142
(Rev.), William, 296
STEPHENSON
George, 401
(Corp), Lincoln, 132
(Rev.), 349
STERES
(Pvt.), William, 155
STERET
(Rev.), Chas. B., 184
STERETT
Martha, 592
STERLING
(Pvt.), James G., 137
(Pvt.), Joel N., 112
Maria A., 69
Theo., 567
STERN
(Pvt.), John P., 145
STERRET
(Pvt.), J., 151
STETLER
(Pvt.), Thomas I., 110
STETSON
(Pvt.), William, 154
STEVENS
John, 210
(Pvt.), Jacob, 139
(Pvt.), N., 146
(Rev.), Peter, 517
(Capt.), Thomas J., 149
Thomas, 370-371
Wm., 184
STEVENSON
441, 560, 561
(Dr.), A. G., 478, 479
Ann, 441
C. J., 453
(Pvt.), Edmond C., 136
George, 57, 512
George H., 450
George K., 441, 447
(Rev.), George, 400
Irvin, 441
J. S., 451, 452

STEVENSON continued
Jemina, 441
Job, 571
(Pvt.), John, 146
John, 441, 447
John L., 441
(Pvt.), Joseph, 144
Joshua, 441
Mary B., 441
(Reverend), 449
(Pvt.), O. G., 149
Richard, 447
Sarah, 441
Susan, 441
(Pvt.), Sylvester P., 123
(Capt.), Thomas, 159
William, 441, 447
Zachariah, 44, 447
STEWARD
(Dr.), C., 103
(Pvt.), Charles, 125
(Pvt.), Howard M., 155
S. H., 567
STEWART
391, 498, 501
A. A., 95
Adam, 46
Alonzo, 91
Charles, 592
(Dr.), Charles, 348
Clara L., 91
(Sgt.), David, 120
Edmund, 55
(Pvt.), Edward K., 146, 153
Francis, 44, 45, 46, 508, 592, 592-593
(Pvt.), E. B., 140
(Pvt.), George W., 136
Gilbert, 91
(Pvt.), Hugh, 136
Isabel, 91
J. B., 431
Jane, 363
(Pvt.), John H., 145
(Pvt.), John, 136, 138
John, 380, 592
Mrs. John, 528-529
(Rev.), John, 296
(Pvt.), Joseph, 141, 157
(Sgt.), Joseph A., 111
(Sgt., Maj.), Joseph A., 119, 121
Martha, 592
Mary, 380, 592
Nathan, 419, 421, 425
(Pvt.), Noah N., 137
Olivia, 592
(Pvt.), Philip, 134
(Pvt.), Russell, 133
Ruth, 592
Salinda, 403
Sarah, 592
(Lt.), T. C., 114
William, 46, 391
(Pvt.), William, 133, 140, 156
William C., 95
ST. CLAIR
(Gen.), Arthur, 35, 39
(Pvt.), David, 158
Elizabeth, 593
Helen, 593
J. E., 101, 102, 570
ST. CLAIR continued
James Reed, 593
Johnston Elliot, 592
Kate, 593
Lucy, 593
Mary, 592
Mary A., 593
William, 559, 592, 593
(Pvt.), William H., 158
STIARWALT
Catharine, 383
Mervin, 383
William, 383
STIBBINS
Austin, 477
STIBLE
Frank, 547
STICHLER
(Pvt.), Andrew, 136
STICKNEY
Celia, 424
E. T., 538
Edward, 424
Erville, 424
Frank W., 424
H. B., 432
(Pvt.), henry, 153
Luella, 424
Nancy, 424
STIDHAM
I. F., 560
STIDMAN
(Rev.), I. F., 524
STIFFLER
(Pvt.), James K., 136
(Pvt.), William H., 136
STIGLER
(Pvt.), L. G., 147
Mrs. Paul, 461
STIKEL
(Pvt.), John H., 138
STILES
A. C., 348
(Corp), Henry C., 119
(Pvt.), Robert, 138
STILL
John W., 308
STIMMEL
397
Daniel, 392
Eliza J., 363
(Pvt.), F. M., 148
F. M., 396
Harriet, 392
Jacob, 363, 392
John, 55, 363, 392, 394, 396
Lizzie, 396
Dr. M. M., 395
Mary, 349, 363, 396
Mary E. Holten, 363
Mary E. Landis, 363
Mary E. Miller, 363
Michael, 392, 394
Peter, 392
Samuel, 363
Sarah, 363
Atty. Smith, 392
Yost, 392
STIMPSON
Charles, 414
Stephen, 414
STIMSON
R. M., 548
STINCHCOMB
J. W., 452
STINE
D. O., 209
(Pvt.), James N., 145
STINEBAUGH
T. J., 374
STINEHILBER
(Pvt.), Eniel G., 139
STINER
(Pvt.), George W., 120
STINGLEY
Jacob, 268
STIRES
(Pvt.), Frederick, 133
(Pvt.), W., 151
STINSON
Jack, 323
James, 105
John, 325, 326
S., 415
STIPP
Abraham, 319, 321
STITT
Alexander, 540-541
Archey, 540-541
James, 540-541
Mary, 540-541
Nancy, 540-541
Thomas, 556
(Judge), Thomas, 540-541
William, 540-541
STIVERS
C. E., 428, 429
Julia C. Snow, 428-429
Nettie J. Snow, 428-429
(Rev.), T. S., 428-429
STIVERSON
Alice Elizabeth, 328-329
Arthur Elmore, 328-329
Charles William, 328-329
Cornelia Missouri, 328-329
George West, 328-329
Hannah Caroline, 328-329
Hannah Howe, 328-329
J. W., 325
Jacob W., 328-329
Margaret West, 328-329
Martha Virginia, 328-329
STLENCLIR
(Pvt.), Frederick, 122
STOCKS
(Pvt.), Charles, 110
STOCKTON
(Lt.), James A., 146, 153
James B., 556
Thomas, 557
STOCKWELL
(Pvt.), Brutus E., 141
(Pvt.), Enoch W., 157
(Doctor), 233
STODDARD
(Corp), George W., 110
STODDART
John J., 87
Mrs. Joseph J., 586
STOEL
Burnham, 399
Sarah, 399

STOEL continued
Stephen, 399
STOFER
Thomas, 277
STOHLMAN
(Rev., Dr.), 561
STOKELY
416-417
STOKER
Emma G., 297
(Pvt.), Francis, 115
STOKES
Ann, 74
(Pvt.), John W., 158
STOLL
(Pvt.), Lewis, 141
STOLLARD
L. P., 150
STOMBAUGH
Ann, 397
Caroline, 397
Catherine, 397
Elizabeth, 393, 397
Elizabeth Baker, 397
Eveline, 397
Frederick, 393, 394, 396-397, 397
John, 397
Margaret, 397
Martha, 397
Mary, 397
Samuel, 393
Susan, 397
STOMP
(Pvt.), Norman W. J., 157
STONE
A. P., 43
Mrs. A. P., 528
Alfred P., 532
(Rev.), Barton W., 295, 296
(Prof.), Calvin E., 75
(Pvt.), J. F., 111
Kezuah, 528
Nannie, 285
Rachel, 403
(Rev.), S., 309
(Rev.), Samson M., 388, 389
W. H. H., 190
STONEBRAKER
(Pvt.), W., 114
STONEHOUSE
(Pvt.), Charles, 123
STONER
George, 466
(Pvt.), George W., 136
(Pvt.), J., 147
(Pvt.), William M., 143
STONERITER
(Pvt.), William, 158
STONEROCK
(Pvt.), David, 125
Ezra, 338
(Pvt.), George, 126
Lucy, 338
(Pvt.), Samuel, 108
STONESTREET
(Corp), A. W., 129
STONFFER
(Pvt.), Mathias, 136
(Pvt.), Shannon, 136
STONUP
Henry, 208
William, 209
STOPPLETON
(Pvt.), Abner, 145
STORER
Belamy, 100 STORMS
(Pvt.), Judson, 144
STORRS
Henry R., 410 STORY
Diana, 437
Elizabeth, 437
J. B., 436
John, 40, 437
Joseph, 434
Joseph W., 437
Lora, 437
Louisa, 437
Margaret, 437
Marmer Duke, 434, 437
Martha, 437
Mary, 437
Matilda, 437
Nancy, 437
Rachel Boggs, 434
Sarah, 437
Susan, 437
Thomas, 435, 437
Vergina, 437
STOTSON
(Pvt.), J. W., 150
STOTTS
Abraham, 514
STOUCH
(Pvt.), Christ, 110
(Pvt.), William L., 158
STOUGH
(Pvt.), Samuel, 144
STOUT
A. C., 281
Anna M., 303
Benjamin, 166
George W., 250
Isaac, 279, 303
Jacob J., 302
John, 303
Jonathan J., 263
Samuel, 374
Solomon, 278
(Pvt.), William H., 117
STOUTZENBARGER
Elizabeth, 392-393
Hannah, 392-393
Jacob, 392-393
John, 392-393
Susan, 392-393
STOVER
(Pvt.), George, 139
Thomas, 204
STOWELL
(Stoel), F. B., 399, 400
STRADER
Christopher, 388, 390
(Pvt.), D. W., 156
Jacob, 388
(Pvt.), J. M., 156
Levi, 55
(Pvt.), Levi C., 123
(Corp), Levi S., 123
STRADER continued
Levi T., 45
STRAEDTER
(Lt.), Charles, 122
STRAHL
P. W., 466
STRAIN
Thomas, 329
STRAIT
Abraham A., 412, 585
Ann, 585
Ann Eliza, 585
Christian, 399
Cordelia, 585
D. B., 584-585
Dennis B., 45-46, 411, 413, 585
Dulcena, 585
Dulcinsa, 412
Edward L., 585
(Pvt.), Elias, 145
Geo. R., 413
(Pvt.), Henry C., 107
Henry H., 413
(Pvt.), John, 115, 155
STRAITS
(Rt.), J., 151
STRAIT
Whitney, 585
Wm. D., 413
STRANGE
(Pvt.), Reuben, 159
STRASBURG
James S., 119
(Pvt.), J. M., 148
STRASSER
Jeremiah, 252
STRATLER
(Pvt.), Joseph, 107
STRATTON
(Pvt.), B. C., 146
(Pvt.), Solon, 140
STRAULL
Philip, 465
STRAUSF
(Pvt.), Frederich, 122
STRAWBRIDGE
James, 511
STRAWEN
(Pvt.), John B., 126
STRAWN
(Pvt.), Charles, 125
STRAWSER
(Pvt.), David, 124
(Pvt.), L., 150
STRAYER
(Pvt.), Jesse, 146
Michael, 208
(Corp), Thomas H., 135
STREATOR
David, 518
STREET
Ebenezar, 419
(Pvt.), Samuel B., 133
STREETS
(Pvt.), William, 159
STREETER
192
(Doctor), 494
(Rev.), Sereno W., 481
STREICH
J., 202

STRETTBER
Edward, 557
STRETLING
(Pvt.), Mangus W., 124
STREWZ
(Pvt.), Adam, 142
STRICKLER
(Pvt.), J., 148
Jacob, 537
John, 396
(Pvt.), John M., 141
William, 390-391
STRICKLAND
278
(Pvt.), G., 148, 152
STRIKER
(Pvt.), E., 150
STROCK
B., 101
STRODE
Nancy, 393
(Pvt.), Valentine, 121
STROHL
(Pvt.), Jacob, 144
STROHM
(Pvt.), Isaac N., 133
STRONG
Aaron, 425
E. J., 297
Elizabeth Clapham, 483
E. P., 181
N. R., 297
(Pvt.), S., 147, 152
(Pvt.), Silas D., 143
STROPE
Marion, 315
(Pvt.), Marion, 156
(Pvt.), Ward, 135
STROUS
Allen, 263
Charles, 263
D., 262-263
David, 263
David H., 256, 263
Eddie D., 263
Elizabeth, 263
Frank D., 263
Jacob, 251, 252, 256, 263
Jane Almeda, 263
John, 263
John Elsy, 263
Lizzie May, 263
Mary, 263
Olive D., 263
Samuel, 250, 263
Susannah, 263
STROUSE
Jacob, 256
Joe, 178
Samuel, 47
STROUT
(Pvt.), George, 145
STRUVEY
John, 312
STUART
Geo. H., 243
John, 255
(Capt.), Joseph M., 129
STUB
(Pvt.), John, 123
STUCKEY
STUCKEY continued
Aaron, 280
STUDEBAKER
(Pvt.), Augustus W., 145
Elizabeth, 385
John, 336
STUDER
George, 522
J. H., 7, 147
Jacob, 561
Jacob H., 112
STUDLER
(Pvt.), Joseph, 112
STUENMER
(Pvt.), Peter, 122
STULEY
(Pvt.), F., 147
STULL
(Pvt.), Lewis O., 136
(Pvt.), William, 136
STULTZ
(Pvt.), Alva, 144
(Pvt.), Harrison, 141
(Pvt.), Manuel, 133
STULZ
(Pvt.), G. D., 150
STUMBAUGH
(Pvt.), R., 148
STUMP
Ann, 435
George, 434
(Pvt.), J. O., 149
(Pvt.), John, 144
(Pvt.), Johnson, 110
Sarah, 434
Tabitha, 434
William, 213, 250, 252
STUMPF
256
STUPP
(Pvt.), Jacob W., 117
STURGES
Solomon, 58
STURGEON
(Dr.), Thomas, 465
W. H., 48
STURGIS
(Rev.), C. M., 521
STURHOLF
(Pvt.), John, 122
STUTLER
(Sgt.), Thomas, 133
STUTZ
(pvt.), Charles, 137
STYERS
(Pvt.), Jeremiah, 118
STYGLER
Beulah, 485
D., 485
Harriet Paull, 485
John, 485
Leander, 485
Mary Jane, 486
Sarah, 485
William, 484, 486, 488
STYLES
Benj., 527
(Pvt.), Henry C., 111
SUDDETH
284
SUDTH
SUDTH continued
Mary, 343
SULCER
(Pvt.), Lecious B., 140
SULLEVAN
Aaron, 48, 319
SULLIVAN
(Pvt.), Daniel, 124
Denis, 90
Eliza, 319, 322
Elizabeth, 320
John D., 90
John H., 58
Mary, 90
(Pvt.), Owen, 117
(Pvt.), Patrick, 114
(Pvt.), Samuel M., 153
(Corp), Samuel T., 135
SULLIVANT
Joseph, 7, 18, 19, 24, 27, 28, 65, 76, 102, 170, 532, 549, 550, 554, 581
Lucas, 41, 45, 57, 62, 63, 66, 361, 364, 366, 397, 425, 493, 494, 507, 509, 513, 515, 576, 579, 580, 581, 582, 592
Lucius, 24, 38, 40
Mrs. Lucas, 66, 509, 582
Lucy, 76
M. L., 416-417
Michael L., 55, 415, 509, 580, 581
(Capt.), Starling, 133
(Pvt.), Timothy, 138
William, 546
William L., 538
William P., 366
William S., 49, 536, 566, 574, 580
Wyliss, 63
SULLIVANTS
James, 392
Thomas, 392
William, 392
SULTER
(Pvt.), E. C., 111
SUMMERS
(Pvt.), Ephraim, 107
William , 296
(Pvt.), William , 140
SUMMONS
(Corp), Edward W., 135
SUNDERLAND
George, 409
(Pvt.), George, 133
(Pvt.), John, 107
SUPHARD
(Pvt.), William, 154
SURFACE
Elizabeth, 302
SURG
A. A., 565
SUTTER
(Pvt.), J., 150
SUTTON
(Pvt.), A. S., 129
(Pvt.), Phillip, 120
(Rev.), William, 296, 388
SUVER
(Pvt.), I., 149

SUVER continued
(Pvt.), Martin, 145
SWAGHAMMER
(Pvt.), John, 144
SWAGLER
Jonathan, 386, 390
Solomon, 386
SWAIN
John, 372, 380
SWALEY
(Pvt.), James, 112
SWAMPSTEAD
(Rev.), Leroy, 429, 430
SWAN
91
Amelia Aldrich, 64
Charles, 65
Geo. M., 161
Gustavus, 44, 45, 46, 47, 64, 65, 66, 92, 98, 508, 513, 544, 547, 576, 577, 581
(Judge), Gustavus, 97, 101
Hannah Ann, 68
(Judge), J. R., 521
John, 64
Mrs. John, 64
Jonathan, 68
(Judge), Joseph B., 568
Joseph R., 44-45, 50, 58, 68-69, 92, 551, 566, 571
(Judge), J. R., 66
Sarah Mend, 64
Sarah, 68
Thomas, 392
SWANCK
(Pvt.), C., 151
(Pvt.), J., 151
(Pvt.), P., 151
SWANEY
(Pvt.), G. W., 112
SWANK
335
Adam, 336
David, 336
(Pvt.), Cyrus, 155
(Corp), James W., 155
(Corp), John A., 119
Peter, 336
(Pvt.), Peter, 155
P. C., 333
William, 325, 336
(Pvt.), William I., 118
SWANN
(Pvt.), William, 136
SWARENCE
(Rev.), J., 187
SWARTZ
(Pvt.), C. D., 148
H., 479
(Rev.), Joel, 185, 199
SWAYNE
Catharine, 70
(Pvt.), Emmit A., 153
Frank, 70
Henry Foote, 70
(Atty.), N. H., 552
N. H., 79, 543
(Judge), N. H., 64
Noah, 70
Noah H., 69-70, 91, 101,
SWAYNE continued
Noah H., 528
Rebecca, 70
Sarah Ann, 69
Virginia, 70
(Gen.), Wager, 70
SWAYZE
(Lt.), William, 112
(Sgt.), Wm. A., 111
(Rev.), William, 175, 183, 296, 517
SWAZEY
William, 475
(Reverend), 429
(Rev.), William, 448
SWEARINGEN
Henry B., 105, 284
SWEATLAND
Jerrold, 291
SWEENEY
(Pvt.), Thomas, 124
SWEETER
(Pvt.), Nicholas, 131
SWEETMAN
(Corp), John C., 126
L. H., 48
M. A., 48
(Pvt.), Michael A., 135
T., 295
SWEIGER
George, 215
SWEIGERT 252 SWERNK
(Corp), Thomas, 158
SWEYER
W. H., 215
(Pvt.), William H., 134
SWICK
John, 105
(Rev.), J. W., 186
SWICKARD
Catharine, 411
Daniel, 414
Frederic, 413
Jacob, 413
Jonathan, 411
(Pvt.), L., 148
(Pvt.), Lewis, 123
Margaret, 411
Martin, 413
Noah, 413
SWIGART
(Corp), Peter A., 136
SWIGER
(Pvt.), Fernando, 133
(Pvt.), Leonard, 140
SWIGLER
Solomon, 388
SWILLS
John, 40
SWINEHART
(Pvt.), Adam, 138
(Pvt.), Deming, 115
(Pvt.), Samuel A., 134
S. A., 208, 209
SWINDLE
(Pvt.), George M., 145
SWING
(Pvt.), C., 112
SWISCHER
SWISCHER continued
(Pvt.), Samuel L., 136
SWISHARD
(Pvt.), J. W., 148
SWISHER
441, 442
Abraham, 458
Anah, 457
Anah A., 457
Charles C., 457
Edgar A., 457
Eliza, 457
Ella M., 457
(Pvt.), E. T., 149
(Pvt.), Ervin T., 154
Fama, 442
Florence, 457
Frederick, 102, 442
Henry C., 444-445, 457
(Pvt.), H. C., 149
(Pvt.), J. W., 149
Jacob, 442, 447, 457
Jennie, 387, 457
John, 46, 305, 441, 446, 449
(Sgt.), John W., 153
(Pvt.), Judson, 133
Maria, 442
Mary, 441, 446, 457
Philip, 344, 446
Thomas, 442
Walter, 457
SWISS
(Pvt.), William H., 159
SWITZER
(Pvt.), DeWitt C., 140
Charles, 43
(Rev.), G., 517
Louisa D., 304
John, 305
SWOMSTEDT
Leroy, 407
SWONGER
S. C., 452
William, 466
SWORDEN
Elizabeth, 450
SWORMSTED
(Rev.), Leroy, 517
SWOYER
Mary, 263
SWYERS
(Pvt.), Andrew J., 136
SYKES
(Corp), Joseph, 134
SYLER
J. P., 556
SYLH
Jacob, 46
SYMMES
John Cleve, 39
SYPHARD
(Pvt.), W., 150
SYPHERT
(Pvt.), M., 151
(Pvt.), Mathias, 155

T.

TAEGER
(Lt.), Herman, 108

TAFT
(Pvt.), Cyrus, 146
Daniel, 465
(Rev.), Lovett, 349, 519
(Pvt.), P., 147
TAGGART
(Doctor), 494
TAHRE
24
TAIT
(Pvt.), Henry, 159
TALBOT
George, 501
Lloyd, 37
(Rev., Dr.), S., 189 TALL
Helen, 471
TALLEY
(Pvt.), Oliver W., 123
TALLMADGE
Darius, 49, 61
TALLMAN
(Judge), George, 274
George, 47
John, 443
Nathan, 443
William, 105, 274, 277
(Pvt.), William H., 138
TALMADGE
(Pvt.), H., 148
Nelson, 541
TAMMANY
(Pvt.), J., 150
TANNER
Abraham, 288
Courtney, 288, 290
Hannah Francis, 288
Harvey, 288
Isaac, 437
(Pvt.), James A., 143
John, 288
Margaret Alkire, 288
Mary, 437
Mary Ann Alkire, 288
Matilda, 437
Peter, 437
(Pvt.), Robert, 159
(Pvt.), William, 138
TANQUARRY
Abraham, 312
Frances, 310
Rachel, 434
TANQUARY
Benjamin, 313
TANSY
(Corp), Thomas, 120
TAPPAN
Benjamin, 50
Charles, 96
Eli T., 164
(Judge), 62
Helen, 463
TAPSCOTT
John, 110
TARABELL
(Pvt.), D., 151
TARBILL
Harry, 556
TARBILLE
Abram, 313
Mrs. Abram, 313
TARBILLE continued
David, 313
Holmes, 310
Martha, 310
James, 310, 313
Mary, 313
Mattie, 313
TASER
(Pvt.), John F., 124
TASSEL
(Pvt.), David Van, 120
TATE
(Rev.), Colin C., 521
(Lt.), David M., 130
(Capt.), James S., 130
TATEM
Charles, 583
Jeannette S., 583
TATMAN
(Pvt.), Amos, 134
(Pvt.), Joseph, 127
(Pvt.), Riley, 156
TAYLOR
312
Addison, 437
(Sgt.), Alfred K., 111
A. M., 518
Andrew, 292
Ann, 312
Anne Eliza, 78
Anthony Wayne, 411, 412
A. Vinton, 461
Abiather Vinton, 461
(Pvt.), Azariah, 157
Brice, 452
Buren, 412
Caleb, 312
(Lt.), Charles E., 120
(Sgt.), Charles W., 159
David, 91, 93, 101, 102, 103, 401, 441, 444, 461, 497, 499, 514
(Capt.), David, 515
(Capt.), David, 132
(Pvt.), David, 108
David, Sr., 104
Mrs. David Livingston, 498
Dora, 412
(Doctor), 216, 416, 417
E. A., 531
(Capt.), Edward L., 130
Edward Livingston, 91
Elder, 464
Eleanor, 441
Elizabeth, 441
(Dr.), F. G., 465
Frances Tipton, 434
Frances Marion, 312
(Pvt.), Furguson, 157
George, 44, 101, 102, 426, 427, 464
(Capt.), George A., 159
(Lt.), George W., Jr., 159
Henry C., 93
(Pvt.), Henry V., 110
Huldah, 412
Isaac, 441
(Pvt.), J., 150
(Capt.), Jacob E., 116
Jacob W., 234
James, 47, 102, 441, 465,
TAYLOR continued
James, 466
(Capt.), James, 267
(Pvt.), James, 154
(Pvt.), James B., 129
James C., 184
(Pvt.), James E., 110
(Sgt.), James M., 157
James N., 431
James W., 7, 548
Jane, 266-267
Jeanette, 441
John, 434, 441
(Cpl.), John, 154
John A., 441
(Pvt.), John, 128
(Corp), John E., 134
John P., 412
(Sgt.), John W., 131
Jonathan, 312
Jonathan Jr., 312
(Pvt.), Joseph, 130
Kate Noble, 91
Lorenzo, 412
M., 54
Margaret, 91, 93
Margaret Tanner, 288
Martha, 462
Matthew, Sr., 450
(Rev.), Matthew, 449
Matthew (Sr.), 441
Matthew (Jr.), 441
Mary B., 441
Melinda, 412
Phillip, 312
Rebecca, 441
Rebecca May, 441
Robert, 441, 461, 463, 466
(Corp), Rufus, 125
Ruth, 78
Samuel, 441, 451
(Dr.), Samuel, 347
(Pvt.), Samuel N., 139
Sarah, 312, 437
Sarah H., 90, 93
Stacy, 78, 97
(Pvt.), Stacy, 117
(Pvt.), Thomas, 138
(Pvt.), Thomas E., 123
(Pvt.), Thomas J. E., 117
Thomas R., 255
(Dr.), T. W., 389
T. W., 567
(Rev.), T. R., 184, 264
(Pvt.), William, 128
(Capt.), W. C., 158
(Pvt.), W., 149, 154
W. A., 161
(Col.), W. A., 162
Wayne, 463
William C., 48, 183
(Pvt.), W. M., 147
William, 412, 441, 477
(Pvt.), William, 145
William C., 193, 194
(Pvt.), William H., 121
(Pvt.), Zachary, 145
(Pres.), Zachary, 161, 224
TEASEL
(Pvt.), Samuel, 131
TEGAR

TEGAR continued
Jacob, 179
TECUMSEH
Chief, 22, 23, 24
TEDROW
Charles F., 396-397
TEECHMAN
(Pvt.), Herman, 158
TEEGARDIN
Aaron, 353, 355, 356, 358, 358-360
Mrs. Aaron, 358-360
Abraham, 353
Aaron Jr., 354, 358
Ann, 358
Annie, 354
Augustus, 358
Barbara, 358
Catharine, 353
Christine Brabst, 358
Daniel, 353, 354
Elizabeth, 353, 354
Ephraim, 358
George, 358
George Philip, 358
Henry, 353, 358
Huldah, 353
Jacob, 354
John, 353, 356, 357, 358
Joseph, 353, 354
Levi, 358
Mahala, 358
Margaret, 353
Mary, 358
Peter, 353
Philip, 356
Solomon, 353, 354, 357
Susannah, 353
William, 353, 534, 356
TEGARD
(Pvt.), D. W., 148
TEHNEIDER
(Pvt.), Jacob, 109
TEMANUS
(Pvt.), John C., 121
TEMME
(Lt.), George W., 117
TEMPLE
(Pvt.), James, 123
TEMPLIN
(Pvt.), John C., 141 TENNANT
John H., 207
TENNEY
Joseph, 291
TERRILL
A. S., 104
TERRY
(Lt.), James, 141
Mrs. J. M., 231
(Corp), S. F., 114
TERWILLIGER
294
Abram, 294
David, 43, 321
Elizabeth, 321
Catharine, 294
David, 294
E., 297
Jacob, 294, 296
(Pvt.), Jacob, 108
TERWILLIGER continued
John, 294
Lewis, 294, 297
Philip, 294
Sarah, 294
TESTER
(Pvt.), Frederick, 108
(Pvt.), Jacob, 137
TETER
(Pvt.), Peter H., 126
TEVERBAUGH
John, 295
TEVIS
(Rev.), John, 517
TEY
G., 207
THACKAM
(Sgt.), Flavius, 129
THACKER
(Pvt.), Ambrose, 146
(Pvt.), Charles, 159
(Pvt.), Robert W., 141
THACKERY
T. H., 495
THALBURN
(Pvt.), James, 130
THALL
(Corp), Charles W., 127
THANNU
(Pvt.), G. D., 147
THARP
Jacob, 398, 400
THATCHER
(Adj.), Horace K., 110
(Pvt.), Samuel B., 143
(Pvt.), William P., 121
THAYER
William, 477
THIEL
(Pvt.), Henry, 142
THISSE
I. N., 191
THOCKMORTON
D., 202
THOMAS
128
A., 434
Abigail, 308
A. C., 257
Alfred, 573
(Pvt.), Allen, 123
Almira, 376
Ann, 311, 312-313
Benejah, 83
B. F., 165, 209
(Rev.), B. F., 296
(Rev.), Caleb, 309
Charles, 557
(Pvt.), Charles H., 135, 142
Charles Harrison, 331, 312-313
(Pvt.), Claudius, 153
Clement, 320
(Pvt.), Cornelius, 128
(Pvt.), Cyrus, 138
(Pvt.), C. W., 147
D. E., 188
Daniel, 369, 377
(Pvt.), D. C., 140
Daniel W., 376
David, 493
Edward, 329
THOMAS continued
(Pvt.), Edward, 139
Edwin R., 433
E. G., 374
Eleanor, 307-308
Eliza, 311, 312-313, 377
Elizabeth, 253, 437
Elizabeth A., 311, 312-313
Elizabeth N., 307
George, 253
(Maj.), Gen. George H., 109, 113
Griffith, 377
(Col.), Griffith, 541
Harriet, 313-313, 385
Harriet S., 311
Harrison, 311, 312-313
(Pvt.), Harrison, 123
Jackson, 47, 307, 309
James, 377
(Pvt.), 145
James A., 311, 315
James Austin, 312-313
James B., 556
(Pvt.), James O., 136
J. R., 102
Jeremiah, 307, 311, 312-313
John, 311, 312-313
John, 213, 307-308, 369, 377
(Pvt.), John, 123, 124, 130, 158
(Pvt.), John A., 115
(Pvt.), John H., 136
J. K., 374
John M., 376, 380
J. M., 477
(Lt.), John W., 109
Josiah, 307, 320
Joseph, 296, 311, 312-313
Julia Ann, 311, 312-313
Kendall, 45, 83, 97
Laura, 376
Leonard, 307
(Pvt.), Lewis, 126, 159
Maria, 311, 312-313
Mariam H., 312-313, 317
Mary, 552, 553, 532-533
Mary Ann, 311, 312-313
Mary R., 433
Melinda, 311, 312-313
(Pvt.), McKey, 145
Milton M., 18
Miriam H., 311
Nancy, 433
(Pvt.), N. C., 123
Polly, 377
Obediah P., 288
Rhoda, 83
Richard, 307
Sally, 377
Samuel, 62, 213
(Pvt.), Samuel, 108
(Gen.), Samuel, 529
Samuel M., 311
Samuel Millard, 312-313
Samuel P., 311, 312-313
(Lt.), Samuel W., 114
Sarah E., 311, 312-313
Sarah McKinley, 434
(Pvt.), Solomon, 123
Susan, 338 -339

THOMAS continued
Talton J., 153
T. J., 374
(Pvt.), Uray, 120
Vienna J., 311, 312-313
William, 307, 311, 312-313, 392, 552-553
William H., 307
Mrs. William, 394
(Pvt.), William N., 142
William M., 311, 312-313
Wray, 44, 83
Zilpha A., 311
THOMPSON
113, 320, 324
A., 373, 374
Abraham, 44
(Pvt.), Abraham, 130
Alexander, 44
(Sgt.), Alexander, 159
(Sgt.), Alexander S., 135
Anna, 430
Anna E., 210, 211
(Pvt.), Archer, 159
(Dr.), A. W., 103, 186-187, 210-211, 216, 217, 227, 235, 272, 280
Benjamin, 511
B. M., 204
Betsey, 319
Catharine, 293, 421
Catharine, 593
Charles, 421
(Pvt.), Charles, 121
(Pvt.), Charles H., 143
Clarissa, 419
Clifton B., 210-211
(Pvt.), D., 149
Diantha M., 210-211
(Pvt.), Daniel, 144
(Pvt.), David, 125
(Pvt.), David S., 138
(Rev.), E., 331
Elizabeth, 320, 396
Emily, 342, 343, 346
(Pvt.), Enoch T., 144
(Pvt.), E. T., 149
E. V., 368
Fannie M., 210-211
Florence L., 210-211
Florence L., 186-187
(Pvt.), F. M., 148
(Pvt.), Franklin, 123
George, 430
(Pvt.), George, 142
(Corp), George W., 126
G. L., 396
(Pvt.), Gilbert L., 142
H. A., 478
(Pvt.), H. A., 149
H. A., D. D., 476
Harriet, 421
Harriet B.
Harriet E., 481
Henry, 421
(Pvt.), Henry, 157
(Rev.), Henry A., 481
(Corp), Horace B., 137
Isaac, 431, 475, 478
(Pvt.), J., 148, 152
(Dr.), J. C., 103, 210-211, 216,
THOMPSON continued
(Dr.), J. C., 343, 346, 348
(Dr.), J. B., 567, 570
(Sgt.), Jacob, 109
Jacob W., 319
James, 104, 166, 283, 285, 319, 324, 593
(Sgt.), James, 115
(Pvt.), James, 114, 141
Jane, 461
Jesse, 430
John, 42, 44, 47, 92, 100, 105, 394
(Sgt.), John, 114
John A.
John B., 450
John G., 44, 45, 557, 558, 592-593
(Major), John, 324-326, 332
(Pvt.), John, 125
John W., 463, 465
Joseph, 372-373
(Pvt.), Joseph, 110
Kate C., 210, 211
Laura, 458
(Pvt.) M., 152
(Pvt.), Martin V., 145
Maryk, 463
Lovina, 210-211
Margaret, 324
Mrs. Martha Myers, 324
Mary, 421
Mary Ann, 319
Mary E., 210-211
Martin E., 537
Mila, 426-427
Olive, 372-373
Orin F., 208
Pamelia, 421
(Corp), Peter, 136
Phelps, 430
Philip, 283
Robert, 321
Samuel, 45
Samuel H., 338, 340
(Dr.), Robert, 552
(Dr.), Thomas, 435, 436
Thomas, 383
Thomas Sr., 324
Thomas Jr., 324
William, 419, 421, 424, 461
(Judge), William, 421, 426-427
William G., 210-211
(Pvt.), W. H., 148
(Pvt.), W. P., 150
(Sgt.), Zepaniah P., 137
Z. P., 453
THORN
Frederick, 338
(Pvt.), George, 158
Jacob, 338
John, 338
(Pvt.), J. H., 156
William, 338
THORNE
(Corp), George W., 117
THORNTON
(Dr.), George, 69
John, 208
THORP THORP
379
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 108, 125
Jacob, 319, 321, 413
(Pvt.), John, 108
THRALL
(Capt.), 110, 226, 569
(Rev., Dr.), 521
Caroline Maria, 222
Harriet, 88
Henry, 222
Jesse, 87-88, 218
John, 218
L. G., 556, 557, 558
(Pvt.), L. G., 146
(Sgt.), Lucien G., 153
Mabel Rose, 87-88, 218
Maria Rockwell, 222
(Pvt.) R. C., 111
(Pvt.), Robert F., 130
Samuel, 218
Theron Russell, 222
Timothy, 218
Walter, 55, 87-88, 97, 164, 219, 220, 221
W. B., 546, 556
William, 218
William, 47, 53, 165, 167, 174, 181, 184, 206, 207, 367, 532
(Judge), William B., 98, 101, 105, 185
(Judge), William Barlow, 218-220, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226
William Rockwell, 222
THRAP
(Pvt.), E., 150
THRASHER
H. M., 308
Mary, 308
THRONE
(Corp), Edward D., 135
G. W., 209
(Sgt.), George W., 159
THUM
(Pvt.), Joseph, 137
THURMAN
Allen G., 44, 61, 85-86, 563, 571, 579
Mary, 85
(Rev.), P., 85
THURSTON
(Pvt.), Benvi, 126
(Corp), Joseph M., 127
Mary, 428-429
T. S., 255
(Pvt.), W. H., 111
TIBBALS
W. H., 429
TIBBITS
(Pvt.), T. C., 149
(Sgt.), T. C., 152
TIBBS
(Rev.), J., 188
TICE
(Capt.), Moses B., 139
TIDBALL
(Rev.), J. C., 474, 516
TIFFANY
(Pvt.), John C., 142

TIFFEN
(Pvt.), Stephen, 108
TIFFIN
(Gov.), Edward, 42, 63
John, 296
(Pvt.), Joseph, 108
Sarah, 296
TILDEN
(Pvt.), Isaac, 159
TILFORD
(Pvt.), George R., 128
(Pvt.), Samuel H., 128
(Pvt.), William , 156
TILLMAN
(Pvt.), L. D., 111
TILMAN
(Rev.), 188
TILTON
(Pvt.), Joseph, 114
(Pvt.), William H., 127
TIMBERMAN
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 159
TIMMEMS
Solomon, 157
TIMMON
(Pvt.), W. H. H., 151
TIMMONS
(Pvt.), A. S., 128
(Pvt.), Andrew J., 146
Anna, 307, 309-311
B., 315
(Pvt.), B., 149
B. F., 313, 315
Clara, 312
Edward W., 315
Elizabeth, 308, 312
Eunice, 312
Henry, 315
(Corp), James, 156
John, 42, 100, 295, 310
(Pvt.), John, 127
Joseph, 312
Juliet Ann, 312
(Pvt.), J. W., 149
Lucretia, 312
M., 309
Mary, 311
Mary O., 439
(Pvt.), N., 151
Nathaniel, 314
(Pvt.), Nathaniel, 156
Nathaniel R., 315
(Pvt.), Owen, 156
(Pvt.), O., 151
(Pvt.), Purnell, 128
S., 474, 478, 479
Salathel, 312
Sarah, 311
Solomon, 427
(Pvt.) W., 151
TINCKUM
Abel, 407
TINKHAM
Isaac, 475
TINKLER
(Pvt.), William, 126
TINSLEY
T. R., 367
TINSMAN
(Pvt.), Jeremiah, 157
TIPPIN
TIPPIN continued
James, 364
TIPPLE
(Pvt.), Nicholas, 146
(Pvt.), William, 146
TIPTON
290, 434
(Pvt.), A. F., 149
Alice, 299
(Doctor), 299
Elizabeth Tomlinson, 434
Frances, 434
(Pvt.), G., 149
(Pvt.), George W., 145
H. C., 380
Hiram C., 434
(Capt.), Hiram C., 149
(Pvt.), Isaac C., 157
(Pvt.), J., 149
John, 46, 435
(Pvt.), John E., 123
John S., 434
Jonathan, 376, 434
(Pvt.), Joseph, 121
Julia Wilcox, 434
Lizzie, 299
Lydia Gantz, 434
Mary, 434
Mary Shattuck, 434
Mary Starks, 434
Minerva Buckles, 434
Miranda, 299
Miranda Loomis, 434
Nelson, 434
Nelson F., 434
Rebecca Shattuck, 376, 434
R. H., 103, 340
Richard H., 434
(Dr.), Richard, 339
Richmond H., 127
Samuel S., 434
Sarah, 434
Silvester, 335
Sylvester, 434
(Dr.), T. C., 103, 295, 296, 297
Tabitha Stump, 434
Thomas, 289, 434
Thomas C., 434
Thomas H., 299
(Pvt.), William, 137, 140
William A., 434
TIROR
Sylvester V., 256
TISDALE
(Pvt.), Lewis, 158
TITRICK
(Pvt.), Eli, 138
TITUS
(Pvt.), Abraham R., 129
(Pvt.), Henry C., 130
(Dr.), Isaac, 451, 458
Harriet, 439
Mary, 319, 322
TIVIS
(Rev.), 429
John, 407
TOAKUM
(Pvt.), H., 152
TOBEY
E. S., 243
TOBEY continued
(Dr.), H. A., 367
(Pvt.), W. O., 149, 152
TOBIAS
Alvina, 272
John, 278
Isaac, 281
Peter, 278
S. H., 279
S. P., 280
Solomon, 281
TOBIN
(Pvt.), John R., 138
TOBLER
(Pvt.), John, 108
TOD
David, 91, 106
(Gov.), David, 159, 160, 528-529, 569, 571
(Doctor), 592
TODD
A., 202
Eli, 189
(Pvt.), Eli, 134
(Pvt.), George W., 139
I. P., 181, 182
(Mayor), I. P., 209, 213
(Pvt.), Isaac, 159
(Pvt.), James C., 128
Joel, 257
(Col.), John, 39
J. P., 208
(Pvt.), John, 123
J. W., 564
(Pvt.), Martin V., 145
W. L., 481
W. M., 182, 201, 202
TOLBERT
(Pvt.), Lampson A., 139
W. F., 208
TOLIVER
(Pvt.), Barnett, 133
TOLL
Alpheus, 381
(Pvt.), S. D., 147
TOLLIVER
(Rev.), Philip, 518
TOLLMAN
George, 312
TOM
Henry, 271
J., 365
J. A., 365
TOMAN
(Pvt.), Lewis, 117
TOMLINSON
(Doctor), 218
Elizabeth, 434
(Pvt.), James R., 136
(Pvt.), Richard L., 136
TOMPKINS
(Governor), 410
TONE
(Pvt.), George A., 111 TOOL
(Pvt.), George, 118
(Pvt.), William, 118
TOOLE
(Pvt.), Michael, 123
TOOMYRES
(Pvt.), Henry L., 110

TOOTLE
A. T., 320
Joseph C., 134
M. J., 309
TOPEL
(Pvt.), Oscar R., 140
TOPLIFF
(Rev.), Stephen, 515
TOPPIN
Ellen, 394
TOPPING
(Capt.), Dayton, 426
(Sgt.), James R., 133
John, 419
Josiah, 419, 431
(Dr.), Josiah, 427
J. R., 431, 522
Zopher, 419, 431
TORANCE
Mary, 463
TORBET
James, 268
Jane, 272
J. L., 44, 92
TORRANCE
(Pvt.), George, 112
TORRENCE
(Pvt.), John B., 125
J. H., 478
T. H., 475
TOUNGE
George, 440
TOWN
Charles H., 454
Eliza Marie, 454
TOWNE
D. H., 560
TOWNER
(Corp), William H., 159
TOWNS
William, 365
TOWNSEND
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 133
(Pvt.), G. W., 148
John, 466
(Pvt.), M., 149
(Pvt.), Milby, 154
(Dr.), N. S., 368, 546
(Pvt.), W. J., 149
(Pvt.), William J., 154
(Pvt.), William W., 125
(Pvt.), Willis H., 146
(Pvt.), Wood F., 145
TOWNSHEND
Norton S., 546, 549, 550, 567
TOWSELY
(Sgt.), George M., 115
TOY
381
(Pvt.), C., 148
Charles, 445
(Pvt.), N. P., 149
(Pvt.), Nathan P., 154
Wesley, 445
TRACY
Elz L. D., 143
(Pvt.), J. C., 112
(Pvt.), J. H., 112
Samuel M., 52
Thomas, 202
TRACY continued
(Pvt.), William, 144
TRAFZER
(Pvt.), Edward, 158
TRALL
(Doctor), 416-417
TRANER
(Pvt.), Michael, 136
TRAPP
(Pvt.), T. G., 108
TRATT
(Pvt.), Peter, 142
TRAUTMAN
(Pvt.), Andrew, 142
TRAUBB
Isaac, 479
TRAUTSCHOLD
(Pvt.), William, 117
TRAVIS
(Rev.), Francis, 296
TRAVERSE
Hugh, 356
TRAYBACK
(Pvt.), R., 150 TREES
Heinrich, 185
Peter, 185
TREGO
(Pvt.), Andrew, 156
James, 333
TREHORN
(Pvt.), George, 108
TRENT
E., 524
M., 524
TRESS
(Pvt.), Nelson, 158
TRESSEL
(Rev.), E. L. S., 186, 357
TRESSENRIDER
(Rev.), Benj., 517
TRETWELL
(Pvt.), Henry H., 134
TREVERBAUGH
John, 295
TREVITT
W., 567
William, 55
(Dr.), William, 161, 163
William, Jr., 162
TREYENS
Henry, 542-543
TRIECE
Henry, 185, 213
TRIGG
(Pvt.), John W., 139
TRIGGER
(Pvt.), A., 151
TRIMBLE
(Gov.), Allen, 271, 544
(Rev., Dr.), 183
(Lt.), Charles W., 125
James M., 549
(Rev.), Joseph M., 255, 277, 296, 517, 518, 519
J. M., 184
Robert, 465
(Pvt.), T., 151
TRIMMER
Aaron, 330
Elijah, 330
TRIMMER continued
(Pvt.), I., 150
Jonathan E., 330
Martha, 330
Sarah A., 330
Susan O'Hara, 330
TRIMOLE
(Pvt.), James, 155
TRINE
(Pvt.), David, 123
R., 451
TRIPLET
(Pvt.), George, 145
(Capt.), William, 209
TRIPLETT
Alice, 414-415
Arthur, 414-415
Daniel, 412, 413, 414
Delilah, 412
Florence, 414-415
(Pvt.), George H., 117
G. W., 412, 413, 414, 414-415
George, 414-415
Huldah, 412
Pearl, 414-415
W. M., 199
TRIPPLET
William, 206
TRISS
(Pvt.), Nelson, 117
TRIST
Fannie Rigal, 483
Jonathan, 483
TRONE
(pvt.), A. J., 149
Andrew, 277
Asa, 276
Benjamin, 276
Harvey, 276, 281
(Lt.), Harvey, 151
TROOK
(Pvt.), Thomas M., 141 TROTT
(Pvt.), Paulus, 108
TROUP
Musician A. P., 114
J. A., 201
TROUT
(Pvt.), J. A., 148
TROUTMAN
(Pvt.), Henry, 139
TROVINGER
(Pvt.), Jacob, 108
TRAWBRIDGE
(Pvt.), Cyrenus, 143, 158
Cyrenus, 120
(Pvt.), George, 118
TRUESDALE
(Pvt.), Asa, 117
TRUMBULL
(Pvt.), Oliver P., 139
TRUMP
(Pvt.), W., 151
TRUNBLE
Joseph, 414
TRUNNEL
(Pvt.), Albert, 153
TRUSON
(Pvt.), James, 108
TRY
George, 178, 213, 266

TRY continued
Mrs. George, 301
Henry, 185
Jacob, 178, 215, 266
TRYATT
(Capt.), Bartholomew, 97
TRYBERGER
Anthony, 132
TSCHIEDER
P., 191
TUCKER
(Pvt.), Charles N., 130
(Pvt.), Frederick, 108
(Pvt.), Levi, 133
Phinneas, 464
Stillman, 55, 475
(Pvt.), Thomas, 159
TUFTS
(Pvt.), Cyrus, 153
TULL
(Pvt.), Nelson, 145
TULLER
A., 432
Achilles, 420, 421, 424-425
Adolphus, 432
Aurelius, 420, 421, 424-425
Bela M., 376, 420, 424-425
E., 430
Elvira, 420, 421, 424-425
E. W., 372, 374
Ezekiel, 405
F. F., 427
Flavel, 102, 375, 420, 424, 425, 427, 432-433
Flora, 420, 421, 424-425
Franklin F., 421, 424-425
Henrietta, 421, 424-425
Henrietta S., 432-433
Henry, 421, 424-425
Holcomb, 372, 374, 420, 421, 424-425
Homer, 375, 420, 421, 424-425
(Pvt.), John T., 153
Jonathan D., 420
Lucinda, 421, 424-425
Lydia, 420, 421
Mrs. L., 102
Roswell, 420
Susan L., 421, 424-425
(Pvt.), Tohn T., 153
Woodruff, 372, 373
TULLEY
(Pvt.), Frank, 110
(Pvt.), Patrick, 130
TULLY
(Pvt.), John, 128
(Pvt.), Stephen, 128
(Pvt.), W., 150
TUMBLESON
(Pvt.), Luther, 127
TUPPER
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 158
Edward W., 205
(General), 420
TURFLINGER
(Pvt.), George, 125
(Pvt.), George W., 125
(Pvt.), Joseph H., 125
TURNER
93, 190
Anna, 312
TURNER continued
(Pvt.), Cyrus H., 133
(Pvt.), Gabriel, 158
(Pvt.), Garrett, 141
George, 497
(Pvt.), George, 158
(Dr.), H. A., 435
(Pvt.), H. F., 114
J. M., 154
James B., 52
John, 435
(Pvt.), Lewis H., 123
Nancy, 437
(Pvt.), Robert, 137
S. Scott, 567
T., 202
(Dr.), William, 280
(Pvt.), William B., 143
TURNEY 200
Adam, 241
(Capt.), 569
Daniel, 204-205, 206, 484, 487, 556
(Doctor), 324, 335
(Dr.), Daniel, 97, 215, 226, 235, 241, 270, 271
Elizabeth, 486
Frank J., 560
(Pvt.), G. R., 147
(Corp), G. R., 153
Harriet O., 235
Harry, 227
Isabella, 204-205, 241
James F., 560
Jane, 97
Janet Sterling, 204-205, 226, 24
Jeanettes, 235
John, 484
(Pvt.), John, 110
Margaret, 92
Mary O., 235
Mary Ridenour, 484
N. J., 204-205, 206
Nelson J., 42, 53, 104, 207, 240 241, 546
Mrs. N. J., 231
(Capt.), O., 112
Peter, 241
(Dr.), Samuel Denny, 103, 210, 216, 217, 226, 226-227, 211
(Dr.), Samuel, 241
Susan Ridenour, 484, 488
TURNSTEAD
(Pvt.), Thomas, 111
TURPIN
Carrie R., 318
TUSING
George, 463
G. M., 465
TUSSING
(Pvt.), David E., 137
(Rev.), Geo., 407
(Pvt.), James N., 145
P. B., 104
P. C., 453
R. J., 452
TUTHER
(Lt.), Alfred G., 136
TUTHILL
(Pvt.), Wallace C., 146
TUTTLE
A. H., 560
(Prof.), Albert H., 550, 560
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 139
(Pvt.), Zebedee, 158
TWADDLE
(Pvt.), Joseph, 108
TWIGG
(Pvt.), Joseph, 133
Philip, 517, 518
(Pvt.), Robert, 123
TWISS
George H., 560
TYLER
(Pvt.), Christian, 117
C. B., 204, 208, 209
(Pvt.), George H., 134
(Pvt.), James, 145
(Pvt.), Seymour, 108
(Rev.), Thomas P., 521
TYNG
(Rev.), Dudley A., 520
TYSON
(Pvt.), Ely, 110

U.

UCKER
William H., 100
UFFORD
(Rev.), 424
UFFNER
John, 372
ULERY
Diana Rigel, 412
G. W., 415
H., 488
John, 415
Daniel, 483
Diana Rigal, 483 ULM
(Pvt.), Jacob, 128
(Pvt.), Jeremiah, 108
ULRICH
(Pvt.), Henry, 122
Johann H., 122
ULRICK
(Pvt.), Edward, 129
ULRY
(Pvt.), H., 147
ULVEY
(Pvt.), John, 143
UMBAUGH
George, 207, 380
Georgiana, 380
UMSTED
D., 271
UNCLES
James, 501
(Pvt.), John, 141
UNDERWOOD
(Pvt.), Benjamin L., 137
(Pvt.), Benjamin S., 140
(Pvt.), William H., 146
(Pvt.), William T., 120
UNGEMACH
T. F., 451
UNION
(Pvt.), F., 111

UPJOHN
Richard, 538
UPSON
Daniel, 44
(Dr.), Daniel, 371, 427, 430
UPTHEGROVE
(Pvt.), Charles H., 159
(Pvt.), George, 159
UPTON
(Lt.), Edward N., 120
URY
Peter, 533

V.

VALENTINE
Catharine, 445
John, 185, 228
(Pvt.), John H., 143
(Sgt.), John H., 120
Josiah B., 48
(Pvt.), Solomon, 126
Sparr, 352
(Pvt.), Thomas, 117
(Dr.), V. A., 451
VAMBAUGH
(Pvt.), W., 152
VANANDA
(Rev.), C. A., 517
C. A., 478
VANARSDALEN
(Pvt.), William H., 115
VANATTA
(Pvt.), Chas., 121
VANAUDE
(Pvt.), William H., 142
VANBRIMMER
Hannah, 96
VANBUREN
Martin, 542-543
(Pvt.), M., 112
VANBUSKIRK
309
Abigail, 306
Caroline, 309
Daniel, 306
Diantha, 309
Francis Marion, 310
Issac, 306
(Rev.), John, 309
John, 306, 308, 308-309, 309
Lewis, 306
Marion, 310
Mary, 306, 310
Orlando, 310
Peter, 306, 309
Rhoda, 310
Sally, 306
Ruth R., 306
Samuel, 306
Sarah, 310
Sophia, 308
William H. H., 310
VANCE
402
(Capt), 572
E. P., 478, 479
(Pvt.), E., 152
(Pvt.), E. P., 149
(Pvt.), G. A., 149
Jacob L., 450
J. C., 477, 469
VANCE continued
Joseph, 43, 46, 510, 514
Margaret, 469
Mary Stimmel, 363
(Pvt.), N., 148
(Pvt.), Nathan, 154
Robert, 512
William, 363
VANCEIVER
George, 387
VANCLEAF
Aaron R., 44, 166, 186, 187
Mrs. A. R., 105
VANCLEEVE
(General), H. P., 227
VANDEGREPP
(Corp), James, 129
VANDEGRIFF
J. A., 574
VANDEMAN
(Rev.), Elias, 449, 463
(Rev.), H., 463
VANDERBURG
Anna E., 363
R., 363
VANDERMAN
E., 278
VANDEMARK
(Rev.), E., 187
(Rev.), Elias, 187, 413
VANDERMARK
(Pvt.), C., 123
VANDERSALL
(Reverend), 191
VANDERVEER
(Corp.), Benjamin D., 110
(Pvt.), Sidney D., 110
VANDERWERT
(Pvt.), Henry, 153
VANDINE
Jennie Seltzer, 586
(Corp), W., 111
VANDRUFF
(Pvt.), David A., 123
VANDUGYN
D. C., 464
VANEPOOL
(Pvt.), Adam, 140
VANFLEET
(Pvt.), J. D., 156
VANGUNDY
256
(Pvt.), Henry, 115
(Pvt.), Samuel, 124
VANGRUNDY
346
David, 346, 347
VANGUNDY
Rebecca, 252
VAN HEYDE
William, 181, 199
VANHIDE
Alfred, 209
Julius, 209
VANHOOK
(Pvt.), Thomas, 108
W. B., 536
VAN HONTEN
(Pvt.), A. A., 155
(Pvt.), Andrew, 133
(Pvt.), B. R., 146
VANHORN
Mrs. A., 528
(Pvt), Gentry, 142
(Pvt.), James, 130
(Pvt.), S., 149
(Pvt.), Simon, 139
William H., 111
VANHOUTEN
(Pvt.), A. A., 156
George, 330, 332
VAN HYDE
(Sgt.), Julius, 126
VAN LEAR
(Pvt.), Joseph, 124
(Pvt.), Samuel, 145
VANMETER
333, 335
Abram, 188
Catharine, 336
(Pvt.), Edward, 134
Emily, 188
Jacob, 188
(Sgt.), John, 107
John E., 47
John I., 101
John J., 52
Maria, 188
Mary, 188
Ruth, 440
(Pvt.), Seymour, 118
(Pvt.), Thomas J., 144
(Corp), Thornton, 125
Thornton T., 48
VANMETRE
Helen, 285
Henry, 283
Jacob, 284
John E., 285
Joseph, 283
Margaret, 283
Rachel, 283
(Pvt.), Thornton, 115
VANNATTA
(Pvt.), R., 154
VAN PELT
(Rev.), George, 314
(Pvt.), Isaac, 158
(Corp), Thomas D., 137
VANRENSAELLAER
(Gen.), 50
VAN RIPER
Harp, 197
VANSCEY
(Pvt.), John, 159
VANSCHOYCK
Anna, 495
John, 493
(Pvt.), Sylvester, 118
VANSCHRYCK
(Pvt.), George, 158
VANSCOYCE
(Corp), Peter, 136
VANSICKLE
Daniel, 344
Elizabeth, 344
Martha, 344
Mary Ann, 344
VANSICKLES
(Pvt.), Maborn,
VANSKOY
(Pvt.), Jonathan, 136
(Pvt.), John, 136

VANSLYKE
(Pvt.), James A., 111
VANVICKLE
Absalom, 330
Elizabeth Dulgar, 330
VANZ
(Pvt.), I., 114
VARNUM
James M., 39
VAUGHN
146
A. M., 316
(Pvt.), George, 156
(Pvt.), James, 114
Sallie E., 197
VAUSE
350
Eliza, 346
Elizabeth, 346
Fanny P., 396-397
Hannah, 349
James I., 346, 346-347, 349, 350
John D., 346, 349, 354
Luke D., 349
Rachel, 349
Thomas N., 346, 349
Thomas B., 349
William, 349
VAN WAGONER
Maria, 296
VEIHMAN
(Pvt.), John F., 130
VEITH
William, 209
VELENTINE
(Pvt.), Jeremiah, 138
VERMILLION
(Pvt.), George H., 138
VERNON
(Dr.), L. C., 217, 218
(Dr.), L. D., 101
(Pvt.), George H., 138
VESEY
Catharine, 458
Elizabeth, 458
Frank, 458
Gideon, 458
Irene, 458
John, 458
Johnnie, 458
Lizzie, 442-443, 458
Z., 441, 442-443, 450, 458
Snyder A., 458
VEST
(Pvt.), McFarland, 136
VIEMAN
C., 437
(Pvt.), C., 149
VINCENT
Carrie F., 482
Charles, 482
Charles E., 482
Chauncey P., 482
Corwin T., 482
F. M., 314
(Pvt.), Francis M., 135
(Pvt.), Fred, 154
Freddie, 482
(Pvt.), George M., 158
VINCENT continued
(Pvt.), Harness R., 135
(Pvt.), Henry, 159
Isaac, 312
John D., 516
(Pvt.), John Q., 145
Joseph C., 482
Lauretta C., 482, 482-483
Lauretta, 469
Louisa, 482
Nathan S., 472, 482-483
Thomas, 314
U. C., 469
Walter B., 482
William F., 482
VINEY
George, 105
VINING
Catharine White, 498
Emily, 420
William, 18, 419
VINSON
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 130
VIOLETT
(Pvt.), George W., 159
VIOMAN
(Pvt.), Charles, 144
VLENBOAM
(Pvt.), G., 151
VLEREBOME
Abram, 315
George, 314
J. C., 314
VLESEBORNE
Abram, 127
VOADLEY
Kitura, 306
VOELKEL
William, 387
VOETH
(Pvt.), John, 108
(Pvt.), Anton, 109
VOGELGESANG
(Capt), John I., 141
VOGELSBERG
(Corp), Aug., 122
VOGHT
(Rev.), John, 407
VOGLE
R., 527
VOKE
(Pvt.), Ambrose M., 110 VOLK
(Pvt.), John H.
(Pvt.), John H. M., 146
VOLZ
(Corp), George, 122
VONEIF
Henry, 204
VOOHES
49
VORNEHM
(Pvt.), Anthony, 142
VORYS
206
VOSS
(Pvt.), William, 135

W.

WACKERLY
WACKERLY continued
(Pvt.), Joseph, 158
WADDELL
Charles, 414
(Dr.), D. S., 465
F. J., 348
WADDLE
Alexander, 44
(Rev.), Charles, 296, 447, 517
WADE
Josephine, 439
WADEE
(Pvt.), 151
WADIG
(Pvt.), Charles, 158
WADKINS
(Pvt.), A. S., 151
(Pvt.), D., 151
(Sgt.), David, 156
(Pvt.), T. J., 151
WAGENER
(Pvt.), George M., 158
WAGENHALS
(Rev.), John, 186
Philip M., 546
(Dr.), P. M., 367, 567
WAGENHELLS
(Pvt.), Samuel, 134
WAGER
Catharine, 69
Sarah Ann, 69
WAGGONER
Peter, 278
WAGLER
George, 55
WAGLEY
(Pvt.), Thomas B., 129
WAGNER
199
Abraham, 412
(Pvt.), Abraham, 138
C., 364
Catherine, 230, 412, 413
(Pvt.), Christian, 131
(Pvt.), Colwell, 145
David, 412
David B., 192-193
(Pvt.), D. B., 150
D. B., 208, 230
Mrs. D. B., 261
Elizabeth, 192-193, 412
(Pvt.), Frank, 137
(Pvt.), Frederick, 139
George, 102, 412, 413, 477, 479
(Pvt.), George, 138
(Pvt.), George W., 120
(Pvt.), G., 147
G. H., 412
Harriet, 412
(Pvt.), J., 149
Jacob, 192-193, 268, 412, 413, 414
(Pvt.), Jacob, 155
James, 412
Jennie, 192-193
Jerusha Deems, 364
(Pvt.), John, 130
John D., 192-193, 412
Leah, 192-193, 230

WAGNER continued
Mark, 137
Mary A., 412
Mary, 192-193
Mary Francis, 192-193
(Pvt.), Nicholas, 142
(Rev.), Peter, 187, 447
Rachel Henry, 412
(Pvt.), S. L., 111
(Pvt.), William, 130
(Pvt.), W., 147
WAGONER
(Pvt.), J., 150
(Pvt.), Levi, 120
WAHLE
Anthony, 52
WAHN
Margaret, 312
WAISEN
(Pvt.), Samuel, 135
WAIT
(Pvt.), J., 150
WAITE
Jenks, 498
Sally, 498, 501
WAITELEY
(Pvt.), John C., 133
WAKEFIELD
J. D., 313
WALBOURNE
(Pvt.), Joseph, 119
WALBUR
(Pvt.), G., 148
WALCOTT
Absalom, 376
Amelia, 376
E. M., 379
James, 376, 378
John, 376, 380
Louisa, 379
Mary, 379
Rebecca, 379
(Pvt.), Robert, 153
Robert, 376, 407
Susan, 376
Tabitha, 376
William, 376
(Pvt.), William, 153
WALCUTT
119
Absalom, 362
Ann, 362
(Col.), 118
(Gen.), Charks C., 362, 552-553, 569
(Lt.), Col., Charles C., 119
David B., 362
Eliza, 362
Elizabeth Riley, 362
(Pvt.), Hiram, 157
Huldah, 362
Jacob, 362
James, 362, 364
Jane, 362
John, 362
John M., 552-553
J. M., 364
(Pvt.), John T., 158
Laura, 362
Louisa, 362
Mariel, 552-553
WALCUTT continued
Marilla, 362
Mary, 362
Mary Legg, 362
Mary Macy, 362
Melinda, 362
Millie, 362
Rhoda, 302
Richard, 362
Robert, 362
Susan Legg, 362
Susannah, 362
Virginia, 362
William, 362
WALDO
(Doctor), 257
(Pvt.), G. W., 149
(Pvt.), George W., 144
WALDSCHMIDT
(Pvt.), John, 142
WALES
(Corp), Jefferson, 133
(Pvt.), Jefferson T., 120
WALFHILL
(Corp), Reason H., 157
WALINGTON
(Pvt.), Francis, 126
WALKE
John, 47
WALKER
(Pvt.), Alexander, 108
(Pvt.), Anthony P., 138
A. O., 191
B. F., 324, 329
C. H., 526
Daniel, 416
George, 434
Henry, 435
(Pvt.), J., 148
James, 326, 330, 434, 435, 436
(Pvt.), James, 143
(Pvt.), James A., 131
(Sgt.), James J., 159
Jane, 416
Joel, 340
John, 329
(Pvt.), John, 119
(Pvt.), John F., 117
(Pvt.), J. R., 114
Louisa, 328, 329
Lutitia, 284
(Pvt.), Lyndon, 121
Mahala, 382, 434
Mariam, 311
(Pvt.), Marshall, 131
Martha, 511
Milla M., 434
Nathan, 296, 416
Ralph Manning, 481
(Sgt.), Richard H. L., 134
R. M., 477
(Pvt.), Robert, 144
Sarah A. Fretwell, 329
(Pvt.), S. C., 148
Sidney, 434
Thomas, 100
Thomas U., 538
William, 213, 417, 434, 435
(Pvt.), William H., 146
WALKER continued
(Capt.), W. H., 114
(Lt.), W. H., 114
(Pvt.), W. R., 147
WALL
(Pvt.), Thomas, 137
WALLACE
200
Betsy Andrews, 499
(Pvt.), C., 148
(Pvt.), Charles, 119
Codwallader, 315
Elizabeth, 499
Elizabeth Eubank, 89
(Pvt.), G. S., 159
(Pvt.), Hiram, 115
Isaiah, 422
James, 89, 314
Joseph, 105, 192-193
(Pvt.), Joseph, 119
Qtrmstr Joseph, 154
(Lt.), Joseph, 149
Mary, 499
Norman, 422
T. C., 202
Wm., 527
(Pvt.), William, 158
W. T., 89, 161
(Pvt.), William T., 118
WALLCUT
(Pvt.), James L., 158
WALLCUTT
(Capt.), Charles C., 158
WALLER
(Pvt.), H., 151
WALLICE
John, 499
(Pvt.), William, 108
WALLING
Ansel T., 43-44, 99, 100
Rachel, 469
Stuart, 100
WALLINGTON
(Pvt.), Francis M., 140
WALLS
(Pvt.), James T., 117
(Pvt.), John W., 158
(Pvt.), Joseph, 158
WALLY
(Pvt.), Hamilton, 138
(Pvt.), William H., 138
WALSON
(Pvt.), J., 149
L., 295
WALSTEN
(Pvt.), Leaven, 108
WALSTON
A. J., 297
(Pvt.), Darius, 156
D. P., 295
James K., 295
Louisa, 304
(Pvt.), Marcus, 125
(Pvt.), William, 110, 115
WALSTONE
(Pvt.), James, 108
(Pvt.), Josiah, 108
(Pvt.), William, 108
WALTER
Ann, 434
(Corp), Frederick, 156

WALTER continued
Henry, 537
(Rev.), Isaac, 296
(Pvt.), John, 121
William, 364
WALTERHOUSE
(Pvt.), Charles W., 156
WALTERS
(Pvt.), Edward, 145
(Pvt.), Edward G., 126
Daniel, 276
(Pvt.), David, 108
Festus, 100
(Pvt.), F. S., 114
(Pvt.), George W., 143
Isaac N., 373
(Pvt.), J. B., 152
(Pvt.), Mitchels D., 158
(Pvt.), Peter, 153
(Pvt.), S., 149
(Corp), Samuel, 154
(Pvt.), Watson B., 117
(Corp), William, 125
WALTIMIRE
(Lt.), James, 152
WALTNER
(Pvt.), John, 131
WALTON
(Pvt.), A. H., 149
(Pvt.), Adin H., 144
A. J., 295
Gideon, 435
Isaac, 560
John, 46, 532
(Pvt.), John, 129
(Pvt.), John C., 117
(Pvt.), John W., 130
Michael, 492
Rebecca Gilbert, 435
William, 494
William M., 496
(Pvt.), William, 158
WAMPLER
(Corp), John S., 138
WANANKE
(Pvt.), James, 155
WANN
Mrs. John, 251
(Pvt.), Daniel, 125
WANT
(Pvt.), E., 151
(Pvt.), J., 151
WANTON
E., 428, 429
WAPELS
Comfort, 312
Hamilton, 458
Mary Bradfield, 434
W., 434
WARD
Abraham, 285
(Lt.), A., 114
Charles, 274
(Pvt.), Cyrus F., 110
(Pvt.), D., 151
Daniel, 274
(Pvt.), Daniel, 155
(Doctor), 414
(Maj.), Durbin, 114
(Gen.), Durbin, 540
Elizabeth, 274
WARD continued
(Pvt.), F., 151
(Pvt.), G., 151
George, 274
(Pvt.), George, 155
(Pvt.), I., 151
James, 274, 278, 280
(Corp), James, 155
(Pvt.), J. C., 156
Jesse, 181, 209
Jonas B., 407
Joseph, 264
Josiah, 274
(Sgt.), Josiah, 155
Leander, 280
(Pvt.), Martin Y., 110
Mary, 274, 279
Nancy, 279
(Pvt.), Nathan, 138
Peter, 274
Richard, 274, 279
Robert, 274
(Pvt.), Robert G., 138
S., 190, 206
(Pvt.), Samuel, 110, 123
Sidner J., 274
T., 474
(Pvt.), W., 151
William, 274, 279, 348
(Pvt.), William, 120, 126
(Sgt.), William A., 110
William Harvey, 274
WARDEL
(Pvt.), Joseph T., 135
WARDEN
(Pvt.), A., 112
(Judge), Robert B., 91, 93, 568
WARE
Valverda, 466
WAREHAM
(Rev.), 218
(Pvt.), T., 148
Theodore, 153
WARLDON
(Pvt.), Abraham, 144
WARN
Silas, 278
WARNER
Andrew, 302
Christopher, 320
(Pvt.), Cyrenus, 159
(Major), Darius B., 132
David, 320
Fred, 181, 209
(General), 551
(Pvt.), George M., 153
(Pvt.), George W., 153
Henry, 86, 278, 302
(Pvt.), Henry A., 143
Henry W., 47
(Pvt.), Henry W., 155
Jacob, 302
John, 520, 559
(Pvt.), John, 133
(Pvt.), John A., 153
(Pvt.), John B., 153
Jonathan, 302
Leonard, 302
(Pvt.), L. O., 155
Maria, 86
Milton J., 196
WARNER continued
Peter, 184
Philip, 114, 183
(Capt), Philip, 150
Warner, 374
WARNOCK
David, 184
(Rev.), Duval, 517
WARREN
Cloudesbury, 319
Edmund, 493, 495
H. H., 165
James, 285
(Pvt.), John, 139
(Pvt.), P., 150
WARRINGTON
C. B., 308
WARSTLER
(Pvt.), Aaron, 131
(Pvt.), Christian, 131
WARTES
(Pvt.), J., 123
WASHBURN
(Doctor), 242
(Pvt.), David, 144
E., 55
(Pvt.), E. A., 147
(Rev.), Ebenezer, 481, 487
(Pvt.), H., 147
Henry, 587
(Pvt.), T., 150
William, 587
(Pvt.), W. R., 147
WASHBURNE
(Rev.), A. H., 521
(Rev.), Ebenezer, 468-469, 472, 475
WASHINGTON
George, 27, 562, 579, 586
(Pvt.), G., 150
(Pvt.), George, 159
(Pvt.), George H., 139
WASSEN
(Pvt.), Ebenezer W., 141
WATERHOUSE
(Pvt.), Thomas, 115
WATERMAN
(Pvt.), Henry, 118, 121
(Rev.), Joseph A., 517
WATERMOYER
(Sgt.), Jacob, 132
WATERS
Elizabeth Williams, 412
Gilbert, 411, 412
(Pvt.), Joseph, 158
(Pvt.), J. B., 149
M. D., 479
(Pvt.), M. D., 149
Oliver, 414
Philip, 411, 413
(Pvt.), Samuel, 138
(Pvt.), Watson B., 115
William, 436
WATKINS
Aldridge, 393
(Pvt.), Elijah, 130
Emeline, 393
(Capt.), James J., 127
Madaline, 393
Philo, 499
Philo B., 393, 500

WATKINS continued
Quincey A., 393
(Pvt.), R. G., 146
Adjutant Thomas J., 154
(Pvt.), William, 131
WATNEMAYE
(Sgt.), August, 132
WATSON
Addison, 500
David K., 96
(Pvt.), Edward, 157
Mrs. E. T., 531
(Pvt.), George, 141
(Pvt.), H., 151
(Pvt.), Henry, 155
J., 414
James, 94, 130, 500
(Col.), James, 102
J. B., 297
(Pvt.), James K., 126
(Pvt.), Jacob, 135
(Pvt.), Jacob D., 110
Jesse, 94, 96
(Pvt.), John, 110, 141
(Sgt.), Jonathan, 132
(Pvt.), Joseph L., 141
Margaret, 94, 96
Margaret C., 469
Otway, 500
(Rev.), R.
Samuel, 432
(Pvt.), W., 149, 152
W. S., 556
(Pvt.), William, 108, 127
WATT
Charles, 475
(Pvt.), Cyrus A., 145
George, 473
Hannah, 469
Judith, 228
Samuel, 178, 185, 198, 228
William, 470, 474
WATTEMYERS
(Pvt.), Martin, 139
WATTER
(Pvt.), John, 108
WATTLE
(Rev.), Charles, 321
WATTS
A., 365
(Pvt.), Carlisle W., 144
Elizabeth, 398
(Pvt.), Joseph F., 123
Nancy, 386
Tryphena, 493
William, 386, 493
(Pvt.), William, 158
(Lt.), William W., 120
WAXMER
(Pvt.), William, 138
WAYNE
Mad Anthony, 384, 494, 495
WEAKLEY
(Rev.), John W., 518
Samuel, 278
WEAN
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 144
(Pvt.), James H., 159
WEATHERELL
G., 365
WEATHERINGTON
WEATHERINGTON continued
Comfort, 392
Isaac, 392, 395
John, 392
Margaret, 392
Rebecca, 392
William, 392
WEATHERSTON
(Corp), Joseph, 158
WEAVER
Adam, 213
A. E., 279
Anthony, 185
Asa, 423
(Pvt.), C. C., 148
(Pvt.), C. P., 152
David, 277
D. F., 279
(Pvt.), E., 150
Elias, 465
Elizabeth, 277
Enoch, 191
(Pvt.), Eugene W., 117
G., 409
(Rev.), George, 517
Giles, 374
(Corp), G. W., 124
(Pvt.), Henry, 138
Isaac, 277
J., 476, 478
(Pvt.), J., 149
(Pvt.), James, 144
Jacob, 442
(Pvt.), Jacob, 108
(Rev.), Jacob, 407
Mrs. Jacob, 268-269
John, 185, 277, 520
(Sgt.), John M., 115
(Pvt.), John, 123
(Pvt.), John T., 138
Louisa, 277
Mary Jane, 277
(Pvt.), Mathew, 110
Noah, 208
(Pvt), P., 151
Philip, 277
Samuel, 277
Susannah, 277
W. H., 202
William, 277
W. J., 279
(Pvt.), W. J., 151
WEBB
205
E., 206
(Pvt.), Elisha F., 118
(Dr.), Erastus, 181, 215, 239, 235
(Pvt.), Isaac, 117
Ass't Surg. James D., 110
(Rev.), J. D., 296
John M., 161, 162, 163
(Pvt.), Martin, 142
Mary, 311
(Pvt.), Rodney, 110
(Pvt.), R. S., 156
S. H., 538
Thomas D., 544
Thomas J., 423
Thomas S., 428, 428-429, 431, 556
WEBB continued
W., 422
W. W., 161
Willoughby W., 162, 163
(Pvt.), Willoughby W., 111 WEBBEL
(Pvt.), Christian, 117
WEBBER
(Capt.), Edwin L., 126
(Pvt.), Rudolph, 133
WEBER
Adam, 452
(Pvt.), Christian, 142
(Pvt.), Frank, 122
(Pvt.), F., 148
Frederick, 406
(Pvt.), George, 133
(Pvt.), John, 142
WEBSTER
Amason, 405, 407, 408-409
Charles, 409
C. L., 408-409
Cynthia L., 409
E., 308
E. T., 184, 255
Ezra G., 409
(Pvt.), F. A., 152
Harvey, 405
(Pvt.), J., 148
(Corp), 152
John, 405, 406, 409
(Sgt.), Joseph Trimble, 409
J. T., 408-409
Julia, 409
Levi, 405
Lewis, 405
L. H., 45
(Pvt.), L. H., 147
(Capt.), L. H., 153
(Lt.), Lones H., 147
Lydia, 409
(Pvt.) M., 148
Oliver, 409
Peter, 405
Philologus P., 405
Rhoda, 405
Sarah, 409
William, 263, 424-425
(Corp), William, 152
WECHSLER
(Rev., Dr.), J., 527
WEDDELL
(Rev.), 255
WEDDLE
Zelotes G., 435, 437
WEDMAIR
(Pvt.), Joseph, 137
WEDO
(Pvt.), Frederick, 156
WEEDEN
John, 494
WEEKS
(Pvt.), Franklin Q., 140
WEEST
(Pvt.), Michael, 137
WEFLER
(Pvt.), Christian, 135
(Pvt.), John, 125
(Pvt.), P., 149
Peter, Jr., 199
WEGERLY

WEGERLY continued
Adam, 208
WEGGANDT
George, 389
WEHE
Charles, 341
George, 340
(Corp), John, 154
WEHLE
(Pvt.), J., 149
WEHRLE
(Pvt.), Frank, 142
WEIBLING
E., 431, 478
Edwin, 119
J., 479
M., 479
WEIDER
Daniel, 124
WEIGAND
Dill, 104
WEIL
Julius, 209
WEILL
J., 200
WEIMER
(Pvt.), Andrew, 143
(Pvt.), A., 112
H., 202
(Pvt.), William, 131
WEINESDORFER
(Pvt.), Lawrence, 108
WEIR
255 WEIRIAN
(Corp), David, 125
WEISENHAMMER
Jacob, 408
WEISER
(Pvt.), Levi, 137
WEISH
(Pvt.), John, 122
WEISNER
(Pvt.), Samuel, 137
WEISS
(Rev.), George, 449
(Rev.), I. I., 527
(Rev.), I. S., 449
WEIST
(Dr.), J., 305
Josephine D., 305
WELCH
(Asst.), Surg., David, 114
(Pvt.), Devenport, 156
D. M., 104
(Pvt.), Franklin, 145
(Pvt.), George L., 145
John, 87, 99
(Pvt.), J. C., 156
J. W., 386
Lydia, 386
(Pvt.), Marcus, 156
Martin, 400, 403
WELDY
Barbara Wissles, 252
WELKER
John, 222
WELLEN
W., 479
WELLING
David C., 94
WELLING continued
(Dr.), D. H., 417
Rebecca J., 94
WELLMAN
(Rev.), Jubilee
528-529
WELLS
425
(Pvt.), E., 151
(Pvt.), Edward T., 125
F. W., 482
George, 413
(Pvt.), George, 156
(Rev.), George, 190
(Pvt.), H., 151
(Pvt.), Henry, 115, 126, 157
(Pvt.), Humphrey, 145
I. N., 427, 428
Isaac N., 303, 372
Isabel A., 300
(Pvt.), James H., 145
(Rev.), J. F., 296
(Pvt.), John E., 139
(Lt.), Joshua M., 133
Margaret F., 303
Martin, 300, 303
Mary Ann, 471
(Pvt.), Newton, 139
(Pvt.), Thomas, 115
Thomas, 303
(Pvt.), William, 115, 123
WELMORE
(Pvt.), George, 135
WELSH
(Pvt.), Alfred, 114
Ann E., 327
(Pvt.), Asbury, 115
(Pvt.), Charles A., 158
(Pvt.), E. M., 148
Flora C. Hott, 330
(Pvt.), Franklin, 156
(Pvt.), George, 117
(Pvt.), J., 112
(Pvt.), James, 125
James Sr., 324-327
Jesse Thompson, 327, 331
John, 310, 327
(Pvt.), John, 114
Margaret Gibson, 324
Margaret Thompson, 324
(Pvt.), S., 111
W. A., 313
William A., 312-313
WELSHAUS
(Pvt.), John, 108
WELSHEIMER
J. B., 188, 189
WELTER
Jacob, 183
WELTNER
(Pvt.), John W., 146
WELTON
(Pvt.), M., 149
John, 445, 460
M., 297
WENDON
(Pvt.), Frederick, 129
WENGERT
(Pvt.), J., 147
WENNY
(Lt.), Henry J., 123
WENSIE
(Pvt.), A., 154
WENTLING
(Pvt.), Elias, 137
WENTWATER
(Pvt.), Robert, 147
WENZELL
(Pvt.), Casper, 117
WERDERLICH
(Pvt.), George, 125
WERNER
(Pvt.), John A., 137
Lovina, 264
WERNLE
(Reverend), 447
WERT
Jacob, 452
Robert, 485
WERTE
(Lt.), William, 117
WERTMAN
George, 302
Susanna L., 302
WERTS
(Pvt.), Jacob, 135
WERTZ
(Pvt.), I., 111
(Pvt.), W., 111
WEST 324
Barbara, 325
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 135
(Pvt.), C., 149
C. S., 465, 466
Catherine, 325
Daniel, 325
(Pvt.), Daniel L., 126
Elizabeth, 325
Elizabeth Bartley, 325
Elizabeth Howe, 325
Frederick, 325
George, 202, 325
George G., 414
G. G., 255
(Rev.), G. G., 414, 471
Hannah, 471
(Corp), James, 129
John, 325
J. B., 465
L. D., 478
Margaret, 325, 328, 329
Mary, 325
Peter, 325
Rachel, 438
(Pvt.), Robert, 121
(Rev.), Samuel, 516, 517
Sarah, 325
Thomas, 211
Wm. R., 537, 538
WESTE
William, 139
WESTENHAR
(Pvt.), Emanuel, 155
WESTENHAVER
(Pvt.), E., 151
Catharine, 276
Emanuel, 276, 280, 281
Jacob, 276
James, 18
Sarah, 280, 281
WESTERMAN

WESTERMAN continued
Frank M., 518
(Rev.), Nathan, 296
WESTERVELT
Abiah, 471
Alfred, 471
Angeline, 471
Balinda, 471
Caleb, 471
Caroline, 472
Cornelius L., 471
Edgar, 471
Edwin, 471
Emery, 471
Hannah, 471
(Rev.), H. B., 349
Ira G., 471
J., 479
James, 471
Louisa, 471
Martha, 471
Mary, 471
Mary Ann, 472
Matthew, 471, 475, 476, 477, 479, 480
P., 478
Peter, 471, 475
Rebecca, 471
Sally, 471
W. Bishop, 471
(Pvt.), W., 148
William, 471
WESTERVILLE
(Pvt.), George, 125
(Pvt.), William, 157
WESTERWILLER
John, 496
WESTFALL
Abel, 322
WESTLAKE
B., 184
William, 255
WESTON
Amelia Aldrich, 64
(Pvt.), John T., 140
WESTWATER
J. M., 562
(Pvt.), Robert M., 153
WESTWILLER
John, 373
WETHERBEE
Hannah, 379
WETHERBY
(Pvt.), John, 133
WETHRILL
Joseph, 380
WETMORE
(Dr.), Chas. H., 408, 409, 410, 427
James, 405
Eliza, 410
WETTERHAM
(Rev.), 527
WETZLER
Thomas, 560
WEYGANDT
(Pvt.), Daniel, 133
(Pvt.), John A., 133
WEYGUANDT
(Pvt.), Joseph, 131
WHALAVER
(Corp), John, 124
WHALEN
(Pvt.), James, 125
(Pvt.), Patrick, 124
WHAM
(Major), J. W., 243
WHAREY
W. J., 479
WHARTON
(Pvt.), Albert, 147
(Pvt.), Arthur, 133
(Rev.), Henry, 296
(Rev.), Zachariah, 296, 321
WHEAT
Julia, 222
WHEATLEY
(Pvt.), Thomas, 108
WHEATON
(Pvt.), Allen, 156
(Pvt.), Emen, 156
John M., 566, 567
J. M., 524
(Dr.), J. M., 529
(Rev.), M., 188
Rachel Beers, 403
WHEELER
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 135
Caroline V., 73
(Pvt.), Charles, 120
(Pvt.), David, 118, 145
Ellen, 307
(Pvt.), George T., 133
Isaac, 257
(Pvt.), Jacob, 108
(Capt.), John, 86
Lucinda, 332
Martha, 332
(Pvt.), Oscar M., 140
(Pvt.), Richard, 144
Thomas, 308
W. F., 552
WHEITSEL
Jacob, 262
Polly, 262
WHETMORE
(Pvt.), J., 148
WHETSEL
441
Daniel, 462, 463
Elizabeth, 254
Elisha M., 462
Huldah, 462
WHIP
(Sgt.), David, 130
George, 408
(Corp), W., 111
WHIPP
(Pvt.), D., 112
WHIP
(Pvt.), George, 143
(Pvt.), H., 148
WHIPPS
(Pvt.), Joshua F., 146
WHISLER
Amanda, 253
Henry, 252
WHISTLER
(Pvt.), Ephraim, 135
WHISTMAN
WHISTMAN continued
(Pvt.), William, 155
WHITAKER
(Pvt.), Jonah, 129
Mary, 96
WHITCOMB
David, 255, 414
(Rev.), David, 517
(Governor), 343
Martha, 343
WHITE
181, 297, 499
(Pvt.), Albert, 143
Alexander, 363
Amy, 321
Ann, 363
Anna C. Williams, 432-433
(Pvt.), Ansel, 108
(Pvt.), Arthur, 146
Benjamin, 45, 507, 513
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 124
Betsey Jewett, 432-433
(Pvt.), C. W., 148
C., 363
C. B., 567
(Dr.), C. C., 567
Clark, 44, 364, 365
(Capt.), Cornelius C., 147
(Pvt.), Daniel, 114, 146
(Corp), Daniel, 118
D. M., 432
(Lt.), E., 148
(Pvt.), E., 112
E. E., 102
Eliza Alkire, 363
Elizabeth, 364, 386
Emanuel M., 388
(Pvt.), Frank M., 140
(Pvt.), G., 148
George, 363, 498, 499
(Pvt.), George, 153
(Pvt.), George, 136
G. M., 567
(Pvt.), George W., 139
(Lt.), Granville M., 121
(Pvt.), Henry, 159
Isaac, 46, 387
J., 387, 453
Mrs. J., 435, 438
(Pvt.), Jacbo H., 144
(Pvt.), James, 120
(Pvt.), James W., 123
J. C., 387
John, 341, 414, 432-433, 497, 498
(Pvt.), John, 125, 134
John A., 111
(Pvt.), John C., 141
John M., 45-46, 363
(Corp), John Q., 131
John W., 255
(Pvt.), John W., 133
(Rev.), John, 388, 517
(Rev.), J. W., 432-433
Jacbo, 363, 364
James S., 363
Jane Stewart, 363
Jeremiah, 448, 453
Joseph, 363
(Pvt.), Joseph C., 145

WHITE continued
(Pvt.), Joseph D., 141
(Pvt.), Joshua, 142
(Pvt.), Lewis A., 121
(Sgt.), Louis A., 158
Mary A. Baltimore, 363
Mary J. Clime, 363
(Pvt.), M. H., 134
Mary Kilgore, 498
Margaret, 434, 437
Nancy, 363
(Pvt.), O., 150
Peregrine, 83
Philo N., 48, 101
P. N., 25, 200
Rebecca, 362
(Reverend), 349, 519
(Pvt.), Richard C., 121
(Pvt.), Robert, 159
Ruth, 83
Sergeant, 116
(Sgt.), Van Buren, 115
Samuel, 362, 363, 364
Sarah, 363
Stewart, 364
Susan, 498
(Dr.), T. F., 103, 295
Thomas, 320, 321
(Pvt.), W., 151
William, 256, 363, 497
(Pvt.), William, 154, 156, 159
W. P., 386, 387, 389
WHITEHEAD
Ada, 413
Ashton, 275
Benjamin, 346
(Corp), Edward B., 132
Eliza Jane, 345
(Dr.), Ezekiel, 400, 401
G., 479
H. L., 296
(Corp), William H., 117
(Lt.), Henry L., 149
(Pvt.), John M., 133
Jonathan, 398, 399
L., 255
Nannie E., 345
(Pvt.), Peter H., 135
T., 479
William, 355
W. V., 346
WHITEHILL
Joseph, 97, 537
WHITEHURST
M. C., 451
WHITEMER
Abigail, 276
Henry, 276, 281
WHITESEL
254
Archibald, 253
Elizabeth, 253
George, 253
Jacob, 253
(Pvt.), John, 124
Nicholas, 252
Phillip, 253
(Corp), Samuel, 155
WHITESIDE
Andrew, 284, 337
Arthur, 105, 106, 293, 337
WHITESIDE continued
D. A., 313
(Pvt.), David A., 155
(Pvt.), Joseph, 146
Mary A. Yates, 293
WHITESIDES
(Pvt.), D. A., 151
(Pvt.), James, 134
WHITING
Augustus N., 521
J. N., 520
(Pvt.), N. A., 147
Thomas, 100, 184
WHITLOCK
(Pvt.), Cornelius, 146
WHITMAN
H. C., 47
WHITMORE
George, 541
Samuel, 278
(Pvt.), Randolph, 145
WHITNEY
(Pvt.), L., 147
Sarah, 65
WHITSEL
Daniel, 443
David, 443
Elizabeth, 443
(Pvt.), H., 148
Henry, 443
Isaac, 443
John, 443
Minerva, 266-267
Samuel, 443
(Pvt.), Sam uel, 126
WHITSELL
Daniel, 319, 321
John, 321
(Pvt.), Russell B., 147
Samuel, 321
WHITTACRE
(Pvt.), Munson, 139
WHITTAKER
(Pvt.), William, 159
WHITTAM
(Pvt.), James, 157
WHITTEN
(Pvt.), Philip, 114
WHITTINGTON
(Rev.), W., 191
WHITTLESEY
(Col.), Charles, 7, 12, 18, 28
WHITZELL
J., 518
WHOLONER
John, 208
WIATT
James T., 209
WIBBLING
(Pvt.), J., 154
WICKEL
Elizabeth, 389
WICKIZEN
(Pvt.), John D., 137
WICKLEY
(Pvt.), George, 158
WICKLIFF
(Pvt.). George H., 158
WICKS
George W., 157
Mary, 368
WICKS continued
(Pvt.), W. H., 156
WIDAMAN
(Pvt.), William H., 110
WIDENERS
324
Elizabeth, 325
Jacob, 325
(Pvt.), P. M., 150
WIDER
(Pvt.), F., 150
(Pvt.), J., 150
WIDES
(Pvt.), Jerome, 154
WIDNER
Elizabeth, 345
Jacob, 342
(Capt.), William I., 140
WIDOE
(Pvt.), L. F., 151
(Corp), Lenara, 155
WIEFEL
(Pvt.), A., 149
(Pvt.), Angustus, 144
WIEGAND
(Pvt.), D., 150
Dill, 346
(Pvt.), John, 127
WIELER
(Pvt.), John, 108
WIEN
(Pvt.), Frederick, 117
(Pvt.), Hamilton, 140
WIER
(Pvt.), Alfred D., 157
WIGGINS
294
Archibald, 269
Catharine, 253
Elizabeth, 266
John W., 297
Lucinda, 321
Mary, 296
Philip, 296, 297
Sarah Ann, 296
Thomas, 320, 321
WILBUR
Charles T., 129
Frank, 475
WILBERN
George, 256
WILBUR
(Prof.), F. A., 482
WILCOX
404, 417
Amy, 493
Ann Maria, 68
Asa, 492
D. P., 403, 408
Emily, 405
Francis, 492
(Pvt.), Frederick, 141
G. D., 373
(General), 586
George, 311
(Pvt.), Henry L., 157
(Pvt.), Hiram, 133
H. W., 432
(Pvt.), Ira, 137
(Pvt.), James, 130
James A., 68, 75, 586

WILCOX continued
(Col.), James A., 132
James B., 76
Mrs. James, 531
(Pvt.), John, 153
(Pvt.), Joseph W., 129
Julia, 434-435
(Pvt.), J. W., 114
(Pvt.), Lucius, 143
Lucy, 76
(Pvt.), Lawrence, 153
Mary, 76
Molly Bacon, 66
(Pvt.), Morales, 133
(Pvt.), Oscar, 143
P. B., 45, 46, 66, 67, 454, 493
Rebecca Sandusky, 362
Roswell, 405, 408, 419, 420, 431
Samuel, 493
Sarah D., 66
Seth, 66
Sherlock A., 76
Silas, 405
Starling S., 76
Tracy, 362, 372
(Pvt.), Washington W., 153
WILCOXSON
Lizzie, 338-339
WILD
(Pvt.), O., 112
WILDBAHN
George, 185, 205
WILDER
A. H., 243
(Dr.), G. A., 103, 216, 217
(Pvt.), Jacob, 142
WILDMAN
A. R., 7
WILDS
(Pvt.), Oliver, 158
WILEY
257, 440
(Doctor), 447
(Sgt.), James A., 157, 158
Martha, 422
Sally, 423
Sarah, 440
WILHELM
(Pvt.), Adam, 137
Friederich, 590
(Rev.), M. L., 186
WILKENING
(Pvt.), Henry, 139
WILKENS
(Pvt.), Alfred, 156
(Pvt.), Elisha, 156
(Pvt.), Jacob, 143
WILKES
J. S., 199
Thos., 174
WILKIE
589
WILKERSON
(Pvt.), W., 151
WILKINS
493
Almira L., 329
(Pvt.), Andrew H., 138
Ann Eliza, 329
WILKINS continued
Caroline M., 329
Christina, 486
Elizabeth West, 325
Hannah M., 329
Harvey T.
(Pvt.), J., 149
James, 256
Luke, 325, 331
Mary R., 329
(Pvt.), N., 148
Nathaniel, 348
Nelson, 411, 412, 414
Sarah M., 329
Pri Wesley H., 138
William W., 329
WILKINSON
John R., 294, 295
(Pvt.), Robert, 146
(Pvt.), William H., 146
WILL (Pvt.), Alexander A., 142
(Pvt.), Henry, 142
(Rev.), James, 517
(Pvt.), John, 138
(Pvt.), John S., 128
WILLARD
(Pvt.), C., 147
(Pvt.), Charles D., 153
Geo. W., 407
WILLEY
W. L., 341
WILLI
(Pvt.), R. L., 148
WILLIAM
Duke of Nassau, 542-543
WILLIAMS
52, 574, 576
(Pvt.), Aaron, 130
Abner K., 393
(Pvt.), Abraham, 144
Abraham, 374, 392, 393, 412, 414
Abraham J., 44
Abram, 412
A. J., 513
(Sgt.), Alanson R., 130
Alfred, 105, 165, 185
Alice P., 550
Almeda, 412
Alanson, 412
(Corp), Alonzo, 130
(Pvt.), Amos J., 142
Andrew G., 308
Anna C., 432-433
(Pvt.), Arthur, 130
Benjamin, 393
(Pvt.), C., 151
Catherine, 374, 393, 412
Charles, 300, 326
(Pvt.), Chas. L., 158
(Pvt.), Charles W., 141
(Pvt.), C. W., 148
Charlotte Dulen, 396-397
Chrissie, 341
Cornelius W., 308
C. W., 414
Daniel, 321
(Pvt.), Daniel, 135
David, 18, 391, 392, 393, 396-397
WILLIAMS continued
David E., 96
(Rev. David, 516
(Pvt.), David, 136
D. E., 560
(Doctor), 488
E., 102
(Pvt.), Edward B., 144
Edward, 42, 100, 323, 324, 325, 346
Eli, 392
(Pvt.), Eli, 119
Eli K., 362
(Pvt.), Elijah J., 153
(Pvt.), E. R., 147
Elizabeth, 325, 412
Enos, 412
Esther, 96
F. J., 521
(Pvt.), Flauel, 108
(Pvt.), Francis W., 156
(Pvt.), G., 146, 152
(Pvt.), G. W., 148
George, 101, 321, 343, 469
(Pvt.), George, 123
George S., 44
Geo. W., 46, 391, 392, 520
(Pvt.), George W., 143
H. 202
(Pvt.), H., 146
Henry, 329
(Pvt.), Henry, 114, 154, 158
Hetty D., 308
H. M., 313
H. Z., 7
Isaac, 42, 100, 319, 325, 393, 412, 414
Isaac B., 412
Jacob, 307, 414
James, 131, 280, 326, 556
(Pvt.), James, 139
(Pvt.), James A., 126
(Pvt.), J., 150
(Pvt.), J. B., 147
(Rev.), J. F., 296
Jane, 391
Jeremiah, 447
John, 276, 294, 326, 341, 392, 412
(Pvt.), John, 133, 139, 148, 157, 158
(Pvt.), John F., 127
John G., 83
(Corp), John P., 119
John S., 100
John W., 96
(Pvt.), Jonas, 133
Josephine, 325
Joshua, 326, 328
Josiah, 392, 414
(Rev.), J. T., 516
Laura Ann, 469
(Pvt.), Lawrence K., 130
(Pvt.), Lewis, 126
(Sgt.), Linus, 107
M., 365
Margaret, 434, 438, 498
Martha J., 320
(Pvt.), Martin, 139
Mary, 285, 308, 312, 325, 393
(Pvt.), Matthew, 156

WILLIAMS continued
Melinda Walcutt, 362
Micajah T., 50
Miranda A., 307
Naomi Tatimer, 491
Noah, 326, 329
(Pvt.), Nicholson, 135
(Pvt.), P., 148
(Pvt.), P. S., 148
Rebecca H., 393
Richard, 412
(Pvt.), Richard, 158
(Pvt.), Rolin H., 142
R. M., 396
Samuel, 463
(Corp), Samuel, 138
(Corp), Samuel M., 114
(Pvt.), Samuel W., 147
(Capt.), Samuel W., 153
Sarah, 285
Sarah E., 393
Silas, 520
(Dr.), S. W., 210-211
Theophilus, 319
Thomas, 295
V. I., 18
Vincent, 325
William, 325, 393, 395, 396, 463, 527
William C., 308
(Pvt.), William H., 137
(Pvt.), William P., 136
(Pvt.), W. S., 151
(Corp), William S., 127
W. T., 521
(Capt.), W. W., 137
WILLIAMSON
325
(Pvt.), Aaron, 141
(Pvt.), Benjamin F., 117
(Pvt.), Charles, 130
(Pvt.), Cicero, 133
(Col.), 265
Cornelius, 273, 279
David, 324
(Capt.), Eleazer, 324
Eleazer, Jr., 324
Eliza, 273
F., 174
(Pvt.), General A., 131
(Pvt.), George W., 137
Hiram, 273
Jackson, 273
(Pvt.), Jacob, 133
John, 273, 274, 276, 324
(Pvt.), John T., 131
(Pvt.), John W., 133
Joseph, 324
(Pvt.), Joseph, 121
Lydia, 324
Newton, 276
Mahala, 273
Margaret, 324
Maria, 273, 274
Martha, 324
Mary, 273, 324
Mary Ann, 338-339
(Prof.), 482
Ruhamah, 324
(Pvt.), Samuel K., 141
Sarah, 273
WILLIAMSON continued
Sophia, 338-339, 434
Thomas, 345
(Pvt.), Thomas, 130
William, 273, 279, 324
(Pvt.), William, 114
(Pvt.), William T., 115
WILLIARD
L. D., 166, 167
WILLIE
(Pvt.), Robert L., 154
Mrs. Robert L., 586
WILLIS
(Pvt.), C., 112
(Pvt.), John, 142
(Pvt.), John A., 125
Nathaniel, 312-313
(Pvt.), Robert L., 142
WILLITS
(Capt.), Levi M., 121
WILLMAN
(Dr.), W. T., 291
WILLOUGHBY
(Lt.), Andrew J., 127
A. J., 427, 478
Joseph, 309
(Pvt.), William, 145
WILLS
John S., 40, 63, 511
Mary Gibson, 63
Peter, 400
WILLSON
(Pvt.), Edward, 119
F. R., 556
(Pvt.), John, 136
(Pvt.), P. F., 150
WILMON
(Pvt.), T., 149
WILMORE
(Pvt.), E., 150
George, 207, 208
Thomas, 111
(Pvt.), Thomas, 159
WILSON
96, 336, 445, 529
(Pvt.), Anderson, 159
Andrew, 401, 404, 406, 407, 445
(Pvt.), Archibald, 108
Caroline A., 87
Caroline Livingston Morrison, 498
Charles, 297
(Pvt.), Charles, 139, 146
(Pvt.), Charles W., 159
Chloe Bull, 404
(Col.), 23
Daniel, 355
(Pvt.), Daniel C., 141
D. K., 253
(Pvt.), David, 143
(Doctor), 312, 314, 339
E., 492
Eber, 404, 407
(Pvt.), Edward, 138
Eliza, 310
Elizabeth, 316, 346, 355, 420
Elizabeth Nancy, 323
(Pvt.), Erastus, 136
Ezekiel, 380
WILSON continued
F., 365
(Rev.), F. A., 313, 314, 315
Fidelia, 407
(Rev.), Francis, 296
F. R., 575
George, 202, 355
(Pvt.), George, 110, 131, 133, 138, 144
(Pvt.), George H., 136
(Corp), George P., 138
(Pvt.), G. N., 147
(General), 532-533
H., 465
Henry, 538
(Pvt.), Henry G., 126
(Pvt.), General Henry, 146
(Lt.), Hiram B., 120
(Pvt.), Homer, 145
Horace, 87, 564, 574
(Pvt.), J., 148
Jacob, 323
(Pvt.), James, 121, 144
James, 267, 269, 310
(Corp), James A., 137
(Dr.), James F., 312, 315, 316-317
Jane, 355, 420
Job, 411, 414
(Capt.), John, 147
(Gen.), Joel, 84
(Pvt.), John, 144
John, 277, 294, 317, 352, 355, 380, 403, 406, 483
(Pvt.), John H., 127
John M., 318, 420
John Milton, 315
Jonathan, 453
(Pvt.), Joseph, 108, 144, 153
(Pvt.), Joseph S., 141
Laura, 420
Letitia, 318
(Rev.), Levi B., 475, 482
Lucy, 420
Margaret, 532-533
Mary, 312, 317, 355
(Corp), Nelson H., 122
(Pvt.), O. F., 147
Olive, 404
Percy R., 87
(Lt.), P., 114
(Pvt.), Pleasant, 127
(Prof.), 17
Rachel, 355
Rebecca, 196-197, 404, 483
(Rev.), 449
R. H., 199
Robert, 328
(Pvt.), Robert, 139, 140
(Rev.), Robert G. D. D., 267
Roswell, 404
(Pvt.), S., 112
Samuel, 292, 404, 420, 493
Sarah, 355, 420
Sarah Ann, 351
(Pvt.), Stephen, 122
(Pvt.), Stewart, 145
Thomas, 355
(Pvt.), T. H.
W. A., 488, 567
(Dr.), William, 290

WILSON continued
(Pvt.), W., 152
Wagoner Ferdinand, 115
(Pvt.), Walter, 141
(Pvt.), W. E., 152
William, 43-44, 92, 355
(Pvt.), William, 143
(Pvt.), William E., 153
(Pvt.), William P., 139
(Pvt.), William S., 131
WILSONS
430
WIM
(Pvt.), Eli, 115
WIMMEN
Lorus, 111
WINCHELL
Hezekiah, 396-397
Ida May, 396-397
Martha, 396-397
Mary, 396-397
Nancy, 396-397
(Prof.), N. H., 169,170
Salmon, 396-397
WINCHESTER
(Pvt.), C. J., 146
WINDER
(Pvt.), Henry, 117
(Pvt.), Jacob S., 130, 159
WINDERS
Betsey Gardner, 434
W., 434
WINDLE
(Sgt.), Lucius, 120
WINECOOP
Delilah, 383
(Pvt.), Lewis T., 156
WINECUP
S., 492
WINEGARDNER
(Pvt.), James E., 123
William, 487, 416
WINEGARNER
(Pvt.), Samuel, 129
WINEMILLER
(Pvt.), William, 115
WINER
(Pvt.), Philip, 124
WINES
(Pvt.), John, 157
WINFAUGH
Samuel, 308, 309
WINFIELD
(Pvt.), George R., 111
WING
(Pvt.), Fred F.
(Pvt.), Girard, 133
(Pvt.), Henry, 157
(Pvt.), Henry W., 153
(Capt.), James H., 111, 112, 569
(Rev.), M. T. C., 429
William, 102
W. R., 544
WINGARD
(Rev.), E., 256, 476
WINGET
(Rev.), L. C., 373
WINK
(Pvt.), C. S., 150
WINKLER
(Pvt.), Adam, 142
WINKLER continued
(Pvt.), Adolph, 135
Christian, 111
WINN
J., 475
WINNER
(Pvt.), Charles E., 114
WINSHIP
Edwin E., 48
E. E., 208, 209
(Pvt.), John H., 158
Thomas J., 53, 54
T. J., 166
William, 166
WINSOR
J., 409
WINSTEAD
P. P., 100
Mrs. Samuel, 302
Samuel S., 43
WINTER
J., 475
Isaac, 526
Jacob M., 119
(Pvt.), W. S., 149
WINTERS
Lucy, 191
WINTESENGER
(Pvt.), John W., 129
WINTRINGER
J. W., 496
WIRTH
(Dr.), Rudloph, 567
WISCHAL
(Corp), Daniel, 159
WISE
A., 527
(Pvt. Alfred D., 137
(Pvt.), Benjamin, 137
George, 303
(Rev.), George, 254
(Dr.), Isaac M., 527
(Pvt.), John W., 117
WISEA
Frederick, 377
WISEL
Peter, 390 -391
WISHA
(Pvt.), Franklin, 134
WISNER
(Pvt.), W., 114
WISKER
(Pvt.), Henry, 142
WISLER
(Pvt.), J., 150
WISON
(Dr.), J. F., 315
WISSLER
Barbara, 252
George, 252
Henry, 252
Jacob, 252
Magdalene, 252
Samuel, 252
WISWELL
(Pvt.), John L. B., 133, 153
WITHCOTT
Jesse, 311, 313
T. M., 313, 315
WITHEY
Betsey Ann, 376
WITHEY continued
Jacob H., 376
WITHNER
(Pvt.), Fred, 110
WITHRINGTON
Thankful, 501
WITMAN
(Pvt.), Samuel, 111
WITSMEIR
(Pvt.), Matthias, 142
WITSON
E., 365
WITT
(Dr.), E. C., 279, 280
WITTECH
(Pvt.), Charles, 122
WHITTER
A., 557
(Pvt.), Alvin, 142
WITTICH
206
G. F., 7, 181, 197, 199, 204, 229, 271
T. H., 197
T. K., 207, 208
WITWER
(Pvt.), Charles F., 131
WITZEL
(Pvt.), Henry, 108
WIXOM
(Rev.), Jesse F., 517
WOALM
(Pvt.), Henry, 145
WOCKE
(Pvt.), Peter, 122
WOEHRLY
(Pvt.), Christian, 108
(Pvt.), Frederich, 122
WOLBERT
(Pvt.), Henry, 143
WOLCOTT
Charlotte, 424
Oliver, 35
Wilmer, 380
WOLCUTT
C. C., 46
(Gen.), Charles C., 104
Horace, 46
James, 46, 47
John M., 46
WOLF
56
Albert, 256
Ann, 462, 467
Archibald, 466
(Pvt.), Boman, 145
Christine, 466
(Pvt.), David, 141
Elizabeth, 390-391, 458
(Pvt.) Frank, 157, 158
(Pvt.), G. A., 150
George, 256
(Pvt.), George W., 142
Isaac, 466
(Pvt.), Isaac, 108
(Pvt.), J. D., 150
Jacob, 251, 392, 462, 466, 467
Jacob S., 467
John, 462, 466, 466-468
(Pvt.), John, 112, 128

WOLF continued
Joseph, 466
Levi, 462, 466
(Pvt.), Levi, 131
Margaret, 466
Mary, 263, 363, 466
Mary Wissler, 252
Matthias, 390-391, 392, 393
(Corp), Michael, 158
(Pvt.), Parley B., 144
Permelia A., 467
Sarah Lunn, 399
Thomas, 458
(Pvt.), William, 141
WOLFE
B., 255
(Pvt.), B. F., 150
Ella, 297
(Pvt.), John, 136
M., 308
Michael, 292
WOLFAHRT
(Pvt.), Jean, 122
WOLFEL
Cyracus, 397
WOLFLEY
200, 205
(Corp), Charles E., 135
(Pvt.), Coonrad, 108
Francis, 167
George, 222
G. E., 199
Jerome, 181, 215, 344
(Pvt.), John, 154
John A., 185, 233
(Pvt.), John E., 128
(Pvt.), J. R., 150
Margaret, 233
(Pvt.), Nelson, 135
(Sgt.), Thomas, 124
W., 199
WOLFLY
George, 48
WOLFORD
Charles S., 396
(Pvt.), Isaac B., 143
J. B., 396
(Pvt.), John, 123
WOLFORT
(Pvt.), Henry, 139
WOLFRAM
B., 202
WOLINGTON
(Pvt.), E., 123
WOLLCOTT
(Pvt.), Horace W., 153
WOLLINGTON
(Pvt.), F. W., 150
(Pvt.), G., 150
WOLSHIRE
(Pvt.), John, 141
WOLVERTON
(Pvt.), Ezekiel, 146
WOMBAUGH
A. B., 184
(Rev.), Abram B., 517 WOOD
44, 95
Abigail, 314
A. G., 314
WOOD continued
Almon S., 431
A. S., 427, 432
(Corp), Augustus B., 120
Benjamin, 384
Betsy Tanner, 288
Bettie, 314
Charles, 293
D. K., 465
Eliza, 88
Elizabeth Ramsey, 293
Elizabeth, 441
Frederick W., 88
George, 289, 293, 294
(Pvt.), George W., 127
(Governor), 92, 368
(Pvt.), H., 150
Hannah E. Ingham, 293
(Pvt.), Hiram P., 155
(Pvt.), J. A., 156
Jesse, 433
John, 84, 293, 309
John H., 163
Isabella, 384
Julius J., 500
Lewis, 293
Lydia C., 88
(Pvt.), Mac, 157
Mary, 293, 409
Mary Ann, 88
Rachel Chenowith, 433
Rebecca, 309
(Gov.), Reuben, 553
Samuel, 475
Thomas, 293
(Pvt.), Thomas, 119
William J., 297
WOODAL
(Pvt.), John D., 115
WOODARD
(Pvt.), Oliver, 158
WOODBRIDGE
Dudley, 410
James E., 421
WOODBURY
90
Benjamin, 95
Mrs. D., 528
Daniel T., 516
D. T., 528, 556
(Rev.), W. B., 464
WOODDELL
(Pvt.), B., 151
(Pvt.), Benjamin F., 155
(Pvt.), Ira, 117
John, 281
WOODEN Pri Samuel, 137
WOODRUFF
Adam, 354
Brace, 399
Elijah, 354
(Pvt.), George, 142
Hiram, 399
James, 414
James M., 414
Jane, 421
Julious, 125
(Dr.), L., 383
Lina, 399
L. L., 189, 190
WOODRUFF continued
Mary Ann, 354
Norman, 399, 465
Richard P., 95
(Pvt.), Robert, 136
R. P., 519
Sarah, 414
(Pvt.), S., 114
(Pvt.), Theodore, 120
W. D., 188, 189
William, 354
(Pvt.), Wilson T., 139
WOODS
(Pvt.), Charles, 136
(Rev.), Edgar, 515
(Pvt.), George, 136, 137
(Pvt.), George W., 136
Isaac, 288
(Col.), J. J., 243
(Pvt.), John, 136
(Rev.), John, 528-529
(Pvt.), Lewis S., 157
Pauline, 450
Samuel W., 450
(Corp), William Jr., 152
WOODWARD
(Pvt.), Charles, 144
G. M., 110
(Pvt.), Joseph B., 110
Susan, 73
WOODSWORTH
(Pvt.), Ezrd, 108
WOODY
L., 209
WOOLARD
(Pvt.), William, 145
WOOLERY
Catherine, 387
WOOLEY
Elizabeth, 416-417
Fannie V., 416-417
Isaac, 416-417
Jacob, 416-417
(Pvt.), John, 153
Solomon J., 416-417, 416-417
(Pvt.), William P., 153
WOOLF
(Pvt.), J., 111, 148
(Pvt.), J. C., 148
WOOLLEY
Frances V. Cromwell, 364
S. J., 364
WOOLUM
J. W., 387
WOOLWEAVER
Hannah, 353
Mary, 353
Nathaniel, 353
William, 353
WORICKS
(Pvt.), Adonirans, 159 WORK
Catharine, 297
Elizabeth, 592-593
Frank, 592-593
J. C., 592-593
Wesley, 297
WORKMAN
(Pvt.), Hugh, 146
WORLER
(Pvt.), Andrew, 139

WORLEY
(Rev.), Daniel, 394
(Pvt.), John, 142
(Pvt.), John Q., 139
(Pvt.), W. A., 125
(Pvt.), W. M.,125
WORRECK
(Pvt.), Ephraim B., 139
WORTHINGTON
42-43
(Pvt.), A., 111, 112
Ann, 435, 438
Clark, 435, 439
George, 435, 439
Harriet, 439
Isaac, 438
James F., 52
James T., 538
Jane, 435, 438
(Pvt.), Joel H., 123, 157
(Pvt.), John W., 144
(Col.), Thomas, 119
John William, 435, 439
Josephine, 439
J. W., 436
Mary, 435, 438
Mary A., 438
R. M., 434, 438
Sarah, 380, 435, 439
(Governor), Thomas, 44, 50, 271, 431, 485, 577
(Sgt.), Willson S., 157
WORTSTALL
(Pvt.), Charles, 130
WOTRING
(Pvt.), Peter, 123
WOYATHE
Indian, 287
WRANTS
(Pvt.), S., 155
WRENCH
(Pvt.), H.,150
(Pvt.), John, 155
(Pvt.), T., 150
WRIAS
(Pvt.), William, 115
WRIGHT
202
A., 473, 477
Albert, 432-433
Alvin, 475
Andrew, 355
(Pvt.), Azariah, 158
Barzilla, 541
Bernard, 432-433
Catherine, 378, 393, 440
(Pvt.), Charles, 133
(Lt.), Charles E., 134
Conger, 473
Cruger, 426, 469, 474
Cynthia, 422, 432-433
David, 355
Daniel, 184, 371, 373
David, 440
Edward, 378
(Pvt.), Edward S., 159
Eliza, 346, 350, 355
Elijah, 344
F. E., 368
Frank, 432-433
(Pvt.), Frank, 110
WRIGHT continued
(Pvt.), G., 150
(Pvt.), G. A., 115
George, 432-433, 564
Harriet M., 186-187
Helen, 432-433
Henry, 432-433
Mrs. H. W., 432
Horace W., 431, 432-433
Horatio, 421, 422, 427, 432-433
(Pvt.), J. D., 154
Jacob, 397
James E., 45, 87, 96, 105, 373, 374, 585
James P., 422, 425, 432-433
James S., 494
(Pvt.), James T., 121
(Pvt.), Joseph, 119, 120, 121
Jane, 449
J. E., 432
J. P., 431, 432
Joel, 510
John, 183, 213, 440, 446, 464, 465
(Pvt.), John, 111
John C., 50, 355, 356
John H., 550
Joseph, 340, 355, 448, 455
Joseph F., 549
Joseph P., 355
(Judge), 62
Kate, 432-433
(Pvt.), Lafayette, 145
Lovisa Maynard, 432-433
(Major), General, 126
M. B., 542
(Dr.), M. B., 41, 44, 515
(Sgt.), Marshall B., 119
Mattie, 368
Mary, 381
Mary Ann, 355
Mary, 455
Mason, 432-433
(Pvt.) Mastin R., 110
(Corp.), Philip E., 118
Potter, 421, 422, 432-433
(Pvt.), S., 148, 152
Samuel, 186-187
(Pvt.), Samuel E., 129
Sarah, 186-187, 432-433, 440, 449
Sarah Jane, 355
Smithson E., 45, 160, 584
(Pvt.), Thomas J., 140
(Pvt.), Thomas W., 143
William, 355, 396
(Pvt.), William H., 142
WYAN
(Pvt.), Alexander, 115
WYANDOT
Billy, 23, 374, 447
WYANDT
John, 370
WYANT
W. R., 475
WYATT
(Pvt.), Perry, 159
(Pvt.), Richard, 159
WYCUFF
(Pvt.), Aaron, 158
WYLIE
93
Hawley J., 91
(Capt.), Hawley J., 130
H. J., 518
WYMAN
J., 204
Julius L., 47
WYMER
(Pvt.), Amos, 123
(Pvt.), Joseph, 126
(Pvt.), Wesley, 156
WYNGLER
(Pvt.), John, 146
WYSCARVER
T. J., 163
WYSOCK
Indian, 287

Y.

YAGER
(Pvt.), John G., 135
YALVELDT
(Pvt.), H. J., 155
YANTIS
William, 411, 415
YARD
(Major), John E., 564
YARDLEY
(Pvt.), Elwood, 129
(Pvt.), John R., 126
YARGER
(Pvt.), J., 148
(Pvt.), Jacob, 154
(Pvt.), Samuel, 119
YARHOUSE
Jacob, 156
YARNELL
Joseph, 278
YATES
Amos, 299
Ballard, 299
Benjamin, 213
Benjamin Floyd, 299
Betsy Blue, 293
Catherine Whiteside, 293
Christine E., 299
Christina Edmiston, 293
David, 293, 295, 299, 340
(Pvt.), David, 108
David R., 299
DeWitt C., 299
Elizabeth, 299
Emeline, 299
Emily, 299
Francis Marian, 299
John, 47, 214, 293, 299
(Pvt.), John, 127
John M., 396
Joseph, 213, 293, 299
Joshua, 293
(Pvt.), Joshua O., 127
Joshua Osburn, 299
Louisa Wiggens, 293
Lovell, 299
Marcus L., 299
Mahlon, 299
Mary Ann, 299

YATES continued
Mary E., 299
Miranda, 299
Morris, 435
Nancy, 299
Nancy B., 299
R. B., 297
Reazon, 299
Reason Hannah Edmiston, 293
Roland B., 299
Socrates, 299
Susanna Saunders, 293
Tabitha N., 299
Thomas Lovell, 293
Townsend, 299
William, 299
YEAGER
498
(Pvt.), James A., 139
J. D., 206
YEAINGTON
(Pvt.), R. S., 155
YEOMAN
J. H., 315
YERINGTON 204
YETTER
Mahlon, 302
YETSGER
(Pvt.), L. Q., 155
YOAKUM
Abel, 327
(Pvt.), Abel R., 155
Anna, 327
(Sgt.), Benjamin F. T., 127
Elizabeth Redmon, 327
Henry, 327
(Pvt.), H. H., 155
Jacob, 327, 337
John, 327
Mary, 327
Robert, 327
YOHNGS
(Pvt.), Christopher, 139
YOKUM
(Pvt.), A., 151
E. J., 477
(Pvt.), J., 151
YON
(Pvt.), David, 143
YONEL
William, 427
YONNK
(Pvt.), John, 158
YOST
(Pvt.), Charles, 133
(Pvt.), David, 133
(Pvt.), William, 131, 133
YOUEL
430
John, 430
(Pvt.), Nathan C., 153
YOUNG 191
Albert, 453
Benjamin, 143
Brigham, 259
Cade, 383
(Rev.), Charles E., 429
(Rev.), Charles H., 428
David, 430
YOUNG continued
DeWitt Clinton, 383
Eliza, 232
E. W., 436
(Pvt.), E. W., 149
(Pvt.), George, 131
(Pvt.), George H., 129
(Rev.), G. W., 296
(Pvt.), H., 112
J., 184
(Pvt.), J., 150
Jacob, 204, 290, 349, 402, 414, 430, 479
(Rev.), Jacob, 428, 476
(Pvt.), Jacob M., 110
Jasper, 383
John, 51, 325, 327
(Pvt.), John, 125
John B., 390-391
John S., 435
Joseph, 312-313, 397, 402
(Pvt.), L. D., 121
Lewis, 396
Mary, 383
Nicolas, 394
Philip, 353
(Pvt.), P. K., 155
Rebecca, 445
Reese, 315
(Rev.), 407
Sarah, 268
Silas, 302
(Pvt.), Simon, 125
Thomas, 277, 488, 489
W., 479
YOURD
(Pvt.), John, 130
YOVEL
Ann Eliza, 469
Ebenezer, 469
Elizabeth, 469
Ellen, 469
Erastus, 469
James, 469
John, 469, 474
Loranna, 469
Mary, 469
Permelia, 469
William, 469

Z.

ZANE
(Pvt.), C., 147
ZAPLE
(Judge), 99
ZATTMAN
Charles, 557
ZARING
John H., 253, 256
ZEAGER
Jacob, Jr., 43
ZEBOLD
(Pvt.), Christian, 156
ZECHGRUBER
(Pvt.), John, 144
ZEDIKER
(Pvt.), Thomas B., 136
ZEIGLER
Albert F., 111
D. H., 102
ZELHART
(Pvt.), John A., 133
ZELLAR
Jacob, 481
ZELLER
(Pvt.), Israel I., 115
Solomon, 436
S. W., 476
ZELLERS
I., 365
ZEIMMER
300
Abraham, 301
Frederick, 301
George, 301
Henry, 301
Jacob, 301
Phillip, 300
ZENBY
(Pvt.), William, 139
ZERCH
J. F., 208
ZERNICHEFF
(General), 590
ZIEGER
Frederick, 185, 228
Jacob Sr., 47, 178, 185, 213
Philip, 185
ZIEGLER
Barbara, 228
Catharine, 228, 229
Jacob Sr., 228
Jacob Jr., 228
Judith, 228
Judith Sauer, 228
Margaret, 228
Mary Easter, 228
Phillip Jacob, 228
Susanna, 228
ZIM
(Sgt.), Frederick, 126
ZIMMER
Barbara Ziegler, 228
George, 185, 228
Henry, 213
ZIMMERMAN
(Pvt.), Abraham, 159
Catherine, 254
(Pvt.), George, 126
(Rev.), George, 296
(Pvt.), George W., 159
(Pvt.), Henry, 108
Isreal, 255
(Pvt.), John, 159
(Pvt.), Samuel W., 120
(Pvt.), Thomas W., 126
ZIN
(Pvt.), George, 144
ZINN
Adam, 405
(Pvt.), H., 147
(Sgt.), H., 153
(Pvt.), H., Jr., 147
Henry, 485
(Sgt.), James W., 111
(Pvt.), M., 148
Moses, 453
Peter, 405
Philip, 405
ZINSER

ZINSER continued
J. G., 269
ZIPLER
(Pvt.), Daniel, 108
ZIRCKEL
(Capt.), Otto, 108
ZIRCKLE
(Pvt.), Julius, 142
ZUBER
John, 484, 489
ZUGUR
ZUGUR continued
(Pvt.), J., 154
ZURMEHLY
J., 368
ZURWEHLY
Robert, 260